Prater Creek Oil Well Drilled in Wednesday is of Gusher Proportions

An oil well of gusher proportions was drilled in at 11 o'clock Wednesday night on the Clarinda Boyd farm, Prater Creek, by the Virginia Oil and Gas Company.

The well is said to be producing from 300 to 500 barrels of oil a day. It is the second oil well drilled on the Boyd farm within the last six months, the first producing 85 barrels a day.

Production already obtained thru these two wells led one oil man to say that the Prater Creek field will develop into the greatest oil-producing area in Kentucky.

W. B. Boyd, Prestonsburg theater owner, owns a one-fifth interest in the farm on which the two wells are located.

Wednesday's strike was made at a depth of approximately 1,500 feet where the oil sand was barely tapped when the well began flowing before strong gas pressure.

MARE CREEK MAN KILLED BY TRAIN

ROLAND DAVIS, 28, FOUND ON RAILWAY TRACKS AT TRAM
THURSDAY MORNING

Roland Davis, 28 years old, of Mare Creek, this county, was killed at 12:25 o'clock Thursday morning.
Last week, when struck by a coal
"shifter" on the C. and O. railway tracks at Tram. He died as a result of skull injuries.

Though the entire train of coal car "empties" is said to have passed over Davis' body as it lay between the rails, the body was not badly mutilated. A cut hand and skull injuries comprised his principal hurts.
Magistrate John Scott, who conducted an inquest over the body, said it was believed that Davis was knocked from the side of the tracks into the space between the rails.
The inquest jury held that Davis
"met death by being struck by a westbound shifter on the C. and O.
Railway."

The victim was a son of Tom Davis, of Mare Creek, with whom he resided. He is survived by his parents and several relatives.

BIG SANDIAN DIES IN WEST

GEORGE N. AUXIER, 75, PASSES
IN TULSA, OKLA.

(The Paintsville Herald)
George N. Auxier, aged 75, died at the home of his nephew, M. B.
Auxier, in Tulsa, Oklahoma, March 2, according to news reaching here.
He had been an invalid for several years, death resulting from a sudden heart attack.

Mr. Auxier was a native of the Big Sandy valley and a member of the Auxier family. He was a son of George W. Auxier and was born at Block House Bottom near East Point. When quite young the family moved to Missouri and then to Oklahoma.

Mr. Auxier took up a homestead in Indian Territory in 1895, but latter purchased a farm in Arkansas which he operated until a few years ago. He was a Mason and quite wealthy.

George N. Auxier was a cousin of James W. Auxier, of Paintsville, and leaves many relatives in the Sandy valley.

"OLD" TRUSTEES IN TEMPORARY BY JUDGE CAUDILL

Tangled affairs of the town of Allen were in a measure clarified last week when Circuit Judge John W.
Caudill at Hindman ruled that Renden Allen, town treasurer, should obey the orders of the "old" board of trustees in disbursing corporation funds and that the "new" board be enjoined from interference with the administration of the town's government until a final decision is rendered in the case.

At the same hearing, which was held Wednesday, Judge Caudill ordered the liquor store and restaurant of Joe Fannin, a member of the new board, closed but deferred passing sentence on him after hearing evidence in Fannin's trial for alleged violation of an injunction order issued some time ago closing Fannin's place. It was contended by the prosecution, led by County Attorney Forrest D. Short, that Fannin was in contempt of court, inasmuch as he had re-opened his place of business after the court had ordered it closed.
Fannin was given 10 days in which to procure the services of an attorney, and his case may be acted upon Friday by Judge Caudill. His store was again closed Wednesday morning, last week.

Monday, Fannin was lodged in jail here after he had been arrested on a peace warrant sworn out by Garfield Wright, Allen policeman. He will be given a hearing this week before County Judge W. L. Stumbo.
Until last week's action two policemen had for several days been acting at Allen—Garfield Wright under authority of the "old" trustee board, and Claude Flanery under the "new" board. Tuesday, it was said that only Wright remained in office.
Fannin Tuesday morning swore to a peace warrant for Wright.

WELL-KNOWN MAN SUCCUMBS SUNDAY

A. L. Allen, well-known Floyd county farmer, died Sunday at his home on Middle Creek, three miles from here, at the age of 74 years.
His death followed an illness of a year.

One of the county's best men, Mr.
Allen embraced Christianity five months ago. He was born October 22, 1862 and spent his entire life on Middle Creek, where he owned extensive properties.

His wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Stephen Allen, preceded him in death years ago. He leaves four sons—one daughter: John Allen, Au-tomburg; James, Rebecca, and Albert Allen, all of Creek.

Funeral rites were conducted at the home by Revs. Alex
James Owens and Hager Monday and burial was made in the cemetery here.
Sam Hale officiated.

Pepper Martin Rode Freight to First Camp

For instance, there was that youngster who arrived at the Cards' camp one spring. Except for two things he would have been the most inconspicuous rookie in town. These two things were that his clothes were extraordinarily shabby and that he seemed in dire need of a good meal.

Pepper Martin

They told me how $65 was all the money that the boy had in the world when he left home. How he wanted to save that so that he might feel secure and not be obligated to any one. How, in order to do this, he had ridden on freight trains from Oklahoma to Florida. How, a few hours before he had arrived at camp, somebody had stolen the money.

Perhaps such evidence of ambition did cause them to call the turn and predict that the boy was bound to be a good one. I doubt it. Somehow I feel that it was months later, when he was well on his way to running off with a World Series and becoming a front-page sensation throughout the land that everybody realized that rookie really meant business.

By that time, of course, Pepper Martin did not care what had been the thoughts of those who had

SPINAL MENINGITIS DANGER IN COUNTY IS NOT IMMINENT

While continued spread of spinal meningitis was reported from practically all parts of Eastern Kentucky, acute danger of the malady in this county remains remote, it was indicated Tuesday when it was learned that no other cases had developed on Prater Creek, Mud Creek and Abner Fork, the three communities of this county which have suffered from inroads of the disease. Such outbreaks come without warning, however, and none can fretful definitely the degree of danger that may exist.

Dr. Marvin Ransdell, director of the Floyd County Health Department Wednesday issued the following statement:

"The meningitis situation in this county, at present, is satisfactory. As far as I know, there is not a case in the county. The last case reported, two weeks ago, was the daughter of Noah Thacker, on Prater Creek, and she is convalescing nicely. However, due to the prevalence in adjoining counties, I feel that, if every precaution is not made, we will be due for our part of the epidemic.

Cases have been reported from every county adjoining us, and in some instances schools and other places where people congregate have been closed. I feel that no such drastic action is indicated in this county, at this time, but I do suggest that people refrain from visiting, especially into our adjoining counties and especially into communities from which cases have been reported; that parents keep their children away from picture shows and other places of amusement, and in case of sudden illness call your family physician at once.

The meningitis situation is most acute in Harlan and Bell counties in Southeastern Kentucky and in Letcher county of this immediate section. Jenkins, McRoberts and other Letcher county towns within the last week have reported several cases, and strict quarantine has been established in these localities.

In Pike county, 14 miles from Pikeville, the disease broke out last week, and in Pikeville Sunday night one death occurred. The victim was Grundy Maynard, 60-year-old carpenter, who had been ill a week. Mrs. Jim O'Brien, Pikeville, is ill with the disease, but Pike health authorities said this week further spread of the disease is not anticipated.

Van Lear's Saturday night dance was switched to Prestonsburg because of meningitis outbreak there or nearby. One report said the town went under quarantine at 6 o'clock Saturday evening.

Public schools of Salyersville were ordered closed Monday because of a meningitis outbreak during which within the past two weeks, three of five sufferers have died. A seven-year-old child of John Conley on the outskirts of Salyersville is ill and 10 days ago a 12-year-old child in the same family died.

CLAY LAUDED BY MAYOR A. C. CARTER

Mayor A. C. Carter this week issued the following statement:

"Now that the bad weather is over, I desire to urge the cooperation of all our citizens with those in charge of the development of the various Relief projects within our city. I think that our work will be much more speedy under these improved weather conditions.

"I desire at this time to call attention of all our citizens to the fine spirit of development and co-operation shown by Mr. Frank Clay, our district administrator in charge. Our town has certainly been fortunate in having a man like Mr. Clay sent here. At all times, he has had both the welfare of the workers at heart, as well as that of our city's development.

"Our city owes to Mr. Clay a debt of deep gratitude—one so deep that it can never actually be paid."

When a thief tried to rob Mrs. S. H. Brown in her grocery store in Casson, Mich., she sent the thug on the run with a barrage of canner goods, a flour scoop and a sugar scoop.

CITY MILK ORDINANCE

Recently the City Council passed an ordinance requiring all producing milk within the city limits to place the grade of the milk on the bottle caps. The grade to be determined by the State Board of Health for the production of dairies. Since this ordinance was passed there has been a great deal of opposition formed on the part of a few individuals. On second reading these persons are using their influence to muster up enough votes among the councilmen to have the ordinance repealed.

The Pure Food and Drug Act was passed for the purpose of letting the public know just exactly what they are buying. Public sentiment demanded this act because every one has a right to know just what he is eating and drinking. The public has a right and their interest should be before that of any individual.

On second reading a few individuals, not a dairyman should kick on this ordinance. The only thing the persons who are buying his products asking of him is that he tell just what grade has been placed upon his product. If he is not going to meet his customer that should he expect them to patronize him?

According to the rules and regulations laid down by the State Board of Health for grading of milk, they are to be grouped in different grades—the grades to be B, C and D, A B and C to be the best grades and anything falling below the grade of C to be put in grade D and this grade not recommended. The major requirements for the production of a grade C milk is a separate room for the care of the milk, a sanitary toilet on the premises and a protected water supply and a concrete block and for the milk supply no person should be in the room for the milk from eight or ten cows in his barn. As well as for the sanitation of the product he would have to have a separate room or a house (necessary for his own convenience). The same is the case in the toilet and the protected water supply. No one would like to see a milk farm a person who has his premises an open toilet for flies to visit before lighting on milking utensils. No person would like to be drinking milk from cans that have been washed in a polluted water.

GLOGORA COAL COMPANY

"SLACK RUN" SEEN

Work at the Glogora Coal Company's mine is apparently on the verge of going into that annual tailspin which leads up to a "slack run." However, it may be said that those dependent upon this mine for a livelihood have enjoyed the most lucrative fall and winter during the last few months that has fallen to their lot in a number of years.

G. W. Harris, newspaper salesman here, has recovered from an attack of tonsillitis which laid him up for a few days recently and is able to be out again.

LACKEY

(Last week's correspondence)
MRS. REED ENTERTAINS
Mrs. Dillard Reed, of this place, entertained with a party at her home here last Saturday night. The following boys and girls were present:
Misses, Ceredo Reed, Margaret Pezzarossi, Katherine Chandler, Enla Mae Nunnery, Virginia Hays, Pauline Conley, Elbe Amburgy, and America Robertson; and Messrs. Rex Hays, Vernor Hays, Gorman and Gordon Collins, Virgil Akers, Frank and Johnie Pezzarossi.

ENJOY PICNIC

The following Lackey boys and girls were out on a picnic last Sunday and had an unusually nice time, they report. Misses Virginia Hays, Enla Mae Nunnery, Katherine Chandler, and Ceredo Reed; and Messrs. Ted Akers, Frankie and Johnie Pezzarossi, Willard Clatworthy and Gorman and Gordon Collins.

RATLIFF ON ALL-STAR FIVE

Willard Ratliff, forward on the Lackey basketball team which lost by one point in the third game of the 59th district tournament at Martin, Ky., last week, again made the all-tournament team. Ratliff was placed first on the list last year and again occupies the position this year.

Work at the Wells-Elkhorn Coal Company's mines here is slowing up a little. It was thought that the unusually cold winter would keep the mines of this section free from a "slack run" longer than usual this spring, but evidently the dull season in the coal business will hit at about the usual time.

Floyd Has Too Many Hi Schools, Says Jones

transportation to this school would be rather expensive. We recommend to the Floyd county board of education a study of the school situation at Auxler, so that a permanent program may be determined upon for that area.

On Beaver, below the junction of Right and Left Beaver, the Floyd county board is maintaining a high school at Martin, with an enrollment of 157 in the upper five grades. This school is now accommodating the children of this area from the central part of Floyd county, and is very well located for a permanent high school center.

Above the junction of the two forks of Beaver is located the Maytown high school, which enrolled this year 91 pupils. This school is very well located as a high school center, but will apparently never develop into a large high school. For this reason the people of that section must be content to have a high school that does not offer the advantages that may be obtained in a high school that has a much larger enrollment.

The Betsy Layne high school is located on Levisa fork above Prestonsburg and just below the mouth of Mud Creek. This school is admirably located from the standpoint of accessibility for a large school population. With improved roads up Mud Creek, the enrollment in the Betsy Layne school should greatly increase and the school service there should thus be improved.

On upper Mud Creek, the county board of education is maintaining a small high school at Beaver. This high school is possibly rendering a needed service at the present time because of the inaccessibility of the area. As soon as transportation possible on Mud Creek, we are of the opinion that this school should be discontinued and the children given an opportunity to get to standard high school.

The auditor's report shows that the Floyd county board of education has reduced the indebtedness of that board by $38,504.91 since the school year of 1934-35. Although their indebtedness has been reduced by the above amount, there is still a large debt outstanding against the Floyd county board of education: $80,000.00 of this outstanding indebtedness is in the form of funded bonds, $9,000.00 is in the form of Auxler consolidated bonds, $12,000.00 in Martin consolidated bonds, $13,000.00 in Wheelwright consolidated bonds. In addition to the above bonds, the Floyd county board of education has warrants outstanding against that board. We are of the opinion that the Floyd county board of education should continue to pay off as much of this indebtedness as is practicable, so that this large interest rate may be stopped.

During the year 1934-35, the county board of education expended six one-room schools, four two-room schools, and one five-room school. In addition to these, five one-room buildings were provided where already existed, and, on one room addition was completed. At the present time there are two room buildings under construction, one three-room school, one-room additions were made where schools already existed. One two-room addition was made. At the present time two two-room buildings under what Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

Corned Beef and Plagiarism

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF. — The luncheon of our Writers' Club, Inc., (Red Inc.) is a weekly function, with corned beef and cabbage and plagiarism charges. This week we had with us the leading fiction writer of the Pacific slope—Mr. Daingerfield, the local weather forecaster.

Another guest was William A. Brady, the grand old man of the American stage, with great tales of the ancient days, when, to qualify as a trouper, one had to be a pedestrian. Before they asked you whether you could act, they found out what kind of a walker you were. But how many of those sure-footed California beginners counted cross-ties as they trudged into enduring fame? Belasco and Tom Wise and Frank Bacon and Holbrook Blinn and Dave Warfield and many another.

We also welcomed some new members. We're very exclusive. There are groups here that'll take in people who even failed to make the Book of the Month club. But to join up with us, you must have written something significant—insurance or promissory notes or booster slogans.

New Deal's 3rd Birthday.

THIS being the third anniversary of the New Deal, I was just thinking that, whether or not it lived through the early part of next November, its folks could never reproach themselves that they'd failed to give their darling babykins the best nursing money could buy. Just then who should rush in but Michael Strogoff, the curler of the czar, shouting that the U. S. marines had just landed with a contradiction of the terrifically exciting announcement made only yesterday by the same fellow who took the message to Garcia that time—?

Hold on, I'm getting all twisted. What I'm trying to say is that one day the word for a palpatating planet was that Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., was positively going to marry Lady Ashley, whereas but 24 hours before he was not going to marry her. Then he did.

Main Street Ambition

ONE hears San Francisco would lure more inhabitants in an effort to overtake Los Angeles. But why? And why do Americans get drunk on population statistics? It's their head-liest tittle. Every time Uncle Sam loses his census figures, some towns go into mourning because they haven't grown any faster and other towns have public dancing in the streets because a swarm of new people have moved in to make traffic congested and living inconvenient and pleasant neighborhoods crowded.

Offhand, I think of but one city whose ruling citizens mainly are content with things as they are—the lovely and fascinating city of Charleston. Elsewhere we appear to share with the red ants the mad passion to take on addition red ants until the anthill overflows and all the old resident ants are lost in the shuffle.

Feminine Bank Rolls

WHY can't people mind their own business? A merchandising expert, who probably was just sitting around the house during the cold spell with nothing to do except feed the stove, made an exhaustive inquiry to find out what American women carry in their handbags. He now reports that, in addition to gobs of other things including lipstick, cigarettes, hairpins and recipes, the average woman's pocketbook contains $6.74 in cash.

It was perhaps all right for the gentleman to satisfy his morbid curiosity. Where he erred was in making his discovery public. Just consider how busy the boys in congress will be when they hear about that much money still being in circulation.

Politicians Making Claims

IN CONGRESS these mad March days are being much used for plain and fancy claiming. The Republicans claim the Democratic party is to blame for the recent bad times and deserves no credit for the better times now prevalent, the Republican theory being that the good fairies must have brought 'em. The Democrats claim that such bad times as we've had since they moved in were really inherited from the final stretch of the previous administration, which, as they seem to recall, was one of the best times for bad times anybody ever saw.

Goodness Before Wealth

You are much in the wrong if you do not prefer the good qualities of the mind, before the advantages of fortune; a good man before a wealthy one; a man capable of being a faithful friend, before a rich unfaithful pretender to friendship.

GAS, GAS ALL THE TIME, CAN'T EAT OR SLEEP

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my best friend suggested Adierika. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."—Mrs. Jas. Fillet.

Adierika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adierika gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adierika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli."

Give your stomach and bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and chronic constipation. Sold by all druggists and drug departments.

CHAPTER IX

—16—

Murder.

Garth for the first time. The dawn was far away. He made sure blankets were back in her room. He handed her aboard. The glass wind cowl to the cabin, which came up almost to her eyes.

"Strike into a blizzard, get over your ears, and blanket head and all," he warned. "I want to lose your ears and nose."

The constable was already snug under the cowl. Garth swung into the cockpit. Old Tobin gave the spin for him.

Garth needed no circling to trace the air route. Aboard in the monoplane he had watched the instruments and noted the marks from above. He now knew way in by air. He did not even follow the zigzag course that had been forced to grope along in the fog. His mental map of those turns, bearings and distances led him to draw a direct air line to the lost valley. He headed along it straight as the crow flies.

At the time the lovely rose dawned into an angry red sunrise, the monoplane had flown all the way over the weary desolation of mountains and broken-ridged lower mountains. Close ahead loomed the last in front of the Selwyns. The clouds that had reared up so bare under the summer sun now lay with a white mantle. The dark spots were precipices too to hold the snow.

Thickening clouds foretold another storm. But Garth had outraced it. Instead of swinging in around the out-mountain to the pass, he banked to move past the east side of the mountain, on a long upslant.

Five miles north from the pass, he turned to the west and headed for the notch in the jagged east-slope of the valley. Above the mountain the plane bumped like a chippy seat.

He paid no conscious heed to the message. His hands and feet were under the controls with automatic precision, leaving his attention free to center upon what lay ahead.

His first glimpse into the valley showed him a column of smoke above the black belt of spruce at the far end of the lake. Much thicker and darker than ordinary camp-fire smoke, it stood out distinct against the vivid white of the snow-sheeted tundra slope.

As the plane drove clear above the saddle between the peaks, he shoved the stick forward and cut the gun. The roar of the engine stilled, the plane swooped down at the lake like a monstrous bird of prey. Relatively speaking, it was driving at its quarry as noiselessly as a great horned owl of the North stoops to strike a rabbit. Also, by entering the valley over this distant saddle, instead of through the pass, Garth felt sure the plane would not be seen.

His next problem was to effect a landing without the roar of the restarted motor. He had already made out Huxby's big cabin plane, moored at the mouth of the glacier stream. That was the only safe mooring place. The lake had already skimmed over with thin ice except where the outrushing glacier torrent kept a water lane free, well out from shore. Huxby undoubtedly had been shrewd enough to foresee a freeze-up if he moored his plane below the foot of the glacier.

In absence of any smoke near the plane that the miners were camped at the placer. The stream mouth was too far from the diggings for the hurried workers to tramp back and forth overnight and morning. Besides, there would be snowdrifts to wade through. From every indication, the claim-apper could be surprised and taken before he realized that any other party than his own had come to the valley. He once needed was to avoid using the same engine. Its roar would be heard for miles.

Garth calculated the volplane angle with his utmost skill. If he hit the water too soon, the propeller would have to be used to pull the plane in to the landing; if he held on too long, there might be a crackup.

It was a matter of fractions of seconds. He allowed for the fact that the slight wind was abeam, instead of backing down from the glacier. His failure was to notice in time the drunken volume of the glacier stream. The plane took to the water smoothly at almost the exact distance offshore that he had planned. The difficulty was that the outswirling current checked the force he expected. Instead of slowing down or stopping short, the three-seater drove in hard at the cabin lane.

The stream mouth lacked width enough for the small plane to squeeze through the large one. Nor was there any room between the offward and instant down from his cockpit with the mooring line, the pontoon stems smashed like eggshells on a waterworn rock, across the narrow channel from the tail of the other plane.

Before the current could float the three-seater back into deep water, Garth leaped ashore. Lilith had opened the cowl of her cockpit and was starting to climb out. Garth glanced at the threatening sky.

"She has settled down hard and fast, Miss Ramill. Better stay snug aboard until we return."

The girl's reply was to scramble forward on the shoreward wing of the plane. Garth waded out in the icy water and had her hand down his rifle, the three pairs of snowshoes, and all the blankets. He tossed everything to Dillon, then took the girl on his shoulder.

The policeman had started upstream with the outfit. He walked across the now shallow ford without getting a drop of water over the tops of his heavily greased shoe-packs. Garth slung Lilith on his shoulder like a sack of meal and splashed across after Dillon.

At the far bank Dillon stopped to put on a pair of snowshoes. Garth lowered the girl upon a bare rock, and ran down the left bank to swing aboard the cabin plane. With him he took the blankets. When he came ashore, he had on dry socks and moccasins.

He frowned at Lilith. She was flopping awkwardly along on snowshoes behind the policeman.

"Take off those webs and get into the cabin," he ordered.

"I will not," she refused. "I'm going with you. I came to see that beast arrested."

"Don't be a fool. We'll be there and back before you've more than got started. There's no time to wait for you. Blizzard may swoop down any minute."

He had slipped on the third pair of snowshoes. He took his rifle from Dillon and started off as guide. The constable followed at the same rapid gait. He was an experienced snowshoe runner. Lilith tried to imitate their deft swinging stride with the webs. She tripped and plunged face-down into a drift.

Instead of turning back at the girl's cry of appeal, Garth quickened his stride to a run. A severe blizzard would thicken the skim ice and close the water lane out from the stream mouth. That would mean a wait until the stream ran dry with the freeze-up of the glacier. Not until then would the lake ice become thick enough for the cabin plane's pontoons to be chopped free and pried up on the surface.

Above the site of his old camp Garth halted and signed for his companion to listen. Down through the snowy stillness came a clear ring of metal on metal.

"They're drilling below the frost-line to blast a shaft," he said. "Richer gravel on bedrock, at the foot of the placer trough."

Dillon forged into the lead. "You'll trail me now, sir."

Without any protest, Garth fell in behind. The Law was now in command. A few strides brought them to the dike of igneous rock that walled the lower end of the placer trough. From behind a stunted spruce, they peered across the treeless width of rock to where a large fire was flaming at the edge of the matted timberline scrub.

assault to murder. Any persons who interfere with his arrest will make themselves liable."

"Bah, you cock-capped red jay, you can't bluff me," Huxby gibed. "You're covered. Move, and you get a bullet through you. Drop that gun and shove up your hands."

A sideward jumping down-thrown would have put the constable back in cover. But he was a member of the Northwest mounted police. Retreat could no more be considered by him than surrender. Also, he had no authority to shoot his man. The warrant called only for the arrest of the accused. He had to do his duty at what-ever risk.

"You will be well advised not to resist," he said.

With that, he raised his right snowshoe and slid it up a low cross-drift in a forward step. As he bent forward to bring up the other web, a rifle roared in the dense scrub.

Garth fired into the faint haze-puff of smokeless powder. Back came a bullet that clipped a branch at his left elbow. He shifted sideways towards the tree trunk, and rose to peer through a higher opening. A slight movement of a spruce spray in the scrub brought his rifle to his shoulder. He paused a moment to peer over the sights, his finger kissing the trigger.

Another twitch of that spruce twig. His finger tightened on the trigger—Crash! He hurled down on his right side. The first thought that flashed into his mind was that his rifle had burst. His right arm had gone numb as if broken by the shock.

Luckily, he did not at once try to spring up. As he paused to feel at the numb arm with his left hand, the bark flew from a limb close over his head. The scar of white wood showed that the bullet had been fired from off to his left.

He flattened down and crawled into the snowless hollow alongside the tree trunk. In the hollow lay his rifle. It had not burst. But that was no consolation. The first shot from off to the left had struck square against the side of the breech and smashed the magazine.

He swung the Body of the Constable Across His Shoulders.

One look at the weapon showed that it was ruined. He wormed past it to the far side of the tree trunk. During all the many seconds that had passed since the firing of the first shot, he had heard no call nor any sound whatever from Constable Dillon. He peered out under the low drooped spruce boughs on that side of the tree.

As he expected, the worst had happened. The policeman lay on his back. He had been shot through the heart. One glance told Garth the fact that his companion was beyond all aid.

He looked for the constable's carbine. It was nowhere in sight. The low drift behind which Dillon had fallen gave Garth enough cover to crawl out beside the body. But the carbine was not under its owner.

Garth pulled the snowshoes from the feet of the dead man. On the heel of one web he perched the constable's cap. He reached out sideways and lifted the cap so that it peeped above the top of the drift. The cap flipped back off the snowshoe, pierced through by a bullet from the scrub beside the fire.

At the roar of the shot, Garth bobbed up, three feet to the left, to look for the missing carbine. It lay half buried in the snow, a long 10 feet away. When shot, Dillon must have flung out his hands as he pitched over backwards. In the midst of the convulsive jerk, death had loosened his grip on the carbine.

might already be circling to creep in from the rear.

With his knife Garth slashed out the webs of Dillon's snowshoes. Then, worming his way backwards, he started to drag the body downslope. The tree put him under cover from the two killers near the fire. A drift enabled him to crawl to another tree without being seen by the man off to the left.

A sideward shift brought him to the shallow channel of the frozen spring rill. Down the channel a few yards, an up-jut of rock offered a complete cover. He swung the body of the constable across his shoulders, stepped into his snowshoes, and ran aslant downslope.

Every few seconds that passed without the roar of a rifle behind him, meant a widened margin of safety. The pursuers must have failed to notice his broken rifle in under the spruce, or else they thought he was hiding in the rill channel, waiting for them to come within range of the constable's service pistol.

Whatever the cause of their delay, he had gained a long start before more yells told him they had cut his trail. At the outburst, Garth eased off a little on the desperate speed of his running.

His fast mushing had already covered three-fourths of the distance to the stream. It was now a simple matter of running on to increase his handicap over the killers. Only a little time would be needed to cast free the cabin plane. As she drifted out in the current, the cross-wind would swing her around. Then a quick run out the water lane, and the take-off—

Close ahead, he caught sight of Lilith Kamill. She was sitting on her snowshoes. Her right foot was drawn up on her left knee, and she was rubbing hard at the ankle.

At sight of the limp body on Garth's shoulders, she started up, horrified. "Oh, oh, Alan! Is—is he hurt?"

"Murdered. And you—G—d!—you here, all this way from the plane. Rifle gone. They're coming. Get up—go back!"

"Coming?" she cried. "That murderer! He'll kill you too! Go on, Alan. Hurry. I'll follow."

She turned around on her right foot without a wince or groan, and bent to slip her moccasins under the toe thongs of the snowshoes. Deceived into thinking her sprain not serious, Garth slued around her and ran on at his best gait. He would get the body of Constable Dillon aboard the plane, and mush back for the girl. If she followed even at an ordinary walking pace, there might yet be time to get away.

Ellis Island Once Gay, and Named Oyster Island

In the days when New York was a Dutch possession and known as New Amsterdam—in the Seventeenth century—Ellis Island, the famous immigrant station, was called Oyster Island, and was a "gay and exclusive resort."

"For almost 150 years Oyster Island continued to be New Amsterdam's favorite resort for picnics, oyster roasts, clam bakes, and fishing parties," says Edward Corsi, former United States commissioner of immigration at Ellis Island in his valuable book "In the Shadow of Liberty: The Chronicle of Ellis Island." "It passed finally into the hands of Samuel Ellis, a farmer of Bergen county, New Jersey.

"It later became the property of the state of New York (how, not clear) and in 1808, New York ceded the island to the federal government. It was then used as a powder magazine and arsenal and after various uses by the government, in 1890, it was designated as an immigrant station."

Mr. Corsi notes that during his administration—in 1932—"I was to witness the actual changing of the tide, the first in more than a hundred years, when more people had left our shores than were arriving. The changing tide of immigration was brought about by the depression."

In that year—1932—35,576 persons were admitted, while 103,295 left. In 1928 the figures were: admitted, 307,255; left, 77,457.—Kansas City Star.

Nova Scotia Is Scottish

Nova Scotia, the land of Longfellow's "Evangeline" and popularly believed because of that poem to be largely French and English, is largely Scotch. The opening of Nova Scotia's parliament is accompanied by the skirl of bagpipes, and several newspapers are printed partly in Gaelic. In the Nova Scotian county of Inverness, 72 per cent of the inhabitants speak Gaelic, while less than half of the similarly named county in Scotland can speak that ancient tongue.

Latent Rabies

The length of time during which the virus of rabies may remain latent in the human body before manifesting itself is very remarkable, extreme instances showing a latent period of 20 years. The latent period of the virus is not always the same and the

It's nice having lots of friends. Old Quaker has made and held more real friends than has any other straight whiskey in America. rived, Adkins' children crying that they would not see their father again, though the officers had not stated the cause of their visit;

the fact that Lewis was shot with a bullet from a .38-calibre revolver and that, when arrested, Adkins had his revolver lying on the bed beside him and that one chamber, of which officers say had recently been fired, was empty.

Body of the slain man was found at the roadside, approximately 400 yards up Ivy Creek from the Mayo Trail. Discovery of the crime was made by the victim's son, Wheeler Lewis, Betsy Layne high school student, who was following the route to the creek and across the mountain home from school. The body was found about 3:45 o'clock Friday afternoon, and it is believed the slaying took place almost two hours earlier.

Believed on Ground When Shot
Officers expressed the belief that Lewis was shot while lying on the ground, since a .38-calibre bullet was found lying on the blood-soaked ground beneath his head.

Authorities considered the motive for the crime from two angles—one from the claim made by a member of the Lewis family that the victim had $42 on his person when he left home and that he had no money in his pockets when found; the other from the former trouble the Lewis and Adkins families, nearby neighbors, had had. Adkins, a few years ago, was jailed here on a charge of shooting and wounding a young man named Lewis. Officers were not certain if this youth was a son of George Lewis. Adkins had served a penitentiary term.

The victim is survived by his widow and several children. Funeral rites were conducted Sunday and burial was made on Daniels Creek.

WAYLAND CHIEF OF POLICE RECOVERING

Wayland, Ky., March 10—Ben Whitaker, who suffered a serious gunshot wound in the leg here several weeks ago the day after he entered office as Wayland's chief of police, is back at home after a long stay at the Paintsville hospital and is doing nicely.

Millard Salisbury, formerly of Garrett, is acting chief until such time as Whitaker will be able to resume his duties. Salisbury is assisted by Bob Whitten, and the two men are waging a fierce battle against vice and lawlessness in this community.

MR. EASTERLING DIES

A death which brought much sadness to all of Wayland's people was that of Uncle Bill Easterling, about 79 years old, who died here last Friday following an illness of two weeks' duration. Ailments attendant upon the infirmities of advanced age are said to have caused Mr. Easterling's death.

The victim is survived by his widow and seven children, most of whom reside in this section. The body was taken to Cannel City, Ky., for burial in the family cemetery.

Mrs. Odie Bussey, of this place, left a few days ago for the Paintsville hospital, where she will be a medical patient for a time.

Elizabeth and Paul Curry, students at Caney Junior College, Pippaspass, Ky., visited homefolks here over the last week-end.

Thirty-five students from Wayland consolidated school will make the excursion trip to Washington, D. C., April 3, to attend the Cherry Blossom Festival.
