K. E. A. CONCLAVE UNDERWAY TODAY; HUGE ATTENDANCE

Dr. Will Durant Addresses Opening Session; Local Teachers Attend

LaFOLLETTE TO APPEAR

The thirteenth annual convention of the Eastern Kentucky Education Association opens at Ashland today (Thursday) at the First M. E. Church. Eighteenth and Carter, with Dr. Will Durant of Boston, Mass., author and philosopher and publicist, as the principal speaker.

Dr. Durant's address will be preceded by an address by Dr. Frank L. McVey, president of the University of Kentucky, who will speak on: "An Educational Inventory," and Dr. Durant will speak on: "A Blue Print for a Better America."

David Morris, supt. of Lawrence county schools, who is president of the Eastern Kentucky Educational Association, will preside at the opening session, and the invocation will be pronounced by Rev. C. E. Vogel, pastor of the First M. E. Church. This will be followed by a few words of greeting from Col. B. F. Forgey, editor of the Independent. A response will be made by Oba O. Haney, superintendent of schools of Morgan county.

Another feature of the convention will be on Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock with U. S. Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr. of Wisconsin, as the principal speaker. His subject will be: "Current Economic Problems."

Music at the opening session will be furnished by a combined chorus from the high schools of Eastern Kentucky with Prof. Lewis H. Horton of Morehead State Teachers College, directing.

On Friday morning the session will open with singing by the Pikeville College Glee Club under the direction of Miss Alta Mae Lumbard. The invocation will be pronounced by Rev. Guy Coffman, former pastor of the M. E. Church, South, here a few years ago. This will be followed by a general panel discussion with the introductory remarks by Frank D. McClelland, president of Pikeville College. The general theme

"TO BE OR NOT TO BE--" OR TO DO OR NOT TO DO

A meeting of the American Legion, Post No. 129, composed of Floyd county World War veterans was held in the office of J. B. Clarke at 3:30 o'clock Friday night.

Clyde Saunders, district commander, was present to discuss a proposed district convention to be held here. This convention, if held here would bring at least 2,000 visitors from Johnson, Magoffin, Leslie, Breatnutt, Floyd, Martin, Pike, Knott, Letcher and Perry counties.

It is customary to award the convention to the post having the greatest increase in enrollment for the year. The Floyd aggregation of veterans has that distinction. But, the Hazard post, it was learned

BLACKCATS BOW TO BARBOURSVILLE

Bad breaks accented themselves to the sorrow of the Prestonsburg Blackcats as Barbourville, Ky., a non-conference foe, took advantage of the situation and administered an overdose of Logan, a small but fleet backfield ace who justified his all-state rating in helping to short measure our boys, 19-13, at Barbourville last week. Two bad calls by officials were also credited with giving the local team its first setback in six games. Logan registered one 70 yard run and another of 55 yards to score on both occasions. He also scored the third touchdown.

"Smoky Joe" Meadows, Blackcat, all conference line man, and Dick Mayo were outstanding for Prestonsburg. Meadows was smashing into nearly all the tackling to stop Barbourville plays and Mayo made numerous runs of 30 and 50 yards. Mayo made one touchdown off tackle on a 25 yard punt. Jones tallied another through the line on a spinner play. Roark's try for extra point was good.

Prestonsburg made 14 first downs to Barbourville's four. They completed 12 of 16 passes and two were intercepted. The local gridders journey to Hazard, one of the state's undefeated teams, to engage the Kentucky river team. Coach Greenwell has devised new defense for this game and will take 18 players.

MINISTER TO PREACH

Rev. George Redding, of Frankfort, will occupy the pulpit at the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church Sunday morning and evening, November 15. All members are urged to attend.

BALL PLAYERS IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

Auxier Basketball Team in Collision With Loaded Coal Gon at Drift

Miraculously escaping what might have caused fatalities, a team of five independent basketball players from Auxier, on their way to engage a team at McDowell on Friday night, were seriously injured as their auto was struck by a loaded coal gon. It happened at the road crossing of the Turner Elkhorn Coal Company siding about 4:30 p. m. as the loaded railway car struck the automobile midway near the windshield and dragged the car and occupants 20 feet before it could be stopped, according to reports.

The same reports gave the reason for the accident, stating that it was dark and the driver of the auto did not see the approaching coal gon until it struck the car.

Those injured were: W. H. Johnson, minor cuts and bruises.

Laffey Burton, broken arm and crushed elbow.

Donald Music, cuts, bruises, two teeth out and other teeth shattered.

Darwin Wells, minor cuts and bruises. Wells formerly attended Prestonsburg high school and played basketball here.

Aubrey Harmon, suffering from a crushed chest.

Two of the injured, Burton and Harmon, were left at Martin in the Gearheart clinic and removed by ambulance. Saturday morning, to a Paintsville hospital. Latest reports show their condition to be satisfactory considering the extent of their injuries.

GAPVILLE YOUTH ADMITS SLAYING

Young Man Slays Benefactor to Gain Possession of Old Automobile

Reports received here Thursday indicated that Elmer Dillon, 16 years old, former Gapville youth, confessed to authorities at Adrian, Mich., that he waited in ambush for two hours and killed Melvin Whaley, 65 years old, for his old model automobile. Dillon, it was stated, shot down the older man, who had given him a home upon his arrival from Kentucky, as he (Whaley) got out of his car at a farm near Canadaigua, Mich., to do the milking Tuesday night.

Dillon fled from the scene of the slaying in Whaley's car but wrecked it and was arrested. A resultant investigation led to the discovery of the slain farmer's body.

The youth, it was stated, left Gapville, which is located near the Floyd Magoffin county line, last March. Dillon is credited with saying that the aged man gave him a home and never did anything to harm him, but that he wanted the car to go visiting in Ohio or some distant point from Michigan, so he just shot him. Further details could not be learned here Thursday night.

WOMAN'S CLUB IN SAFETY CAMPAIGN

Fine Arts Program Brings to Light Much Fine Local Talent

The Prestonsburg Woman's Club in its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. H. D. Fitzpatrick Thursday, November 5, adopted plans for a Safety Campaign which, with the cooperation of local officials and of organizations over a period of one year, in combined effort to reduce the great toll of deaths and body maiming which continues to increase as the speed of cars becomes greater. Mrs. J. D. Mayo, chairman of Public Welfare, told members of the threefold plan which includes engineering, enforcement and education, when carried out, shows a reduction of 20 per cent in deaths due to traffic accidents. Mrs. E. P. Arnold, Mrs. E. P. Hill, Miss Ella Noel White and Mrs. Martha Kieling will serve as a committee to aid Mrs. Mayo in making the campaign a success.

A delegation of Sunday School girls made an earnest appeal to the women to use their influence in regulating the sale of liquor in Prestonsburg and vicinity. Jane Clark expressed herself in favor of voting it out of town. Winifred Sturgill said she would prefer looking at some thing other than liquor in the drug store window displays. Sarah Clay Stephens urged the women to vote with the thought of youth in mind in regard to liquor sales. Ann Allen pointed out the bad effect the little restaurants selling liquor had upon the children of the graded school.

CUTLER ANNOUNCES IMMENSE PROGRAM

To Let Contracts Soon; Official Program Includes Floyd and District

A total of $4,615,624 in highway construction to be spent in a federal program for a period ending June 30, 1937 in the state was announced Wednesday by Thomas H. Cutler, chief engineer of the highway department and approved by Commissioner of Highways Robert Humphreys and by the advisory highway commission. It is understood that all of this work will be let to contract this winter.

Included in this program of road improvement for this district are listed by counties as follows:

Floyd — Allen Lackey road from end of concrete paving to Knott county line, 10.9 miles medium type surfacing, $180,000.

Johnson — Paintsville Louisa road, grading of revisions from end of concrete paving to Lawrence county line, 5.9 miles, grade and drain, $60,000; Paintsville Prestonsburg road, slide correction near Paintsville, no mileage.

Pike — Pikeville Williamson road from end of federal aid construction, 3 miles toward Pikeville, medium type surfacing, $55,000.

Magoffin — Salyersville West Liberty road from Salyersville to Morgan county line, 10.9 miles medium type surfacing, $90,000.

Lawrence — Paintsville Louisa road, grading of revisions from end of concrete 1.9 miles south of Louisa to Johnson county line, $150,000.

CHURCHES TO HOLD TRAINING SCHOOL HERE

A Training School for Christian workers will be held in Prestonsburg beginning Sunday, November 22 and continuing through Wednesday of that week.

Courses in "Teaching," "Worship" and "Educational Work of the Local Church" will be offered. The faculty will be: Mrs. E. L. Ludwig, of Ashland; Rev. S. M. Funk, of Louisa, and Rev. H. C. Porter, of Charleston, W. Va.

The school is sponsored by a board of managers from the various churches.

KY. ART TREASURES TO BE RECORDED

As Floyd county's contribution to National Art Week, Mrs. W. P. Mayo, vice president of the Kentucky Federation of Woman's Clubs and also State Art Chairman, requests that any one who has an art treasure in their home, will have it recorded in the Catalogue of Kentucky Art to be published soon by the Extension Department of the University of Kentucky. The data is to be collected by the Kentucky Federation of Woman's Clubs and turned over to the University Department.

Mrs. Mayo says: "Perhaps you have an old portrait handed down for many generations and is more worthy than you think. Give its name and the name of the artist and date of painting as nearly as possible. Or, if you have recently acquired a painting by a recognized artist, get it recorded. Of course, only original work is considered. In case you are doubtful of whether your possession is worthy of the catalogue, there is to be a jury of capable artists chosen from the Art Department of the University to pass on this matter. So send in your data."

This information should be furnished before the new year and it is necessary to have a card for naming and describing each picture. These cards may be obtained from Mrs. Mayo, who is chairman for the Department for Floyd county, Prestonsburg, Ky.

Mrs. Mayo is an accomplished artist and has been very

RED CROSS RALLY STARTS DRIVE IN ANNUAL ROLL CALL

Floyd County Goal Set at 1,200; Prestonsburg Expected to Muster 300

WORKERS BUSY

With a city goal of 300 in view, Red Cross workers in the city are on the march again in the 20th annual Roll Call beginning Armistice Day.

Special membership contributions totaling $65 and providing four of the 300 members sought had been received by early Armistice Day morning, according to announcement of Miss Ella Noel White, executive secretary of Floyd county chapter.

By the use of mails and the solicitation on the part of 15 workers some of them veterans of other campaigns, the chapter will seek to make Prestonsburg's contribution to the American Red Cross and its great disaster relief and education work throughout the nation. Preparations for the campaign in the community were made Tuesday night at a dinner meeting at the Auxier Hotel.

At this gathering materials for use in the drive were furnished by Miss White, and suggestions for carrying on the roll call made by Robert A. Potter, roll call chairman for the county.

Workers taking part in the campaign include: Mesdames E. P. Arnold, Goble Branham, A. C. Harlowe, Russell Hagewood, F. L. Heinze, E. P. Hill, James R. Hurt, Rudolph Koch, Osa Ligon, William Rose, Jack Spurling, John D. Thomas, Misses Minnie Grace Harris and Anna Martin.

Progress of the drive is being registered by a giant nine foot thermometer, set at the Fitzpatrick building at the southwest corner of Second and Court streets. With bringing in of members the big red marker will plunge away toward the 300 mark.

The "big gift" contributions thus far are: supporting memberships, $25 each; Southern Public Service Co. and Kentucky West Virginia Gas Co.; sustaining membership, $10

Today's "Heroes of Civilization"

Many years ago, George Bernard Shaw said, "The courage to rage and kill is cheap. My bulldog has it, but he lets the groom beat him all the same." Military courage may not be precisely "cheap," but it certainly seems less fine than the behavior of what Carnegie called "the heroes of civilization." It is one thing to go over the top with the band playing—metaphorically, at least—and another to go over alone, without incentive outside of the job that is to be done and without thought of glory.—Channing Pollock in Cosmopolitan Magazine.

Stomach Gas So Bad Seems To Hurt Heart

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested Adlerika. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."
—Mrs. Jas. Filler.
Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adlerika gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.
Dr. H. L. Shonb, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli. Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and stubborn constipation. Leading Druggists.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Apaches Going Sissy.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—A missionary on an Arizona reservation says the Apache, once the fiercest of the tribesmen, is going plum' sissy, and when a movie company took a group of Indian extras on location these original Americans, being stripped for action, got terrible cases of sunburn. They'd worn clothes so long their tender skins couldn't stand the heat.

There's a lesson here, although, so far as the victim is concerned, it's probably too late to do anything about it. Once we'd backed the noble red man into a pair of $3 pants we had him tamed. Sitting Bull, in war bonnet and buckskins, was a splendid savage, but, wearing overalls and a hickory shirt, he became just a brunette farm hand.

The derby hat may be the homeliest creation ever devised for human use, but it's the crowning triumph of civilization, and the most pacifying for alien folks, as witness Haile Selassie, looking now rather like a Filipino bellhop on his Sunday off.

Humans Becoming Monkey-Like.

A professor of psychology advances the thought that mankind, in ages to come, may be headed for the all-fours posture which once the species did use—if you accept the evolutionary theory, which most of us do, because we like to think of some people we know as having had monkey-like creatures for ancestors. We say to ourselves, the poor things aren't entirely over it yet. But the learned gentleman who's trying to lift the veil of the future overlooks the lessons of the present. He should study New York and Newport society when European royalty is in our midst.

Denouncing the Baby Derby.

When Prime Minister Hepburn denounced Toronto's so-called baby derby as "the most revolting, disgusting exhibition ever put on in a civilized country" a lot of us gave three loud, ringing cheers.

That eccentric Canadian millionaire, who left his fortune for a contest seemingly devised to prove that the human species has a strain of Potomac shad in it, unintentionally came near to making cheap and sordid the loveliest thing on this earth, which is motherhood.

To see families engaged in a race to bring babies and yet more babies into the world, merely on the hope of getting paid for it; to realize the certainty of vulgar squabbling over the prize; to know that inevitably lawsuits will absorb most of the money—well, there are many who oppose birth control. But deliberately fostered birth control may have its drawbacks, eh, what?

The Fate of Big Bolsheviks.

Here's what has happened to the original Bolshevik leaders, the fathers of the Soviet setup:

Trotsky, in exile and due to stay there, if he values his health; Kameneff, exiled, recalled, executed last August; Zinovieff, executed; Rykoff, demoted, arrested and trial impending, hence regarded as bad insurance risk; Radek in the same fix and said to be worried, and I wouldn't blame him; Tomsky, committed suicide to avoid something even more unpleasant; Kiroff, assassinated; Mikoyan, got out in time and stayed out; Bukharin, under suspicion and arrest impending, odds against, 9 to 5; Evdokimoff, executed; Smirnov, executed; Lenin, died a natural death, but then Lenin always was different; Stalin, Bubnov and Krylenko, all going strong, but you never can tell, so would do well not to play too far in advance.

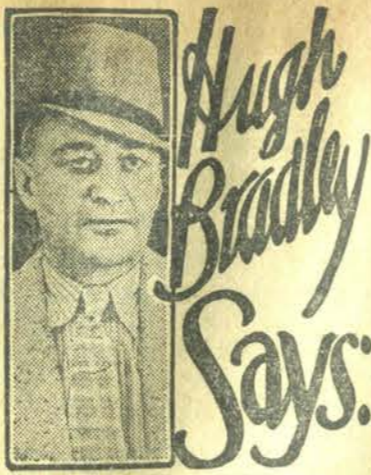

War Vs. Preparedness.

As one who saw the first few months and the last few months of warfare on the Western front, I'm like nearly every other man or woman who witnessed those things—I hate war.

It's the next morning of drunken glory. It's a stench, an obscenity, a vain wastefulness, an unutterable indecency. It's a machine which sucks in at the hopper the beauty, the youth, the hope of the world and spews out from the spout the finished product—broken bodies blinded eyes, maddened brains; dead men and dying men and ruined men.

But because we are against war and because we believe the best insurance for continued peace is proper preparedness in times of peace, and because we behold half of civilization on the edge of war again and wonder where they'll strike after they've torn one another's throats, we do sort of worry to see our country cut down on its defenses.

High Score Doctors to Contrary, Sound Football Holds Mob

THE generation - old conflict of football doctors—those whose hopefuls fill the air with passes every Saturday afternoon and those who depend on old-time principles to gain yardage—is in full cry again. In general, the theory of the high-score doctors is simple. You pass and pray and then pass again. The only trouble is that there's a lack of sustenance in this field of endeavor when it is stacked up against fundamental practice.

By this I mean there is little attention paid to the Walter Camp commandment about the necessity of the pass-tossing gents remembering that they also dwell in goal-line bounded domiciles.

That the customers themselves are not committed to aerial combat is indicated by the fact that the whole Eastern and Mid-Western concept is in the other direction—and it is here that the best congregations are drawn by interpreters of the old-time tenets.

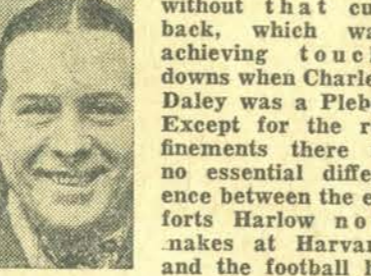

Let us examine the point for a moment. Recently while Yale's regular punters were averaging 40 yards and the gifted Larry Kelley was getting better than half that distance with one unintentional flick of his tootsie, 43,000 were watching the Elis perform against Navy in Baltimore. At the same time 60,000 were seeing Penn and Princeton in Philadelphia, Pitt and Duquesne were entertaining 20,000 of the home folks, Army was slapping over Harvard before 25,000 customers and 40,000 were gloating about Northwestern's triumph over Ohio State.

Crowd Pleasers Play Game of 20 Years Ago

I mention these games merely at random, but they serve the purpose very well. Except from the diehards and the rain haters there was very little complaint about the essential goodness of the afternoon's celebrations. Yet—aside possibly from Ohio State which now and then goes chasing false idols to the eternal and well-expressed sorrow of the town's taxi drivers and cigar clerks—all these teams play a game which is not vastly different from that of ten, or even twenty, years ago.

Yale's attack is as much a combination of outwardly, although not basically, different schools as is its coaching staff. Princeton adheres to the single wing, short punt style brought from its full Mid-Western flowering by Fritz Crisler and now widely used by the Meehans, Shaveys and other celebrated professors of this section.

So it is with the others. Army would rather come on the field without its mule than without that cutback, which was achieving touch-downs when Charley Daley was a Plebe. Except for the refinements there is no essential difference between the efforts Harlow now makes at Harvard and the football he taught at Colgate 15 years back. In essence Lynn Waldorf's Northwestern triumphs are gained by the football he learned from Chick Meehan at Syracuse.

Pitt ranks close to the top year after year because Jock Sutherland believes in the perfection of a few plays and a team rather than in razzle dazzle. It was the return of a punt—a performance which was just as popular and as efficacious when the two last met in Philadelphia in 1893—that enabled Penn to beat Princeton.

Navy uses Notre Dame trappings—as indeed do most other teams, since this so-called system was old long before Rockne ever heard of South Bend. Tulane came from the South—a section which for some reason is often written about as going in for hipper dipper stuff although the Alabamas, Mississippi States and Georgias almost consistently adhere to the orthodox when winning—and ruined Colgate. The job was done with a very fine line. Colgate—popularly reported as the leading exponent of three-card monte football although the truth is Andy Kerr dons his Wizard of Chango robes only when the necessity of adapting his material to the situation leaves him no other choice—just could not keep up. It—but this started to be an examination of the changes heralded as coming over football,

THINGS you ought to know about this game called football:

In 1897 Vanderbilt U. won all her games; in 1898 she won but one.

Allegheny college lost three consecutive games by an 11-0 score in 1901.

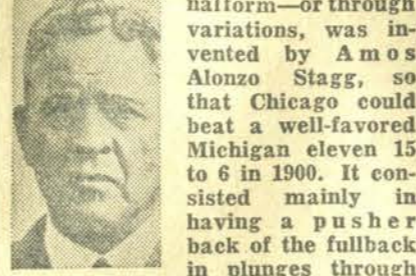

Willie Heston, Michigan halfback, played in 44 consecutive games, scored over 100 touchdowns, and never tasted defeat.

In 1927 Loyola U. of New Orleans, La., defeated Loyola U. of Baltimore and Loyola U. of Chicago.

Ohio U. in 1933 played Franklin college and also Marshall college but has never played Franklin and Marshall college.

Centre college of Kentucky was the first Southern team to place two men on Walter Camp's All-America team in one year—the lucky winners being Red Weaver and Bo McMillin.

The "Whoa Back," a football play that has gained many a yard of ground in its original form—or through variations, was invented by Amos Alonzo Stagg, so that Chicago could beat a well-favored Michigan eleven 15 to 6 in 1900. It consisted mainly in having a pusher back of the fullback in plunges through center or off tackle.

A. A. Stagg was the daddy of numerous other plays and formations that have been used successfully by Knute Rockne and others.

In 1915 University of Tennessee twice won games by the insignificant score of 101-1, against Cumberland and Carson-Newman.

V. M. I. defeated Hampden Sydney 136-0 in 1920; the year before the score had been but 3-0.

In 1882 J. T. Haxall of Princeton scored a 65-yard place kick against Yale.

In 1902 Douglas of Tennessee, standing eight yards behind his own goal line, booted the ball with such force that it next touched the ground exactly on the Clemson goal line.

In 1918 Denver U.'s entire schedule was played against teams with the name Colorado—Colorado Mines, Colorado Aggies, Colorado college and Colorado Teachers.

Yale played 16 games in 1889; Princeton in 1892 played but two less.

Lafayette defeated West Virginia U. in 1896 on three successive Saturdays; they did not play again for 31 years.

In 1897 Georgetown college of Kentucky played her entire schedule against Kentucky U.—three games.

In 1893 Alabama Poly and Georgia Tech tied, 0-0; the next year the score was 96-0 in favor of Alabama.

In 1916 Georgia Tech defeated Cumberland U. 222-0; in the following game Georgia defeated little Davidson college but 9-0.

Pennsylvania U. defeated Rutgers 65-0 in 1886, but the next Saturday was herself defeated by Yale 75-0.

In 1899 Tulane U. went scoreless in seven games; the following year she was undefeated and untied.

Yale holds the all-time defensive record in football, having protected her goal against a score in 30 games, from 1891 to 1893.

Sewanee U. in 1899 achieved the distinction of defeating five opponents in six consecutive days—Texas, Texas A. and M., Tulane U., Louisiana U. and Mississippi U. That year Sewanee won all her 12 games.

Yale has had 43 coaches during 63 years of football, only 7 of whom stayed more than a year.

Coach Gilmour Dobie lost but two games in the first 15 years of coaching.

In 1928 Georgia Tech was national champion; in 1929 she won but three games out of nine.

Not in the Box Score: William Woodward, owner of Gallant Fox, Omaha, and Granville, predicts his Perifox will win the 1937 Epsom Derby. Jimmy Hines, prominent golfer, is recovering from a serious burn on his arm caused by over-exposure under a diathermy machine. Bob Feller, the Indians' brilliant young pitcher, wanted to be an infielder, but took to the mound at his father's insistence.

The Boston Red Sox want Outfielder Joe Vosmik from the Cleveland Indians, but the latter club is asking for Rick Ferrell in the deal. Pitcher Oral Hildebrand of the Indians also is on the block. The Red Sox also have an eye on Pitcher Buck Newsom of the Senators.

Bicameral Legislatures

All the states have a lower and upper house in their state legislatures. All the states are bicameral (two branches to the assembly or legislature), although it is curious to note that Pennsylvania, Georgia and Vermont were at first constructed on the unicameral, or one-house system of legislature.

All the states designate the upper house of the legislature as the senate and in most of the states the lower branch of the state legislature is known as the house of representatives, although a few style it the assembly. In three it is known as the house of delegates.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

RAG CARPETS

The making of rag carpets is an industry, the process a sort of life history. From carpet rags to the completed product was a whole life of industry. As I am frail and not able to stand the rough work of the farm when I was small, I learned many of the indoor tasks of the farm home from cooking and washing to piecing quilts and tacking carpet rags. Hence I am speaking as "one to the manner born" and not as an outsider when I discuss rag carpets.

When clothing became too ragged to patch, it was not thrown away but was washed and laid away for carpet rags. After school was out in the fall, rag carpet time began. Some natural colors were good enough, but, to add a little variety and cover up some dinginess, it was necessary to dye some of the rags before they were officially torn up and dyed. Maple and hickory bark, sumach berries, and all sorts of Diamond and Putnam dyes were used. All the rags were then torn, and each ball of rag string was made one piece by tacking the fragments together. Ball after ball was added by each day's work, until Mother thought she had sufficient wool for a whole carpet.

Along in the spring, when keeping warm was no longer the major concern in the household, custom ordained that carpet weaving must begin. Connected with this major industry were a dozen smaller ones, each requiring skill and patience. Warping came first. Spools of colored thread made for this purpose were strung on holders. They were unwound in a big cable of 20 to 50 threads and placed deftly on a warping frame, made on the side of the house or smokehouse or else on an independent frame. This great array of threads, repeated until there were several hundred the full length of the proposed carpet, was carefully removed from the frame and looped up in knot until the loom was ready. Usually the spare room or the shed of the smokehouse was the scene of the weaving. "Put ting in the carpet," that is, putting the threads through the eye, connected with the treadle, and through the slay, was a difficult and tedious process. I forgot to say that the eyes themselves were a home made product. I have tied enough of them on them, on a little frame made for the purpose, to win some kind of star or laurel.

Now the weaving starts. Bobbin, are wrapped with the rags and pushed forward and backward through the double line of threads, which are worked by the two treadles. Skill is required at every step: in getting the stripes the proper width, in keeping the stretcher in place, in winding up on the beam the complete product. One extra hand is needed to act as general assistant in winding bobbins, in letting down the completed carpet, and in undoing any knots or kinks in the thread. I was usually the supernumerary.

The new carpet went, of course, on the floor of the front room, where it stayed for a year or two, or until the newness wore off. First, it was necessary to put down smoothly a layer of straw. Then you got down on your knees, and by violating all the rules of physics, you lifted yourself and the carpet and put it where it belonged, tacking it securely in place. The resulting ache of the knees was formerly known as "house maid's knee." After the carpet was securely tacked down, it was necessary to keep all sunlight and air away from it to prevent the bright stripes from fading; hence the stuffy atmosphere of the old fashioned front room when it was opened for Sundays or guests.

Many a romantic thing will happen to the carpet before it is resolved into shreds. It will step down from its high place in the front room and will grace the living room or mother's room, until it is pretty threadbare. Then in small lengths, representing the portion formerly under the beds, it will serve as rugs, and after these are badly worn, they will be used to stuff under doors to keep out the cold air; some pieces will be used for saddle blankets and to wrap up small chickens when cold spring waves appear. Every scrap and thread will long be serviceable. The rags that went into the making of this useful article were already nearly worn out; the addition of a few bright threads gave them an indefinite lease of life, a life full of romance and service.

THE NEW PICTURES

Opinions are based upon the reports of P. S. Harrison, noted New York critic, whose reviews serve as a confidential guide, to theatre men all over the United States.

"TO MARY—WITH LOVE" (20th Century Fox) Myrna Loy, Warner Baxter and Ian Hunter.

From the story by Richard Sherman, this picture depicts the trials and tribulations of Myrna Loy and Warner Baxter through 10 years of married life. Ian Hunter, who is the devoted friend of both of them and who loves Miss Loy, has a strong part.

Claire Trevor has the role of a woman who strives to break up their home. Good for adults.

"MY AMERICAN WIFE" (Paramount) Francis Lederer, Ann Sothern and Fred Stone.

Good! A light comedy, well acted and lavishly produced. Fred Stone is cast as the pioneering grandfather whose dislike of Lederer eventually turns to respect. Billy Burke is very comical as the socially minded mother of Ann Sothern, who marries a Count—Francis Lederer. The story was written by Elmer Davis and the cast include Ernest Co-sart, Grant Mitchell and others. Suitable for all.

"GRAND JURY" (RKO) Fred Stone.

Fred Stone, as a public spirited fighter who attempts the capture of a gang of criminals, single handed, is comical in this picture. One scene, which is very amusing, shows Stone in a closet listening to the conversation of the criminals. He hears them talking about taking over businesses for huge sums of money and doesn't realize that they are playing "Monopoly."

Harry Beresford, Owen Davis, Jr., Russell Hicks, Louise Latimer, Moroni Olson and Guin Williams are members of the cast.

"36 HOURS TO KILL" (20th Century Fox) Brian Donlevy and Gloria Stuart.

A gangster picture with comedy and thrills. The action takes place aboard a train. Brian Donlevy is a G man, trailing Douglas Fowley who takes the part of a murderous gangster. Walter Hymer is the stupid pal of Fowley, and Isabel Jewel is Fowley's wife. Gloria Stuart is a young newspaper reporter. Romaine Callender, Stepin Fetchit, James Burke and others are in the cast.

Unsuitable for children or adolescents.

"THE ROAD TO GLORY" (20th Century Fox) Warner Baxter, Frederic March and June Lang.

A powerful war drama with a strong appeal to men. The battle scenes are shocking in their realism. Baxter has the part of a Captain, and his father, who goes to war despite his age, is Lionel Barry more. Gregory Ratoff is a sergeant who is very comical. A triangular love affair involves Miss Lang, Baxter and Frederic March.

Morally suitable for all.

"JAILBREAK" (Warner Bros.) Craig Reynolds and June Travis.

A gangster murder mystery, most of which takes place in the prison. Craig Reynolds is a reporter who solves the murder of an ex convict who has voluntarily gone back to jail.

Purcell, Joseph King, Barton MacLane, Geo. E. Stone and others are in the cast.

Unsuitable for children or adolescents because of the activities of gangsters.

NORMAN TAKES WALK

If you see a young blond haired, blue eyed fellow, healthy of countenance and sturdy of build running around by himself, don't get overly excited. It's probably Norman Glenn out again in one of his walking excursions.

Norman arrived at the tender age of two not many weeks ago; but already he is something of a traveler. And he slips away from his home at the parsonage before you know it. At the parsonage? Yes, for Norman is a preacher's son, his father being the Rev. Lawrence Steele, pastor of the Pilgrim Holiness Church.

One day last week Norman was found sauntering along Third street. A passer by noticing him wondered, and decided he had better stick with the lad in case he started across the street.

Norman did start, and went on into Nunnery's store. But no one there knew who he was; and a search instituted by Bob Damron failed to reveal either notes or money. So it seemed Norman was on no errand for his family.

The young runaway helped himself to an apple; and after a little wait left with the pedestrian, who was counting upon Norman to show where his home was. The youngster went south on Third street, turning toward Richmond "Bottom"; and, oblivious of his course, inquiry at one home failed to establish Norman's identity; but a voice was heard, calling: "Norman!" and the pilgrim was reclaimed.

Mr. Steele, who had come out in search of his wandering boy, tracing the child through tracks in the mud, explains that Norman goes on these walking expeditions now and anon. Once he having borrowed a toy wagon came as far as the Trail, and was down at the front of Stephens' pressing shop. An other time he reached a pretty good distance on Third street.

Norman seems to be a good observer; for he can find his way home again. He is quite talkative at home; but in his journeyings Norman seems to become rather taciturn. For all during the time after he had been on Third street the other day and during the visit in Nunnery's store he uttered never a word.

So if you see a young fellow, silent, well content and wandering about, be well assured, it must be Norman Glenn.

FORD DEALERS MEET IN HUGE CONCLAVE AT DEARBORN, MICH.

For the first time since the Ford Motor Company was founded more than 33 years ago, Ford dealers from all parts of the United States and Canada gathered in Dearborn last Friday for a huge dealers' meeting with Henry Ford, president of the company.

Over 7,000 dealers attended. The influx taxed hotel capacities in Detroit and crowded to capacity the huge Coliseum at the state fair grounds where the big meeting was held. Preparations were made to house the dealer group in various hotels and in Pull types and in all colors, were mans parked in various railroad stations.

The purpose of the meeting was the unveiling to the dealers of new Ford V8 cars for 1937 but the climax came when the dealers present to Henry Ford in historic old Greenfield Village the 300 year old Cape Cod windmill, built by the Pilgrims in 1633, once a landmark of four corners at West Yarmouth, Mass.

The windmill was purchased for Mr. Ford more than a year ago by a committee of dealers. It was carefully taken down, timber by timber, each numbered, and now has been rebuilt in a new part of the historic old American village where Mr. Ford has spent so much of his time and effort recently in recapturing some of the background of the pioneers who laid the foundations of American civilization and the American system of living.

A majority of dealers gathered Friday morning. A fleet of 200 buses was required to transport them to the State Fair grounds for the meeting.

Traffic experts of the Detroit street railways selected a number of routes from the downtown district to the Fair Grounds, over which the buses were operated in groups to insure the minimum of traffic congestion.

An address of welcome by Edsel Ford, as president of the company, opened the meeting. Information on the new cars and plans for the forthcoming season were presented by W. C. Cowling, director of sales, and by J. R. Davis, his assistant.

The high light of the session was the presentation of the new cars. Their lines were disclosed for the first time as driven into the coliseum and around the arena. A presentation of the new car features, carried out with the aid of giant models, in a setting designed by Walter D. Teague, noted industrial designer, followed. The meeting was adjourned at noon for luncheon, which was served at the Dairy Building in the State Fair grounds.

At the conclusion of the meeting the dealers were operated in groups to insure the minimum of traffic congestion. Greenfield Village for the ceremonies incident to the presentation of the Cape Cod windmill to Mr. Ford. 1937 Ford cars will be on display to the public Saturday, Nov. 14.

THE BELL SYSTEM FULFILLS ITS OBLIGATIONS TO ALL GROUPS OF PEOPLE

Millions of times, every day, events occur which are small or great in the lives of individuals or the nation—and in which some phase of the telephone industry plays its part.

Maybe Mrs. Jones is ordering that loaf of bread delivered. Someone is frantically summoning a doctor. An American salesman is selling an order to a client across the ocean. A stockholder is opening an envelope containing the dividend on his investment in the telephone business. A telephone man is taking an order for service with pride in himself and the service he has sold. The foreign minister of one great nation is speaking with the foreign secretary of another world power.

These voice-to-voice contacts between human beings, separated by a few blocks or by the spans of oceans and continents, are possible today because the Bell System from the beginning has recognized and accepted its definite responsibility to all groups of people.

There is an obligation to telephone employees, whose noted loyalty would not exist if it were not deserved. There is an obligation to users of the service, and the United States has over half the world's telephones because good service at a reasonable cost is the rule. There is an obligation to the people who have invested their savings in the Bell System, and their confidence has been justified. There is an obligation to the people of the nation as an organized whole, expressed in the payment of taxes, and in this the Bell System has carried its share. There is an obligation to the future of telephony, and the Bell Laboratories have been a conspicuous success in meeting this duty to the future communication needs of this nation and the world.

All of these obligations have been summed up in the guiding policy of the Bell System, "the most service, and the best, at the lowest possible cost."

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS

We do not know of a single individual institution in America that has done as much good as the Red Cross. In every disaster in America and abroad, in Kentucky or China or Japan in earthquake shocks that leveled the great city of San Francisco, in famine which took millions of lives in China—wherever the evidence of human need has been seen, there was the Red Cross with its helping hand.

When floods came into Eastern Kentucky with a cloudburst, when tornadoes swept over Southern Kentucky, when epidemics of disease have invaded this and other states, there the hand of the American Red Cross, its doctors and nurses, its food and bedding, its tents and tarpaulins, to provide temporary shelter until homes could be restored and food supplies made certain.

In the past five years, because of such things happening in Kentucky, the Red Cross has paid out to relieve distress five times as much as Kentucky members paid to it in roll call dues. This year the Red Cross has set a goal of 104,000 members for Kentucky. It ought to reach that goal.

WILL YOUR NAME BE NEXT?

The past summer was one of the worst on record in the matter of automobile accidents and deaths.

And the most dangerous driving months are still to come—the months of rain and ice, and few daylight hours.

Every season sees better, more scientifically designed highways—and yet accidents grow worse, both in number and severity. Every year sees stronger, more easily controlled and mechanically safer cars—yet the carnage grows.

It is true that a percentage of accidents can be directly attributed to mechanical failure of automobiles, or to road conditions. This percentage marks but a very small part of the total crashes. The human element is responsible, and alone responsible, for the great majority of accidents minor and major.

Worst menace of all is the driver who attempts to push the throttle through the floor board—who operates his car at excessive speeds. And excessive speed is a flexible term—there are times when 50 is safe, and 15 too fast.

Then there are the drivers who pass on hills and curves who hog the center line, who allow their car to wander to the wrong side of the road—and drivers who commit a thousand and one driving errors that may save a minute, and may also send themselves and others into eternity.

You see many headlines like: "Five Killed When Cars Collide." You read the names of the victims, go on to other articles and forget all about them. Next time you see such a headline just reflect that your name, or the name of a friend or loved one, may be in the next similar list of corpses. Then it won't be so easy to forget.—Ashland Daily Independent.

children also, at 4 o'clock each school day afternoon, the theme of the series being "Joining Christ and His Church."

All Christians of the community are asked to join in prayer that God may graciously bless these services; and are urged to attend the services. Every one is invited. The night services start at 7:30 o'clock.

There will be special music each night, under the direction of Miss Kathryn Stumbo, teacher of music in Prestonsburg schools. On two occasions during the meeting students from the school will have part in the service: Wednesday night, with the grade school chorus; and on Friday night, the glee club.

Topics for the sermon through Friday night November 20, as planned, are:

Sunday morning—"The Kind of God We Have to Offer," Isaiah xl:9.

Sunday night—"Lukewarm Outcasts," Rev. iii:16.

Monday night—"Our Last Resort," Mark ix:29.

Tuesday night—"Andrew, Advance Agent of Christ," John i:41,42.

Wednesday night—the Rev. Harry F. King.

Thursday night—"The Friendly Jesus," Luke vii:34 John xv:15.

Friday night—"Behold the Man!" John xiv:5.

Meeting places in the cottage prayer services for this week include: Monday, November 9, Mrs. Rowe Hyden; Tuesday, Mrs. T. W. Smith; Wednesday, Mrs. C. R. Slone; Thursday, Mrs. John D. Thomas; Friday, Mrs. Charity Beavers; Saturday, Mrs. Reuben Taylor.

Mrs. W. P. Mayo, chairman of Fine Arts was in charge of the program, which displayed an unusual array of local talent.

Mrs. Edith Fitzpatrick James, local singer and research worker of mountain ballads, explained and demonstrated the difference between the lovely cultural ballads handed down by word of mouth and the "honky-tonky" songs which we hear and which are often a perversion of the true ballad.

Mrs. Merle Wilson, in her lovely soprano voice, sang "Rose of Picardy" and "There Is No Death." Mrs. Wilson has recently been appointed chairman of music to succeed Miss Dorothy Davis, who is away studying music. Miss Virginia Murrill read original poems written by the following high school pupils: Floyd Warix, James Coburn, P. D. Clark and Nick Wallen. Several of the poems displayed novel humor.

Miss Helen Darnell read several poems composed by herself while in college. Mrs. H. F. King's poems displayed beautiful humor and wit, her versatility comparing with that of James Whitcomb Riley.

Delicious refreshments were served by the co-hostesses, Mrs. W. C. Rimmer, Mrs. Elizabeth Wells and Mrs. H. C. Francis.

1937 Chevrolet Cars Have Premiere Showing Here

The 1937 Chevrolet, a longer, wider, higher and roomier car, made its appearance in Floyd for the first time at the Scott Motor Co. on Saturday, November 7. The new car features interior appointments of a $3,000 automobile, according to Mr. Scott and is entirely new from top to bottom.

It is remarkably beautiful, of streamline designed appearance, combined with modernistic colors of a white grey and bold Chinese red. Another notable feature is a quicker pick up. Scott Motor Co. has two models, a master and a deluxe, on display now.

Sarah Ann's Cooking Class

Creole cookery has held an individual place in the world for many years. These famous recipes are the mingling of the customs of France, Spain, Mexico, the Choctaw Indians and the old colored mummies from New Orleans. Many of the dishes are made from small portions of ingredients and the use of piquant sauces in this way the housekeeper can easily use left overs.

Creole Hash

Use equal parts of ground cooked meat and potatoes, some minced onion, chopped green pepper, salt and black pepper to taste. A dash of nutmeg is put in at the last. Cover and cook very slowly 12 hour. Turn once and cook until the crust is crisp and tender like thin French pastries.

Meat Loaf

To 3 cups of cooked meat mix a small slice of suet, 1-2 cup of mushrooms, 1/2 tea spoon each of salt, pepper, allspice, 3 cloves and a dash of cayenne. Add the beaten yolks of 2 eggs and moisten with a little milk or gravy. Line the bottom of a baking dish with strips of bacon and fill with meat mixture. Dot on top with bits of butter. Bake 40 minutes in a rather hot oven.

Fig Fritters

Combine 1 cup of flour, sifted, with 1/2 teaspoonful of baking powder, a pinch of salt, 1 teaspoon of sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 eggs and 1/3 cup each of cream and milk. Add the fruit last. Then have ready a kettle of very deep hot fat and drop the fritters in by tiny spoonfuls.

They'll puff up and brown very nicely. Peel the figs cut into pieces and sprinkle with sugar. Let stand for an hour. Add juice and fruit to the batter. Canned figs are equally good and, of course, need not be left to stand.

Lemon Fritters

Combine 1 cup of flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1 tea spoon baking powder, adding the beaten yolks of 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon of butter and 1 cup of water. Beat in 2/3 cup of sugar and the juice and rind of 1 lemon. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of 2 eggs. Fry in the same way as all fritters.

These fritters may be served the year round and give a pleasant acid flavor to the meat course.

Chicken Gumbo

Cut up a 4 or 5 pound chicken and brown it in fat in a deep kettle along with a pound slice of ham. To this add 1 quart of diced okra, fresh or canned, 1 quart of tomatoes, fresh or canned, 1 large onion chopped, a bit of hot red pepper and the herbs—some parsley, bay leaf, thyme and a little horseradish root. Before you cover the pot for a long, gentle simmering, add 2 quarts of water and salt to taste. Simmer for several hours, very gently, on low heat. Serve with quantities of hot, dry cooked rice.

Bean Croquettes

Take 2 cups of cooked beans, add salt and pepper to taste, 1 teaspoon vinegar and 1 tablespoon melted butter. Form into small balls, dip into beaten egg and roll in bread crumbs. Fry in hot fat and serve hot.

Pecan Cream Cake

Chop 3 cups of pecans as most as fine as meal. 1 1/2 cups of sugar, 2 tablespoons of flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 6 eggs. Beat yolks of the eggs well, add the sugar and beat again thoroughly. Mix the baking powder with the flour and nuts. Fold the nuts and flour mixture into the stiffly beaten egg whites. Fold them in, don't beat. Then fold the egg white mixture into the egg yolks and sugar. Blend very gently and pour the mixture into 2 layer cake pans that have been lined with greased paper. Bake in an oven 375 deg. for 15 or 20 minutes, then remove them very carefully and let cool in pans. Just before served, spread whipped cream thickly between layers.

Creole Pralines

3 cups white sugar, 1 cup water, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon vinegar, 3 cups pecans. Place sugar, water and vinegar in deep pot and boil to the soft ball stage. Add butter and 3 cups pecans. Continue to cook until syrup when dropped from the spoon spins a thread. Remove from fire and beat 1 minute; then drop by spoonfuls upon buttered boards or well greased old teacup saucers, which will serve nicely to mold the candies.

TURKEY SHOOT

Attention, shot gunners! Try your skill at winning a turkey, duck or goose at the big turkey shoot scheduled to be held at Fort Knox Airport on Sunday, Nov. 15.

The grounds will be open at 11:30 a. m. There is no admission charge. If you pride your self on your skill as a rifle, pistol or shotgun shot, come out and see how many birds you can win. There will be ranges fired to suit every man's weapon and purse. Bring your own rifle, pistol or shotgun.

Bring your family; if they don't shoot they can enjoy themselves at the numerous games of skill provided by the entertainment committee. Food and soft drinks may be purchased on the grounds. Music will be provided by the First Cavalry Band.

All proceeds of the shoot will go to the Fort Knox Post Children's School under the auspices of the Parent Teachers Association.

CHEVROLET STEPS UP PRODUCTION SCHEDULE

Detroit, Nov. 12—Production schedules on the new Chevrolet for 1937 have been stepped up sharply in order to meet a nationwide demand for the new car, officials revealed today. More than 5,000 units are being built daily and schedules will be put up to 6,000 a day to meet requirements of pre announcement orders now in dealers' hands. Officials estimate that more than 75,000 cars will have been shipped to dealers in time for immediate delivery to buyers when the new car is formally announced to the public next Saturday.

"Why, yes, Gus," admitted Bull, haltingly but good-naturedly. "I believe you did."

"You believe I did!" echoed Van Tarnel, enraged. "How did she get a horse out of my corral?"

"Why, she come down here to get her pony up herself—so I helped her a little."

The veins in Van Tarnel's huge neck swelled. Grabbing Bull with his powerful hands, he fastened his iron fingers on the old man's throat and choked him pitilessly, pouring on him as he did so a torrent of curses heard by Quong, who ran to the kitchen door to listen.

Only by struggling for his very life was Bull able to wriggle free from the deadly grip. In doing so, he fell backward to the ground, scrambled to his feet, and ran into the barn. It was inside the barn that Bull's voice was heard by the China boy begging for mercy. "Why, Gus," he urged, "Jane's a nice girl. Don't take it so hard. I've worked for you a good many years, off an' on. You always found me honest, didn't you?"

Van Tarnel uttered no word. He had pursued Bull to the farthest corner of an empty stall and, filled with silent, murderous rage, caught up a broken wagon stake and swung it over his head. "Don't hit me with that, Gus," cried the frightened man. A low, fearful imprecation from Van Tarnel answered him.

"Now I'll give you what's comin' to you!"

"Why, Gus, you ain't a-goin' to kill me!"

Grunting and mad for blood, Van Tarnel struck at the cowboy and rained blow after blow on him till he sank to the floor. Then, suddenly, he dropped the stake and, bespattered with blood, staggered out of the barn and over to the house. Quong, watching stealthily, fled in terror for town.

In the cubbyhole office of McAlpin's livery barn in Sleepy Cat, Sawdy, Bob Scott, and McAlpin sat on three stools, silent and absorbed in a three-cornered bout at poker. The frightened Quong, trotting and walking from Gunlock and crossing the bridge, reached McAlpin's in pitiable condition. Throwing his hands against the glass-panel office door, he burst in and fell sprawling almost on top of the intent players.

The gamblers jumped to their feet. McAlpin broke into angry exclamation: "What the devil! Can't we have a friendly game in my own quarters without a drunken bum chargin' in on us head first?"

Sawdy, less intent on saving his money and chips, had turned Quong partly over. "It's a chink, boys. There must be a tong war on."

Bob Scott, coolest of the trio, bent to scan the intruder's features.

"Who is it, Bob?" exclaimed McAlpin.

"It's Quong, the cook out at Gunlock, boys. I'm not mistaken—an' from his breathin', I guess he's run all the way in. Must be somethin' doin' up at Gunlock."

Laid out on the hostler's little bunk, Quong's eyes opened and closed.

"What is it, Quong? What's wrong?" asked Scott.

With his eyes popping from his head, Quong managed to form a word: "Bull!" he exclaimed, hoarse and panting. "Bull Page!"

"What, Quong?"

"Bull Page!"

"He says Bull Page," explained Scott. "What's a-matter with Bull, Quong?"

Quong's eyes rolled in terror. "Gus. Who?"

"Gus."

"Yes, Gus—what about Gus?"

"He kill him."

"What do you mean? Bull killed Gus? No!"

"Gus kill Bull."

"Who told you that, Quong?"

"I see ownself, Gus kill Bull."

"Well, I'll be damned," exclaimed Sawdy. "It looks like a straight story, boys. That why you run into town, Quong?"

The China boy nodded.

The trio consulted together. A team was hitched to a three-seated democrat wagon, Quong was helped into it, and with McAlpin driving, the four set out for the jail to pick up Bill Pardaloe. Pardaloe was in bed. They routed him out and drove over to the hotel to pick up Doctor Carpy.

Two hours later the party halted before the dark, silent ranch house at Gunlock.

In the stall farthest from the door they found Van Tarnel's victim. Incredible as the possibility seemed to Carpy, poor Bull, left alone, had dragged himself out of the stall and lay on his back.

Carpy held a lantern over him. His face and head had been battered almost beyond recognition.

"He's close to dead, boys," exclaimed Carpy, low-voiced, to his companions. "Get him to the kitchen. While I'm working with him, look for Van Tarnel."

They carried Bull to the kitchen door. Scott entered carefully and, groping in the dark, struck a match and lighted the lamp. Bull, breathing stertorously, was laid on the table.

Pardaloe tried the door leading to the dining room. It was locked. He rapped on it. He rapped again loudly, but the summons brought no reply.

"Stand to one side, Bob," murmured Pardaloe. "I'm goin' to bust it."

He threw his shoulder against the door. As it crashed open, Pardaloe, followed by Scott, walked into the dining room. The door to the living room stood open. This room, inspected, revealed no sign of disturbance.

Of the two bedroom doors opening off this room, the door, one leading to Van Tarnel's bedroom, was closed. Setting the lamp on the table in the middle of the room, Pardaloe knocked on Van Tarnel's door and, getting no reply, tried it. The door was locked.

Pardaloe called out, "If you're in there, Gus, unlock your door. I'm here to talk with you." Pardaloe awaited in silence a response from within; there was none.

Pardaloe threw himself into the door. It gave so easily that he stumbled across the threshold.

The bedroom was dark. Scott relighted the lamp. Pardaloe held it above his head and, followed by Scott, walked into the bedroom.

They saw the huge figure of a man lying across the bed. Pardaloe, passing the lamp to his companion, put his hand on the man's shoulder, saw that he was unconscious, and peering closer, turned the face toward him. It was Van Tarnel.

"Call Carpy, quick, Bob," muttered Pardaloe. "He's unconscious."

When Carpy stalked into the room, Sawdy with him, the doctor, aided by his companion, turned the body partly over and examined it.

"Doctor!" She Exclaimed Faintly, "He's Dead!"

"How is he, Doc?" whispered Pardaloe.

"Dead."

Already seized by the excruciating pain that cost him his life, Van Tarnel had left his victim and staggered in his distress to the house.

"It was a quick call, boys," said Carpy to those around him.

Transfixed by agony, the cruel features could not be softened.

"Nothing more to be done here," said Carpy in the living room. "Take Bull over to the bunkhouse now and lay him on his bed."

The clatter of hoofs was heard from the yard. "It's the boys back from town," said Sawdy, looking through the window. Carpy turned to Pardaloe. "Go out and tell them what's happened, and not to touch a thing until after the coroner comes out."

Doctor Carpy came into breakfast late next morning. Jane, who had finished her breakfast, ralled him, as she rose.

"I am late," he admitted.

"Night work?"

He nodded.

Standing beside the table, she was looking over the newspaper. He put his arm around her.

"Sit down a minute, Jane. I've something to say to you. News for some."

She blanched a bit. "About Bill, Doctor?" she asked anxiously.

"Not a thing in the world about Bill. It's—about your father."

"Oh, I know he's terribly angry!"

Carpy shook his head. "Not now, Jane. He's not angry with anybody now."

"Doctor! What do you mean? Have you seen him?"

He nodded. "Yes, last night. You know how sick a man he's been—"

"Doctor!" she exclaimed faintly. "He's dead!"

"He died last night."

She hid her face in his arm and broke into tears.

"Jane, your father had lived his life—there was nothing for him to look ahead to."

"This makes a great change in your life, girl. I guess I'll take you up to the hospital. Bill must know this. Now I've got good news for you and no fooling. You have a big surprise and a happy one coming at the hospital. I took the bandages off Bill's eyes yesterday to examine them—and his eyes are much better. If we can only hold it now!"

(TO BE CONTINUED)

CHAPTER XIII

Bull Page was only a broken cowboy, but Bull was loved in Sleepy Cat.

Yet even resentment at the name of Van Tarnel in Sleepy Cat was softened somewhat when men heard of Jane's unremitting attention at Bull's side in the hospital. Van Tarnel was buried. McCrossen took charge.

To Jane's infinite relief, Bull recovered and went back to Gunlock.

At the ranch there was an air of cheer when Jane was installed; everybody on tiptoe to render service. McCrossen was especially eager to please.

"Well, Jane, I guess you know whatever I can do to take care of things is goin' to be done, twenty-four hours a day if need be," he said. "All you have to do is to leave it to me."

"I shall depend on you for everything," she returned.

"Everything, Jane?" he echoed, smiling as if to invite a confidence.

Jane was not caught. "Everything connected with running the ranch," she said evenly.

But it became increasingly evident as the days went by that the energetic foreman still regarded himself as a suitor.

For a fortnight nothing further occurred to break the routine of ranch work, and McCrossen said no more. The general impression in town was that Denison, as far as Jane was concerned, was out of the running. Jane, it was argued, would never marry a blind man, and the consensus of gossip was that Bill's sight was gone.

No excitement occurred in Sleepy Cat until one day John Lefever was reported arrived at Thief River with a herd of cattle for the reservation. Sawdy, who had gone to work at Gunlock when Lefever left for Texas, rode down to Thief River to help Lefever check the herd in at Gunlock Agency and to give him the big Sleepy Cat news.

But Lefever, too, brought news. The two cronies sat down to compare notes and celebrate the end of a long drive.

"I want to tell you somethin' I ran into nearin' Thief River," said Lefever. "There's a little slaughterin' ranch a mile south of town run by our old friend, Clubfoot, the butcher—remember how he skinned us on the horse race? While our herd was headin' for the river, I stopped for a few minutes where a couple of his boys were loadin' a wagon with hides for shipping. I happened to know one of the boys. He wrangled for us, comin' up once. And I noticed all the hides I saw him tyn' up had a Gunlock brand."

"How's this? I says. 'Does Van Tarnel peddle his steers down this way?' He winked at me an' laughed. 'This bunch,' says he, 'was poker steers.'"

"It looks like McCrossen is runnin' on Gunlock cattle to pay his poker debts," said Sawdy.

When Lefever had made his delivery, he marched with Sawdy up to the hospital to call on their disabled side partner, Denison.

Bill had been promoted from a dark room to a shaded one.

"If I knew I was going to lose my eyes, boys," said he, "that would be one thing. I could end it all or settle down to making baskets for a living. But Doc keeps telling me he's going to save my eyes; and that keeps me hoping—so the days and weeks hang on. All the same, it's tough, when you never were laid up before in your life. What's the news with you fellows?"

The visitors talked about the discovery Lefever had made of the hides at Thief River.

The half-blind ranchman listened intently, not with any noticeable excitement. But Sawdy imagined he could see Denison lighting up.

"Seem' you're not fixed up just right yet, is there anything you'd like us to do about it?" Sawdy asked.

"Why, yes, there is—just do one thing."

"What's that?"

"Keep your mouths shut till I get out of here. I guess you both know I've got a long score to settle with that bird. He was mixed up in burning up my ranch house and burning me up. I'll attend to McCrossen myself some day," he repeated slowly, "in my own way."

The two men left the hospital somewhat uneasy. They laid their story before Carpy.

The doctor heard it unmoved. "Well," he commented, "that's not the first bunch of steers McCrossen has stolen—and it won't be the last."

"Not the first," interjected Lefever. "But it's the closest anybody ever came to nailin' it on him."

"Anyway, I don't think he should be left there to rob the girl right along," added Carpy.

"Are you goin' to tell her?" asked Lefever.

"I am; today. She's coming to town and will be in to see me."

They told him of their talk with Denison. "It left us leery, Doc," said Sawdy. "If Bill gets worked up too strong over McCrossen, he's liable to bust out on McCrossen before his eyes are in shape to give him an even break."

Doctor Carpy waved his hand. "Keep your worry for something else, Sawdy. His eyes got scorched; but when I let go of the boy, keep away from the small end of his gun."

"Jane, you'll think I don't bring you anything but troublesome news," the doctor began. "But this isn't really news. I've known for months—two or three years, in fact—that McCrossen was stealing Gunlock steers. But this is what John Lefever brought up from Thief River today. . . ."

"Now, there's nothing to get excited about," observed Carpy, after he had finished the story, "for it's nothing new. But if I were you I would get rid of McCrossen."

Freedom for Elders—

The Ruling of Parents by Grown Children Often Amounts to Tyranny

RECENTLY, says a woman writer of note, I read a letter from a young married woman, who, having a house in which she evidently took pride, and large enough to accommodate her mother, was disturbed. She resented the fact that her mother refused to live there, although she had been invited to do so. She complained of her mother's travels, and her insistence in keeping her own home.

It was impossible not to consider what were the reasons underlying the invitation. The young woman said her friends thought the situation strange, and she feared they blamed her for not having her mother with her. Such super-sensitiveness is certainly a mistake. It can scarcely be taken as the real reason for her annoyance. The home atmosphere would scarcely be improved by having a reluctant member included in the family life, even though the husband agreed to it willingly.

A reason of money might exist. That is, there is a lurking suggestion that the daughter disliked the mother being at the added expense of keeping up her home, and spending money in travels, which went as far as European trips. The letter said that the mother's health was good. Could it be that the money saved by the mother should she live with the daughter, would revert to the daughter? Or would the mother be expected to pay board, or make some contribution to the home, although of a less stipulated sum?

Whatever the fundamental reason for the daughter's dilemma, one cannot but sympathize with the mother. Here is a woman who cherishes her freedom, and is enjoying it evidently. Either she had been accustomed to traveling, and keeps it up, or she has not been able to indulge her longing to see the world, until now, when she is free to do so and has the wherewithal.

A great deal has been said and written about letting children have their right of freedom of action and ideas. It is not they alone that must have this privilege. Parents, when they get older are often ruled with rods of iron by the children who were themselves granted freedom. This ruling of elders is often under the guises of affectionate care, and a patronizing kindness and it sometimes becomes a tyranny, especially over mothers. Such situations are indeed difficult.

Ideas of Luxury

It is interesting to collect people's ideas of Babylonian luxury. One man's notion is to afford to eat only the heart of dead ripe watermelons; another's is to be able to sleep calmly through a night thunderstorm, leaving the windows open to let in rain upon whatever rugs and furniture are exposed. Ours is to own a private projection room with a sound projector and a collection of all the filmed exploits of Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck and Pluto.—Kansas City Star.

Harvey S. Firestone PUTS THE FARM ON RUBBER . . .

EVERY car owner who does much driving over unimproved roads and who has to use chains, can save the cost and bother of applying them by equipping the rear wheels of his car or truck with Firestone Ground Grip Tires. This wonderful new tire was designed and developed by Harvey S. Firestone working with his engineers on his own farm in Columbiana County, Ohio. It was tested on all kinds of roads and found so efficient that it was also adopted for tractors and all wheeled farm implements.

The rubber lugs of the tread are so placed that they clean as they pull, and since the design is continuous, the tire does not bump when used on paved roads. Two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords are placed under the tread—a patented Firestone construction feature which welds the powerful super-traction tread to the patented Gum-Dipped cord body, making them one inseparable unit. Gum-Dipping is used only in Firestone tires.

Farmers, country doctors, school bus operators, rural mail carriers, in fact, all who do most of their driving off the paved roads cannot afford to be without Ground Grip Tires. Go to your nearest Firestone Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store today and equip your car or truck with Firestone Ground Grip Tires—the tire that makes its own road.

The Betsy Layne sewing circle met last Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. J. B. House. After an evening spent in delightful chatter and sewing refreshments were served to Mesdames Gerald Lewis Ernest Layne, J. A. Loar, Will House, A. B. Anderson and Miss Zula Ruby.

"CALL TO ARMS"

The 1936 Christmas Seals are now in Kentucky, according to Dr. L. E. Smith, executive secretary of the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association.

Preparations to celebrate the 30th anniversary of the Christmas Seals are now under way, not only in Kentucky, but throughout the nation and around the world. Although preparations for the Seal sale have been going on for some time, the real sale of Tuberculosis Christmas Seals will not begin until after Thanksgiving Day. In order to keep our agreement with the American Red Cross, we gave them until Thanksgiving Day to complete their "Roll Call" and then 15,000,000 Christmas Seals will be turned loose in Kentucky to carry on their deadly warfare against tuberculosis.

This year the Seal has the face of Jolly Old Santa Claus and children everywhere will want to buy them, and use them. Tuberculosis is our greatest enemy, but Christmas Seals are marshalling old and young for a victorious

1937 Ford to Appear Here Saturday: is Zephyr-Type

Howard Motor Company announced here Wednesday that Floyd countians will have an opportunity to view the different models of the 1937 Ford, both passenger cars and trucks, at their redecorated showroom on Third avenue, near the courthouse Saturday, Nov. 14.

The new Ford, according to officials of the local agency, interviewed this week, presents a zephyr type appearance, the whole body and frame welded into a single unit in ultra modern colors. One outstanding change is the interchangeable motors, one of 60 horsepower and one of 85 horsepower, both used on the same chassis. It has an all steel body and is completely new from bumper to bumper. The principle of a new, easy acting brake was not disclosed.

Returns from Detroit

S. B. Howard, Waid Cross and John Warix returned Sunday, November 8, from Detroit, Mich., where they attended the showing of the new Ford. Mr. Howard stated that the new car was far beyond his expectations in design and beauty.
