FIGURES INDICATE MARKED INCREASE IN WELL DRILLING

Warfield Report Shows Eleven Wells Drilling and Three Locations

TWENTY-SIX WELLS

Drilling activities, according to information received from the various gas companies handling production in this field and especially in Floyd county, have shown a marked increase since January of this year. At present five companies are drilling 21 wells and have locations for five more, for a total of 26 wells accounted for in early summer work.

The January report showed only 14 wells being drilled or planned. In a short time of less than 90 days, the present report shows that the increase is almost double.

The Warfield Natural Gas Company, drilling 11 wells and taking three locations, tops the list.

The report naming the companies and their wells, as contained in reports from them, are given below:

Warfield Natural Gas Company: Drilling four wells and have one location in Martin county; drilling four wells and have one location in Floyd; drilling three wells and have one location in Knott.

Inland Gas Corporation: Drilling four wells in Knott county; no additional locations announced.

Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company: Drilling two wells in Floyd and have two locations in Knott.

United Carbon: Drilling one well in Pike, one in Knott and one well in Martin county.

Columbian Fuel Corporation: An unconfirmed report from Pikeville states that the Columbian is drilling one well in Pike.

These reports indicate that well drilling activity is drifting toward the Martin county sector of this field. Eight wells are being drilled there, six in Floyd, five in Knott and two in Pike.

LEGION MEETING HELD SATURDAY

Charter Day for Legion Sons, History of Post 129 Given

Floyd Post 129, American Legion held, as it were, a "field day" on last Saturday evening, this day being their 16th anniversary. In addition it was the birthday of the Sons of the Legion - their charter day rather. The First Squadron of the Sons of the American Legion had its initial meeting last summer, but due to the strict requirement of individual records the charter presentation was delayed until this meeting.

Commander Marvin Marshall presided, some 25 legionnaires being present. Lon S. Moles having been assigned the work of formation of a squadron of the Sons of the American Legion, and having these Sons present at the meeting, was given the opportunity of presenting his squadron to the Post. This was carried out and the charter presented to the squadron by Lieutenant Jerry B. Sutherland, past president of Captain Wm. Frank, who was detained. Appropriate ceremony were dismissed and the Legion meeting resumed on page four

THREE REMOVED TO REFORMATORY

Three prisoners were taken from the Floyd county jail here Monday to the state prison at Frankfort to begin "doing time."

One was Buster Oney, under two year sentence for horse stealing, who once escaped from his guard at the Stumbo hospital but later apprehended in Morgan county. Oney was being treated for an infection at the hospital.

The other two men were Dud Hicks, who received 10 years on the formal charge of murder, and George Charles, who was convicted of stealing coal from a railway car. Charles was given two years.

FATHER OF SILAS HICKS SENTENCED HERE WEDNESDAY

Grand Jury Ends Extra Three Day Session of Court Term

A Floyd county circuit court jury, after hearing evidence in the trial of Ed Hicks, Monday, Tuesday and part of Wednesday, returned just at noon on the third day with a verdict of two years. Hicks was tried for murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Mrs. Bethel Boggs. His son, Silas Hicks, age 17 years, was given a life sentence in the September term of court for the slaying. About a week following the verdict, he escaped jail here and has been apprehended.

The fatal shooting occurred at Gibson, on Left Beaver in August, 1935. Hicks fired from a slow moving freight train. Mrs. Boggs was a sister of Kelly Hughes and Ed Hicks had engaged in a fight, a few weeks previous to the slaying, on the Gibson station platform, over a union local election. As the fighters were separated, the commonwealth charged in the trial last week, that Ed Hicks threatened to "kill" Hughes or have it done within six months.

The original indictment named Ed and Rosa Hicks but, on Monday the charges against Rosa were dismissed.

Recently seven boys were jailed on robbery charges from Garrett and Wednesday, one of the court officials stated, one of these boys went before the grand jury. The grand jury returned seven indictments against Jimmy

TREES TO BE DEDICATED

The Prestonsburg Women's Club will hold a very impressive service Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock April 29 on the Mayo Trail at the south end of Prestonsburg, where the road pavement begins and the Lombardy poplars recently contributed by the NYA have been planted. The trees will be dedicated by Rev. H. F. King to commemorate the outstanding work being done throughout the nation by club women. The following women prominent in club work will be honored by having individual trees dedicated to them: Mrs. Grace Morrison Peale, past president of the GFWC, Mrs. Roberta Lawson, president of the GFWC, Mrs. E. H. Heller, past president of KFWC and GFWC, director, Mrs. Fanniebell Sutherland, past president of KFWC, Mrs. Paul Wickliffe, president of KFWC, Mrs. James C. ODDFELLOWS FETE LODGE FOUNDED

Caudill, Sampson, Stennett Stated On Program At Pikeville Saturday

Oddfellows throughout the state have been invited to attend the 118th anniversary celebration at Pikeville April 24 in tribute to the founding of the first lodge in America by John Wilev at Baltimore, Md., April 26, 1819.

Saturday will see approximately 60 Oddfellows, Rebekahs, Theta Ros, Junior Oddfellows and a number of their friends attending from Prestonsburg. An unestimated number, it was said here this week, will be present from Floyd county outside of the city.

Judge John W. Caudill, past grand master, Prestonsburg, will be one of the featured speakers at 2:30 p. m. in the Pike county courthouse public square. Judge Caudill has been very active in Oddfellow affairs throughout the state for a number of years. Others to address the gathering are O. W. Stennett, present grand master, and Ex-Governor Flem D. Sampson.

A sketch of the program calls for the visitors to gather at the Oddfellows' hall at 1 o'clock; a parade beginning at 2 o'clock; speaking at 2:30 followed by performances by the Oddfellows' Orphan Home Band and entertainers; a fireworks display at 7:30 p. m. and, announced as a special investment, a dance at the Orange Crush hall beginning at 9 o'clock.

A guillotine used in one of the provinces of France 200 years ago, it is said, will be on display among a number of other interesting exhibits and arts to be shown.

MENINGITIS FATAL TO BENTLEY CHILD

Flora Jeannette Bentley, age two years, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Epp Bentley, of Maytown, died at the Stumbo Memorial hospital at Lackey, a victim of spinal meningitis.

The child was taken to the hospital Wednesday morning April 21 and passed away that night at 11:20. Attaches of the hospital stated that the child had been ill for three or four days before being brought to the hospital.

Stories To Grand Jury In Martin Mystery Case Told

Commonwealth Attorney John L. Harrington, whose district includes Martin county, stated today in his office at Paintsville, "No doubt in my mind but what it was jealousy over the look," in indicating a possible motive for the alleged murder of James Watterson on the morning of May 31, 1913.

Reviewing the evidence that prompted a Martin county grand jury to indict Harvey Hardin on the charge, he said: "We had Mrs. Harless, who was Viola Runyons before her marriage, before the grand jury on other matters, in particular, a recent mysterious death in her neighborhood. In the course of questioning she bluntly stated that she knew of only one man being killed. Further questioning revealed her story.

Mrs. Harless told the grand jury, said Mr. Harrington, she was a little girl between

COUNTY HI GRADS TO GATHER HERE

State High School Supervisor to Speak at County-Wide Exercises

The county-wide graduation exercises, to be held in the Prestonsburg school gymnasium June 1, will see about 189 graduates from 10 Floyd county high schools. The eleventh high school, Bonanza, has no graduating class this year.

The graduates will be presented diplomas by Town Hall, county superintendent. The feature of the exercises will be an address by Mark Goodman, state high school supervisor. A large attendance of friends of graduates is anticipated.

The diplomas for the graduates are expected to arrive at the superintendent's office within a week or so. Prestonsburg leads with 55 seniors and Martin is second with 24 graduates.

Ranking third is Garrett with 22 graduates, Wheelwright and Betsy Layne tied for fourth with 17 each, Whyland and McDowell have 12 each, Lackey 11, Auxier 10, and Maytown, 9.

This week our space does not permit the publication of the names of the county's high school graduates. We are very sorry and shall carry the complete list later.

MRS. SARAH LAMB, 79 SUCCUMBS TUESDAY

The many friends of Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Slone are saddened to learn of the passing of Mrs. Sarah Lamb, age 79 years, mother of Mrs. Slone, here at their home at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. She succumbed following a stroke.

Mrs. Lamb had made her home with her daughter here for the past few months.

The body was prepared for burial by the E. P. Arnold Funeral Home and shipped to New Albany, Ind., Wednesday morning. Burial will be made at Evans' Landing on Thursday.

Returns Home

Mrs. W. S. Harkins, Jr. and sons, Monte, Billie, Donald and George returned Sunday from Danville, Ky., where they were the guests for several days of Mrs. Harkins' father, Mr. Montgomery Fox.

LOCAL DRUG STORE CHANGES HANDS SAT.

The stock and equipment of the City Drug Store, operated by Gordon Eversole, of London, Ky., was purchased Saturday by Curtis Clark, Mr. Clark announces. Mr. Clark formerly was proprietor of the Modern Drug Store before a recent fire that destroyed it.

The store will be operated under the present name for the time being. The reputed purchase price was about $6,500.

Mr. Clark announces plans for making the newly acquired store equal to any in this section. He is installing new fixtures, new stock and an ice cream manufacturing machine.

NEW BUILDING COMPLETED BY POWER COMPANY

Formal Opening to Be May 1—Edifice Completely Air Conditioned

Mr. R. E. Hodges, district manager of the Ky. and West Va. Power Company, Inc., at Pikeville, announces the completion and formal opening of their new office building, to take place May 1 from 8:30 a. m. to 8:30 p. m.

In making this announcement, Mr. Hodges stated that all customers and friends will be welcomed to visit and inspect their new offices and plant. The new building is one of the most modern in Kentucky and is completely air-conditioned. It is unique in that it is both heated in winter and cooled in summer electrically. Many of the newest and most modern furnishings will be found throughout the edifice.

The building, located on Main street opposite the post office, is two stories in height and extends two-thirds of the distance to Second street. The front portion houses the lobby and auditorium. In the auditorium will be found a modern electric kitchen in which cooking schools will be given. In addition, a merchandise display room is provided. Private offices for each department are on the second floor. The middle section houses the storeroom, and a spacious garage in the rear section is provided for the fleet of service trucks and cars.

The Big Sandy valley can well be proud to have a building of this nature within its domain.

SING AT MUSIC FESTIVAL

Mrs. Chalmer Frazier, music director of Prestonsburg city schools, will take a group of high school students to Lexington, Ky., Friday, April 30 to participate in the all-state chorus at the State Music Festival to be held in that city.

Those students who will accompany Mrs. Frazier are Alice Gray Burke, Myrtle Howard, Pauline Nunnery, Dick Allen, Dick Irwin Mayo, and James Frazer. This group is made up of the best student voices from the various high schools throughout the state and is under the direction of Dr. Hois Dann, of New York City.

In Ashland

Mr. and Mrs. Jo M. Davidson, Mrs. Everett Sowards, Mrs. J. M. Weddington and Mrs. Mary D. Allen spent the week-end in Ashland, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Layne and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hutsinpler.

WEEKSBURY WOMAN FACES CHARGE: MAN FATALLY WOUNDED

Trouble Occurred Tuesday Afternoon in Cafe; Sid Kenney Succumb

A shooting melee, in which the women fired the guns, was reported by officers this week. In the course of the shooting Mrs. Dora Mitchell is said to have fired one shot at Sid Kenney, mortally wounding him, and Mrs. Sid Kenney, according to the report, fired six shots at Winford Roberts, brother of Mrs. Mitchell.

The disturbance took place near three o'clock Tuesday afternoon in a restaurant operated by Mrs. Mitchell and her husband near the lower limits of Weeksbury. Her husband, Bryan Mitchell, was in the Lackey hospital at the time.

Officers quoted Mrs. Mitchell as saying that Kenney and his wife had come into her restaurant and while sitting there they engaged in a boisterous argument. She went over to stop them. Kenney, she asserts, threw beer bottles at her, hitting her on the side of the head with one and she retreated. Kenney then shoved his wife out the door and picking up two beer bottles followed Mrs. Mitchell behind the counter. Mrs. Mitchell fired one shot into Kenney's abdomen.

In the meantime, officers said, Mrs. Kenney and Mrs. Mitchell's brother engaged in a scuffle in the doorway, which the gun of Mrs. Kenney was discharged. According to the information, neither of the men was armed. Six shots were fired from the gun in the hands of Mrs. Kenney and Roberts emerged from the melee unscathed.

Kenney, 27 years old, formerly of Shelby Creek in Pike county, had resided at Weeksbury a short time. He succumbed as the ambulance reached the Lackey hospital.

Officers Willie Johnson and Harve Childers brought Mrs. Mitchell to Prestonsburg. Wednesday, the grand jury returned an indictment against Mrs. Mitchell. Bond was set at $5,000 and was executed.

Mrs. Kenney could not be contacted for any other version of the affair.

Mrs. Mitchell's trial is set on the docket for May 5.

WPA EXHIBITS AT CLUB CONVENTION

Information Given On Library and Training Work Centers

Information relative to the Library and Training Work Center to be shown at the State Woman's Club convention at Pikeville, Ky., May 11-13 was tendered this week in a letter to Mrs. Wilma May, district governor, Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, Langley, Ky. from Sarah Hayes, co-ordinator, Women's and Professional division, WPA, Louisville.

Essential facts are best obtained in this communication, quote:

"The exhibit to be shown in Pikeville will tend to show progress made as result of intensive training. There will be groups of garments made to supply the every day needs of the people on relief rolls, the showing that training has been given in making every type of such garments for

Guest Columnist
Riley Cooper Tells of Betting Evils

(Courtney Riley Cooper, widely known writer of crimes and adventure stories, today fills in as Hugh Bradley's guest columnist. His contribution is taken from his book, "Here's to Crime.")

By COURTNEY RILEY COOPER

There is a wave of public gambling which has been gaining force ever since the beginning of the depression. The figures are amazing. In cities which have conducted thorough, impartial investigations, it has been found that the totals in this new racket are far beyond the amounts spent even in the wildest days of prohibition and bootlegging. The amount per capita is, in fact, at least seventy-five dollars a year, placed on bets, which means that much of it is turnover. That is not the amount wagered by each person who gambles, but it is the result of dividing the total sums by the aggregate of every man, woman and child in the city.

There are comparatively few towns in America about a population of 3,000 in which slot machines, punchboards, horse joints, the numbers, bolita or some other form of lottery does not flourish. Therefore, assuming that all rural districts are free from the taint of gambling—which they are not—a gross population of about eighty million persons is dallying with six billion dollars in winnings and losses, of which all but about a billion goes through the hands of the underworld—where much, of course, remains.

A half-billion dollars of the "legitimate" gambling money goes to fairs, carnivals, county race meets, charities and a number of small games of chance which are affiliated in no way with organized syndi-

Half Million Is Bet
in Area on Relief

Last year, for instance, Massachusetts' racegoers backed their hunches thirty-five million dollars' worth; Kentucky let go of about eleven million; Florida guessed about twenty-five million dollars' worth; California, always seeking to better its rival, took more than thirty million to and from the race-tracks; while Michigan, Texas, Oregon, West Virginia, South Dakota, Nebraska, Nevada, Rhode Island, Louisiana, Maryland, Illinois and other race-loving states contributed something like a hundred and ten million.

This money was wagered in places where pari-mutuel betting is permitted and where it is possible accurately to gauge the amounts risked. Incidentally, it might be interesting to know that in one New England district where nearly a half-million dollars poured into races in a single month, the majority of persons in the area were on relief.

Besides the pari-mutuel betting must be considered the bookies system of betting in New York, where, it is estimated, nearly three hundred million dollars were wagered.

This, according to the average man's belief, is all the money which went into racing, either through bookie or pari-mutuel systems. However, there was another "system" which made no reports, and which handled more money than all the racetracks combined. That was gangdom. There was a time when the usual representative of crookdom who fell into the police net felt it incumbent upon him to pretend some legitimate occupation. Today, however, he settles the matter by stating that he is a "betting commissioner."

Joe Gould, Jim Braddock's manager, engaged in only one ring bout and the beating he received hastened his career as a handler of fighters. . . . Paul Dean of the Cardinals was helped along in the courtship by Bill Delancey, his teammate at the time, who wrote all Daffy's letters to his present wife. . . . They are talking of increasing the Santa Anita handicap purse next year to make it worth $200,000 in added money. . . . Branch Rickey's baseball experience includes a stretch as catcher for the University of Michigan Varsity.

Basketball coaches estimate that with the center jump eliminated in next year's competition that the actual time of play will be increased ten minutes a game and they predict all scoring records will be wiped out. . . . Don Lash, world's record holder in the outdoor and indoor two mile run, has won 117 medals, cups, plaques, and other awards in his three years at Indiana University.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

MAL STEVENS, who must throw his N. Y. U. Violets at them on the second Saturday of the season, predicts Carnegie Tech will have one of the nation's hottest football teams next fall. . . . You need more than the sun if you wish to acquire such a lovely tan as that now displayed by Hannah Dempsey. Mrs. Jack's recipe is to mix two drops of iodine in the bottle of olive oil used for rubbing purposes. . . . Friends insist the real reason for Paul Waner's long holdout is not the few hundred dollars which separated the Pirates' bid from his own asking price. Instead, they say, Paul was anxious to find some excuse to train in his Florida home instead of journeying all the way to California.

Dolly Stark, who held out all last year, may soon resume as baseball's best umpire. He has been promised the first available National League job, which may be the berth now occupied by the ailing Cy Pflirman. . . . Alumni groups figuring on doing a bit of proselytizing at the University of Virginia in honor of their new coach Frank Marquette Murray, reveal that it costs $800 a year to educate a football player. . . . Al Burroughs, the celebrated right fullback of the Brooklyn (soccer) Hispanos, is a nephew of Charlie Ellis, famous center forward of the Brooklyn Celts of yesterday.

The dice table at Miami's biggest gambling resort is so large that more than 200 people can gather around it and seven men are needed to handle the game. Big time hockey scouts should get a load of Lewis Sherman, Andover defenseman, next winter. The kid is only seventeen years old, but he weighs 180 and college coaches whisper he is another Hobey Baker. . . . The worst batting trouble of Vince DiMaggio is that he tries too hard for those long drives into left field. Word has been passed around that he is a pull hitter always trying to murder the ball and so he is pitched to accordingly.

One of the saddest stories of recent days was overlooked by the gents who combine prize-fight promotion with their newspaper chores. I refer to the New Jersey report that two Irish process servers mistook a polish sparring partner for the heavyweight champion of the world. Things have come to a sorrowful pass when an O'Shaughnessy can't recognize a Braddock in a land where faithful followers never mistook a Gene Tunney for a Kingfish Levinsky or a Ruby Goldstein for a Pedro Montanez. If it keeps up the first thing you know even the heavyweight champion's master mind, Million Dollar Gate Joe Gould, won't be able to recognize himself as the greatest fight manager in the world.

Princeton track coach Matty Geis is sure that Archie Sam Romani will crack the old 4:06.7 mile record at Palmer Stadium in June. It's not a bad prediction either. Every year Archie has lowered his mile time, once by as much as five seconds, and he's due again this spring. . . . Did you ever note that, for the past six years, the National League pennant has gone in complete cycles—'31-Cards, '32-Cubs, '33-Giants, '34-Cards, '35-Cubs, '36-Giants—'3000-000? Well, anyhow, it's one way of figuring that the Cards are due. . . . Two new books worthy of a gander from sports fans are "Showman," by William A. Brady, who used to manage prize-fight champions before he became a big time theatrical producer, and "Marathon" by Clarence De Mar, the veteran distance running ace. . . .

Eddie Givens, star quarterback and likely successor to Ken Sandbach as Tiger pilot next fall, is one of the reasons why Princeton expects to win its first Ivy League baseball championship this year. Givens, he's a catcher, is the best baseball player to perform at Nassau since Moe Berg's day. . . . Tab hard-hitting Sammy Snead, sensation of the golf trail, to be a real star this summer. . . . Also look forward for the Met College Outdoor track championships to be held at Randall's Island in May. . . .

Fight Manager Joe Jacobs indignantly denies persistently published reports that Max Schmeling ever has been used for writing that Joe Louis "deliberately" fouled him. . . . Although he weighs only 137 pounds and stands a mere five feet two and one-half inches. Shorty Chumbris, Maryland's soph shortstop, is being rated as one of the best college players in the South. . . . Distemper is even a worse plague of greyhound racing than the gents who do so many interesting things to ensure themselves of winners. Seventy-five per cent of all greyhound puppies are killed or rendered unfit by the disease. . . . New York fight promoters should take a look at Ben Brown, a middleweight now working out of Atlanta.

Wally Hally, coast lightweight boxer who recently defeated Baby Arizmendi, is a former Salvation Army trumpet player. . . . Johnny Weismuller, swimming in a Hollywood tank, recently equaled his own 50 yard free style world record of 51 seconds. . . . Four members of the Phillies, Manager Jimmy Wilson, Hal Kelleher, Swede Burkart and Bucky Walters, are home town boys.

Floyd Gibbons
Adventurers'
Club
Hello Everybody!

"The Iron Mouth"
By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

NOW here's a yarn that just goes to show what an age of progress we live in. You know, thousands of years ago, when the cave men roamed the primeval forests the boys who made the Adventure club were the ones that came running back to the family campfire and told Ma Stonehatchet and the kids about how one of them just missed being gobbled by a dinosaur with a mouth big enough to take him all in one bite.

Well, the dinosaurs died off and you don't see them any more, except stuffed ones in museums, but you can still have the adventure of being gobbled by a mouth as big as a prehistoric monster's because nowadays we manufacture them—make them out of iron, and put rows of sharp teeth in them, attach them to great mechanical animals and send them out to bite people like David J. Hanlon of Belmar, N. J.

Dave had his run-in with one of those steam-powered man-eaters at three o'clock on a cold October morning in the year 1927. Dave was just out of high school then, and working at his first real full-time job. It was the job of laborer on the state highway bridge over Shark river between Belmar and Avon, and Dave was working on the night shift.

Most Dangerous Job to the Youngest.

Dave says it was an adventure all in itself to be staying up all night, working with a crew of grown men. He was the youngest one in the crew and also the smallest. As a result, the foreman had given him the easiest job on the bridge. That foreman might have thought he was doing Dave a favor, but it so happened it was the most dangerous job on the bridge as well.

The crew had run a temporary trestle out over the water and out on that trestle they had rolled a big crane with which they were excavating holes for the big concrete piers which were to form the bridge's foundation. The crane was equipped with a clamshell scoop—two great jaws with sharp teeth set along the edges, hinged at the upper end. The crane dropped that scoop deep in the mud and silt of the excavation. The jaws closed on a mouthful of the muck, and the scoop was hauled up and dumped on the other side of the trestle.

There was a caisson of heavy planking built around the edge of the excavation to keep the sides from caving in, and down near the bottom of the hole carpenters had built a wooden ledge that a man could stand on. It was Dave's job to stand on that ledge, wait for the clamshell to come down, and push it to a spot where it could get a good big bite of the mud they were dredging.

How the Huge Scoop Worked.

It took three men to work that job properly. Jerry, operator of the crane, would drop the big scoop down to within a few feet of the slimy mud, and then stop it. Then, to make sure it got a good mouthful, Dave would push it to the desired spot. When he got it there he'd yell, "Oke." That was a signal to Sam Smith, the boss, standing directly above him on the edge of the caisson. Sam would relay that signal to Jerry with a motion of his hand, and Jerry would let the big scoop fall and gobble its mouthful of mud.

"Time and again," says Dave, "Jerry would drop those half-ton jaws and they'd eat up more mud. We soon attained a certain rhythm at it, and all night long it was 'Oke—splash! Oke—splash!' so steady and monotonous that we could have done it in our sleep." And the whole trouble was that those three birds almost did do it in their sleep, and a big iron monster is something a man ought not to fool with UNLESS HE'S WIDE AWAKE.

The planking Dave was standing on was narrow, and time and again he almost lost his balance and fell in. And then, somehow, Dave did slip and fall. "I'm not sure how it happened," he says, "but all of a sudden I was falling, and the next minute I was on my back in the mud, right under the gaping, six-foot jaws of that half-ton clamshell scoop. It was probably only a couple of seconds that I lay there, trying to get my wits together, but I remember thinking of what would happen if that scoop should fall and the teeth close on me."

Steel Jaws Closing on Him.

And then, suddenly it began to look as if Dave was going to find out. Up above he heard Sam give the signal. Oke! It was purely mechanical on Sam's part. He had been giving that signal at a certain interval for so long that now he was doing it without thinking. Then—SPLASH! Down came the scoop right across Dave's body!

The jaws landed on either side of him and sank deep into the mud. They hadn't hurt him because his body lay in the triangle up at the top where the two parts were hinged together. But in another second or so those two parts would begin to come together!

"There wasn't much use in trying to yell," says Dave, "for down there in the muck, under that great steel shell, my voice would be smothered and drowned by the clatter of the machinery and the noise of the pumps. Beside that, there wasn't time. I could see, to my horror, that they were going to close over my head and my feet which stuck out at either side!"

Those jaws were almost on Dave now. He gritted his teeth and shut his eyes. In another moment it would be all over. He drew in a deep breath—and thought to himself that it would probably be his last. And then—

And then, all of a sudden, the great jaws stopped closing. Up on the caisson, Sam Smith had looked for Dave and hadn't been able to see him. He knew something was wrong and gave a signal that stopped the closing of the scoop. "He did it calmly and easily," Dave says, "but I've often wondered what would have happened to me if Sam had been one of those excitable fellows. If he had lost his head then, I am pretty sure I would have lost mine, too."

"White Woman's Creek" Is Indian Name for a River

Mary Harris, a heroine of the Deerfield (Mass.) massacre in 1704, is responsible for the origin of the name of the Walhonding river which winds through a part of central Ohio before joining the Muskingum. When she was ten she was captured, carried into the valley of the Walhonding, into what is now Coshocton county, and later was married to a French Mohawk. She is believed to have been the first white woman to live in this section so the Delaware Indians termed the stream Walhonding, which in their language, according to a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, meant "White Woman's Creek."

There are three popular theories concerning the derivation of the name Cuyahoga. Some claim the name can be traced back to the Indian Cuyahogan-uk meaning "Lake River." Others insist it was derived from Carrihoga, or "News Carrier." A third group contends the name was taken from Caya-haga, signifying crooked. The latter is probably correct as anyone can see by looking down at its winding course. Some authorities consider it the most crooked navigable waterway in the state.

Poison in Berries and Leaves of Some Garden Plants

According to a Home Gardening expert, many common plants contain dangerous poisons, warns a writer in Pearson's London Weekly.

There is deadly prussic acid in leaves and roots of arum lilies, in hawthorn berries, and in the leaves of the cherry laurel. Another acidic poison, oxalic acid, is contained in the berries of the barberry species.

The poisonous cystine is found in butcher's broom berries, and in laburnum seeds, while Christmas roses are dangerous on account of the helleborin in them. Every part of the common daisy, and the sticky juice of the dandelion stem, are also poisonous.

Digitalin, a deadly drug, is contained in foxglove leaves, while holly berries hold several poisons. People are also warned against the ivy berries, which are full of hederine. Lupin seeds contain lupinine, and the berries of Daphne, daphnine. The entire monkshood plant is impregnated with aconitine, and poppy heads are full of morphine, the chief narcotic agent in opium. Finally, the yew is dangerous on account of its taxine content. Taxine is a poison which causes suffocation.

Corduroy Factory Tires

GET THE FACTS ON CORDUROY'S FREE INSURANCE against ROAD HAZARDS

The most durable and resilient rubber is always fresh rubber. A stale rubber band, for example, cracks and breaks easily... there is no "give" to it. A tire or tube that has been in warehouse storage for any length of time is likewise "brittle." Corduroy tires and tubes are NEVER WAREHOUSE STALE, because they are always shipped DIRECT FROM FACTORY TO DEALER. The rubber is "FACTORY FRESH" . . . in prime condition to withstand road shocks and deliver longer, safer mileage.

Corduroys excel in EXTRA QUALITY, too. The finest, select raw materials are blended with specially developed compounds to add immeasurably to tire life and safety. Tread stock and tubes are bevel-fused to assure perfect, permanent balance. Sidewalls are reinforced to prevent sideway. Treads are deep, sharp, and rugged, expertly designed for maximum traction and quiet riding comfort. Backed by a powerful FREE INSURANCE guarantee against road hazards for a definite period of months... WITHOUT EXTRA CHARGE.

Sunday School Lesson

THE OBEDIENCE OF NOAH

International Sunday School Lesson for April 25, 1937

Golden Text: "By faith Noah, being warned of God of things not seen as yet, moved with godly fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house."—Hebrews 11:7.

The text upon which this lesson is based is familiar to everyone who has any knowledge whatever of the Bible. From our childhood on we have heard and read of Noah and his ark. Sometimes we are apt to question in our minds as to whether or not this story is fiction or if it really is based upon actual happenings.

Excavations made in recent years by expeditions sent out from various sources reveal that at some time many years ago there was a disastrous flood in the Euphrates valley. Whether it submerged the world we do not know, although there are evidences in widely separated places, of such a happening. These excavations show an eight foot deposit of silt far below the surface of the present valley, which archeologists agree must have been left by a great depth of water. This clay bank, according to one excavator, marks a definite break in the continuity of local culture, destroying a former civilization.

In the larger lesson, beginning with Genesis 5:28, we have an explanation of the reasons which caused God to send such a disaster upon the world. Sin and wickedness was prevalent, so much so that the earth was described as "corrupt" before God. So terribly wicked had the human race become that God, who then, as now, was aware of what was going on in the world, decided that nothing short of total destruction could keep the small remnant of the faithful and godly from total extinction.

In the midst of this evil environment there was one man who kept faithful to God, living a righteous and unspotted life. This man was Noah, who, according to the text, "walked with God." His walking with God naturally causes us to assume that God knew him and wanted to preserve him from the fate which was soon to befall the rest of the world. Therefore, he "warned" Noah to prepare an ark in which he and his family were to live during the deluge. Into the ark, he was to bring two of every sort of living things—cattle, creeping things and fowls of all kind—to keep them alive." He was also commanded to stock the ark with food enough for his family and for the animals.

"By faith" Noah obeyed the command of God and began to build the ark according to the instructions given him. Although ridiculed by those who knew him, he kept at his task and finally completed it. When it was finished, God again spoke to him, inviting him, his family and all who would to enter into the ark and be saved. It is significant to note that it was not until after the ark was finished that Noah was told the purpose it was to serve. He obeyed implicitly, acting on faith.

Our lesson does not go into the details of the flood, which may be found in Genesis 7:10 to 8:12. However, God cared for Noah and his family during the flood and brought the ark to rest on Mount Ararat. When it was possible for Noah to leave the ark, the first thing he did was to build an altar and offer a burnt sacrifice to God, thanking him for his care. This act of Noah's was pleasing to God and, as a result, God made a covenant with him that he would not again destroy the earth thus. In this covenant there are six particulars: 1—there would be no more curse; 2—the order of nature is reestablished; 3—the command to multiply is reiterated; 4—man is given supremacy over the animals; 5—flesh which has blood is not to be used as food; and 6—the law of civil government.

As a reminder and guarantee that God would keep his covenant with Noah and his descendants, God gave a token—the rainbow.—And, it shall come to pass, when I bring a cloud over the earth, that the bow shall be seen in the cloud. And I will remember my covenant which is between me and you and every living creature of all flesh: and the waters shall not more become a flood to destroy all flesh. And the bow shall be in the cloud; and I will look upon it, that I may remember the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature of all flesh that is upon the earth."

Through obedience by faith Noah not only saved himself but he was instrumental in saving the human race. He obeyed to the letter, not doubting, but accepting the commands of God as final. Were we close enough to God to receive his commands, would we as implicitly and unquestioningly obey as Noah did? Our trouble is not that we do not know what to do, our failure lies in the fact that we are unwilling to obey, perhaps because it does not suit our convenience to obey or because the task seems too hard or too unpleasant.

"What is the highest reason for obeying a command?" asks one writer. It is not the need of perfect discipline, still less is it the fear of punishment. It is the love and respect and trust which the giver of the command inspires. If we love and reverence and trust God, we shall wish to obey him.

Sarah Ann's Cooking Class

Most of us know our cooking has gotten in a rut, but we save our consciences by thinking that experiments are costly, take too much time and the family probably wouldn't like anyway. So we keep right on scrambling eggs, frying steaks and baking puddings. A simple, yet different menu, perfectly prepared and charmingly served will take the monotony out of cooking and will make the family feel proud of its house-keeper.

Chopped Beef and Omelet

Use one egg for each person served, and one tablespoon of hot water for each egg. Separate yolks and whites. Season the yolks with salt and with other pepper or nutmeg, according to taste, add water and beat well. Beat the whites until stiff and fold in the yolks. Pour gently into a well greased pan and cook slowly until the underside is a delicate brown, then place the pan in the oven, keeping the temperature between 325 and 350 degrees. When the omelet responds to the touch it is done. Make 2 cuts part of the way down into the omelet at right angles to the handle of the pan, dividing it about in thirds. Then tip the pan, slide a spatula under the omelet and fold it over as you slip it out of the pan onto a platter.

Tear chipped beef into small pieces, heat thoroughly in milk; use a double boiler and strain. Spread the beef between omelet folds and dot beef generously with thin slices of stuffed olives.

Meat Rolls

Sift 2 cups of flour into a large bowl, with 3 teaspoons of baking powder, and 1/2 teaspoon of salt. Cut in 1/2 cup of shortening until the mixture is full of lumps about the size of marbles. Add enough milk to make a light dough, that can be rolled very lightly on a board. Roll to 1/4 inch thickness and cut rounds of 2 inches in diameter. In the center of each round put a heaping teaspoon of meat filling. Fold rounds in half, pinching the edges together, place folded edge down in a greased baking sheet. Brush the rolls with egg yolk and little water beaten together. Bake in an oven 450 to 475 degrees about 10 minutes.

Meat Filling

Put through the meat grinder 1-2 pound of cooked beef, chicken liver or ham—or a mixture of these—with 1 bay leaf, 1 small chopped onion, a teaspoon of parsley and a teaspoon of chopped cucumber pickle, with salt and pepper to taste. Brown this mixture in a little fat and blend with enough sour cream to make a paste. One heaping teaspoon of this peppy filling is enough for each roll.

Browned Rice

Cut 6 slices of bacon into narrow pieces, put into a skillet with 2 chopped onions and cook until the onions are tender and well browned, add 1/2 cup chopped boiled ham, 1/2 cup of grated cheese 1/2 cup of diced chicken or veal, and 2 cups of cooked rice. Mix together lightly and turn into a hot greased omelet pan. Heat and brown carefully on both sides over low heat. Turn out upon a platter and serve with creamed carrots and peas.

Beet Ring Mold

4 pounds beet greens
3 small white onions
2 teaspoons salt
pepper
4 tablespoons fat
Two tablespoons chopped pimientos

Prepare and cook the beet greens and onions separately until tender. Drain well, then add salt, pepper and fat to the beet greens, with additional seasoning if necessary.

Arrange the hot greens in a hot ring mold, packing them down well. Unmold on a hot platter and fill the center with the tongue which has been diced and mixed with the white sauce, onions and pimientos.

Surprise Potatoes

Mild hot mashed potatoes into croquettes with a small cocktail sausage in the center of each. Dip in crumbs, egg and again in crumbs. Fry in deep fat. Drain on paper. Serve very hot.

Don't Neglect Them!
Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an accumulation of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, nervous headaches, sleepless nights, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all wrong.

Frequent scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbances.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Instinct tells Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

HALL TELLS WHY WILEY JONES WAS NOT RE-EMPLOYED BY BOARD

Sometimes it is necessary for a superintendent of schools to explain to a certain group or to the public in general his public acts in connection with the public schools. Sometimes it is necessary to spend a few minutes in explaining to disgruntled individuals just why the board of education acted in a particular way in a particular instance. This word of explanation comes from the superintendent of schools in response to the handbill printed by "Maytown Students" entitled "We want Wiley Jones Back," and in response to the article appearing in the Floyd county papers last week to the same effect, and published by the source.

In the first place the handbill purports to represent the sentiment of the entire student body at Maytown. This is a gross misrepresentation and the fact is that three or four Maytown students whose names are known but not published, are leading this "Crusade" for Mr. Jones. No comment is made as to whether Mr. Jones himself is the instigator of the movement. Let us dismiss this idea by saying that he is not.

It will be remembered from the handbill and from the article in the press that four reasons were given why "We Want Wiley Jones Back." Below are reasons set forth by the superintendent and by the board of education why "We did not re-employ Mr. Jones," that the public may be correctly informed in the matter.

In the first place, Mr. Jones did not apply for any position in Floyd county. To this Mr. Jones will testify.

In the second place, Mr. Jones, we are reliably informed, failed to cooperate this year with the principal, the faculty, and with the school—all of which was in derogation to a good school system. He would rarely attend faculty meetings, which all teachers should gladly do. He was more interested in trading cattle or transporting a load of calves to Mt. Sterling, or in farming, than he was in teaching school. These facts are well-known to the Maytown people, and this were brought to the attention of Mr. Jones himself by the superintendent of schools, as Mr. Jones will also admit.

In the third place (and we are loath to mention this) Mr. Jones allowed his ball players to act disorderly at the Valley Inn hotel at Prestonsburg during the recent regional basketball tournament. A general "rough-house" was staged all night long. People in the hotel were not allowed to sleep because of noise and carousing. The hotel proprietress, Mrs. Selards, made complaint the next morning to the manager of the tournament, Clayborne Stephens, and to the county superintendent, saying she would have to have the coach and his boys ejected by police unless they quieted down, that her hotel furniture had been damaged, the room torn up, with accompanying signs of intoxication of the floors and in the corridors, and that Mr. Jones himself had talked disrespectfully to her. Mr. Jones and his boys will hardly admit this, but if called upon, Mrs. Selards will make an affidavit to this effect. Mr. Jones will admit that he slept most of the next day (Friday) when he should have been teaching school at Maytown.

In the fourth place, two of the boys who are now espousing Mr. Jones' cause became so intoxicated in Prestonsburg en route home from an Auxier basketball game that the driver of the school bus and Mr. Jones himself put them off the bus near Aiden, Ky. Mr. Jones was along, and responsible for their conduct.

In the fifth place, a basketball coach has more duties than merely to coach. He is a combination of a teacher-coach. If he is insubordinate with superiors and neglects his teaching duties, he is not a desirable coach. He is responsible for the moulding of young lives and should be an example to them. Mr. Jones has outlived his usefulness in Floyd county.

In the fifth place, Joe Dyer, the young man employed as coach at Maytown, is a native Floyd countian, he is believed to be of sterling character, he has had basketball experience, he plans to attend a good coaching school this summer, he is an excellent teacher in every way, he was recommended by the trustees at Maytown, and he is a better man for the job than is Mr. Jones.

For these reasons, Mr. Jones was not re-employed as coach in Floyd county. Had he come through as he should have done this year he would have been retained.

Respectfully submitted,
TOWN HALL,
Superintendent Floyd County Schools

Grace Moore gave up one of the highest honors that can be offered a singer to stay in this country for her new radio program on Saturday nights over CBS. She passed up a "command performance" before the King of England and an engagement at London's Covent Garden Opera House during the coronation season to stay in radio.

Grace Moore

Sedley Brown and Allie Lowe Miles, of "Husbands and Wives," have a common-sense method of finding out whether the listeners who write letters to the program have voices that could be understood over the radio. They audition them over the telephone.

Next big name in radio will undoubtedly be Dale Carnegie, author, teacher of public speaking and world authority on the art of making friends. His recent book on that subject is a best seller and since it is the basis for a score of radio programs, you can look for him to be signed by a sponsor soon.

Dale Carnegie

A fellow with a passion for odd facts has just dug up what he calls the "saxophone" complex of radio stars. Rudy Vallee, Ozzie Nelson, Ernie Watson, Joe Cook, Jimmy Melton and Jimmy Dorsey are some of those who played the sax before they became famous at something else.

Shirley Lloyd is radio's only new feminine singer to make a hit on the air this season. Called in to pinch-hit for Harriet Hilliard as a vocalist with Ozzie Nelson's orchestra in the Sunday night Ripley programs, Shirley stayed to become a star in her own right. It's a good bet that Shirley will have a chance in the cinema city before long.

Shirley Lloyd

On his European jaunt this summer, Conrad Thibault, baritone star, plans to dig up as many old and little-known songs of the sea as he can find.

Edgar A. Guest, whose inspirational poems have been read by millions, is now starring on a radio program called "It Can Be Done" and which brings people who have "done it" to the microphone. The program, with Frankie Masters' orchestra, is heard Tuesday nights over NBC.

Hardest working maestro in radio is Johnny Green, one of the youngest knights of the baton. He spends 52 hours a week getting the music all ready for the Fred Astaire production.

Marlene Dietrich has been started in Radio Theatre twice. Both times she didn't really need the script. She held it there in front of her, glanced at it occasionally but the lines came from memory. Her plays were "The Legionnaire and the Lady" and "Desire," both of which she had done on the screen.

Gus Edwards, mentor of "School Days of the Air," on the West Coast, has written more than one thousand songs—many of them selling millions of copies—and yet he cannot read a note of music.

Carlton KaDell, popular announcer, declares his biggest thrill in radio came during a broadcast from the California Institute of Technology where the "making" of lightning was described to a nationwide audience. He was closeted in the room where the apparatus generated over one million volts, smashing atoms.

WPA EXHIBITS AT CLUB CONVENTION

Continued from page one every member of the family then there will be another group of articles to show training given in making articles which might find a ready sale when the women make them on their own time, in their own homes or privately employed. No Article in the exhibit can be sold, but it is the hope of the supervisors that club women who see them may call on women in their own towns who have had training in work centers and employ such women when in need of home sewing and home crafts. It is the purpose of the Administration to place women in private industry or make them self supporting as rapidly as possible. The projects are really vocational adult education, while meeting a local need.

Another exhibit for the Women's and Professional Division of interest to club women, because of their interest in library extension, will be work done on library projects. Kentucky Packhorse Libraries have attracted attention all over the country because of the success of these projects in reaching sparsely populated rural communities with reading material, thus giving books and magazines to families who have never before had library privilege or scarcely any reading material at all.

Miss Elizabeth Fullerton, state director of women's and Professional Division, WPA, has directed an extensive program of worth while projects to apply the talents of women in Kentucky, but only the two types above mentioned will be included in the exhibit at Pikeville. Mrs. Marie K. Heaton, assistant supervisor in charge of Fifth District Women's Division, located in Paintsville, is in active charge of local arrangements for this WPA exhibit.

An indictment against Jack Hatfield was returned for the robbery of Troy Conley's store at Bosco. The indictment cites a conviction for forgery with 2 years sentence pending here, a conviction for obtaining goods under false pretenses with a sentence of 1 year and another conviction of manslaughter in Knott circuit court with a sentence of 2 years. He is now serving the Knott court sentence. Hatfield will face conviction under the habitual criminal act, County Attorney Forrest D. Short said, which carries a life sentence.

J. C. Vines, pig-leg colored man, was indicted for assault and battery. Vines was jailed here on the complaint of 14 year old Druffie Ousley that the colored man choked him, scratched him, inflicted wounds on his body and took his clothes away from him Monday.

Hendon Salyers, Ora Amburgy, Latt Damron, Herbert Amburgy and Harry Johnson of the eight who recently escaped from jail were indicted on the charge.

The indictment doesn't tell how they managed to do it, but it names Jack Parsons, Oscar Meade and Fred Conn for stealing a cane mill in November 1936. The mill belongs to Harrison Mullins. After returning 58 indictments for their three days extra session for a total of 183 in 9 days and inspecting the jail, the grand jury disbanded. The next grand jury to convene is scheduled to be called for September, court attaches said. In making the 183 indictments the jurymen heard 183 witnesses testify. Every town in the nation, including Prestonsburg, can improve its appearance without spending much.

Tom Watkins, retired Government Gauger, who spent over 40 years supervising American distilleries, says:

"Nowhere did I find more rigid standards of scientific accuracy than at Glenmore"

"I've been assigned to a good many distilleries at one time or another. What I remember best is Glenmore. I like their way of making their popular priced Kentucky Straight Bourbon Whiskey—Mint Springs. They use the same grains, same processes, same experienced men—as in making their most costly whiskeys." Tom Watkins' judgment is sound—Glenmore was one of only seven distilleries permitted by the Government to make medicinal whiskey throughout Prohibition.

What an acorn needs

is management

If the wind manages to drop the tiny acorn in the right spot... and rain and sun and Mother Earth manage to nourish it properly... you get a mighty oak.

If the finest barley Nature produces manages to get together with the costliest of domestic and imported hops... and they in turn manage to have the guidance of priceless brewing skill... you get a mighty fine beer. If you want a fine beer with an utterly distinctive bouquet and taste, you ask for BUDWEISER.

THE COWBOY

Within the last few years, since the radio has assumed the role of one of the necessities in the average home, the cowboy has staged a comeback comparable with his revival a few years earlier in the movies. The actual cowboy, an institution, started down hill many years ago with the passing of free land and the making of fences on the plains. In his own time he acquired a picturesqueness that was not wholly due to his being such permanent feature of the Wild West circus. By the time he became a part of the circus he was already known far and wide, a quaint character who represented to thousands the very essence of romance. Cowboy songs, like "Oh Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie," were quite as well known east of the Mississippi as in actual cowboy country. Travelers to the West brought back Texas saddles, long cowhorns and romantic stories of cowboy life. The ballad singers and fiddlers lent their aid in making the cowboy a part of our folk music. There has probably not been a single year since the opening of the west when it would not have been possible to see a sombrero at any typical county court gathering in Kentucky and neighboring states. Even the smallest boys of my childhood had to have a Texas saddle.

During the heyday of the circus and the early forms of moving pictures the cowboy was effective chiefly as a picture, still or moving. Radio and the talking pictures have brought again the cowboy song, long known and loved by plain people before these inventions were made. Actual cowboy songs appear on many programs: "Roll On, Little Degies," "Whodpee ti yi yo.

Get Along Little Degies,' and the like. Very rapidly there have grown up other songs based on these genuine cowboy ballads, so that it is already pretty hard to tell the one from the other. The way in which a cowboy song is given makes it effective or not, rendered as if it were an extract from grand opera, is too much. There should be enough freedom in a cowboy song to suggest, at least, least something of the crude but genuine music of the cowhands. By a process of selection and combination and combination a modern musician has brought much of the spirit of cowboy songs into "I'm Heading for the Last Roundup." Dr. John A. Lomax's "Cowboy Songs and Ballads," a collection of genuine songs made by the author some 30 years ago, will show that this now popular song echoes three well-known cowboy classics: "Goodbye Old Pant, I'm Leaving Cheyenne," "Get Along Little Degies," and "The Great Roundup." The cowboy yells or wails, resembling the "hollers" of the negroes, appear in many of the actual and artificial songs.

The actual and literary cowboys have become so confused that it is difficult to distinguish them. Owen Wister's Virginian and Theodore Roosevelt are equally valid cowboys. Will Rogers for many years combined the achievements of the cowboy and the rustic philosopher and was about as typical a product of the frontier as any one can imagine. How long the cowboy will outlast the range there is no way of knowing, but right now he is one of our best known and best liked folk types and is acquiring permanence in song and story.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Dr. Sophia Brunson

HOW TO REDUCE SAFELY

(Concluded)

Remember that the food is the fuel of the body. Your automobile requires no oil or gas when it is at rest, but your body does. When lying at perfect rest sleeping soundly the body using fuel which was taken in as food. It uses much more when exercising. The foods that store fat in the body are mostly starches, such as bread, cereals, rice, hominy, potatoes, pastry, cakes, pies and fats of all kinds, cream, butter and fat meats. "Then," queries my overfed friend, "must I leave all those all those things out of my diet in order to lose weight?" By no means. That has been to the detriment of the health of the victims. Of course the fat making foods should be partaken of more sparingly. Many fat people eat too much starch. In fact, they eat too much of everything.

In order to reduce without causing hunger, weakness or discomfort the person should never try to reduce too rapidly. The vegetables such as cabbage, turnips, kale and greens of all kinds, contain valuable vitamins and are laxative. They can be eaten freely for they do not produce fat. Half a head of lettuce at dinner is quite filling. A combination of raw fruits and vegetables is extremely whole some and satisfying. Lemon juice is preferred by some as a dressing, but mayonnaise of maderian mineral oil cannot be distinguished from the best brands of mayonnaise sold in the stores. Mineral oil dressing when prepared at home is appetizing and has the advantage of not being absorbed or taken up by the body. It acts as an intestinal lubricant and greatly aids elimination.

Liquids are held in the body in the fatty tissues and salt greatly aids in this retention. For this reason it is well to reduce the intake of salt and water. No matter how much you exercise, you exercise you will not reduce your weight if you continue to overeat. It is extremely important that overweight people eat more moderately, and cut down considerably on starches. Most obese people are fond of fattening foods of all kinds, such as bread, cereals and desserts. Too many starchy foods as a rule are served at meals. Some times, especially in the South, we see rice, which is eaten with butter or rice gravy, macaroni, hot bread and potatoes, all served at the meal. This is a mistake. An overabundance of starch. Added to this the meat, vegetables and dessert that are often served at the same meal are too much of a variety. Unless the diners select what they eat with care and do not over eat, indigestion is apt to result as well as overweight.

Meat, bread or potatoes, one or two fresh vegetables and a raw salad and if desired, a simple dessert, is quite enough for a dinner. In fact, one could get along on less, especially if trying to reduce. If there is a feeling of hunger in the middle of the morning or afternoon, try eating some fruit. It often proves very satisfying. A glass of orange, tomato or grapefruit juice is also strengthening and filling.

If you want to get rid of the disfiguring protrusion in front that is such a source of annoyance to you, you may do so safely and comfortably by eating sanely.

Don't Irritate Gas Bloating

If you want to REALLY GET RID OF GAS don't take harsh, irritating alkalies and "gas tablets." Most gas in the stomach and upper bowels is due to constipation. Adierika rids you of GAS and cleans foul poisons out of BOTH bowels.

California Condors.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—Local naturalists are all agog over the discovery that the California condor is coming back in numbers to his former haunts just up country from here. In fact, they are going out of one violent gog right into another. Because the condor, the mightiest winged creature in all North America, was supposed to be practically extinct, along with such vanished species of native wild life as the great auk, the passenger pigeon and the lightning rod agent.

So now we have set up a new mark for envious Florida to shoot at. For while they may have croupiers at Bradley's in Palm Beach, with eyes as keen and bleak as the condor's are, and real-estate dealers in Miami as greedy as he is, our frustrated rivals will be put to it to dig up a bird with a wing spread of from nine to eleven feet.

Irvin S. Cobb

Communism's Gallant Foe.

HARDLY a day passes but we read in the paper of an account of individual heroism, of sacrifice, of devotion to duty—something which renews our faith in human beings and makes us realize that scattered through the world are splendid souls of whom we never heard before and probably shall never hear again. When the emergency came he rose to it—and that's enough.

But because, in the last few months, we've learned to expect it of him, I'm thinking many of us fail to appreciate a recurrent act of gallant service by one venerable, enfeebled man whose name is familiar to all Christendom. From time to time, triumphing by sheer will power, by sheer singleness of purpose above his own suffering, Pope Pius XI, speaking from what soon must be his deathbed, sends forth a clarion call for a united front against the growing menace of communism.

Waning Merchant Marines.

AFTER we've spent billions in government subsidies trying to build up a proper merchant fleet of our own, it's just a trifle disconcerting to read that, among the six nations leading in maritime shipping, the United States still ranks third in gross tonnage, fifth in ships having a speed of twelve knots or better, and last in ships built within the last ten years.

But, although Los Angeles is a great port, we have no time right now to pester about a comparatively trivial thing such as the threatened vanishment of the American flag from the seven seas—not while we're still so uncertain about who will have the leading parts in "Gone With the Wind." To date, nearly every lady in the movie colony has been suggested for Scarlett O'Hara except Mae West and Jane Withers, and as for Rhett Butler—well, it may yet be necessary to cast that role as a whole minstrel first part, with an interlocutor and six end men.

Italians in Spain.

IT MUST be slightly annoying to those Italian soldiers who were flung headlong upon Spain to fight in a war in which they had no personal interest, when, through mistake, they are mown down in hundreds by their own troops, and then the bewildered remnants find themselves in the hands of the opposing government forces, who have a reputation for sometimes being a trifle rough with prisoners whom they capture.

Still, it must be a great comfort to the confused captives—and to the relatives of the fallen back home as well—to have assurance from Mussolini that they are winning the way for fascist doctrines. Until they heard that cheering message, those battered survivors probably thought that they had been licked.

The Height of Gall.

AS J. CAESAR remarked at the time, all Gaul was once divided in three parts, but it is obvious that subsequently there was a complete re-consolidation.

When France, already in default to us on one little four-billion debt, starts scheming to peddle her newest issue of government securities over here, that must indeed be regarded as the height of gallishness or Gaulishness—spell it either way, reader, it'll come out the same. Moreover, to evade the Johnson act, she would have American investors send the money to Paris and buy these French bonds there. This sort of smacks of inviting Br'r Rabbit to come into camp to be massacred, instead of hunting him down with the dogs.

The afternoon over, she was dizzy with remorse and told herself she was a weak, voluptuous woman—like her mother. She wouldn't see him again.

But she did. It became imperative for her to see him. Frightened, she sent for him to exact his promise to be discreet. It was very easy to allow Cun to take her in his arms while he vowed his discretion.

Sometimes she had moods of self-loathing when she met some new evidence of Hugh's affection, or of his mother's confidence in her. Finally these ceased altogether. There were no more struggles to attain the shore; she was swept along by a deep and dangerous current. The stolen love stimulated her whole being, and life was only a frantic waiting until the next meeting could be arranged with some degree of safety.

Her feeling for Hugh progressed through several phases, apology and pity at first, then resentment that he should possess her personality, and finally hatred, where she magnified trifles, seized on each variance of opinion and attitude to bolster up her own position. She had come to the point where she felt it would be a kind of pleasure to have Hugh know. She had often wanted to tell him—watch his smug assurance that he could fill her life, fall away!

The Sunday morning after her declaration to him, she awoke late. The chromium-framed little clock pointed to ten. She looked over sleepily. The bed beside her had not been occupied. Then she remembered and sat up abruptly. Last night?

Joan and Hugh had been in the kitchen. It hadn't seemed long at the time, but perhaps it was a half hour. She and Cun sitting on the love seat at the far end of the dimly lighted room, drugged by caresses, whispering, had been rather oblivious. They were confident that at the sound of returning voices or footsteps they could rise and casually survey a book, a picture. Then Hugh's car had started and he had driven past the windows on the drive.

Cun got up and went out to the kitchen. He came back with his forehead knitted. "Hugh was sick, Joan says. He must have gone home . . . Funny, wasn't it? I wonder . . ."

"What?"

"Could he have looked in the window? No . . . the blinds are down."

"Where is Joan?"

"Out there, sitting in a chair."

"Do you think—?" She felt guilty and uncomfortable.

Then Joan had come in. Hugh had suddenly complained of feeling sick, had gone out the back door. Cun could drive Dorrie over if she felt she must go.

On the way home, Cun, who had recovered his spirits, reassured her. Hugh was too stupid to suspect anything. Honestly, it made him laugh the way she led that fellow around! . . . And probably he hadn't gone home—just to a drug store for some medicine. Why worry? Nothing to worry about. At the worst, she could fix up a story, make him swallow it. He had been with Joan a half a dozen times when she had been uneasy, questioned him. A smart girl, Joan—but gullible.

He'd call her on Monday at the same time. Hugh there—or other company—say "wrong number" and he'd try later.

She rose and putting on slippers and a negligee, ascertained that he was not in the house. His car was gone from the garage.

Her fingers trembled as she dialed Cun's number. She hoped Joan would not answer. In a few seconds she heard Cun's cheerful voice, "Hello."

"Cun, I must see you at once."

He hesitated, then said, "I don't hear you very well."

"Come over. I must see you."

He hesitated again before he replied, "I'm not in the market for a bargain in a car. I expect to run my bus until next spring at least . . . I might drop around and look it over, however . . . This year's model and only gone two thousand miles? . . . I'll see you a little later."

He came in less than half an hour. He was freshly shaved, looked carefree, florid and anticipatory. He smiled as he entered the door. "Not here?"

"No, no one is."

He flung his hat on the hall seat and with his arm around her drew her into the living-room.

She faced him determinedly. "Cun, Hugh knows. He saw us last night."

"The deuce he did!"

"He was packing his bags when I got home. I got him to stay the night, but he was gone before I awakened this morning." Cun whistled.

"Did he take his things?"

really know anything . . . You can handle him all right. But it means we'll have to be more careful in the future."

Dorrie felt a nervous doubt of Cun assail her. "But he does know. I told him."

He stared at her unbelieving. "My God, Dorrie, you told him?"

She answered a little sullenly, "I lost my head. I suppose I was tired of all this pretending."

"What was the need of it? This is awkward. Do you realize what the consequences may be?"

Hugh's not a bad fellow. I might like him if he weren't married to you! And there's Joan—and the town—and my company." He seemed positively edgy and there was a queer, critical curve to his lip.

She turned away. "You don't love me!"

He drew her back to him, his eyes still troubled. "I'm out of my head about you, you know it, you dear golden-haired Circe! But just the same—"

"Just the same—what?" Dorrie insisted tautly.

"You've got us into a sweet mess when it wasn't necessary. I'm awfully fond of Joan, as I've often told you; I've outgrown her—kid marriage. But there are complications. Alimony—you know Joan hasn't a cent. And I'm not making a princely salary."

"Perhaps she won't ask any," said Dorrie hopefully.

"Can't count on that."

Dorrie looked about her. "I'm awfully fond of my home. He let me get just what I wanted. He couldn't take it, could he?" Her voice quavered.

"Afraid he could. Although I imagine Hugh would be awfully decent."

She buried her head on his shoulder. "I don't care about anything—only you," she whispered. "I want to be with you."

His arm tightened about her. Then she felt an unease in his muscles. "This is darn dangerous—my being here," he whispered as he kissed her and released her. "But you're a dangerous woman."

"You Won't Let Me Down, Cun?"

"Going?" she faltered. "But we haven't settled anything. You haven't told me what to do."

He paused on his way to the door. "I'll have to think about it. And by the way, better not call me at the office again. I'll find a way to call you." He picked up his hat.

She felt she could not let him go. She, who was so chary of caresses, felt an irresistible longing to have his arms about her. Her lips trembled with appeal. "You won't let me down, Cun? . . . I've grown to love you so terribly. I thought you'd be glad we were free of all this hiding. You've said so often you'd give anything if I could be your wife."

He answered with vehement ardor, "Darling, I'd lay down my life for you!"

She gave a gasp of relief. She loved every motion of his quick agile body, loved his gait, his carelessness, his fire that kindled in her an ungovernable passion. She would give up her home, her matching rugs and draperies, her Duncan Phyfe furniture, her silver—everything—if only she could have him. "When shall we see each other again?"

He twirled his hat. "Dorrie, you must be a good girl—be sane and sensible."

"Yes—yes?"

"Now you've been rash about Hugh. My advice is to fix it up. He'll overlook it. He's crazy about you." He stopped at the expression on her face. "Love you, precious? . . . Good Lord, yes. But I can't move hand or foot now!"

"We'll not see each other for a while. Perhaps things will blow over."

He was shedding things with his easy optimism, escaping her. She watched him go with a hurt curve on her red lips, and a stony feeling in her chest.

Her thoughts flew here and there like frantic caged birds. Hugh—there was only Hugh.

IF YOU'D take a few steps, Sis, I believe I'd be inspired to answer that question, 'Did you ever see a dream walking?' You are nothing less than devastating—truly a menace!"

"You meow so sweetly, Connie. I'm a bit suspicious that this little peplum frock of mine has got you catty. Your eyes really aren't green by rights, you know."

Connie Sews Her Own.

"How could you? I think my dress looks as nice on me as yours does on you. Why practically all of the girls at the Laf-a-Lot last night wanted to know where I found such a lovely frock. Not one of them guessed that I made it myself. And did I feel elegant when I played Mendelssohn's Spring Song on Diane's new baby grand! The girls said I fit into the picture perfectly. I thought if only Dwight could see me now."

"I still say my two-piecer with its piped peplum, cute little buttons and stream-lines is the No. 1 spring outfit in this woman's town."

Mother Happens Along.

"Girls, girls, if you talk were only half as pretty as your frocks you'd be better off. Sometimes I wonder if you wouldn't be more appropriately titled The Cheek Twins, rather than The Chic Twins."

"Okay, Mother, you win. Let's change the subject by changing clothes. We'll put on our culottes and join you in a round of golf, how's that? Gee, Mother, you never look sweeter than when you're wearing a casual young two-piece shirt dress. The plaid pique is just the thing for you, too. In fact, Mom, you're just about tops from any angle."

LACKEY

The Lackey Woman's Club held their regular weekly meeting Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. M. Colens, at which time Mrs. J. D. Mayo, Public Welfare Chairman of the Prestonsburg Club, introduced Dr. Mary V. Vogt, Director of the Mothers' Clinics. Mrs. Mayo quoted Mrs. Roberta Lawson, General Federated Women's Club president, as making this statement in the March issue of the G. F. W. magazine: "Now that there is no further need of birth control legislation, that our work along that line becomes a part of our public health and public welfare activities."

Dr. Vogt gave a most instructive talk entitled "Family Planning" which was very enthusiastically received by the members attending.

Delightful refreshments were served by the hostess at the conclusion of the meeting.

GARRETT

Oratory Postponed

Due to the fact that some of the schools feel that they cannot compete in the oratorical contest of the Floyd For ensic League if held Saturday, April 24, it has been decided to set the date over to Wednesday, April 28. This has been done to avoid any injustice to schools who had debate schedules which limit the time of coaches for preparation for oratory, as well as to give more time to those who attended K. E. A. The contest will, therefore, be held at Garrett school, on Wednesday night at 7:30.

At the present time the following schools have indicated intention to participate in the contest: Wayland, Bonanza, Garrett, Martin, Auxier, Prestonsburg, Wheelwright, Maytown and McDowell.

Every effort is being made to secure the most competent and qualified judges.

1937 Ford V-8

● If you think that "all low-price cars cost about the same" — forget it! They don't.

Ford makes a car — a 60-horsepower economy Ford V-8 — that sells from 30 to 60 dollars under the prices asked for any other car of comparable size. The lowest Ford prices in years!

Check delivered prices in your town and see for yourself.

● Of course, first cost doesn't prove "low cost" — you must consider operating cost also.

The "60" has definitely established itself as the most economical car in Ford history. Ford cars have been famous for economy for 34 years, so that means something!

Owners who have driven it thousands of miles report that the Ford "60" averages between 22 and 27 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

You can prove those figures — on the open road — in a car provided by the nearest Ford dealer.

● When you've finished your personal check-up, ask yourself: "Do I want to save money the day I buy my car and every mile I drive it?"

"Do I want a safe, roomy, comfortable car of advanced design — created from the finest materials to the highest precision standards?"

There's only one answer, of course — the 1937 Ford V-8.

Ford V-8 $529 at Dealership Factory. Prices include transportation charges, State and Federal taxes extra.

This price is for the 60-horsepower Coupe equipped with front and rear bumpers, spare tire, horn, windshield wiper, run visor, glove compartment, and ash tray.

$25 A MONTH, after usual down-payment, buys any Ford V-8 Car, from any Ford dealer, anywhere in the U. S. — through Authorized Ford Finance Plans of Universal Credit Co.
