YOUTH FATALLY WOUNDED IN ROLE OF PEACEMAKER

Officers Say: Man Guilty of Shooting Wounds Own Mother

TWO JAILED

Johnny Beran, 26, who, according to officers, was acting as peace-maker, was fatally wounded by John Parsons, 45, in front of Jimmy Patterson's restaurant at Allen, this county, Wednesday shortly after the noon hour. Beran died at the Martin hospital at 3:05.

Parsons was arrested by Sheriff M. T. Stumbo within 30 minutes after the tragedy as he was fleeing to the hills. He is being held in the Floyd county jail awaiting examining trial Friday. Said to be a companion of Parsons just before the shooting and owner of the death weapon, Sam Buchanan was arrested by Town Marshal John Laferty of Allen, and is held as an accessory to the crime.

Mrs. Martha Hamilton, 65 was wounded in the arm by a shot fired at the hands of Parsons, her son, Commonwealth's Attorney O. C. Hall said.

Town Marshal Laferty quoted witnesses as saying that Parsons had been to the home of his sister in law, Mrs. Frank Parsons, raising a disturbance and she left the house looking for the town officer (Mr. Laferty). Mr. Laferty said his sister was on the operating table at the time of the occurrence and he was at her side at the Martin hospital. Parsons and his sister in law were in front of the restaurant and Parsons was hitting her.

Continuing, Laferty said: "Johnny Beran, who was nearby, stepped up to Parsons."

SANDY DELEGATION GOES INTO HARLAN

While the Senatorial investigating committee is uncovering coal operators and union activities in Harlan county that implicate Harlan county officials as "strong arm" men for the company heads, a 65-member delegation of Big Sandy United Mine Workers spent Saturday and Sunday in Harlan county who have been denied the privilege of organizing.

Both Right and Left Beaver mine locals were well represented among the 325 men led by John Henratty, union organizer. State Senator Joe P. Tackett, of Prestonsburg accompanied the men as legal advisor.

"The first public speech on unionism in Harlan county since undisturbed," Senator Tackett said, "was held at the edge of Cumberland near Fleming and Lynch." Senator Tackett, Mr. Henratty and a number of leaders of two other delegations addressed the gatherings.

The delegation was unarmed and met no opposition in making house to house canvasses at different camps, Mr Tackett said.

One local was set up at Benham and one at Lynch. Test reports say that over 100 miners have joined the other public rally is planned for next Sunday in Harlan. Senator Tackett said.

DR. COMBS AND MISS COX WED

A marriage of much interest to friends in this section was that of Miss Mary Catherine Cox, of Sidney, Ohio, and Dr. Ballard F. Combs, of this city which took place in Cincinnati, O., on Saturday, March 20. The ceremony was performed at 3 o'clock at the Walnut Hill Lutheran Church by the pastor, Rev. H. L. Meister in the presence of few friends and relatives, including Mrs. J. H. Cox, mother of the bride, and an aunt, Mrs. A. L. Meister.

Mrs. Combs is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Cox, of Sidney, O. After finishing high school at Dayton she attended the University of Cincinnati and later studied nursing.

Mrs. Combs visited in Prestonsburg two summers ago at the home of Dr. Combs' parents, Attorney and Mrs. B. F. Combs, where she made many friends.

Dr. Combs graduated from the Kentucky Military Institute, first attending Greenbrier Military Academy for two years. He attended one year at the University of Kentucky, later receiving his B. S. and M. D. degrees from the University of Cincinnati. Dr. Combs is one of Prestonsburg's finest young men and both Mr. and Mrs. Combs have a host of friends who wish them every happiness.

After a short wedding trip to Chicago, they returned to Lexington, where Dr. Combs has been located for the past year in the practice of medicine, and where they will be at home to their friends.

CALDWELL FOUND DEAD ON HIGHWAY; TWO JAILED HERE

At First Thought Hit-Run Victim; Officials Make Investigation

Sheriff M. T. Stumbo and Deputy Elton Kendrick, while stopping at a restaurant in Betsy Layne at 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning en route to Prestonsburg from a business trip to Welsh, W. Va., were notified by a passerby that a man was lying dead on the highway about one-half mile below there. The officers went to the scene, found the man partially lying on the pavement and removed the body to the undertaking establishment here of E. P. Arnold.

The back of the skull was mashed, the jaw bone broken on both sides and the face was lacerated. Identification was difficult and only after several hours, he was identified as John Caldwell, 44, well-known Betsy Layne trucking contractor.

Mr. Caldwell was, at first, thought to be a hit and run victim. Sunday, officers, Commonwealth's Attorney O. C. Hall and County Attorney Forrest D. Short conducted an all-day investigation. As a result Barney Scalf, 19, gas field worker, and Mrs. Elva Stratton were arrested and placed in the Floyd county jail. Wednesday morning Scalf and Mrs. Stratton waived hearing and filed a $5,000 bond.

Regarding the investigation the county attorney said: "I believe this is murder." He did not reveal any alleged motive.

While here at the jail Scalf said that the last time he saw Caldwell was between 11:30 and 12 midnight. He said, "I

TWO JUVENILES IN COUNTY COURT

Leedy Boy Charged With Slaying Playmate; Case Under Advisement

County Judge W. L. Stumbo and Jean Allen, county judge pro tem, shared the bench Monday in the day's session of county court that heard three juvenile cases.

Juvenile proceedings were heard against Orville Leedy, age 14, charged with the fatal shooting of Milford Case, age 11, near their home on Mud Creek. Five witnesses were examined including the two Leedy boys who told a version of the shooting different to their previous story.

Previously, they said that their gun was leaning against a log and fell down, discharging into the Case boy's chest. Monday both boys admitted that Orville held the gun down by his side with the barrel resting on his knee. The boys said they didn't know how it happened to discharge.

At the close of the hearing Judge Allen placed the boy under $500 bond in the custody of his father. Judge Allen stated that he was taking the case under advisement until the next county court day, May 24, to either sentence the boy or certify the case to the circuit court.

Following the Leedy case the court heard the juvenile cases of George Hansford charged with petit larceny in connection with the Garrett robberies and Henry Boto charged with stealing iron from railway property. Both Hansford and Boto were placed in custody of their fathers to appear here May 24.

Prestonsburg leads the state! No less. There is no denying of the record since last Thursday night.

On Thursday night, April 22 a number of Floyd county boys between the ages of 14 and 19 years gathered at the Oddfellows hall on Main street to form Prestonsburg Lodge No. 1, Junior IOOF, in the presence of their elders. Oddfellows, the ladies Rebekahs and the girls Theta Rho were present to welcome the new order.

The new lodge is the first and only one in the state at present, Judge John W. Caudill said, but the organization of Juniors throughout the state would follow. Judge Caudill, who has assisted in organizing a number of Odd-fellow lodges in the state, organized the boys. He stated that the local lodge is the only one in the state having all branches of Oddfellowship.

MAGISTRATES HOLD SPECIAL MEETING

Right of Ways and Bridge Are Discussed; Next Meeting on May 4

The fiscal court held a special session in the county courtroom Tuesday with all magistrates present and the meeting was presided over by County Judge W. L. Stumbo.

In the matter of the Banner bridge, the bid of Sam Rice was opened in court and no other bids were in court at the time. The county attorney, Forrest D. Short, stated that to accept the one bid would not be competitive bidding as required. The magistrates were discussing continuance of the matter when H. L. Mayo entered with a bid but would not tender it "to be exposed," he said "if the court was going to continue the matter." A third bidder who was not present said to be an out of the state man, was expected to have a bid and the court decided to continue the acceptance of bids until next Tuesday when all bids could be in.

A Knott county delegation, Judge E. E. Moore, Senator Wicker and others visited the court in the interest of right of way from Wayland to the mouth of Caney (at the county line) on the Hindman to Wayland route. Right of way on this two mile road, was estimated, from a previous computation, at $6,600. The court authorized the county attorney to secure it either by agreement or condemnation. A Floyd fiscal

GAS RATE REDUCTION FOR MARTIN CITIZENS

The Public Service Commission at Frankfort April 27 ruled that Martin, Ky., gas consumers, in the future, will not have to pay $1.00 per month service charge added on the bills in the past.

The commission set a new rate of 60 cents per month minimum and a scale rate on each thousand cubic feet over the first thousand of gas consumed.

Hill and Hobson, Prestonsburg attorneys, represented the town of Martin against the Martin Gas Co. Attorney E. P. Hill, Jr., stated that the action of the commission would save the Martin gas consumers about $500 a year.

5 MURDER TRIALS FOR REMAINDER OF CIRCUIT SESSION

Prison Sentences to Three; Fines Imposed in Trials from Highway Deaths

The calendar of circuit court activities for the past few days, up to Wednesday night, showed three penitentiary sentences given, one murder charge dismissed, two manslaughter cases tried, one murder re-trial continued and a number of other cases handled.

Floyd county juries met one year each to Con Samons and Arnold Patton on storehouse breaking charges: one year sentence to J. C. Vines (peg-leg colored man) for assault and battery: fined Noah Newsome $250 on a manslaughter charge, and fined E. D. Fleming Wednesday evening $500 and sentenced him three months in jail.

Newsome was the driver of a truck that claimed the lives of three school children and injured the fourth in the group on the night of Jan. 10 between Betsy Layne and Harold Fleming. Fleming was the driver of the truck that struck a group of three, killing Dakota Stapleton and Dayton Duvall, and seriously injuring Mrs. Duvall. Both death scenes are in sight of each other, officials say.

In the Fleming trial, on the Duvall indictment, Mrs. Duvall was brought to court and she testified from an ambulance at closing arguments for the defense were presented by State Senator Joe P. Tackett and the prosecution's closing statements were made by Assistant Federal District Attorney C. P. Stephens.

Both Newsome and Fleming face other indictments resulting from the highway fatalities.

Harry Johnson received a sentence of 60 days in the county jail for escaping from the same jail recently in connection with a highway fatality.

JUDGE THREATENS ROAD HOUSES WITH GRAND JURY CALL

Recent Killings Are To Be Investigated

CONVENE MAY 4

Stating that the commonwealth's attorney and county attorney were not ready for a call for a special grand jury for next Monday, Judge John W. Caudill said, a special venire will be called for Tuesday, May 4, to investigate an engulfing wave of lawlessness in Floyd county.

Considering a special grand jury call to curb law breaking Circuit Judge John W. Caudill said Monday night, "Liquor places, and especially roadhouses, are ignoring the closing hour of 12 midnight that is plainly set out in the state law. Continuing, he said, "The grand jury will be asked to make a special investigation of liquor selling, moonshine trafficking, roadhouses and reckless and drunken drivers."

Relative to restaurant owners handling whisky during the week and selling food on Sunday, Judge Caudill said: "Staying open to serve food on Sunday and just covering whisky displays or removing whisky from the shelves does not meet the requirement of the law."

The special grand jury will be instructed according to the law as set out in the warning recently issued in the Ashland Daily Independent by Rowan county attorney W. E. Prector to operators of places that sell whisky in this county:

Judge Caudill tendered the Ashland paper article which reads as follows:

Morehead, Ky.—W. E. Prector, Rowan county attorney today issued a warning to all liquor dispensers, telling them that they must not keep their places of business open on Sunday. The warning follows:

INCENDIARISM IS BLAMED IN BLAZE

Barn and Contents Total Loss Tuesday Morning

Officers blamed incendiary in fire that destroyed the barn of Jonathan Hicks and its contents at Cliff, this county. The loss was placed at well over $1,200.

The fire was discovered by the Hicks family at 2 a. m. Tuesday as the walls of the building were falling. A span of mules valued at $400, one cow, two calves, five head of hogs, 400 bushels of corn, farming implements and all other contents were a total loss.

Tuesday the fiscal court had bloodhounds brought from Huntington, W. Va., to track the culprits. The trail was picked up a short distance from the scene of the fire and the dogs followed the tracks of two persons to a railroad crossing near the Chesapeake and Ohio depot at West Prestonsburg. From there, officers surmised, the alleged arsonists had caught a ride on a train and fled.

It is the assumption of investigating officers that the ones responsible for the blaze are transients and not natives.

W. B. Burke, who has been quite ill at the home of his son, E. R. Burke here this week, is somewhat improved.

 To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste
 Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally deranged and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.
 Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance.
 You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Sunday School Lesson

ABRAHAM, A MAN OF FAITH
 International Sunday School Lesson for May 2, 1937.

Golden Text: "By faith Abraham, when he was called, obeyed to go out into a place which he was to receive for an inheritance."—Hebrews 11:8.

Lesson Text: Genesis 11:27 to 20:18.

In the tenth and eleventh chapters of Genesis, the descendants of Noah and his sons, Shenn, Ham and Japeth, are traced down to Terah, whose three sons were Abraham, Nahor and Harm. Here the history of the Hebrew race begins and the real theme of the Old Testament commences. At the beginning of this history stands Abraham, the Father of the Faithful. It is interesting here to note that the three great monotheistic religions of the world, Judaism, Christianity and Mohammedanism claim Abraham for their father.

Born in Ur of the Chaldees, Abraham, with his father and nephew, Lot, moved after some years and began a journey which had for its purpose settling in Canaan. However, before their destination was reached, they stopped at the city of Haran, northwest of Mesopotamia. Here the worship of Sin, the moon god, flourished. Nahor, a brother of Abraham, settled there and, in the story of Isaac and Jacob, it is referred to as the City of Nahor.

Thus, while we are prone to think of Palestine as the ancestral home of the Hebrew people, we discover that they came there after a long, hard journey from a far country.

While living at Haran, Abraham became a very rich man, as also did his nephew, Lot. Living was pleasant and apparently everything was going nicely for everyone. However, Abraham became conscious of a call from God, commanding that he leave this country, his many relatives and his father's house and proceed to a land which God would show him. It seems that this was a second call to Abraham, that the first had been received when they were living in Ur of the Chaldees and that Abraham had chosen to tarry at Haran. Here his father, Terah, died.

So convinced was Abraham that the call was from God, that he prepared at once to obey, at a great sacrifice of personal convenience and property. Gathering his family, his servants and his cattle together, he made ready to depart. His nephew, Lot, also chose to accompany him and so they left Haran and "went forth to go into the land of Canaan; and into the land of Canaan they came." Nothing is told us of the length of the journey, the dangers on the way, the hardships endured; only the essential fact is stated—that Abraham had faith that the call was divine and had the necessary courage to act on that faith.

Passing through the land of the Canaanites, Abraham proceeded to an oak at Moreh, at Shechem. Here, assured by God that this was the land he and his descendants were to possess, he immediately built an altar unto Jehovah. He went on from there unto a mountain on the east of Bethel and pitched his tent. Wherever an encampment was made, altars were erected for the worship of God.

During a period of great drought, Abraham drove his flocks and herds down to Egypt for pasturage and while there he resorted to lying about Sarah, his wife, in order to save his own life. When he was found out by the Egyptians, who considered lying the greatest of crimes, he was ordered out of the country and he returned to Bethel, humbler and wiser for his experience.

While in Egypt, Abraham's flocks and herds had greatly increased and so had Lot's. On their return to Bethel it became apparent that the two could no longer stay together. Leading Lot to the top of a hill, Abraham gave the younger man the choice of the land round about. Having none of Abraham's greatness of soul, Lot chose what seemed to him to be the best—the plain where there was plenty of pasturage and of water. However, immediately after their separation, God appeared unto Abraham and reaffirmed his promise to give unto him and his seed the land for an inheritance. Abraham moved his tent unto the oaks of Mamre, which are in Hebron, and there built an altar unto Jehovah.

Why did God call Abraham out from his home and his kindred? Because he knew it was for his own good. Abraham had to be alone with God in order that God might train him, in order that Abraham might learn to rely on God and God alone and that his faith might be strengthened. Does God call men today? Certainly. He not only calls men and women to special service in his kingdom, but he calls all of us to higher and nobler living. He wants our help in making this world a finer and better place in which to live. Have you the faith to answer God's call to you?

Sarah Ann's Cooking Class

Fresh fruit served in the simplest form is the most logical dessert when the first warm days arrive. Large strawberries served with a little powdered sugar; fresh pineapple served in unpeeled segments arranged around a mound of powdered sugar, either of these make a tempting dessert. If these are not to be found, then there are many canned fruits whose pleasant aroma is especially appealing at this season.

Ambrosia Modern
 Peel 2 large oval oranges and slice as thinly as possible; arrange the slices on serving plates and sprinkle lightly with powdered sugar, then with shredded coconut. Arrange a layer of canned crushed pineapple on the orange, and on it a second layer of orange, sugar, coconut and pineapple, then a third layer of orange. Cover this thickly with coconut, then with strawberry slices. Place perfect whole berry in the very center. Border the dish with fresh green mint leaves and serve very cold.

Frozen Strawberry Whip
 Into a large mixing bowl place 1 cup of crushed strawberries, ¼ cup of powdered sugar, 2 egg whites and 1 tablespoon of lemon juice. Using a rotary beater, beat until the mixture is very stiff. Then pack in refrigerator tray and freeze. Cut into squares and serve.

Cherry Fruit Cup
 1 cup canned cherries.
 1 cup sliced peaches.
 8 mint candies.
 1 cup crushed pineapple.
 1 cup diced grapefruit.
 ½ cup cherry juice.
 Drain the fruit from the juices and chill. Dissolve the mints in the cherry juice, then chill. For serving, ar-

Sugared Cherries.
 Wash and pit 2 cups of ripe pie cherries, cover thickly with granulated sugar and place in the refrigerator for several hours, stirring occasionally. Serve very, very cold on small sherbert dishes with simple little wafers and cream cheese.

Pineapple Brown Betty
 Melt 2 tablespoons of butter in a heavy skillet and lightly brown 3 cups of soft bread crumbs in it. Arrange a layer of the crumbs in the bottom of a baking dish and cover with a layer of pineapple; sprinkle very lightly with cinnamon, then cover with crumbs, repeating until the dish is full and making the top layer of crumbs; pour ¼ cup of hot pineapple juice over the pudding, cover and bake 45 minutes, then remove cover and leave to brown slightly. Serve warm or cold with hard sauce or cream.

Strawberry Custard Filling
 1 cup milk.
 ½ cup sugar.
 3 tablespoons flour.
 ½ teaspoon salt.
 1 teaspoon lemon juice.
 1 cup ripe strawberries.
 2 egg yolks.
 Scald milk in double boiler, mix sugar, flour and salt and add to egg yolks, slightly beaten. Combine with scalded milk and cook about 15 minutes. Remove from fire and cool. Spread between layers of sponge cake.

Gooseberry Custard Tarts
 Clean a pint of gooseberries and cook them with as little water as possible till very soft, then press through a coarse sieve. Add ¾ cup of sugar and set on back of range. Make a custard of 2 egg yolks, 1 cup of milk and ¼ cup of sugar, simmer over hot water till it thickens, then cool and mix with the gooseberry pulp. Line muffin tins with flaky pastry. Fill with the gooseberry custard and bake

If you enter a moving picture theatre where there is a show of a character which is most exciting, filled with fighting and dangerous hair-breath escapes, you will find the place packed with children of all ages, squealing, yelling and otherwise giving vent to their excited, pent-up emotions.

Do you wonder that nervousness is increasing among children? It is a disease that is growing by leaps and bounds. The nervous child unless placed in the proper environment and treated as he should be will grow up into a neurasthenic, delinquent or psychoneurotic. He may ultimately land in an insane asylum. The latter institutions are becoming so overcrowded that at the present rate of increase in their population, in a few years the sane, normal people that are left will be unable to bear the burdens of the unfit.

SPRING FOR CLEANING UP

Annual Spring cleaning is a process that most housewives thoroughly understand and the practice survives nearly everywhere because of the obvious advantages obtained by giving the domicile of the family a thorough renovating.

Probably, drawing a lesson from the housewife, many towns and cities have established a similar custom and once a year, usually in the Spring, launch a community drive for the same essential purpose. The only difference is that where the housewife takes care of her own home the community seeks to enlist cooperative action of all citizens in the work of cleaning up the premises that make up the unit.

Prestonsburg has had such drives before, under various names, such as Clean-Up Week, Paint Up Week, Beautification Week, etc. We are not interested in the names but the ideas are sound and can be practiced by the residents of Prestonsburg with much profit to all concerned.

Every citizen should be a committee of one to improve the appearance of his or her property. The combined action of all of us will have a notable influence upon the impression that our home town will make upon those who come here. More important, it will have a good effect upon those of us who live here.

The plant being served with primary service, has its own transformer station located in the basement. The meter and engineering departments are exceptionally well equipped for their various lines of work. Ample and efficient storage of materials has also been provided for.

It is believed that everyone will find this building most interesting and well worth one's visit.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore
 BY Gordon Wilson, Ph.D.
WESTERN KENTUCKY TEACHERS COLLEGE
 BOWLING GREEN, KY.

WHAT IS FOLKLORE?

Often I am asked "What is folklore?" The term is capable of many interpretations, like the word literature. Folklore may mean, in a larger sense, any knowledge or learning pertaining to the folk, that is, to people collectively. The ordinary limitation placed on the term makes folklore relate to traditional customs, habits, language, songs, industries, and the like. That is, folklore is any knowledge that is transmitted unconsciously or unofficially from generation to generation. Many forms of learning have long been standardized so that they are hardly to be called folklore any longer, but originally everything we know could have been so classified. When language, for instance, became standardized sufficiently for dictionaries to be made, the folk elements became less important than they were in the days when everything one knew about speech had been handed down traditionally by word of mouth. But even in language there are still many things that are of the folk. Not everybody is educated; not everybody knows or cares about a standardization of pronunciation. Hence mistaken notions, often rather naive ones, are forever at work, changing the nature even of language. Slang is one such thing influencing standard speech; memories of old words and old meanings also have much to do with the most up-to-date language. What used to be true in language is still shaping the effect of present-day language. Words that have long been used have meanings other than the standard ones, meanings that are forever coloring what we try to say. The Poet knows this and has capitalized it as an idea: his words are quite often the ones that will bring most emotions to a larger number of people.

Many people are wrong in supposing that folklore is wholly a part of ignorant or outlandish people. The reason why such people are often studied is that they preserve longer and more untouched the customs and traditions of an earlier age. Every custom, whatever its status today, was once held by the high and mighty as well as the lowly. The style that was the very latest thing in one generation remains in a remote place in the next generation as a left-over and comes to be regarded as folklore.

Whatever becomes customary and is transmitted orally is folklore. If you would check up on your own customs, you would find that a large part of every one is traditional; that is, you did not consciously form your habits on certain standard types of conduct or action. You and I, regardless of our educational status, are daily snapping our lives by what is customary far more than by what we have read in books or thought out for ourselves.

In addition to oral transmission of what has never been written down there is another type of folklore that deals with knowledge that has been learned from books but reshaped by the folk. Many a song, in other days, was composed and published in the regular fashion; then it drifted away into the remote corners of the world without the aid of print and had an independent life for generations, just like other songs that were originally of the folk and were never printed. Learning could not be called universal even today; the opportunities for oral transmission of our knowledge are numerous. Folklore, then, includes both the original folk thinking and the reaction of the folk to what was originally conscious and deliberate learning.

UNEMPLOYED PERSONS SHOULD REGISTER AT PIKEVILLE OFFICE

W. A. Peterman, district manager, National Reemployment Service, Pikeville District office, in a statement today asked that all unemployed persons register with the Employment Service. Those who have not called at the office in the past 60 days or who have not in some way advised that they are still seeking employment should also call at the office at once, especially he is in need of highway skilled and unskilled workmen, and men skilled in coal mining who are physically able and qualified to do this class of work. He also states that shortly the Works Progress Administration will inaugurate a plan whereby no person though he is certified as needing relief will not be worked on WPA projects unless they have availed themselves of the opportunity to register with the NRS. This registration is necessary in order that the employment service can aid in locating suitable private employment for such workers.

The Pikeville office, located on the third floor of the courthouse, is open for registration and interviewing between the hours of 8:30 a. m. and 1 p. m. daily, except Sunday.

Unemployed persons physically capable, and qualified and between the ages of 21 and 65 who live at such distances that they are unable to get to the Pikeville office, should write Mr. Peterman, should write Mr. Peterman, who if they are unfortunated will arrange a place and time where they can file their applications.

One way to increase the use of vegetables by members of the family is to grow more kinds in the home garden. While the average garden contains only a half-dozen vegetables, it should include at least a dozen, and many more kinds could be grown.

Pillows can be washed without removing the feathers. Soase them in lukewarm suds, or put them in a washing machine. After rinsing several times in warm water, hang them on a line in the sun and wind. It is better to remove feathers from beds, before washing.

For vegetables, most fertilizers give best results when applied at each side of the row, or around each plant, as in the case of tomatoes. Care is needed to prevent over-use of fertilizer in this method, and it should be placed at least 2 inches from the plants.

Care is needed in giving salt to any animals, especially if it has not had salt regularly. Special care is required in the case of hogs, which are rather easily killed with pure salt, but other substances highly salted.

Hugh drove his car into the country, drove for miles on unfamiliar roads. Finally he drew up at a maple beside a field and sat there, thinking. People passing in cars on their way to church, nudged each other at the sight of the young man hunched over his wheel, a look of stupor on his face. They tittered and exchanged glances. Finally he started the engine and drove toward town. He turned into his mother's driveway at half-past twelve. Kezia waved to him and came running down the steps. "Dorrie has called twice. She said to ring her up if you came over. He looked past her with lustreless eyes. "All right," he said thickly. Carefully he backed the car down the drive, and then circled the boulevard three times before he could force himself to go down his own street.

Dorrie met him at the door. Her eyelids were red with recent weeping, and the sight twanged a responsive chord of pity in him. "Hugh," she said bravely. Then choked and paused. "Hugh, I've seen Cun. I've told him it was all over between us."

He stood, frozen as a statue, his sombre eyes burning into hers. "I know now that you're the only one I care for—the only one. The other was—"

"An interlude?"
"No—a madness. Can't you forgive me?"

She seized his hand. "Listen, Hugh—you must believe me—and don't look at me like that—so cold and hard! I've been very wicked. . . . I'm sorry for the things I've said and done. But you'll have nothing to complain of now—nothing! Please say you will!"
Tears began to roll down her cheeks. "I'm so unhappy and miserable."

The habit of the heart is strong. He took a step forward. A compulsion greater than he, an involuntary movement, and his arms closed around her, closed around her in desperate yearning.

CHAPTER VIII

After the interview between Ellen Pendleton's parents and Jerry Purdue, they handed down the ultimatum that they would not sanction an engagement yet. Let things work out. There was no hurry.

In July there was a perceptible shrinkage in Jerry's devotion. He did not telephone quite so often. He had vague excuses for not coming since Tuesday. Lizzie's quick eyes noted the change almost as soon as Ellen, and used it as a small whip to lash her.

"Not coming this afternoon—Saturday? I thought he had the afternoon off. Nor tonight? . . . He has to see a man on business? . . . A good bit of that lately!"

When Lizzie learned that Jerry had been seen at the country club as the escort of Kezia Marsh, she was triumphant. She could scarcely wait to tell Ellen.

Jerry took some of the sting out of this information by saying to Ellen that night: "I want to be perfectly frank with you—I've been seeing something of Kezia lately." Her heart knocked a little, but she managed to smile. "Kezia—yes?"

He watched her closely. "I took her out to the dance the other night."

"She's very—attractive."
"Oh, attractive enough, but a little spoiled. She amuses me. It occurred to me that since your parents are so set against an engagement, it would be well for us to go around with others occasionally."

"Do you think that would help matters with them?"
"At least it wouldn't cause so much talk. No one would be sure that we were engaged—and that would please your parents."

Jerry had put the top of his little car down and they were spinning past an endless whirligig of meadows and woods yielding to the blur of twilight. She felt a bit sick that he would think of such a procedure. It was disenchanted to know that he could find pleasure elsewhere for an evening.

"You're not saying anything. What do you think of it?" urged Jerry.

She spoke in a low tone. "Isn't it your wish and desire that counts?" She paused. "But if your only object is to please Father and Mother—you won't do it that way. Mother was beginning to like you—I could see it."

Jerry made a dissenting sound. His dark face was turned in sullen profile as he brooded. "They get me down when I come to see you."

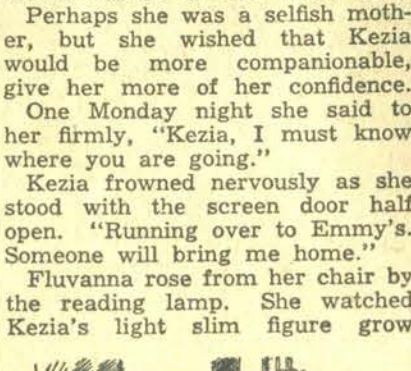

"I'm not good enough for a son-in-law!"
"Mind if I ask you a question?"
"Ask away."
"Did you go to see Kezia more than once? Sometimes I have a feeling that Kezia is not really friendly toward me—that she would be glad to show you off as a conquest she had made."
He laughed. "Don't I know it? She's a flighty wench—half a dozen men on the hook."
"And you're sure of me?" she asked with a dubious smile.
"Sweetheart, you're worth a dozen Kezias," he said with glib impetuosity. "You know I think that."

A great many things made Fluvanna unsettled and discomforted, yet not one fact which she could put her finger on and say, "this is the reason." Michael, Margery's son, had ear trouble with a threatened mastoid, and Fluvanna's eager sympathy drained her strength away through the weeks of illness. And what had become of Ellen? So busy and happy that she never had time to drop in? She called Lizzie on the telephone to invite her and Ellen for lunch on Wednesday, but Lizzie was curt in her refusal. Both she and Ellen had engagements for Wednesday. Fluvanna flushed at her short tone.

Perhaps she was a selfish mother, but she wished that Kezia would be more companionable, give her more of her confidence. One Monday night she said to her firmly, "Kezia, I must know where you are going."

Kezia frowned nervously as she stood with the screen door half open. "Running over to Emmy's. Someone will bring me home."

Fluvanna rose from her chair by the reading lamp. She watched Kezia's light slim figure grow blurred in the darkness of the long front walk. She was only a bobbing shadow on the street, walking slowly now. Then as she watched her, Kezia's footsteps quickened a little. She turned toward the curb where a roadster was parked, climbed into it. The car moved away.

"He Really Adores You—Looks Up to You!"

The next morning Kezia came downstairs about noon, fresh and smiling. She came to her mother in the library and extended a glove to her. "Just a tiny hole, Mother. Want to mend it for me? It's the only pair that's clean. I told Anna to wash them yesterday—but her only answer was a dirty look! So I've been industrious this morning, washed four pairs, and numerous stockings."

Fluvanna took the glove, threaded a needle.

"Where were you last night, my dear?"
Kezia took a step back and shot her a look. "Just over to Emmy's," she said coldly.

"Who drove you over?"
The girl gave her a guarded glance.

"Kezia, whom are you meeting that you won't bring to the house? I happened to see you get into a car," Fluvanna stopped and pressed her hand to her side.

"I won't be questioned about every little thing I do!"
"It's not a little thing; it's a very serious thing. If there is some reasonable explanation, why don't you give it to me?"

"I can't."
"Why can't you?"
"It's someone whom you wouldn't allow at the house—so there!"

"My dear, surely you know that I'd rather allow you to have anyone—anyone—at the house, than have you picked up on street corners!"

"Mother, darling," said Kezia with hurt innocence and touching appeal, "you won't scold me if I tell you?"

"No."
"I probably shouldn't have started, and at first it was only in fun. But now it's real. He cares for me instead of her!" She smiled quiveringly; a tear squeezed out from the mist in her eyes, rolled over her cheek. She knelt by her mother's chair, laid her head on her arm. "You understand, you dear understanding mother—you're not hurt? And now if you know you'll allow him to come to the house—as you promised you would! . . . He really adores you—looks up to you!"

STAR DUST

Movie • Radio

By VIRGINIA VALE

THE Women's National Radio committee has named the Rudy Vallee hour as the best variety program on the air, and Bing Crosby's loyal host of followers are so upset that letters of protest are pouring into radio stations and newspaper offices.

Correspondents agree that the Vallee program is always a grand show, but they point out that Bing's hour gives much greater variety, since it consistently includes the greatest musicians as well as popular songs, comedy and dramatic sketches.

Warner Brothers cabled Errol Flynn in Ireland to return to the studio at once to start work in a new picture, but the cable was undelivered as the adventurous Errol had already set out for Spain. First news from there was that he had been injured in a rebel attack and for a few hours friends stood disconsolately around the studio talking about what a grand guy he is. Nobody felt like working until the welcome news came that his injury was slight and that he would be able to return soon.

As summer approaches and radio programs call it a season, radio singers look wistfully toward the big rewards of Hollywood engagements. Two who have already landed engagements are Jessica Dragonette and Lanny Ross. Miss Dragonette will appear in a Bobby Bren picture called "Make a Wish." Lanny Ross will join the ever-growing ranks of Grand National company.

Victor Schertzinger, who composed the never-to-be forgotten "Marcheta" and who is a splendid director believes he has a story that will catapult Ross right into the front ranks of film idols.

Being just the husband of a popular Hollywood actress is no career for an ambitious young man, according to Leonard Penn, who left the New York stage to come to Hollywood with Gladys George, and George McDonald who left his newspaper job when he married Jean Parker. Penn is being tested by M-G-M, and George McDonald is being tested by Paramount.

Gail Patrick, the only survivor at the Paramount studio among all the girls who won in their "Panther Woman" contest a few years ago, has at last attained real recognition. Not only will she be featured in "Artists and Models" with Jack Benny, she will get one of the best dressing rooms on the lot. It was built years ago for Pola Negri and was later occupied by Clara Bow.

Every time Sam Goldwyn spends a few days away from the studio, he catches up on all the newest national fads and promptly arranges to use them in pictures. Recovering from a cold at Tucson, Arizona, a few days ago, he was impressed by a trailer camp. Promptly he bought a story called "Heaven on Wheels" and cast Barbara Stanwyck for the lead.

Fred Astaire is so determined to have Carole Lombard in the first film that he makes without Ginger Rogers that he is postponing production until she is free. And James Stewart is so determined to play opposite Ginger Rogers in her solo starring vehicle that he is pleading with M-G-M to release him from working in Luise Rainer's next. It is so much fun working with Astaire or Rogers that players are willing to give up better roles in order to be with them.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . Dick Foran won't finish any more pictures with an embrace. It seems that the juvenile audiences who so enjoy his pictures shrieked in derision when he went romantic. . . . M-G-M has shunted Elisa Landi's plan to ride in the hunters' trials at Palm Springs. They won't let her risk her neck while she is making "Thirteenth Chair" for them. . . . Claire Windsor, too long absent from the screen, will return in support of Constance Bennett in "Topper".

Luise Rainer has dyed her hair bright red for "The Emperor's Candlesticks" and likes it so well she is going to leave it that way. . . . Whenever 20th Century-Fox needs Wallace Beery for scenes of "Slave Ship" they page him at the circus. Ever since the days when he traveled with a circus as elephant valet, he has loved hanging around the sauciest tent.

A Winsome Quartette

THERE was a lull in the mid-morning activities of the Chic Twins (in aprons this time) and their week-end guests when the candid camera caught this gay quartette.

The guests are wearing—let's have a close-up—sports dresses because they are so all purpose: tennis frocks go shopping just as often as not. The spectator model to the right with its unusual use of buttons is demure enough to wear when calling on one's Sunday school teacher and yet would have sufficient swing to "belong" in the gallery at the golf tournament. Summer days offer so many unexpected opportunities that these dresses are chosen as equal to any informal occasion.

sons and begged him not to do that. Parsons then wheeled on Johnny, pulled his gun and fired two shots into the boy's chest. His mother (Mrs. Hamilton) stepped in between them as the shots were fired and a third shot struck her in the arm below the shoulder.

Hides Gun

Following this, Parsons fled and some people saw him run in under Ben Welch's store, then come back out and leave. I found the gun and Parsons' hat under the store floor. Commonwealth's Attorney Hall, who conducted an investigation immediately after the shooting corroborated Laferty's version.

Arresting officers said that both Parsons and Buchanan were drunk.

Laferty said that Buchanan identified the gun as belonging to him, and Buchanan stated that Parsons took the gun away from him.
