Appearing on the program will be H. H. Jeffries, national placement officer; Ed M. Seay, state commander; T. J. Norris, editor of the Ashland Daily Independent and a number of state officers as enumerated in the last issue of The Times.

WILEY RETURNED TO REFORMATORY

On Washington's birthday, Chester Wiley evidently decided that life is not a "bowl of cherries" as a song, popular some time ago, would have a fellow believe. Several days ago, Wiley and two companions were jailed here on charges of breaking into the restaurant of H. E. Stewart at Garrett.

On Monday, Feb. 22, Chester was returned to the Greendale Reformatory, at Greendale, Ky., by C. R. Cummins, an institution employe. A communication to B. L. Sturgill, keeper of the Floyd county bastille, from S. K. Holland, Greendale superintendent, stated that he was an escaped inmate of the reformatory.

Wiley's companions have been released from jail here, Jailer Sturgill said, due to lack of evidence.

J. N. KENNARD IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Mr. Kennard was born at Logville, Morgan county, on July 1, 1893. He taught in the public schools of Morgan and Magoffin counties and then engaged in the mercantile business at Logville, Lacy and Paintsville.

He was married to Miss Lula Wheeler, daughter of C. W. W. and Elizabeth Wheeler, June 29, 1916. Blast Destroys Inland Gas Company Tractor

Company Calls Halt In Pipe Line
Construction---200 Men Idle; Drilling
Rig Dynamited

Due to persons, whose names were unavailable, responsible for blowing up a tractor Wednesday night, Feb. 17, in a terminus to a dispute between teamsters and the field officials of the Inland Gas Corporation, it is reported, the company has had to take a position similar to that of a "sit-down strike." Company officials stated that they are forced to abandon further construction of a 12-mile pipe line from Lackey to Hindman pending an investigation of Federal authorities. The work, started in the field last week, scheduled to last from 60 to 90 days and to employ approximately 500 men, was destined to mark a new development in the Knott county gas field.

A report here states that some of the teamsters employed by the company expressed resentment to the use of a tractor by the company to snake pipe up the side of the Jones Fork mountain, evidently feeling that the piece of machinery would shorten the period of time in which the teams would be used. It is understood that some of the teamsters had. Continued on page four.

COURT TO BUILD TEN-TON BRIDGE

Suspension Span At Banner
To Serve Prater and Mud
Sections

A ten-ton suspension bridge, to be built at Banner, Ky., is now being advertised for bids by the Floyd fiscal court. An unofficial source estimated the cost of construction reaching the neighborhood of six or seven thousand dollars.

W. C. Rimmer, Prestonsburg engineer, drew the plans for the structure. It is designed to be suitable for auto traffic, and will be similar in construction to the 5-ton bridge spanning the Big Sandy river at Emma, Ky.

The announcement came from the office of Forrest D. Short, county attorney, where March 20 was set as a tentative date for the fiscal court to receive the bids.

The bridge has a span of 366 feet across the breadth of the river, suspended between two concrete pillars by wire cables. The road bed of the bridge is figured to be approximately nine feet wide and will accommodate one-way traffic. The approaches to the span were estimated by H. L. Mayo, county engineer, as being 30 feet in length. The roadbed is to be constructed of wood on iron framework.

Mr. Mayo, who drew original plans for the Banner bridge, said Thursday night, that one end of the bridge on railroad side of the river, would be located on the property of I. N. Hall and the other end would be on the Harkins and Fitzpatrick. Continued on page four.

LOCKHART, TRUSTEE, MAKES STATEMENT

W. E. Lockhart, trustee for the company, in a statement regarding the trouble over the construction of a twelve and a half mile pipe line, said that it was caused when the company tried to use a rock drill and a caterpillar tractor. "We started to construct an eight inch pipe line from Lackey to within two miles or so of Hindman. Everything was moving along all right until we began to use a caterpillar tractor and a winch to haul pipe up steep hills where it could not be handled by teams."

Mr. Lockhart said that the trouble first started when a rock drill was placed on the job to cut through heavy rock on some of the ridges over which the line was to be constructed. He said that several men forced the foreman to abandon use of the drill.

"We intend now," Mr. Lockhart said, "to apply to the federal court for an injunction prohibiting any one from interfering with our workmen or with the construction of the pipe line."

TEN ENTERED IN ODD FELLOWS' HOME

Two sets of twins from the family of the late Dan Patterno, of Prestonsburg, left here Sunday, Feb. 21, to enter the Odd Fellows' home at Lexington, Ky. They were Claude and Miranda, 10 years of age, and Lora and Ora, 12 years old.

W. M. Davis, secretary of the grand lodge, Kentucky Odd Fellows, accompanied them to Lexington.

Last week, the Wayland Odd Fellows lodge sent six children to the home from that vicinity, it is reported. Names of the children were not learned.

A recent report from the Odd Fellows' home listed 10 children from Floyd county. These recent entries bring the total from this county to 20.

DRAWINGS HELD FOR TOURNAMENT

The attention of county sports fans will be directed toward Lackey's high school gymnasium March 4, 5 and 6 for the duration of the 58th district basketball tournament slated to decide the district champion from 10 Floyd county high school teams.

Drawings for the tournament were held at Martin, Ky., last Saturday night. The tournament gets under way Thursday night with the Prestonsburg and Wayland teams toeing their marks on the smooth hardwood for the tip-off scheduled at 7:30, and the second tilt bringing together Garrett and Martin for a tussle at 8:30.

McDowell, Wheelwright, Betsy Layne, Lackey, Maytown and Auxier drew bves and will not enter the competition until Friday. Friday at 8:30 p. m. McDowell meets Wheelwright and Maytown tangles with Auxier at 2:30. Friday night, Lackey meets the winner of the Garrett-Martin game and Betsy Layne engages the winner of the Prestonsburg-Wayland game. The semi-finals are scheduled for 1:30 and 2:30 Saturday afternoon with the finalists slated to decide just "who's who" at 8:30 Saturday night.

There will be nine games in the tournament for the three days. Officials selected for the get-together of the district teams are Homer Eversole, Hazard, Ky.; and Becham Combs, Hindman, Ky. Admissions for each game with the exception of the final Saturday night is 25 and 35 cents. Saturday night the price is 30 and 50 cents. All-tournament tickets are priced at $1.00 for students and $1.50 for adults.

The winner and the runner-up of the Lackey meet will compete, along with representatives of other Eastern Kentucky districts, in the regional tournament dated for March 11, 12 and 13 in the Prestonsburg gymnasium.

Coach Greenwell, in charge of the Blackcats stated Thursday, in answer to a question regarding the probable winner of the district, "From present indications, it looks as if Garrett will be the winner with either Betsy Layne or Prestonsburg as the runner-up."

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Baldridge, of Warco, spent last week-end in Prestonsburg.

PAINTSVILLE-TO LOUISA STRETCH IS TO BE PAVED

To Macadamize Right Beaver Road; No Mention of

'37 PROGRAM

A report received here late this week states the highway department is surveying the Mayo Trail from Paintsville to Louisa in preparing to give the 26-mile stretch a high type surface in accordance with the Federal Bureau of Roads specifications.

A company of 13 highway engineers is now engaged in "straightening out" the curves along the route. A minimum width of 60 feet was asked in both counties for right-of-way.

It was stated that the top of the surfacing would probably be concrete.

The contract must be let before July 1, otherwise the federal money for this project will be withdrawn from the state's '37 road building. County officials at Louisa have promised speedy cooperation in securing rights-of-way.

The 1937 Federal Aid program of the Kentucky highway department, according to an announcement from Frank Fort, includes 47 projects of arterial highways in 35 counties. Listed as one of the "important pieces of construction" in the southeastern section of the state, was the improvement of the Right Beaver road from near Dinwoodie to the Knott county line near Lackey.

1853 INDICTED IN FLOYD COUNTY IN THREE YEARS

Data On Crime Being
Compiled by Circuit Judge
John W. Caudill

Judge John W. Caudill revealed, from data on which he is compiling on present crime conditions in Floyd county, that since the beginning of his term in office, Jan. 1, 1934, grand juries in the Floyd circuit court have returned a total of 1,853 indictments in a three-year period.

Of this number, 114 were murder charges, 11 were charged with manslaughter, 807 for other felonies and 1,146 misdemeanors. This number of misdemeanors, Judge Caudill stated, are in addition to the number of cases tried in the magistrates' courts.

In discussing the condition of the county, Judge Caudill said that although these figures are appalling, the previous records will show that the number of crimes in this district, composed of Floyd and Knott counties, have decreased to some extent during this period.

Recent statistics show that in Kentucky 27 per cent of the convicted criminals are under 21 years of age, while in Floyd county, the jurist pointed out, the percentage of those who are becoming hardened criminals at such a tender age, would run much higher.

Ballyhoo Sending Bomber Same Way Maxie Baer Went

JOE LOUIS' purses have totaled more than $700,000 since he became a professional prize fighter thirty months ago. He was accompanied to his corner on the night he fought Bob Pastor by eleven managers, trainers, promoters, seconds and less easily identified parties. Since all of them probably like to eat and wear diamonds, a considerable portion of his rewards must have been shared with them. Yet, because they in turn have cut in on allied ventures, he must be worth at least $200,000 today.

Even in this land of surprises there scarcely is any precedent for the amazing triumph of this giant. There may, though, be a very good and modern precedent for what has been happening to the youngster recently. I refer to the sad case of Max Baer.

Both Max and Joe arrived quickly. They were fortunate in their early connections and did not have to come up the hard way as did Jack Dempsey.

Each of them was well possessed of the purely physical virtues which make for a great fighter. Probably Baer was the better built and the better able to sustain a punch, but each of them owned amazing hitting ability. This latter quality, as displayed in the matches that were made for them, covered up inherent defects. Indeed it caused the undiscerning to proclaim them as owning—through some God-given right—talent that can only come by long and faithful practice.

Max Baer.

Baer, who should have been a champion for ten years, went first and quickest. He read the papers and otherwise amused himself. Thought that a hungry father must tremble at headlines which screamed that the odds should be 1,000 to 1 and that stretcher-bearers should sit close to the ringside. Jim Braddock, not a great fighter then or now but an earnest man who had worked hard for his chance, utterly discredited Baer.

Much the same thing now is happening to Louis. He was not a good boxer when he first appeared against Carnera less than two years ago. But he could punch hard and fast and possessed superb poise when things were going well.

Newspapers and radios built up a myth about him that could have endured almost as long as the twin gags about George Washington's cherry tree and Calvin Collidge's silent wisdom. Undoubtedly various of the lambs that were being led into the ring were rendered even more timid by the press advices that they were about to be slaughtered unmercifully.

All the while Joe read the sports pages and the comic sheets and otherwise amused himself. When preparing for a fight he slept, ate and popped over as woeful a set of sparring partners as ever appeared for the ancient and elegant purpose of getting popped over. In the ring against Sharkeys, Retzlaffs and Brescias he learned even less. Perhaps confidence was built high in him, but confidence means little without such a backing as Joe never strove to attain.

Even the shellacking received from Schmeling, a second-rater as great heavyweights go, taught no lesson. Nor could repeated warnings convince Joe's camp followers of the altered temper of disillusioned cash customers. Business went on as usual, although the crowd reaction was far from being as good as of yore. Meanwhile, the inevitable kept on getting closer.

The Louis who scrambled with Bob Pastor was a sorely puzzled boy. The one set of rules with which he was familiar were being discarded as on the Schmeling night. Thirty months of headlining and more than $700,000 in purses had given him nothing with which to meet new conditions.

He has, perhaps, picked up a few cute little punches for which a more discerning referee would have penalized him. Otherwise he has not advanced. Indeed has become more sluggish, seems definitely to have gone back.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

ANOTHER attempt will be made to straighten the tangled affairs of the Brooklyn baseball club before the Dodgers start spring training. It is possible that this meeting may either result in that long hoped-for sale or in a shift in stock control. . . . Chick Meehan, the coach who put N. Y. U. and Manhattan in the front football ranks, is winter vacationing in Miami. . . . Pennsylvania's racing commissioners will receive annual salaries of $10,000 each, tops for such jobs, if the sport becomes legal in that state. . . . Gossips insist that if any local college court stars failed in their mid-year exams it was because the boys were playing semi-pro basketball in Yonkers and outlying Westchester spots when they should have been studying.

When former Boxing Commissioner Jim Farley quits being Postmaster General the best bet is that he will hook up with a famous insurance company. That Garden tip probably got out because Jim is planning a few Florida days as the guest of Stanton Griffis, Wall Street and movie board, who also heads the Garden board of directors. . . . Casey Stengel now is in Texas looking over some oil property which may soon make him as rich in money as he already is in friends. . . . Garry Schmeek, former basketball star and layer of odds on met courses, is in a new business. He runs a riot of a place in Miami Beach called the Circus. . . . Either Prosecutor Dewey or the G-Men might perform a much needed service for a long suffering public by investigating the New York prize fight situation.

Several of the best fights of recent weeks have been pick-up affairs at the very social Hialeah racetrack. A prominent trainer was the main performer in one of them and a celebrated jockey starred in another. . . . Eddie Burke, who manages Havre De Grace and the new duPont track at Wilmington, once was president of the Metropolitan association. Back in 1905 the Mets were celebrated as the nation's strongest organization of bookmakers. . . . The Whitneys are as clever as ever at picking names for their horses. Take Septime, now in Florida with the Greentree division. Septime's mammy is Parry and Septime also is the seventh, or parry, position in fencing.

Italians Now Boss Lightweight Class

The lightweight class which in the past has been dominated by Irish, Jews, negroes and other racial strains now is strongest in Italians. For instance there are Champion Lou Ambers (Luigi D'Ambrasio), Tony Canzoneri, Enrico Venturi, Aldo Spoldi and Phil Baker (Philip Matra). . . . Some of the sharpest of bettors will look for a price on Brooklyn when the future books come out for the Kentucky Derby. This Colonel Bradley colt was a late-season development as a youngster. Cleveland and Chicago have been so impressed by the prospective success of the American Bowling Congress which will be held in New York in the spring that they are bidding hot for the 1938 tournament.

Tony Canzoneri

Arthur Lumley, dean of New York boxing writers, is very ill in his Brooklyn home. He is more than eighty years old. . . . Dave Driscoll, former and very able business manager of the Dodgers, is hoping to connect again with some International league club. . . . Harry Voiler, who came all the way from Florida for the Pastor-Louis fight, has joined the list of those who believe the New York boy some day will be heavyweight champion. . . . A Braddock-Louis fight in Chicago probably would not draw any more than $300,000 in spite of interested ballyhoo to the contrary. . . . Incidentally Braddock is one fighter Louis can knock out and the job could be done quickly. . . . It's a tough thing for a guy who bet on Jim against Baer to say but it's true. . . . Also there's plenty of McCoy in the statement that John Henry Lewis, the colored light-heavyweight champion, would be no worse than even money if Joe ever decided to quit drawing the color line against him.

Johnny Moir, whose brilliant work at forward has helped Notre Dame to defeat the No. 1 and No. 2 Big Ten basketball teams in succession, holds every scoring record in his school's history except one. . . . That's Ed Krause's three year mark of 547 points. . . . In a season and a half Moir has scored 435 points. . . . If he continues to average 17 points a game as he has for the last five games he will have a new record before the end of his second season. . . . Joe Cronin is getting a share of the $250,000 purchase price his father-in-law, Clark Griffith, got for him from Boston at the rate of ten cents a hole on a Florida golf course. . . . Visiting ball teams at Comiskey park will have a new clubhouse at their disposal this season. . . . Plans for the new quarters are being drawn up and President J. Louis Comiskey promises it will be the best in the major leagues. . . . The Sox will continue to occupy their present residence until a new one is built when the what Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

Reducing Auto Fatalities.
SANTA MONICA, CALIF.— Being revolted by our hideous record of mortality resulting from mad automobiling—as what decent citizen is not?—a gentleman writes in some pertinent recommendations.

He suggests laws providing, in addition to such other penalties as may follow a conviction for drunk driving or criminally reckless driving, or hit-and-run driving, that the convicted party shall lose his license for five years and that his automobile be sold and the proceeds used for the victim's heirs, as the case may be.

Irvin S. Cobb

Whilst we're on the subject of the disgrace which costs America more lives every month than are being destroyed in the Spanish civil war in any month, here's another little notion:

That a flagrant offender or a chronic offender shall be given a jail sentence, without the option of paying a fine, the only alternative from jail being his or her willingness to be handcuffed and chained before the public gaze through a period of hours or days at the scene of the accident for which he or she was responsible.

That ought to make some converts to the crusade for prudent driving, don't you think?

Windsor's Musical Proclivities.
LAATEST word is that the duke of Windsor has taken up accordion playing in a serious way after first toying with the deadly saxophone and then doing some intensive bagpipe tootling. Obviously the duke is in a fair way to estrange those who, until now, have faithfully supported him through his recent harrowing experiences. Even loyalty can be pushed just so far.

Or maybe he has a lot of close friends who are deaf.

Or maybe Mrs. Simpson is practicing wearing earmuffs.

Or maybe she can wear him on a mouth organ—a comparatively inoffensive instrument.

Or he may just up and reform of his own accord.

Or something. Let's not be too hasty in our judgments.

Jefferson and Ickes.
SECRETARY ICKES is sort of opposed to naming the projected great national auditorium in Washington after Thomas Jefferson, because it is proposed to hold sporting events there when the building is not being used for public gatherings. He invites us to imagine the feelings of Jefferson upon looking down on boxing matches or such-like goings-on under that roof.

Well, let's carry the thing further: Can anybody imagine Jefferson imagining a Secretary Ickes?

Madame Perkins' Ambitions.
MAYBE it's not wise to add those new departments to the Presidential cabinet right now. True, Madame Perkins shows a patriotic willingness—or shall we say determination?—not only to look after her own portfolio, but to snatch up such responsibilities as her fellow-secretaries are so careless as to leave out of nights.

Still, it's expecting an awful lot of one weak woman that she should relieve two more members of their responsibilities, duties and authority when the task of trying to take over the other nine present jobs besides her own already has taxed her strength severely. And besides, there's annoying talk that congress may actually oppose the madame's latest little suggestion that she be made practically the supreme power in all labor disputes.

But she needn't worry about that. Whoever heard of guinea pigs defying a lady lion-tamer?

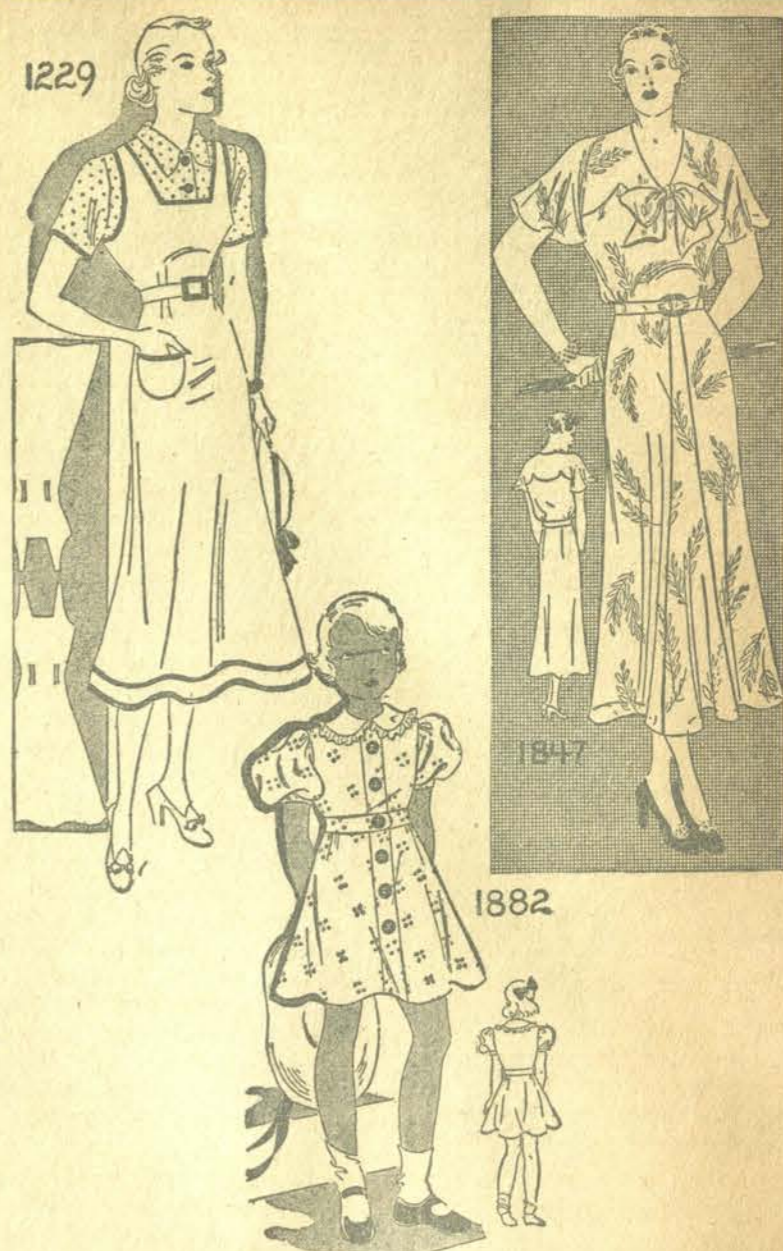

The Flood's Aftermath.
WITH the slackening of the torments, the peak of drama out of the scene, but the tragedy, less spectacular but nevertheless desperate, lingers on—the tragedy of destitution and ruin and sickness. For the rebuilding of wrecked homes, the rehabilitation of morale, it is necessary that through the Red Cross we give and keep on giving—and I reckon we will. We always have.

But there are certain things we need not give the victims, for these be things they never lose and never will—their courage and their sense of humor. We can still laugh at our personal misfortunes even while the world at large weeps for them. I guess, for our race, that's the main saving grace.

A Chain of Ants
A species of ant joins distant leaves to make its nest, first establishing between them a chain of ants several inches long, gradually shortening the chain by removing individuals without disturbing the connection, and finally cementing the leaves where they touch with glutinous matter exuded by young larvae.

Worthy of Your Pride!

MOTHER, between you and me Sis is getting to be a little show-off. Last night when Dick called, there she sat, big as life, right in the middle of things chirping about the new dress you made her: how you used a remnant left over from one of your dresses, and got it finished in one afternoon—she even had Dick feel the material.

Well, Elsie, you can't blame the child's appreciating herself in a new dress. How about ourselves? Didn't you say your jumper was the talk of the Tennis Club meeting yesterday? And haven't I been spending more time before the mirror since I made my new "Stylish Stout" model? I actually feel like a new person in it—imagine me being vain at my age!

Flatters Stout Figure.
Oh, Mother, you're not vain and you're as young as any of us. You just were lucky to find a particularly flattering style for your figure. That soft jabot makes you look lovely and the whole thing is so slenderizing. But only an expert like you could make such a dress.

It isn't being expert, Elsie, it is choosing a pattern that is deftly designed and giving full step-by-step instructions on how to proceed.

Several Blouses.
I'm going to make another blouse for my jumper soon, Mother. I always admired that white picture shirt of Dick's, so I think I'll try it for my blouse, since the pattern is a lot like a man's shirt in design.

It sounds good to hear you interested in making something for yourself. Maybe you girls will turn your Bid-or-Bi Club into a Sew-Your-Own before long.

You can never tell, Mother, you never can tell!

The Patterns.
Pattern 1229 comes in sizes 14 to 20; 32 to 42 bust. Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards of 39-inch material for the jumper and 1 1/2 yards for the blouse. Pattern 1847 is available in sizes 36 to 52. Size 38 requires 4 1/4 yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1882 is designed for sizes 2 to 10 years. Size 4 years requires 1 1/4 yards of 39-inch material.

THE NEW COMMANDMENT

International Sunday School Lesson for Feb. 28, 1937

Golden Text: "A new commandment I give unto you, as I have loved you, that ye love one another—John 13:34.

After the incidents related in last week's lesson, Jesus left the vicinity of Jerusalem and went northward to the borderline between Judea and Samaria and thence over the Jordan into Perea. There he stayed a short time. Intending to attend the Feast of the Passover in Jerusalem, he again crossed the Jordan and returned to Bethany, to the home of Martha and Lazarus, a few miles out of Jerusalem. It was during this visit that Mary anointed the feet of Jesus with the very costly ointment.

While many were wondering if Jesus would attend the Passover in Jerusalem, knowing the intense hatred of the Pharisees, Jesus rode into the city riding a donkey, receiving the tumultuous acclaim of the multitude. This was in fulfillment of the prophecy and was the beginning of the end for Jesus. He was fully aware of this fact.

Among the multitude were certain Greeks who, not satisfied with their own religion, had accepted the Hebrew faith. Hearing of Jesus and his wonderful works, they wanted to see him for themselves. Whether they had the desired interview or not is not known, but what Jesus says in John 12:23 seems a reply to them. Dr. Erdman interprets his words thus: "You would see me, then you have arrived at exactly the right time, for the hour has come for the Son of Man to be glorified." Not glorified in the sense we usually think of pomp, splendor, fame—but honored by God. It was not through the working of miracles, nor through his death and resurrection that Jesus was revealed to the whole world and by the cross was the world drawn to him.

Jesus goes on, comparing himself to a grain of wheat which, in order to prove of greatest blessing, must be planted, lose its corporate identity as a grain, in order to send forth a new life and bear fruit. The self-sacrifice of the grain was to him a parable of his own death and resurrection. "And the self-same law of sacrifice which reigns on the throne of heaven governs the dullest and darkest on earth. To be self-centered means, spiritually, to abide alone and therefore to perish."

Then Jesus uttered his great law of life through death: "He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal. George Reith says, "Self-love leads to destruction and death. The present and temporal must be sacrificed for the future and eternal, a truth peculiarly in place for Greeks whose essential conception of life in its fullness, beauty, vigor was assertion of self. He also reminds his hearers that he who would serve him must be willing to follow him. Where—anywhere, even to death. What is the reward offered for such service? Jesus says that he who thus serves him shall be "where I am and him will my Father honor." What more could we ask or desire.

Realizing the close approach of Gethsemane and Calvary, Jesus shows the human side of his nature when he cries, "Father, save me from this hour," but follows it with the declaration, "but for this cause came I unto this hour. Father, glorify thy name." He willingly accepted the will of the Father, if, thru his suffering, the Father might be glorified. A heavenly voice was heard, saying, "I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again."

Indicating the manner of his death, Jesus declares, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me." The phrase "I be lifted up," probably has a double meaning, including both his death on a cross and also his ascension from the earth into heaven. In the phrase "will draw all men unto me," Christ clearly intimates that though crucified, he was not to abide in death, but was soon to live, and set up a kingdom drawing all subjects unto it—George Smeaton. The death of Christ on the Cross is the "one great magnet, pulling with all the power that love pull with, drawing broken, sin-bound, ruined men to bestow upon them a new home, a liberty dreamed of, a cleansing from every stain, a new life which Christ gives to all who believe in him. To miss the cross is to miss the Christ."

After this, in the Upper Room, Jesus gives his disciples a memorable example of humility and service when he takes a towel and washes their feet. After the observance of the Lord's Supper the announcement of the identity of his betrayer and the dismissal of Judas from the group, Jesus gives his followers a new commandment. He says, "I command you, that ye love one another, as I have loved you, that ye also love one another."

Surely, today the greatest need of Christians is to obey this command of Jesus and to display to the world a type of love which was exemplified by the love of Christ for his disciples—unselfish and enduring, seeking expression in deeds rather than in words. The real measure of our love for one another is the things it makes us do, the sacrifices it makes us accept willingly, and the services we render in Christ's name. Hugh Black fittingly expressed this when he said, "The glory of life is to love, not to be loved; to give, not to get; to serve, not to be served."

NEAR TRAGEDY AVERTED

A report to The Times states that, during a high wind storm rampant in the Sandy valley Sunday afternoon a boat containing seven young people from Bull Creek was capsized in the middle of the river at the mouth of Brandy Keg Creek, near here. The high velocity of the wind and unusually rough waters attributed to the mishap. A near tragedy was averted when some boys who happened to be standing on the river bank dove into the water to assist those unable to swim to the shore.

Names of those in the boat as reported were Camden Garrett, John Andrew Brannan, Zelma Young, Norma Warrick, Freda Carrett, Maggie and Ethel Simmons.

PART OF TRAIL TO BE SURFACED SOON

Continued from page one. According to reliable sources, the 10.9 miles of the Right Beaver road will cost approximately $18,000 per mile and will be constructed of a built-up base six inches thick topped with a macadamized, or a similar surface. It is estimated to employ 50 to 75 men and to probably last three or four months.

The 10.9 miles was gravelled during recent months. The Right Beaver road, from the end of the pavement to the Knott county line, is being surveyed preparatory to the actual work. It was not indicated as to how soon this work would begin.

Among other counties in this section of the state mentioned was a three-mile stretch of road between Pikeville and Williamson for medium type surface: two projects in Johnson county embracing considerable grade and drain work.

This same announcement stated that the Kentucky state highway engineers and the advisory commissioners from each of the commonwealth's road districts were in conference at Frankfort computing mileage, comparing figures and compiling notes, all of which will ultimately become the state's approved Federal Aid program for 1938.

The 1938 program, according to this report, will be larger than any of its predecessors and will be made up of approximately 50 projects which will touch each section of the state. After arranging the program it will be necessary to get its approval in Frankfort before submitting it to authorities for approval for federal aid. Besides the construction of highways, replacement of bridges, the program will also include roadside improvement.

Particularly conspicuous, and of vital interest to a large portion of Floyd county's 40,000 residents, is no late reports from the highway department relative to the progress, at Frankfort, concerning the much-discussed Left Beaver road and its incomplete "link" of about four miles. The most recent report was to the effect that construction of the Left Beaver, the Middle Creek road, etc., was under consideration and would probably begin in the early summer of 1937. The general report of the 1937 program, recently received here, contained no mention of this whatsoever. The aforementioned "promise" was given to Mayor A. C. Carter and County Judge W. L. Stumbo, it was stated here, who were at Frankfort sometime ago in the interest of Floyd county's roads.

County Attorney Forrest D. Short stated Tuesday that the Left Beaver "link" was eligible for federal aid and is eligible to be included in the 1938 program.

At present both Beaver roads are in a state of being almost impassable.

will also be present and outline the plans his company has for this great bi-state project. Other members of the temporary organization are Harry LaViers, of Paintsville, Press Adkins, of Norton, Va., T. S. Haymond, of Fleming, and Mayor K. J. Day, of Pikeville. All county and city officers, bankers, coal mine superintendents and agricultural and civic leaders from Pike, Floyd, Johnson, Lawrence, Boyd, Martin, Knott, Letcher and Perry counties in Kentucky and Buchanan, Dickinson, and Wise counties in Virginia are invited to this meeting on March 6.

Issue Statement

This week a statement was issued by members of the temporary committee in support of the movement which read:

"Eastern Kentucky and adjacent territory in Virginia been intensively used for farming, and in recent years since many mines have ceased to operate at their maximum, many miners have drifted back to the soil and are striving to support their families by farming. Consequently, the number of tenants on farms in this section have increased in the past five years over 88 per cent. Naturally, they have cleared steep hill land, causing extensive soil erosion. If this destruction continues, we will soon completely destroy our forests as well as our farming land.

"A recent government survey reveals that 72 per cent of our section is still in forest land and we are only getting 35 board feet per acre annually, but with proper forest management and fire control we should produce 300 board feet per acre annually or an annual income equal to one-half the income from our coal at the present.

"The recent flood, the most devastating known in the Ohio valley, has aroused the nation to a point where our government realizes it must in the near future instigate a program that will save our soil, as well as assist in protecting our neighbors downstream. The government readily admits it must start at the headwaters in the "Back to Nature" way by re-forestation and the construction of small dams.

"Western Virginia and Eastern Kentucky are naturally suited for a forest reserve, and grasping the projects that lie before them, the citizens of Eastern Kentucky have caused to be called together in the city of Pikeville our civic organizations including the Rotary Club, Kiwanis Club, Chamber of Commerce, Fish and Game Association, Woman's Club, American Legion and the coal companies, at which meeting they discussed the excellent opportunity of securing a National Forest of over 50,000 acres in this area is to be used for a demonstration area for the people of the mountain section "Of Proper Land Use."

threatened to stop the job if the company did not remove the tractor. The company was employing about 50 teamsters and, Joe Lockhart, company field superintendent, stated that most of the men offered no trouble whatsoever, and probably were not responsible.

This week the company is removing their equipment and machinery from the construction site and placing it in storage.

W. P. A. officials are credited with reporting that a case of 40 per cent gelatin was stolen from the W. P. A. magazine a few nights previous to the explosion. The magazine is located near the construction site it is said.

Bloodhounds were taken to the scene of the explosion, but picked up no scent of footprints due to rains of the night and morning, it was explained.

The new tractor was completely demolished and the damages were estimated at about $3,000. In addition to depriving a large number of men of their jobs.

Two watchmen, who were stationed with the machine, are reported to have said that a bunch of men drove them away from the tractor at the point of guns.

Merle Wilson, Prestonsburg drilling contractor, reported Wednesday that a motor and light plant of his drilling rig located on the H. H. Smith farm on Capey Creek, was blown up Saturday night, Feb. 13. He said that the same parties who blew up the Inland Gas Company's tractor were also, probably, responsible for dynamiting his drilling rig. He estimated his loss at about $2,500.

Supt. Lockhart said the company was in trusteeship under orders of the federal court and the federal investigation of the explosion is now under way and investigators would act under the orders of Federal Judge H. Church Ford.

FACTS AND FIGURES OUTLINED BY JUDGE CAUDILL

Along with the figures and facts on local conditions Judge Caudill has also some statistics on crime in the nation for the year 1936. During the last year, in the United States, there were more than 12,000 murders, more than 46,000 felonious assaults, about 285,000 burglaries, more than 800,000 larcenies and all told, more than 1,500,000 felonies committed.

The cost of the war on crime in one year in the United States has been estimated at $12,000,000, which is equivalent to three times the cost of running the Federal government for one year.

A quotation that commands attention is, "In America, today, over 150,000 murderers remain at large," running free to commit further destruction. The Federal Bureau of Investigation has over 3,400,000 criminals fingerprinted.

Judge Caudill has promised more information in comparison to the number of high school graduates in the district and in comparison to the number of church members. He will present information relative to Knott county's situation at the opening of the Knott circuit court on Monday morning, March 1, at Hindman. The foregoing information is scheduled to be the basis for the opening address to the April court here, and the beginning of a series of manuscripts on crime in Floyd and Knott counties.

130 Drunkenness Arrests - They are: Jim Crum, Banner; Frank Goble, Lancer, and Paul Warix, Prestonsburg.

It could be called a "staggering" figure. A peek at the entry book of B. L. Sturgill, county jailer, disclosed that over 130 arrests on charges of drunkenness have been made in the vicinity of Prestonsburg by county officers since Jan. 1. A sort of a record was established on a recent Saturday afternoon when eight were placed in jail within a period of less than two hours, it was said.

Speaking in regards to the vice drive instituted in the county recently, Jailer Sturgill said that officers have arrested about 20 women and placed them in jail for examination by the health department. Since Saturday night of the past week, approximately 18 have been jailed. Most of these have been on drunkenness charges.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

THE STRING BAND

Since the radio has come into general use, there has been rescued from oblivion what was certainly heading in that direction, the string band. And it is gratifying to note that some of the bands now in existence are strikingly like those of other times. Some of the hillbilly bands that are appearing on programs are far from being the regular kind, however. A man in a distant state recently wrote me about hillbilly bands and the music to be played. He said that he had been elected director of such a band but did not even know what instruments should be played. He had written to several music companies but had been unable to secure any information. I sent him a list of well-known break-downs and suggested the instruments for his band. I would like to listen in on a hillbilly band thus set up: I fear it would lack something of the wrong twang of the old-fashioned kind that grew up spontaneously.

Now string bands may have all sorts of instruments, but the fiddle, the guitar, and the banjo are absolutely necessary. A bass viol is good, but I have seen many a string band without one. Other instruments that may be added are as follows: French harp, Jew's-harp, mandolin, washboard, bones, or anything else you can find to beat on. I have heard washboards that would make two or three drums ashamed of their tones; a wooden handled fork can work wonders on a washboard. If real castanets are not available, two short sticks in the hands of an expert can keep time admirably. No hillbilly band should exist without some homemade instrument: a fiddle made from a cigar box, or a banjo made from a cheese box, or some such instrument. That gives genuine flavor that "boughten" instruments sometimes fail to have.

While breakdowns are the basic tunes to be played by a string band, any tune will do: sentimental songs, marches, patriotic airs, and religious hymns. In other words, the range of the string band is from "Pop Goes the Weasel" through "Silver Threads among the Gold" to "Sweet Bye and Bye." Each band needs a fiddler who can play his fiddle in every conceivable position, even to sawing it on the bow or playing it behind his back. He should also be able to imitate, more or less accurately, such things as chickens cackling, roosters crowing, babies crying, or cats caterwauling. No member should know how to do queer tricks; he is usually the fellow who plays the Jew's harp or knocks the three instruments at a time, so much the better. The French harp player ought to be able to make prolonged notes on his instrument by shifting his right hand properly. If some enthusiastic fellow forgets and calls figures for the square dance, no harm will be done.

Now you have the directions I sent the man in a distant state. How well he will succeed I do not know and am afraid to think. But the self-taught string band virtuosos that you and I once knew and still know can take these instruments and these tunes and make our feet get "powerfully" restless, and our memories amazingly accurate. New times have added a lot of high jinks to this program and have added several instruments, but these are the ones that smack of the punchon floor or the barn dance, or the picnic where a "swing" was the center of attraction.

FORD HAS BETTER THAN "MILLION-CAR" YEAR

For the eleventh year in the past 17 years, the Ford Motor Company had better than a "million-car" year in 1936, according to official figures just received by Howard Motor Company.

"Tabulations reveal that Ford cars and trucks sold throughout the world during the year totaled 1,219,262 units," said S. B. Howard, of the Howard Motor Company, local Ford dealers.

Ford world production in the same period was 1,194,800 units, it was announced. The first "million-car" year was in 1920 when world production reached a total of 1,074,336 units.

The bulk of Ford production was in the United States for domestic use. Canadian production, including assemblies in Australia, India, Malaya, New Zealand and South Africa totaled 60,282 units. Production in the United States for export plus production in plants in Europe, Asia and South America was 204,641 units, bringing the world production total for the year to 1,194,800 units.

Ford cars are manufactured in four factories beside the Rouge plant at Dearborn. These are Daggham, England; Windsor, Canada; Cologne, Germany, and Strassburg, France.

Ford cars are assembled in 44 plants over the world. Of these, 16, including the great Rouge plant are in the United States, four in Canada, eight in Europe, one in Mexico, three in South America, one in Japan, four in Australia, four in India and Ceylon, and one each in Malaya, New Zealand and South Africa.

Turkey Oldest Bird

Because the turkey is the oldest domesticated bird native to America, its history and the names of those pioneer men and women responsible for its development are unrecorded. It is evident, however, that the breed which we know as the Bronze is the oldest, resulting from refinement and selective breeding of the original wild bird. A great many breeders have played a part in bringing this grand breed to its present state, says Successful Farming.

SYNOPSIS

Kezia Marsh, pretty, selfish and twenty, arrives home in Corinth from school and is met by her older brother, Hugh. He drives her to the Marsh home where her widowed mother, Fluvanna, a warm-hearted, self-sacrificing and understanding soul, welcomes her. Kezia's sister, Margery, plump and matronly with the care of three children, is at lunch with them. Hugh's wife, Dorrie, has pleaded a previous engagement. On the way back to his job at the steel plant founded by one of his forebears, Hugh passes Doc Miller, a boyhood friend whom he no longer sees frequently because of Dorrie's antipathy. Fluvanna Marsh wakes the next morning from a dream about her late husband, Jim, whose unstable character she fears Kezia has inherited. Ellen Pendleton comes over. She is an artistically inclined girl who is a distant niece of Fluvanna's and a favorite of Hugh's. She happily tells Fluvanna she has become engaged to Jerry Purdue, Ellen fears that her father and mother, Gavin and Lizzie, will not approve the match. Hugh and Dorrie go out to the Freeland Farms to dance with their friends, Cun and Joan Whitney. Whitney, who has been on a work, announces that he has a new position. Cun and Dorrie dance together and then disappear for a while. Dancing with Joan, Hugh is amazed to find her in tears. Apparently she has some secret worry over her husband, Cun. When Ellen and Jerry speak about their engagement to Ellen's parents, Lizzie is disagreeable until Jerry sympathizes with her imagined ailments. The matter is left pending.

It was whispered around that he had been threatened with prison, that he had used company money for his own use. People shook their heads over a wasted life, women discussed it at tea parties for a week, then the world moved on about its own consumingly interesting affairs.

Fluvanna was ill for several weeks. Dry-eyed, white, almost speechless, she lay in bed. Her friends whispered of shock—she had found him that way after she heard the shot. Small wonder she was ill with that, and if she knew half the things that were rumored!

When she grew better, she devoted herself to her children and went out very little. Her friends could not surmise the poignances that harmless, idle conversation could awaken, could not vision the pain that talk of home and husbands and plans for the future could awaken in a tortured soul, bleeding with memories.

CHAPTER IV

Hugh was intensely annoyed as he buttered his breakfast roll. "You say you wrote to him, and then you got this letter? Why didn't you say something to me first?"

"I thought I might persuade you to change," answered Dorrie.

He shook his head. "It wouldn't do, darling, at all. Insurance is a business I know nothing about. It would take me a year or two to learn—and what would we live on during that time?"

"John thinks you might do very well in a few months. See what he says," she tossed the letter over to him from John Reeper, husband of her sister Beryl.

It was a mild communication, offering little or nothing; if Hugh wanted to take up the insurance business in New York, he would put him in touch with the right parties. Hugh groaned to himself that Dorrie should regard this as a business opportunity!

The lace on the flowing sleeve of Dorrie's negligee fell away as she lifted her arm to pour a cup of coffee. "Your father was in the insurance business—you should have some talent for it," she said idly.

Hugh disregarded that. "We'd have to move away."

"Exactly."

"You want to? Leave this little place, our place? The arbor-vitae hedge is coming along so nicely, and the peach and plum trees we planted—"

"Sentimental as a woman!"

"I'd hate to leave Corinth—even if this were a real opportunity—and it isn't. The place where you were born sort of gets into your blood. You know everyone . . . and Mother—she's here."

"All the foolish objections first and the real one last!"

Hugh looked at her reproachfully. "And you like the steel business? I've heard considerable complaint about how hard that is!" She was using the curling tone he disliked, very soft, edged with malice.

"I've spent eight years in it. My grandfather was in it; most of my relatives are. At least I know what it's about."

When she did not answer he went on pleadingly. "I haven't done so badly here, Dorrie. And it hasn't been my name or connections. Those don't count with competition keen as it is. I started at the bottom and they advanced me. I might get a good salary some day—yes, a really good one."

She threw out her hands; a small, wise smile curved her lips. "At least I've asked you! But it has turned out exactly the way I expected it to! . . . I'll write to Beryl today."

At the plant that morning, he visited the different departments, checking with the foremen on the progress of the work.

A little after ten a long distance call came in from Congress City about some steel mesh they had delivered for road building. Potter, the contractor, complained that it was not of the specified thickness, and was much annoyed. Hugh promised to send a man to look at it at once. Potter was a good customer; it wouldn't do to offend him.

He sent for the records, talked with the foreman and decided to make the trip to Congress City himself, a drive of 50 miles.

A fine day—and if he drove, why not take Dorrie? They could go over the New Portland highway, which wound along a ridge of the hills. Fine scenery. He tried to telephone her but the line was busy. She had told him she wasn't going out today—he would have some sandwiches packed at the club, drive up and get her. She would probably be glad to have the outing.

With his basket of lunch which the chef at the club had put up for him, and driving toward home, he felt an expanding glow within himself at this unexpected break in the daily order. A day with Dorrie, out under the sky and sun, would work its magic, would smooth out misunderstanding, draw them closer in harmony.

He saw Tillie, the maid, moving a dust cloth over an upstairs window sill as he went up the walk. Dorrie was telephoning at the hall table in a low almost inaudible voice as he entered the front door. She turned at the sound of his footsteps, and the look which came over her face, startled, almost angry, gave him a feeling of shock.

She hung up the receiver quickly without saying good-by.

"What brings you home? Forget something?" she inquired lightly. A flush colored her cheeks.

"No. I came to see if you would like to go jaunting."

"Where?"

"Congress City. The contractor there is kicking about the road mesh we sent. Want to go?"

She hesitated. "No, you go along alone. I'm not dressed and there are things I want to do."

The telephone pealed sharply. Dorrie whirled abruptly for it, but Hugh had already lifted the receiver to his ear. "Hello . . . hello . . . hello."

He hung up. "No one on the line apparently! . . . You don't want to go? What's the reason? Haven't made a date, have you? We could drive over the Portland highway—they say it is beautiful scenery."

The flush on her face had faded; she looked rather pale. "It does sound nice, reconsidering. I'll go."

"I had a lunch packed and thought we would eat along Lonesome River."

She smiled faintly in approval. "I'll slip into that green dress you like and be with you in a minute."

In the country Dorrie sang softly, a snatch of this, a bit of that, a rhythmic accompaniment to the purring of the engine. They chose the less frequented narrow roads which led past rich farms, gently-rolling hill farms, brooks dividing the pastures where cattle grazed, ponds which reflected the blue sky and its cottony wisps of cloud.

It was July when the season pauses in stillness. The sparkling, capricious spring was past; there was no hint of autumn.

The new highway crested the hills. They drove higher and higher until a panorama of countryside, the sweep of field, the darkness of wood, the stubble of cut grain and shimmer of piled wheat, extended in great rolling distances to right and left of them, so far that a blue haze met the horizon.

Dorrie touched his arm. "Let's stop here, Hugh. Like a view from an airplane, isn't it?"

The deep valley, beside them wound sinuously. Far down they caught the gleam of a small river, silvery over some rapids, escaping the fringe of hemlock and willow which leaned caressingly over it.

"Lonesome River," said Hugh. "See that flat rock down by the stream? We'll be eating lunch there in ten minutes."

They descended the mountain and came to a settlement of a dozen very old somnolent houses called Norwich. A lane to the right of the bridge led for a short distance along the river bed. They parked the car under some sycamores, and taking the picnic basket, started along the little-used trail by the water.

"Hungry?" asked Hugh, when they came to a ledge close to the water.

"Ravenous! What did you bring?" She knelt over the basket and drew out some chicken sandwiches wrapped in oil paper, piled them on a napkin between them. "And fruit! Ginger-ale — and glasses! You thought of everything!"

"It won't be very cold. It's been over an hour since they took it off the ice."

"Never mind. It will be wet anyhow. Have you an opener?"

Lunch over they sat side by side for a few minutes, his arm around her.

"You've been nicer to me today than you've been for ages," said Hugh softly.

"Have I, old funny?"

Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminators, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxines. Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)
