VOTERS INELIGIBLE, WHO CHANGED PARTY WHILE REGISTERING

State Official Says County Clerk Must Ban Changes in Parties

Frankfort, Ky., July 20.—Clerks of the county courts should not certify as eligible voters in the coming primary who recently changed their registrations from one party to another. Guy H. Herdman, assistant attorney general, today informed the Pendleton county board of election commissioners.

He pointed out that heavy penalties were provided against election judges and officers who permitted unlawful voting and that punishment is provided for unlawful voters. Those entitled to participate in the primary are entirely new registrants of a party, and those who were registered under the heading of that party in the election of last November.

Those who recently changed their registration from one party to another may not participate in this year's primary, he said.

Whitesburg Gets Federal Building With May's Aid

(From the Whitesburg Mountain Eagle) Whitesburg is to have that new postoffice and that right away it seems. The contract for the construction of the new federal building was recently let to Andrew & Dawson of Montgomery, Ala. After weeks of seeming idleness on the part of the government officials concerned, it suddenly broke from a clear sky that the idleness was only for the purpose of accepting bids for the construction of the building. So all rumors about two more elections to be run on the new federal building must now be quieted.

Through the congressman from this district Jack May Whitesburg and Letcher county will be able to boast of a federal building to be proud of. Congressman May has been working ceaselessly in

Approximately 2,500 Drivers Must Be Licensed Before August 1

July 21—With only 10 more days in which to purchase the new Kentucky automobile drivers' licenses, 201 operators in Floyd county have obtained licenses at Circuit Court Clerk Troy Sturgill's office.

As Floyd county has approximately 2,500 automobile and truck operators the licenses must be sold at a daily average of 230 from now to August 1, if every operator in the county is licensed before the deadline. The new license costs $1 and is not void until July 31, 1938.

The new licenses must be procured by August 1, as state highway patrolmen plan an intensive investigation beginning on that date. City and county sections both will be patrolled. Those who are unable to show their new license will be summoned into court. The old licenses are valid until Aug. 1, but not after.

PLANS FOR 4-H CAMP DISCUSSED AT MEET

Camp Will Be Held in August With 34 From Floyd County

Plans for this year's 4-H club encampment were discussed by county and home agents from Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Lawrence, Greenup, Magoffin and Boyd counties at the district camp conference held at Rhododendron camp near Paintsville, under the direction of J. M. Felner, assistant state club leader.

County Agent Isbell said that he planned to send 30 4-H club members and four leaders to the encampment to be held at Rhododendron August 2 to 7. At the camp Mr. Isbell will teach courses in gardening and boys' handicraft.

Agent Isbell said that plans for attending this summer's camp were discussed at a recent meeting of the Maytown 4-H club, with the following members present: Margaret Manuel, Jennie Reffett, Virginia Osborne, Everett Martin, Henry Frasure, Marie Spencer, Louise Amburgey, Harmon Osborne, Beatrice Raff, Helen Sutton and Rose Havans.

THREE MORE CANDIDATES QUIT; BALLOT TO CARRY 231 OFFICE ASPIRANTS

Although three more candidates, Mrs. Anna Stumbo, Martin, democratic candidate for county judge; T. B. Akers, Republican candidate for county attorney, and W. S. Wallen, Democratic candidate for representative, have withdrawn from the primary election, 231 candidates are still in the race.

In addition to these 231 candidates, all residents of Floyd county seeking office, two names will be added to the local ballot for the state office of attorney general, making Floyd county's ballot the largest in the county's history.

The new division of the county's magisterial districts is held responsible for the large number of candidates, as the number of Magistrates and constables running for office in the county's eight districts number 159, more than half of the total ballot.

FIRE CONTROL MEET HELD AT PUTNEY KY.

Fire Wardens and CCC Officials Hold Two-Day Meet July 14, 15

The most intensive forest fire control training program ever attempted in Kentucky was started Wednesday, July 14, at the district forester's headquarters at Putney, Ky., with a two day meeting of chief fire wardens and local CCC camp superintendents.

The meeting was opened by K. G. McConnell, director division of forestry, of Frankfort, Ky., who presented a general outline of the division's objective. He said that 3.4 per cent of the area protected from fire was burned over during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1937 in the southeastern district, and that a reduction to 1.5 per cent would be attempted during the current fiscal year. The program was then devoted to instruction in all phases of forest fire control work.

Discussion was led by H. B. Newland, assistant director of forestry, Frankfort, Ky.; H. W. Berckman, district forester Putney, Ky.; Chief Fire Wardens J. L. Bennett and T. H. Hyden of Siler and Wootton respectively, and H. B. Seward, CCC telephone technician, Putney, Ky.

VOTE TOTALS 18,053 IN COUNTY; 5,113 ARE NEWLY REGISTERED

Tab Reveals Floyd Has 4,717 Republicans and 13,336 Democrats

DEMS LEAD 3 TO 1

As extra workers in County Court Clerk A. B. Meade's office finished the tabulation of newly registered voters in the county, Wednesday, figures revealed that 5,113 new voters have registered. The registration was largely Democratic, Democrats numbering almost 3 to 1 over republicans. Added to last year's total of 13,336 registered Floyd voters, the new registration just completed gives Floyd county the complete total of 18,053 persons eligible to vote.

Names of each registered voter, according to their precinct, are on file in the clerk's office. According to the records, Wayland precinct, No. 25, has the largest number of voters totaling 902. Prestonsburg Precinct No. 1 with a total of 832 is second, and Garrett Precinct No. 24 is third with 731. Prestonsburg Precinct No. 2 was preceded by nine other precincts in number of voters.

The precinct with the largest number of Democrats is Wayland, having 763. The precincts with the largest number of Republicans are Prestonsburg and John Ant each with 232. The precinct having the smallest number of Republicans is Dvale with 18. Dvale registered 165 Democrats, Tickey, Little Baint and Lee Alley are the only precincts in the county to have more Republicans than Democrats. The total number of registered Republicans in the county is 4,717. The total number of Democrats is 13,336.

The number of Democrats and Republicans eligible to vote in the county's 49 precincts follow:

Worse Teamwork Shown by Baseball Bosses Than Help

SO MANY things are being blamed upon the weather nowadays that it is a relief to consider Brooklyn's Dodgers. Since those athletes probably would continue to drop decisions even if they were performing within the shadow of the South pole, this collection of logic is dedicated to persistent customers who annually must be beset by chills while the heat is being turned on elsewhere.

Plainly, what is wrong with the Dodgers—as well as with such better favored clubs as the Red Sox and the Indians—is that even worse teamwork is displayed by the bosses than by the hired help. Until the front offices can be made to understand the necessity for co-operation as well as for sustained and intelligent planning, World series must continue to be played at the Polo grounds, at Yankee stadium, and in such other heaven-favored spots.

By this I mean that there are entirely too many straw bosses floating around in the Cleveland, Boston (American league) and Brooklyn offices. There is such an abundance of managers—both of the business and field variety—that there is no real central authority.

Instead of being Bill Terrys, Branch Rickeys or Connie Macks, these bossy gentlemen have become Jack Horners. Too many of them are too eager to poke in their thumbs and pull out the plums. Then, with that "Oh, what a great boy am I" refrain still on their lips, they duck out of the back door as soon as some one discovers that a mess has been made out of the pie. Such confusion, of course, is nothing new in this combination of sport and business that is called baseball. For instance, there are the White Sox. When the lamented Charles Comiskey was in his prime the team made money and won pennants. As he became older he slipped into a mingling of uncertainty and stubbornness that caused him to lean too heavily upon poorly equipped volunteer advisers. For years then, and after his death, the White Sox neither made money nor won pennants. Now a happy understanding between field and office is bringing success again.

There also are the Giants. For almost twenty-five years John J. McGraw was the supreme authority and the club was one of baseball's grandest successes. Then some of the players discovered that it was not impossible to go over the "Old Man's" head. The next pennant was not won until Bill Terry, who would not accept the job until granted full and unquestioned control, had become manager.

Other examples bob quickly to mind. Bucky Harris, who managed two pennant-winning teams under the overlordship of Clarke Griffith in Washington, was not a success in Boston. Marty McManus, for many reasons very popular with the fans, was separated from Red Sox managerial duties ahead of Harris. During the several seasons since he has taken over the same rap, Joe Cronin may have yearned for the peaceful days when he merely had to fight over signs and trades with his father-in-law.

Similarly, there is Cleveland. Billy Evans, the business manager, and Walter Johnson, the manager, had a pretty time there, while pennant dreams faded in the heat of their feud. Then a new business manager and a new manager drew the black spots. The quarrels have been no less entertaining and destructive. And meanwhile the Yankees, ruled by Ed Barrow, and the Tigers, directed by Mickey Cochrane, continue to cash World Series checks.

In mentioning this, though, I have no desire to be unkind to the various gentlemen who have devoted their years — at salaries considerably more handsome than the results? — to the executive end of the game. I merely am stating facts that are very well known to any one who ever has poked an inquisitive nose into a major league dugout.

That these facts always include the case of a club precariously guided by two discordant sets of directors, a bank, a business manager, a probate court, a manager, a clubhouse janitor, a pitcher and an infielder does not particularly disturb me now.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

JIM TEN EYCK Jr., younger son of Syracuse's old man of the river, is reported in line for that crew coaching job at Princeton. . . . A special act of congress provides that the Coast Guard must be available to patrol courses wherever boat races are held. . . . To celebrate his latest wrestling reunion with Jack Curly, Promoter Jack Pfeiffer has submitted to a hair cut. . . . Is it true that Dixie Howell of Rose Bowl fame is due to rejoin the Tigers any day now? They say he is burning up the Texas league.

All reports to the contrary, Bill Bonthron will not attempt another comeback. Bonnie's business is too good and his home life too happy for him to monkey with fate. His workouts are simply to ease the heart that was three times its normal size when he graduated from Princeton in 1934. From now on he'll merely be in the stands applauding while others are setting track records.

Note to the eminent editor Marcus Griffin—"Why do you keep insisting one of our present day New York boxing commissioners is copying a page out of the book of a lamented predecessor in the job? Don't you know that celebrated gentleman never put anything in writing?" . . . Add scenes I like: Mothers greeting tall bronzed Yale and Harvard sons in the Mohican lobby on the night of the annual boat race. . . . Add scenes I don't like: The way sports writers are letting baseball magnates get away with their plans for ditching that All-Star baseball game the fans like so well.

Navy football followers are out on one of the earliest yardarms, many of them already claiming the Eastern championship. Incidentally, they have something more than rumor and the customary handsome donation from congress to support them this time, too. Last fall's plebe team was one of the strongest in years, the line is heavy, replacements are powerful and Young Bill Ingram ranks with the best triple threats.

Larry Snyder, Ohio State track coach, predicts there will be several 7 foot high jumpers in a few years and also 15 foot pole vaulters. . . . Two of Snyder's high jumpers, Dave Albritton and Mel Walker, have cleared 6 feet 9 3/4 inches. . . . Purdue and Notre Dame, who divided a two year series in football a few seasons ago, will play another game at South Bend in 1939.

Bill Dinneen, in his 28th season as an American league umpire, never has missed a game. . . . Gene Sarazen plans to compete in the Japanese open golf tournament this summer. . . . Lee Grissom, the Cincinnati Reds' contribution to the National league's All-Star pitching staff, never had a baseball in his hand until seven years ago. . . . Milton Berle, the giggle gagster, is taking boxing lessons from Mushy Callahan, former junior welterweight champion. . . . Jack Johnson believes he can outbox Joe Louis right now. . . . Braddock thought so, too. . . . Hank Greenberg of the Tigers has bet $100 that Jimmy Foxx of the Red Sox will finish the season with an average of .320 or better.

Nap Lajoie, the old Cleveland second baseman, used one bat throughout his brilliant major league career. . . . It now is on exhibition at a Louisville bat factory. . . . Ace Parker, Duke university's all around athlete who has been sent to Atlanta by the Athletics, will return to school in February to receive a degree. . . . Rowing costs Harvard from $15,000 to $25,000 annually. . . . Bill McWilliams, the former De Paul athlete who began the season with Los Angeles, has replaced Dixie Howell of Alabama and Rose Bowl fame at third base for Memphis. . . . Sammy Baugh is playing semi-pro baseball at Pampa, Tex.

They say in the locker room—that Gene Sarazen still sticks to his opinion that Sammy Snead will be the greatest golfer of all time whenever the boys try to break him down. . . . That Frank Walsh, the Chicago-born pro once was given no chance to live after suffering a fractured skull when his auto wrapped itself around a pole. A few months later he was a finalist with Olin Dutra in the 1933 P. G. A. test at St. Paul. Also that Walsh's father, who brought five golfing sons into the world, never has had a golf club in his hand and will see his first movie when Parnell gets to Chicago. He was one of Parnell's followers during the Irish revolution. That Johnny Goodman, who used to be a little fellow himself, told Frank Strafaci to get plenty of sleep if he wanted to put on weight. Johnny is up to 170 now and never gets less than nine hours a night. . . . That Johnny Farrell's favorite color is green. . . . That Jimmy Hines is plenty sore because some one printed a story that he uses $50 shoes. It's true but it gives people the wrong impression, for Jimmy has had the shoes for five years and they have outlasted seven pairs of regular ones.

Earle Meadows, the sky scraping pole vaulter, confided to friends he expects to clear 15 feet 3 inches before the season is over. . . . But he'll retire after this year regardless. . . . Coach John P. Nicholson of Notre Dame will be in charge of the U. S. track team which tours England and Europe this summer.

AROUND the HOUSE

Heating the Oven.—Open the oven door for a minute soon after the gas has been lit and you will find that the oven will get hot much quicker. By doing so you let out the moisture that always collects when the oven is not in use.

Cooking Cabbage.—Cabbage should be cooked only until tender when tested with a fork. Too much cooking results in changed color and an indigestible product.

When Drawers Stick.—Black lead or black lead pencil rubbed on the edges of a drawer which has become swollen from heat will enable it to be opened and shut quite easily.

Turnips Au Gratin.—For this tasty dish half-cook turnips in boiling salted water, then cut into fairly thin slices and drain well. Arrange in layers in a buttered fireproof dish, and cover each layer of turnip with grated cheese, a seasoning of pepper, and some little dabs of butter. The last layers should consist of breadcrumbs sprinkled with grated cheese and dotted with butter. Bake in a moderate oven until well browned.

Disagreeable Odor.—The smell of new paint has a very bad effect on some people. To minimize it, fill a pail of water and sprinkle in it some hay and one or two onions, freshly sliced. Stand this in a room newly painted, and much of the smell will be neutralized.

To Clean the Piano.—Use the suction cleaner to remove dust from the inside of the piano, and clean the keys with a soft cloth moistened with methylated spirit. Polish with a chamois leather.

Browning Biscuits.—Biscuits can be given rich brown tops by brushing the tops with a pastry brush dipped in milk before placing them in the oven.

Meat Pinwheels.—Biscuit dough, left-over meat chopped with onion, carrot and parsley. Spiced tomato gravy. Make your favorite biscuit dough and roll out fairly thick. Spread the meat mixture over the surface, leaving an inch margin of dough uncovered. Then roll up dough and meat together, and slice off pinwheels. Grease a shallow pan and lay in the pinwheels. Bake in moderately hot oven until done, about 30 minutes.

MELVIN PURVIS FORMER G-MAN invites all boys and girls to become SECRET OPERATORS

Melvin Purvis, former Ace G-Man who founded the Junior G-Man Corps, has formed a new organization—Melvin Purvis Law-and-Order Patrol. Members are called Secret Operators. They have special codes, passwords, and special equipment. This story is taken from the secret files and published to prove that CRIME DOES NOT PAY.

Purvis is called in to investigate a mysterious jewel robbery at Harborview, the wealthy Tucker family estate. Purvis plans to plant two of his young Secret Operators, Laura and Jim, on the place as Mr. Tucker's niece and nephew, so they can hunt for clues without arousing suspicion.

AT THE TUCKER ESTATE
THIS WINDOW WAS FORCED, MR. PURVIS.

Sunday School Lesson

GOD PREPARES A PEOPLE

International Sunday School Lesson for July 25, 1937

Golden Text: "The Lord thy God hath chosen thee to be a people of his own possession."—Deuteronomy 7:6.

Between the lesson for this week and that of last week, one calamity after another came to Pharaoh and the Egyptians because of his refusal to listen to the pleas of Moses to let the children of Israel go, as God had commanded. The more Pharaoh resisted, the harder became his heart, just as happens to the hearts of men who resist the commands of God concerning their lives. Finally, becoming angry, Pharaoh for bids him, on pain of death, to come before him again. Moses takes him at his word, but before leaving, announces the final and most terrible curse of all—the death of the firstborn in every Egyptian family. "from the firstborn of Pharaoh that sitteth upon his throne, even unto the first born of the maid servant that is behind the mill, and all the first born of the cattle."

Realizing that God meant what he said, that he would send the curse which would persuade Pharaoh to let the children of Israel depart, Moses begins preparing them for the exodus. Following minutely the instructions given him by God, Moses summons the elders of the people. To them he gave instructions for the Feast of the Passover, the first sacrificial institution of which we have any details, the sacrifice which typifies more nearly than any other the great and perfect sacrifice made by the Lord Jesus Christ.

Without going into all the details of the instruction, we will give the most outstanding. Four days before the time set for the visitation of the Angel of Death, the Israelites were to choose a lamb "without blemish," one for each home. If the family was small then two or more families could merge and partake of the feast together. The lamb was to be slain and the blood caught in a basin. With a bunch of hyssop, this blood was to be painted on the lintel and two doorposts of each home as a sign to God that they believed in and had carried out the commands of God, having faith in his promise of deliverance. When the Angel of Death saw the blood, he was to pass over that home and spare the firstborn therein.

The lamb was to be roasted over the fire and all members of the family were to eat it, together with bitter herbs and unleavened bread. The feast was to be partaken of in haste, with all members of the family full dressed "with your loins girded, your shoes on your feet and your staff in your hand," fully prepared to depart from the land of Egypt. Everything was to be eaten, with nothing remaining until morning.

The blood of the lamb, sacrificed sprinkled on the doorposts of the homes of the Hebrews, was God's divinely provided protection against the visitation of the Angel of death, thus allowing them to be saved from the Egyptians. So, the blood of Christ believed in as God's sacrifice for our sins, forever saves us from God's judgment of sin and the wrath to come. Thus we are safe only through the blood of Christ. When we realize the implication of this, we can more fully believe that "the blood of Jesus Christ, His Son, cleanseth us from all sin."

So important was the institution of this feast in the life and history of the Hebrew people that God commanded it be made a permanent feast in order that their children's children might know and appreciate its significance. Even unto this day, in the orthodox Hebrew homes the Feast of the Passover is observed in all its details.

According as God had said, on the appointed night while the Egyptians were asleep, about midnight all the first born in the homes of the Egyptians died. The terrible-ness of this occurrence might well be imagined. Pharaoh knew that he was beaten and, in the night called for Moses and Aaron and said: "Rise up and get ye forth from among my people, both ye and the children of Israel; and go serve the Lord as ye have said." So urgent was Pharaoh's command that they be gone that he did everything he could to help them depart. They were shrouded with gifts from the Egyptians who gave them "such things as they required." So began the journey of the children of Israel from Egypt through the wilderness to the land promised them by God. Looking back with the perspective of the years, we can see the hand of God always guiding, ever present and while rebuking and punishing when necessary, always forgiving.

Honorable mention was given Royce Mayo, who was unable to attend all the sessions of the school on account of an injury sustained on the playground.

Color and liveliness of the commencement night were heightened by the singing of a group from the Brandy Keg section; and by the arrival of a hard thunder shower, not all of which stayed without the tent. Moving children raised umbrellas in the tent and songs raised above the rain were elements of the adventurous evening.

Saturday night more than 40 children participating in the vacation church school participated in a Bible drill under the direction of Mrs. Brock. Persons attending the service expressed their appreciation at the fine response of the boys and girls, who had received training from Mrs. Brock for only a week. Special song numbers, including "The Holy City," were given by Mr. and Mrs. Brock at this service also.

On the concluding night it was announced a purse of $192 had been contributed for the singers. Mr. Warren on salary from the Presbyterian board was not paid for

A continuation of the direct evangelistic appeal at the night union services through the summer months is planned by the Prestonsburg Ministerial Association. The first service is to be held at 8 o'clock Sunday night at the Missionary Baptist Church.

Muscle Shoals

In 1892 the United States geographic board decided in favor of "Muscle" Shoals. According to that authority the rapids evidently received their name from the numerous fresh-water mussels formerly living among the rocks at this point in the river. At the time this region was settled "muscle" was the usual spelling of the word which we often see written as "mussel." Etymologically they are the same word, both being derived from the Latin "musculus," meaning a little mouse.

To The Voters of Floyd County

I appeal to you to nominate and elect me to the office of County Judge of Floyd County. In making this appeal to you, I do so on my merits alone and not upon the demerits of any of my opponents. I have nothing derogatory or disrespectful to say of any of my opponents. You are fortunate in having a number of outstanding citizens from which to select your County Judge. It is my purpose to convince you that I am more worthy and better qualified than any of my opponents, and not to criticize them.

Most of you understand the important duties devolving upon your County Judge. It is an important office. The County Judge has jurisdiction over infant children and incompetent persons and their property and estate. He has the power to appoint and remove administrators and executors and to settle their accounts. It is his duty to protect and preserve their money and property. He also has power to divide their lands and to allot dower to the widow. Not only this, but he is the presiding officer of the Fiscal Court and it his duty to counsel and advise the Fiscal Court and vote in case of a tie. The roads and bridges are under his supervision. He also has jurisdiction in misdemeanor cases and may conduct examining trials, fix bonds in felony cases, and has jurisdiction in civil cases involving sums not exceeding two hundred ($200.00) dollars. These are only a few of the duties and powers of your County Judge. Therefore you understand and believe me when I say "This is an important office. A burdensome county debt in excess of eight hundred thousand ($800,000.00) dollars adds to the importance of the office. Approximately fifty thousand ($50,000.00) dollars a year is required to pay the interest on the bonded indebtedness of the county. After all this interest and necessary operating expenses of the county are paid, there is not a great amount remaining with which to pay on the debt. It is therefore very necessary that the money of the county be saved and applied wisely, which I assure you will be done if I am elected to this office. Our income in taxes is gradually decreasing and will continue to decrease, which makes it more urgent and necessary that we proceed without delay to reduce the county debt.

In order that you may know something of me and my qualification, I desire to say that I was born and raised on a farm on Abbott Creek, I am thirty three years of age. I received most of my education at Berea College. I am a graduate of the Jefferson School of Law in Louisville where I went to Law School at night and worked my way through school by working during the day. I have had five years' experience in the general practice of law. I have never asked for or held a public office.

If elected to this office, I will see that the county debt is reduced as much as possible and that county claims are not padded or illegally paid.

I am wholeheartedly in support of the improvement of our county roads, particularly the Johns Creek and Left Beaver roads, and I herewith assure you that a road which can be traveled winter and summer will be built to connect Wheelwright and Weeksburry with the Left Beaver road. And if Zack Justice does not have the connecting link completed, I will see that Floyd county does so. I have every reason to believe that Zack Justice and the Highway Commission will complete this road at an early date.

I also advocate the completion of the county roads started by the WPA and the improvement of other roads, among which are the Turkey Creek, Wilson Creek, Rock Fork and Jones Creek roads and the road from Wayland to the Knott county line and many other roads too numerous to mention.

If elected to this office, I promise strict regulation of road houses and tourist camps. I assure you that I will attend to the office and serve the public in every way possible. I am able and willing to serve you in many legal problems which may arise and will do so without cost or expense to you.

In so far as my attitude toward organized labor, I invite you to examine and inquire into my record. I fought the contest case of Mell Petry, the candidate of the United Mine Workers, and won. I have represented and assisted a number of the local Unions of the county and I invite you to inquire of the Presidents and Secretaries of your local Unions.

I appeal to you to give a YOUNG MAN a chance. My opponent, Henry Stephens, held office as clerk of the Circuit Court for twelve years. He received one-half of the same office when Oliver Stumbo was clerk, and during the past four years Mr. Stephens has been receiving a regular salary from the county as clerk to Dr. W. L. Stumbo, County Judge, making TWENTY-TWO years Mr. Stephens has been in public office. Mr. Stephens owns or lives in a $30,000.00 home, owns approximately half of the First National Bank, large oil and gas interests and a newspaper. I contend he has had more than his part of public office. I want to be fair with Mr. Stephens by saying he was a fine clerk. However, I do not believe we should keep one man in office a quarter of a century. Do not set such a precedent. Your boy or girl may aspire to and be worthy to hold public office and you want him or her to have a chance and an equal opportunity.

I ask humbly that you think seriously before casting your vote and cast it for a young, qualified man, who needs and is worthy of the office.

Respectfully Yours,

Edward P. Hill

Stress was laid on reducing the number of fires by use of proper educational methods being prepared for those fires which might occur, and proper means of fighting them. In the Big Sandy Association 2 per cent has been set as a goal for the current fiscal year as compared with a burned area for last year equal to 6.98 per cent of area under protection.

The second day of the meeting was devoted entirely to discussion of fire fighting technique and was ended with the actual suppression of two mock forest fires on the Kentonia State Forest. In suppressing the mock fires a contest was staged between the two crews which were headed by Chiefs Bennett and Hyden. The judges in this contest were CCC camp superintendents D. T. McQuaid and Ernest Evans and District Forester Berckman, who declared the contest a draw.

The entire program will include meetings of local fire wardens, lookout watchmen, smoke chasers, and patrolmen throughout the district during the next three months. The use of regular correspondence courses and examinations is planned and a monthly service bulletin will be issued from district forester's headquarters. By means of this training program, the Kentucky Division of Forestry expects to build one of the most efficient fire control organizations in the Ohio valley. Those in attendance at the meeting were: K. G. McConnell and H. B. Newland, Frankfort, Ky.; D. T. McQuaid, H. B. Seward, Leslie Cooper, Paul Cooper and W. H. Berckman of Putney, Ky.; J. L. Bennett, Siler; T. H. Hyden, Waton; W. R. Price,

TO THE VOTERS OF FLOYD COUNTY

John S. Layne of Betsy Layne, Kentucky, is seeking the nomination for County Attorney on the Republican ticket to be voted for August 7 next.

I am a great grandson of John Graham and James S. Layne who were among the earliest pioneers of Kentucky who crossed the Cumberland shortly after the noted Indian fighter—"Boone." John Graham emigrated from the Blue Mountains of the mother of states while James S. Layne hailed from the valley of James River near Jamestown, Virginia.

These two men were surveyors before Kentucky became a state and who settled the major portion of Floyd county at a time when the bear, wolf and Indians ruled the forests of old Kentucky.

The descendants of these two men are among the most prominent citizens of the Dark and Bloody Ground today. In front of the First National Bank of Prestonsburg stands a memorial of John Graham dedicated by the Daughters of the American Revolution in whose honor this association took its name—"John Graham." His children's children are still here who are to be found among the Pattons, the Stevens, the Mayos and the Har's families and by affinity many other good families of this county.

John Graham had six daughters and one son, who also was a surveyor and a fiddler. One of his beautiful girls was my own grandmother whose old house is still standing on the "Y" on the Mayo Trail near the mouth of Beaver Creek.

On the Layne side of the house are included the Meades, Boyds, Strattons, Rices and Loars.

My experience is sufficient and is as follows: Twelve years in the northwest special assistant to the Attorney General of the United States in Phoenix, Arizona. Authorized by the Supreme Court of Arizona, Montana in addition to Kentucky and Federal courts.

"They tell us that the dead rules the living." If so then we should be happy for these two men were typical models of Christian gentlemen whose spirit is still with us and may whisper in your dreams to vote for me.

My grandfather donated the site for the first courthouse Floyd county ever had. I regret to ask for this office in view of the opposition on my ticket. I waited late on the last day to register to find later two opponents who jumped out of the wilderness on the head of Prater and Beaver Creek, one of which carries a surveyor's chain and the other a small merchant on Beaver.

These two fellows come to town once or twice a year, perhaps for a hair cut and to find out whether the courthouse is still here or not.

blistering Summer Heat you need ELECTRIC REFRIGERATION

WHEN the thermometer soars in the nineties, adequate refrigeration is not only a luxury but also a necessity. Life itself depends upon the prevention of excessive bacterial and mold growth in foods for children grown-ups . . . and those long, cool drinks and lovely zen desserts are life-savers, in another sense, during torrid weather. Above 50 degrees is the Danger Zone for any cabinet in which food is stored. Electric Refrigeration assures constant coolness at that point.

"Mechanical Refrigeration" means the production of cold by a machine. With Mechanical Refrigeration, there is no substitute for Electric Power.

SYNOPSIS

Preparing to close her summer home and spend the winter in France with a great-aunt, Anne Vincent, a middle-aged widow, accedes to the pleas of her adopted daughter Rachel, twenty and pretty, that she tell about her real mother. Anne, an unselfish, understanding soul, finds the task difficult, since she feels Rachel is putting a barrier between them. Rachel learns that her real mother was beautiful eighteen-year-old Elinor Malloy, deserted by her young husband, before Rachel's birth. He was killed in the World war. In desperate financial straits, Elinor had agreed to Rachel's adoption at birth by Anne, whose own baby had died. Elinor subsequently had married Peter Cayne, a wealthy New York business man, and had a son. To soften the story for Rachel, Anne omits telling her that her mother had been callous and selfish. Rachel goes fishing with Bob Eddis, a local boy who runs a library and does wood carving. She refuses his plea to stay in Rockboro and marry him instead of going to New York.

Anne had been waiting for her anxiously, but now she relaxed. Rachel couldn't have been greatly agitated if she had gone fishing with Bob and asked him to dinner. What on earth they'd give him to eat—she hurried to the kitchen and was investigating supplies when Rachel returned, laughing.

"There's a frightful row going on over there, Mrs. Kreel and Sister Susie are raving about our letting Mr. Kreel use the radio. He ought never to have let them know it. My heavens—" she looked at Anne's rummings—"nothing but bread and potatoes and that crumb of cheese!"

"I'll bake the potatoes and toast the bread," said Anne. "There's a can of asparagus, that'll do for salad, and a can of apricots for dessert. There's enough coffee for tonight and some in the morning before we start."

Through this homely patter Anne had been listening to Rachel, watching her to discover if there had been any change, any ferment of feeling since their talk on the beach. She could detect nothing. The barrier which had been high between them before she had told Rachel what the girl demanded to know seemed to have disappeared.

Arrived before the meal was bringing cocktails in a paper bag and a package of salted nuts. "They're probably stale," he said. "They were bought for the summer folks and as you're the last to leave it's right you should have them."

Rachel had put on the yellow crepe dress she'd saved to wear the next day, she had tied a velvet ribbon about her head and pinned a knot of floppy velvet roses at the point of the plain collar. "Decorations for the party," she explained.

Bob poured the cocktails with ceremony and the cheese canapes looked smart and professional. "Renewed assurances, girl friends!" he said, lifting his glass. "And am I going to miss you!"

"You could come to New York," said Rachel.

"So you mentioned. You know, Mrs. Vincent, I've been doing my best to persuade Rachel to marry me and stay here this winter instead of leading the wild life in the great and wicked city. She won't listen to me. I wish you'd use your influence with her."

"Mother wouldn't want you for a son-in-law," declared Rachel. "Look at her struggle between her truthful feelings and her kind heart."

"That's a shameful lie. Your mother has known me a long time and thinks I'm marvelous. Don't you, Mrs. Vincent?"

"In some ways you're certainly marvelous," Anne agreed.

"But seriously—about Rachel marrying me—"

"Rachel will decide that for herself. Rachel," said Anne deliberately, "will decide everything important in her life for herself without advice from anyone. And I believe that she'll strike a pretty fair average of deciding right."

"There, you see, Bob! Mother thinks I ought to decline your flattering offer."

"She didn't say that," said Bob. "She implied it," returned Rachel. "What's more, mother isn't bothered about my living in New York with Pink and finding a job for myself. Are you, mother?" She did not wait for an answer. "And what would I do here all winter, Bob? You've got the library and your wood carving, but I'd have nothing to do except cook your meals and wait for you to come and eat them."

"I could lend you improving books from the library and teach you a little wood carving, angel. We could walk on the beach and back in the hills and go fishing and sing sometimes and talk and on very stormy days sit by the fire and spin."

"The excitement would be too much for me," said Rachel. Then, as if taking some secret resolution from her spirit and declaring it openly to define and clinch it for her own satisfaction, she added with emphasis: "I've got something I must do this winter, something of my very own."

CHAPTER III

In the night Anne had reasoned sharply with herself to get away from self-pity, to accept, as she had always accepted, the hard limiting things that happened to her, and go on calmly. Both she and Rachel were up too early and were restless with this extra time and nothing to do. Bob was to come for their baggage and take it to the station and they would talk. The bare house got on Anne's nerves. "Let's take our coffee out on the terrace and watch the sea," she said, "it's a divine day."

Mr. Kreel appeared as soon as they did, anxious and eager. "You haven't changed your intention about the radio, have you?" he asked.

Rachel gave him the house key for answer.

"Mis' Vincent, I hate to keep on applying for favors, but could I look through your trash and see if there's any empty cereal or cracker boxes? I could mail the tops in with my letters, in the contests. She—" he nodded toward his own house—"she gets upset if I buy anything special for that puppus."

"You can look through everything and welcome," Anne assured him.

"Listen, Mr. Kreel," added Rachel, "here's an idea. You speak to Bob Eddis, he's going to be here all winter and if there's any special cereal or cracker you want I'm certain he'd buy it and eat it and give you the box."

"That is an idea, Miss Rachel! No waste, no cost, no argument in the house. Is there so'thing I could do for you to help out this morning?"

Both were glad when they left him.

Both Were Glad When They Left Him.

No? Well, I wish you both a safe trip and an early return next year, and I'll look after everything here for you. I'll miss you sore."

They shook hands with the gentle little man and he scurried away.

By the time Bob's car rattled up they were both ready, the bags on the terrace, the house locked and the extra key for Ada hung behind the nearest shutter.

Bob's thin face was drawn tight and his eyes were tired, unhappy, but Rachel said nothing about it, nor did Anne, either to him or later as they walked down to the station. The stores were just opening, the housewives had not yet begun to sweep their walks. The streets were empty, cool, waiting yet content, the early sunshine was white gold through which the long shadows of morning made a frail and shifting pattern. "It's like walking on a stage set," said Rachel. "How people do spoil this town!"

"But you don't want to stay here when most of the people are gone?"

"Not as Mrs. Bob Eddis. Not a chance."

"I hope you'll have a good time with Pink this winter and I do hope you'll find a job you really like, not a mere something to do in the daytime."

"I'll find something," said Rachel. The train was waiting and Bob had piled their baggage just inside the door of the one passenger car. "I've decided to go as far as the Junction with you," he said, and all the way there he talked about nothing with defiant cheerfulness annoying to Rachel, pathetic to Anne, but both were glad when they left him and settled into the express train's swift impersonal comfort. "If there's anything I hate it's being sent off," said Rachel crossly. "Come on, let's dash into the diner and get some food."

"And let's go into the silence while we're eating," added Anne. Not talking at breakfast was a custom Anne and Harry Vincent had adopted early in their married life and found that it gave the day a good start toward civilization. It was of Harry Vincent that Anne thought as she sat across from Rachel, noticing how handsome the tall brown girl looked in her yellow frock and how the other passengers watched her with interest and speculation. What would Harry have thought of her? Anne wondered, as she had wondered so many times before. The clack of the wheels made a monotonous rhythm of release to Anne's memory. She could never get done missing Harry, she was his widow now as much as on the day he had died so suddenly, so quickly she couldn't believe it. "A bad heart and he knew it," Dr. Ayres had said. That was why all his affairs were in such good order. There was no muss or muddle over his will and his property, though he hadn't so very much to leave. But he had guarded Anne and Rachel with a trust fund and since his death it had increased and given a good income; even during the lean years since '29 it had not diminished, for the trustee was a canny and foreseeing man with a passion for finance and his ability was reinforced by a considerable but unanswered tenderness for Anne herself. Anne knew perfectly that two amiable smiles would have had Hobart Grable proposing to her, so her dealings with him were curt and on business alone, except for an occasional concert with him. He was not only a good financier, but someone with whom music could be enjoyed.

The first year after Harry Vincent's death was a blank in Anne's recollection, she knew that she must have gone through the ordinary motions of living, but all she could remember of it was bleak desolation and a strange anger against all who could live on when he could not. But that had passed, she had forced herself into normal ways, the care of Rachel had helped. Presently the child was the reason, the validity of her will to live. There was enough money for a small apartment and a maid for the winters, the house in Rockboro in the summers. Rachel had gone to a private school and to special classes at Columbia, but obviously she was no scholar and to force her through the college mill seemed a pointless task to Anne.

With Rachel at twenty Anne had come to an impasse. The girl lived with her too contentedly, saw too few young people, passed on her decisions and her plans to Anne to make and only now and then took a stand of her own. Anne didn't want to depend on Rachel any more than she wanted Rachel to depend on her, and she was afraid that her love for her daughter might betray her. Not only her love, but the constant joy of Rachel's presence, the pleasure of having her by her side and in looking out for her, these might, she felt, so easily warp and limit Rachel, make her less of a woman, less of a person than she had a right to be.

Then that querulous difficult dowager, her Great-aunt Helende Besnard (born Helen Williams of Albany) had summoned Anne to her side, not because of affection or need, but because her sole aim of living now was to make people do what they didn't want to do. She had tried before to get Anne to stay with her and refusal had sharpened her demand. This new summons had provided Anne with a logical excuse to leave Rachel on her own, make her rub up against the world, give her companions of her own age.

Anne came out of the silence. "Will you stay at the hotel with me until I sail, or go right down to Pink?" she asked, hoping with all her heart for these last few days with Rachel.

"I'd better stay with you and watch your shopping, you'll buy nothing but old lady clothes unless I watch you. I want you simply to put Madame Helende's eye out when you get there. I'll phone to Pink that I'm on my way."

Anne opened her lips to say, "Best take your bags to Pink's so they don't have to be moved twice," but she changed it to "Very well," remembering that Rachel must now make her own decisions, however small. She added gratefully, "It'll be a big help to have you with me."

"That's a joke, you know Grable does everything. All you need is a couple of frocks and a visa on your passport. Poor old Grable, what'll he do with his Philharmonic tickets this year?"

"You might go with him."

Rachel laughed. "And have him tell me all about Brahms? That would be a thrill! All the same I mean to cultivate Grable a little, he might find me a job just for your sake."

With hesitation, because she had so determinedly kept her hands off this most important matter, Anne asked, "Rachel, are you any nearer knowing what kind of a job you'll look for?"

"No, not a bit. Pink will probably think up something and force me into it. And I'll hate it."

"I thought—from what you said to Bob last night—that you had something definite in mind."

Rachel replied with ostentatious carelessness: "Oh, that—that was—on the side."

Anne decided to make a joke of it. "You and your secrets!" she said, smiling. "All right—keep out of jail, that's all I ask." And she would not notice that Rachel's smile was a little forced and anxious.

"Would you like to ask Pink to dinner tonight if she hasn't a date?" she went on.

Yes, Rachel would like that. And for the rest of the trip if they talked at all it was of nothing with special meaning.

Pink, it appeared, could come to dinner and at seven; before they were ready, she came bounding into Rachel's room at the hotel without a sign of her day's work about her.

Pink was small and thin as a toothpick, her nose turned up, her skin was pleasantly freckled, her hair shoe-polish black. She hailed from Baltimore and was unlike the Southern belle of song and story in every possible way. She did not even have a Southern accent and she was 100 per cent unromantic. Her brain was keen and violent, she spoke her opinions instantly and acted on them as soon as made, and she was quick to be kind and tolerant and also to be sharp and hard, but she couldn't cherish a grudge no matter how she tried.

Anne heard her speaking to Rachel and in another moment Pink tapped at her door, popped inside, hugged and kissed her and said how grand it was to see her, all in one motion.

"You're coming to dinner with us," Rachel called in, "and we're going somewhere swank. I'll get enough cheap Italian dumps this winter and don't I know it."

"I'm not dressed for a swell place and we haven't any man. Or have we?"

"No, we haven't," said Anne, "but I don't think it matters, it's early and you have me for chaperon."

The talk went on after they had reached the roof garden which Rachel selected as their dining place. Anne listened, amused, as the two girls chattered.

"I tell you," said Pink, "this is the women's day and the men's depression. It's the women who've scrambled around and found some sort of jobs when the men couldn't find any. My part-time maid tells me that practically every woman she knows is supporting a husband or a brother or a father. And coming into the white-collar class it's the women who've kept the home fires burning, they've made new jobs when they couldn't find old ones. Two big women's clubs have built and furnished clubhouses, though building is practically dead, and they've financed them soundly, too. Ladies, someone said the other day, have found out they can work. So here's the town, Rachel, you can take your pick."

For Discriminating People

NOW is the time for all smart women to come to the aid of their wardrobes. Sew-Your-Own wants to lend a hand, Milady; hence today's trio of mid-summer pace makers.

At The Left.

A trim little reminder that careful grooming is an asset anywhere, anytime, is this frock. It features simplicity. Its forte is comfort. Make one version in cotton for all purpose wear, another of sports silk for dressy occasions. You'll praise the cool cut of its short sleeves and softly rolled collar. Yes, Milady, you'll enjoy making it.

In The Center.

Here you have a light and breezy ensemble that's the perfect attire for Society. It has cosmopolitan dash, refinement, and engaging charm. Once more you'll be the subject of complimentary tea table talk with your delightfully slender silhouette. Make it of sheer chiffon or more durable acetate. You'll have a hit in either.

At The Right.

The little lady who likes unusual touches in her frocks will go for this new dress and pantie set. It has the chic of mommy's dresses plus a little-girl daintiness that is more than fetching. Wrap around styling makes it easy for even the tiniest girl to get into and it's quite a time saver on ironing day.

A splendid idea is to cut this pattern twice and be assured of little sister's all summer chic.

The Patterns.

Pattern 1237 is designed for sizes 34 to 46. Size 36 requires 4½ yards of 35 inch material plus ½ yard contrasting for collar.

Pattern 1333 is designed for sizes 36 to 52. Size 38 requires 7½ yards of 39 inch material. The dress alone requires 4¾ yards. To line the jacket requires 2¼ yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1322 is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8, 10, and 12 years. Size 6 requires 3¼ yards of 35 inch material plus 5½ yards of ribbon for trimming as pictured.

U. S. Postal Camels

In 1854, to make transportation of mails across the West easier for this country a "Camel" the Post Office department purchased a number of camels in Egypt and Asia Minor for $30,000. The stony surfaces on the deserts of Arizona and California injured the soft pads on the feet of the camels. An unsuccessful attempt was made to provide the camels with specially devised leather boots. The idea was finally abandoned.

Copy of St. Peter's Dome Allowed by Mistake; University Claims Duplicate

The story of how the only copy in the world of Michelangelo's famous model of the dome which he designed for St. Peter's Cathedral in Rome was permitted to be constructed has been revealed for the first time by authorities of the University of Cincinnati, says a Cincinnati United Press correspondent.

The university has had possession of the little-known copy for ten years. It was made, it was disclosed, by a student named Victor L. S. Hafner while he was studying under a fellowship at the American Academy in Rome in 1921. His idea was to make a comparative study of Michelangelo's model, then on the balcony of St. Peter's, and the actual dome itself as a thesis problem.

He first sought permission to make the copy from the cardinal in charge of Vatican properties but learned he was out of the city. The cardinal's substitute, however, granted the request so Hafner started his work. His copy was well under way when the cardinal returned and learned of the action of his substitute, who was unaware of the centuries-old rule of the Vatican that the model could never be reproduced.

The cardinal decided to permit the work to continue only on condition that no reproduction of the copy could be made. The university obtained the copy several years later and agreed to these terms.

History records that Michelangelo was appointed architect in chief of the Cathedral of St. Peter about 1547. During the next ten years he constructed a large wooden model of the dome so that in event of his death the work could be carried out. The model was twenty feet high and twelve and one-half feet in diameter.

GAS COMPANY MAY SELL ITS HOLDINGS

Considerable Acreage Held Under Lease May Be Sold

Hueysville, Ky., July 20.—Everett Patton, superintendent of the Eastern Gas Company's holdings in this section, said this week that the Portsmouth, O., firm is on the verge of selling out to another concern.

The Portsmouth company has a number of excellent wells on Salt Lick and Branch Creek, near here, and all of them are heavy producers. Though its territory is limited, the firm has considerable territory under lease which has not yet been drilled and it is hoped by many that the new firm, when and if the deal goes through, will develop the additional acreage.

Officials of the Central Elk Horn Coal Company's mine at West Garrett, near here, as well as the miners are fast developing a fear of hickory timber. Several of the hickory mine posts used recently have shown a tendency to fly out of their positions between mine roof and floor when the weight of the mountain settled upon them and one of them recently flew out and severely injured a miner working near it. Timbers made from other varieties of trees do not have this "rubber" quality. Ashland Daily Independent.

DRUMMERS, BUGLERS START PRACTICING; J. HENSLEY DIRECTS

With John Hensley in charge, daily practice sessions for the American Legion (junior) Squadron No. 1, drum and bugle corps began Tuesday. Mr. Hensley will be assisted in instructing the boys by Carl Corbin. Daily practice sessions will be held at 8:30 a. m. in the high school building.

According to the demonstration given Tuesday morning when the new drums and bugles were distributed to the youngsters, the junior squadron will be well satisfied with its project. Several of the boys announced that they wished to own their own instruments.

American Legionnaire sponsors of the squadron said that membership of 30 is desired for the corps and that additional instruments will be purchased when needed. A baton, a drum major will complete the roster. It is expected that uniforms will be purchased for the ensemble.

The Roman Toga
The Roman toga, the national garment of the Romans, was originally worn by both men and women. It was a piece of woolen cloth in the form of a segment of a circle. The chord of the arc—the straight edge—was about three times the height of the wearer, and the height a little less than one-half of this length. One end of the garment was thrown over the left shoulder and allowed to hang down in front; the remainder was drawn round the body in various ways.

Largest Band of Criminals
The largest band of criminals in the history of the United States was "Murel's Gang," consisting of more than a thousand horse and slave thieves, forgers and highwaymen who terrorized the South for several years in the early part of the Nineteenth century. When captured, states a writer in Collier's Weekly, the men who directed and protected the gang had grown so bold that they were about to attempt the seizure of New Orleans.

TO THE VOTERS OF FLOYD COUNTY:

I take this means of announcing to you that I have decided to withdraw from the race for the Democratic nomination for Representative. I wish to thank my many friends throughout the county for their encouragement and support so far; my chief reason for this move is that my financial condition is such that I could not make a campaign.

You still have a good field out of which to pick a winner. My long years of experience down at Frankfort however, convinces me that you ought to pick a Representative who is not only able and honest but one who has had experience in business and politics. With all due respect to the other candidates, I feel that W. G. (Bill) Biggers by reason of his long years in business and politics and especially his long years spent in Frankfort where he has formed a wide acquaintance with many public men, make him eminently fitted to make you an able Representative.

Respectfully,
W. S. WALLEN

TO THE DEMOCRATIC VOTERS OF FLOYD COUNTY

I hereby respectfully submit the following as the reasons why you should vote for and nominate me as the Democratic candidate for Representative from Floyd county at the August primary.

LABOR

I am a charter member of the Garrett Local Union No. 5902. I was practically raised in a coal mine. My many brothers and relatives are all miners. I was born on Beaver Creek in the mining section. For a period of 20 years I have taken an active part in all labor movements in behalf of the laboring man. If nominated and elected I intend to use every effort in attempting to amend the Workmen's Compensation Law to the end that it will really "compensate" the injured workman. Our Kentucky Workmen's Compensation law is one of the worst in any of the states of the union, and should be modeled after those of some of the more progressive states. I shall vote for and fight for every law intended for the betterment of labor in Kentucky and will be guided by the intelligent leadership of such men as Sam Caddy, Wm. Turnblazer, and our great leader John L. Lewis and I will "NOT BE" dictated to by a little group of selfish politicians at Frankfort as some of our Representatives have done.

If you nominate and elect me you may rest assured that you will have a one hundred percent "LABOR" Representative at Frankfort. I will not swallow the self-prepared and self-serving program prepared by Happy Chandler or any other politician as our Representative and my opponent, Mel Petry, did at the last session of the Legislature.

EDUCATION

I favor and will vote for a law electing County Superintendents by direct vote of the people and not by a few politicians. I will also vote for and expect to fight for a law that will "compel" the County Board of Education to employ the teacher recommended by the local school trustee and this will apply not only to the rural schools but to the consolidated schools. I am a Jeffersonian Democrat to the effect that I believe that the "people" are entitled to a voice in their school affairs, and that their chosen school trustees should have a voice in the selection of school teachers. We need "fewer" school supervisors, and more and better school teachers.

GOOD ROADS

It is common knowledge that our mountain roads have all these years been neglected. Although the state's money is being spent in large sums on the rural roads in other parts of Kentucky, very little, if any, is being spent in our mountain counties. I expect to introduce and fight for a law placing the road from the forks of Middle Creek up the left fork of Middle Creek and down Brush Creek connecting with the Beaver highway at the mouth of Brush Creek on the State Rural Highway program. Likewise the road from the mouth of Mud Creek up Mud Creek across the mountain and down Clear Creek to the Left Beaver highway should be placed on the State Rural Highway plan; also the Johns Creek road should be completed at the earliest possible date. I will also use my every effort in cooperation with our WPA authorities to the end that more money will be made available for the immediate construction and completion of the many rural projects already begun and many others to follow. I will use my every effort in bringing this much needed highway aid to Floyd county.

The above are a few of the many things which I have in mind in behalf of our people and for which I expect to fight if you send me to Frankfort as your Representative. My opponent, Mel Petry, has made his record. I invite you to investigate it and see whether or not it has been in the interest of the laboring man, the farmers and the school children of Floyd county. I submit that it has not. If you believe that I will stand for your interest and work in your behalf as your Representative, I respectfully request your support.
