JOHNSON IS JAILED FOR THE KILLING OF FRANK Y. ROBINSON

Shooting Followed An Argument Over Chickens

ROBINSON WAS NEIGHBOR

Pistol shot wounds caused the death of Frank Y. Robinson, 41, a coal miner for the Inland Steel Company at Wheelwright, Sunday. Robinson was shot by Levi Johnson, 23, his neighbor in the mining camp, following an argument over Johnson's chickens which had been running loose in Robinson's garden. Johnson, after the shooting, surrendered to a constable at Wheelwright. He is now lodged in jail here charged with murder. In jail with him is Joe Ward, Johnson's companion at the time of the shooting.

When interviewed in the county jail here, Johnson said that he was in the shooting he left his home on the left side of Wheelwright to go to the mining camp after a doctor for Joe Ward. When Johnson returned to his home he found that his chickens had gotten loose in the Robinson garden. Johnson went after them. Robinson came out of his house situated near the garden. In his hand was a shotgun.

"Don't kill the chickens; I'll take care of them," Johnson claims he said. Johnson then proceeded to gather up his chickens. After they were rounded up, Johnson claims Robinson threw the shotgun on him and threatened to take his life. Johnson then obtained a permit for Robinson. Johnson states that after Robinson was arrested and then released on a filled bond, he (Robinson) fenced off the driveway leading out of the property rented by Johnson.

In company with Joe Ward, Johnson, says that he drove down the driveway in an automobile starting to Wheelwright Junction. They came to the blockade erected by Robinson. Robinson's shotgun was lying on the ground nearby.

After being asked to remove the posts, Johnson says that Robinson refused. Johnson then admits that he picked up a rock. He then stated that Robinson picked up the shotgun and aimed it at him. Before Robinson could fire however, Johnson says that he began firing his pistol. Five shots entered Robinson's body. Before Robinson died in the Methodist hospital at Pikeville, to which he was taken, Johnson was lodged in jail.

12 TEACHERS ARE NAMED BY BOARD FOR HIGH SCHOOL

At its regular meeting Saturday, the Floyd County Board of Education approved the following teachers, recommended by the City Board of Education, for position in the Prestonsburg high school during coming school year:

Claybourne Stephens, principal; Mrs. Kathryn S. Frazier, Mrs. Jane R. Combs, Alice Harris, Minnie G. Harrie, Mrs. Mae K. Roberts, Gerald Leslie, Layton Allen, Mrs. Mary A. Ford, Virginia Murrill, David May, and Naomi Goble. William Messer, principal of the Prestonsburg graded school, will serve as the high school's athletic coach.

Floyd Countians Graduate

Lillian Opal May, of Maytown, and David B. Leslie, Jr. of Emma, were graduated at Morehead State Teachers College June 3. Governor A. B. Brandler delivered the commencement address at the graduation exercises. Following his address, President Cobb conferred degrees to 30 graduates.

PRESBYTERIANS MAY BE CROWNED CHAMPS OF CHURCH LEAGUE

Presbyterians and Baptists met Friday at 4 o'clock at the grade school grounds in a seven-inning encounter that may determine the winner of the first half of the Prestonsburg Sunday Church School league. By winning their first game this week against the Methodists, the Presbyterians are in a favorable position, and by capping Friday's game will be first half champions.

Should the Baptists win however, the league will be tied up all over again, as was the case at the end of the season last week when each team had won six and lost six. A week's extension of schedule was provided in an effort to unknit the triple tie.

Monday, behind good outfield catching which deprived the Methodists of long hits, the Presbyterians though out-hit, beat the Methodist team, 7 to 5. Wednesday the Methodists piled up a big score to tick the Baptists, 18 to 8.

JUDGE JNO. CAUDILL SAYS INVOCATION AT LODGE ASSEMBLAGE

Odd Fellows Hold Homecoming At Lexington

Judge John W. Caudill of Prestonsburg attended the annual Odd Fellow's and Rebekah's homecoming and memorial services at the Odd Fellow's Children's home in Lexington June 6, and pronounced the invocation.

Other speakers were, former governor Flem D. Sampson, past grandmaster of the lodge, who read the international Sunday school lesson; Judge Charles T. Conn of Lexington who delivered the principal address; W. H. Jones of Lexington; and Frank G. Trimble of Lexington, who was master of ceremonies.

Other speakers gave talks during the afternoon session, which was held following an old-fashioned basket dinner on the grounds of the Children's home. Odd Fellows made an inspection of the Home, and a Louisville lodge gave uniforms to the boys' band.

In the afternoon session, the grand lodge officials of the Odd Fellows were introduced, as were the Rebekah assembly officers. J. R. Haley of Lexington introduced former children of the home. In conclusion, names of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs who have died were read to the assemblage.

"BOOK OF MEMORIES" TO BE DEDICATED

On the occasion of the observance of the twentieth anniversary of the cornerstone of the Methodist Church on June 27, a very important part of the service will center around the dedication of "Our Golden Book of Memories." This book which is a work of art in itself will contain pages for our beloved dead, giving date of birth and death together with a 20 word tribute, to be inscribed by friends and relatives, and given as a memorial.

This book will insure a permanent record to be preserved for future generations and most likely will be filled now with names of people who are almost forgotten by all but a few. It is not limited to members of the Methodist Church and any one desiring to secure a page in this book may do so. Each year on Memorial Day the names of those who have died during the year

SUTTON IS ELECTED LEGION COMMANDER

Marvin Marshall, Former Commander, Leaves Good Record

Replacing Marvin Marshall as commander of the Floyd Post 129 of the American Legion, Ed Sutton of Maytown, was elected unanimously by approximately 35 members of the Legion gathered at the courthouse Saturday night, for the purpose of electing officers to serve throughout the coming year.

Sutton who replaces Marshall, saw active service in the infantry overseas. As a charter member of the Legion, Sutton has always been active in getting his quota of membership from Maytown. Previous to his election, he had been serving as the Legion's vice-commander. Marshall, now past-commander, leaves behind him the record of having succeeded in obtaining a full quota of membership.

The Legion elected Clyde Burchett, first vice-commander; W. L. Stephens as second vice-commander, and retained W. G. Africa as adjutant. F. C. Hall was named assistant adjutant; Warren Hall was elected finance officer, Joe Hobson as service officer, J. B. Clarke as chaplain, Jay Salyers as sergeant-at-arms, and Lon S. Moles as historian and Commander of the Son's Legion.

A committee of W. S. Wallen, chairman; W. G. Africa, Joe P. Tackett, and Joe Hobson were appointed to get names of soldiers deceased during the year so that they might be appropriately honored.

MISS ALLEN PLANS PLEASANT TOUR

Lang'ey, Ky.—Miss Harriet Allen, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Allen, of Lang'ey, will spend the summer touring the southern states and Mexico. She left Wednesday for Lexington where she will join other tour members of the Travel College. The itinerary includes points of interest in Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, the Gulf States, and several weeks spent in Mexico, with a week's detail tour of Mexico City. The return route is by way of the Gulf Coast. Although other Floyd countians have availed themselves of this pleasant medium of acquiring college credits, Miss Allen is the first local student to take advantage of this opportunity.

Road That Marred 'My Day' Is Theme of Proposed Meet

Following her recent visit to West Liberty and Eastern Kentucky, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, in her syndicated column, "My Day," which appears in newspapers all over the nation, told how a stretch of loose gravel and oily road delayed her and put her party behind schedule. Although Mrs. Roosevelt did not identify the road, Eastern Kentuckians know it to be the "missing link" in the Mayo Trail between Louisa and Paintsville.

With the avowed purpose of getting this stretch of "missing link" surfaced, it was decided by the Ashland Men's Business club, shortly following Mrs. Roosevelt's appearance there, to hold a Good Roads meeting in Ashland in the near future. Large delegations from Prestonsburg and all sections of the Big Sandy are to be invited.

The suggestion for a Good Roads meeting was presented by Dr. C. H. Parsons, member of the Ashland club. According to him, there will be an all-day meeting in Ashland. The plan provided that Governor A. B.

FUNERAL RITES FOR PRATER PERFORMED

Burial Made at Offutt After Funeral Services at Wayland

Funeral services for Herschel Prater, 26, who died from injuries suffered by a coal-cutting machine last week at Wayland, were held in the Regular Baptist church of Wayland at 10 a. m. Monday morning with the Rev. E. Kelly officiating.

Prater's leg was smashed and torn when it was caught in the track as he attempted to throw a switch for the coal-cutting machine on which he worked. The machine crushed his leg before it could be stopped. Prater was taken to the Paintsville hospital where death occurred Sunday morning at 2:10 a. m.

After the funeral services at Wayland the body was taken to Offutt, Ky., where he formerly lived for burial. The Odd Fellows lodge off Offutt, assisted by the G. D. Ryan Funeral Home of Martin, this county, took charge. Prater is survived by his widow, Mrs. Herschel Prater, and two children; and by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Prater, of Millstone, Ky.

CHILDREN'S DAY TO BE OBSERVED SUNDAY

Children's Day is to be observed at the Sunday church school hour at the Prestonsburg Presbyterian Church Sunday. All boys and girls of the Sunday School and children not attending services elsewhere are invited, and adults are also urged to be present.

Use will be made of a program, "Friends of Jesus," sent out by the Board of National Missions of the church, and there will be special music by the junior choir under the direction of Mrs. J. D. Thomas. A special offering is to be given for the work of Sunday School missionaries.

Work of the church in this division includes Sunday Schools in 3200 communities where there are no churches; and the holding last summer of 1800 vacation Bible schools, with 100,000 boys and girls attending. Presbyterians of the community are invited by their gifts to share in this great work.

DOCTOR PLANS TO BUY OXYGEN INHALATOR FOR USE OF CITIZENS

Dr. M. D. Flanary of Pikeville was so impressed by the efficiency of the oxygen inhalator used to save Carter Amburgy, 18-year-old Pikeville high school senior, from drowning, that he is contemplating the purchase of one for the free use of townspeople.

A. D. Sisk, safety director of the Big Sandy Elkhorn Coal Operators' Association, who rushed the inhalator to the scene of the accident, pointed out that if several of these machines were located in strategic points about the country, deaths from drowning would be lessened.

SONG FESTIVAL TO BE GIVEN AT CHURCH

A Festival of Religious Folk Music will be given at the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church, June 23, at 8 p. m. Mrs. Edith Fitzpatrick James, supervisor of WPA recreation, will direct the program in which many Floyd countians will take part.

SCHOOL BUILDING AT WHEELWRIGHT IS TO BE BUILT BY OCT. 5

Low Bid Of $41,000 Is Accepted By County

Wheelwright Junction's new school building will be built by Lane, Hale, and Williams, Floyd county contractors, whose bid of $41,000 was the lowest opened by the County Board of Education at its regular meeting Saturday. Bids ranged from $41,000 to $53,000.

The Inland Steel Company, among other donations, gave to the county the school site of two acres, and promised to supply the new school as well as the old, with gas, water, and lights, for a long period of years.

Construction on the new building will begin immediately and will be completed for school use by October 5, Town Hall, county superintendent said. The schoolhouse will be almost a duplicate of the one at Maytown, except lighting facilities will be improved and a much larger study hall will be provided. The building will be of two stories and contain 12 rooms.

Service of the whole head of Left Beaver creek by this one school, will enable students from Jack's creek, Riley's branch, Buckingham, Burton, Melvin, Weeksbury, and Wheelwright to attend. An enrollment of 350 is expected during the next school term.

The old high school building at Wheelwright will be used as a grades school building after the one at Wheelwright Junction is completed, Mr. Hall stated. He added that, plans are now being made for the construction of a new graded school building at Weeksbury, for which, contracts will be let in the near future.

Hale Receives Degree

Arthur Hale, son of Mrs. Daisy Hale of Prestonsburg, received his A. B. degree from Berea College at commencement exercises on June 7. His major fields of study are in biology and English.

After graduating from Prestonsburg graded school, Hale entered Berea Academy and upon completion of work there entered the college in 1933. His extra-curricular activities while in college include Phi Alpha society, Young Men's Christian Association, track, speedball, and basketball.

TWO YOUTHS KILLED BY SPEEDING SEDAN NEAR BETSY LAYNE

James Walters, 21, And Sam Bellamy, 18, Are Dead

ANOTHER IN HOSPITAL

Battering its way along a cliffside, the automobile in which they were traveling, brought death to James Walters, 21, and Sam Bellamy, 18, when it smashed into a projecting rock and was hurled to the opposite side of the road near Betsy Layne early Sunday morning. Winice Walters, the brother of James, is lying critically injured in the Stumbo hospital at Lackey.

Tom Collinsworth, Prestonsburg taxi driver, was the first person to stop at the scene of the accident. He says that he saw a body on the edge of the concrete this side of Mare Creek about 12:30 a. m. Sunday. Collinsworth and his passengers stopped.

Beyond the body was a battered '37 model Plymouth sedan. All its doors were tightly shut, but the windshield was shattered through which, James Walters, who was lying on the ground, was thrown.

Collinsworth states that he opened one of the front doors and removed Sam Bellamy to the ground, placing him on one of the car cushions. Bellamy, who never regained consciousness, was placed in a truck and rushed to the Stumbo hospital, where he later died. James Walters was dead when found. His brother, Winice, was also removed to the Stumbo hospital, where he now is.

Collinsworth states that this side of Mare Creek, the car in which the youths were traveling, plunged into the ditch, careening about the cliffside. After traveling 50 feet in the ditch the car smashed a rock, was turned over, and rolled to the opposite side of the road.

According to Collinsworth the impact of the crash was tremendous. Walters, who was found on the roadside, was slammed through the car's windshield as no doors were open. In Walters' hand was the gearshift knob of the car torn off from the gearshift itself. Reports state that the car's speedometer was registering 90 miles per hour when smashed.

Funeral services for Walters were held at 2 p. m. Monday at Drift, with the Rev. Will Fraley, and the Rev. Kelly officiating. Burial was made under the direction of the Ryan Funeral home of Martin.

W. P. A. STREET PAVING AT ALLEN IN CHARGE OF BRADLEY WALTERS

Citizens of Allen report the WPA $15,000 project for street paving there, now under way. In addition to paving the Allen streets of Main, Railroad, Beaver, Bridge, and Oak, sidewalks are to be paved.

Work has been proceeding on this project more than two weeks under Supervisor Bradley Walters of Allen. The pouring of concrete is expected to begin by June 18. It is estimated that a crew of approximately 100 men will be hired before the completion of the project, three months hence.

CASTLE MUST SERVE TERM FOR SLAYING

The service of 21 years in the state penitentiary given Irvin Castle in Knott circuit court for voluntary manslaughter, was upheld this week by the Court of Appeals at Frankfort. Castle shot and killed Cash R. Triplett in the Stumbo Memorial hospital at Lackey, just over the Floyd county line in Knott county in November.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Deporting Alien Criminals.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.— Wouldn't it be lovely if the other states, not to mention the federal government, followed the example set by the governor of New York?

He commutes the sentences of foreign-born, long-term convicts so they may be eligible for parole—not mind you, to go free and sin some more, but to be turned over to the port authorities for immediate deportation.

Irvin S. Cobb.

That is, it would be a lovely idea if only we could be sure that these same criminals wouldn't come slipping back in again. The present immigration law was devised as a barrier to protect decent citizens, both native and naturalized, against the human scum of the old world, but it appears to be more like a sieve if we may judge by theordes of nondesirable aliens who somehow manage to get in and stay in and even go on relief, some of them.

In other words, when we give these unpleasant parties a complimentary ride back where they come from, let's make sure it's not going to be a round trip.

Missionaries From China.

FROM Peiping a group of believers in the doctrine of Confucius are sending missionaries to the United States. We've been sending out missionaries to their country for centuries, but that Chinamen should dare to try the same thing on us—well, that's a white horse of a yellow color.

What if, not content with seeking converts, these interlopers inculcated among us certain phases of their heathenish philosophy, such as teaching young people consideration and respect for their elders; and showing that rushing about in a frenzy does not necessarily indicate business energy; and that the natural aim of man is not always to worship speed and—up to thirty-odd thousands a year—to die by it; and that intolerance as between religious creeds isn't invariably proof of true piety; and that minding one's own affairs is really quite an admirable trait?

Why, native Americans wouldn't be able to recognize the old home-place any more!

Such threats against a superior civilization are not to be borne.

Vanished Americans.

IT'S exciting to prow among the ruined cities of the first Americans, who scattered into the twilight of antiquity when the Christian era was still young. They were our oldest families, older than even old Southern families—and who ever heard of a new Southern family or even just a middle-aged Southern family?

But afterwards, it's confusing to read the theories of the expert researchers who have passed judgment on those vanished cliff-dwelling peoples, because few such learned gentlemen agree on any single point. There is one very eminent authority who invariably insists that all the rest of the eminent authorities are absolutely wrong about everything. He is the Mr. Justice McReynolds of the archeologists.

After reading some of the conflicting literature on this subject, I've decided that a true scientist is one who is positive there are no other true scientists.

Unemployment Statistics.

THANKS to bright young bureaucrats in Washington, we know how many goldfish are hatched every year and what the gross annual yield of guinea pigs is, and the exact proportion of albinos born in any given period, but it never seemed to occur to anybody to compile reasonably accurate statistics on unemployment.

Yet, with depression behind us and business up to boom-time levels, it's estimated that between eight and nine million people are out of work, not counting those on strike, and judging by the papers there must be a couple of million of them. Apparently the more prosperous we grow on the surface, the more deplorable becomes the status of those off the payroll. It doesn't make sense. Or anyhow there was a time when it wouldn't have made sense.

This curious situation puts a fellow in mind of the old old story of the chap whose wife had an operation, and, every day when he called at the hospital, he was told the patient showed improvement. One morning, as he came away, weeping, he met a friend.

"How's the wife?" inquired the latter.

"She's dead."

"I'm so sorry," said the friend. "What did she die of?"

"Improvements," said the widow.

Sports Nicknames Really a Subject for Deep Scholar

EVERY now and then when one of the more erudite writing masters runs short of rhetorical pearls he glances at the poor folks on the other side of the newspaper railroad tracks. Then he lifts his hands in horror and, when he brings them down on a typewriter, another little gem of a column dealing with sports nicknames is completed.

It is a good racket with soft hours and probably I will be labelled as a green-eyed popinjay for bringing up the subject. Yet, for the life of me, I cannot understand why these high clerics of the literary world dispose of this pet sports assignment with such superficial sneers.

For instance, a scholar might spend some hours tracing to its source the nickname of some famous baseball player. Where did he get the monicker and why? Is he still called by the name which distinguished him from his fellows in college or sandlot days? Or has he had a progressive series of such titles while developing from farm team to farm team on the way to the big time?

After the scholar gets that over with he can be faced with other troubles. More often than not the great athlete may have three nicknames—one known only to the artists who do occasional favors to the world by writing pieces about sports, one by which he is usually referred to when fans or practicing sports writers mention him, one seldom used except in the family circle of his teammates.

There was Christy Mathewson, "Matty" or "Big Six" are the names by which this great pitcher is most familiarly remembered by those who paid to see him play. That other Bucknell alumnus, Moose McCormick, recalls though that teammates seldom used such a handle. They called him "Gummy." The name was derived from the fact that when he first entered the majors Mathewson floundered around in the field as if he were wearing gum boots.

Similarly there was the name which Mel Ott has outgrown only within the past season or two. In 1927 the very youthful Ott, already a regular outfielder, was warming up near the first-base boxes. "My, my," exclaimed a lady fan. "Just look at him. Isn't he the spirit of springtime." From thenceforth, in the privacy of Giants' dugout and bridge games, Ott was "Springtime."

How Kiki Cuyler Got His Monicker

Occasionally the obvious thought as to the origin of a nickname is not correct or only partly so. Witness Kiki Cuyler. Cuyler came into baseball close to the time when Belasco was achieving success with one of his best remembered productions. So a quick conclusion would be that the Reds' outfielder's nickname came because of his fancied resemblance to the character so well portrayed by Miss Leonore Ulric. Probably the fame of the play is what really did make the name stick to Cuyler throughout all the years. But actually the names have little in common in way of pronunciation. Cuyler got his title because when playing center his two outfield mates used to yell "Cuy" "Cuy" when he was to take the ball.

Kiki Cuyler

Sometimes an athlete may have two or three private nicknames even while sojourning with his mates. This is particularly true of the Yankees whose most affectionate name for the man variously known as "The Babe," "The Bam," and "The Big Feller," was "Jidgie."

Strangely enough some appropriate names fade in the big time. Lon Warneke, for instance, still is known as "Country" down in Arkansas although none of his big city friends would think of calling him that. By the same token baptismal names are not entirely barred in sports.

Two of them pop into mind. Mrs. Dean would as soon start another war with Jack Miley as call her Dim. "I'm saving 'Jay.'" And at Boston, when I heard a fellow named Pompoon's name, I called him "Clark" as

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

KEEP an eye on Keller, the former University of Maryland outfielder now hitting so hard for Newark. High Yankee authorities suspect the youth will outclass even such bright young men as Di Maggio and Henrich in another season.

Also watch Rosar, a swell catcher who may have a bit of arm trouble but who slugs like Dickey; Gordon, the infelder, and Pitcher Donald, a kid who has all the poise of an Alexander out there on the mound. That's only the pick of the crop from one farm and so you may as well name the Yankees to win the flag in 1939 and 1940, too.

Joe Di Maggio hit his first home runs of both the 1936 and 1937 seasons on the same day of the month, May 10. . . . Young Freddy Kammmer, the former Princeton hockey and baseball star, is giving the Jersey courses such a workout that he might be a good long shot (very long, though) in the amateur golf championship this year. . . . Benny Valger, the French Flash who now manages Frankie DeLillo, hasn't a mark on him to show that he participated in 464 ring battles. . . . George Conway, who trains War Admiral, won the Belmont Futurity with Proctor Knott in 1887.

Tip for the Davis Cup daddies—"There's a husky seventeen-year-old youngster named Bill Cleveland playing on the Exeter tennis team who has all the elements of greatness. Switched from diamond to court only this spring, too." . . . The Cubs will travel 15,541 miles this year to appear in their seventy-seven away from home National League games. . . . Midget Wolgast, former flyweight champion (the limit for that class is 112 pounds), was announced as weighing 136 pounds when he appeared in Philadelphia recently.

Probably distance still averages its best licks while lending enchantment to the view but sometimes even Shylock would be embarrassed by the reaction to the loan. For instance there was that group of celebrated golf pros gabbing in a locker room the other day. Not one of them agreed with public tradition which makes Bobby Jones golfdom's all-time greatest. The records, they said, proved that his game was not as effective over a long period as was that of several other top flight performers.

They were talking merely about men with whom they had matched wood and iron from tee to green. Henry Picard, himself likely to be remembered with the best, is the only one who need be quoted here. He says that, stroke for stroke, Light Horse Harry Cooper is the greatest golfer he has ever seen.

In Transit is one of the most appropriately named thoroughbreds. He was foaled on a train while his dam, Peggy Amour, was en route to Montana. . . . Jack Coffey, Fordham's graduate manager, will tour South America with Mrs. Coffey this summer. . . . Al Politis, former Fordham end, recently was made prosecuting attorney in his New Britain home town. . . . Mike Miskinis, great blond tackle in the Cavanaugh Ram regime, recently passed the New York state bar.

Why don't the Cards make more use of Outfielder Padgett who looked so good down South? . . . Chicago fans hope the Dodgers' directors get red necked again this year and, in the midst of their ire, send another such good player as Lonny Frey to the Windy City. . . . Could it be true that the short Preakness price of War Admiral was largely due to $100,000 worth of comeback money being dumped into the machines by that New Jersey bookie syndicate?

A. Gordon (Dean) Murray calls attention to something that most Ivy Leaguers, whose memories go back almost fifty years, could scarcely have noted last winter. That was the death of Charlie Dana, one of the first college ball players to have big time clubs begging him to sign. Dana, still recalled as the greatest of all Princeton first basemen, performed in the early 1890s. He was the Tiger batter who gave a great Yale pitcher named Amos Alonzo Stagg more headaches than ever came later from years of coaching Chicago's football teams.

Tom Henrich, the boy who carries one of the biggest Yankee bats, made his first appearance as a Yankee in a batboy's uniform. That was during an exhibition game at West Point, just before the start of the season. Henrich had joined the club on such short notice that there was no time to fit him to a uniform. So they stripped the batboy, made a quick exchange of costume, and sent the stocky little Tom into action.

Jake Flowers, the old Cardinal and Dodger infelder, is writing scenarios in Hollywood. . . . Every member of the Athletics' squad, except Earl Mack and Lena Blackburne, coaches, addresses Connie Mack as Mr. Mack. . . . Earl calls him Dad and Blackburne Boss. . . . Second Baseman Tony Lazzeri has teamed with three shortstops, Mark Koenig, Lynn Lary, and Frank Crosetti, since joining the Yankees in 1926, and all have been fellow Californians. . . . Matty Bell, head football coach at Southern Methodist university, claims that the best high school football is played in Texas.

Spots in America That Resist the Melting Pot

Festivals of Various Kinds Call Attention to "Bits of Europe" Here.

"It takes celebrations like a tulip festival to call one's attention to the many 'bits of Europe' scattered throughout the United States," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"Recently thousands of flower-loving Americans descended on Holland, Michigan, to witness the town's annual tulip festival. The gay blooms stretching for eight miles, lure visitors each spring to this largely Dutch community sprinkled with Dutch names and, for the festival period, with residents in Dutch costumes.

A "Little Greece" in Florida.

"Holland is one of the largest Dutch communities in the United States. Until recently, many of its factory workers spoke only Dutch, and neighboring farmers wore wooden shoes.

"Tarpon Springs, about half way down the west coast of the Florida peninsula, is the home of many swarthy, mustachioed Greek sponge divers and their families. They came to the warm blue waters of Florida fisheries from the sponge fishing grounds of the Mediterranean, and have made Tarpon Springs famous as a 'sponge city.' Their brightly painted diving boats are patterned after those used in Greek waters. The town supports a Greek Orthodox church, and on January 6 annually celebrates Greek Cross day, a religious fete brought from the homeland.

"Northwestern Pennsylvania has its Russians. Nearly half a century ago, some 'Old Believers,' descendants of seceders from the Russian church in the Seventeenth century, settled in Erie. The Russian colony now numbers about 2,000 inhabitants. Folk songs are sung to balalaika accompaniment by bearded men and long-haired women.

Finns Settled in Forest Lands.

"Although Finns dwell in small numbers in every state in the Union, they have not found the South appealing, and have settled chiefly in Michigan, Minnesota, Massachusetts, and Washington. From Finland, 'the Land of a Thousand Lakes,' they have been especially drawn to Minnesota. Their physical stamina and experience as lumberjacks in Finland's vast forests have fitted many of them particularly well to take part in America's lumber industry.

"The Finns retain their love of education, flocking to schools and night classes. As in their home land, they build log bathhouses in which to take steam baths, and carve from birchwood skis which carry them over the fields in rigorous winters. Finland, Suomi,

Somehow the Proverb Sounded a Bit Off

He had only recently joined the ranks of politicians, and he was anxious that his first speech to his prospective constituents should be a great success, says London Answers.

He spoke for a long time, warning his hearers of the dangers of war and the importance of keeping a large army. Wishing to finish with some quotation, he thought of the proverb about locking the stable door. But he wanted to be a bit more original.

Suddenly he had a brain-wave. "Ladies and gentlemen," he cried, "don't, I beg of you—don't wait till your house catches fire before calling the fire brigade."

Your Job

DO YOU realize that your job is the most important affair in the world, just because it is your job? The way you look at your job makes all the difference to your career. Do you regard it only as a money-making stunt? Or do you consider it a position to be proud of?

If you put your heart and soul into your effort, you are bound to make good and will wake up one fine morning to discover that you are one of the indispensables. The world respects you because it cannot get along without you.—Geoffrey Rhodes.

Toimi, and Toivola are some Minnesota place names that tell of Finnish population.

Shipping Lures Dalmatians.

"For centuries Dalmatians have either tilled the soil or sailed under Ragusan and other flags all over the world. Today these dark, spirited people, with blood of bold sea rovers in their veins, not only man the orange-sailed fishing boats off the Dalmatian coast, but they man American ships and work in fisheries of Louisiana, Florida, and California.

"From green vineyards, gray olive groves, fig and orange orchards steeped in almost perpetual sunshine along the Dalmatian coast, have come many of the large commercial fruit growers of the Pacific coast, particularly those in Santa Cruz and Santa Clara counties. Watsonville, south of San Francisco, has a population almost entirely Yugoslavian.

"The majority of fishermen in Provincetown, Massachusetts, are Portuguese. Their ancestors sailed there on whalers from Portugal and the Azores. The city directory is filled with names that sound strange among those of most New England towns: last names such as Silva, Ramos, Furtado, Costa, Zora, Dutra, Cabral, Almeda, Agna, and Corea."

Firestone TIRES

GIVE YOU GREATER PROTECTION AGAINST SKIDDING AND BLOWOUTS

YOU will know the minute you see this tire why car owners everywhere call it the greatest tire ever made to sell at these low prices. The deeper, wider, flatter non-skid tread made of tough, long wearing rubber will give you protection against dangerous skidding. But tires cannot be judged on tread alone. Under the tread of Firestone Standard Tires are two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords. This Firestone patented construction feature binds the tread and cord body into one inseparable unit. Every cotton fiber in every cord in every ply is saturated and coated with pure liquid rubber which counteracts the internal friction and heat that ordinarily destroy tire life. This Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping gives greater protection against blowouts and is used only in Firestone Tires.

Sunday School Lesson

JOSEPH'S KINDNESS TO HIS KINDRED

International Sunday School Lesson for June 13, 1937

Golden Text: "Be ye kind, one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving each other, even as God also in Christ forgave you."—Ephesians 4:32.

In our last lesson we saw how Joseph, as vice-ruler of Egypt, had prepared for the seven years of famine. Due probably to the same cause, famine also came to the land of Canaan, where Jacob and his family lived. Hearing that there was food in Egypt, Jacob sent 10 of his sons to buy grain, keeping home with him only Benjamin, who with Joseph, was the son of Jacob's favorite wife, Rachel.

Our lesson does not concern itself with the very familiar incidents connected with the visits of Joseph's brothers to Egypt, during the first of which he did not reveal himself as the brother they had sold into slavery. However, when Joseph told Pharaoh of the plight of his old father in Canaan, Pharaoh immediately told Joseph to send wagons to his father's home to bring him and his family to live in Egypt, where they would be cared for, Joseph did this.

However, it was not until the brothers convinced Jacob that Joseph was really alive and ruler in Egypt could they persuade him to leave his old home and go down into Egypt. The desire to see his beloved son once more before he died caused him to make haste to leave. When they arrived at Beersheba, the last Canaan before they would cross the waste land that lay between Canaan and Egypt, Jacob offered sacrifices to God. In a vision that night, he received assurances from God that it was all right for him to go to Egypt, that God would be with him and would make of him a great nation, as he had promised Abraham. He also promised that Joseph would be with him when he died, "to close his eyes."

When the caravan reached Goshen, they met Joseph. Overjoyed at meeting his old father again, Joseph "fell on his neck and wept on his neck a good while." Having seen his beloved son again, Jacob was satisfied, saying, "Now let me die, since I have seen thy face, that thou art yet alive." When he reached the royal city, Joseph told Pharaoh of the arrival of his family. First, five of his brothers were presented to the king, and then Joseph presented Jacob to Pharaoh. Instead of prostrating himself in the king's presence, the aged patriarch advanced, lifted his right hand and formally blessed Pharaoh.

So impressed was Pharaoh with Joseph, Jacob and his sons, that Pharaoh allowed Joseph to select the place where they were to dwell, suggesting that they settle in the land of Goshen, a district along the western branch of the Wady Tumulat, where it begins to branch from the Nile, and the best pasture land of Egypt.

"And so, these wandering clans, those tribes that were the nomads of the desert, who after three hundred years had not taken a step in advance, were by this strange route, this romantic history, brought down into Egypt to receive throughout the next 400 years, the rudiments of that knowledge by which they were to become a nation to which the whole civilized world is indebted for its best laws, its noblest morality, its sweetest domestic affections, and its profoundest aspirations," says Henry Ward Beecher.

After 17 years, the old patriarch, Jacob, died, after having been promised by Joseph that his body would be taken back to the cave of Macphehah and buried beside Abraham and Sarah, Isaac and Rebekah and Leah. A splendid procession bore his body back to Canaan and buried him as he wished.

Joseph again showed his greatness of heart when, after their father's death, his brothers feared he would visit his vengeance upon them for the evil they had done to him so many years before. Pained at their distrust of him, Joseph reassured them of his forgiveness when he said, "Ye meant evil against me, but God meant it for good."

For 33 years longer Joseph stood as an elder brother to the house of Israel. Then, at the age of one hundred and ten, "full of years and honor," he died. At his request, his body was embalmed, placed in his coffin, to await the return of the children of Israel for he had made his brothers promise that they would carry his body with them when they returned to dwell in the land which God had promised them. He knew that they would return because he had faith in God's promise.

Although a petted, spoiled, apparently arrogant boy, Joseph developed into an unselfish, kind, noble and brilliant man. He was a wise ruler and a good man, always relying upon and placing himself in God's care.

ANENT THE COURT HOUSE WALL

From our window we get an excellent view of Floyd County's beautiful, renovated court house. It's true that deep down inside of us, a bit of sentiment objected to the covering of those old bricks — bricks that were made here in Prestonsburg during a former century — with plaster and stucco.

But the view we get from our window of a court house now gleaming white, with its arched doorway, and pillared portico, makes us wonder why it wasn't done long ago.

But there is one thing we see through our window we do not like. The court house is surrounded by an ugly, dirty wall of concrete. And if we remember correctly, the concrete was placed around a steel fence. This wall, a relic of the "horse and buggy days," was placed there to prevent cattle and horses from wandering about the court house grounds.

Of What Use Is It Now?

The TIMES advocates the removal of the wall about the court house! And we know that we are voicing the plea of Floyd Countians when we ask that a portion, if not all, the court house grounds be paved, to allow parking space for automobiles which are now parked on both sides of the streets, and on the curbs, and even sidewalks, about the court house.

Hour after hour The TIMES sees through the window, cars and trucks parked haphazardly, dangerously, and at all angles on the Court and Third street sides of the courthouse wall. At least 50 times a day our "nose for news" prompts us to look out the window and murmur, "Oh shucks," as two cars on the corner of Third and Court narrowly avert a wreck with screaming brakes. Sooner or later, we know our "nose for news" will be sorrowfully awarded with a serious accident. This daily occurrence of mere fender crumpling with which we are familiar, cannot long continue without the loss of limb or life.

It seems to us a shame to have such a beautiful building, and leave it surrounded by the old wall. Thousands have been spent on renovation. Why not spend a few dollars to make the grounds a place of beauty and safety for autoists?

Why make Mr. Smith drive all the way from Wayland, Melvin, or Weeksbury just to pay his taxes, and force him to drive down on Front street to find parking space, that is, provided, there is enough left of his car after he drives past the courthouse on his way to Front street.

Not all the grounds need to be paved to alleviate the parking situation. In fact, the TIMES would have as little paving as necessary. We would like a bit of landscaping too. We want the shady trees to remain. And we would like a path or two, bordered with evergreens; but let us not ask for too much at one time.

The TIMES, by this editorial, hopes to arouse public sentiment. We are inviting letters from readers who are interested in removing the "horse and buggy" wall, thereby providing parking space that will make our streets less dangerous. We have a beautiful courthouse. Why not make the grounds beautiful, and at the same time, useful,

News For Floyd County Farmers

THE FARM AND HOME

(Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station)

Newly set shade trees should be examined several times during the first two growing seasons to see that the wind is not causing them to sway to such an extent that the roots are unable to develop. If damage has been done, press soil around the roots and tie the tree.

Bacon bait prepared with red squill is recommended for the control of rats. It is fatal to rats but relatively harmless to people and animals. Killing of rats should be followed by destruction of their living places and rat proofing of buildings.

As over-grazing, especially during the dry summer season, is damaging to pastures, many farmers now plan to have such temporary pasture as sudan grass, lespedeza, sweet clover or other annuals for their stock for a month or two.

Hogs should have shade. Where there are no trees artificial shade may be made by setting posts five feet out of the ground, in a square 100 feet each way, with horizontal poles nailed for wind to them on which may be laid strips to support straw or straw or brush cover.

Whole milk should be fed to calves until they are old enough to eat other feeds which can be substituted for the milk. As they learn to eat grain and hay the amount of whole milk can gradually be reduced and skim milk substituted.

NO RESPONSE

I do not know why Mr. Hall (superintendent) did not answer my article that appeared in the Floyd County Independent some few weeks ago. He might have run out of ammunition and too he might be afraid of the facts and would not attempt to answer the questions that I asked.

My Dad told me when I was a boy never to go hunting for big game without plenty of ammunition. This might be good advice for Mr. Hall. Again he might say that he did not have time to reply, but he has about a half dozen assistants he could put on the job.

Now, Mr. Hall, you started all this by replying to a hand bill prepared by a group of innocent students, so don't quit me now.

In case you have forgotten the questions I asked in my last article (and how you would like to forget) I will re-state them, adding four more to the list.

1. What is your salary?
2. What is your wife's salary?
3. Did you rent your father-in-law's house to teach in?
4. How much for each mile do you receive for driving your pretty little red car?
5. How many clerks, secretaries, business managers and truant officers, supervisors do you have and what are their respective salaries?
6. Is it true that people have to have an appointment to see you (as when

Prestonsburg Woman's Club was hostess to husbands and other guests to a most delightful picnic supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Mayo Thursday evening, June 3. Mr. and Mrs. Mayo pride their flower garden as a "friendship garden." Cuttings and slips of practically everything grown in the garden having

U. S. MARINE CORPS FOUNDS NEW POST

Floyd Recruits May Now Join the Corps at New Cincinnati Office

The U. S. Marine Corps established a district headquarters recruiting station on May 15, at 417 Keith office building, Cincinnati, O., for the convenience of young men of the Big Sandy and surrounding territory who are interested in enlisting in that branch of the service, according to 1st Lieutenant P. A. McDonald, USMC, officer in charge of the new station.

Applicants must be between the ages of 18 and 30, at least five feet four inches in height, single, of good character, and be able to meet the high physical standards of the marine corps.

Lieut. McDonald explained that all young men now being enlisted are immediately transferred to the Marine Corps base at Parris Island, South Carolina, for a period of six to eight weeks training, and upon completion of this training they are assigned to duty aboard the larger ships of the navy or to shore stations in the United States, China, Cuba, Guam, Hawaii, the Panama Canal Zone, or the Philippine Islands.

In addition to extended travel, the Marine Corps offers a splendid opportunity for young men to learn many trades through the Marine Corps Institute, which has 51 courses, any one of which a marine may select. These courses are free to all marines.

Full particulars concerning enlistments including the application forms, etc., may be obtained by writing to the Marine Corps Recruiting Station, 417 Keith Bldg., 525 Walnut St., Cincinnati, O.

SUTTON NAMED LEGION COMMANDER

The committee appointed to work out a program for the 4th of July celebration is composed of W. G. Africa, W. C. Rimmer, Joe P. Tackett, W. S. Wallen, and Joe Hobson. Two of the above members and J. B. Clarke and Lon Moles were appointed

THERE are over 360 employees of this company whose life work it is to serve you. Out of this large group of people, many of whom are your friends and neighbors, it frequently happens that the only person in the organization who meets our customers as a company representative is Bill Jones, the man who reads the meter. It is his privilege to go into your homes and to expose himself to the many questions that people ask concerning our service.

It is a pretty safe bet that when Johnny asks him "What is a watt" he will tell him that it is a small unit of electrical energy—because a watt is pretty small we usually lump 1000 of them together and call it a kilowatt. A kilowatt used for an hour is a "kilowatt-hour" just as a horse worked for an hour would do a "horsepower-hour" of work. Incidentally, a kilowatt-hour is just about equal to the work that a very large horse can do in an hour. Thinking of it in terms of some electrical appliance, if you burn a 100-watt lamp 10 hours you have used one kilowatt-hour of electricity. At our average rate, such a lamp costs you about half a cent an hour.

to contact all Prestonsburg merchants in reference to the proposed celebration. A motion was made and carried that W. S. Wallen make a patriotic speech July 5, since the 4th falls on a Sunday.

The executive committee appointed by Commander Sutton is composed of Joe P. Tackett, W. S. Wallen, Marvin Marshall, Gordon Francis, Joe Hobson, and F. C. Hall.

Delegates and alternates appointed for the 10th District meeting of the American Legion to be held at Hazard, June 19 and 20, are: Ed Sutton, Joe Hobson, Marvin Marshall, Joe Tackett, and W. G. Africa. Alternates are: Clyde Burchett, J. B. Clarke, Jay Salyers, Tom Burchett, and W. L. Stephens. The same delegates or alternates will attend the state convention to be held at Paris.

Adjutant Africa said that the next Legion meeting June 18, would concern itself with the proposed 4th of July celebration.

FANCY BONNETS, ET AL
 In the spring of 1935 I delivered a commencement address in a small town rather far away from the centers of population. At the conclusion of my address several people came around to speak to me—a custom that I greatly like. One sweet faced old lady who greeted me wore a fancy bonnet, the first one I have seen since I was a child. Just what the other people looked like, I have forgotten; that fancy bonnet brought back such a host of memories that I did not care to mor than recalling how Mary or John was dressed or what Jim or Tom said. There passed before me in memory many in fancy bonnets, old ladies who long ago left us for other worlds. Even when I was a child, the fancy bonnet was a sort of passing institution, since only a few women in any given neighborhood would own one. All the faces that I can recall under the fancy bonnets were peaceful and inclined to be aged, with a strange feminine elegance and grace not always found in any age. Life had dealt about all it was to deal to them, they had reared their families and had often buried the major part of their sons and daughters; but life at its life at its hardest could not take away the look of repose that they had inherited or had acquired. Many of you will not know what a fancy bonnet is or was. I fear I cannot describe one, as my knowledge of such things is hardly professional. Ask the oldest people you know to describe one for to get one from the treasure chest of the family attic.

Ear muffs appeared often, more than I had seen in the previous 20 years. Some of the college boys very appropriately went bareheaded in zero weather, but sometimes they added a pair of ear muffs to make up for the top exposure. I was reminded of the oldish boy whom I used to go to school with, who used to wear his ear muffs in any sort of weather, even when he walked across the campus with his girl. Some one suggested that those ear muffs ought to be a part of the museum of the school. And that reminds me of another thing. Most of the men of my generation have ears that stand out to catch the passing breeze. Younger men rarely have such outstanding ears. If any one wishes to make an investigation of this strange phenomenon, let me answer all your questions at once. We boys wore caps that we pulled down over our ears, I had better say. A few months each year in such cramped positions would make any ears lean forward. Since caps that pulled down have ceased to be common, ears have a tendency to stand in a less obdusid position. TL

Watch Your Kidneys!
 Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
 Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
 Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
 There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Advertising Speaks for Industry

WE ARE all members of a privileged class today. We don't have to wait months for news, traveling by word of mouth, to reach us. If a manufacturer in a distant city produces a labor saving device, or an application to conceal birthmarks, these boons are brought to our attention at once through advertising. Advertising is the great voice of industry which we are all privileged to hear.

Don't Irritate Gas Bloating

If you want to really GET RID OF GAS and terrible bloating, don't expect to do it by just doctoring your stomach with harsh, irritating alkalies and "gas tablets." Most GAS is lodged in the stomach and upper intestine and is due to old poisonous matter in the constipated bowels that are loaded with ill-causing bacteria. If your constipation is of long standing, enormous quantities of dangerous bacteria accumulate. Then your digestion is upset. GAS often presses heart and lungs, making life miserable. You can't eat or sleep. Your head aches. Your back aches. Your complexion is sallow and pimply. Your breath is foul. You are a sick, grouchy, wretched, unhappy person. YOUR SYSTEM IS POISONED. Thousands of sufferers have found in Adierka the quick, scientific way to rid their systems of harmful bacteria. Adierka rids you of gas and cleans foul poisons out of BOTH upper and lower bowels. Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierka. Get rid of GAS. Adierka does not gripe—is not habit forming. At all Leading Drugists.

A premonitory shiver went through Kezia. "What do you think?"

"That it might be better for us to break it off."

Kezia sat bolt upright. He would go back to Ellen! . . . People would say he had thrown her over! . . . She had a feeling for Jerry that no one else had ever stirred. He brought a swift challenge to her. He was elusive; he never satiated her with his dependence.

Jerry guided the car to a bumpy pause on the shoulder of the road, switched off the ignition. "Come here," he said gently. He gathered her in his arms, laid his cheek against hers. "She cares . . . my little Kezia cares," he whispered. She felt his lips tremble as they touched hers.

"You want to give me up!" "No, Angel, no! . . . I love you—you know I do."

"You've been horrid." He gave a despairing gesture. "It seems so hopeless."

"We won't allow it to be hopeless."

He was silent for a moment, keeping his arms tightly about her. "No?" he questioned. Another long pause then he said, "Have you anything to suggest?"

"We might live with Mother." Life was very dreary, thought Kezia, when you couldn't have what you wanted! And Jerry was the right combination for her. Just the way his hair went back was invested with a certain quality of emotion; the sulky fullness over his dark eyes sent warm waves up her arms into her shoulders. She was caught up in that attribute of youth which drives for what it wants, mistakes or not, the imperious urge which cannot wait for wisdom.

"Yes, we could live with Mother," she said a little more firmly. The suggestion on Jerry's face deepened. "Yes, that's a thought to hold to! . . . Have Hugh patronize me?"

"He wouldn't."

"I can see him welcoming me to the family circle—big boy they had to keep!" His tone was rueful.

"It would be for only a little while," she coaxed. "You'll get something good in a few months. Perhaps Hugh would . . . then."

"Do you think so?" His voice, still uncertain, was slightly yielding.

"And Uncle John Renshaw—not really my uncle, but a cousin of Mother's—has a weakness for me. I think if I went to him, asked him very prettily, told him how fond I am of him—and of you—he'd try to help."

"He might do something," said Jerry thoughtfully. "No matter how good you are, it's pull and family that put a fellow up. I've seen it happen too many times not to know. And if I made just a little more—say forty or fifty a week—you'd be willing to try it, Loveliness?"

Kezia nodded, her eyes like stars. He started the car. They drove for a mile or so when the headlights swept a sign on a curve of the hill: "Brookline, Marriage Licenses. No Waiting."

Kezia smiled to herself as she turned it over in her mind. Why, it actually stood there as if it were suggesting a way for them! There might be advantages to it. She chuckled a little and he turned to her inquiringly.

"I was thinking about that sign on the hill—the one about marriage licenses."

"What about it?"

"Think!" she commanded. "Then tell me if you are thinking the same thing I am."

His eyes gleamed with swift intelligence. "You wouldn't—?"

She snuggled her face against his sleeve. "Funny boy—it would work, wouldn't it? . . . All over and done with . . . everyone would have to put a good face on about it . . . Is it a grand idea or isn't it?"

"Not give a hang for the future? Let it take care of itself?"

"It would—it would!" she chanted gleefully. "I know my family—they're very loyal. Once it's done and over with they'd—"

"Have to like it?"

"They'd help us—Hugh, Uncle John, Will Platt."

Excitement played over Jerry's face, excitement and something more. He drove with one hand slowly while his right arm encircled her. "And I'd have you for keeps, darling Kezzie!"

In Brookline which was just over the Pennsylvania border, it was not difficult to be directed to the frame house of John Bascome, the marrying squire. He was a small man, with a round head, and close-set eyes. He looked greedily pleased at their appearance, surveyed them with quick speculation, and exacted a good sized fee from Jerry before he asked the necessary questions. He would have the marriage license made out and would mail it to them in a day or so. His wife and daughter appeared as witnesses.

Margery and Will Platt had been over for dinner, and afterward, Hugh and Will discussed the last municipal election and the calibre of the men in office. The talk, with Fluvanna and Margery, making comments, asking questions, switched to national affairs, to the labor situation and to the revolution in business methods.

Hugh was restless after they left. Now that the interlude of having to make conversation and listen to others was over, he was conscious of a slump. "I think I'll go for a walk, Mother."

He had reached for his hat when the front door bell pealed sharply. He took the telegram the boy handed him, signed for it, tore it open. "The fool! the little fool!" he ejaculated.

"Why, Hugh?" questioned Fluvanna.

So this was what Kezia had meant when she said "You'll all drive me to something one of these days!" He hesitated a moment before he handed the message to his mother. "From Kezia . . . she's done what we hoped to prevent—married him."

Fluvanna read: "Jerry and I were married in Brookline this evening. Home in a day or so. Very happy. Tell mother. Love, Kezia."

Kezia and Jerry came home to live. Jerry was devoted to Kezia, thoughtful of Fluvanna.

Uncle John Renshaw, after much wheedling from Kezia, found a place for Jerry in some government work at a better salary. An interview with Jerry predisposed him in his favor and he recommended that he go to a school for salesmen that his company was promoting. Kezia was triumphant. She did not see the trying, intermediate steps of a salesman's life; her imagination visioned Jerry as a trusted steel salesman with trips to California, New York, South America, Russia. She immediately went out and rented a two-room apartment, had the excitement of finding furnishings for it with the check furnished by her mother and Hugh, and moved in the week after Christmas.

In January Dorrie got her decree, and a few days later was married to Cunningham Whitney, whose divorce had been granted in December. They were married at her sister's home in Forest Hills and went to live in Philadelphia where Cun had secured a position.

Hugh frequently was invited to dinners at the houses of his friends, parties which were dull or lively according to the company. It was a wrench to go but he made it a point to accept most of the invitations. People, places, things which were normal were the best antidote for the perils of introspection.

He saw Gavin Pendleton one noon at a director's meeting, and thought he looked much older.

Gavin touched Hugh's arm as they were leaving the meeting. "H'r yuh?"

"Very well. And you?"

Gavin looked meaningfully back at the room they were leaving and Hugh understood that he wished to speak to him privately. He followed him back to its farther corner.

"Mother well?" blurted Gavin.

"Rather frail this winter. How is Lizzie—and Ellen?"

Gavin's left cheek and eye twitched, giving the effect of a grimace. "Wanted to speak to you . . . puzzled . . . don't know what to do."

Hugh waited.

"One of the family . . . like your advice. Ellen."

"Ellen?" said Hugh with quick concern. "Something wrong with Ellen?"

Gavin nodded gloomily. "Won't eat . . . hardly talks . . . sometimes I think . . . Mother not good for her." He peered at Hugh with his near-sighted eyes. "What to do?"

"Have you had a doctor?"

"Umm-m," he assented. "Tonics and iron no good—nerves."

"Young friends?"

"She won't go . . . did for a while . . . says people terrify her."

"You might send her away."

"Sent her to Louise in December—sister—Boston—after that—came out." He shrugged his shoulders and Hugh felt he referred to Kezia's elopement. "No good . . . came back in ten days . . . says she's haunted . . . funny stuff."

"She used to be fond of Mother, came to see her almost every day—and Mother has missed her very much," said Hugh. "My sister isn't there now. Perhaps she would like to come over . . . you might suggest it to her."

"Good woman, Fluvanna!" blurted Gavin. "Try it." He looked at Hugh, and nodding in dismissal to Hugh, rushed for the door.

The Westminster Confession was the confession of faith framed by Presbyterian and Calvinistic divines at the Westminster Assembly, whose sessions lasted from 1643 to 1649. The confession was mainly an exposition of the Calvinistic doctrine.

STAR DUST Movie • Radio

By VIRGINIA VALE

JOAN BENNETT is so homesick for the stage that she has signed up to work with a Cape Cod stock company this summer for a few weeks. Some of the motion picture producers who have planned busy summers for their players wish that she wasn't quite so thrilled at the prospect.

Her infectious enthusiasm has sent half of Hollywood scurrying to their bosses to ask if they can't have leave of absence too. Bette Davis wants to go, but Warners have big plans for her. Josephine Hutchinson wants her annual fling on the stage. And Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone are acting mighty mysterious, reading plays and time tables.

Add one more picture to the current list of those you simply have to see. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Captains Courageous" is one of the finest pictures of all time. There isn't a woman in the cast, but even the young girls who think any picture without torrid love scenes is a washout, confess that they never even miss the romantic angle in this one. It is a story of the Gloucester fishing fleet in which Spencer Tracy and young Freddie Bartholomew do the finest acting of their careers. Indeed, it is the first picture in which young Bartholomew has had a chance to show that he is not just a sweet and handsome lad with pathetic eyes. He is a grand actor.

As soon as Ernst Lubitsch finishes directing Marlene Dietrich and Herbert Marshall in "Angel" he is going to turn actor for a few days. Long ago when he was an actor in Germany, his great ambition was to play Napoleon, and just now it happens that Cecil De Mille is searching the highways and byways for a man to play Napoleon in "Bucaneer." Lubitsch got into costume and make-up, presented himself to De Mille, and was hired at once.

Executives at the Twentieth Century Fox studio are disappointed that the public hasn't made more of a fuss over Simone Simon, so they are going to put her in a comedy and see if she goes over better. They are teaming her with Jack Haley, who made such a hit in "Wake Up and Live," in a fast-moving comedy called "Love at Work."

Motion picture studio officials always change the subject when anyone asks if their stars really sing or if some singer substitutes for them, but radio listeners can recognize their favorite voices under any circumstances. They insist that Buddy Clark of the Hit Parade did Jack Haley's singing, that Virginia Verrill sang for both Jean Harlow and Virginia Bruce, and that in "The Great Barnum" it was Francis White who sang for Miss Bruce.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., has decided that he likes the United States better, after all. While he was in England, he realized his ambition to become a producer, and felt so grateful to the countrymen who backed him that he thought he would live there always. Coming back to Hollywood to make just one picture, "The Prisoner of Zenda," he found when it was finished and he was free to go back to England that he just couldn't bear to leave all his childhood friends.

Warner Brothers have arranged to borrow Miriam Hopkins for two pictures and it looks as if it would keep the entire studio busy for weeks finding stories to which she won't raise a violent objection. Scheduled to appear with Errol Flynn in "The Perfect Specimen," she flatly refused. Instead she will make a tearful little romance called "Episode" supported by Ian Hunter and Charles Winninger. After that, Warners would like to have her in "Sisters" with Kay Francis.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . Joe Penner doesn't mention ducks even once in "New Faces," which is being filmed by R-K-O, and furthermore he appears in black face for the first time . . . Ken Murray always dresses more conservatively when he shows up for a broadcast, but around home he goes in for the dizziest colored smoking jackets and lounging robes . . . Motion picture producers are wildly enthusiastic over the intimate, caressing voice of Rosalind Greene who announces Mrs. Roosevelt's radio program, and since they have heard that she is young and extraordinarily beautiful they are rushing to her with contracts for pictures.

Vera, to the right, has a date for dancing and when her escort admiringly effuses some such nonsense as, "That gown must have come on the last boat from Paris" she will toss her dark head and say, "No foreign frocks for me. Her dress of soft flowered material with demure braid at the neck and hem almost makes a sweet old-fashioned girl of her, but the tailored collar and trim cut label her the sophisticated young thing that she really is.

Heal th News

By Dr. Marvin Ransdell

The United States Public Health Service states that all children should be vaccinated against smallpox before they are a year old. At this time they have not begun to run around, and are in less danger of injuring the site of vaccination by contact with hard objects or of getting dirt rubbed into it. On entering school they should be vaccinated again.

Diphtheria is an entirely preventable disease. Diphtheria antitoxin has cut down the death rate among diphtheria patients very materially, and its record would of course be better than it is if it were always administered early. Antitoxin does not cure or prevent the "carrier" condition, nor is it of any value as a preventive measure except in case of contacts, and only for about two weeks. An active agent capable of developing active immunity is in demand, and is found in toxin antitoxin or in diphtheria toxoid.

Since a small percentage of cases are not immunized by the usual course of injections with either toxin antitoxin or diphtheria toxoid, the immunizing treatment should be followed in due time by a Schick test of susceptibility, when an additional injection of the toxin antitoxin or toxoid may be necessary.

By systematic immunization it is believed possible not only to check the prevalence of diphtheria, but to eradicate it. In fact, several American communities have already approached this goal through persistent efforts to get every child in the country immunized. The preschool age is the period during which the greatest danger from diphtheria occurs; the injections should be given as soon after the age of six months as possible.

Typhoid fever is now so well guarded against in most of our cities that it is not considered necessary to adopt general vaccination measures against it. Vaccination with typhoid vaccine is, however, an excellent protection for persons who travel much or stop in their travels in places where sanitation is not well developed.

With regard to rabies: The immunization of dogs is practicable, but it is by no means unfailing. Early vaccination with Rabies Vaccine Veterinary will greatly reduce the risk of rabies in dogs. When a person is bitten by a dog suspected of being rabid, the prompt administration of antirabic vaccine will prevent the development of the disease in almost every case.

Tetanus is a preventable condition. One injection of 1500 units of tetanus antitoxin together with prompt cleansing of the wound is usually sufficient, but two injections, a week apart, are often given for greater security, especially when the wound is a deep one and the patient is not seen for a day or two after its infliction. For treatment heroic doses are necessary, but the antitoxin has been so reduced in volume by refinement and concentration that even large unit injections are easily given.

Lackey-Garrett Woman's Club Meets

"Kentucky Poetry" was the topic of the program of the Lackey-Garrett Woman's club which met last week at the home of Mrs. M. M. Collins at Lackey. The program, arranged by Mrs. W. T. Hatcher, consisted of music and the reading of poems written by Kentuckians.

Those who led in the reading were: Mrs. R. H. Messer, Mrs. Raymond Turner, Mrs. Ed. Rudolph Spencer, Mrs. Ed. Castle, Mrs. Bayless Litteral, Mrs. Charles Sturgill, Mrs. Charles Hornsby, Mrs. Chas. Sersain, Mrs. M. M. Collins, Mrs. Adam Buckovitch, Mrs. Thomas Hatcher, and Audrey Sturgill and Maude Hatcher.

The author whose works were read by Mrs. Spencer, is Mrs. Virginia Turner, who now lives at Maytown, and who is the wife of V. O. Turner, school principal. The author whose works were read by Mrs. Sturgill is Harrison Elliott, who is well-known in the Beaver and Big Sandy section.

The club was pleased to hear Ceredo Reed, graduate of the Lackey high school, who read some of her original poetry. Talent and promise of a poetical career were shown. Sylvia Prater, who was present, sang "Barbara Allen." The poem, "The Dandelion" written by a freshman of Lackey high school, Edsel Vanderpool, was accepted by club members as the "best yet."

Mrs. Hatcher, program chairman, is to be congratulated for her efficiency in providing the club with one of the most thoroughly enjoyed programs of the year.
