

LOCAL MERCHANTS DESIGNATE JUNE 5 'AS BIG FREE DAY'

Plan for 30-Car Motorcade
Welcome Through County
May 31

FREE SHOWS

The merchants of Prestonsburg are planning a thirty-car booster and good will trip to various points in Floyd county Monday, May 31, to extend a personal invitation to all Floyd countians to come to Floyd's county seat for "Free Day" on June 5.

The Kiwanis Club is sponsoring the plan and has the cooperation of Woman's Club in soliciting ads in a merchants' invitation circular, of which 10,000 are being printed, to reach Floyd county's 50,000 residents.

The motorcade, with cars displaying banners of welcome, will travel both Right and Left Beaver sections and lower portion of Floyd county.

The merchants, business men and women of the county seat are spending every effort to make "Free Day" one of the grandest occasions of all events. For all the time and expense expended, the business and professional people merely want Floyd countians to come to Prestonsburg on "Free Day" and get acquainted. Come to town in person and be present all thousands!

"Free Day," June 5, will be held at the addresses at the courthouse at 11 a. m., free shows all day at the Unique Theatre, free music on the streets and free ice water in easy access all over town.

A free day for Floyd countians! Watch for further details.

An Invitation to "Ask the Professor" Here May 21

"Ask the Professor," a two-act operetta, is to be given Friday afternoon and night by the boys' and girls' glee club of Prestonsburg high school.

After two months of practice this operetta will be the best that has ever been presented here. It is under the direction of Mrs. Kathryn Stumbo Frasure.

Don't forget "Ask the Professor" this Friday evening and night, 2:30 and 8:30 p. m. Admission 15c and 25c.

New Wheelchair Is Needed; 11,000 Miles On Old Model

The few surviving "Model T's" of the day might eye the record of Tom Scalf's wheelchair, and in fact, "Old Ball Bearing" (Scalf's own name for his vehicle) has gone Lizzie one better. Tom has gone rabbit hunting in his wheelchair!

Scalf estimated conservatively that his 11-year-old model Sears vehicle has at least 11,000 miles on it, and 6,000 of these miles were obtained in country road travel in Floyd county through mud, water, and over rock boulders.

The most exciting trip, he explained, was the three-mile hunting jaunt. He raised his gun to fire at a rabbit. As he pulled the trigger the gun bucked with such force that Scalf and chair were overturned and tumbled some feet down the side of a steep hill. He didn't get the rabbit

EDGAR STEPHENS INJURED FATALLY; CAR LEAVES ROAD

Cine Companion Near Death; Tragedy Occurs Wednesday Night

Edgar Stephens, 43 years old, Prestonsburg attorney, and member of the Floyd county bar, was instantly killed Wednesday night at 10:30 when his car left the highway in the Stafford Addition to Paintsville, Johnson county, Kentucky, and plunged over an embankment and landed against a tree, according to reports here. Mrs. Agnes Goble, who was driving Stephens' car, lost control of it and failed to negotiate a curve.

Stephens, Mrs. Goble and two McCourt girls (first names of McCourt girls were unobtainable as we go to press) were motoring from the Paintsville business section when the mishap occurred. The impact against the tree practically demolished the car, tearing the cab from the framework.

Mrs. Goble, age 21, of Van Lear, who was thrown clear of the car, was taken, badly crushed, to the Paintsville hospital, where attendants stated that "she hasn't got one chance in a thousand to live." She had not regained consciousness.

AGED ASSISTANCE ON INCREASE HERE

$2,722 Paid in 282 Checks to Floyd Residents, Says April Report

Frankfort, Ky., May 21—During the month of April 282 recipients of old age assistance in Floyd county received a total of $2,722, according to the records of Dr. A. Y. Lloyd, Director of Public Assistance in the State Department of Welfare.

These monthly assistance checks not only aid the old people in each county, but also have a beneficial effect upon business in general. All of this money is immediately used to pay the merchant for food and clothing, the doctor for medicine and professional service, the landlord for rent, and for other necessities of old age assistance, thereby increasing the amount of money circulating in the community.

Over the entire state, 24,887 eligible, needy, aged Kentuckians received $248,465.30 during the month of April, making the average grant approximately $10.00 per recipient. At the present time Kentucky ranks thirty-first among the states in number of recipients of old age assistance in proportion to the population over 65 years of age. This shows remarkable progress when it is considered that in both August and September of 1936, Kentucky ranked at the bottom of the list of states.

The state convention of Women's Clubs came to a close Thursday night in Pikeville after a three-day session filled with excellent programs, entertaining special features and hospitality known only to the mountaineers. Women prominent in the state insist no city ever took the pains which Pikeville did to welcome them. Delegates and guests were feted, waited upon, made to feel at home, from the first to the last. Dozens of attractive and appropriate souvenirs served to make the occasion most interesting. The unique hospitality of the First National Bank, the manner in which the Pikeville gentlemen left their evocations to be of service, Mayor Day attending every meeting, were commented on frequently. Mrs. W. P. Sunday School Lesson

THE WEAKNESS OF ESAU
International Sunday School Lesson for May 23, 1937

Golden Text: "Every man that striveth in the games exerciseth self-control in all things."—1 Cor. 9:25.

The twin sons of Isaac and Rebekah, Esau and Jacob, were wholly different in appearance and in character. Esau, the first born, was rough and hairy, a lover of the outdoors and a skillful hunter. Naturally, therefore, he was the favorite of his father, to whom he brought the fruits of his huntings. Jacob was a quiet, stay-at-home boy, the great favorite of his mother. With the parents so divided in their affections, it is natural that trouble resulted.

Late one afternoon Esau, returning from an extensive hunt, found Jacob tending a savory pot of small beans, called pottage. Tired and hungry, nothing seemed quite so desirable to the young man than some of this appetizing food. Jacob, crafty and scheming, took advantage of the situation and offered him the food in exchange for Esau's birthright, through which the eldest son inherited the leadership of the family and certain accompanying material advantages, and also the especial promise of God's blessing through Abraham.

It is not likely that either of the young men considered the 'spiritual blessing' which accompanied the birthright but only the material phase. To Esau, famished and faint, "tired to death," as we would say, from his hunt, nothing in the future, however valuable, was as alluring or worthwhile to him as the satisfaction of his hunger in the present. So many of us are like Esau, living only for the present, and failing to consider the effect of our actions on our future or that of those who come after us.

Realizing that after his hunger had been appeased Esau would repent of his folly and would more than likely break his promise to give him his birthright, Jacob made Esau solemnly swear, before giving him the pottage that he would abide by his promise. And so, Esau swore thus, he "despised his birthright."
So, it came to pass that Jacob bought Esau's birthright for food at a time when his brother was weakest. Surely this was not an admirable trait to see in a young man. No one likes to see unfair unjust treatment, regardless of the circumstances, and to witness such action between brothers is, to say the least, distressing. If we follow the history of these two young men, we see that the weakness, by which Esau lost his birthright, follows him thru life, and that Jacob pays dearly for his part in the transaction.

However, of the two young men, Jacob was better fitted for leadership than Esau; he was probably destined to receive from Isaac the sacred covenant and pass it down through his sons. He was willing to do wrong in an effort to promote right—a policy which leads to unhappiness and postponement in a majority of cases.

Instead of condemning the action of her favorite son in taking advantage of his brother in such a manner, Rebekah encouraged Jacob in this attitude and actively assisted him later in deceiving his blind father so that he would confirm, outwardly at least, the substitution accomplished by selfishness and trickery. While apparently everything worked successfully—Jacob received Isaac's blessing and Rebekah was right—the results were far from what Rebekah or Jacob would have desired. The devoted mother and son were separated for years because of the intense hatred which Jacob's trickery engendered in the heart of Esau when he realized what he had been tricked into, would have killed Jacob had not Rebekah learned of his plans and sent Jacob to her brother Laban's home in Haran.

The modern world can well apply this lesson. Men are greedy today for material possessions, sacrificing principle and self-respect for wealth. Many are victims of their own appetite, illustrated in yielding to desires of various vices, surrendering completely to many and ending up in disaster. Self-control is desirable in every activity and relationship. There is no greater truth than that contained in the following words of Tennyson: "Self-reverence, self-control—these three alone lead life to sovereign power."

CARD OF THANKS
May I express my sincere appreciation to every club woman in the Seventh district for assisting with the convention, for each club for its contribution toward expenses. Also, to the members and clubs for their excellent numbers on the various programs, and to the various local, district and state officers in our midst who did so much toward making the meeting outstanding in every way. Certainly no stone was left unturned, no deed undone. The district has long been noted for its projects begun several years ago by Mrs. W. P. Mayo, then Governor; truly this last one, that of entertaining the convention in such a noble way, tops them all. May we ever go forward to newer and higher achievements and continue to focus attention and interest on our beloved hills and the people who live therein. Every club did its part, every member helped, those behind the scenes were no less important than those in the limelight for the moment. The happiest moment for me during the convention was when I could say my district spoke for itself because it was the best.

Gratefully yours,
MRS. EDGAR R. MAY,
Governor,
Seventh District KFWC.

TO OUR GRADUATES

In the life of the average boy and girl few occasions stand out in memory to compare with the thrill of graduation from high school.

In Floyd county the schools will soon celebrate the graduation of another class by the staging of commencement exercises during which the students will receive diplomas attesting to their proficiency and intelligence. For many boys and girls this will mark the end of their opportunity to attend school but they should realize that it does not end their opportunity to learn.

The graduates of our schools and colleges today go into a world that is much improved when compared with conditions several years ago but nevertheless they face problems which some older citizens escaped. Many of them face the obvious search for employment and the opportunity to make their way life and, unfortunately, there is little certainty that all those who deserve the opportunity to work will be lucky enough to find it.

The Times hopes that the boys and girls who graduate in this county will continue their studies if it be possible for them to do so. They will find their time well spent and reap an appropriate reward later in life. At the same time, we trust that those who must immediately seek their economic fortune will not forget the days of study or come to the conclusion that they have learned all that they need.

We take this opportunity of congratulating all students in this county who have completed their school courses and therefore receive appropriate diplomas at this time. It is really an epoch in life and the occasion marks the end of an era that will live long in memory but will never return.

Prestonsburg, whether you believe it or not, is just as good, and no better than hundreds of other places in the United States. However, Prestonsburg is your home and you can make it what you want it to be.

Most communities wait for surplus money to plan improvements when, as a matter of fact, the time of individuals is all that is necessary, and every citizen could afford to donate some time.

Citizens of Floyd county might remember, just as they start out on automobile journeys, that the death rate on the highways is going up.

dens at the University of Kentucky, Mrs. W. T. Lafayette, of Lexington, announced. Mrs. H. F. King presented a clever comical skit, appearing as an aged mountain woman selling produce to the safe owner after which she read several of her own poems which received such an ovation she was asked to appear again on the program the night of the banquet, at which time she gave a reading in Convention Hats, inspired by the headgear worn by convention celebrities. The editor of the Kentucky Club Woman will use some of Mrs. King's poems in the next issue.

The lovely hand-made badges, work of the Lackey-Garrett Club, worn as hostess insignia by the entire district evoked much admiration. Ribbons and badges for delegates, officers and committees constitute cherished keepsakes as to the many memos presented by Pikeville institutions and individuals. The Garrett-Lackey Club, of which Mrs. Ruth Sturgill is the splendid president, was well represented at every session.

One of the high lights of Seventh's participation on the program was the selection of Mrs. Iley B. Browning, of Ashland, Mesdames Rule and Cottrell accompanying and assisting her. Eastern Kentucky has long been proud to claim Mrs. Browning as her own, never was her lovely voice more beautiful or more enthusiastically received on the opening night of the convention. The district was again honored when Mrs. Edith James, who delighted last year's convention in Harrodsburg, appeared on the program the closing night with two numbers which showed the range of Mrs. James' voice, one of the best known throughout the state.

All the national speakers were excellent. Space prevents report of their talks which were both inspirational and informative. While paying tribute to Seventh not only as a marvelous hostess but as an outstanding district in every way, we must mention that Mrs. Hammett, national chairman of Safety who spoke on Wednesday evening, complimented very highly the work of Mrs. J. D. Mayo, our district chairman on Safety. Mrs. Mayo has put through a splendid program which has won the praise of state and national superiors.

Other clubs and individuals in the district wish to thank Mrs. Langley and the Pikeville club for their efficient leadership and management since the burden of work and planning fell to them. Certainly no one has or could surpass them. Everything was done for the delight and comfort of the visitors whose praise and appreciation rang daily through the halls. Mention cannot be made of all who helped to make the convention such a success, but appreciation is due all, from the least up to Mrs. Langley, who has worked for a year with it in view, and carried it off in a way worthy of her own standing and personality.

Those who missed the banquet missed the best part of all, for it was beautiful beyond description, featuring Constitution Day, with decorations in patriotic colors, miniature flags, and menus as favors.

The Seventh District presented corsages to Mrs. W. P. Mayo, Mrs. Stanley Combs and Mrs. E. R. May, presentation being made by Mrs. Ed Stephens. In the center of the official table the American flag rose from a stand, ribbons extending from it to each end of the table. The base was surrounded with carnations in red, white and blue, and red and white peonies amidst rhododendron leaves ran the length of the table on a red ribbon. After an appropriate speech, Mrs. E. R. May, district governor presented the silk flag as a gift to Mrs. Paul Wickliffe whom the district was thus honoring before Mrs. Wick-

Mrs. John Harvey, recording secretary of the General Federation, addressed the assembly on the subject, "Be-ware the Halo." No talk throughout the entire convention was more inspiring than hers, no speaker more fascinating.

the hospital grounds Thursday afternoon when Japanese cherry trees were dedicated to Mrs. Heyser, of Pikeville, chairman of American Citizenship until her death in April. This was one of the most impressive part of the convention program. The state chairman of press, expressed an open regret that pictures were not made of the scene. Both resolutions sponsored by Mrs. Combs in connection with the work of her department, were adopted with enthusiasm, also that submitted by the Prestonsburg Club.

One of the most attractive features of the entire program was the Wild Flower Breakfast honoring Past Presidents of the state organization and Governors. Mrs. J. D. Mayo, of Prestonsburg, decorated the tables with wild flowers planted in small jardineries which delegates were presented on request. Mrs. W. P. Mayo contributed hand-painted place cards with Kentucky wild flowers on them.

As a result of this breakfast and the motif carried out, the club women were asked to send wild flowers from this section to the Botanical Gar-

CONTRACT LET

Continued from page one by Levi J. Dean, architect, Huntington, W. Va., being the same architect who drew the plans for the Garrett high school now under construction at Garrett. Latest school architecture incorporated in the plans will insure a modern school plant for Betsy Layne. When interviewed Mr. Hall, county superintendent, said: "I am delighted to see Betsy Layne's school go up along with the fine building being constructed at Garrett. Both communities are much alive and school conscious. Both communities have a wonderful school spirit and atmosphere and both towns deserve the finest buildings we can construct with available funds. The new building at Garrett will make that place one of the best school plants this side of Ashland. The Betsy Layne building is a great improvement over the structure that was recently destroyed by fire, and will be one of the finest school plants in the county."

Other business transacted at the short session of the county board Saturday was: The date for the beginning of all one, two and three teacher schools next school year was set at July 5, 1937. All four-teacher schools and above, including high schools, were set to begin Aug. 23. Beginning schools early, Mr. Hall said, will make it possible for many children to attend school longer. Many children are prevented from attending school in the winter season because of a deficiency in clothes and shoes. These same children, however, will find little difficulty in attending school during the early days of July. Besides, high schools will close two weeks earlier next year because they are being started two weeks earlier. This will greatly facilitate work on the farm and in the gardens next spring. In addition, every school will greatly reduce the cost of fuel bills by starting early.

Work on the Garrett building is progressing nicely, it is reported. All the foundation and footers have been completed, and the brick are on the ground ready for laying.

The board of education advertised at its Saturday meeting for the construction of a 10-room brick high school building near Wheelwright Junction between the towns of Melvin and Weeksbury and Wheelwright and Burton. Contract is to be let June 5, 1937.

The people of Dwale petitioned the superintendent for an election to vote on the question of whether they continue to pay their graded school tax of 25c to hundred dollars. The election was held Saturday between 1 and 3 p. m., and 45 citizens voted to keep the tax on, while 18 voted to take it off and revert to a seven months school. Hence the tax by a vote of the people at Dwale themselves stays on. Dwale has a two-teacher grade school with 100 pupils in its census. It has just closed a nine-months school term.

He also pointed out that the proportion of denials because of ineligibility is increasing rapidly in as much as the most destitute cases were given priority in the early months of the program.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

BY Gordon Wilson, Ph.D.

WESTERN KENTUCKY TEACHERS COLLEGE BOWLING GREEN, KY.

Why Do Institutions Pass?

"The earth does move," said Galilea, and he was right. Just about the time we think everything is settled, Columbus, or some other dreamer, comes along and unsettles everything. Sometimes the change is for the better, sometimes it is not; usually it is merely different. There always comes a time of adjustment after every change, when some cling to the old, some accept the new, and the rest of us halt between the old and the new, reluctant to change. Memory attaches to what we knew and did when we were young and probably this causes most of the ache we feel at giving up the old for the new. At all ages of the world, because of the reactions to change, there have been left-overs from time long past. No new idea takes the world by storm; the world is too much accustomed by spellbinders of all sorts to accept all they say. Suppose, to borrow a logical figure, we could be living in a world where saurians were roaming the jungles, where saber-toothed tigers and mammoths were fighting for supremacy, where cave men abounded and, at the same time, where aeroplanes were flying over the ocean, where scientific expeditions were setting out to hunt saurians and photograph them instead of merely finding their petrified eggs, and where kings of the Cannibal Islands were voyaging to distant lands in submarines. Though these things may not happen in a normal world, something similar is forever going on. There the living fossils in our language that were supposedly dead before William the Conqueror crossed the English Channel. Here are customs so much older than recorded history that all of men's records look recent.

In spite of the numerous left-overs, we all can see that the years between the Civil War and our time brought more changes than any similar period of history. The break-up of the old plantation system had much to do with this; the westward movement was another contributing cause. The industrial revolution, though older than Civil War times, did not make itself felt in every section until the end of free land, about 1890. Popular education is also responsible for the rapid standardization of our lives. From the one-room school, with a teacher barely an eighth grade graduate, to the modern four-year high school and a college or university graduate for a teacher we have progressed in Kentucky within a quarter of a century. Then transportation has wiped out old lines, so that it is not at all unusual for the remotest country people to have traveled entirely across the continent, people, too, whose immediate ancestors did well to know places 50 or 60 miles away. Wherever people have gone, they have acquired new ideas and have thus loosened their hold on their old ways. Standardization of vehicles, of speech, of customs, and almost of thought has made it rather hard on customs that were peculiar to a certain locality or to a certain family. The remotest places of the world are closer now by radio than the county seat used to be; it would be hard to find a neighborhood where some one could not tell you the latest news, American or foreign. All of these conduce to a different set of habits, from wearing clothes like all the rest of the world to setting your clock with the time announced over the radio rather than by a shadow cast on the kitchen floor.

Fighting Infantile Paralysis

Infantile paralysis has not been conquered like small-pox, diphtheria and so many other scourges of mankind. However, it seems that a beginning has been made which may prove of inestimable service in combatting this disabling and crippling illness. Paul de Kruif is secretary of the commission that has charge of the research work on infantile paralysis. I shall make use in this article of statements for which Dr. De Kruif is authority. The microbe of this strange malady is probably everywhere present. It doubtless "tackles" everybody, yet for every child it maims or kills, it makes hundreds of boys and girls, and even babies immune-resistant, permanently, for life. Every child that has the disease develops within his blood a substance that makes it practically impossible for him to have the disease again. You naturally inquire "if the blood of those who have acquired immunity from this sinister plague cannot be injected into children with immunity and thus protect them against the dread poliomyelites?"

No, the blood of those who have had the disease has no power to protect or guard other children from an attack. Serum holds no hope of prevention or cure of the malady. It is the nerve cells of the brain and spinal cord that are attacked by the small microbes of infantile paralysis. No one can find safety in quarantine for himself or his children, because the disease is apt to be spread by the sick. The outlook for prevention is now much more hopeful than formerly, because we are reasonably certain that the microbes find entrance into the body thru the nose. Infantile paralysis, as we have said, attacks the nerves of the body. "Inside the noses of monkeys and children they have spied a curious little doorway by which and thru which alone, this death can enter. Up in the rock, the very vault of monkeys' and children's noses, lie the tiny hairline ending of the nerves of smell. They are the only nerves in all the body that are completely naked to the outside world. They pass from the nose through the bottom of the skull direct to the brain. This and this alone is the one pathway by which it is surely known that the dreadful paralytic death can force entry."

When it was found out by what portal the deadly microbes entered the body Charles Armstrong, a research worker, set to work to discover how the port of entry could be blocked against them. For three years he experimented on monkeys. "Day after day he washes the insides of monkeys' noses with a weak solution of picric acid and alum. That way he coats, he galvanizes, you might say, those delicate nerve endings. Then he waits six days, lets those galvanized monkeys rest. Then day after day, he pours into their nostrils terrific doses of the infantile paralysis virus. "And this absolutely simple, harmless, preventive saves 24 out of 25 monkeys from a hot, dangerous virus that kills 20 out of 26 monkeys whose noses have not been washed out with the solution of picric acid plus alum."

The change from monkeys to children was made in the epidemic that raged in Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi in the summer of 1936.

"Quotations"

Just as we use money with business needs, so we need manners for our daily needs.—Michael Arlen.

War is not a relic of barbarism, but the fruit of the system under which we live.—Devere Allen.

A man of forty is not too old to have made up his mind about many things and too young not to be willing to change it.—George Boas.

The silver lining to the world depression is woman's chance to prove she really is man's helpmate.—Elinor Glyn.

Don't Sleep When Gas Presses Heart

If you want to really GET RID OF GAS and terrible bloating, don't expect to do it by just doctoring your stomach with harsh, irritating alkalies and "gas tablets." Most GAS is lodged in the stomach and upper intestine and is due to old poisonous matter in the distended bowels that are loaded with ill-causing bacteria.

If your constipation is of long standing, enormous quantities of dangerous bacteria accumulate. Then your digestion is upset. GAS often presses heart and lungs, making life miserable. You can't eat or sleep. Your head aches. Your back aches. Your complexion is sallow and pimply. Your breath is foul. You are a sick, grouchy, wretched unhappy person. YOUR SYSTEM IS POISONED.

Thousands of sufferers have found in Adlerika the quick, scientific way to rid their systems of harmful bacteria. Adlerika rids you of gas and cleans foul poisons out of BOTH upper and lower bowels. Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika. Get rid of GAS. Adlerika does not gripe—is not habit forming. At all Leading Druggists.

To mediate is to get into the middle of a thing; to study it deeply.—Gerard B. F. Hallock.

Sure death to ants

Ants are hard to kill, but Peterman's Ant Food is made especially to get them and get them fast. Destroys red ants, black ants, others—kills young and eggs, too. Sprinkle along windows, doors, any place where ants come and go. Safe. Effective 24 hours a day. 25¢, 35¢ and 60¢ at your druggist's.

Man's Way

When a man is wrong and won't admit it, he always gets angry.—Haliburton.

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance.

You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

"WHY Mollie R., are you going out again? My own mother has become a gadabout and all because she made herself such a pretty new dress. Really, Ma, those soft graceful lines make you look lots slimmer. I think the long rippling collar has a good deal to do with it. Or maybe it's because the skirt fits where it should and has plenty of room at the bottom."

"Yes, My Darling Daughter."

"Daughter, dear, how you do run on! Imitate Sis; put your apron on and have the dusting done when I get back from the Civic Improvement League meeting. And speaking of aprons, that is the cleverest one Sis ever had. I love the way it crosses in the back."

"So do I, Mom, and see how it covers up my dress all over. Good-by, Mom, have a good time."

Sisterly Chit Chat.

"Sis, run upstairs for my apron, won't you? I wouldn't have a spot on this, my beloved model, for all the world. It's my idea of smooth: all these buttons; no belt; these here new puffed sleeves; and this flare that's a flare."

"Just you wait, Miss, till I grow up! Your clothes won't have a look in because I've already begun to Sew-My-Own. All right, I'm going."

And so on well into the afternoon!

Injured in 1919

Scalf, who lives at Whit-taker, Ky., near the Johnson county line, was injured 18 years ago in a slate fall mine at Banner, Ky. He is now paralyzed below his hips. He says that he is getting no compensation.

He attributes his poor appearance to a deterioration to not worry, despite handicaps.

"Above all," he stated phatically, "give me credit for what she's done. She was only 19 when I was hurt, but has stood beside me waiting on me like she would a baby. Most young women wouldn't have done it."

Coming back to the merits of a new wheelchair, he is not fastidious about "styling, mileage and materials," he merely needs a wheelchair and hopes it will be as good as "Old Ball in."

"I never thought America could do it"

Nobody could blame Bohemia for being proud of her beer. For centuries connoisseurs paid tribute to the skill of her brewmasters. So, when Bohemia salutes the excellence of an American-made beer, it must be distinctive.

Yes, as early as November 3, 1903, Bohemia's Experimental Station for the Industry of Brewing reported officially that America's BUDWEISER equaled Bohemia's best brews on every test and, in some, excelled them.

Would you like to know why? You also will find the answer in every bottle of BUDWEISER you drink.
