

DRIVERLESS AUTO TO APPEAR HERE IN SAFETY PARADE

Parade Is Sponsored by Ky. Safety Commission and Local Clubs

18 ORGANIZATIONS ARE CO-OPERATING

Parade Will Start at 3:30 p. m. Tuesday, November 22nd

Wending its way through the downtown section of Prestonsburg, November 22, a driverless "magic" automobile, will be the high spot of the safety parade to be sponsored here by the Kentucky State Safety Commission and civic clubs.

The driverless car will be followed by Capt. John J. (Wild Jim) Lynch, ex-cowboy, dare-devil, and movie stunt man, riding in an automobile 30 feet in the rear. His fingers will tap a telegraph key, and the magic driverless car in front will obey every signal.

It will start, stop, make proper turns, and sound its own horn, without a human being in it, to demonstrate safe driving as advocated by the safety commission.

Mayor A. C. Carter is issuing a proclamation denoting November 22 as official Safety Parade Day in Prestonsburg.

Explaining that safety lectures left a "sour taste" in the mouth of everyone, Lynca said the driverless automobile would provide high spirits and interest so that everyone could absorb the subject voluntarily. He explained that the only connection between the magic car and the one in which he followed would be the strand of telegraph wire. A certain number of taps on Wild Jim's telegraph key will cause the driverless auto to perform a certain operation. R. R. Clined, advance man of the safety commission, invites business men, civic, women's, and fraternal organizations to participate in the parade.

THIS TOWN— THAT WORLD

WE WONDER

News reports Armistice Day carried the story of a man who shocked staid Britishers when he disrupted King George's two-minute tribute of silence for the World War dead, to shout, "It's hypocrisy. You're now preparing for war." It was said that the man had recently escaped from an insane asylum and that he was agitated. We wonder.

The report also stated that the man would not be prosecuted. Not prosecuted?

We wonder if this man was under fire for Britain in France. If he endured privation, disease, gas, and wounds. If he endured shell-shock and really was crazy. We wonder.

WE'LL TAKE STEPS

Three of us, each named James Goble, were standing in Clark's Drug the other night when someone thrust his head in the door and yelled, "Hey, James Goble!" James Goble, son of W. C. Goble, nearly ran over me on the way out, and James Goble, son of Printer Goble, nudged me with his elbow as he suddenly turned.

I don't know if the shout, "James Goble," was heard by the James Goble residing at Cow Creek, or the James Goble residing at Auxier, or the James Goble and son of Porter Addition, but I do know that half a dozen James Gobles living in the immediate vicinity is too many James Gobles.

We receive each other's mail-order catalogs, dry-cleaning, bills, letters, and keep postoffice authorities

MURDER CASES SLATED FOR TRIAL

24 of 494 Cases On January Docket Charge Defendants With Murder

An even two dozen murder cases are slated for trial at the January term of the Floyd circuit court, the docket released this week by Circuit Clerk Troy B. Sturgill shows.

Two or three of the defendants in these cases have never been arrested and the docket will be lightened by that number unless their captures are effected by the court opening date.

Altogether, 494 cases comprise the docket, with the defendants accused of offenses from common drunkenness on through almost the whole gamut of crime.

Despite all these alleged offenses and the recent crime orgy which prompted Circuit Judge John W. Caudill to empanel a special grand jury, only 19 of the cases on the docket are for carrying a concealed deadly weapon.

Murder defendants and the dates on which their trials are scheduled follow:

- Bob Stephens, Jan. 3 (not before the court); Will Reynolds and Ed Clay, Jan. 3; Bill Johnson and Ed Gearheart, Jan. 6; Willie Oliver Stephens and Mims Porter, Jan. 7; Matt Jones, Jan. 10; Vernon Combs, Jan. 10; Barney Sealf and Ella Stratton, Jan. 11; Russell Johnson, Jan. 12; Dingus Cole, Jan. 12; Dora Mitchell and Winifred Roberts, Jan. 13; Will Branham, Jan. 14; Jessie Vance, Evan Frasure and Ernest Frasure, Jan. 14; Bob Keiffer, Jan. 14; Jimmie Caudill, Jan. 17; Ed Fleming, Jan. 17; Mary Belle George, Jan. 17; Bob Collins, Jan. 18; Levi Johnson, Joe Ward, George Phillips and Lucy Ward, Jan. 20; Lafayette Johnson, Charlie Johnson and Ruth Elswick, Jan. 20; Pharis Porter, Martha Porter, Ralph Porter and Lige Porter, Jan. 21; Pharis Porter and Martha Porter, Jan. 21.

Called by Illness of Mr. Heinze

Mrs. Harry Sallada, of Ashland, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Tobie Johnson, Welch, W. Va., and Miss Rachel Gravely, Columbus, O., were called here last week by the critical illness of F. L. Heinze. Mr. Heinze several days ago was stricken by paralysis and remains very ill at his home here. His many friends and business associates throughout this section are hopeful of his ultimate recovery.

Blast, Followed By Silence, Taps, Symbolize Armistice

A blast of dynamite discharged on the hill overlooking Prestonsburg indicated at 10:45 o'clock last Thursday morning that at that hour, 19 years ago, the thunder of the cannons was yet to be heard on the battle fields of France, but, 15 minutes later, silence reigned and a baggie blew taps for the war that was dead. Thus did Floyd Post No. 123, American Legion, begin the observance here of Armistice Day.

Gathered at the courthouse, the Legionnaires, county and city officials and citizens heard Congressman A. J. May, of the Military Affairs Committee, national House of Representatives, deliver a timely and very impressive address. The parade, led by the local drum and bugle corps of the Sons of the Legion, boys' auxiliary to the American Legion, followed. Bringing up the rear of the line of march was the American Red Cross float in white and red, with Miss Sue Martha Ransdell, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Marvin Ransdell, later, silence reigned and a baggie portraying the role of the nurse. Franklin May, son of Mr. and Mrs. Colonel May, appeared as the wounded soldier. The tableau thus presented was one of the highlights of the opening by Floyd chapter of its annual Roll Call which extends from Armistice Day until Thanksgiving.

Ed Sutton, Langley, commander of Floyd Post, expressed the hope that the Legion here will annually take a greater interest in the observance of Armistice Day.

CARTER CRITICIZES WATER COMPANY "Dilatory Tactics" Is Charged by Mayor Arthur C. Carter

Mayor A. C. Carter this week severely criticized the Prestonsburg Water Company for what he termed dilatory tactics in completing changes it had started in the water system where street-widening work is being done by the Works Progress Administration.

He contends that the company is not making a conscientious effort to rush its work to completion and thus is not only impeding work on the streets but also is greatly inconveniencing business men and the public.

Mayor Carter said that, of all the businesses affected by the street improvements, the water company is the only firm yet to refuse to contribute toward the purchase of cement. Despite this fact, he said, that WPA workmen were replacing parts of the streets torn up by water company employes in sinking water lines deeper.

Akers Injured When Trapped By Rockfall

F. M. Akers, brother of Mrs. W. B. Boyd, of Prestonsburg, sustained painful back injuries Saturday when caught beneath a rock which fell from the roof of a country "coal bank" on Prater Creek. He is recovering, it was said this week.

Swift Silver Mine Found In Wolfe County Is Claim

Now, after long years down all of world's noted gold and silver which has rung the story of Swift's pert, Prof. D. J. Damarest, of Ohio State University, Columbus, O., to a yarn which claims that the once-legendary store of fabulous wealth several days here going through the canyon, at which time they found the grave of J. C. Blackburn, one of Swift's partners. On the rock his name was carved, dated 1825. Also was found the turtle rock with the turkey feet, and about a dozen rocks with markings that tally with Colly's "History of Kentucky." Also was found a rock with the words, "Swift, an unquenchable hope, scoured the hills, poking about every obscure nook and corner for the silver hoard. And right in Eastern Kentucky early this month it was found—if, indeed, the find be Swift's."

The Wolfe County Herald (Camp-ton, Ky.) tells the story: "After weeks of tense examination and assay, work has begun in earnest at the Swift gold and silver mine at Pine Ridge, Wolfe county. The long sought for is now found and is a reality. "Last week J. N. Kopf, head of the county, as we have learned there is Swift mine, brought one of the Attempting to lessen automobile accidents in Prestonsburg, the city council at its regular meeting last week passed an ordinance prohibiting overnight parking on Carter boulevard within the city limits. Cars may be parked for a limit of three hours, but no longer, Mayor A. C. Carter said, following the meeting.

Other ordinances passed dealt with the act of private individuals tapping city sewer lines and the matter of securing building permits. As the W. P. A. street construction now in progress has revealed inferior and damaging workmanship on sewer lines where workmen have either tapped or dugged into them, the council prohibits such action and a fine of $19.50 will be assessed upon a person so doing without a supervisor appointed by the council.

The third ordinance proclaims that all persons wanting to erect buildings must secure a permit from the city council. Mayor Carter said that in this way the sewer situation would be bettered and that fire hazards would be eliminated by regulated chimneys.

The council decided that the vacancy caused by the dismissal of Policeman Arthur Blackburn will not be filled.

APPEALS COURT FLEES BED-BUGS

When radiators were turned on in the Capitol building early this week, bed-bugs, enlivened by the heat, crawled forth to dispatch Kentucky's highest jurists, who vacated their meeting place in search of other quarters.

Members of the court expressed the belief that the vermin horde might have been left by flood refugees quartered in the building last winter.

The court adjourned to the conference room while workmen combated the unwanted guests.

APPEALS COURT ORDERS BAISDEN RE-INSTALLED

The Floyd County Board of Education acted "arbitrarily" in removing R. H. Baisden from its membership, the Court of Appeals ruled last Friday. Baisden was removed after he had failed to attend three successive board meetings, and Jeff Moles was appointed to fill the vacancy.

The non-attendance of Baisden was not his fault, but was due to neglect of the board of education in notifying Baisden of the change of meeting dates, the Court of Appeals held. The court ordered the local board to set aside its order removing Baisden and its appointment of Moles.

DENTAL CLINIC PLANNED HERE

To Be Permanent Feature of Health Department Each Wednesday

What is considered the first dental clinic sponsored by a rural health department in Kentucky will soon be inaugurated by the Floyd county health department with the cooperation of the local Woman's Club.

Designed primarily for the treatment of indigent school children in outlying districts, the clinic will be held each Wednesday afternoon, as soon as the necessary equipment is installed.

Most of the equipment to be used has been received locally as gifts, most of which came from the Crutcher Dental Laboratory, Louisville.

Dr. Ransdell, Floyd county health department director, said that three local dentists have agreed to give their services one-half day each Wednesday afternoon, following each other in rotation. The dentists are: M. J. Leete, J. S. Kelly and C. R. Slone.

Dr. Ransdell added that there are approximately 16,000 school children in Floyd county, and that of this number, about 15,000 would be found with dental defects.

When operating, the clinic can treat four to six children each clinic day. Patients will be brought to the health department by doctors, nurses, teachers, or any responsible citizen of Floyd county, but an appointment with Dr. Ransdell must first be arranged.

ILLNESS OF HEINZE DELAYS ROLL CALL

Delayed by the illness of F. L. Heinze, roll call chairman for the Red Cross, the local Red Cross roll call was opened last Friday in Floyd county. The canvassing of Prestonsburg did not begin until Monday. The annual call throughout the nation began Armistice Day.

Key-persons have been appointed by Mr. Heinze to serve in each community in the campaign which has a quota membership of 1,865. Efforts are being made to reach this goal by Thanksgiving.

Subscriptions in arrears after December 10 will be cancelled.

HUEYSVILLE, SCENE OF TRAGEDIES ON SUCCESSIVE DAYS

Baby, 14-Year-Old Boy Are Victims; Four Others Injured

AUTHORITIES SEEK HIT-RUN MOTORIST

Family of Five in Car Which Plunges Over Cliff Onto Railway Tracks

Two persons are dead and four others lie injured, one critically, as the result of auto tragedies occurring on successive days of the past week-end at Hueysville, this county.

Charlie Howard, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Will Howard, of Salt Lick Creek, was fatally injured late Saturday afternoon when struck by a hit-run driver as he stood at the roadside near the junction of the Salt Lick-Beaver Creek roads. He died Sunday morning at 5:40 o'clock in the Stumbo Memorial hospital, Lackey, of a compound fracture at the base of the femur.

Almost exactly 24 hours later, seven-months-old Orlena Kilburn, suffered a fatal skull injury when her mother, Mrs. Flora Kilburn, backed an auto containing the entire family of five over the precipitous declivity bordering the highway, within a few yards of where young Howard was struck.

The auto dropped approximately 40 feet onto the tracks of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, and was practically demolished. William Kilburn, miner, father of the little victim, was later reported near death as the result of a skull fracture. Mrs. Kilburn suffered severe cuts and bruises. The Kilburns' two other children, William, Jr., 5, and Mickey, 3, also

HEALTH NEWS

Compiled by Dr. Marvin Ransdel
Director, Floyd County Health Dept.

Comparatively few people realize the importance of consulting a physician as soon as possible after symptoms appear, or as soon as there is reason to think they have been exposed to infection. If the infected person gets under treatment immediately after exposure or before the blood becomes positive, he has a 95 per cent chance of cure. If he waits as long as a month his chances are reduced to 95 per cent. If he is totally irregular in receiving treatment his chances are much further reduced. The cure he receives must be competent.

Syphilis can seldom be diagnosed with certainty from its outward manifestations alone, even by experts. Often there are no outward signs. The laboratory of the microscope, or both, must be used as aids in diagnosis.

When after a year or more of persistent treatment repeated examinations show satisfactory progress, the patient may hope that not only an arrest but a cure of the disease has been or will be accomplished. He may eventually be discharged as cured, but he will need to have periodic examinations by his physician for several years to make sure.

Summary of the Consequences of Syphilis

Sir William Osler, the great physician and teacher, said that syphilis is the greatest killer among the infectious. Statisticians say that about one in 20 of the whole population have it.

It is responsible for many children being born diseased, most of whom die.

It is the cause of many abortions, miscarriages, and still-births (children born dead).

It is the cause of 15 per cent of all blindness.

It is the cause of paresis or softening of the brain.

It is the cause of locomotor ataxia.

It is often the cause of apoplectic and paralytic strokes.

It is the cause of a large proportion of cases of disease of the heart and blood vessels.

It may affect the kidneys, stomach, and other vital organs.

It decreases one's earning capacity.

It decreases the length of life.

Because of the fear of being branded with immorality, thousands of people have made a tragic and needless sacrifice of life and happiness. Too often they appeal to the medical charlatan and the advertising quack. There is no quick way to cure syphilis. No one, except qualified private physicians or experienced members of hospital or clinic staffs, is competent to give the skilled treatment that is required to cure syphilis and other venereal diseases. Many of the larger cities have established free venereal disease dispensaries to which are attached staffs of specialists, and these dispensaries give treatment to the afflicted individuals who cannot afford to go to private physicians. Any health officer can give information about these dispensaries.

Self-treatment and the use of advertised medicines or "nostrums" are worse than useless. Syphilis can be cured only by certain special drugs, freshly prepared and carefully administered by trained persons. The quack does not know what the proper remedies are or how to give them. While he is administering fake remedies, the disease is spreading unchecked through the body of the infected person. While the patient thinks that he is being cured, he is wasting his money, losing his health, and risking his life and that of his intimate associates.

The Value of a Health Examination

Every person should have a competent doctor look him over at least once a year. Only a doctor can properly diagnose his physical condition. A thorough examination will often bring to light evidence of serious diseases like cancer, tuberculosis, diseased heart, or syphilis at a time when these conditions can be arrested or even cured.

Syphilis as a disease can be conquered only when mothers and fathers and their children become informed about the way it is spread and its insidious attack, and come to realize that the reliable physician is a friend to whom one should go immediately for assistance upon the first suspicion of having been exposed to danger. A knowledge of these facts is needed to prevent it.

Information on these matters may be secured by writing to the American Social Hygiene Association, 50 West 50th Street, New York, N. Y., or to your city or state department of health.

Note: Syphilis is only one of the group of diseases known as the venereal diseases. They are so named because they are usually acquired through sexual contact. Gonorrhea is another of this group—a disease entirely distinct and not to be confused with syphilis. Gonorrhea is caused by a microscopic organism which brings about acute inflammation and discharge, especially in the mucous linings of the sex organs, and less frequently in the eyes and other parts of the body. It is highly infectious, and causes pain and serious damage to both sexes, especially to women. It is the cause of many serious abdominal operations on women. It is a frequent cause of sterility in either sex. If the germs get into the eyes of the newborn baby during the process of birth, without treatment blindness may ensue. Gonorrhea is a difficult disease to cure, and the only wise advice which may be given anyone infected is "go to a competent doctor at once."

SAVE MANURE

(George Roberts Kentucky College of Agriculture)

With winter feeding season at hand, farmers should give serious consideration to the saving of manure. There is too little realization of its value and of the great losses that take place.

Each thousand pounds of live weight of stock on the farm produces on the average approximately 10 tons of manure annually, containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium worth $2 to $2.50 per ton at commercial fertilizer prices. Measured by crop producing value, it may be worth much more than this amount. The loss of manure in Kentucky through improper handling amounts to 15 to 20 million dollars annually.

About three-fourths of the nitrogen and phosphorus and nine-tenths of the potassium in the feed of animals is voided in the solid and liquid manure. More than one-third of the nitrogen and about two-thirds of the potassium are in the liquid manure. Great loss takes place unless enough bedding is used to absorb the liquid. If bedding can be obtained in no other way, weeds and wild grass might be cut before the seed matures and cure them for bedding. Even dry forest leaves might be used. It is good practice to cut corn and feed the stover in the stalls, thus leaving a large residue of stalks to absorb urine. The corn stalks themselves are much more valuable for the soil when used in this way. It would be cheaper to buy bedding than to buy fertilizer to replace the loss of manure.

Unless stalls must be cleaned frequently, as in the case of dairies, it is good practice to allow manure to accumulate in the stalls where it will be moist and packed, thus excluding air and preventing heating.

If manure must be removed from stalls frequently and stored it should either be stored under a shed and kept compact or it should be piled in deep ricks from straight sides and kept compact. Keeping the pile wet helps to prevent heating, but water should not run through the pile as it will carry out nitrogen and potassium. The loose piles of manure so commonly seen in barnyards are the source of large losses.

Manure spread in the winter time on land where there is no growth suffers a loss of nitrogen which is carried through the soil in time of heavy rain.

Manure spread in warm weather on ground for cultivated crops should be plowed or dished in as fast as it is spread, for the heat causes loss of nitrogen by volatilization. This may occur within an hour or two after spreading.

Manure that is dropped on pastures would be much more effective if it were scattered by some kind of drag before the fall rainy season.

Information on the care and use of manure will be sent on request addressed to the College of Agriculture, Lexington. Also plans for a manure shed will be furnished at the nominal cost of drawings.

MARTIN PURPLE FLASH DOWNS MAYTOWN, 16-11 FOR SEASON'S 3rd WIN

Leading all the way, Martin high school's basketball team, coached by Garland Lewis, defeated Maytown high school, last year's county champs, at Martin Friday night before a large crowd. It was the third win of the season for the Martin Purple Flash, who have been downed only once, by Hindman in a return game.

Martin, was high-scoring man of the game with eight points and was outstanding for Martin. Hayes was best for Maytown. The Martin defense was at its best in the last quarter, not allowing Maytown a single field goal.

Score by quarters:

	1	2	3	4
Martin	6	4	2	4	16
Maytown	4	4	2	1	11

The Purple Flash will tackle Elkhorn City in their next game next Friday, November 19, away from home, without the services of Griffith, forward, who is confined to the Beaver Valley hospital at Martin, taking precautionary measures against pneumonia.

Wildlife On The Farm

By Lucy Furman

RESTORING HELPFUL WILD LIFE

In the preceding article, we discussed the vexed question, what are vermin? There is never any question about birds—with the exception of three or four prodigious ones, they are altogether to the good. And yet, through indifference, the farmer has let 50 per cent of them be wiped out in our state in the last 20 years, and in the nation at large, they are now reduced to two to the acre.

This means tragedy for agriculture through the increase of insect enemies. Immediate steps should be taken by every farmer and land-owner for their restoration. The first thing necessary is to paint a number of "No Trespass" signs, and post them all around his boundaries; and thereafter to persecute any person who comes on his land unbidden.

Next, he must rid his place of all cats, if a pet one has to be kept, locking it up nights and belling it by day. Then he should let his fence rows grow up again in bushes, briars, trees, vines, weeds, thickets, as in the days of the old rail fence, particularly those plants that bear berries, fruit, haws, mast and seeds liked by birds, thus providing around each of his fields a broad border where the birds can find cover and food. His roadsides, rights-of-way, creek banks, gulches, stony and wet spots should be permitted to grow up thickly in the same way. Clean cultivation is death to birds. Adjoining the fence-rows, a row of grain or sunflowers should be left standing, or a shock or two of corn, to provide food and shelter during winter.

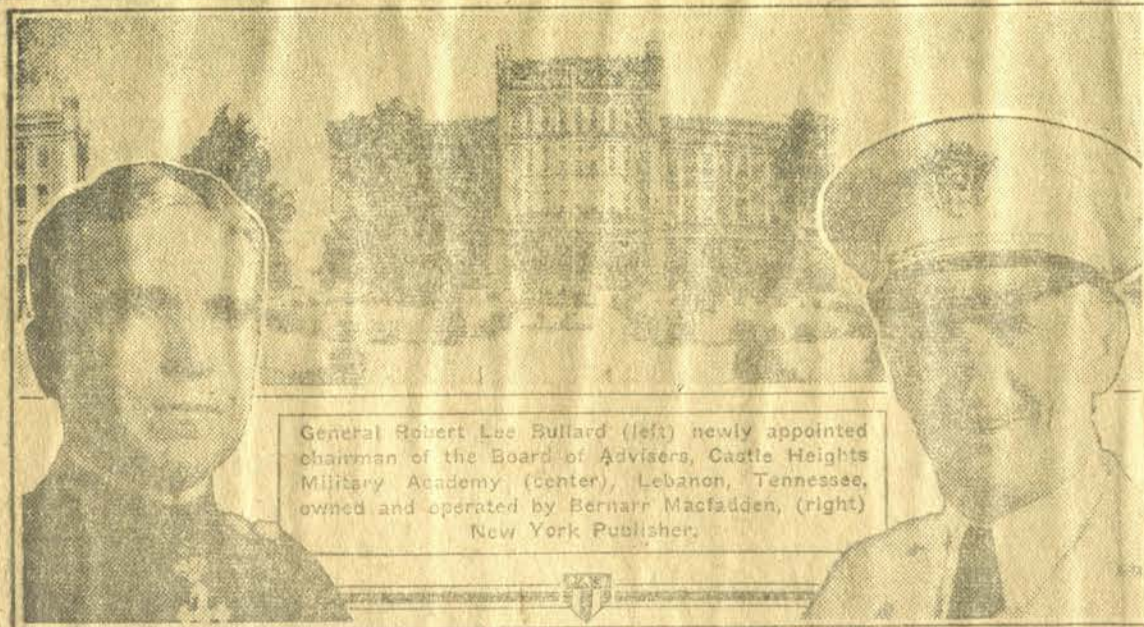

Clumps or hedges of evergreens are the best possible shelter from snow, and if lumps of suet, and a few ears of corn are tied in these, the life of many a quail dove, meadow lark, woodpecker or cardinal will be saved, and these will all be there to nest in the spring. No hunting of any kind should be done until many species have made homes, and a large increase. Careful watch should be kept of all kinds, so that the farmer may whether in den, tree, or hollow log, and their homes never disturbed until they are known to have made a good increase over and above the protective needs of the farm, when some discriminating trapping may be done. Skunk and red fox should never be trapped, being far more valuable in money as insect and rodent destroyers than their pelts can ever bring. If seen pursuing poultry, shoot them.

And even for questionable ones such as mink, weasel and opossum, or for unquestionable pests, like the stray cat, the ordinary steel-trap should never be used. It is not only know just what he has, and when there is a sufficient surplus of game birds to do a little shooting.

In like manner, watch should be kept on all home-making furbearers, most cruel, not killing, but holding in long torture, but it is the most wasteful of implements, more often than not taking, and ruining, wrong animals. During a dozen years past, the Anti-Steel-Trap League, and the American Fur-trade Association have been offering large money prizes for the invention of painless traps. Thousands of models have been submitted, a few of real value, and now on the market, the best being a chain-loop leg-holds, which take and hold animals without injury. From these the unwanted ones—too young furbearers or nursing mothers, as well as dogs, game-birds, etc.—can be liberated unharmed, thus saving much fur as well as pain, and the wanted ones decently shot. One of these chain-loop traps was substituted for a steel-trap last winter in a large Government department, the Indian Reservation, and Mr. Collier, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, writes that from the 70,000 square miles that has not come a complaint. So it is no longer necessary to trap by torture. The new traps cost a little more than the old. County agents know of them. But if the farmer does not wish to spend money for traps, the old deadfall, used by the Indians and pioneers, and, rightly made, killing instantly, is as humane a trap as can be found.

GENERAL Robert Lee Bullard, World War Commander of the First Division A.E.F., has accepted the Chairmanship of the Board of Advisors of the Castle Heights Military Academy, owned and operated by the Bernard Macfadden Foundation.

Robert Lee Bullard was born in Youngsboro, Alabama, in the deep South, on January 15, 1861. His first job was that of a country school teacher. Then came his appointment to West Point and the start of his soldiering career. After graduation, he saw action in the Apache campaign where he won his commission as Captain. Soon followed the Spanish American War here he led his 3rd Alabama Infantry to victory. After the war he became Governor of the district of Lanso, in the Philippines. In 1909-1915 he went back to teaching in the Army's War College at Washington.

When America entered the World War in 1917, General Bullard was commissioned a Major General in command of the First A.E.F. Division. Here his company won the first battle at Montdidier and became the spear-head of the American offensives, which crumpled the Marne silent.

In recognition for his able command and work he was promoted to rank next that of General Pershing and assigned the task of directing our new Second Army in a drive against the great stronghold of Metz. For his bravery as a field officer and in continual contact with the enemy, he won the nickname of "Counter-attack" Bullard. He was awarded the distinguished Service Medal, as well as various decorations by the Allied nations. He also received the honorary degrees of Doctor of Military Science from Pennsylvania Military College and LL.D. from Columbia University.

Still a teacher at heart, General Bullard's greatest interest is in the children of today; his ambition to build America's youth into the finest in the world. Therefore, he has accepted the post of Chairman of the Castle Heights Military Academy, which has an enrollment of 400 junior and senior students, from eight to eighteen years old. Here youngsters have the opportunity to receive a military training which will help build their bodies and minds up to a manly and commanding youth.

THE ROAD THAT SERVICE BUILT AND TRAINS ARE GOOD CITIZENS

As a taxpayer, Chesapeake and Ohio considers itself a "stockholder" in your community. It follows, naturally, this railroad is ever civic-minded—as are its employees. The Railroad With a Heart and members of its family also have a genuine interest in local affairs—and take pride in being good citizens...ask your mayor.

This attitude toward civic responsibilities on the part of Chesapeake and Ohio is the same at all points along its line. For this railroad realizes that its future growth is linked with the communities it serves. Here, as everywhere, it is "the road that service built."

MOTORCYCLE BOYS DRAW LARGE CROWDS

Portsmouth, Ohio, Bay, Ted Withrow, Wins Over Ray Cooksey, of Allen

(From Paintsville Herald)

The motorcycle hill-climb staged here last Sunday by the Eastern Kentucky Motorcycle Club was won by Ted Withrow, of Portsmouth, O.

Withrow, riding an 80 cu. in. Harley Davidson, went up 245 feet, beating Ray Cooksey, of Allen, Ky., who was riding a 61 cu. in. Harley Davidson, by 20 feet. Cooksey climbed 225 feet. Johnnie Hale, of Prestonsburg, took third place with a 74 cu. in. Harley Davidson. He went up 185 feet.

These reckless dare-devils, mounted on iron steeds, were riding up hills at 25 miles an hour, going down 10 to 15 feet embankments that were almost straight up and down, crossing ditches, branches, and gullies that looked impossible for a mule to go over.

But they went and came back and went again, over the six loops that made up the 10 miles and as many spills.

There were eight riders started and only three finished. Ray Cooksey, first; Junior Ball, second; Tuffy Griffith, third. One only had to look at these boys to know how hard the grind was. They were dripping perspiration and when flagged at the end of the race they were sure glad to get off their motorcycles and get some rest.

Rural Young Folk Deserting 'Swing' For Serious Music, Expert Declares

"SWING" may be king in the cities, but America's rural youth are showing an increasing interest in opera, symphonies and other forms of "serious music."

That is the report of Ray A. Turner, of the Extension Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, and Mr. Turner is probably in as good a position to know as anyone in the country. As conductor of the music appreciation program of the National 4-H Club radio broadcast, he is the unofficial music counselor to 1,500,000 young people, most of them in the rural sections.

"We receive thousands of letters from young people who listen in," said Mr. Turner. "Naturally this volume of mail gives us a pretty good idea of what young rural America is thinking and feeling."

"We find that more and more of these young folks are calling for serious music. The broadcast of an aria from an opera, together with a description of the work and comment on the composer, will bring a flood of requests for other numbers from the opera. Or 4-H Club members become interested in a composer whom they have heard on the broadcast, and ask for more of his compositions. With this increased demand for serious music comes a falling off in requests for 'swing,' hill-billy and other popular kinds."

The National 4-H Music Hour is broadcast from Washington over 85 National Broadcasting Co. stations from 12:30 to 1:30 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, on the first Saturday of each month by the Extension Service of the Department of Agriculture. Mr. Turner arranges the programs and describes the music, which is played by the United States Marine Band under Capt. Taylor Branson, leader of this world-famous musical organization.

Ray A. Turner

With 4-H Club membership increasing and additional States swinging into line with 4-H music programs built around Mr. Turner's broadcasts—there are now about 30—radio is a major factor in moulding the music tastes of rural youth. Since the perfection of the air-cell battery, thousands of families, formerly dependent on the old-style type of battery radio, have joined the rural radio audiences. Radio entertainment and education, with as good reception as that enjoyed in the cities, have become standard features of even the most remote rural sections.

Mr. Turner has been interested in music, both as a performer and instructor, all his life. At Michigan State College he played in the mandolin club, sang in the glee club and choral union, and studied piano. He is now a choir singer in a Washington church.

The Story the Docket Tells

Summary of the docket for the January term of the Floyd circuit court reads, in part:

"Twenty-four murder cases, nineteen cases for carrying concealed deadly weapons."

In other words, it would seem that, with all the arrests made by Floyd peace officers, with a regular session of the grand jury in September investigating law violations and a special session in October continuing that work, the forces of law and order could not find as many pistol law offenders as there were murderers.

Indeed Justice is a hoodwinked goddess, and Puck is the buffoon whose eyes see for her! What utter ridiculousness that only nineteen were guilty of pistol-totin' while two dozen men were shot to death!

Such impotence on the part of the authorities amounts to something like this:

An army 10,000 strong marches upon a city. It fires upon the defenders, kills 24 persons. What does the defending army do? No, it doesn't retaliate against the entire 10,000. It merely captures 24 of the attacking forces for doing the shooting and only 19 for carrying deadly weapons! The other 9,957 are pretty good fellows—let 'em go!

Floyd county's population is around 50,000 and, of this number, it is estimated that 10,000 carry concealed deadly weapons—from force of habit, mostly, from necessity occasionally. There is your army of 10,000. There are your attacking forces—and here we, the law-abiding citizens, the courts, the representatives of the law, stand with a smug complacency as a whole, with little protest individually until one of our very own falls wounded or dead from a bullet.

If the forces of lawlessness are to be combatted, the defending army must take the aggressive. Fabian tactics will not suffice. The law is our armament. Kentucky's pistol law is good enough. All that is necessary is that it be used enough.

Yet, we report—"Twenty-four murder cases, 19 pistol cases!"

IS IT POSSIBLE ANYWHERE?

The following editorial was taken from the Salyersville Independent. It was written by Albert K. Moore in his "As We See It" column on page one, entitled, "Is it possible to hold a lawful election in Magoffin county?"

"As I write these lines, the result of the alleged county election which was held in Magoffin county Tuesday is still in doubt. Not one precinct has been counted, and the only indications by which either side can justify their claims are the reports from precinct workers. Therefore, I think my readers will agree that I am writing without bitterness, and that I intend my remarks to apply equally to both sides.

"A typical mountain election, or auction sale of offices, was conducted Tuesday. What is known as the 'floating element' was bought like cattle or hogs, by the highest bidder, and almost as openly as the bidding would be carried on at a legitimate livestock market. Every candidate on either side, in both races for county office and for members of the school board, participated in the buying, possibly in some cases not as actual paymasters, but with a sure knowledge that their 'workers' were spending the slush fund, which they had helped to create for their benefit. Unconfirmed estimates place the amount of this fund at between ten and fifteen thousand dollars on each side of the school board race, with an additional five to ten thousand dollars on each side of the county races.

"But you all know this buying and selling took place. It has been allowed, condoned and deplored by what we consider the 'better element' of our citizenry for many years, until it has gotten to be taken as a matter of course for anyone who wishes an office in Magoffin county to go into the race prepared to bid higher than his opponent for his votes. Most of us who claim to belong to that 'better element' condemn the voter, and think of him as low in the scale of morality. But the buyer, usually considered as one of the 'better element' himself, is commended for his ability to outwit his opponent and buy a larger proportion of the 'floating vote.'

"I consider the vote buyer in the same class as the vote-seller—a corrupt politician unfit to hold public office. And the sooner our 'good citizens,' of whom we still believe there is a majority in Magoffin county, begin to take this view of the matter, the sooner can we clean up the political situation here, and begin to have efficient government. "Tuesday we observed some of our good ladies, housewives and workers in Sunday School and churches, engaged in what at least looked suspiciously like traffic in 'floaters.' Deacons of churches, ordained ministers, high and grade school teachers, in fact, all the various classes to which we look for guidance in our young people, participated in the spending of funds furnished by both sides. "I do not believe anything will be done about all this. I believe the people of Magoffin county are so apathetic, care so little about what goes on in their county in a moral way, that they will allow these rotten elections to come and go in the same old way as a matter of course. And, a few years from now, when the students in our schools, the youth in our Sunday Schools and churches, grow to an age where they can exercise their 'divine right of suffrage,' they will look back to some such election as this which has just passed and take their inspiration from the actions of their Sunday School teacher, their minister, their school teacher, and begin their own traffic in human cattle and hogs which are annually placed on the auction block for the bidding of the politicians."

CLEANING OLD GAS WELL WOULD ENTAIL MOVING OF MOUNTAIN

Hueysville, Ky., Nov 16 (SpI).—Wm. Sexton, superintendent of the South Penn Oil Company's holdings in this county, believes he was faced a few days ago with one of the most gigantic problems ever—that of moving a mountain.

The South Penn had gone to considerable expense during recent weeks, preparatory to cleaning out and drilling to greater depth an old gas well atop a hill on Rock Fork Creek, near here; but when workmen got ready to lower a drill bit into the hole last week, they found that the removal of a coal vein in the mountain by the Central Elkhorn Coal Company had caused the upper portion of the hill to slide, thereby crooking the gas well. Of course the tools would not go below the crook, which was far from the bottom of the well.

"The only way to clean the hole out would be to put the upper half of the mountain back in its original position," Mr. Sexton said. "And that is a bit too costly."

Subscriptions in arrears after December 10 will be cancelled.

GAME MORE NUMEROUS

Strange as it may seem, numerous hunters and trappers of this and adjacent counties report a sharp increase in the number of small game, despite the fact that there are more dogs and hunters in this section than ever before.

The increase is attributed to two reasons: The organization of several game and fish clubs during the last five years and the presence in many localities of mine "breaks," deep cracks and fissures caused by removal of coal from the hills. A rabbit, for instance, can dart into one of these breaks when pursued by a dog or hunter and rest in safety until his enemies are gone.

The old process of "smoking" is no good, the hunter will not put a ferret in for fear of losing it, and neither man nor dog can hope to dig him out.

Mrs. Hobson Is Hostess To John Graham Chapter

The evening of November 10 was the occasion of a delightful meeting of John Graham chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, which was held at the home of Mrs. Joe Hobson.

Mrs. E. H. Sowards, regent, opened the meeting with the Salute to the Flag and the American's Creed. Prayer was led by Mrs. A. C. Harlowe.

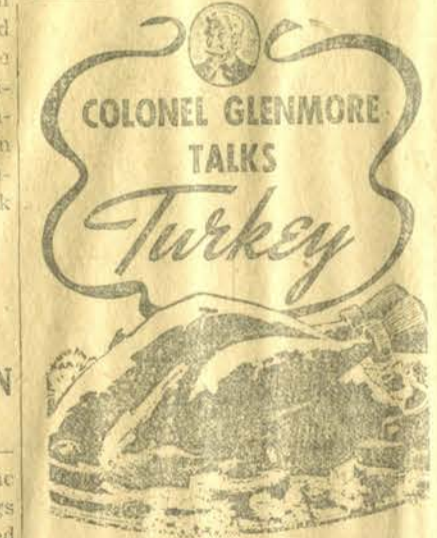

A number of letters of interest were read and acted upon in the matter of donations from the chapter. A citizenship medal for the most interesting paper contributed by a member of the Girl Reserves of Prestonsburg high school is to be awarded by the chapter and prizes also will be awarded winners in a sewing contest for young school-girls.

Following a general discussion, Mrs. H. L. Mayo gave an interesting reading, "The Goddard and the Town," and the story of Benedict Arnold. Those enjoying Mrs. Hobson's hospitality were:

UNEMPLOYMENT BLANKS RECEIVED HERE TUESDAY, TO BE RETURNED NOV. 20

Delivery of unemployment census blanks began throughout the nation through the government's postal system Tuesday morning in an effort to determine the number of the country's unemployed or partly unemployed.

Those falling under these classifications are urged to mail the census cards on or before midnight Saturday, Nov. 20.

City and village mail carriers, rural and star route mailmen and the postoffices themselves are distributing the cards. In sections not served by a rural or star route delivery, the postmaster for that area is authorized to employ some person to place census cards with every family.

In Prestonsburg this week, Mayor A. C. Carter urged every person to co-operate in the unemployment census work, so that an accurate analysis of the situation here may be made.

NEGRESS HELD ON SHOOTING CHARGE

Pearl Fields, Wheelwright negress, is in the Floyd county jail, held on a charge of shooting her husband, Virgil Fields, 28 years old, to death at their home Sunday night.

Though she claims she fired only when her husband threatened to hit her with an ice pick, her bullet, it was said at the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin, where Fields died Tuesday morning, penetrated his back.

The woman was brought to jail here Monday by Con Cheek, Wheelwright policeman, and was at first booked on a charge of shooting and wounding.

The body was prepared by E. P. Arnold and taken Tuesday to Alabama for burial.

BONANZA

The "poles" for the November election opened at the usual hour. Familiar voices calling "more voters!" could be heard from within. Interested parties were observed participating in the art of whittling as they passed "helpful suggestions" to prospective voters. Even the weather contributed its part in making this no different from previous elections. Yet, despite all that, there seemed something amiss—could it have been the "sweet-bread" of yester-years?

Just as we were on the verge of saying "soar grapes" to highways and byways, a road with sparsely sprinkled gravels appeared in the distance! Does it mean anything? It means we'll get to go to "town" for the Fourth of July! This is an age of speed, and the progress of the gravel road is no exception.

The revival conducted in the school building by Rev. Kitchen, of Van Lear, assisted by Mrs. Fannin and son, Roscoe Fannin, of West Prestonsburg, closed Saturday night with interest at its height. Although it is said that the greatest performers leave the stage when applause is the greatest, we don't feel that this principle applies to revivals.

THE SICK

Glenda Jean, baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Music, is recovering from spinal meningitis. John Lloyd Whittaker, sophomore of Bonanza high school, is suffering from double pneumonia.

"Uncle" Jeff Recalls Civil War Days In Prestonsburg

After watching the steady stream of traffic in a Prestonsburg street Monday afternoon, "Uncle" Jeff Sizemore, 96-year-old veteran of the Civil War, turned and remarked, "About this time of year in 1861 there were only eight people in this town."

Of those eight, "Uncle" Jeff is the only survivor. And, he says, "Aunt Sis" Richmond, of Prestonsburg, is the only other living person who remembers that exodus from town.

The flight from Prestonsburg was caused, the grizzled veteran explained, by reports reaching here to the effect that the Union army was marching up-river, burning homes, heaping indignities upon non-combatants, attacking women and in general creating a veritable reign of terror. Most of Prestonsburg's 300 inhabitants at the time were Southern sympathizers, and this fact lent wings to their flight.

The eight who stayed behind, Mr. Sizemore says, were friends of the North. They were Uncle Jeff and his brother, John Sizemore, Hugh and John Harkins, Tom and Henry Ford, Bob Huey and Dave Patton. The others, men as well as women and children, had scattered to outlying parts of the county for refuge. Mrs. Richmond, then a little girl, was taken to Arkansas Creek.

Some of the residents of the town were "war refugees" for almost a month, but the scare was groundless. General Garfield and his men came to Prestonsburg, camped on what is now known as the Garfield Addition. The General made headquarters at what now is the home of Claude P. Stephens and which is still known as Garfield Place. The Union leader in a proclamation stated the aims of his forces. No houses were burned, women and children were respected.

Uncle Jeff liked the Federal army so much that he soon enlisted and stayed with it till after Appomattox. Today, he and John P. (Printer) Meade are the only Floyd county survivors of the Union army.

M. A. Stanley's condition remains little improved after suffering a second paralytic stroke.

CUPID'S EFFECTS

Miss Mildred Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hill, was united in marriage to Mr. Russell Lavin, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lavin, of Dwale. Mrs. Lavin is a teacher in the upper grades here, a student of Caney Creek, Pikeville and Morehead Colleges. Mr. Lavin, who is employed by the Howard Motor Company, Prestonsburg, also attended Capey Junior College. Both are worthy, and certainly have our heartiest congratulations.

Miss Naomi Spradlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ransom Spradlin, was married to Mr. Charles Damron, of West Virginia. Mrs. Damron is a teacher in the Noedmore school, near here. She is a student of Pikeville and Morehead Colleges. Mr. Damron holds a responsible position in West Virginia. To them goes an equal share of our congratulations.

LODGE MEET HELD

Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 31, Prestonsburg, held its regular meeting Tuesday, November 16, at 7:30 p. m.

There will be no lodge first Tuesday night in December, on account of District No. 12, composed of Rebekah lodges from Johnson, Pike-Floyd, Knott and Perry counties, meeting at Hazard, Ky., that afternoon. Those planning to go on special bus leaving Prestonsburg at 12:30 p. m., please get in touch with Mrs. F. C. Hall, district president, or Mrs. Cecil Kendrick, district secretary.

Shooting and Fishing

She was long, lean, lank and lissome. The fiery promise of her beady, black eyes was something the local boys had not been able to turn down—and was responsible for the well-worn path along under the old rail fence that led to her home under the slab pile near the old sawmill. Shortly after dark the boys would come slithering along, short, cavs erect, beady eyes gleaming and questing noses searching out each nook and cranny in the fence, investigating each intriguing depression around the roots of the old chestnut stump. As they came near the rabbit burrow under the rock, one fresh scent struck their blood-thirsty little nostrils, bellies would flatten to the ground and only a wraith-like brown shadow could be seen gliding noiselessly up to the hole. But Br'er Rabbit had left out just at dusk and was now busily engaged in a turnip-patch over in the bottom and knew better than to come back to the shadowy fence-row before daylight.

But always the boys went on to the slab-pile, dauntless little hearts beating amorously under their furry brown jackets. And tonight the ground was damp from rain, the wind had fallen, and the moon was mostly hidden by fleecy, scudding clouds. It was a night for romance, and soft, cuddly little lady weasels should be enjoying it. He, too, was long, lean and lank, and besides being lonely, he was a full three inches longer than the biggest weasel along the whole creek bank. Only a third of one ear remained, and the scars on his head and neck proclaimed him a tough guy to deal with, and fit to be the head man along the fence-row. As he humped up to the slab-pile like an overgrown inch-worm, another tiny brown form materialized from the woods in the other direction. But the bared fang and the warning hiss convinced the newcomer that he had urgent business elsewhere. Ah! there it was, that intriguing scent that set his pulse racing that had the power to draw him on, and on, and it led straight over the hill toward the farmer's chicken house, where the week before he had feasted sumptuously on the life-blood of five fat hens before the farmer's dog had forced him to seek sanctuary in that ground-hog hole under the cliff.

And now the cruel little jaws wavered in anticipation of the taste of warm, red blood. It might, too, mean the culmination of the love affair with the little lady of the slab-pile. Thoughts of the dog faded from his mind as he loped along through the shadows on the freshening trail, and eagerness filled his being almost to the exclusion of his natural caution. Down in the hollow the farm lay still and dark in its sleep, but down there, he knew, was food and consolation, and instinct in an animal is as little to be denied as in you or me. But just outside the barely open door of the chicken house a subtle change came over the scent he was following. It was the same scent, but something had changed it, something had happened to it that he didn't understand, something that set the little hairs on his neck on end.

Around the house he followed his investigating trail and it seemed the same, but back at the door the change in the scent came to him again. But eagerness won over caution and the little brown form slipped noiselessly through the door. He couldn't understand why she lay so quietly on the floor. He didn't know what the strange thing was that had clamped itself around her neck, he had never seen a steel trap before. But the warm scent that had so strangely turned cold, no longer held any allure that held only terror for him, a terror that was bigger than his hunger. The tiny wire on the floor that he brushed over as he went out caused a big light to spring up above him, from a window in the farmhouse a shotgun roared—then there was only the cold scent left.

LOB CASTS

Creek, came 26 new memberships in the game and fish club. From Gearheart: Jack McCurry, John E. Caudill, H. D. Moore, Amos Stumbo, Harry Moore, James Stumbo, J. W. Moore, Butler Gearheart, Marson Moore, Grover Moore, General Stumbo, Lum Gearheart, Willard Moore, Andy Collins, From Fed—Orbin Newson, Sam Moore, E. J. Little, W. P. Hays, Sherd Elliott, W. M. Boyd, Wade Sloan, Green Johnson, H. M. Justice, Andy Caudill Andy Collins, and from Orkney, J. C. Moore.

In appreciation of these new members, the next meeting will be held at the schoolhouse at Gearheart, Sunday, Nov. 21, at 2 p. m. Let's all go. That seems to be a real bunch of sportsmen up there. The best bunch of trap shots I've seen here were at Boldman Sunday. Paul Francis, with a single-barrel "poke-stalk," broke 25 straight, while R. L. Keeling was runner-up with a handsome 24. Shirley Leslie, of Pikeville, smacked down 16 with a little 20-gauge in a high wind; Joe Ward also shot, but conveniently forgot his score. Joe Pendleton and Bill Colton, of Martin, came back from the Left Fork of Levisa with six squirrels and a fine string of bass, and some very tall stories. Remember to be careful with matches and cigarettes in the woods. This column speaks for the whole club, and for every one who knows him, when we wish "Pick" Heize a speedy recovery from the serious illness which confines him to his Prestonsburg home. "Pick" is one of our first members, and a gentleman as well as a sportsman. Be careful with that gun this season. A dead or wounded buddy would spoil your hunting forever. Adios.

NEWSPAPER RATES STEADILY MOUNTING

Whether or not The Times can stem the tide of rising prices in print paper, ink and other supplies needed in publishing, remains to be seen. But many other newspapers throughout the country are being forced to raise their subscription rates.

Read the article, then send us your renewal before January to make sure you get The Times at the present price. Here is what Mr. Patterson says:

"When the grocer across the street found his last invoice for groceries billed to him at a higher price he promptly added that increase, plus a bit more, to his groceries.

"He must add the increase if he is to stay in business; if he is to replace his stock when it is sold.

"He added the 'plus' to cover the increase he would have to pay the clothing merchant for his next suit, or the dry goods merchant for the dresses and other things his wife and daughters would need.

"The invoices received by the publishers and printers are showing increased prices and will undoubtedly continue to show increases. Those from whom they buy are paying more for materials, labor, taxes, rents—for all their products. They are passing these increases along. If they do not, they go out of business, their employees will be out of jobs, and America will again be in the midst of another depression.

"In the face of all this, there are still many hundreds of publishers and printers who fail to pass along the increases they are paying, and will continue to pay. Possibly they can stand the pressure for a time; possibly they can stand the next increase, ranging from 20 to 35 per cent on print paper. The time will come when the reserve is gone, when there will be nothing left with which to buy paper, ink and other needed supplies. When it comes, the doors of the shop will be locked and the publisher and printer, as well as their employes, will be in the bread line.

The Quality of Mercy...

Drawn for the American Red Cross by Lawrence Wilbur

Hundreds of publishers and printers have raised their subscription prices, their advertising rates and their charges for printing. They have not suffered any loss in revenue or business. The public expects to pay more, and is paying more for other things.

"Why not follow the trend of the times before it is too late?"

"And remember the 'plus' to cover your own and your family's needs. It, too, is necessary."

January Floods Reveal Strength of Red Cross

Aid Given 1,002,000 Persons Through Set-Up by Agency

The extent and scope of Red Cross disaster work is shown in a recent report on Red Cross relief measures during the devastating Ohio-Mississippi Valley flood of last year.

At the outbreak of the emergency Red Cross relief efforts were established in 42 flood-stricken counties and in 154 counties where refugees were cared for, the report stated. Eight regional headquarters were established in the 128 counties, and were in turn supervised by the National Red Cross in Washington, D. C.

A statistical summary of persons aided by the organization indicates that the floods constituted the greatest emergency ever faced by the nation. The Red Cross gave some form of assistance to 1,002,000 men, women and children. From January to August hundreds of trained workers aided by thousands of volunteers administered to the sufferers.

Red Cross people met of 5400 hospitalizations, according to the report. Emergency hospitals established in 200 counties and 800 nurses were assigned to flood duty. In more than 2000 temporary quarters the victims of the floods were sheltered, clothed and fed. Through Red Cross medical relief programs the work of public health agencies was kept to a minimum for the time of year in all flood-stricken areas.

Thanks to the generous assistance the Red Cross was directed by the President of the United States, who is also president of the Red Cross, to coordinate the effort of all Federal food relief groups, Government and Red Cross officials met daily at the Red Cross headquarters building in Washington to plan relief measures and program duplication of effort.

"We were fortunate in having 56 years of disaster relief experience to call upon in the 'emergency,'" declared Cary E. Johnson, chairman of the Red Cross staff.

It was found that 370,000 families composed of 2,800,000 persons had to have their resources supplemented or an entirely new start provided by the Red Cross. The report stated Red Cross emergency and rehabilitation assistance was as follows: 2,800,000 families food, clothing and other necessities; 1,000,000 families; building and repair for 37,000 families; household repair for 20,000 families; medical, dental and hospital care for 15,000 families; occupational rehabilitation for 10,000 families; other occupational aid for 10,000 families and other types of relief for 10,000 families.

Thanks to this largest peacetime relief effort in the history of the nation and to the American people who responded to the Red Cross call for help, the Red Cross relief work was made possible. The Red Cross gave aid to the victims of 195 other disasters in 23 states, Alaska and the District of Columbia. The Red Cross received the aid of 100,000 other organizations from money contributed through membership during the annual Red Cross fund drive, since it is only in case of large scale disasters that a national drive for relief funds is made.

This year the Red Cross call is from November 14 to the 25th. The Red Cross seeks a greater membership to meet its disaster relief and other service obligations during 1938.

Last year Red Cross Chapters gave vital help to 120,000 needy families.

K. K. HAS SERVICE NOW AVAILABLE TO HIGH SCHOOLS

A visual aids service, consisting of a list of non-inflammable films, is now available to Kentucky high schools, colleges, normal schools, Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. groups, county agricultural agents, farm bureaus, health officers, American Legion posts, clubs and lodges, industrial plants, hospitals, community centers, recreational directors, P. T. The department of University Extension at the University of Kentucky maintains this film and slide library for the use of the schools of the state. A bulletin, "Motion Pictures in Education," which gives a general view of the place of motion pictures in education in the United States and some suggestions concerning their utilization in classroom teaching and adult education, may be received without charge upon request sent to the department of University Extension.

HARMAN THANKS FRIENDS BY VERSE

Coal Company Official Hurt In Wreck Still Confined to Hospital in Paintsville

Dan J. Harman auditor for the Elk Horn Coal Corporation at Wayland, while recovering in the Paintsville hospital from an automobile accident in which he and Mrs. Harman were injured October 25, composed a bit of rhyme to thank his friends for assisting him.

Mr. and Mrs. Harman were on their way to attend the Eastern Star Grand Chapter at Louisville when the wreck occurred, which dislocated Mrs. Harman's elbow, cut and bruised her left hand and injured an ankle, and broke Mr. Harman's knee and caused a number of lacerations to the head.

The accident was near Winchester. Mr. Harman was rendered unconscious for some time. A state highway truck was said to have struck their car.

The injured couple was taken to the Clark County hospital at Winchester, where they were cared for from Monday, the day of the accident, until Thursday, by Dr. H. R. Henry.

Dr. M. V. Wicker and Mrs. W. N. Stratton, of Wayland, went to Winchester and assisted Mr. and Mrs. Harman in making the trip to Paintsville on the train.

Mrs. Harman is able to get up and about, but it is believed that Mr. Harman may be in the hospital another two weeks.

THE POEM

Thoughts of a Friend in Need
Since old misfortune laid me low
And sat upon my neck,
Of course I've had a pain or so
And troubles by the peck.

Then came your flowers and your love,
Your message of good cheer,
Lights in my darkness from above
That drove away my fear.

I've learned what values are about,
A true old friend in need,
Who steps in when you're down and out
To do a kindly deed.

Is just the finest thing on earth,
That's been created, ever
In your friend, heaven has its birth,
And I'll forget you—never.

And now whatever your job may be,
Home, office, mine or farm,
Here's Joy and Peace, to you, from me,
Sincerely—Dan J. Harman.

Red Cross Replaces Farm Family Losses

The Red Cross gave agricultural rehabilitation to 10,118 farm families following the severe winter frosts of last winter. Types of aid included food, seed, livestock, farm tools and machinery and other items essential to agricultural production. More than $599,000 was expended by the organization to meet these requirements.

In addition to occupational assistance, rural families had their home and farm buildings repaired, barns, feed and shelter built by the Red Cross. Where it was necessary the Red Cross repaired and rebuilt out-buildings, barns and other structures. Medical and nursing care was provided and homes re-established.

Red Cross agricultural rehabilitation benefited nearly three times as many families as received all other types of Red Cross occupational rehabilitation combined.

Laughing Around the World With IRVIN S. COBB

The Real Cause of Sorrow

By IRVIN S. COBB

THERE are various versions of this one. All of them are good. It is, I would say, one of those sure-fire stories which cannot be seriously damaged even by a faulty rendition.

The scene is a concert in a Northern home. An ambitious pianist is just finishing playing "Way Down the Swanee River."

In the corner sits a gentleman who was brought to the party by one of the friends of the hostess. As the performer concludes, the strange guest sinks his head in his hands and bursts into loud sobs.

The concerned hostess hurries to him and puts a compassionate hand on his shoulder.

"You must be a Southerner," she says, "that this should make you cry."

He raises a tear-stained face.

"No, madam," he replies, "I'm a musician."

BLACKCATS DOWN RUSSELL ELEVEN

Mayo's Two Extra Points Provide Margin of Victory

A pair of thrilling runs, one by Mayo, crack quarterback for the Prestonsburg high school eleven for 75 yards and a second by Fitz Mansfield for 36 yards featured the Russell-Prestonsburg game Saturday afternoon at Russell's field as the Blackcats defeated the Maroon by a score of 14 to 12.

Prestonsburg's ability to convert two extra points spelled defeat for the Maroon in a big way. Bill McBrayer, the Maroon's chief kicker, failed to convert either of his two chances, due to a bit of tough luck as both hit the cross bars and bounded back into the field.

Fitzpatrick scored first for the victors in the second quarter on a sweeping end run of 46 yards. Mayo booted the extra through the uprights for the extra two points.

Taking a punt on Prestonsburg's 29 yard line, Mansfield passed to Chastin for a 29-yard gain. Mansfield hit center for 14 yards and McBrayer spun over from the four yard line for a touchdown. The kick from placement was no good.

In the opening moments of the fourth quarter, Mayo placed a punt out of bounds on Russell's four-yard line. On the first play from scrimmage, Mansfield wiggled through the first defense, then cut back Prestonsburg secondary for 25 yards and a touchdown. Mayo kicked the placement for the extra point.

A moment later came another thrilling run of the game when Mayo took a kick-off on his own 25 yard line and scampered 75 back for a touchdown. Mayo kicked the placement for the extra point.

STOP SAYING "STOP" FOR PUNCTUATION IS FREE NOW

The word "stop" which has become so familiar in telegrams as the word "love," is no longer necessary because punctuation marks will be sent free when they are used in the text of Western Union telegrams to points in the United States. This is important news in every line of business, calling for immediate revision of office practice.

To enable the public to use the telegraph with the same clarity of meaning, and as freely, easily and fluently as any form of communication, without having to ponder over the phrasing of messages to make sure that absent punctuation will be understood, Western Union is giving complete punctuation service without charge.

Marks to be sent free are the comma, the period, the colon, the semi-colon, the dash or hyphen, quotation marks, parentheses, the question mark and the apostrophe. Messages written in paragraphs will be transmitted in paragraphs at no extra cost. The words "stop," "comma," "period," etc., when spelled out, will continue to be counted and charged for.

Never in the past has punctuation been carried free. If it was insisted upon, the telegraph company sent it and charged for each mark as a word. Proof that people really need to mark divisions between sentences, sweaver, was evidenced by the growing use of the word "stop" in telegrams. The word was often used where it was not necessary, and humorists often joked about it.

KAPITOL KOMMENTS

The general election of November 3 has been written, printed, bound, catalogued and indexed. It is now history. Most of the Commonwealth's political bookshelves have been untangled and the Governor is assured a friendly legislative when the body convenes for its regular biennial palaver in January. Now somebody asks, "Why was Governor Chandler so anxious to have a general assembly that would adversely to him and the administration?" Is he going to ask the Senators and Representatives to make new appropriations bills which would necessarily have to be backed by new tax measures? In other words, they want to know what is back of it all. Here is the answer: The reorganization bill, passed in 1906, is not yet measure and he wants to be certain that it is not molested. He wants it to stand, as is, until it becomes deeper rooted. The Governor declared this to be his only motive for wanting a friendly group in the House and Senate, long before the August primaries. Now that he has the legislature that he wants he still says that he wants nothing more than the assurance that the Reorganization Bill will be left alone. So, folks, up to now, there is nothing startling on the docket. The Governor has asked that his political aides and his political enemies declare an armistice until after the General Assembly has done its 60-day stint in January, February and March.

Mark December 6 on the calendar.

Since the day that tobacco, Kentucky's money crop—the Lexington markets open that date. The following day all other markets in the state that handle burley will be open, looking over the situation this tobacco season we find that, as advertised, the crop is a record-breaker. At that it will not exceed last year's crop by more than 300 million pounds. That's a lot of chewin' and smokin', but not a lot considering that the bulk last year was approximately a billion and a half pounds. Central Kentucky farmers have been slow in stripping, the weather has been adverse. However, a few rains last week helped considerably. Experienced hands to strip the weed are at a premium. Top daily wages are being paid in Fayette, Woodford, Bourbon, Boyle, Carroll, Shelby and Madison. Most of the farmers are wondering just how much they will get this year and if the crop will be below last year's averages. The only criterion is the prices paid on earlier markets, say, in Georgia and in Virginia. A report from Richmond, Va., this week declared that the poorest quality in the Old Belt, sold at Danville, Va., averaged $23.76. In Georgia, the price was near $25. Kentucky burley is a better burley and it is the general belief that the prices here in Kentucky will keep the tobacco farmer aglow. Tobacco thieves have already started working in some sections of the central portion of the state, especially where burley grows best. These thieves, who worked so diligently and effectively last year, giving up to a barn near the roadside, taking the striped tobacco off the sticks as it hung in the barn, crowding it into large passenger cars and making away in the night with 1,000 pounds or more, now have the farmer sitting up at night with a loaded shotgun.

All over the state the tobacco farmer is running a temperature over the coming season at the sales warehouses. Tobacco festivals have been held in all parts of the Commonwealth. Down at Princeton the good folks held the first one, hailed tobacco in a big way, crowned a queen and anticipated good times. More recently were festivals at Paris, Versailles, (Kentucky not France) where homage was paid to the weed and more queens were crowned.

RANDOM SHOTS—Announcement has been made at the statehouse that the Game and Fish Commission has negotiated for 1,077 acres of land in Franklin and Owen counties. The deal was made by Major James Brown, head of the commission. This land, not the most fertile on earth, was optioned for at $25 an acre. Although no mention was made of what use it would be put to at the time the negotiations were announced, it is generally believed that it will be made into some sort of a game preserve. Interesting to note that Nelson county does not have any bonded indebtedness, and its floating debt is hardly discernible. It levies only the customary 50c tax rate. Outgoing sheriffs in the state, to qualify to collect back taxes, must make bond to the incoming county judge. This ruling was made by Assistant Attorney General Guy Harman. All troops have been withdrawn from Harlan county, according to a late report from Major Joseph M. Kelly, Assistant Adjutant General. There are still a number of distilleries in the state idle. They shut down during the late summer months and watched corn skyrocket and come back down. Some are afraid that the ticket on corn is still too high. Others are buying and running off a batch of merry mullage. The state is losing tax revenue every day a still house is idle.

Burkan Memorial Contest Open To State Law Students

THE American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP) today announced from its general offices at 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York City, a nationwide contest, memorializing its deceased general counsel, Nathan Burkan, of the New York bar.

The contest will be called the Nathan Burkan Memorial Competition, and will offer to the students of each graduating law class of the university of each state in the Union a prize of one hundred dollars to the student who, in the opinion of the dean of the law school, shall prepare the best paper on the subject of copyright law, the necessity for it, and the wise public policy of enacting such law.

The rules and regulations to govern the contest in each of the universities are left to be established by the dean of the law school, who is also constituted the sole judge of the merit of the papers submitted in the competition.

The competition will henceforth be an annual event; participation therein to be made available to the law schools of all the State Universities and some others.

The winning paper submitted by each of the participating law schools will then be made the subject of a national competition in which an authoritative committee of the bar will be appointed to select the best one of all the winning papers, and the paper thus chosen as best of all the winners will be nationally recognized.

The object of the competition is two-fold: to perpetuate the name and memory of Burkan as an outstanding expert in the field of copyright law, and to encourage a study of this particular branch of law be-

Autos Take Toll

were injured, the latter sustaining severe head injuries. William's arm was broken and he is also suffering from cuts and bruises. The family was taken to the Stumbo Memorial hospital, where the baby died at 6 o'clock Sunday evening. This family also resided on Salt Lick Creek, less than a mile below the victim of the first tragedy.

Floyd county authorities this week were looking for the driver of the auto which struck young Howard and sped on without stopping to offer assistance. Two men, J. B. Hobbs and Z. D. Ricketts, were arrested at Martin Sunday by Policeman Tavis Flanery, jailed here on drunkenness charges and questioned in the Howard boy's death. They later were released, however when they furnished a satisfactory alibi. The top of the left fender of their car was indented and the paint had apparently been recently scraped from it. They had come to this county from West Virginia and stated that they had not been near the scene of the tragedy.

Besides his parents, young Howard is survived by two brothers, Ernie and Melvin and six sisters: Mrs. Robert Beverly, Salinesville, O.; Myrtle, Alberta, Pearl, Joy and Pauline, all at home. Funeral rites were held Tuesday on Salt Lick, the Revs. Ed and E. H. Howard officiating. Burial was made under the direction of the Ryan Funeral Home. Body of the Kilburn child was also returned to Salt Lick for burial Tuesday.

in a daze. We James Goules ought to take steps. We might rent a hall, organize, secure a secretary to read our mail to the assemblage at weekly meetings and all of us chip in to pay the tax commissioner, saving him much needless worry. But above all, we could, in future, charge fees for allowing dotting parents to use our names on little-suspecting babies.

REPUBLICANS SUGGESTED THIS

We wonder why left-wing Democrats don't depart from the silly emblem of a braying jackass and choose a more refined emblem such as a picture of a microphone placed before a fireside.
