FISTS SWING AS WILLIE JUSTICE'S TRIAL RECESSES

6 MEN, 5 WOMEN ENGAGE IN BRAWL

11 Witnesses are Jailed for Brawl in Courthouse and On Street

Justice Was Being Tried For Killing of Tivis Sellards December 5

Six men and five women were jailed Monday night following a drunken free-for-all brawl on the first floor of the courthouse as the trial of Commonwealth vs. Willie Justice for the slaying of Tivis Sellards recessed. Those jailed were opposing witnesses.

As the witnesses came down the stairs from the courtroom, fists began to swing, culminating in the ill-felting which arose during the trial. Defense witness Bessie Blackburn was the one most seriously hurt.

The men, charged with drunkenness and breach of peace, were tried in Magistrate's Court Tuesday morning, fined, and returned to jail. Three of the women were dismissed. The other two, Juanita Hubbard and Ethel Sellards, commonwealth witnesses, were placed under a $200 peace bond and returned to jail, their bond unfiled.

The jury in the murder case announced Tuesday that they were unable to agree. Sellards was slain in December as he attempted to enter the Justice home on Buffalo Creek where a party had gathered following a nearby church meeting.

THIS TOWN— THAT WORLD

HER SIDE OF IT

A smiling middle-aged couple caught my attention as they got out of a Lawrence county car on Court street the other day. The man jokingly turned to his wife and said, "Well, honey, how does it feel to be a grandmother?" She promptly replied, "The worst thing about it is to realize that I'm married to a grandfather."

'TIS IGNORED, I AM

I wish to state that after this date I will no longer feel personally responsible for the nervous breakdown or death of any Louisville Times or Courier-Journal newspaperman due to overwork, when their managing editors could have okeed either of my applications and added me to their reportorial staff at a reasonable salary. Weary staff-men, as you scan these pages for brilliant gems you'll surely re-print, give 'em a firm reminder.

SUGGESTION

It has been suggested, perhaps as a youthful W. P. A. project, that markers be placed at the scene of every traffic fatality in Floyd county. The markers would be cut in the shape of a map of the county, and on a white background, would be marked a red cross. I wonder, should this suggestion be realized, how many PEET apart these markers would be.

HEAD OF THE TIME?

It is to be hoped that Harrison Elliott's dream of a Little Theatre for Prestonsburg may be realized and that he be "ahead of its time." Mr. Elliott proposes an organization of interested talented townspeople, fond of drama, music, the arts, who in time, might stage 10 or 12 plays each year. Scenery, props, costumes, would be made by the local stage.

HILL NAMES BOARD OF TAX SUPERVISORS

A four-man board of supervisors was named Monday by County Judge Edward P. Hill to begin work February 14 on the equalization of the county tax assessment.

During the first week of the board session, W. C. Rimmer, Prestonsburg engineer, will act as a member while coal company assessments are being adjusted. When this work is completed, J. M. Weddington, Prestonsburg, will act in his stead. Others appointed were: Dan Prater, Hueysville; M. B. Hale, Harold; Ollie Derossett, Water Gap.

PRITCHARD GIRL NAMED CHAMP

Garrett Student Wins County Spelling Bee for 3rd Consecutive Time

Thirteen-year-old Jewel Pritchard, of Garrett, was named Floyd county's champion graded school speller for the third consecutive year, at the annual spelling bee conducted here last Friday by the Floyd County Board of Education.

In second place was Sarah Music, 13, of Auxier. Third place was won by Jane Hager, of Prestonsburg. The decision of the judges in eliminating the second and third place spellers was protested during the bee, as they were "turned down" on technicalities.

Jane Hager lost in spelling the word "hoarse" when she mistook the pronunciation of the word as "horse," which she spelled. The protest to the judges was based on the fact that, following Miss Hager's (Continued on back page)

16-YEAR OLD GIRL GETS 8-YEAR TERM

Liza Tackett, Sentenced to Eight Years in Slaying of Jesse Curtis

After a speedily moving trial here Tuesday, a Floyd circuit court jury meted an eight-year prison sentence to young Liza Tackett, about 16, for her part in the slaying of crippled, 17-year-old Jesse Curtis, near Jump, October 3. Still to be tried are two other women, whose trials were continued.

Curtis died instantly when a knife, said to have been wielded by the young girl, penetrated his heart at the home of the girl's mother, Mrs. Lena Tackett.

When first jailed here in October she was quoted as saying that the killing occurred when Curtis attempted to assault her at the Tackett home. The victim was a son of Thurman Hall, whose whereabouts are unknown. His mother resides at Jump.

Former Floyd School Head Re-Named In Pike

C. H. Farley, superintendent of Pike county schools for the last four years has been chosen by the board of education for another four year term, but appointment of his aides was deferred to a later date.

Mr. Farley, now starting his second term as head of the Pike county school system, had the backing of a great majority of the board, of which Dr. J. E. Johnson, of Stone, was named permanent chairman following the appointment of James Bevins of Meta as temporary chairman. Mr. Farley's new appointment becomes effective April 1. He formerly was principal of the Garrett school.

Following the meeting, Mr. Farley stated that school affairs in the future will be conducted on the same basis as in the past, and that all new methods which promise to promote education will be given consideration.

500 FLOYD YOUTH IN 1937 PROGRAM

National Youth Administration Figures Given For Past Year

During the past year the National Youth Administration has furnished part-time employment for approximately 500 youths, 18 to 25 years of age, in Floyd county.

The girls have been engaged in sewing for the most part and have completed 3,263 garments during the year, which have been distributed by the board of education through the Red Cross, to needy children in the county. Mass production is not stressed to a great degree by the supervisors in charge at the sewing centers, but as much training as possible is given with each garment made.

A number of girls have been engaged in clerical work in the offices of the county certifying agent, Red Cross, and in offices of various high schools. A number of these girls, liking the type of work, have taken stenographic courses in off-hours, and thus, through the National Youth Administration, have equipped themselves to earn their living.

The boys have improved and constructed many roads, improved school property such as, draining and grading play-grounds, repairing buildings, and beautifying campuses. Various types of work beneficial to surrounding communities have been engaged in. A number of boys have been taught manual crafts. They have made during the year 1,000 pieces of school furniture.

For the coming year new plans are being launched and some intensive training and better results are expected of these young people than ever before. At the present there are 285 employed in the county with 15 L-ayne, two at seven centers are all that are listed: Two at Betsy Layne, two at Allen, one at Emma, one at Prestonsburg and one at Bonanza.

Submit 238 New Soil Program Work Sheets

Work sheets of 238 farmers, new recruits to the soil conservation program in this county, had been submitted up till last Saturday showing their farming activities for the past year and bringing the total number of farmers who have reported their farm work for 1937 under the program to 852. County Agent S. L. Isbell said Tuesday.

Future reports are expected to bring the total of farmers classed as newcomers to the program to around 600. Approximately 600 other farmers already were co-operating with the program, Mr. Isbell said.

ROADHOUSES HIT BY GRAND JURY

Jurors Recommend More Stringent Regulations To Halt Crime

Citing roadhouse liquor dispensers as the source of most of Floyd county crime, the January grand jurors in their final report recommended that courts of proper authority make stringent regulations affecting them.

The jurors commended the co-operation and service of the Commonwealth's attorney, county attorney, and the sheriff's and jailer's staffs.

Although 122 indictments were returned, the jurors were unable to make any in the killing of John Caldwell, Ed Dalton, or Burt Montgomery.

The report: "The grand jury at the close of the January, 1938 session, beg to make the following report:

"We have examined 218 witnesses and made 122 indictments.

"We have examined the public buildings and found the jail to be in good condition except there are some gas heaters in bad condition, which, we think, should be replaced. There are also several window-panes broken out. We have examined the courthouse and found it is clean and well-kept as could be expected. We found the roof leaking badly during the first week of our session, but have found out that there has been some work done on the roof during the last week. We recommend that if this part of the roof, over the county judge's courtroom, continues to leak, it be repaired, or re-covered at once.

"We wish to report further that the jailer and his deputies have been very courteous and have given us very satisfactory service. We also wish to report that the sheriff and his deputies have co-operated in the fullest way possible and are to be commended for their prompt and valuable services.

"We also wish to commend the Commonwealth's Attorney and County Attorney for their co-operation and valuable service rendered.

"We regret to report that we could not find sufficient evidence to make any indictments for the killing of John Caldwell, Ed Dalton, and Burt Montgomery.

"We recommend that the courts of proper authority make stringent regulations of all liquor and roadhouses in Floyd county, as we believe that they are the source of most of the crime that now occurs.

DAN PRATER, Foreman.
HENRY PORTER, Clerk."

SCHOOL TRUSTEE IS DISMISSED BY BOARD

Ruth Conn, Ivel school trustee, was dismissed by the County Board of Education for charges of misconduct in office at a recent trial conducted by the board.

According to evidence introduced at the board hearing, Bill Laferty, witness, preferred charges accusing her of attempting to sell a teacher's position for $200. Another teacher claimed he paid $75 for his position as a teacher in the two-teacher school. The trustee vacancy has not yet been filled.

SLAYER IS GIVEN 12-YR. SENTENCE

Johnson Meted 12 Years for Slaying of Robinson in June, Last Year

After being out overnight, a Floyd circuit court jury last week meted a 12-year prison sentence to Levi Johnson, 23, for the slaying of Wheelwright miner Frank Robinson, 40, at Wheelwright's Garbage Hollow, last June.

According to evidence, the slaying followed a heated argument between Johnson and Robinson, caused by Johnson's chickens getting into the Robinson garden. Both men were neighbors.

Later, Robinson erected a fence on his property, which barricaded Johnson's driveway. Driving with Joe Ward as his companion, Johnson approached the barricade. He stopped and another argument followed with Robinson, in the course of which the fatal shots were fired. Robinson's (Continued on last page)

Completion of Mayo Trail Will Give Big Sandy Valley State's Longest Hard Surface

The following quoted news item was printed in the Louisville Courier-Journal, Dec. 19, 1937:

"The longest continuous concrete road in the state will be from Covington to Louisville, when the Jefferson county portion is complete. It will be 114 miles long."

According to information received from the Eastern Kentucky Automobile Club, should the unpaved section on U. S. 23 between Louisa and Paintsville be paved with concrete, the highway between Covington and Louisville will have to take second place and Eastern Kentucky will have the longest stretch of concrete.

Beginning at Cannonsburg, nine miles west from Ashland, on U. S. 23 and thence via Louisa, Paintsville, Prestonsburg and Pikeville, to the little mining town of Virgie, a distance of 124.1 miles, will then be the new first place concrete highway from the standpoint of length.

COUNCIL DEFENDS ARTHUR CARTER, FORMER MAYOR

Signed Statements Aver Grand Jury Charges In Bridge Sale, False

FUNDS NOT INVOLVED, BRIDGE-BUYER SAYS

Indictment Bitterly Fought By Former Councilmen and Citizens

The grand jury indictment, returned last week charging former Mayor A. C. Carter with conversion in the sale of the city bridge across Trimble Branch at Second street, was bitterly fought and denied Monday, as signed statements from 1936 and 1937 members of the city council and Lewis Mayo, buyer of the bridge, averred that no money exchange hands in the deal.

The bridge was traded to Lewis Mayo in exchange for re-inforcing steel and other supplies to be used on a W. P. A. project within the city, the statements aver, and no money was involved in the transaction.

The statements: The undersigned, H. L. Mayo, says that the one-way steel bridge, formerly located on Second street, Prestonsburg, Ky., crossing Trimble Branch, was obtained by him from A. C. Carter, then mayor of the city of Prestonsburg, in exchange for re-inforcing steel, explosives and other supplies to be used on the W. P. A. projects in the city. That no money was exchanged in the transaction. (Continued on last page)

Comments From The Capitol

The General Assembly, star of the current legislative production which is making a two-month stand here in Frankfort, moved into the wings momentarily last week to allow an old star to step into the political spotlight. The news finally broke that Governor Chandler had just about made up his mind to seek a seat in the United States Senate. That he wanted such a seat was not news. That has been generally suspected right along but that he might let down his hair and run against the President's Senate Floor Leader, Alben W. Barkley, was mildly startling. It would be a daring move if the Governor ran a successful race (he's batting 1,000 in political races) it would be of national significance. It would put the Governor in a bigger light than he now occupies.

When the present legislature is over Chandler will have completed his job, or as much of it as he can do. He will have charted the course and sailed more than half the way and pointed definitely to the destination of the Administration. Sailing the remainder of the distance would be more or less mechanical. Whether the President would actually back Chandler is not known. He backed Barkley for Senate leadership. If the President should take a hand in the race and aid Barkley it would materially injure the Governor's opportunity of beating the Senator from the Purchase. However, if the President, knowing that Chandler is one of the hottest New Dealers in the nation and knowing that he has guided Kentucky's ship of state off the shoal of bankruptcy and has arranged for the payment of all debts and not only has balanced the budget but has underspent the budget in the first two years of his administration, takes a hand-off policy, the race would look parking for Chandler. However, there is one thing certain—the Governor does want a seat in the higher house in Washington; that much he told this writer.

An effort is being made here to do something about quenching the thirst of those who like their beer and skittles and are inconvenienced by residing in an arid county. A bill has been presented by Carl Scheben, blind solon from Campbell county, to increase from 1 per cent to 3.2 per cent the amount of alcohol by volume to be contained in non-intoxicating beverages. This bill would give the thirsty a better chance of laying the dust on their windpipes with something with slight kick in it. There might be some conflict in this bill and the liquor control bill; however, that remains to be seen, for the liquor control bill, which was a masterpiece prepared by the Legislative Council, after weeks of hard work and study. That bill, which is being watched closely by every brewer, distiller, operator of highway cafes, found its way back into committee. After the bill had been hauled out and discussed in the Senate chamber with both wets and dries participating in the discussion of the merits and demerits of the piece. The action to recommit the bill was taken after the Senators heard Revenue Commissioner J. W. Martin declare that the measure would bring between $400,000 and $700,000 new revenue into the state's coffers each year. This liquor control bill will, as predicted in this column six weeks before the opening of the General Assembly, furnish the major portion of the excitement in this session. There are many features to be considered, but before it is finally passed the bill will be re-written, revised, amended and its general structure will be so changed that it will not be recognizable as the one presented on the Senate floor last week.

The administration forces were ready and waiting for the cigarette tax repealer which they knew was coming and which did not meet with the administration policies at the present time. The measure was presented by Representative W. K. King, of Lexington. The bill died in swift parliamentary procedure, noted as one of the neatest moves in the House in many a session. By pre-arrangement administration forces tabled a motion to take the bill away from the committee and give it a first reading, the effect of the move being to kill the bill. Representative Ferd ynau, of Louisville, made the motion to take the bill from the committee and Floor Leader John Hunicutt, Ludlow, promptly moved to table Gnau's motion. The motion to table was carried by a voice vote—and so its demise. This move was a life saver for some of the representatives who had pledged the folk back home that they would come to the state's legislative halls and fight for the repeal of the cigarette tax bill. They were running loose like lame ducks in a shooting gallery until this move was made. When the voice vote to table the motion was made no one knows who voted "aye" and few knew who voted "nay."

Garth Ferguson, commissioner of agriculture, has been stripped of most of his patronage since he was elected to the office. There is now a measure before the House which would remove what little he has left. Commissioner Ferguson has the policing of the state fairgrounds under his command. A bill to take this away is before both the House and the Senate.

RANDOM SHOTS: The state department of education is girded for a scrap against the proposed measure that county school superintendents be elected instead of appointed. This bill is being sponsored by Tyler Munford, Union county. Representative Munford says that the education department is lobbying against the measure. The slump in the tobacco market late last week brought a bit of action from the farm bureau. This group, which has been considering the move for some time, took first action toward the formation of a burley tobacco cooperative association. In some parts of the burley belt that average dropped to almost 18 cents, which was a low average for the year.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

As a basketball fan, I have had opportunity to see every team in the county play one or more games. As a real basketball fan, I can truthfully say that some of our principals and coaches are falling down on their jobs. Who controls the gymnasiums and the crowds that gather in them? Is it the principal and coach or is it the "drugstore" coaches? Who can we blame for the fist-fights at the ball games? Why do we have schools in the county that other schools are afraid to visit? Give us back the days when basketball was played for the sport, when it mattered not whether you "won" or "lost," but how you played the game! Are we forgetting that basketball should be played for the sport, and not for the boxing bouts that take place during the game?

A coach is as good as his team, all things considered. He must have material to work with. It so happened that some of our coaches had had luck last year and didn't win many games, and it appears that they are trying to win this year by foul tactics. If he wins, he's a hero; if he loses, he's a heel.

Since this basketball fan has discussed the problem with a score of fans, it seems that they believe that all of the troubles that have happened this year were caused by too much interference from the "town coaches" who assemble after each game and play it over.

As a solution for the difficult problems in our campaign for cleaner and better ball games, we submit, that each school should never let a local referee call a game, or anyone else who will not call a strict and fair game. We also believe that 90 per cent of the trouble that has occurred this year is a direct result of poor officiating.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

YUM-YUM

The purpose of this article, be it said honestly, is to make your mouth water when you remember the things you used to eat. Few poets have sung of the things we old-timers liked. Poets are a bit snooty, anyway, and are afraid to talk about eating except when dainty foods are served. Now very few of us are artistic, and least of all in eating. What we liked, and enjoy remembering with watery mouths, may not have rivalled the celestial ambrosia and nectar celebrated by the ancient poets; but we would not trade our memories for any amount of ethereal stuff like ambrosia and nectar.

Since we were taught, even on the farm in the old days, to eat in courses, I must begin with the meat course. Now, 'possum-and-'taters would be a good starter. Real 'possum, real gravy, real 'taters! Unless you have a cast-iron digestive system, you had better take warning from me and go slow until you get adjusted to this rather solid diet. But when you can take it, yum-yum! Now 'taters are good enough alone, especially those cooked in ovens with coals of fire above and below. Hog's jowl and turnip greens form a reasonable substitute for 'possum-and-'taters if you must give up your first choice. Specify plain corn hoeecake or corn pone. A cup or bowl of potlicker would do no harm as a side dish. Crumble your plain cornbread into the soup and eat in any manner approved in your community. Some home-made lye hominy would help along.

All this first course is to fill; the real meal for a boy begins with the sweets. All boys have a sensitive tooth for sweets. Sweet muffins, fried pies, gingerbread, tea cakes, green-apple pies, fried cakes (we never called them doughnuts)—why can't a fellow get enough of these? Even in memory my mouth waters frightfully, almost enough to warrant a bib such as those we used to wear. On my birthday I always wanted sweet muffins; I usually got them, or as much of my share as I could get before my older brother started on them. After school it was great to stop that mid-afternoon starvation feeling by eating three or four fried apple pies. Gingerbread, cut into long strips and cooked as gingercakes, was my favorite kind. If and when there was cider, how the two blended! Cider and gingerbread! Blessed pair, ranking with turkey and cranberries, ham and eggs, liver and onions!

The old standby for afternoon lunches was jam. We had a supply, if I remember correctly, that somehow lasted from season to season. Cold biscuits and blackberry jam may not sound palatable to highest esthetic ones, but if you have lived on the farm in other days and come home from school starved to death, you know why jam and bread even now can stir memories.

A sweet tooth was often satisfied with molasses candy. Just how to make it so it will have the proper hardness is a secret I never acquired, partly because I always ate my candy up before I got through pulling it. But I have eaten it when a professional candy-maker would have had nothing to add to its goodness. Popcorn balls made with molasses candy can also remove starvation a few more paces.

These are some of the things that still taste good, after all the years. How coarse they must seem to some people, but how exquisite to those of us who grew up when food was to fill up and satisfy!

A mediocre dairy herd has been developed in to a high-grade, good-producing herd by use of registered sires, by Allen Hines, McCracken county.

KENTUCKY FRONTIER BASS

Of the comparatively few men who have passed through Kentucky's last frontier toward Virginia, Daniel Boone was probably the first, as well as the best known, as witness his description passed down through the ages, of the trail he pursued on his return to Virginia:

"We found a gap in the mountains through which a small river flowed north, and picking our way carefully through the deep gorge which the river had cut in the mountain (the Break in the Cumberland Mountains) we found ourselves at last in the foothills leading down to a broad valley, that lay in the distance. (The Clinch River Valley) . . .

Dave, Check and me arrived on the rim of the gorge shortly after noon, and parking the car along the steep, narrow trail, toted our meager camp stuff down a twisting footpath to stream-level, 500 feet below. We were soon safely ensconced under an overhanging rock cliff where we could sleep and cook in the dry. An abundance of firewood was at hand in the piles of stranded driftwood lodged in the trees from the spring and winter freshets, firewood that was as free from bark, and as slick to the touch as an orange-stick, due to the abrasive action of the rocks over which it had passed. So having the best part of the afternoon's fishing left, we hastily boiled coffee and fried a generous portion of bacon and eggs for all hands.

I had admitted to being hungry; Dave had confessed that his stomach thought his throat had been cut, but before this repast was quite ready, Check stopped the verbal show with the declaration, "If my eyes saw a beefsteak, my tongue would flap my brains out." Feeling that such a state of affairs demanded at least a reasonable degree of caution, we threw him five or six eggs on which to appease the preliminary pangs of his hunger, before we felt safe to sit at the festive board with him. However, even a complete void can be filled in a certain length of time, and eventually our rods were rigged and favorite plugs and spinners bent on. The first hour's casting was uneventful, but a few minutes later, after Dave had neatly flipped a tandem spinner smack into a deep, blue hole between two rocks, he started backing toward the bank talking to himself, and the arc in that slender, bucking, rod bespoke big business out in that watery retreat.

Stumbling waist-deep in the water on the slick stones of the bottom, Dave finally chose a big flat-topped rock for his battle-field, and shipping a good gallon of icy Big andy water in the back of his waders, managed to clamber up and still retain possession of the whipping, jerking rod. Up to this time the fight had been all under-water, and just about the time I had decided he was hooked into a granddaddy-walleye, a terrific explosion in the water disclosed a thick, heavy-bodied bass, red gills flaring wide as he strove to shake loose the spinner, much as a dog would shake a rat clamped onto his lip. But Dave had the game in his hands now, and as another head-shaking leap came, he snubbed the big bass sharply, turning him down with the rod tip under water. But taking advantage of the momentary slack, the wily bronze-back streaked toward the rock on which Dave was standing, and only by frantic reeling on his part was he able to take up the slack before the big boy burst wildly out of the water before Dave, drenching him as though with a hose. But the little steel tip had seldom lost its arc, and a fish must have slack to throw a well-hooked lure, so the killing pace was beginning to tell on the bruising old battler, and the terrific dashes were getting weaker and weaker, so that finally he was tugging gamely but futilely, half on his side near the rock. He somehow managed to evade the first sweep of the net, but at the second try, the handle bent as the full weight of the big fellow settled into the mesh. There on the edge of the rock we stood, spent with the fury of the fight, silent in admiration of the broad, quivering tail, and the iridescent green lights from the wide and thick sides of this monarch of Piscatore.

Gently Dave slid a thumb into the gasping, cavernous maw, lifted the beaten gladiator out of the net and removed the hooks. Said he, "There has never been a bass like this taken on a rod in the Breaks before." I could only nod my head in dumb assent. And then, as suddenly as doom, there was a last convulsive flop and the bass hit my leg as he slipped from Dave's hand. Check and I nearly knocked ourselves unconscious as our heads banged in a desperate grab at the slippery form, but he struck the rock and slid into the river. I can see him yet as the indomitable spirit oriented himself, and faded into the depths. And I'll swear to this day that the quizzical, half-laughing look in Dave's dark, steady eyes, held only tribute to the prowess of that mighty bass.

What matter the weight or the length—it was long ago—and now, when we meet, if there's a drop of snake-oil in the crowd, three elbows go skyward in silent salute to an unbeatable foeman. And though in later years we three have fished above and below the hole that, we hope, still harbors his lordship, our lines have never since been wet in that pool.

LOB CASTS

Happened to be in Ashland last week and attended a meeting of the Eastern Kentucky Game and Fish Club. Lots of eats, a keg of beer, and the swellest bunch of sportsmen you ever saw. Roy Lambert, of the Herald-Advertiser, (Huntington, W. Va., Field and Stream, gave an interesting account of a crow hunt in Wayne county, W. Va. Mr. Lambert's Sunday column is the best sporting comment in the tri-state. Volunteer game wardens from Left Pork of Beaver report less illegal hunting this past season than ever before—purchase of proper license and association with the fish and game club will further discourage this practice. Merle Miller, of Ashland, took a six-pound "musky" from Little Sandy last week. Wall-eyes ought to be hitting a deep-traveling plug or spinner now. Adios.

Jason Weatherfield of New York told a large group of Ashland people at the Kiwanis Club meeting something of the inside workings of the New York Stock Exchange.

Mr. Westerfield's story was told to illustrate the public attitude very commonly held toward Wall Street. The newspaper in an up-state New York town where he was talking put the following headline over the account of his address:

"Wolf of Wall Street Appears in Sheep's Clothing."

That headline writer had probably played the market—and lost.—Ashland Daily.

Lopez Plans To Rearrange "The Star Spangled Banner"

New York—Vincent Lopez, being much upset over vocal difficulties faced by 120,000,000 Americans who at one time or another endeavored to sing "The Star Spangled Banner," intends to do something about it.

You know how it goes at the end—"Land of the free?" Well, right there Lopez would take the music in hand and take the squeak out of it. He thinks the tune hits too high a high. It happens to be F-natural, if you are interested in details; and very few of the 120,000,000 American voices can venture to F-natural without a vocal blow-out.

Lopez and his arrangers have taken that F-natural and shaved it down to a D-natural by a bit of music legerdemain. Any bathroom baritone can hit D-natural if he approaches the task calmly and collectively.

Brainard Rural School Closes, Teachers Depart

The Brainard school closed Jan. 14, and our teachers, Mrs. Norman Domeron and Ralph Spradlin, returned to their homes at Cliff. The school has been a great success, and the teachers will be missed by their many friends.

Misses Bethelle Spradlin, Shirley Williams and Clay Vaughan, some of the eighth grade students here, went to Prestonsburg Jan. 12 to take the eighth grade examination.

Bertie Yates, infant daughter of Mrs. Charlie Yates died January 20. The body was laid to rest in the Halbert cemetery.

Oliver Prater, 12-year-old son of Levi Prater, is very sick.

Mrs. Hattie Holbrook and son, Beecher, left for Silver Lake, Ind., Jan. 21. They are planning to move there soon.

Ottis Conley and son, of Bonanza, were visiting here Sunday.

The Lackey Sunday School is progressing nicely with Mrs. Flora Prater as superintendent. America Robertson is secretary. The Reverend Ray Bellma is pastor.

The Lackey Community Welfare Club is doing good work. Officers are: Flora Prater, president; Bertha Childers, secretary; Bertha Pratt, treasurer.

As the national anthem now stands, the phrase, "Land of the Free" is a straight rise from B-flat to F-natural. As re-arranged by Lopez, the singer would start as at present with B-flat but the next note would be a drop instead of a rise—would be A-natural instead of C-natural—and then would start upward as before, except that the ascent would be from A-natural instead of C-natural; and the climax would be on D-natural instead of on F-natural.

The dance band leader believes Americans are lacking in anthem consciousness largely because of the unsingability of the anthem.

If any change is made in the song, Lopez said, it must have Congressional indorsement to become official.

An opportunity for alumni and friends of the University of Kentucky and surrounding states, to express their views and make recommendations concerning the athletic situation at the University, will be offered through a tentative schedule of meetings to be held in some of the larger cities in the state, which has just been released by the executive committee of the Alumni Association.

M. C. A. club room, Covington, 7:30 p. m.; and Saturday, January 29, Henry Clay hotel, Ashland, 8:45 p. m.

A reorganization committee has been appointed by the chairman of the Athletic Council at the University, to review the entire situation, to receive recommendations from various interested groups and to make recommendations. This committee is composed of Prof. M. E. Ligon, chairman; Dr. Frank L. McVey, Dean P. P. Boyd, William Rodes and David Pettus.

In order that the views of the alumni might be ascertained the executive committee has sent letters to all active members of the association and has designated the meetings as indicated. Prof. Ligon, James S. Shropshire, treasurer, and R. K. Salyers, secretary of the association, will attend the meetings in the various towns.

All-State High School Music Festival Planned

The outstanding feature of the Vocal section of the Kentucky High School Music Festival which will be held April 29 and 30, at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, will be the second all-state high school concert, given on Saturday afternoon, April 30 with Noble Cain, Chicago choral director for the National Broadcasting Company, as director of the chorus.

The chorus will be made up of approximately 500 pupils from high schools representing all sections of the state, and it is expected that there will be as many as 100 schools which will contribute to the membership of the chorus. This event proved so popular last year that applications are coming in not only from schools that participated then but from many others. Schools which want to be represented in the chorus are urged to send in their applications at once as it is expected that the organization will be completed within the next two weeks.

The instrumental section of the Kentucky High School Music Festival which includes bands and orchestras from senior and junior high schools, instrumental ensembles and solos for all instruments, will be held on May 13 and 14. An added feature this year will be a contest for pupil directors, and there will also be a sight reading contest for bands in divisions one and two.

Included in the vocal section, April 29 and 30, will be glee club events for senior and junior high schools, boys, girls and mixed; boys and mixed quartets; girls' trios; and vocal solos for both boys and girls will be held the afternoon of April 29 at the same time as the vocal section.

Where One Stalk Stood

"This here pokeberry dye cawn is good cawn," the oldtimer might have said years ago. And last week The Times was convinced that he would have been right—if he had said it.

The proof: T. F. Hamilton, Praeger Creek farmer, brought to this office a large ear of "pokeberry dye" corn—white grains, sprinkled with blue—around which, like young 'possums to Mother 'Possum's back, adhered six small ears of fully-developed corn.

The corn-reduction program did not figure on such development, it is reported locally.

Returning to their home at Drift, from a C. I. O. convention in Lexington, January 16, Fred Rowe, Robert Rowe, and Morton "Shikepoke" McGlothen, escaped serious injury when their auto was struck by a car driven by a man who gave his name as Smith to the Menfee

The Floyd countians' car, being struck, plunged into a ditch, careened off and stopped atop a car. They reported that previous to their wreck, Smith's car had just smashed an auto driven by L. K. Rogers, of Paris, Ky., throwing him into a ditch. All parties escaped unhurt.

Other delegates who attended the C. I. O. meet in Lexington from Drift were Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Robinson, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hickman.

FORWARD.

NOT BACKWARD!

SUPPOSE this newspaper had presses capable of printing 140 newspapers per minute and a law was imposed limiting its production to only 70 copies during the same time. Wouldn't you say that law was literally turning the wheels of progress backward?

Or suppose your local grocer's staff of clerks could serve 140 customers an hour and a proposed law would force your merchant to handle only 70 customers per hour. Common sense tells us he could handle only one-half of his normal business. Wouldn't that be putting shackles on private initiative and private efficiency?

If a farmer has a tractor capable of pulling six plows, how would he feel if a law was passed allowing his modern tractor to pull only three plows? Wouldn't that handicap the farmer and retard modern agricultural progress?

All right, then, what do YOU think of a proposed law—one that has actually passed the United States Senate and is now before the House of Representatives—which would really reverse railroad progress? Modern railroads, with their big locomotives, heavy rails and straightened curves, are equipped efficiently to handle trains of 100 cars or more. Yet this law, if passed, would compel railroads to limit their trains to 70 cars.

Don't you agree that such a law would needlessly increase the cost of railroad transportation; decrease railroad service to you and your community? We'd like to hear from you. Be still, we would like for your Congressman to hear from you. It is to your personal interest that railroad progress continue forward—be forced backward!

This bill to hamstringing the railroads is known as The Train Limit Bill (Senate Bill 69). It is called a "safety measure"—yet the fact is that railroads have reduced accidents to employees by approximately three-fourths during the same years that modern, long trains were developed to give you faster and better service. Incidentally, The Train Limit Bill would increase the number of trains and proportionately increase grade crossing hazards. Facts and figures about this proposed legislation will be furnished gladly. Address Chesapeake and Ohio Lines, Public Relations Department, Huntington, W. Va. Your inquiry will be handled promptly; your interest appreciated.

THE WISE MONEY

These rival Democratic feasts for handler and Senator Barkleyville Saturday must have observers of Derby Day—all politicians and officeholders are to bet on the winning "horse" a few took tickets on both.

WHY DID HE DOSE?

Joe Dock taught me the other not to be against "Irish" and experience."

HOWEVER IT FELT

We'll bet the fellows that attended both dinners felt like the "full dinner pail."

FIRST SIGN OF SPRING

Spring is coming—for Lemaster is leaving next week for a Tennessee visit.

WHAT MAKES IT A HIGHWAY-HUB?

Well, we've got a number on the "inJustice" trail—No. 122.

HELP FOR JOBUCK

Jobuck, I would and will assist you on that "rared up" stretch—but then that stretch you mentioned is heaven to what we've got over here. This road here is the "hell" end of Floyd county.

ADD FLOOD CONTROL

If we had a splash dam, we could float timber down the highway when it rains.

IN BAD SHAPE

But I'll have to admit that the Right Beaver road is as "holy" as a pair of "Hoover pants." Remember those bottomless pockets?

WHY DIDN'T HE "SET" ON IT?

Some sportsmen were arguing about the best bird dog they had ever owned or seen in action. After the debate was over one man who had listened but remained silent told the boys to go out to his place and see a real bird dog.

They went and the man took his dog and gun out for a demonstration. The dog made a point and a single bird came up and was killed. Then 15 other birds came up, one at a time, and were killed.

It developed that the dog had located a covey in a hole in the ground and put his paw over the hole and let the birds out one at a time for his master to shoot.

SALESMAN NIMROD

They tell me O' Nimrod has a job selling ice cream. More luck, ole fellow. We know you could sell the Eskimos snowballs.

STILL WONDERING

I wonder what happened to "that wildcat."

TALENTED BUNCH

We've just found out that some of that "Sizemore" gang has talent other than mining—we've got a beauty parlor operator and a "tap dancing expert."

PATIENT NO. 1

One of that "Sizemore gang" had the painful honor of being the first patient in the new Gearheart hospital and the first subject for the new x-ray. Mont Gibson, of Prestonsburg, suffered two broken bones in his right foot when a "cut of coal" turned out and knocked a timber across his foot.

VITAL STATISTICS

Our Democratic population has increased by three:

Betty Jean Akers, a 9 1-2 pound daughter, born to Mr. and Mrs. Clive Akers, of Drift. She is their first child. Mrs. Akers was formerly Miss Orpha Chaffins, of Garrett.

A 7 1-2-pound son, born to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Adkins, of McDowell. This is their first child and has been christened Billy Joe.

A 7 1-2-pound son, born to Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Gibson, of Lawrence county. This is their first child and has been christened Donald Jean. He's one of "that Sizemore bunch," too.

PRITCHARD GIRL NAMED CHAMP

elimination, the Garrett girl, who emerged the winner, made a similar mistake in spelling "fought" when the word pronounced was "false," but the judges failed to eliminate her from the contest. If they had done so, the Auxier lass, Sarah Music, would have finished in first place.

The word on which the Auxier girl stumbled was "communicate." After spelling c-o-m-m-u-n-i-c-a-t-e, she added an "i" and was turned down, but what she meant to have said, it is claimed was, "I have to clear my throat."

Judges were: Goldia Porter, Joe

Too, on a miniature screen, Mr. Elliott would project occasional educational pictures such as the life of Washington, Lincoln, Disraeli, or perhaps a return of the old favorite, "Birth of a Nation." Such ideas as these are fine indeed, but will appreciative citizens give deserved support to such a plan?

COUNCIL DEFENDS ARTHUR CARTER

Trimble Branch, was traded by A. C. Carter, then mayor of the city of Prestonsburg, to Lewis Mayo, for reinforcing steel and other supplies to be used on the W. P. A. project in the city. And that to our knowledge no money was exchanged in this transaction.

This January 24, 1938.
(Signed)

R. T. ALLEN
JOHN OSBORNE
J. A. HAGER
J. P. MAY
RAY COLLINS

The one-way steel bridge formerly located on Second avenue, crossing Trimble Branch, Prestonsburg, Ky., connecting the Garfield Addition of the city to the main city, was constructed and paid for by Walter S. Harkins. This bridge was not sold or conveyed to the city during his lifetime, nor has it been sold or conveyed to the city since his death.

The bridge was condemned some few years ago, and was permitted to become in a dangerous condition, and unsafe for use, even by passengers on foot.

In 1937 a W. P. A. project for building a culvert and fill over Trimble Branch, in place of said bridge, was approved; and in furtherance of this project, the bottom and sides of the culvert have been constructed, and I am informed that it will only require approximately two days work to place the top of the culvert, after which it will be ready for the fill to be made.

In the latter part of 1937 I signed an agreement presented to me by A. C. Carter, former mayor of the city of Prestonsburg, in which I agreed to give the dirt necessary to make this fill; and in addition hereto, with others, a money contribution, to provide for the funds necessary to be paid by the sponsors in connection with the fill.

This January 25, 1938.

JOSEPH D. HARKINS.
