Barkley Recounts Classic Kentucky Feudist's Story

Washington, April 6—A classic remark made by a famous Kentucky statesman, Henry Clay, has obtained "on the record" status through the efforts of Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky.

Illustrating a speech in which he pointed out that differences among congressmen have frequently brought sharp exchanges on the Congressional floor, Barkley recalled and inserted in the Congressional Record an incident involving Clay.

"I recall reading that John Randolph, Roanoke, accused Henry Clay, of my own state, on the floor of either House or the Senate, though I am certain, of being a blackleg," Barkley told his colleagues.

Those days, he pointed out, to a man a blackleg was not considered flattering.

Clay challenged Randolph to a duel and they went to the edge of Washington and fought a duel, but neither hit the other and both were mad of it," Barkley said.

"After that they did not speak for more than 10 years. One day Clay was going down to Pennsylvania avenue from the Capitol and John Randolph was coming up the hill. The only sidewalk was a foot plank just wide enough for one man to walk upon. As Clay went down the hill to where the peace monument now stands he met John Randolph walking up the narrow foot plank."

It was a strained situation when they met, Barkley related, and the two enemies glared for a moment, both realizing that one or the other would have to stand aside."

Randolph finally broke the ice and stated: "I never get out of the way of a damned scoundrel."

And, Barkley said he read, the Kentuckian graciously stepped aside with the simple remark, "I always do."

Since Martin now has a Church of Christ and a Church of God, Dick Osborne comes forward with the suggestion that the worship of the Trinity be completed by adding a Church for the Holy Ghost.

Wonder what line of reasoning A. J. May takes for believing other Kentucky Congressmen will support a dam in this district when he so consistently opposes the construction of dams in their part of the state?

To get on level with the street, Mrs. Ida Parker had her drug store here raised 18 inches the other day and, as usually happens to those uplifting souls, she received the first "set-back." Net result: a sore ankle and skinned elbow.

To show my appreciation for Henry Porter & Company's new business established here, I'm going to make a down payment on one of their washers and let the Little Woman make it finish paying for itself.

Lawrence Keathley, who has nerve enough to tell the mothers in the theatre to either keep their "youngins" quiet or take them outside, is the town's top practical joker. He once sold his neighbor's chickens to an old woman, then just laughed and laughed when she wanted her money back.

Wonder where Elmer Collins thought he was when he absent-mindedly warned Loretta Young, during a moonlit scene in the picture "Kentucky," to "Watch out now, or you'll get romanced!"

He (putting his arms around her): "I'm the handiest man in the world." She: "Yeah? Well, you'd better keep your hands to yourself."

A wild rumor, that dirt taken from the ditch lines and slides along the highway has been sold to a few people here to fill in their yards, was quickly dispelled last week by prompt and energetic investigation made by Jonathan Fitzpatrick.

Speaking of jitterbugs, you should see Johnny Robinson's dancing feet and the spectators' hand-clapping, when Johnny makes the winning ball in a pool game with his bitterest rival, Tavis!

The new Church of Christ building here in which the pulpit is in the front of the house, with entrance doors on either side of it, has caused considerable debate as to the underlying motive for its arrangement. One argument is that the church officials wanted to discourage tardiness by making the late-comers face the audience. The other side believes they want to keep the congregation from turning around in their seats to look at the tardy arrivals. Which is right?

Maybe if John L. Lewis had only the mine workers' interests to look out for, instead of the entire C.I.O.'s, he wouldn't have so much opposition in getting a contract signed.

Martin's numerous railroad workers are also feeling the pinch of the mine shut-down.

So You Think!
by Noel B. Cuff Ph.D
PROFESSOR OF PSYCHOLOGY
EASTERN TEACHERS COLLEGE
RICHMOND KENTUCKY

DO YOU EXAGGERATE YOUR IMPORTANCE?

1. Physical inferiority may cause you to act important. Disraeli, for example, had a disease of the nose which produced a constant stench. This made close social contacts almost impossible. It caused him to give up several jobs before he, as foreman of a glue factory, started to an exaggerated success.

2. A superiority complex may be a smoke screen for an inferiority complex. You may act important to keep others from thinking you as insignificant as you think yourself.

The dog who is sure of his power does not need to bark. But the writer remembers a small terrier running after and barking viciously at a train. A traveling salesman asked: "What do you suppose he will do with it when he gets it?" It was just a case of a small dog not wanting to go unnoticed.

Thus, sanctimoniousness may be a camouflage for the opposite. Hence, you may preach constantly against moral lapses in an attempt to conceal your own weakness. Likewise, you may be a braggart to bolster your own self-respect. You may crow over imaginary successes, use big words, smoke big cigars, buy big cars, or "put on airs" generally to make yourself feel important.

3. Our machine age may force you to exaggerate your importance. Threading bolts in a factory, driving brads into lasts, or selling insurance may get you a living wage, but you may not have thrilling days. It is doubtful if your daily work contains the measure of satisfaction enjoyed by the savage who lives, fights, dances and hunts with his fellow villagers.

Even if you succeed in the insane "gold rush" of today, you find there are forms of happiness which wealth cannot buy. Whether a rich man can enter into the kingdom of heaven is a matter we shall leave to theologians, but a rich man has trouble buying either health or social standing.

For instance, a newly-rich woman returned from a tour and raved over sunsets in the East. "How strange," said a disgusted acquaintance, "the sun always sets in the west here."

You may be forced to "strut" in an attempt to "keep up with the Joneses."

eration of this new building is now exhausted, and there is enough money left to operate only 75 beds in the institution until July 1, when a new fiscal year begins and more money can be allotted by the Governor. In the meantime, there will be from 40 to 50 beds unused while 2,480 citizens of the state are dying each year of tuberculosis.

The management and medical direction of Hazelwood is in efficient and sympathetic hands. The equipment and treatment are modern in every respect, yet almost half of the institution will be useless for the next four months unless funds are raised in some way by the people of the state.

Tuberculosis does not wait. The sanatorium belongs to the people of Kentucky. We desperately need all of its service. To allow so much of it to be idle for months is a waste of life and money. Many cases that can be saved will be hopeless after waiting even two months; $10,000 is needed in this emergency to operate the sanatorium at full capacity. The strong civic spirit of the combined fraternal orders of the state can raise the amount needed, and by a state-wide effort a very small individual contribution will be sufficient. We feel that newspapers, church-goers, the American Legion, theaters, women's clubs, and any other civic or social group will eagerly join in this cause when the need is so great. (A woman's club in Louisville has already raised more than $50 for this purpose, although the money will be spent for people who live outside the city). We think that benefit shows, canvassing campaigns, or any program in which the public can freely participate will be successful in raising this fund.

An example of the splendid results of group action is shown in the fight against infantile paralysis, where individual contributions of a dime have totaled hundreds of thousands of dollars in a short campaign. We feel that as much can be done for tuberculosis among our people. If one person out of each 10 will donate a dime to this cause, over $25,000 will be raised. The goal we are striving for is a 5-cent contribution from one person out of each five. It will be necessary to secure this sum since only about one-half the people of the state can be reached in so short a time. This can be done through a "mile of nickels" plan. With this idea in mind, we, the patients at Hazelwood Sanatorium, are hereby subscribing five cents each for this benefit fund. Only a state-wide organization is needed to make this plan effective in being carried out. We are depending on you to carry on.

This plan is intended for this emergency only. It must not be considered as a substitute for any existing anti-tuberculosis organization or for any kind of legislative action the state or counties should undertake.

If you approve of this plan, please select a chairman for each locality who will have charge of the fund, and at the end of the drive send the money collected to Mrs. Arch B. Terrell, executive secretary, Louisville Tuberculosis Association, Louisville, Ky., where the fund may be paid as needed to the sanatorium for the care of patients who will be approved for treatment by the superintendent of the institution. All parts of the state are included by this method.

There is now an opportunity for the joint action of fraternal orders in Kentucky to contribute much toward the progress of state health. This is in regard to tuberculosis, our most neglected disease. The Order of Elks has been engaged in this work for some time, raising money for the partial expenses of several patients at the sanatorium even though many of these are not affiliated with the order.

APPEAL FOR AID

Dear Mr. Allen:
Enclosed is a copy of an appeal which we patients at Hazelwood Sanatorium are making for funds in order that the sanatorium may all be used for the splendid work it is doing.

Those of us who have been able to secure sanatorium service for treatment of tuberculosis are firmly convinced that it is the only adequate means of caring for the disease. We know that if we are successful in this benefit drive a few lives will be saved; that anyone who contributes ANYTHING to this cause will have helped to save the life of some man or woman.

Support by the press is most important to the success of any service of this kind. We would be most grateful if you will publish our appeal in The Times. We would also appreciate your helpful comment on the plan and any support you should care to give in added publicity.

Very truly yours,

DISTRICT THIRTY MINERS PLEDGE LEWIS SUPPORT

Pikeville, Ky., April 8—Coal miners of District 30, United Mine Workers of America, today pledged their support to John L. Lewis, U.M.W.A. president, in his demand that a penalty clause be eliminated from any new working contract.

Sam Caddy, of Lexington, one of four representatives of mine workers who, with coal operators' representatives, have been trying to reach an agreement on a new contract for the Appalachian area, addressed a meeting in the public square at which the action was taken. The former contract expired April 1.

Caddy said the disputed clause provided a penalty of $2 a day in event of an illegal strike or a lockout.

John Young Brown, Lexington attorney and another speaker, endorsed the union's demand that the clause be eliminated.

Will C. Thompson, of the Williamson, W. Va., coal field, told the meeting miners needed solidarity of policy.

Guy Bowles, Milton, W. Va., state road commission truck driver, charged with manslaughter after the death of Sheriff Earl Scott, of Pikeville, in an automobile accident January 7, was acquitted last Friday by a jury in the Cabell county common pleas court at Huntington.

Sheriff Scott died instantly of a broken neck and a crushed chest suffered in the accident, which occurred on West Virginia route 10 near Salt Rock, 10 miles south of Huntington.

The trial lasted two days. Among the state's witnesses were Prosecuting Attorney J. A. Runyon, of Pike county, and Deputy Sheriffs Rush Chapman and Louis Azarch, of Williamson, W. Va., who were riding with Scott. They testified a truck driven by Bowles struck the sheriff's car, causing it to turn over four times. The defense contended the sheriff's car crowded the truck, and Bowles, testifying in his own behalf, asserted he was not responsible for the accident.

Damron Stars As Messer's Team Wins Spring Practice Game

The Prestonsburg high school Black-cats defeated the Van Lear Bank

Mules, 12-0, in a spring practice football game Saturday afternoon on the local field. The game, played in near-perfect football weather, attracted fewer than a hundred spectators.

Both teams showed many rough spots, to be expected in a spring game, and both were the victims of several fumbles.

Neither team was able to threaten during the first quarter. In the second period, the 'Cats took possession of the ball deep in Van Lear territory, when a Bank Mule fumble was recovered. After a line buck failed to take the ball over the goal line, Heinze tossed a short pass to Damron in the end zone, for the first score. An attempted place-kick for the extra point was low, and Prestonsburg led at the half, 6-0.

Late in the third quarter, Damron intercepted an attempted Van Lear lateral, and raced 30 yards for Prestonsburg's second touch-down. The 'Cats failed in an attempt to carry the ball over the goal line for the extra point, and the score stood, 12-0. Neither team threatened in the final period.

Coach Messer started Damron and Burdsal at ends; Rice and Bailey at tackles; Butler and Stanley, guards; Gunnels at center; Heinze, quarterback; Herald and Salisbury at the half positions, and Hunter at full-back.
