Mr. Howard, principal speaker of the evening, vigorously denounced 40 per cent of Floyd county's voters who refused to exercise their rights of citizenship August 5 by not voting at all, and proposed that the youngsters include the education of these slackers in their program of "house-cleaning."

Judge Spradlin extolled the advantages of Democracy, praised Democratic leaders from President Roosevelt down, and invited all Democrats who didn't believe in the principles of the founding fathers to shed the cloak of hypocrisy "and join Hoover's hard-time forces." No one accepted Mr. Spradlin's invitation, and, as advertised, everybody danced "till the rooster crowed."

turned back into the house, and of hearing shots.

Mrs. Willie Hall, a neighbor of the Joneses, told of hearing Mrs. Jones begging for her life, but her husband said he heard only the shooting. Certain witnesses testified that they saw Jones en route to his home, armed with a shotgun; others claimed that he did not have a shotgun as he walked homeward.

Defense testimony contended that Mrs. Harris could not have viewed the death scene through the window of the Jones home. Evidence produced by the defense also claimed that Mrs. Jones had, twice previously attempted suicide by poison, at Clear Creek and at Neon, and that she had threatened during her residence at Jack's Creek, to kill herself but to use a gun, "next time."

Of the tragedy, the defendant himself testified that he had returned home from Pikeville, found his wife in bed and had gone to the adjoining kitchen for coffee when he heard the shotgun fired, inside the house and out on the porch. When he returned to the bedroom, he testified, Mrs. Jones said, "I believe I'll kill myself," and he replied, "Woman, that's a matter of your own business."

Bert Jones, 12, son of Tim, testified that he came into the room after the lethal shot was fired, pulled the shotgun from beneath Mrs. Jones' body and "broke" it.

KENTUCKY SURPLUS POPULATION MOVES TO OTHER STATES

That Kentucky furnishes population for other states, as a result of its high birth rate, is brought out in a new Agricultural Experiment Station bulletin dealing with the natural increase and migration of people in this state.

Migration and population from regions of high birth rate in Kentucky to other states and to cities within the state goes on all the time. If this were not so, the high birth rate would double the population of Kentucky in 77 years, at the present rate of increase.

In Leslie county, the birth rate is the highest in the United States, and if there were no migration its population would double in 24 years. There are eight other Eastern Kentucky counties in which the population would double in less than thirty years, and 18 more counties where it would double in 40 years, at the present rate of natural increase, if it were not for migration. In Leslie county, there are nearly three times as many children as needed to maintain the population.

In five Kentucky counties the birth rate is not sufficient to maintain the present population. They are Jefferson, Fayette, Kenton, Campbell, and McCracken, in which are located the cities of Louisville, Lexington, Covington, Newport and Paducah.

Growing Crops In Liquids May Affect Present War

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 11—Hydro phonics, the science of growing crops in liquids may play a vital role in the European war, two research experts declared today.

Andrew Chalmers and Raymond L. Moore, chief research chemists for the Moore Research Laboratory, who have been experimenting extensively on soilless agriculture for two years, said: "It is possible to use this method to establish community gardens for the people behind the lines of combat and keep them adequately supplied with fresh garden crops."

This theory of chemical gardening gained impetus during the latter part of the World War when the United States government asked research men to test its feasibility. It has been developed into a practical and inexpensive process, Chalmers and Moore asserted, with these advantages:

The gardens would allow farmers to produce the greater part of their staple crops for the armed forces.

Equally important are the stomach of the people at home, who are working at top emergency speed. Keeping these men and women supplied with fresh foods would tend to strengthen their morale.

Chalmers asserted that the most expensive phase of chemical gardening was the initial outlay for waterproof beds, but once established, the beds could be used indefinitely. He said experiments had proved four things:

Average crop yield is 100 to 300 per cent more than from soil.

The yearly cost is about two cents a square foot of bed.

There is no soil preparation and theoretically no soil-bred diseases to ruin a crop.

Chemicals necessary for plant growth would be easily available in war time, Chalmers declared. These include potassium nitrate, ammonium sulphate, epsom salts, monocalcium sulphate and, in small degree, metals and boron salts.

Asserting that chemical gardening was "no test-tube proposition," he said:

"Midwestern agriculturalists, who first put it into commercial use five years ago, have acres planted under this process and report it a paying venture."

Seeds and roots are permanently submerged in chemical liquids or may be planted on a gravel base through which the solution is pumped," he added.

The saving of labor would allow warring nations to put men normally employed on farms in other service, he asserted.

To illustrate the results of soilless agriculture, Chalmers told of tomato seed planted in a tank in November, saying:

"We picked the first fruit the next month and continued reaping from the same vine until the following July. With proper pruning and feeding the plant could be kept producing continuously. The process works equally as well for any other type of plant or tree."

Hydroponics, he concluded, possibly may be Europe's ace in the hole.

MAYTOWN P.-T.A. ELECTS OFFICERS FOR CURRENT YEAR

The Maytown Parent-Teacher Association met Monday of last week in the science building and elected the following officers for the present term: Rev. C. C. Newsome, president; Miss Harriet Allen, recording secretary; Mrs. W. W. Cooley, vice-president; Mrs. Elizabeth Baker, treasurer. A number of standing committees were appointed, and the list will be published as soon as compiled. Mrs. Amy Begley, who is general chairman of the annual Hallowe'en Carnival, announces that the date for it is October 28, at 7 p. m., in the gymnasium. She read the names of her co-workers. Briar Buck's Scratches

The views expressed in this column are those of the writer, and not necessarily those of The Times.

Recently a deputy constable, nearly "under the weather" himself, arrested a man for drunkenness and escorted the luckless chap to the city lock-up. Upon reaching their destination, which was in a rather dark location and without benefit of a street light, the "high" minded official brought out his keys and made many clumsy attempts at unlocking the door. But 'twas of no avail. It just wouldn't open. Finally tiring of waiting in the damp, night air, the S-rak took the keys from the public servant's hands and let himself into his own place of confinement.

Adolf Hitler's idea of "closer relationship" between his country and another is to get friendly enough with them to knock their fool heads off before they even suspect anything.

If the Young Democrats are successful with their plan of abolishing "floaters" from Floyd county, who knows but that some deserving poor man may some day be elected to office!

After voting against him in the primary, I didn't mind paying the dime for John Young Brown's cocoa last Friday night. But I still believe the "house," without running the risk of bankruptcy, could have been gracious enough to offer him that small a courtesy, free of charge.

METHUSELAH

While discussing the weather here recently, one sage, wishing to emphasize the fact that last month was unusually warm, said: "Gentlemen, this September has been the warmest one I've ever seen in my life, and I reckon I've seen five hundred!"

A person can be a good Democrat or he can be a good Republican, but never a good MUGWUMP—they're all bad!

Announcing THE NEW FORD CARS FOR 1940

22 important improvements, added to fundamental Ford features, represent the most advanced engineering in the low-price field

WHAT do the Ford cars for 1940 offer to match their brilliant new beauty? New comfort, convenience, quiet, safety—and the roomiest, richest interiors ever designed for a Ford car.

They have a host of interesting new features. Finger-Tip Gearshift on the steering post. An improved transmission, unusually easy to shift. New Controlled Ventilation. Improved shock absorbers. Softer springs, improved spring suspension and a new ride-stabilizer.*

A combination of new features makes the new cars quieter in operation. They have big, powerful hydraulic brakes. They have new Sealed-Beam Headlamps that are safer, stronger and stay bright longer.
