

CONTRIBUTION OF EMPLOYEES TO UNEMPLOYMENT FUND CEASES JUNE 30TH

Frankfort, Ky., June 15 (Sp.)—Many of the more important changes written into the Kentucky Unemployment Compensation law at the last session of the Legislature will become effective July 1, Executive Director V. E. Barnes, of the Unemployment Commission, announced today.

"As a result of one of these amendments employees will not be required to contribute to the Unemployment Insurance Fund on wages earned after June 30," the Commission director declared. At present employees contribute 1 per cent of their taxable wages.

"Another change will enable the Commission to return to its former procedure of paying benefits upon a weekly basis. This, with the amendment reducing a claimant's waiting period from two weeks to one week, will make it possible for the Commission to issue the claimant's first benefit check shortly after his second week of unemployment. At present, because of the two-week waiting period requirement and the provision that checks be issued bi-weekly, the Commission cannot issue the claimant's first check until after his fourth week of unemployment.

"Other changes raise the minimum rate from $4 to $5 and the maximum weekly rate from $15 to $16. Benefits for total unemployment will, as at present, be paid for 16 weeks. This period, however, for claimants whose rate is reduced because of deductions for earnings or other remuneration, may extend beyond 16 weeks. In no case, however, will the claimant receiving partial benefits receive a greater benefit total than the claimant who is totally unemployed.

"These are the principal changes becoming effective July 1," Barnes explained. "Certain other provisions became effective the date the law was approved by Governor Johnson and other changes were retroactive to January 1 of this year.

"Effective as of the date the law was approved is a provision protecting the wage credits of those workers called into military service. These wage credits are now frozen and may be used by the service man in claiming benefits when he is released from the armed forces.

"The provision setting 2.7 per cent as the highest contribution rate the employer might be required to pay upon his quarterly payroll was retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year. The former maximum rate was 3.7 per cent. The law, however, retains the incentive to employers for maintaining stable employment by providing for reduced rates for those employees who have sufficient funds in their reserve accounts and whose employment experience is favorable enough to meet with the qualifications set up by the law. These reduced rates range from zero to 1.8 per cent. The employer, therefore, is encouraged to reduce unemployment, but the employer who, because of the nature of his business, cannot avoid seasonal lay-offs or intermittent unemployment, is not penalized.

"The eligibility and disqualification provisions of the law remain essentially the same. In keeping with its announced purpose that benefits should be paid only to those workers unemployed through no fault of their own, the law retains the provisions for partial or total disqualification of those claimants whose unemployment may have resulted from their own misdeeds. Workers who voluntarily quit their jobs without good cause, who are discharged for misconduct, who refuse suitable employment, or who are guilty of misrepresentation in claiming benefits may be totally disqualified, or, if extenuating circumstances are found to exist, the disqualification may be only partial. Workers out of employment because of a labor dispute or out on strike are not eligible for benefits while the labor dispute or strike is in progress.

"Partial benefits will be paid to those fully eligible workers who are employed less than 24 hours during a seven-day period if their earnings are less than their benefit rate."

PRECISELY 22 years ago the Gray Eagle led Cleveland to her last pennant—her only pennant in some 50 years and more.

The Gray Eagle is better known as Tris Speaker—one of the great outfielders, one of the great ball players of all baseball time. The Gray Eagle was the flying hawk who prevented Ty Cobb from leading the American league 13 consecutive seasons. This makes Tris half-eagle and half-hawk—especially ball hawk.

Tris Speaker

"I'd like to tell you something about this kid Lou Boudreau," Tris said.

"Not a bad manager," we suggested.

"Not a bad manager," the Eagle almost screamed. "If he has the chance to keep going—I'm talking about the war now—he'll be one of the best that baseball ever knew."

"Here's a 24-year-old kid who is smart, game, crafty, forceful, respected and admired by every man on his club—and a corking ball player on the side.

"But the war is far more important than Boudreau or baseball. No one knows what will happen a little later on. I'm just trying to tell you what Boudreau might have been in normal times."

How It Happened

"When Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland club, was looking around for a new manager," Speaker continued, "he asked me about three or four possibilities. They were all good men.

"But I asked Alva, 'Why go away from your own club?'"

"Who would that be?" Mr. Bradley asked.

"A kid named Boudreau," I said. "How can you find a better man?"

"Lou's only 24," Bradley said.

"If he were 21 I'd still like him. In a year or two he'll be one of the best in baseball. Take him and give him a chance."

"At that time we were not at war. I figured then that Boudreau would need a year or two, or maybe three, to pick up the answers. He's picked them up, with the material he had.

"Lou took over a club that wasn't so hot last season—even with Bob Feller winning 25 games. Lou didn't have Feller around this spring. Feller has a much bigger job to look after.

Cleveland, minus Bob Feller, looked to be one of the major flops. Feller meant Cleveland. Bob had won 24 games in 1939, 27 games in 1940, and 25 games in 1941. When you lose a guy who can win 76 games for you in three years, you've lost more than your shirt!

"We hear a lot of discussion as we travel over the county of Floyd as to the fairness of the two Draft Boards. Board 45 serves the upper end of the county and we think they are doing a swell job serving the public at such a thankless task. Ye old Sand Dad is saying, right out loud, that he thinks these three men—J. M. Turner, Henry Campbell and Harry Zimmerman—are all three gentlemen and scholars and all the good things that go with these titles.

It is reported that pretty soon at the old boarding house we will have individual sugar bowls to put our half pound in. Note to the cook: Please don't let anybody filch my sugar.

Frank Zirnkliw is the "Mad Russian" of Clear Creek, only we have never seen him mad except when he reads his paper, The Voice of Russia, where the Nazis have made a new advance. We were talking the other day about the Russia of the old days under the regime of the Czar. Frank tells me that there were only two reasons to divorce a woman in that time—and one of them was, of all things, halitosis.

Well, well—here's hoping you never find a bachelor button in your bed of Black-Eyed Susans. So long till next time.

Time has taken nothing from him. He has been beyond all question the greatest fielding outfielder in the game's history—and I can give you Jimmy McAleer, Fred Clarke, Jimmy Sheckard (Ring Lardner's pick), Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Joe Jackson, and several others.

And normally Tris was better than a .350 hitter. Beyond this, the Gray Eagle from Hubbard City, Texas, has had more brains than most of the tribe.

Speaker has had the personality that belongs only to a few around the top rung. He is now in his fifties, all gray and partly bald, but still more ready and willing to get in any form of war work where he might be useful. At present he is on a draft board in Cleveland "where," he tells you, "we are playing no favorites." And he's not just saying that.

Well, well—here's hoping you never find a bachelor button in your bed of Black-Eyed Susans. So long till next time.

CLEAR CREEK SCREENINGS

By SAND DAD

It's beyond the natural powers of man to tell whether or not a man can eat his way to glory, but it is very evident that a lot of sinners at Clear Creek have been trying to do so.

The ladies of the church at Clear Creek serve a mighty tasty meal at a reasonable price every two weeks. So eat, you sinners and saints—it will make you strong, aside from the fact that the spiritual association might help you some.

Just how he found out, we don't know, but Wheeler Turner reports that the brave and fearless Shikepoke was all wrong about that much-discussed "banty" rooster belonging to one Henry Campbell. Wheeler says that the rooster was not devoured at the time and place mentioned by Shike, but was served at the Tavern in the Sky or some such outlandish name or place, and that the guests were so many that they had to make "banty soup" so that all could have a taste of this rare dish. Waiter, please pass the banty soup—I'm about to cry in my Pilsner or was it Budweiser. Speak up, Wheeler. Were you there?

Evidently Johnnie Caudill has saint and sinner sections in his mine on the Clear Creek side. We came across Foreman Johnnie the other night at the mouth of sixth right entry trying to figure out some changes in the working places. "I hate like hell to send a good man to seven left," says Johnnie, "because I know that gang up there will make a first-class liar out of him." He must have thought that Puggy Joe Osborne had not climbed the spiritual ladder very high, because he sent him up there and Joe proceeded to get lost the second night. The boys there have a remedy for the matter. You see, they are going to put a bell on Kennel Dye, so Puggy Joe can follow him to their places of work.

There must be something to this Wayland water. They say that J. M. (Morg) Turner still carries his water from Wayland—and he only lives about 300 yards out of town. Why not lay a pipe line, Morg?

Richard Vinson says his fever has gone up again and that he's longing for those defense jobs. He says he gets up every morning and it seems like he can hear the whistle of ships coming in to the docks. Remember, Richard, you tried it once. And so did I.

WAYLAND HOT SHOTS

By R. H.

The news from Wayland is slightly improved. That darned tippie ran five straight days last week and did not break down.

According to the statistics of the United Nations, it costs the Japanese government $35,000 to kill an allied soldier. If the men in the good old U.S.A. will work regular every day we'll get them damned Japs down as low as three for a quarter. At that rate, if every man who is able to work would buy a twenty-five dollar bond each month, it would not be long until there would not be one of the monkeys left.

Wonder why Mr. Bussey don't like to be called "Old Man Bussey." You can look at Otis and Bull Dawson, his sons, and tell he's no spring chicken.

Pete Capelli and Delbert Webb got used to honky-tonking together so much that, as soon as Pete went to Princess Elkhorn to work, Delbert just could not stay away. He had to go, too. Once a jitterbug, always one.

All the local officers of the Big Sandy-Elkhorn in District No. 30 attended a convention at the Martin high school auditorium last Friday night. Several good talks were made by representatives of the International Union, U.M.W.A., including two International Policy committeemen. I did miss Shikepoke, I guess maybe his wife had him locked in the house, but we did have Butler Tussey who can talk just about as much as Shike.

THE GARDEN

By JOHN S. GARDNER
Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

HOME-SAVING OF GARDEN SEEDS

Whether or not last spring's high seed prices are a portent of high prices to stay, the old art of saving vegetable seed from the garden well bears reviving. It is not difficult to do and its advantages are many. For one, it is guaranty that fresh seed is had; much of that that came to the home gardeners this year was not. Besides, a gardener may thus have well suited sorts, whether he knows their seed catalogue names or not.

Happily, the easiest seed to save is of the most important vegetables—beans and tomatoes. Beans "mix" almost not at all, and tomatoes "come true" well over 85 per cent. To save tomato seed, one need not wait until the fruit has become dead ripe but there is mature seed in tomatoes only fairly well colored. Selection should be made in the first cluster, called the "crown" cluster, of fruits that please the eye. These are pulped into a non-metal container and set away, perhaps covered with cheesecloth to keep out the insects. After three days or so, fermenting starts, and this cuts loose the phlegm in which the seeds are enclosed, and the good seeds fall to the bottom. The waste is then poured off, the seed gathered and spread to dry, but not in the sun, as intense light tends to kill germination of seed of all kinds.

Kale seed and that of all the cabbage greens is easy to save, and a half-dozen plants yield enough for an average garden. However, there is danger of mixing; for example, curly kale tends to become smooth, grown too close to rape. One hundred feet is reasonably far enough to separate them, though, for that matter, such mixing is of little importance, except possibly for looks.

Wipe that sneer off his face!

THE HOME FRONT

HERE IS A RESUME OF IMPORTANT HAPPENINGS

Home front lines tighten. WPB cites workers. Lima plant breaks record. More shortages predicted. Fish, pork may be scarce. War styles may change. Travel to be restricted. Eastman issues warning. Milk delivery threatened. OPA checks merchants. WPB hints punitive action. Farm machinery supply guarded.

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

The Wireless: See how the Axis whippers when you get tough. Churchill slapped a couple of chips off Adolf's shoulder, and Berlin cried its eyes out. "You ask for gas," taunted Winston, "and gas you'll get." The Berlin press whined next day, "Please, mister, you got us wrong"...

The Story Tellers: Gen. de Gaulle was in the doghouse with the brass hats before the war started. Elliot Paul, in his book, "The Last Time I Saw Paris," mentions that de Gaulle pooh-poohed the Maginot Line, the darling of the army clique.

Nazi propagandists keep repeating that they love peace. Every time Hitler or another Nazi makes a speech, they insist that they are peaceful. And the tragic part of this is that this propaganda bullet aimed at America was manufactured by an American press agent!

The Front Pages: The Herald-Tribune editorially declared war on Laval & Co., and advised the State Dept that Vichy has rattled on the USA from the start. It okayed Jap bases for attacks on China, the paper reminded, and cautioned Hull that Laval's word wasn't any better than a police cop package thief's...

Barry Faris of INS once pointed out why reporters should never pigeonhole their stories. He said: "Stories are like vegetables. Use them quickly or they spoil."

He was blind... But every day he had his secretary read every item in a newspaper. He wanted to know what page an item was printed on, how much space it filled, how much was devoted to headlines, what were the cross-heads, were any boxes used, what about the illustrations...

date, they must be restricted voluntarily." Most of the country's milk trucks will be off the streets in two years, a survey prepared by the Milk Industry Foundation and the International Association of Milk Dealers disclosed.

Office of Price Administration inspectors are checking up on merchants in Louisville, Charleston, Columbus, Ohio, and Indianapolis, this week to see whether they are posting their selling and ceiling prices on cost-of-living commodities correctly or at all.

While OPA moves to tighten up on rent and price control, the Regional Office of the War Production Board issues a warning to manufacturers who violate priorities, allocations and limitation orders.

So that farmers may "meet the food requirement goals set by the Department of Agriculture," WPB has ordered that products made under the farm machinery and equipment program must actually reach the farm and not be diverted to any non-agricultural use.

Said William R. Tracy, chief of WPB's Farm Machinery and Equipment Branch: "Sales for farm use do not require a rating. Whenever a sale is made on an unrated order for non-agricultural use, it deprives the farmer of goods which were intended for his use, and is flagrant and unjustified violation of the orders which make available preference ratings for materials going into the manufacture of farm equipment."

OPA is keeping a firm hand on prices. It denied application of the Lima, O., Packing Co., protesting the ceiling on dressed hogs and wholesale pork cuts. The company filed too late, OPA rules. Appeal for a higher price ceiling filed by a Nevada company was also denied.

41 Draft Violators Convicted In Kentucky Jenkins, Ky., June 11—Louisville F.B.I. Agent H. K. Moss today told 40 law enforcement officers from five Eastern Kentucky counties that 41 persons in Kentucky and 726 in the nation had been convicted of violating the selective service act.

There are, however, production difficulties. The chief of these is the shortage of metals and rubber. The metal shortage threatens to close blast furnaces, and everybody by now knows what that means in terms of ships and guns and tanks and the motive power and machinery of modern war.

Continued conversion of industrial plants from civilian to war manufacture will continue to cause shortages of many manufactured things for which materials might be theoretically plentiful. Crowding of four transportation systems, submarine sinkings on the high seas, will cause the same result.

Clothing will not be rationed this year, but we can expect further changes in style to conserve textiles. As war traffic jams our railways and taxes every bus and truck with their vanishing tires, traveling may be restricted to the bare bone of necessity, to day coaches and upper berths instead of parlors, lowers and compartments.

If people don't conserve their tires in business and pleasures, gasoline rationing may do it for them. There's no prospect of synthetic rubber for civilian use before 1944. Joseph B. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, and chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the nation's foremost transportation authority, put the proposition in this quaint fashion before a meeting of Cleveland business men during the week: "If automobile operations are not restricted by some form of man-

Statewide Program For Anti-Inflation Education Planned

Definite progress in the state-wide program to inform all Kentucky farm people about the inflation control measures of the federal government, is announced by Dean Thomas P. Cooper of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

Presenting to farm people, including those living in small towns, information about the national plans to hold down the cost of living was a job assigned by the government to the Extension Service of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

There are 240,000 farm families in Kentucky, and thousands of families living in towns under 2,500 population. "To reach all these people is a gigantic job," Dean Cooper pointed out, "but it is a job that must be done in the interests of the welfare of the entire country."

The President's seven-point program to check inflation and control the cost of living is set out at all meetings of farm men and women and 4-H club members. Various features of the inflation-control program are discussed, with special attention to the effect of inflation on farming.

Twelve district conferences of county farm agents and county home demonstration agents were held immediately after the College was notified that it was to conduct a thorough educational program among farmers.

Woman Killed, 5 Injured As Theater Sign Falls

Hazard, Ky., June 13—Mrs. Arminie Sizemore, 65, of Combs, Ky., was killed and five others were hurt here today when a heavy theater sign fell while workmen were standing on top of it.

Jesse Bowling, 16, of Hazard, suffered a broken right leg and other injuries. Walter Shipley, 40, Bonnyman, Ky., a broken left hip and Sam Sizemore, 67, husband of the fatally injured woman, less serious hurts.

Albert Walker, 11, and Franklin Rice, 9, of Hazard, were released from the Hazard hospital after treatment of minor injuries. Shipley, a carpenter, said he was working on top of the sign when one of its supporting chains broke.

L. O. Davis, manager of the theater, estimated the sign weighed 2,500 pounds. BABE IS VICTIM The four-day-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Clifford Haywood, of David, died June 10. Burial was made in the family cemetery on the following day under the direction of the Arnold Funeral Home.

Uncle Sam has far more POWER for War Production than all these three together! Adolf, Hirohito and Benito aren't sleeping well these nights. They know that America's war production must inevitably turn the tide against them. America can do it because America has the electric power to do it. Electric power multiplies man-power and drives the machines that make tanks, planes, ships and guns. How much power has America? More than the three dictators and all their conquered countries combined. Five times more than we had in the last war. And this has been done almost entirely by electric companies owned by millions of Americans and managed by American business men.

PULASKI AND FLOYD

PULASKI COUNTY has made the lethal mistake of returning to the sub-district trustee election. It is a lethal mistake because the election of those sub-district trustees—friends and neighbors opposing each other, and most of them eventually becoming bitter enemies—has in the past resulted in bloodshed and surely in the future, unless immutable human nature changes, will result in more bloodshed, all for no good reason whatever.

Floyd county has but to remember the Prater Creek affair in which men of good families and good repute in the community fought out one of these pitifully "little" affairs in the narrow confines of a one-room school, a few years ago. This county cannot forget that elimination of such neighborhood rivalry over an inconsequential thing like a rural school has, since that time, saved other good citizens from killing others or from dying in a trivial cause.

This newspaper does not carry the political torch for County Superintendent Town Hall or any other official—and it re-iterates the undying fact that they all depend upon political torch-bearers. Yet it cannot, with any degree of honesty or sincerity, deny the fact that one of the finest things ever achieved in Floyd county was that one stroke of Town Hall's by which he eliminated the little, old sub-district school election.

BAD SHOW BUSINESS

THE carnivals are coming! Buy your war stamps and bonds now. If you don't you'll spend your money foolishly when you should invest it wisely for the salvation of your country and humanity.

And the carnivals will take that money in one direction only—out. Away, forever, from your community.

Enumerate the good things these nomads of the alleged entertainment world bring into your community—point out to us even one good thing these carnivals supply, and we'll list you a dozen bad things.

This is no argument to deprive children of the fun they might have at a carnival. But the fact is, it's not the children who are robbed of their fun when the carnivals stay away—it's those grown-ups who have no fondness for childish pleasures.

Some carnivals, it goes without saying, are not as bad as others; but, usually, venereal diseases follow them—the health department is authority for that statement—, open gambling is the rule rather than the exception, and vice is promoted by word of mouth and exhibitions behind tent-flaps.

Finally, practically every home-town business is affected for weeks after the peripatetic "hot spot" is far away.

Rob the piggy-bank for a war stamp; don't waste the money while your family and country need it.

STATESMANLY CREED

HISTORY has not recorded a more bitter personal political feud than that existing between Andrew Jackson and Daniel Webster when the former occupied the White House and the latter was an outstanding member of the Senate from Massachusetts.

In view of the fact that so many of our public men, highly placed in the government affairs, today are too frequently influenced in their official acts by personal animus and hate, the following quotation from one of Webster's speeches is timely and should prove helpful:

"I intend, here, to stint my commendation of the conduct of the President in regard to the proclamation and the subsequent measures. I have differed with the President, as all know who know anything of so humble an individual as myself, on many questions of great general interest and importance. . . . But all these differences afforded, in my judgment, not the slightest reason for opposing him in a measure of paramount importance, and at a moment of great public exigency. I sought to take counsel of nothing but patriotism, to feel no impulse but that of duty, and to yield not a lame and hesitating, but a vigorous and cordial, support to measures, which, in my conscience, I believed essential to the preservation of the Constitution. It is true, doubtless, that if myself and others had surrendered ourselves to a spirit of opposition, we might have embarrassed, and probably defeated, the measures of the administration. But in so doing, we should, in my opinion, have been false to our own characters, false to our duty, and false to our country."

Webster so spoke in a speech at Pittsburgh in 1833, but his creed is as sound today as it was then, and the country will benefit from patriotic statesmen respecting it and following it.—Herald-Dispatch (Huntington, W. Va.)

LIDICE CAN NEVER BE WIPED OUT

THE mad dogs of the Gestapo are in full cry in Europe now. That loathsome, inhuman cry reminds us of several things. It reminds us what we are fighting against—the spirit of bestiality that can murder the males and drive away all the women and children of a village because it is "suspected" of harboring Czech patriots. It reminds us that this war is not, as a few muddled minds still affect to believe, a war for living space, for empire, but a war against the complete degradation of the human spirit. The Gestapo's inhuman cry reminds us that the bombing of cities (have we become accustomed to that so soon, and begun to take it for granted?) began only a few years ago, when the Axis held its war games in Spain.

Yes, the vengeance squads now roaming the stricken lands of Europe may bring things to mind. There is no dignity in what we see and hear, only the savage use of seized power to crush the little folk, to slaughter the innocents. There is no dignity in wrangling over the count of the dead. Germany officially admits some 6,500 executions. Allied governments in exile, with all their sources of secret information, estimate nearly 450,000. The Yugoslav government estimates 350,000 slain in that country alone—sufficient evidence of the flaming spirit of the conquered people. The Nazis do not deny, but rather boast, of their shootings and their bayonetings and their hangings. The principle of rule by terror they find congenial. We should keep reminded of that. A state which will murder 6,500 will murder 6,500,000.

German vengeance squads, reports The Associated Press, "utterly wiped out Lidice, a Czech village of 1,200 persons." We must beg leave to doubt it. Lidice can never be wiped out. What of Bataan and Midway? Is Rotterdam wiped out? Did Nazi military power destroy Greece or Holland? Is Norway dead? Lidice cannot be wiped out of memory. It will be restored. The women and the children will come back and Lidice will live again. It will live as a symbol of why this war was fought by peoples throughout the world to whom war is abhorrent.

Josiah Quincy wrote, nearly 170 years ago:

"Blandishments will not fascinate us, nor will threats of a halter intimidate. For, under God, we are determined that whosoever, whensoever, or howsoever we shall be called to make our exit, we will die free men."

That is the epitaph of the men of Lidice, of all the butchered thousands of conquered Europe. What, we wonder, will be the epitaph of the Gestapo?—The Courier-Journal.

MY BIRTHDAY SONNET

Land of my birth I'll e'er adore,
Love for it grows more and more;
The years may come and pass away,
But my childhood days will stay.

My boyhood memories linger with me,
They are among the happiest that be;
They have been, too, so fond and gay,
So near, they are still far away.

Now eighty-three years have gone,
Swiftly passed since I was born;
I haven't forgot my native habitat,
Or the elm grandfather sat.

My cradle is far, my grave is so near,
Soon I'll have to leave you here;
Be not dismayed by grief or fear,
When you come, I'll meet you, my dear.

The waves may be high and very dark,
But you'll be safe in the bark,
Your Pilot will calm the mad gale,
Stars will shine to lift the veil.

ROSE-COLORED SPECTACLES

"AND were all the experiences of other days delightful?" some people ask me. No, very frankly, life was not even so pleasant for us then as now, in spite of the rosy hues that are often cast over things that are already receding into the distance. Many of the things we did were almost pure joy; others had about an equal portion of the good and the bad, but there were decidedly too many that caused sorrow and fear. Viewed years later, some of these seem very silly, but they were real enough to children and to many an older person.

Fear was our worst enemy. We feared our parents, rather mild people they seem now. Always there was the tradition that one's parents had power over us; the church and the school never let us forget that we were subjects and not masters. We feared the government, a summons to appear before court made brave men turn pale, though the court was made up of people we knew and respected. I can recall when everything connected with a church had a fear attached; however crude the building was, I could never regard it as just another building. Many of my neighbors were afraid to pass a church at night, almost as afraid as when they passed a cemetery. None of the churches in my immediate neighborhood had a graveyard attached, hence the fear could not have been founded on this. We feared thunderstorms and sought a featherbed when the lightning got too bright. And the woods were full of things, visible and invisible, that we knew would eat us up, though most of the wild animals were no larger and fiercer than cottontails and raccoons. But there were left over the wild stories of panthers and other varmints, stories that I believed as implicitly as I believed the Bible. Nearly every section had its haunted house, the cause of many a chilly backbone. We lived in a world of fear and often had to resort to big talk or loud whistling to keep our courage up.

Death was all around us. The necessary killing of farm animals never became a matter of course to us. I have seen grown men turn pale when a hog was stuck or a mule bled for blind staggers. Snakes and hawks were made especially to kill, we seemed to think; there was a fiendish delight in taking life. Since so little was known about sanitation and the germ theory of disease, we saw people die unnecessarily and shivered with fear that we would be next. The only time in recent years that I have seen a fear of death comparable with that which we lived under long ago was the period of the first influenza attack in 1918, when the best doctors did not know what to do and when strong, large men died like stricken animals. Sensationists in our time, and there were plenty of them, lost no opportunity to hold their breath before us as something horrible, even when they were telling us of the joys of the hereafter.

Injustice hurt then as now. We learned piously that the good is always rewarded, and we saw, often, the worst people getting the best rewards. Taught to fear a lie as one might fear fire and brimstone, we saw liars get by earthly punishment and laugh at the rest of us who refused to lie to save our skins. Children then as now could not always get a long-headed view of things; thus they cried themselves to sleep because of the injustice of the great puzzling world.

No, it was not all rosy. Our joys seemed at best stolen. We were constantly reminded by bearded wisdom that we had better laugh while we could, for we would be incapable of laughter later in life. No one stood as a model of how to face life and enjoy it; the emphasis was on defeatism. To have survived this philosophy makes most of us a bit older than our chronological age.

MONEY TALKS

By FREDERICK W. STAMM
Economist and Director of Adult Education
University of Louisville

THE purchase of Defense Bonds and Stamps is making it possible for our government to engage in the greatest war production effort ever attempted by any nation. Recent figures on war production are not only encouraging—they are startling! Instead of the 40 billion dollar estimate, which seemed high when it was made, our total war production for this year will undoubtedly reach the 60 billion dollar mark.

The magnitude of the United Nations' war production program is well illustrated in the case of airplanes. The British inform us they are now producing as many planes as Germany and by July 1 the United States will be producing as many fighter and bomber planes as Germany, Italy and Japan combined. And Russia is also producing many more.

Our airplanes have already reached the fighting fronts as is indicated by the steady flow of British and American planes over Germany and German-held industrial areas. These mass raids are carried out regularly night after night and are inflicting heavy damage on the mighty German industrial war machine.

Many of our war materials are not reaching the battlefields as quickly as planes. The tanks completed in Detroit and Cleveland have not had much effect on the battles of North Africa and Burma as yet. The lack of shipping space has slowed up the movement of materials to foreign shores. But we are gaining momentum on every front—production, shipping, and war experience. Our shipyards are producing more ships than ever before in our history and within a few months we will be shipping tanks, guns, and other war materials in an ever-increasing stream to all the war fronts.

With our war production reaching new heights each month, the outlook for victory grows much brighter.

But we must remember that all this war effort takes money. We must continue to buy bonds and stamps in larger and larger amounts. They are our best investment today!

Let Everybody Know You're Investing
10 Percent of Your Income in War Bonds

The attractive red, white and blue window sticker, pictured above, is the new yardstick of patriotism in the War Bond drive throughout the nation. With the slogan, "Everybody every pay day, ten percent," sweeping the country, patriotic Americans on the home front are rallying to their Government's appeal for funds with which to help finance the war. The home which displays the "ten percent" sticker is doing its share toward Victory for America and the United Nations. The stickers are being distributed through local War Savings Chairmen. U. S. Patricks To Re-Unite At Salyersville, June 27-28

Annual reunion of the Patrick family will be held in Salyersville, Saturday and Sunday, June 27 and 28, Dr. Wellington Patrick, Lexington, president of the organization, announced this week.

The reunion in 1941 was attended by more than 1,000 Patricks and their relatives, and Dr. Patrick said that the outlook for 1942 is even better in some respects.

According to the custom of the Patrick family reunion, a "Man of the Year" has been selected to be honored. The reunion committee has announced that such honors this year are being bestowed on Judge Menifee F. Patrick, of Salyersville, for the service which he has rendered to the people of his county and to Eastern Kentucky. An oil painting of him will be presented to him by a group of his friends, and will be unveiled at the public school building in Salyersville on Sunday, June 28. (Judge A. T. Patrick, of Prestonsburg, was similarly honored last year. He founded the annual reunion.)

Three programs will be held during the reunion. The first will be on Saturday evening, June 27, at 7:30 p.m., which will be in the nature of a get-acquainted meeting, introducing visitors and having short talks from a few prominent Patricks and their relatives. The second meeting will be the principal feature and at that time the portrait of Judge Patrick will be unveiled and presented to him, at 10 a.m., Sunday, June 28.

A number of speakers of note have been invited to speak at sometime during the various exercises. Walter R. Prater, Salyersville attorney, will deliver the principal address.

Soldier-Attorneys From Prestonsburg Set Camp Precedent

A precedent was set at Camp Robinson, Ark., recently when two former Prestonsburg attorneys—Lieut. James W. Wine and Pvt. Leroy Combs—joined with three other soldier-lawyers in establishing a Legal Aid Society to furnish enlisted men of their battalion, the 58th, with the legal advice they from time to time need.

The attorneys, all of whom are in basic training, will meet each Wednesday evening at battalion headquarters and discuss with their "clients" matters which require legal knowledge and procedure. The service is confidential and without cost.

Pvt. Combs is a son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Combs and was formerly associated in the practise of his profession here with Atty. Bert T. Combs. He recently qualified as the best marksman in his company. A former member of the City Council here, he resigned as City Attorney, shortly before his army induction. Lieut. Wine was graduated from the College of Law, University of Kentucky, last February, when he entered the army.

Four Knott Counties Survive After Drop Over Mountain

A Knott county party of four lived this week to tell the tale of a 500-foot plunge Friday night down the side of the Jones Fork mountain, but one of the four, Miss Ruby Gibson, 20, of Mousie, was seriously injured.

The car left the highway, halfway up the mountain and did not stop till it rested in the creek bed near the barn of W. M. Terry. "Locked wheels" were given as the cause of the wreck.

Miss Gibson suffered a broken leg and jaw and numerous cuts and bruises. It was said Wednesday at the Martin General hospital that she will recover.

In the Stumbo Memorial hospital at Lackey are Thelma Combs and Tokie Moore, both of whom were severely cut and bruised. A man named Smith, of Ball fork of Troublesome, driver of the car, was treated at the Lackey hospital for minor injuries.

LAYNESVILLE TOT DIES

James, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ballard Thompson, of Laynesville, this county, died Monday morning after an illness of several weeks of heart disease. The body was taken Tuesday to Ousley, Pike county, where burial was made under direction of the Arnold Funeral Home.

Washington, D. C.
WAAC ENLISTMENTS
Thousands of determined women, eager to don the WAAC uniform, are driving WAAC officials wacky.

The campaign for enlistments in the Women's Army Auxiliary corps has succeeded too well. Maj. Oveta Culp Hobby and her chief lieutenants, Mrs. Arthur Woods and Mrs. Genevieve Forbes Herrick, have a bear by the tail and they know it.

Sad truth is that there cannot possibly be more than 500 WAAC officer-candidates taken in now. No "auxiliaries," that is, non-officer WAAC's, can be recruited until the officers have been trained, possibly around September 15. The greatest number of WAAC's that can be taken in this year is estimated at 25,000, and all of these will be subjected to a minimum of four weeks' training. This leaves some 275,000 disappointed would-be WAAC's out of an estimated registration of 300,000.

Toughest job of all falls upon the chief recruiting officers in the nine army corps areas. It is their job to sort out the WAAC registrants and select the lucky women. Those chosen then must face a series of very stiff aptitude tests.

BOND LOTTERY
Rep. Adolph Sabath of Illinois, general chairman of the house rules committee, wasn't able to sell the President on government-sponsored lotteries when he called at the White House. However, he was given a novel idea on how to use the lottery principle in the sale of war bonds.

Sabath contended that a legalized lottery, conducted monthly by the treasury, would greatly aid in relieving taxation and raise billions in revenue for the war effort.

Under a bill he is sponsoring, the Illinoisian said, the government would realize approximately $875,000,000 from the sale of a billion $1 tickets, whereas if it borrowed this amount at 3 per cent for 20 years, the interest alone would total $525,000,000.

"It wouldn't be the first time our government has held a lottery," argued Sabath. "We did it in 1776 to help finance the Revolutionary war."

"Yes, I know," said the President, adding that he doubted the advisability of lotteries at this time because of the strong opposition of religious groups. Instead, he proposed a compromise.

"Why not apply your lottery ideas to the sale of war bonds," he suggested. "The Belgian government held bond lotteries for a number of years."

SHAKY CHINA
Chinese leaders in Washington are not shouting it from the housetops, but behind closed doors they are doing some tough talking to the effect that an increasing number of Chinese are getting discouraged about the war and would like to see some kind of appeasement with Japan. Chinese leaders give this as the reason why China must have air planes—and have them immediately.

The Chinese don't demand a lot of planes. But they do say that even a small fraction of the munitions going to Russia would work wonders in bolstering China.

Here is the Chinese picture now being presented to U. S. war strategists. After five years of war, the Chinese are warweary. Most discouraging thing is the ironical fact that the Chinese are worse off now, with Allies, than they were before, fighting alone. The Chinese were delighted after Pearl Harbor because it meant they had a powerful ally against Japan. But now after six months of it, they almost wish they had been left to hold out alone.

That is why recent reverses in Burma and along the China coast have shaken Chinese determination down to the foundation.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is not weakening. But many Chinese are, especially the well-to-do class, the people who yearn for restoration of normal business, who would rather have a chance to make money and live peacefully even under the Japs than to pay the frightful cost of continued war.

Meanwhile, Japan seems determined to crush China now. Apparently the U. S. bombing raids on Tokyo scared the Japs sick, made them see the danger of nearby Chinese bases, caused them to shift their strategy to cleaning up China ahead of other warfronts.

REWARD

I hereby offer a reward of $25 for each arrest and conviction of any person or persons giving or selling whiskey, wine, beer or gin to my son, Edgar Stephens, on credit or otherwise. It is a severe penalty to give or sell liquor to another, who has been convicted for drunkenness more than three times. Liquor sold on credit, the account is illegal and cannot be collected.

I have had so much trouble along this line, I will appreciate the help of anyone. I think, if we women and others who are interested in doing an everlasting good for our county and children, would go to work and circulate a petition and get the required number of legal voters to sign it, and submit the liquor question to the people of this county, we could vote this county dry, if the election was not stolen as has been done in Harlan county. The elimination of intoxicants would to a large extent eliminate road-houses and save the life of many a boy and prevent ruining the character of many a poor girl and thereby save her from disgrace and shame. It would also prevent and stop a lot of cheap constables and deputies from holding up and robbing people of a few dollars and also be a great saving to the county in jail fees which the taxpayers are compelled to pay. This would save thousands of dollars to the county alone, not counting the loss in time in preventing laborers from their work, and furnishing things in their homes, which they need.

I will take the time and secure the number of petitioners and we will submit this question to the people of this county, if I can get the co-operation and assistance of the citizens and different organizations of our county interested in this move. I hope I may have an encouraging word from people who are interested in the disgraceful calamity now existing in our county and state. This letter and request is written by a heart-broken mother, brought about by the liquor business.

I am yours for a better, healthier, Floyd county and state. MRS. HENRY STEPHENS, JR. Prestonsburg, Ky. 6-4-4t

GASOLINE RATIONING IN CANADA

FOR motorists who are interested in vacation trips to Canada, before they are planned, consideration must be given to the gasoline rationing regulations.

In view of the increasing gravity of the gasoline shortage, due to the exigencies of the war, gasoline rationing for tourists in Canada has been drastically reduced.

If a United States tourist proposes to stay in Canada long enough to need more gasoline than he has in his tank at the time he enters, he will be given, at the port of entry, a ration book permitting the purchase of only four units of gasoline. At present, a unit represents five (5) imperial gallons, but its value may be changed at any time as circumstances require.

No more than one of these four-unit coupon books will be issued for any one car in any one year, and the Canadian customs officer will stamp the vehicle license to show that a coupon book has been issued.

The responsibility for not running short of gasoline is up to the tourist himself. If he were to run out of coupons he will be given no more, and would have to arrange some other method of transporting his car back to the United States.

ANOTHER TAX IDEA!

It's all done by suction pump! The treasury department has proposed that congress require that 10 per cent of your wages and other income be deducted at the source and paid to Uncle Sam for income taxes!

No pains! No sleepless nights! No complicated mathematical problems! No troublesome routines! No blanks. (Just come in and bring a gallon of blood.)

Randolph Paul, the treasury expert behind the latest idea, says there will be 28,000,000 novice taxpayers under our new laws, all in the lower brackets, and that, as few of them can save any money for taxes, the only way to collect is to take it at the source. It's a perfect tax-collection plan. Ball-bearing, high-speed and frictionless, it picks up the lint off the rugs and the dandruff off your shoulders.

A baby can use it as well as an adult.

You pay through the nose. Under federal nose control.

It makes it easier for everybody except the boss and the bookkeeping department. Well, they're too groggy to notice a little extra work anyhow.

Under Mr. Paul's proposal the boss handles the whole business. He does the deducting, answers your squawks, tries to smooth your wounded feelings and then prepares certificates, affidavits and miscellaneous papers to be filed and forwarded to all necessary addresses.

The employer gets carbon copies while the glee club softly sings "Among My Souvenirs."

Not that you don't have to bother to make out a tax blank. You have to do that just the same as ever. The new plan makes it more exciting. If, when you figure up what you owe Uncle Sam, you find the 10 per cent share of your salary has overpaid the tax, you apply for a refund. If you find you're still shy a few dollars you send 'em in.

(And if you're still baffled you retire to a cool dry place and await further advices.)

It probably never will be passed. But if it is, the folks will take it without undue lamentations. War is war and it costs money.

Now Till August 1, Period for Buying Drivers' Licenses

Frankfort, Ky., June 13-Holders of Kentucky automobile drivers' licenses may purchase their 1942-43 licenses between now and August 1, when current licenses expire, the Revenue Department announced today.

The new licenses have been mailed to circuit court clerks and may be obtained in advance, L. G. Triplett, of the auto drivers' license division said, pointing out this would be of interest to persons going into the armed forces or on vacations.

Although applicants are required to surrender their year's license when obtaining their new licenses, they will be protected fully for the remaining part of the present licensing period, because no new licenses will be issued unless the applicant holds this year's license, Triplett said.

Miss Peggy Jo Allen, a very active worker from the junior set, is in charge of invitations. Instead of guests going to the homes for the noon hour, as was the case last year, luncheon will be served at the church this time, thus affording a greater opportunity for visiting with old friends. Those receiving invitations are asked to reply at an early date.

Two Floyd county youths, Odes Collins and Clinton Collins, both of Wayland, trained in the NYA War Production shop in Prestonsburg, and transferred East a few weeks ago, have war production jobs, according to a U. S. Employment Service report. Odes is working for the Electric Boat Company, Groton, Conn., and Clinton is employed by the Glenn L. Martin Company in Baltimore, Md.

After receiving training in the NYA shop, these youths were sent by the Kentucky NYA to NYA resident centers in Connecticut and Maryland where they worked for about two weeks before being placed in jobs. While at the center, the youths were interviewed by personnel men from nearby war industries.

READING and WRITING

THROUGHOUT the western hemisphere today, in the United States and in Mexico, and in South America, you will find many of the greatest European writers of our times. Lion Feuchtwanger, Thomas and Heinrich Mann, Maurice Maeterlinck, Ann Seghers, Jules Romains—these are only a few. By no means the least of this illustrious company is the great Austrian writer, Franz Werfel, author of "Forty Days of Musa Dagh" and other notable novels.

It was just about two years ago that the British radio mistakenly announced that Werfel had been murdered by the Nazis. Hitler was overruling France, and Werfel was one of the more important anti-fascists living there whom the Gestapo wanted. Now we know that in those fateful weeks when Werfel was thought lost, he was in hiding, in Loudres, thirty kilometers away from the Spanish border. As he says, he never knew when he woke up in the morning whether he was a free man or a prisoner condemned to death.

Eventually Werfel made his way to the United States. But he did not forget the vow he had taken at Loudres—that if he ever escaped from this desperate situation he would write a novel about the peasant girl Bernadette Soubirous who had made the name of Loudres famous.

This novel is "The Song of Bernadette," which the Book-of-the-Month Club has selected as its June book, and which critics everywhere are praising for its power and its beauty.

"I have dared to sing the song of Bernadette, although I am not a Catholic but a Jew," Werfel writes in his preface. "And I drew courage for this understanding from a far older vow of mine. Even in the days when I wrote my first verses I vowed that I would ever more and everywhere in all I wrote magnify the divine mystery and holiness of man."

If you like Chinese food, you may be interested to know that practically all the Chinese dishes served in the United States have their origin in a single city, Canton. We learned this from Helena Kuo, the beautiful young Chinese author of "I've Come a Long Way," an autobiography. In fact, there's an old saying in China, according to Miss Kuo: "If you want food, go to Canton. If you want girls, go to Suchow. If you want to die, go to Lüchow." Suchow has the most beautiful girls in China, Miss Kuo explained; Canton has the best cooks; and Lüchow has the best wood for coffins.

John Marquand's stories about Mr. Moto, the Japanese spy, are so widely known in magazine, serial, novel, and movie form that American troops refer to the Japanese, and particularly to Japanese planes, as "Mr. Motos." Marquand wrote his popular Mr. Moto stories between times, while he was throwing off such serious—and highly entertaining—novels as his Pulitzer Prize winner, "The Late George Apley," and his book-of-the-Month Club selection, "H. M. Pulham, Esquire."

Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings writes that she gave a copy of her new book, "Cross Creek," to Idella, her "perfect maid," suggesting she read aloud the portions that would interest old Black Martha and old Will who appear in the book. Idella read one night until two o'clock in the morning and said to Martha, "You know, she has you all through the book." Martha said, "Baby, you don't know what me and her has been through. I been with that woman through thick and thin. She ain't got me in the book enough."

IT'S NOT ALL PLAY

Prestonsburg's "Aunt" Josie D. Harkins is not doing badly at all with a hobby that she started, years ago, with the birth of her first grandchild. She crocheted an afghan for young Joe, Jr., and since that time has made 33 others; last week was starting on her 35th, this last one for her only great-grandson. But what makes the hobby not a bad one is the demand for her product. Last winter while in Miami, Fla., she made three—and one was sold for $50 which she gave to the Methodist Church here.

In the event that somebody gets ambitious and wants to have a fling at the same work, she advises that the making of an afghan is for her a six-weeks job. But she makes them 84 to 90 squares each, and they are works of art.

AH!—THE GOOD OL' DAYS!

Do you read the "Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore" column which appears in this newspaper? You're missing something, if you don't.

I am reminded by the "Tidbit" writer's reminiscences of the "Buy In" marble game that was a major sport on Salt Lick at this time of year, years ago. My chief claim to fame is that, in two consecutive games, I started from "law," knocked the first marble, "tracked" into position for the next and went on around the ring to sweep the platter clean.

Now, that was a marble game. You had to use your noggin in it. A strong thumb was no good, just as a strong arm in baseball is wasted, unless you used your head. A fellow had to consider position, the time to "buy in" his partner's right, or his own, to re-enter the game after he had been "killed"; even had to keep an eye out for those faint cross marks with which his opponent upon being "killed" marked where he was felled, or he might venture too close the spot and himself get shot by the corpse revived by his paying a marble to the other side.

'Twas some game, I tried it again, not long ago. That crackling noise you heard was the old vertebrae adjusting themselves without benefit of chiropractor.

RECKLESS—THAT'S US

John Blackburn says we're getting mighty reckless, offering that reward about the Rural Highway Administration. (See TIMES, June 11) "First thing you know, you'll be offering 2 to 1 odds that the sun rises and sets every 24 hours."

DIGGING DEEP

Here's one for the record (it came from the Congressional Record): Congress has approved a claim for overtime work performed by a navy yard worker, way back in 1878! The House-approved measure provides $135.62 for a New Yorker, now 90, taking his word for it that the money is due him.

This column moves that the descendants of Betsy Ross file a claim for the overtime she spent fashioning that first flag for us.

Caudill Jailed Here After Osborne Dies On Railway Tracks

A sequel to the death of Jeff Osborne, 40-year-old miner, on the railway tracks on the night of June 7 at Buckingham was reported this week after William Caudill, of Bypro, was jailed here on a charge of assault and battery.

A warrant for Caudill's arrest was sworn out by Paisie Johnson, 17, who said she was at the Caudill home when Osborne and Caudill had a fight during which the latter struck the other with a poker and chair and threw rocks at him. She added, however, according to Constable Willie Johnson, that Caudill did not leave his home after the departure of Osborne.

Caudill admitted fighting with Osborne and running him away from the Caudill home but denied that he inflicted any fatal injuries on the other.

Osborne, it is claimed, was not seen after leaving Caudill's residence until he was struck by the train, more than a mile from the Caudill home.

Caudill was released from jail under $1,000 bond.
