'INSIDE' HERO STORY Behind the award of the Congressional Medal of Honor to 31-year-old Lieut. Com. Bruce McCandless of the U. S. Cruiser San Francisco is a story almost without parallel in the annals of naval warfare.

Inside fact is that shortly before he was cited for heroism "above and beyond the call of duty," in the smashing November 13 Solomons naval victory, McCandless wasn't sure whether he would be decorated or hauled on the carpet for insubordination.

His citation was one of glittering generalities, but here is the whole story of what happened:

McCandless was on the bridge of the San Francisco when it led a spectacular assault between two columns of Jap vessels, firing pointblank at both. In the roaring 35minute engagement, Rear Admiral Daniel J. Callaghan, commander of the task force, and Capt. Cassin Young, skipper of the San Francisco, were killed, as well as other officers outranking McCandless.

The young lieutenant commander did not notify superior officers on other vessels in the task force of Callaghan's death, but immediately took command and began giving orders to the other vessels in Callaghan's name. Ordinarily, this would constitute a rank breach of discipline. However, McCandless acted as he did for two reasons:

(1) He was thoroughly familiar with the plan of attack, having been present at strategy powwows of Callaghan and Young when it was mapped out, and he feared there might be a slipup in carrying out the daring task maneuver if the command passed to another ship after Callaghan's death.

(2) It was vital to keep the news of Callaghan's death from the Japs, and they undoubtedly would have intercepted the radio communication, After the engagement, when a friend suggested that he might be decorated for his brilliant "incognito" leadership, McCandless is quoted as replying that he would be lucky to get off without a "court martial." However, the navy was only too glad to give praise where praise was due.

MARCHING INTO TOKYO Mel Maas of Minnesota, who is both marine corps colonel and congressman, has two mementos from the Solomons-a 50-ven Jap note and a 10-shilling note of Jap invasion money

Maas got the money off dead Jap soldiers.

The other day he was displaying it to Representative Gordon Canfield of New Jersey and two British WRENS, comparable to our WAVES, who were having lunch with Canfield in the house restaurant. The colored designs and pictures.

"Be sure to give that money back to me," said Maas. "I have big plans for it."

"Yes, these notes will make a wonderful souvenir to show your grandchildren," commented one of the WRENS.

"Souvenir - nothing," exclaimed Mass. "I'm keeping that money to spend in Tokyo."

GUARDING THE WHITE HOUSE The White House called Speaker Sam Rayburn the other day, asked R. C. Elliott ... him to come in to see the President, bringing with him a group of congressmen of his own choosing.

When they arrived at the front gate of the White House, in the speaker's car, the chauffeur said to the Secret Service men: "This is the speaker and members of con-

NYA Equipment Needed

UNLESS the Congressional act which killed the National Youth Administration was so rash as to make no provision for use of NYA training equipment by the public schools, there apparently is no reason why Prestonsburg and Floyd county cannot have a vocational training shop at home.

The machinery used by NYA and the state department of vocational education remains here-Floyd county's last vestigial shadow of a war plant, since the shop here did turn out some material for the armed forces.

Vocational training is needed by Floyd county youth-is needed now; will be needed perhaps even more later. Prestonsburg school authorities, as The Cour-

Don't Tear Down the Ceiling

ISSUES of the primary election are decided. Comes now a breathing-spell before the November storm.

During the interim, the voters of Kentucky will be advised by some to support the Constitutional amendment lifting the ceiling on salaries of public officials. The amendment will be put to a vote in November.

The voters will be told lifting of the $5,000 salary ceiling will induce better men to seek the office of Governor, that higher pay will improve the quality of men holding other offices.

All of which is but more wool-gathering on the part of some who would appear to be political idealists while, in unguarded moments, confessing to a working knowledge of the most practical political skullduggery.

The voters of Kentucky should not be led to buy service from their officials through salary inflation.

Thomas H. Cutler, present state highway engineer, was brought to Kentucky as "one of the best" and his salary was raised above $5,000 by a contribution from the late Robert W. Bingham, publisher of The Courier-Journal. After Judge Bingham's death this supplement to his salary was withdrawn. Did Thomas H. Cutler go back to Missouri because of the salary cut? He did not. Nor is any defect in his work detected because of the cut.

Surely there is something more than the job-hunter looking for a salary about these Kentuckians who, every four years, seek the office of Governor.

schools under local sponsorship and state supervision. Terms of the arrangements are not yet known; but it is understood that the cost of operation would be borne jointly by the state and federal governments, and it is the intention of the Prestonsburg board to conduct the school if the conditions can be met. It would continue to serve the area included in the N.Y.A. program.

In view of the favorable attitude of federal authorities in response to requests from all over the country, this seems to be a rare opportunity for Kentucky schools to secure vocational equipment most of them are unable to purchase. After the war, in all probability, title will be relinquished to the schools, and we're behind in technical training facilities for future industrial development. Even farmers need it in a mechanical age. - The Courier-Journal

Bannon, One of Trio Lost During Army Desert Maneuvers

One of the three soldiers who died recently of exposure after having been lost in the California desert near Camp Young was reported here last week as Jack Bannon, 30, a native of Prestonsburg. .

The report stated he was born here June 4, 1913, a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bannon. He had lived in Jackson and Chillicothe, Ohio, with relatives for several years. Bannon was found and taken to Camp Pilot Knob, Calif., where he died of sunstroke, after having been treated at an emergency hospital.

A member of a contingent of soldiers on a six-day endurance test on the wastelands of the southern California-Arizona desert that he became lost from the supply depot in the remote Ogilby area near the barren Chocolate mountains, he and two other soldiers strayed from the unit while the lieutenant in command was on his way for a fresh supply of water.

He had lived in Jackson for several years and went to Chillicothe to make his home with his sister. Mrs. Ronald Hand, about 10 years

Besides his sister, he is survived by a half-brother, Robert Gay, a comporal in the marines in the South Pacific area; a step-father, Enos Gay, of Sophia, W. Va.; an aunt, Mrs. James Turner, of Jackson, O., and other uncles and aunts

The body was taken to Portsmouth, O., for burial pounds, Hunk made Grantland Rice 240 pounders surrender and leave the field. They wanted no part of Hunk, who, in addition to amazing quickness and unusual strength, always has had outstanding fighting spirit.

He was the type they might killbut never whip.

An Anderson Angle

This takes us back to the time Notre Dame decided to try out field hockey. A big squad had assembled-then Hunk appeared. His presence scattered most of the hockey squad.

"Do you mean," one of them asked, "that I'm to play in a game in which they are giving Hunk Anderson a stick? I don't want any part of it,

As a coach in the old days, Hunk may have been a better top sergeant than a general of the Rockne type, but that still goes as a tribute He certainly never has had a superior as a line coach.

He was given the impossible job at Notre Dame of following Knute Rockne. At the time this was am impossible assignment.

His Toughest Job

Hunk's toughest coaching job came at North Carolina State some years ago. Hunk had assembled a strong Southern line and a Northern

"I made one big mistake," Bank told me later. "I thought the Civil war was over. I soon found that my Southern sine was tackling and stopping my Northern backfield befone it got started. I'd just forgetten to brush up on my history. I discovered down South you couldn't mix up Stonewall Jacksons and Robert E. Lees with E. S. Grants and William Tecumsel Shermans and Philip Sheridans."

The Strong Man

I doubt that football has ever produced a stronger man than Eddie Hart, Princeton's old football captain, now installed as a major in the marines. His strong man rival was Eddie Glass of Yale. The new marine is no kid. He was Princeton's leader back in 1910 and 1911. when he played with a broken neck protected by a special leather har-

Now over 50, he is still in fine physical shape and still one of the strongest men I know. Something after the manner of Pudge Heffelfinger, who was still a football star at 53 and not so bad at 65 when be played a full period in a charity

Two Eddie Hart examples-the night he won a bet that three All-Americans in the room couldn't bowl him over as he stood on one foot-the day in Paris during the last war when a 195-pound football pal called from the second floor of a Paris hotel-"I'm jumping, Eddie, catch me." Hart caught him.

The marines get a true marine in Eddie Hart.

Eddie Hart coached the Army football team that played in Paris after the Armistice. Eddie Mahan was on that Army squad. "It was after this game," Hart told me, "that Marshal Foch said, 'Any army that plays this game is already well trained for war. It is a game that belongs to the strong and the fast and to those who must think under pressure. It is the type of competitive sport an army needs."

This is true, with a few excep-

Holy Cross passed 90 per cent in this respect against Boston College, and Washington's Redskins were close to 100 per cent against the beaten Bears. I've never seen a team that
