PRAISE THE LORD AND PASS THE AMMUNITION

MILITANT Methodist minister in Louisville, the Rev. R. W. Raaf, has sincere convictions about the part the church should play in the war, and a recent pulpit utterance stamps the preacher an outspoken advocate of active participation. He has no patience with so-called conscientious objectors who would shirk their duties by parading in the guise of religion. To him the cloak of Christianity should be a mantle of determination and the strongest in faith be most avid in running toward the enemy.

In days of world upheaval this expression of a prominent pastor promises more phalance-like advancement, and a more forceful attitude in quarters where Biblical excuses for laggards have been sought. The pastor used the Word to prove justification for war when a people have been goaded beyond endurance, and adjured his congregation that the business of the church is to fight, manfully, unreservedly, that righteousness shall not perish.

Dr. Raaf answered criticism of the much quoted "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition," with the Bible selection used as his text: "Let the saints of the Lord be joyful. Let the high praise of God be upon their lips and a sharp twoedged sword in their hands." He pointed out that the historical settings of each are similar. The psalm was sung by the poet just before Israel went

"There is something," said the minister, "back of the words in each expression that caused the authors to rejoice and praise God. It was not the prospect to do deeds of daring, born in the din of battle. It was something far deeper. These expressions were born of a belief that God is on the side

Dr. Raaf's sermon was a clarion note, warning reluctant patrons to bestir themselves, a trumpet blast to lead men to religion toward the common enemy of mankind, a challenge to his fellow Methodist ministers and other men of the cloth to use their influence to stimulate and solidify thoughts of those at the front and the others on the home battlefronts to show a face of flint when danger comes, and to maintain always a rigorous and determined faith in the ultimate victory that will be nearer in proportion as ministers and laymen get into the fight.—Owensboro

It rained the entire day. That morning it looked as if the rain would prevent a school from coming to the clinic. But a walk of eight or 10 miles for those pupils and the teacher in the rain was no challenge for pupils who were badly in need of dental work. Two days were given that school for dental care. About 5 o'clock that afternoon three or four mothers came to the clinic and registered for the next day. They were staying in that neighborhood with friends or neighbors. They, too, had walked from home with their small children.

Wednesday. Dec. 16, Ted Parsons, principal of the school at the head of Frazier's Creek was scheduled to come in to the McDowell clinic with his pupils. It was another one of those rainy days. The creek was up so that the school truck-bus couldn't get across Frazier's Creek. So, Mr. Parson's school couldn't get there. Consequently, the McDowell grade school got an extra day of dental work. At 5 o'clock Mr. Parsons came to the dental trailer and told me he had started with his school, but the school bus couldn't get across the creek. He asked for another date and we gave it to him. However, we had to move our already scheduled future clinic up a day. But for a teacher with that much interest in getting dental work done for his school. Editor, The Times:

What a fine place to live in! Johns the roads are what make it such a fine place to live in. Boy, we've really got something to brag about when we talk about our roads.

You know we have had a lot of rain for the past few weeks and the creek naturally rises when it rains. As a result, the roads have been in shape to travel over about one day a week and sometimes not that many. Well, you say, we can't help it if it rains. No. But we could have a road built up out of the creek bed, so that it wouldn't be fleoded every time it rained, and make it impossible for transportation to be

The people on Johns Creek need access to a doctor as well as anyone else. If someone gets sick, the treatment that can be given at home is all they get, and they just have to pray to live through their illness. And all because of no road. Not even a grocery truck can get in to bring supplies to the people.

Johns Creek has had nothing more than a good-sized path since any of its citizens can remember Of course, the road has been surveyed a lot of times on higher ground, but has it ever been built? No! Money has been appropriated to build it with, too, but we all know where that was used. Why doesn't Johns Creek need a road just as badly as any of the creeks around that have had good roads built?

They are always ready when called on but do they ever get anything in return? No! Why should the citizens pay road taxes when they are the ones who have to do what work is done on the road?

Say, what's the matter with our country? I've heard too often that the trouble with our country at present is, it is not war-conscious. Are the parents of our boys home on leave conscious of the fact that there's a war going on as they listen to the breath-taking stories that come first-hand from the lips of their sons?

How about the parents, sisters, brothers, wives and the children who received the brief official report recently that ended their hope of a safe return of their son, husband, brother or father? Are they conscious of the war?

And when mothers, fathers, sweethearts and wives watch the mail daily for those letters that come with no postmark, do you sup-

THE LEFT BEAVER ROAD Editor, The Times:

We the people of the United States have been asked to save and take care of what we have. We have been asked to save our cars, our tires, and our gasoline. I think most of the people are trying to do just that, but I wonder about our local officials Particularly do I wonder about those officials who are responsible for the condition of the Left Beaver road, better known as the "Injustice Trail.

To drive over that road now is to destroy all the things we are asked to save, including our religion. That road serves one of the most, if not the most, important coal-producing sections of the county, and the men who have to mine that coal have to depend on buses and cars traveling over one, big muddy, winding, rough road, the "Injustice Trail," to get to and from work.

Something like 2,000 school pupils are transported over that road in buses that the county tried to replace years ago. On the best of roads they are only a makeshift, but on that road they are lucky to get Creek is the place we mean, and to school at all. Several of the students attending McDowell and Wheelwright leave home one and one-half hours before daylight and get back home slightly before dark -and not one of them lives more than 10 miles from the school. In other words, it takes that long to drive from Ligon to Bypro Junction.

As one person, I would like to have some explanation as to why that condition cannot be taken care of, some way. Only recently I saw a 50 to 60 bases. Everyone knows road scraper sit three or four days how great Cobb and Ruth were. But between Bypro and Ligen, and if I am talking about every angle that any effort was made to improve the makes up baseball-outfield, infield, road you couldn't tell it by driving offense, defense, hitting, base runover it.

Some time ago, we heard there was no money for road improvement, yet Pike county gets several thousand dollars to improve a road far better than the Left Beaver road at its best. From our county funds we buy $50,000 worth of War Bonds, and I wish it could have been 10 times that many. So it seems there is plenty of money some place, but still none for that road. Why can't the fiscal court do something about that road or at least give some explanation that will satisfy the peo-

"A LITTLE ORPHAN" Editor, The Times:

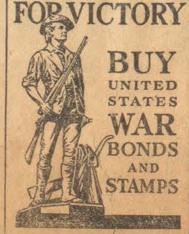

I want to gain your sympathy and enlist your aid for a little orphan I know who needs help. It's Floyd county's little orphan, Bosco consolidated school

Not long ago, when the scrap drive was on, it took all the wire donated The player in football who to wire the doors, etc. There isn't | matches Wagner in baseball is Jim any water available on the school grounds. Although there is a good well on the grounds, there isn't any pump and the teachers send pupils across the highway to a well, 400 yards away. The building is in such a dilapidated condition that it seems everyone concerned feels the hopelessness of keeping school at all and consequently, there isn't much kept. You can see pupils strolling all over Bosco any time of day. Mothers are more than a little concerned because when their children are home they know where they are, but after they go to school they're never sure where they are. The school grounds extend to the C. & O. Railroad, and since there are more trains now, and if they start running the passenger train four times a day, it isn't safe to allow the pupils to go and come as they please.

But I suppose this danger will be ignored, as the school is run more in consideration of the teachers than of the pupils. Sometimes fifth and sixth grade pupils teach the first grade. I know there is a shortage of teachers, but surely not that comes to all-ground ability "I'll tell you why. Wagner was a great outfielder with a great arm. I've seen Grantland Rice him star at first, second, short and third. He was a first-class catcher. And one day I made him pitch-and he would have made a fine pitcher with that arm. He was the only man I ever knew who was above the average in all nine positions. He was the greatest shortstop.

The people of Bosco feel that this school is a poor representation of the taxes they are compelled to pay and Bosco should receive more consideration than the attention paid it once a year when taxes are due. We know we pay plenty in taxes. Where does it go?

"I'll go beyond that. He also was one of the greatest hitters baseball ever knew. He had no weakness. As Christy Mathewson once said, 'His only weakness is a base on balls.' Hans led the league eight years. He was a power hitter and a place hitter.

About Wagner

"Here's another angle about Wagner," Barrow continued. "He was one of the greatest base runners in the game. Here was a big, awkward 200-pounder who used to steal from ning-I mean everything.

"Cobb and Ruth have been our two most phenomenal players. But Don't forget that. Honus Wagner greatest pair "Hans had the hands that anyone ever brought to the game. He had a pair of hands that looked like hams, but they had a sensitive touch. They were live hands. "I don't have to say anything about Cobb and Ruth. You know where they belong. Remember, I'm just telling you about a fellow who could do more things better than #### anyone else. I mean Wagner.' What About Football?

Thorpe, like Wagner, could do more things in a better way than anyone else.

Here's the answer-Thorpe was a great ball carrier, one of the best. He could run an end or crack a line. He was an exceptional kicker -punter, drop-kicker or place kicker. He was a good passer and a good pass receiver.

Thorpe had just one weakness. If he didn't happen to be in the mood, or in condition, on a certain day, he would put out only when he had to.

The reason Pop Warner picked Ernie Nevers over Thorpe was this-"Nevers gave me 60 minutes of everything he had," Pop said. "Sometimes Jim would and sometimes he would not. But they were two of the greatest I ever saw. Thorpe at his best was the best."

A Few Others

For all-around value I can add two others-Babe Ruth in baseball. Bronko Nagurski in football.

Ruth was a star pitcher, a fine outfielder, a pretty good first baseman, a great hitter.

He was the greatest of all power hitters. And Babe is still prouder of his pitching than he is of his

The football entry is Bronko Nagurski. First, a star tackle; later a fine end; still later the greatest fullback I ever saw. As Steve Owen

Babe Ruth once said, "Nagurski is the only back I ever saw who could run his own interference."

Bo McMillin picks Cal Hubbard, now coaching at Geneva collegegreat end, great tackle, and probably the best line backer of all time. Cal, fast on his feet, weighed only around 250.

Then there is Dutch Clarke, another luminary of exceptionally high all-around class.

In checking back through this list, one of the most important factors is the length of time they played. How long could they hold the pace? Stamina and durability are qualities that can't be overlooked in any final sum-

We Must Plunge:

Our leaders have told us that as yet we are only ankle-deep in the war. No nation and no man can 12-17-4t remain ankle-deep. They either plunge or get cold feet. This means that the sacrifice of civilians must match the bravery of our fighting

A nation lives by the higher values of its soul. Not by the lower prices on its store counters. In 1942, sugar is a luxury and gasoline a comfort. But liberty and freedom are still American necessities. A cuif on your American trousers isn't worth a Japanese cuff on your American jaw.

Our problem at home is not our standard of living. Too many brave Americans have already set us a heroic standard by dying.

The Marines who land on Pacific beaches are in this war deeper than their ankles. And the skies above the channel cannot be protected by price ceilings. The men of Bataan divided their food, not profits. And there was no night-shift to relieve the defenders of Wake.

It will cost most of our wealth to win this war. But all our riches to lose it. We must give most of our privileges or lose all of our rights. Captain Colin Kelly made his choice. He went into this war not up to his ankles, but up to his heart. Because he knew what it meant to buy peace on his knees.

READING and WRITING

MOST city folks think every once in a while, "Wouldn't it be nice to go out and live in the woods away from everything?" But there are not so many who do anything about it. Two who did are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Rich, who have lived up in the forests of Maine far from civilization for some nine years-and like it. What life is like there-both hardships and pleasures-is told in "We Took to the Woods," by Louise Dickinson Rich, one of the December Book-of-the-Month Club se-

One of the minor problems connected with living in the wilderness is getting sufficient store of food in to last them between treks to Rumford, the nearest village. In the summer they make the journey about once a week, but in the wintertime, they're lucky if they get through once a month. Just try to make out a list of groceries for a month, says Mrs. Rich. It's not as easy as you think. At first, she says, she always forgot staples-such as sugar, flour and tea-going on the assumption that one always has sugar, flour and tea. "It didn't take me long," she writes, "to learn this little fact of life-one doesn't."

The village grocer is very obliging, she says, but Rumford is no Babylon, rich in exotic viands, Once in her ignorance she ordered artichokes and got back a litle note saying, "I heard of these, but I never see one."

The real excitement of deer-hunting, the author tells us, isn't hunting deer. It's hunting hunters. A city hunter may think he's having a unique experience when he gets lost, but to the Richles, it's just the same old story. They hear in the distance the three shots of a gun, the universal woods signal of distress, and then they know they've got to interrupt their dinner or whatever they are doing and start a search. It wouldn't be so bad, if the hunter would build a fire and then stay put. But he never does. "They all do the same thing. They start traveling as far as they can, usually in the wrong direction and always in circles."

The Riches have a telephone—an extension of that belonging to the nearby lumber camp. For convenience the lumber camp has phones attached to trees in several different parts of their preserves. When a wandering fisherman comes along and sees a telephone on a tree he never can resist it. He picks it up and rings once-the Riches' signal. They've got to recognize these quavering rings now and when they hear them, they just pick up their phone and say, "Grand Central Station. Informaten Booth," and hang up.

One evening Frank, the lumbercamp cook, when was courting a young lady living a considerable distance away, came knocking at Mrs. Rich's door-'You got a flat-iron?" he asked. "Can I borrow it? I got to press my pants." Mrs. Rich pointed out that his young lady lived too far for him to get there and back in one evening. "Oh, I wasn't planning on that," was Frank's answer. "I'm just going to call her up. An' I ain't going to talk to no girs on the telephone with my pants looking like I'd.
