QUESTION

Two wrongs don't make a right, but why confiscate slot machines operated by Floyd county citizens, only a few days after a carnival finishes wide-open operation of various gambling devices, most of which were untouched? Gamblers' gambling, and it doesn't hurt anybody any worse to gamble—and lose—on a home-operated slot machine than it does to lose to a "fotch-on" contraption.

Roberts Stresses
Value of Alfalfa

By GEORGE ROBERTS
Kentucky Experiment Station
Farmers should plan now for production in 1944-45. Dairy products will be highly important throughout the war and following the war. Alfalfa will provide more effective forage per acre per unit of labor than any other forage crop. All farmers who have any land adapted to alfalfa should give serious consideration to growing this crop. Well-drained soil is required and it must contain plenty of lime, phosphate and potash, and if not present generally they must be applied. If the land is rather poor, it can be prepared for alfalfa by growing sweet clover first and plowing it under and seeding alfalfa. Sweet clover could be sown early in the spring and turned under in August and seeded to alfalfa.
Sowing alfalfa and bluegrass together is an excellent way to get a bluegrass sod. While harvesting the alfalfa for three or four years a good bluegrass sod usually develops.
Give consideration to seeding alfalfa this summer and next spring.
Detailed information on growing and handling the crop may be obtained from county agents or by addressing the Kentucky College of Agriculture at Lexington.

TRAGEDIES AT FIDELITY

I AM so often asked whether there were any tragic happenings at Fidelity that I think I had better devote this article to things that impressed me deeply and, as a child, made me a bit too serious. Since my father was the local doctor, I naturally knew all the sad happenings; in fact, after I had left home and would go back on a visit, it seemed to me that everything was dated by some death or tragedy in the community. Though things happening so long ago have a tendency to grow hazy and mellow with distance, I can still feel very poignantly these events that added a very serious note to what was sometimes joyous.
When I was three years old, a summer day brought tragedy to many homes. People in those days liked to seine for the excellent fish in the Tennessee river, using a very long seine, which was carried along in the water by men and boys. On this occasion some nine men came by for Father to go with them on their fishing expedition. Fortunately, as it turned out, he had an urgent call just then and could not go. Late that afternoon the seven men who were in the river got into a whirlpool, and five of them drowned instantly, three of them neighbor men, the other two renters who had lived in Fidelity neighborhood only a short time. Some of the bodies floated a long way down the river. Our neighborhood had no other interest for several weeks but this horrible tragedy. I grew up with its being told and re-told with all the gruesome details. Whenever I tried to learn to swim, I pictured the drowning so vividly that swimming had no appeal. That is the chief reason why my swimming is so poor today.
Then there was the unintentional slaying of a little girl by her mother. We were reared on chills and fever, and every home had its quinine bottle. Both the mother and the child had chills. The mother, thinking she was dosing out quinine, gave a big capsule of morphine to the child and took one herself. Before Father and his uncle, the doctor up the creek, could get there, the child was dead. They worked all night trying to save the mother and succeeded only by desperate means. That event, and the fact that everybody kept remnants of poisonous medicines in the Seth Thomas clocks, made me fairly quiver when morphine was mentioned.
Into Fidelity neighborhood came an Irish ditch digger, whether thru inheritance or gambling, he had money, at least more than the average man of that section. After some months his bloated body was found floating in the Tennessee river. No trace of his money ever appeared. Many thought that the sudden resolution of one of the neighbors to move west may have had something to do with this tragedy. Anyway, rumors drifted back all of my childhood that this man, for some strange reason, was unusually prosperous in his new home. There were trials galore, but poor Pat Sheehan is still unavenged. Somehow, when I saw the river as a child, I expected to see the body of a murdered man come floating by.
And then, right near the end of my Fidelity days, a prominent merchant near the river was found with his head beaten to pieces. Arrests were made, trial after trial came on, but to this day it has never been proved who the murderer was.
Needless to say, all the places connected with these and other tragic or mysterious happenings made a journey through the neighborhood fraught with sadness or superstition. I can recall how spooky seemed the graves of the drowned men, and how glad I was that I did not have to go at night by the tobacco barn where the merchant was found dead one Sunday morning. We had life at Fidelity, with all of its manifestations: joy, grief, sorrow, triumph.

West Point at War
By Maj. Gen. Francis B. Wilby
(Supt. of West Point Academy)

Being a newspaper columnist and reporter is a new experience for me. However, I feel that I can give you a "Reporter's Report to the Nation" from West Point, which should be of interest to every red-blooded American.
I wish that everyone could visit West Point for just one day, and see what I see. You would get an inspiration that you cannot help but feel when you see the men of the Corps and what they are doing. They are not only fitting themselves for winning this war, but also for winning the peace, and preventing, if possible, the recurrence of such another world conflagration as we are passing through today.
As you know, a cross-section of American youth is selected from all parts of the country to come to West Point. They are selected by the most democratic of methods, many of them by winning competitive examinations.
Starting with these young men, we aim to develop a rigorously trained soldier-officer, a job which is greatly facilitated by the fact that the Cadets themselves sincerely desire to make the most of the opportunity they have here. With the rapidly changing weapons and new methods developed in modern warfare, we are constantly working to keep up to date and give the latest, most accurate information and training to the Cadets.

WALTER WINCHELL is on a tour of duty outside Continental U.S. During his absence, contributors will substitute.
The Cadets learned and were doing everything a thoroughly trained enlisted man ought to be able to do, and before the Summer was over, they looked like veterans.
Summer maneuvers don't end the story of tough training at West Point. Summer maneuvers are just a phase of the year-round program which is built to train fighting leaders.
Every minute of the 16-hour day (6 a. m. to 10 p. m.) is filled by a tight schedule of instruction, study, and athletics plus tactical training in the arms and branches of the Service. The program is designed to turn out officers schooled in all types of army operation, and each Cadet is familiarized with the use of every weapon from the pistol to the airplane.
So one can see the West Pointer is TOUGH—physically and mentally. He has to be.

At the close of the Summer, the Cadets came back into the classrooms for what we call academics. During the Winter months emphasis is placed upon academic instruction while the schedule in tactical training is somewhat reduced.
A reporter probably would say that we have a highly mathematical and stiff engineering course. Perhaps that is right, but the West Point curriculum aims at teaching a man to think, to reason, and to draw sound conclusions expressed clearly and concisely. Mathematics and the sciences provide this training of the mind which we believe is so essential in order to produce the finest military leaders.

I am happy to announce that this week the West Point instruction is being given a first-hand inspection by some of the leading educators in our country. I have invited Doctor Compton, President of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Doctor Hopkins, President of Dartmouth, along with the principal military experts on training in our Army today, Major General Bull of the Replacement Training Center of the Ground Forces, Brigadier Huebner of the Training Division of the Services of Supply, Brigadier General Edwards of the Training Division of the War Department General Staff, and Colonel Schlatter of the Flying Training Command of the Army Air Forces, to meet, confer and review our plans for the new 3-year course at the Military Academy. With this course we propose to produce a graduate of West Point who will have the finest education and training it is possible to afford in the time available. By constantly keeping abreast of the latest developments, we aim to do the job which America and Americans have asked us to do.
In the days of Robert E. Lee and U. S. Grant, West Point produced men to meet the challenge of that era. John J. Pershing fulfilled his task in the days of the Kaiser.

During the past Summer over 2,000 West Pointers went through the most rigorous field maneuvers that have been held in the history of the Academy. Every phase of combat training was given the Cadets. They worked, they sweated, they maneuvered over the hills and through the rivers of northwest New York State, as well as here at West Point. They had a good taste of how modern campaigns are fought.
During these maneuvers some of the toughest combat problems were carried out by the Cadets.

Censors Find Strange Souvenirs
In Parcels Mailed by Soldiers

By HAROLD V. BOYLE
Allied Headquarters in North Africa, June 27—A human skull rolled out on the table.
"That was the most unusual memento found by base censors here whose job is to search for contraband among the thousand packages a day which American souvenir-loving soldiers are mailing back to the home folk.
"We find everything in them from hand grenades to airplane parts," said Lieut. Myron Sternberg, of Ishpeping, Mich., who thinks his civilian talents as a for-ranger are somewhat oddly employed as a parcel inspector in the military censorship branch.
The skull which some G. I. Joe wanted to mail back to the United States for an obscure reason known only to himself was turned over for analysis to Capt. George G. Simpson, curator of fossil mammals in the American Museum of Natural History.
"It isn't old enough to be prehistoric and it isn't young enough to be mixed up in a 'missing persons' case," was the verdict of the red-bearded little anthropologist.
"It could be anything from 100 to 1,000 years old or more, perhaps a Roman legionnaire."
The skull was wrapped back up and sent on its way—passed by the censor.
That problem was out of the ordinary. Generally the task of the base censors is to see that no packages en route to the States contain military maps, American army equipment, or captured enemy documents which might be of interest to the intelligence branch.
"We get a lot of German helmets, bayonets, Mauser rifles and Luger pistols," said Lieut. Sternberg. "Under the articles of war, this material belongs to the government, not to the individual soldier, but we usually pass such things as insignia from German uniforms and medals which a lot of our boys get from prisoners in exchange for cigarettes."
"If everything they mailed went through there'd be enough German equipment back in the United States to equip half of Hitler's army," said Lieut. John R. Kibler, of Altoona, Pa., another package censor. "We've found everything but a jeep and an 88 millimeter gun."
"One guy did try to send through a light German machine gun," said Sternberg. "I don't know what he planned to use it for after the war."
The largest single article mailed back was a bicycle shipped home by some thoughtful soldier who had heard of the gasoline rationing. One officer, a little irked by a letter from his wife complaining about the food and coffee rationing program, sent home a can of "C" rations and a small tin of army coffee along with a note to this effect:
In Whitley county, a number of cows are being bought and sold with prices ranging from $85 to $150.
Many homemakers in Scott county planted soybeans this year for the first time.

AMERICANS ARE STILL THE BEST NOURISHED PEOPLE ON EARTH ...AND THERE'S A REASON

Our food may be stretched out these days to share with the peoples of the United Nations, but thanks to new scientific developments in animal feeding, our feathered and four-legged armies are being greatly improved in quality and propagation.

min-fortified feeds, you're getting nutrition plus. Anheuser-Busch is America's biggest supplier of yeast vitamins for cattle and poultry feeds. Our large-scale production of natural vitamins is another achievement that resulted from years of research and laboratory work in producing the world's most popular beer.

Budweiser

In addition to supplying the armed forces with glider parts, gun turret parts and foodstuffs, Anheuser-Busch produces materials which go into the manufacture of: B Complex Vitamins • Rubber • Aluminum • Munitions • Medicines • Hospital Diets • Baby Foods • Bread and other Bakery Products • Batteries • Paper • Soap and Textiles—to name a few.

READING and WRITING

CHARLES B. DRISCOLL is head of a large newspaper syndicate and author of the widely read column, "New York Day by Day." He is witty and a wonderful storyteller.

then he yelled at his wife: "Ellen, have you got a bite to eat for these hungry flops-ile-guys, I don't know." And after they had ravenously finished a steaming pot of coffee, a loaf of bread, a hunk of ham and a pot of boiled salt pork, and after he had fed her to their lean horse, he refused to call in the Sheriff.

The Book-of-the-Month Club announces for July a dual selection: "Western Star," by the late Stephen Vincent Benet, a long narrative poem about our pioneers which was completed just before the author's death, and "U.S. Foreign Policy: Shield of the Republic."

MacKinley Kantor, author of "Happy Land," received a raft of mail about his story from parents of boys at the fighting fronts. A previous book of Kantor's—"Long Remember"—a tale of the Civil War, found its way into the hands of a sergeant on Guadalcanal.

THE GARDEN

By JOHN S. GARDNER

For many gardeners, growing late cabbage is a lost art, and the reason often given is that "the seasons are changing." But, there are at least three causes for the difficulty in growing late cabbage.

growth of cover crop. Then, whenever weeds start, they are immediately disked in and the land finished with a drag.

Many home gardeners, on the other hand, attempt to have late cabbage follow some early crop, in land that has been almost entirely sapped of its moisture.

Another cause for late cabbage not thriving is the horde of cabbage worms that have been multiplying all summer on the green leaves on stubs from which heads have been cut, or on the early-mustard, the remnants of Seven Top turnip and on radishes, gone to seed.

that lay eggs from which hatch the green cabbage worms.

Another cause may be the Yellowing disease, "cabbage wilt." In many gardens, there is no doubt as to the presence of this disease in the soil, as the failure to grow cabbage is total.

Approximately 500 acres of soybeans for hay will be grown in Henry county, five times that of a year ago.

To the Voters of Floyd County and the 29th Senatorial District:

This statement is made purely as an expression of our individual sentiments as regards the coming election in which Doug Hays, of McDowell, is seeking the Democratic nomination for State Senator from this district.

What we say here is not to be taken as presumptuous on our part or as indicative that we even think we should or can lead the voters of Floyd county or any other county to vote otherwise than as their conscience dictates.

To state the matter more briefly, we are "for" Doug Hays for Senator. We are "for" him so much that we are willing to make this statement in a newspaper or any other medium disseminating information to the public.

We are "voting for" Doug Hays, not "against" some other candidate opposing him. We are for Doug Hays because he is, in our estimation, the best Democrat that Floyd county or this Senatorial district has ever produced.

How many of us could have undergone such treatment and refused to stay down or resisted the temptation to stray from the party?

Doug Hays not only is a good Democrat—he is a good American, a devoted father, a good citizen. He himself was a volunteer in the Spanish-American War; his son, Capt. Stanley Hays, is now in overseas service.

Were Doug not grown old and now making what may be his last political race after repeated disappointments, and had he not faced past political defeats with such good cheer and such loyalty to the party to which we as well as he owe allegiance, we might not be constrained to speak thus publicly in his behalf.

To be good Floyd countians and good Democrats we feel that we must at this late date—better now than never—lend him our unstinted support and ask every good Democrat to think along the same lines we have attempted to draw in this statement.

- Sincerely, OLIVE AKERS, Tax Commissioner; ANNIE STUMBO, Sheriff; GUY HORN, Jailor; W. W. COOLEY, Clerk, Floyd Circuit Court; W. W. BURCHETT, County Attorney; G. C. BURCHETT, J.P.; A. B. MEADE, County Clerk; EDWARD P. HILL, County Judge; DEWEY ROBERTS, J.P.; HENRY STUMBO, J.P.; JOHN ALLEN, Commonwealth's Attorney

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Stop Spending, and Save for the future. That has been good advice since biblical days. You cannot buy tires today, but you can start saving to buy that new set of tires when they go on the market again.

Your regular investment of ten percent or more of your earnings in War Bonds through your Payroll Savings Plan will provide the necessary funds to buy those tires later and help win the war. Let's "Top that Ten Percent."

THE recent death of Jack Doyle, Broadway's famous betting commissioner, cleared up one of the mysteries connected with one of the most famous ring battles ever fought.

This was the first meeting between Jim Jeffries and Jim Corbett, won by Jeffries with a knockout in the 23rd round.

In most of the remembered versions of that fight, where Corbett put on the most sensational comeback of all time, the average opinion is that Corbett had the fight packed away by a wide margin until Big Jeff landed the killing punch.

Many who saw the fight had given Corbett 20 of the first 22 rounds.

Doyle's Story

But Jack Doyle had another story to tell. "George Siler refereed this fight," Jack said once, "and for a long time I tried to get him to tell me what his decision would have been if the fight had been only a 20-round contest. For a long time Siler wouldn't say. Then one night he told me confidentially, asking me not to repeat his words, that at the end of 20 rounds he would have given the fight to Jeffries."

"I'll tell you why," Siler said. "Jeffries was the champion. Jeffries was the aggressor. And Jeffries landed the only damaging punches. It was true enough that Corbett landed many more blows. But none of these bothered Jeffries in the slightest. Jeffries only landed a few times solidly, but when he did I could see that he had hurt Corbett considerably. In fact, once or twice he had Corbett in serious trouble. For that reason at the end of 20 rounds I would have left the title with Jeffries, the defender."

Corbett's Angle

Before his death, I talked to Corbett about this Jeffries fight on many occasions.

Corbett felt dead sure that he had lost the championship by being overconfident in the 23rd round.

"I had nailed Jeffries at least 10 times to one," he said. "I don't think anyone could hurt Jeffries when he was in shape, as he was then. You remember, Fitz broke both hands on his jaw in their second fight. But I was nailing him all through the fight. I was far in front when he finally caught me coming off the ropes."

I asked Corbett if Jeff had hurt him. "Twice," Corbett said. "Both body punches, and each time I thought he had torn me in two. The Jeffries that fought Jack Johnson wasn't even a ghost of the old Jeffries. He was a fat, half-bald fellow, far out of shape. But the Jeffries I met the second time was the greatest fighter I ever saw. He was not only tough and rugged, game and strong, not only a killing puncher, but he had also become a high-class boxer, which few remember. He had to retire because there was no one else even close. In his prime I don't think that Jack Dempsey or any one else could have hurt him. He would have worn down and beaten them all."

Doyle's Favorite Story

Jack Doyle's favorite story concerns Jimmy Austin, at that time the Yankee third baseman.

Big Ed Walsh was pitching for the White Sox. "Austin was hitting around .209," Jack said. "He hadn't gotten a hit for three days. Walsh was at his peak. The big fellow was mowing them down with his fast ball and his splitter. On that day I happened to be sitting near a bunch of gamblers who found it hard to get down a bet. They were panning Austin as he came to bat. Sitting near those gamblers there was a drunk about half asleep. He suddenly lurched over and said he would like to bet $100 to $500 that Austin would get a triple. This was too good to be true, especially after he had shown his roll. Five of the sure-thing boys took him, $500 to $2,500, and I held the stakes. On the first pitch Austin hit one against the top of the fence for three bases.

"The funny part is, that was the last bet they could get out of the drunk. He crammed his winning $2,500 into his pocket and went back to sleep. His last remark was: 'I only make one bet a game and then I wait for a sure thing that can't miss.'

"I'd say the odds against that bet were 1,000 to 1."

No Wild Odds

Doyle's prices were closer than many others. You'd never find him laying 7 to 1 that Georgia would beat Auburn, Boston College would beat Holy Cross, or that the Chicago Bears would beat the Redskins.

Jack, who came up in football from the days of Frank Hinkey and The Bloody Corner, had seen too many upsets, especially in traditional games.

The 1942 season was more than ample evidence of the truth of his beliefs.

Science In The News

By ORSON D. MUNN, L.H.B., L.L.B., Sc.D. Editor, Scientific American

Home soap-making is an indirect blow at our armies in the field. For they are utterly dependent upon the steady flow of munitions which, in turn, depends upon the production of glycerine from salvaged waste fats. Remember, too, that not only the men in the front lines would suffer from a shortage of fats, but also the wounded and the sick in our military hospitals.

Orson D. Munn

For glycerine is an essential ingredient in the surgical dressings, antiseptics and burn jellies which may be so essential to their recovery.

For example, glycerine is used as a base for the sulphonamide ointments which are so valuable in preventing infections.

Few persons realize that a shortage of fats might well be as disastrous to our war effort as a series of major defeats. However vast our manufacture of armaments, whatever all-time records of war production we achieve—all will be useless, unless we have enough fats to make the munitions for our weapons. Fats are the source of most glycerine and glycerine is a basic essential in the manufacture of munitions.

If this realization were general, we should not see patriotic American women making their own soap and thus depriving their country, at a crucial hour, of the chief source of her munitions supply. In recent articles, I have urged the saving of waste fats by the housewife, and their delivery to a local meat dealer, from whom they are collected for the Government's fat salvage campaign. I have warned of the vital need that American housewives everywhere cooperate with this campaign. Today, with the turning point of the war apparently at hand, and our own ever deeper involvement, the same warning applies with double force.

Home soap-making operates against our cause in two evil ways. It takes waste fats directly out of the Government's fat salvage campaign, and it also decreases the manufacture of commercial soap, which is the largest single source of the nation's glycerine supply. Therefore, it is not an exaggeration to say that the home-making of soap tends to sabotage our war effort. At this time, there is no patriotic ground upon which the practice can be defended, nor is there any basis of common sense for it.

Commercial soap is inexpensive and generally excellent in quality. Homemade soap is false economy. It is likely to contain free lye, highly damaging to skin and fabrics. Thus it is in reality far from being an economical product. The apparent initial saving of a few pennies is likely to be more than offset by the damage done to bodies and to clothing. It is also costly in its assault upon self-esteem. No woman who values good looking hands should subject them to the ravages of home-made soap.

One would like to believe that every American woman, once she knows the facts, will cooperate with her country and its defenders in their hour of need. Most of us would hesitate to believe that any American woman would trade her opportunity to do this, for a possible saving of a few pennies. If we are right, home soap-making will cease.

12 of 600 Students Receiving Degrees At U.-K., from Floyd

Approximately 600 students, representing a cross-section of Kentucky and many other states, were graduated from the University of Kentucky Friday evening, June 4, at the institution's 76th annual June commencement exercises.

The Hon. Joseph C. Grew, former U.S. ambassador to Japan, was the commencement speaker, and Dr. Robert Whitfield Miles, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Lexington, delivered the baccalaureate address Thursday afternoon, June 3.

The group of around 600 graduates represented those students who had completed their work leading to degrees in August, 1942, and in February, April and June of this year, this having been the only commencement at the University of Kentucky since last June.

Among those receiving degrees from Floyd county are:

- Hollie Cenley, Bachelor of Arts, Garrett; Durward Eugene Salisbury, Bachelor of Science in Agriculture, Hunter; Hazel Irene Hill, Bachelor of Science in Home Economics, Prestonsburg; Walter Clay Gunnell, Bachelor of Arts in Education, Emma; Dorothy Turner Martin, Bachelor of Arts in Education, Drift; Alta Marie Osborne and Etta Mae Osborne, Bachelor of Arts in Education, Osborn; Eula Nunery Brook, Bachelor of Arts in Education, Prestonsburg; Grady Grey Flannery, Bachelor of Arts in Education, Martin; Victoria Murrill Spradlin, Bachelor of Arts in Education, Prestonsburg; James Robert Evans, Bachelor of Science in Commerce, Martin; and Curtis Owens, Master of Arts in Education, Garrett.

THIS OFFICIAL WAS RIGHT

THOSE who still cling to the ideal of Justice as a thing of impartiality, shielding none and persecuting none, are pleased with the action of Commonwealth's Attorney John Allen in seeking to halt the operation of gaming devices at the "carnival" which ended a week's stand here Saturday night.

The carnival paid a license fee, handed out "courtesy passes," right and left. But that, according to the old standards of Justice, licensed that carnival to commit the legal offense of gaming no more than is the one-gallus guy who plays an over-the-river-bank game of poker with only a few dollars at stake. The two-bit gambler at home gets thrown in jail, scarcely a grand jury ends its session without several indictments being returned against the county's own citizens for gaming offenses, whether the stakes were small or large.

Then why not enforce the law against others whose only virtue is that they make no attempt to keep their offense secret?

Officials and enforcement officers lose any prestige they may have enjoyed when they stand by and condone law-breaking by witnessing violations of this sort and doing nothing about it. Such collusion breeds contempt.

CONTEMPT OF COURT

(The Atlanta Journal)

FOUR men were arrested in the recent disorders at a shipbuilding plant at Mobile which verged on a race riot. They were tried in the inferior criminal court, which is a sort of police court. One of the men, charged with making threats of violence, was put under a $2,000 peace bond.

A responsible and long-established newspaper, the Mobile Press-Register, criticized this disposition of the case, saying it was "a toss-up between conviction and acquittal." The publisher of the paper, Ralph B. Chandler, wrote the editorial.

The judge in the case cited Mr. Chandler for contempt of court, pronounced him guilty and sentenced him to serve six hours in jail and pay a fine of $10. Sentence was suspended on a writ of habeas corpus and the case will be renewed later in probate court.

The judge contended that in saying his action was "a toss-up between conviction and acquittal," the newspaper had said something which was "absolutely untrue" and that "when a newspaper becomes reckless with the truth, then that is contempt."

The judge's remarks, however, do not make sense. The editorial contention was that the men were either innocent or guilty and those who were innocent should have been released and those who were guilty should have been found guilty. The contention had the merit of being founded on fact and on logic, and the opinion of the newspaper concerning the case of the man who was neither acquitted nor convicted was a reasonable conclusion. It was not an "absolute untruth." It was an opinion or judgment possessing the unextinguishable right to stand on its soundness or fall of its weakness.

But a larger question than the logic of a specific utterance is propounded by the action of this judge. He is setting up his court and his judicial actions as infallible. Neither his little court nor any other, not even the Supreme Court of the United States, is immune from, or beyond the reach of criticism. The right of complaint or of protest adheres to every citizen in the guarantees the Constitution offers of freedom of speech and the freedom of the press.

There is, of course, such an offense as contempt of court. But the Supreme Court itself has defined the offense in simple words. Contempt of court is words or acts which bring "clear and present danger of interfering with the administration of justice." The court added, "The substantive evil must be extremely serious and the degree of imminence extremely high before utterances can be punished."

The press is the only spokesman available for the public in matters of litigation and justice. Neither the judges nor the courts are sacrosanct, and in the complex civilization of today there is no way by which the people may learn of the asininity, the wilfulness or the veniality of those who may constitute the courts except through the news and comment provided by the press.

No newspaper, responsible to the conscience of its editor and sensible of its duty to its community, desires to destroy the usefulness of any court or bring it into unjustified contempt. But the obstruction or impedence of justice must be unmistakable and, as the Supreme Court has said, "the substantive evil extremely serious" before judgment be found against a newspaper speaking its mind in behalf of its public and what it believes to be for the good of the community, the state and the nation.

Arnett Asks Louisville To Lend This Section Aid Toward Hospital

Upon his return to this county from Louisville last week, Dr. Earl T. Arnett, Democratic candidate for State Senator, said hopes of procuring for this section a tuberculosis hospital are brighter than ever.

Dr. Arnett said he discussed this need with Louisville business men and citizens who are interested in humanitarian work and that he received from them very definite encouragement. The encouragement given, he said, was not only in a financial way; they also indicated they would be glad to assist him when he, as State Senator, seeks for his district a hospital of this sort.

Dr. Arnett presents himself to the people as a servant, not as a political boss or as a mere hireling to be sent to Frankfort to stay a term of the Legislature out and do nothing. He wants to do something for this section. WON'T YOU ACCEPT SUCH SERVICE? (Pol. adv.)

lantic, across the south Pacific and the Indian Ocean, the sinking and the period of waiting in South Africa for another ship to bring them home—all this made the voyage of the Prestonsburg man, and his crew stretch out over eight months. "Even with the torpedoing and the uncertainty of finding a port, one of the worst experiences of the voyage," Smith declared, "was the terrible weather around Cape Horn. The ship almost capsized, two trucks tore loose from their moorings and for a while things looked dark."

Young Smith is second cook with the merchant marine. Though engaged in one of the most hazardous of all undertakings in the present war, he's ready for more. He left Thursday morning for New York.

"That was only my first trip, so I bought a round-trip ticket when I started home, just to be sure of another try at it," he explained.

Asparagus, strawberries and chickens were canned in large quantities by homemakers in Kenton county during the past month.

FLOYD COUNTY GOES TO WAR

Where Floyd Countians in Armed Forces Are, What They're Doing

Six Floyd county men reported to the U.S. Naval Training Station, Great Lakes, Ill., last week to begin basic training in preparation for active duty.

Upon the completion of "boot" training nine-day leave will be granted, after which the men may be assigned to one of the navy's many service schools to learn a specialized trade, or be sent directly to active duty, depending upon the results of a series of aptitude tests given each sailor during his recruit training.

The Floyd county recruits are: Sam Nelson, 19, Prestonsburg; Clyde Seters, 20, Ivel; Rudolph Dingus, 18, Martin; Jewel D. Allen, 18, Pyramid; Claude G. Sloan, 18, Garrett; Junior W. Branham, Water Gap.

Pfc. Arlie E. Hayes, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Hayes, Fed, was graduated Tuesday from the armament school of the army air forces at Lowry Field, Colorado. He entered the army Oct. 21, last year, as an aviation cadet and received pre-flight training at Maxwell Field, Alabama. Before entering the air service he was a seaman with the merchant marine.

Homer J. Thacker, son of Mrs. Josephine Hill Hall, of Banner, has been assigned to active duty with the Atlantic fleet upon his graduation from the service school for more; Lieutenant-Governor—John Worthington, Lexington; Secretary of State—Emily L. B. McCamy, Middlesboro; Attorney General—W. E. Cissna, Frakes; Auditor—Colleta Alice Godbey, Lexington; Treasurer—Lela G. McConnell, Lawson; Agriculture Commissioner—A. S. Morgan, Russell; Superintendent Public Instruction—William Brant Hughes, Wilmore; Appellate Clerk—Lloyd W. Bennett, Louisville.

LACKEY

Lackey, having once been a thriving little mining town (and still is a mining town), many of our boys in the service have lived here and are interested in the goings-on of the town and have made inquiries as to why Lackey is not "written up" in The Times. Well, boys, some of us feel our inability to write; others are busy with many things, but I agree to give you a bit of news from your home town.

First we go up to Porter where we find the two attractive daughters of J. O. Webb spending their vacation from Wesleyan College—the Misses Marguerite and Elizabeth Eileen.

Fonzo Walker has gone to Detroit, accompanied by his wife, Byrd, where they will take a defense job.

Miss Lois Hughes has also gone to Detroit. We hope she returns to teach this year.

Lieut. Brady Marshall Collins, of the Marines, spent a few days recently with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. M. M. Collins, prior to reporting for duty with the Pacific fleet marine force in San Diego, California.

Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Collins received a telegram that their son, James Collins, who with his brother, Gorman Collins, has been stationed in the state of Washington, was seriously ill. Mrs. Collins and daughter Josephine and Mrs. James Collins left by plane Thursday. A recent telegram from them states that young Collins is showing some improvement. Gordon Collins, another brother, is somewhere in Africa.

Johnnie Meade, who is trying to do extensive farming, said his crew had gone on strike. He has been working a "romper crew" at $2 per day, but the juvenile bunch has struck for higher wages—$3 a day or no work.

Pvt. Ersel Hopkins, who is with the signal corps in Alaska, is moving about in his domain but has no chance for a furlough right now.

Hubert Akers, son of Noah Akers, is home on furlough.

Master Billie Horn and Arthur Staley, Jr., of Ashland, spent the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Mike Staley, of this place. They returned home Sunday with Mrs. Arthur Staley, who spent the day with the Staleys.

Miss Rebecca Prater, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Prater, has joined the W.A.A.C. and will report at Daytona Beach, Fla., the first of the week. Lieut. Burnis Prater, her brother, is located about 40 miles from Daytona Beach. Miss Prater has been employed as a stenographer in Washington for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Beckham Combs and children, Nancy and Jack, of Hindman, and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hatcher and children, Bob and Maude Ellen, of Estill, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hatcher.

Mr. and Mrs. Beckham Combs and children, Nancy and Jack, of Hindman, and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hatcher and children, Bob and Maude Ellen, of Estill, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hatcher.

Eat what you can ... and what you can't you CAN

MILLIONS of Victory gardens will be cultivated this year to help relieve the shortage of food brought about by our efforts to feed the largest army in our history, to assist our allies, and to avert starvation among the people of Europe.

To make the most effective use of the products of the Victory garden, the woman in the home is called upon to make another contribution towards winning the war—every woman whose garden has yielded a surplus beyond that which her family can consume immediately will wish to preserve that surplus by canning.

With the hope of rendering aid to the homemaker enterprise, we have prepared this compact booklet containing most of the essential information necessary for the canning of fruits and vegetables. This booklet is available in our office. Be sure to get your copy.

ARMY'S SIZE AND LABOR PROBLEMS

Manpower Boss Paul McNutt has been sessioning with the Truman committee regarding certain problems which touch the lives of everyone. They include size of the army, where we will get labor for farms, and whether the army shall be used in mines and industry.

Senators on the committee were impressed both with the gravity of the problems McNutt placed before them, and his general views regarding them. McNutt revealed that Undersecretary of War Patterson had been talking to him about a total armed force of 11,000,000 to 15,000,000 men. This included not merely the army, but the navy, the coast guard and the marine corps—everything except the merchant marine.

However, McNutt pointed out that shipping facilities and submarine warfare seriously limited the number of troops which could be sent abroad and supplied. The figure he mentioned must remain a military secret, but he indicated that with Hitler's U-boats working overtime around North Africa, it was going to be difficult to maintain a very large army in North Africa.

In addition to North Africa, he pointed to the problem of supplying other war fronts in the Pacific, together with Russia and England. As a result, McNutt doubted the feasibility of a world's record army now. He was all for giving the military and navy what they wanted so long as it could be transported to the combat zones, but he opposed a huge army which would eat its head off at home, especially in view of the fact that morale deteriorates when an army is kept idle.

At one time, McNutt said, a large army at home was considered necessary to protect the United States. But now military experts felt this danger greatly lessened, though a certain number of reserves must be trained.

Army and Industry.

McNutt was asked a great many questions about farm labor, especially by Senator Truman of Missouri. He replied that the army had been unwilling to let men go home on furlough to help with the crops because this hurt morale. However, he said the army was working on a plan to send army units into farm areas, in battalions or companies, and have them help with farm work on an organized basis under army command.

Though the matter was not discussed in detail, it seemed to be the unspoken feeling of the committee that too big an army going into industry and agriculture on an organized military basis might come close to developing a militarized system in the U. S. A. similar to that against which we were fighting in Europe.

Only one member of the committee, Senator Hatch of New Mexico, felt that the armed forces should be given free rein to go ahead and build up tremendous strength not subject to civilian check and supervision.

Other committee members expressed the view that it was only natural for any military leader to want the army to be the biggest in the world; so a civilian check-rein by the White House or congress was necessary to balance farm labor and industry against armed strength.

Finally it was decided that the most important problems to lick before increasing the army to world-beating proportions was the submarine and shipping.

OFFICIALS SAVE GAS

Some few Washington bigwigs are careless about gasoline rationing, but they are exceptions. Most Washington officialdom is scrupulously careful.

The chief justice of the United States, for instance, is riding a truck. Chief Justice Stone has discarded his private car as a means of getting to and from the Supreme court, and instead hitch-hikes in the delivery truck which runs errands for the court. In addition, Stone is one of the walkingest members of the court.

The White House uses 11 cars now, against 15 a year ago, and these include trucks for the White House mail, as well as cars for the President and staff. White House Secretary Marvin McIntyre now rides to work in a Ford instead of a Packard.

Vice President Henry Wallace last fall abandoned his 16-cylinder limousine in favor of a humble five passenger sedan. Every morning he walks the five miles from the Wardman Park hotel to the Capitol, and rides home in the evening.

Speaker Sam Rayburn uses his official car sparingly. He often walks from his apartment on DuPont Circle to Seventh street, where he takes a street car to the Capitol.

Senator Thomas of Oklahoma gets to work on foot or by bus. The other day a Capitol clerk gave him a lift from a bus stop on 16th street. Milo Perkins, chief of the Board of Economic Warfare, shuns the use of his official car in driving from home to office. Instead, he has joined a car pool with six other BEW members who live in the same section.

STUDY IN AMERICAN STRENGTH

Three American airmen, Edward Mallory Vogel, Tennessee; Eddie Goldberg, the Bronx, New York; and Edwin J. Sipowski, Waukegan, Ill., killed in a takeoff in San Juan Harbor, were buried side by side with a Protestant chaplain, a Roman Catholic priest and a rabbi officiating. The flag for which they fought flew over them.—News item.)

A chaplain, a priest and a rabbi—Protestant—Catholic—Jew—Three Yanks in three simple castings—Three colors, red, white and blue

A hush on a tropic island As notes from a bugle fall—Three rituals slowly chanting—Three faiths in a common call!

A lad from the Bronx; another Who joined up in Tennessee; A third one from far Waukegan—A typical bunch, those three! A crash in a naval airplane ... A rush to its crumpled side ... And nearby Old Glory marking The reason the trio died.

They answered a call to duty From church and from synagogue—From hillside and teeming city ... Three names in a naval log! Each raised in his separate concepts—Each having his form to pray—But all for a faith triumphant When rituals fade away!

A prayer in Latin phrases—And one with more ancient lore; A Protestant simple service—All one on a distant shore! "Qui tollis peccata mundi" ... And, "Enter ye unto rest" ... A blessing from ancient Moses ... For three who had met the test!

BRIAR BUCK'S SCRATCHES

(Views expressed herein are those of the writer and not necessarily those of The Times)

Ever since I read about Old Ned in the First Reader, I have believed that we pay taxes in order to get good government. And that if we received poor, or wasteful and corrupt government, we have been cheated.

Therefore, after watching the Donaldson-Talbot-Johnson crowd at Frankfort play cheap politics for 3 1/2 years with the poor unfortunates in the feeble-minded institutions and the houses of correction, after seeing them buy cheap lye soap at 50c per pound, collect hundreds of thousands of illegal dollars from toll bridges which should have been free to the citizens and visitors of Kentucky, after seeing them condone and freeze the sub-standard wages of Kentucky's school teachers, build 4- and 6-lane highways thru Bluegrass towns which have had good roads for decades, while letting the mountain section, including Floyd county, get along with one-lane wagon roads in the summer time and no road at all during the winter months, and after watching them assess the meager salaries of the underpaid State Highway employes in order to make a big slush fund for the primary election, I have become convinced that the Frankfort Crowd has been giving us a genuine shellacking as far as good government is concerned.

It, therefore, behooves this Floyd county Democrat to think of anyone in the whole mountain section who would consider the possibility of voting for J. Lyter Donaldson, the Bluegrass Slate-Maker, who considers us the base-born child of Kentucky politics, and not to be consulted or considered except once in four years (just before primary time) then forgotten until the next primary election rolls around. It doesn't matter a damn how powerful and strong he may be with The Courier-Journal (a good paper) or how much money he has collected from the underpaid employes, the fact remains that he has been and is still associating with cheap, crooked Bluegrass-minded politicians, that he is the head man of the Harlan county election thieves, and he should be removed from any responsible position.

Rodes K. Myers and Ben Kilgore both are running against Lyter Donaldson for Governor. Thus we do have a choice in the matter. So let's put Floyd county on record as being teetotally opposed to keeping a proven enemy of this section eating at the public trough. Lets send him back home!

Say Kentucky Gardens Best In State's History

That this will be one of the best garden years ever experienced in much of Kentucky is indicated by reports reaching the State College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Despite the late season and frequent rains, gardens generally are good. Typical is the report of John Bach, of Whitley county. "Gardens look fine although the season is late. Gardens are larger, there is a variety of vegetables planted, and the gardens are better taken care of than usual. Corbin has as its slogan, "No vacant lots in Corbin, and every lot a victory garden." In Hopkins county it is estimated that the number of gardens has been tripled this year. Rockcastle county gardens are said to be "far bigger and better than usual," and Clinton county reports having larger gardens. In Scott county, both city and rural gardeners are said to be "taking hold of gardening in fine shape."

All available garden land is under cultivation in Harlan county, according to Home Agent Roxie C. Perkins. She reports that a greater variety of vegetables are being grown in all gardens of the county this year, with continuous planting planned to supply fresh, tender products.

Approximately 35,000 of Kentucky's 4-H club members are growing gardens for themselves, or assisting with family plots. Pike county has 1,679 members so enrolled. Farm Agent O. M. Shelby, of Crittenden county, relates that on a tour of 4-H club gardens, he found them to be 75 to 100 per cent larger than a year ago and unusually free of weeds. "Both club members and adult gardeners are aware of the danger of a possible food shortage and plan to make full use of their canning and drying facilities," Mr. Shelby notes.

Put Your Payroll Savings on a Family Basis Make 10 per cent Just a Starting Point

FACTS ABOUT THE NEW PAY-AS-YOU-GO PLAN

Q. How much will my employer hold out of my pay? A. There will be withheld from your pay an amount equal to 20 per cent of the excess of your wages over your family status withholding exemption, or three per cent of the excess of your wages over the Victory tax withholding exemption, whichever is greater.

Q. What do you mean by exemption? A. The amount of your wages which is exempt from the withholding tax.

Q. What does that amount to? A. On an annual basis, $624 for single persons; $1,248 for married persons; and $312 for each dependent. On a weekly basis, this is $12 for a single person; $24 for a married person; and $6 for each dependent.

Q. How does my employer know how much of my wage is exempt from withholding? A. Because he gives you a slip of paper called withholding exemption certificate. On it you indicate whether you are single or married, how many dependents you have, and so forth. Then you sign the certificate and return it to your employer. From that information he can tell exactly how much of your pay is exempt from withholding, and how much bears the 20 per cent tax.

Q. What if I do not hand in one of these certificates to my employer? A. When he is required by law to withhold the 20 per cent tax from all your wages without exemption. So it will save you money to be sure to turn one in.

Q. Do I turn my withholding exemption certificate in to my foreman, to the payroll department, or where? A. The withholding exemption certificate must be given to your employer, or some-one designated by him to accept it.

Q. Suppose both my wife and I are employed. How does the exemption work? A. The personal exemption may be divided and each take one-half, or one may claim it all. Each has the same victory tax withholding exemption.

Q. Suppose I am married, have two children, and earn $34 a week—how much pay will I receive after withholding tax has been deducted? A. You will receive $50.20 if your employer elects to use the wage bracket withholding table provided by law, or $50.40 if your employer computes the tax at 20 per cent of your wage less exemptions.

Q. If my husband has filled out an employer's withholding exemption certificate and has claimed half of the personal exemption and exemption for one dependent, and after a couple of months is drafted; can the wife claim the full personal married exemption and the dependent child's exemption? A. The withholding exemption certificate filed by the husband can be changed. Where there is a change of status, a new certificate should be furnished the employer, which may take effect at the employer's election, with respect to any payment of wages made on or after the date the certificate is furnished; but in no event later than the first payment of wages made on or after the following first day of July or January which occurs at least 30 days after the certificate is furnished to the employer.

A WEIGHTY MATTER

Loss of a purse containing $60 and some ration books caused no end of trouble at Wheelwright and here in Prestonsburg last week. First, a 10-year-old negro boy was held as the person who originally gained possession of the purse. He was released after telling authorities that he gave the money to "Mammy-Do". "Mammy-Do", Lucy May Robinson, disclaimed knowledge of the purse. She finally executed bond. Then the trouble of getting her out of jail began. For "Mammy-Do" admits to weighing 215 pounds and there are those who would swear she'll beat that by several stone.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A SAILOR WRITES

Editor, The Times: By the time you receive this letter it will be a year since I last saw you. During this past year much has happened. I was transferred about four months after leaving the States. I was assigned to my present ship after about three weeks. I have been getting along fine, although I haven't seen a woman in over four months. Sometimes I get a couple of beers, once or twice a week when I'm in port or when we have "dropped the hook" in some harbor.

Sometimes I receive the Floyd County Times. When I'm lucky, I get a late copy along with some three or four months old, but I like them just the same. I don't get very much news but we do get the more important news. I wonder if the miners are out in Floyd county. What has Shikepoke to say about John L. Lewis, or is he still making nasty cracks about Lindbergh? Since we are at war, Lindbergh is right with us. John L. Lewis has done more than all the saboteurs combined. I'm a former member of the U.M.W.A. I was a member until the time I enlisted. I'm for the miners. Many are my friends, and they deserve the best. I won't believe that any I know are starving and that alone would hardly justify a walk-out on the government, a walk-out on their sons and friends at the fighting fronts, a slow-up in production that if allowed to continue may prove disastrous or a reversal in a situation that is well in hand.

I don't know if the miners are out in Floyd county. I hope I never hear of news like that from my own county. I can't believe that any one at home could walk out at a time like this. This is a job for everyone. Production and our ability to get it where it is needed is essential. Get it there—the more we get, the more we can dish out. They can be sure that the army and navy won't sit down as long as there is work to do.

The future of our country is at stake and that's small as compared with an enslaved world. No measure could be too drastic in my mind to deal with walk-outs.

Your friend, W. CLAUDE MARTIN Q. M. 3 | C. Div. N.

The one on the list of units I will discuss is the one I am most familiar with, as I am in this unit myself. It is the 615th Q.M. Bakery Battalion. The name, "bakery," brings into the minds of most people breads, cakes, cookies, pies, etc. A bakery battalion in the army does not have a thing to do with this type of baking. The sweets are made by the cooks in the mess halls. All the bakery battalion does is bake bread (field type). One company can bake enough bread to feed a number of men. It takes so few materials to bake this bread that it is amazing how it could be so nutritious. There are special vitaminized flour, water, yeast, salt and shortening. Each item is added to the dough in measured units. The bread is baked in portable fire units and ovens. These ovens are heated by gasoline units, two to each oven. There is an automatic mixer which also is portable. Not only are the men in the bakery outfit bakers, we have one of the hardest types of training. We know how to use a rifle and also a machine gun, know the latest types of concealment and camouflage and know in general how to take care of ourselves and our buddies in first aid when wounded in action.

THE PHYSICAL FITNESS PROGRAM

Editor, The Times: About a year ago I wrote an article for your paper on physical fitness. I said and thought then that the physical training program meant a lot to the army and also to the civilians. I notice in reading the newspapers that in the past week the government created a National Physical Fitness Committee to develop and promote a body-building program aimed at improving the quality of the human material available to the armed forces.

This 14-man committee will rely on state and community organization as well as on schools and colleges to carry out the suggested programs. Meanwhile, President Roosevelt was reported planning to appoint a three-man committee (one civilian, one army man, and one navy representative) to study the value of organized sports as an instrument in making America physically conscious.

In my opinion, this is important, very much so. I have been working in the physical fitness program at Long Beach army air field for the past 14 months and have found that physical fitness means everything to the army. If you are not in shape, no matter what job you are doing, you are a slacker and not doing your job nearly as well as you could if you did take care of yourself and used the right conditioning exercises.

Ask the man on the battlefield. It is the difference between life and death for him. A soldier not in good physical condition is an asset to the enemy. He slows his comrades down (one reason men over 38 are being released by Uncle Sam). This also applies to civilians—they are doing their part and a wonderful job—but they could do lots more by taking care of their bodies.

I am now going through a tough N.C.O. physical training school at Miami Beach, Fla. There are 500 in my class, made up solely of athletes and coaches—all-American basketball and football stars, big league baseball players and coaches from high schools and colleges. This is an eight-week course. We have two more weeks to go before graduating. The lower class has 400 students and has six more weeks to go. We are taught the best methods to condition the trainee for the purposes of Uncle Sam and later life, so he will be a better soldier and able to take care of himself.

I find in training the soldier who has recently been inducted that his condition is very poor, compared to the inductee of a year ago. Most of them are very young and have no co-ordination of body and are very weak. This, I think, is the reason why this suggested program is being started in small communities, high schools and colleges.

I'd like to talk to you or a committee made up of coaches and men interested in sports in Floyd county. I hope to get a furlough when I complete my course here and would appreciate it if you'd help me arrange this meeting. Maybe I could put my points over much better and contribute a few ideas for the organization of a physical training program in Floyd county. STUDENT JIMMY ROARK

Army Deserter Held In Kinsman's Death In Magoffin County

Noble Wisecup, a deserter from the United States army, Saturday night shot and killed his step-father, John Kilburn, at the Kilburn home near Foraker on Board Tree Fork of the Middle Fork.

Wisecup was brought to Salyersville Sunday morning and turned over to Sheriff Oliver Patrick, who had him placed in jail to await examining trial on the murder charge. Sheriff Patrick also identified Wisecup as a deserter for whom he had warrants, and has notified military authorities that he is in custody. Examining trial was scheduled for Friday before County Judge F. C. Lacy.

Wisecup, who is described by acquaintances as being "a little off," is said to have tried to force entrance to the Kilburn home at about 3 a.m., Sunday morning. When Kilburn refused him admittance, he is alleged to have fired two shots through the door, one of which was fatal to Kilburn.—Salyersville Independent.
