Why Criticise the Gentlemen

THE Courier-Journal criticizes Lyter Donaldson and Judge ... as gubernatorial candidates ... their failure to endorse the change in the state Constitution ... move the ceiling on salaries of public officials of the state.

Why should they endorse? Aren't they seeking the high office of the state at the old salary? ... willing to admit that a higher salary would induce men of finer quality to seek public office?

Besides, the two gentlemen vying for gubernatorial honors are not convinced the people of Kentucky are not still of the same mind as in 1925—against any increase in public officials' salaries.

Stevens Elkhorn Mine One of Kentucky Trio Included in Report

Improvements for three Kentucky coal mines producing a total of 2,200 tons of coal a day are recommended in separate federal coal mine inspection reports transmitted by Dr. R. R. Sayers, director of the Bureau of Mines, to Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes. The report, compiled after routine inspections earlier this year, also listed commendable practices observed at that time.

The mines are the Pacific Mine of the Pacific Coal Company at Mercer, Muhlenberg county, which was visited for the second time a few months ago; the Stevens Elkhorn Mine of the Stevens Elkhorn Fuel Corporation, at Manton, this county, and the Blue Grass No. 5 Mine of the Darb Fork Coal Company, at Darfork, Perry county, both of which were visited for the first time recently. The Pacific mine employed 158 men and produced 1,100 tons of coal a day, the Stevens Elkhorn mine averaged 194 men and produced 800 tons of coal a day, and the Blue Grass mine employed 78 men and produced 300 tons of coal daily.

To augment existing safety practices in the hand-loading Stevens Elkhorn mine, such as good timbering, use of permissible electric cap lamps, and wearing of protective hats and safety-toe shoes by 80 percent of the workers, Harvey P. Landis, federal inspector, recommended better distribution of the air supply, elimination of ignition hazards, and control of coal dust. Since the inspection, Dr. Sayers has been advised, the mine planned the installation of a new ventilating fan in an entry being driven at the time of the inspection. The federal inspector advised that the new fan, as well as all other ventilating fans, should be offset at least 25 feet from the line of the mine opening, and be equipped with certain safety devices.

Commending workers for carrying self-rescuers, the inspection also suggested renewal of first-aid training, adequate fire protection, and creation of an active safety organization.

Invest in America and in the peace that is to be ours—Buy War Bonds.

Better Air and Timbering For Goose Creek Mine

Better ventilation and safer timbering practices are among the primary suggestions made by federal coal mine inspectors for providing additional protection of workers and property in three Kentucky coal mines employing about 310 men and producing 1,675 tons of coal daily, Dr. R. R. Sayers, director of the Bureau of Mines last week informed Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes.

They are the Goose Creek Mining Company's mine near Garrett, this county, the Harlan Central Coal Company's Totz mine at Totz, Harlan county, and the Miller Coal Company's Hunt mine near Regina, Pike county. Reports prepared after routine federal inspections several months ago described existing commendable safety features of each mine.

Goose Creek Mine Air reaching working faces was inadequate in the Goose Creek mine, which employs 94 men and produces 700 tons of coal daily. Federal Inspector A. V. Faull reported. He suggested detailed improvements in air-coursing facilities to increase the volume of air and also proposed moving the ventilating fan to the surface, testing for explosive gas at least once a month, and prohibiting smoking underground. For better roof support, he advised adopting plans for systematic timbering requiring the use of safety posts and instructing miners in the vibration method of testing roof. Other recommendations were for control of coal dust, safer storage, transportation, and use of explosives, prohibiting the dangerous practice of riding on conveyor belts, maintaining permissible electrical equipment in permissible condition, and repairing poorly-installed power lines. Machinery should be guarded and adequate fire protection provided, he said, and a safety organization should be formed and first-aid training offered for workers.

Public Can Help Secure Cleanup of Eating Places

By DR. MARVIN RANSEDELL, Director, Floyd County Health Department

Health officials are making every effort to improve the sanitation of public eating places. In addition, conferences and schools are being conducted to instruct food handlers. There are laws, rules and regulations requiring the use of approved equipment and methods at such establishments. Nevertheless, one of the most powerful influences for cleanliness and sanitation is not being employed, namely, the public's unfavorable reaction toward dirty and unsanitary places.

In general, the public itself, which is the direct beneficiary of sanitary procedures in restaurants and soda fountains, and other eating places, is just as apt to give its patronage to the carelessly run establishment as to the one striving to maintain sanitary standards. The public cannot do the job entirely, nor can health departments bring about desirable and essential practices without the help of the public. Until patrons of eating establishments learn to discriminate to some extent between clean and proper practices, and the reverse, the entire burden falls on the health department. Law enforcement is a recourse of health workers, but with an interested and informed consuming public, legal procedures will be necessary for the worst offenders.

Patrons of soda fountains, restaurants and other eating establishments should know how to appraise, at least, those features of restaurant hygiene which they can see. For instance, one being served at a soda fountain can determine whether or not his drink is served in a clean glass, whether the glass was sanitized and whether general hygienic practices were employed. Thus, the bubbles in a carbonated drink immediately disappear from the sides of a clean glass, but they will adhere to the sides of a dirty one for several minutes. Again, it is easy to note whether some method of bacterial treatment is being practiced, that is, after a glass is washed and rinsed, if there is another operation to reduce the bacteria on the glass left by a previous customer, even after washing and rinsing. This treatment can be accomplished by the use of a steam sterilizer, by dipping the glass in a chlorine solution, or by placing it in a violet ray cabinet.

As for hygienic practices, persons serving food and drink should be clean; should not cough and sneeze over the utensils and materials served; should keep their hands away from mouth, nose, face and hair; should handle all utensils by the outside instead of putting their fingers on the inside of service utensils. These are conditions a person can see, and unless these safeguards are practiced, disease may result.

VOTERS! DON'T BE MISLED!

The Democratic party in this election is quite willing to compare its record with that of the Republican party in Kentucky or in the nation.

While the "Outs"—the Republicans—pick out isolated instances and piously go into hysterics about how the people have been mulcted of their rights, how the "Ins"—the Democrats—have failed in their duty to the people, we would ask the voters to take a calmer, more sensible view of things.

Is it not always the "Outs" who yell loudest about what the other fellow has done, what he should have done and what they would have done, had they been given a chance?

Is it not these same "Outs" who, when given a chance, usually fail to do anything?

The Democratic party in Kentucky, as in the nation, has done things. It has made mistakes; it remains human, and it is human to err. But it has tried and keeps on trying to give Kentucky the best government possible. It has built roads, built state institutions for the care of the state's helpless wards, has co-operated with the federal government in giving the Little Man a chance through the WPA, the Old-Age Pension, Social Security and the Unemployment Insurance program.

And it has paid Kentucky out of debt.

Have you not heard the Republican party scoff at WPA, at Social Security, at most of the other things the Democratic party has done within the last dozen years to make the common man's lot easier?

What did the last Republican Governor do? His name was Flem Sampson. Remember him?

And if Judge Willis were elected Governor, what would he do? What would he do next year in the Presidential election, an election when the country will determine if we shall co-operate with other nations to the end that the peace shall be enduring or if it shall follow the road of isolationism and permit dictators again to brandish the sword over humanity's head?

He will be doing as a good Republican can be expected to do. He will be fighting the Republican fight. All those Republican candidates, from Lieutenant-Governor on down to Constable, who are running with him will be doing the same thing. Remember that.

The Democratic ticket this year, from Lyter Donaldson on down, "will be going down the line" for Franklin D. Roosevelt, the one man who can lead this country through this war and on to the peace that lies beyond. This is not a promise—it is a fact, proved by these men's past performances.

There is a saying, "The Old Guard never dies." And it is as true as gospel. The "Old Guard" is that branch of the Republican party which has dominated it for years out of mind, leading it along the selfish road of isolationism and forgetfulness of everything but Big Business.

Congressman Robsion of Kentucky—the only Republican from this state in Congress—is of that "Old Guard." Senators Taft and Nye are others. Their total contribution to the war effort—a war in which young Republican and Democratic men are dying as "Buddies," together, without thought of politics—has been to create dissension and weakness by constant criticism of President Roosevelt and an unreasoning opposition to whatever he has proposed.

What of Judge Willis? In a recent speech, during the present campaign, he let the true Willis shine through for a moment. He blamed America's unpreparedness for the present war on the Democratic administration. Does he not know that but for the valiant fight of President Roosevelt and those who saw ahead with him, despite all opposition from the Nyes, Wheelers, Robsions, Ham Fishes and others, the navy of the United States would have been a farce and the army of the United States would have been in process of disbandment on the eve of Pearl Harbor.

Our Republican friends tell you of the roads that should be built. And they break no news to anybody. These roads should be built. But who built the roads we now have? Not Flem Sampson and his "Flim-Flam" philosophy. Not Herbert Hoover. We all know that these roads were built during Democratic administrations. We all know that, but for the state and county Democratic administrations working hand in hand with a Democratic administration in Washington, not a rural road would have been built in Floyd county. Middle Creek, Abbott Creek, Auxier, Cow Creek, Bull Creek, Buffalo, Brandy Keg, Mud Creek, Toler's Creek, Turkey Creek, Brush Creek, Salt Lick Creek, Rock Fork, Clear Creek—set them down and remember them all.

Those roads were built while our Republican friends scoffed.

We are all only human. It is natural that we should like to see elected the man or group of men who can and will do most for us and ours. It is good that we are a free people and have the right to discuss these men and vote for the man of our choice. But, exercising these rights, we should ponder long the value of unfulfilled promises as against a record of things achieved.

We ask that you do this—think the matter through for yourselves, without prejudice. Consider the future of Kentucky, Floyd county, the nation as a whole. We believe you will agree with us that the best service you can render as a voter is to cast a straight Democratic ballot.

Ammunition Ceiling Established by OPA

Effective Oct. 1, the Office of Price Administration announced ceiling prices on shotgun shells and cartridges for civilian use. OPA emphasized, in order to correct rumors that have been spreading recently, that this agency has nothing to do with the rationing of these commodities and that persons requiring this class of ammunition need only go to their dealers for supplies. It was pointed out, however, that there will undoubtedly be limitations inasmuch as about one sixth of the number of shells and cartridges annually used by hunters have been released, namely 82,250,000 shotgun shells, 12,000,000 rounds of center-fire cartridges, and an unannounced number of 22-caliber cartridges. Farmers and ranchers already have been allowed to purchase ammunition for control of predatory animals and pests. Hunters are now given the privilege of purchasing up to one box of shotgun shells and cartridges from the stocks released.

The ceiling prices, which are national in scope and apply here of various sizes are: Shotgun shells (2 in a box)—12-gauge $1.38, 16 and 20 gauge $1.32; rim-fire cartridges (50 in a box)—.22 long rifle, regular 34 cents; .22 short, regular 21 cents; center-fire cartridges (20 in a box)—.25-35 Winchester $1.41; .30-30 Winchester $1.46; .30 Remington $1.46; .330 Savage-Remington $1.85; .32 Winchester Special $1.46; .35 Remington $1.46 and .270 Winchester $2.10.

Home Orchards Thrive In Eastern Kentucky

Small home orchards loaded with choice apples were seen at a recent meeting of fruit growers at the farms of Virgil Stone and Ronald Harris in Winifred community, Johnson county.

The Stone orchard of about 60 trees was estimated to carry 1,000 bushels of apples, and the crop of some individual trees was considered worth $100.

Farmers in Winifred community co-operate in the production of fruit and poultry. Trees are fertilized and sprayed according to the latest methods of fruit production. None of the orchards contain more than 100 trees.

Contrary to the ideas of some persons, these successful fruit growers have their orchards on rich bottom land. "I can't afford to grow field crops on bottom land when I can grow fruit," Mr. Stone told the visitors. "One tree will produce enough apples to pay for a whole truckload of corn."

Fruit growers, farmers and county agents from several counties attended the meeting, which was arranged by County Agent Howard Burdine in the interest of promoting better fruit growing. Also attending were W. W. Magill, W. D. Armstrong and C. E. Harris of the Kentucky Experiment Station, and J. M. Peltner, of London, field agent in 4-H club work in Eastern Kentucky.

D. P. (Perk) DINGUS For SHERIFF

He is not only a life-long SOBER man, but, also, a HONEST man, and pledges that he will not appoint drunkards or outlaws as deputies. During these "trying hours," we need such a man for Sheriff. He is just a common, country man, and will not be bossed or controlled by any town clique or faction, or any other selfish interest. His father, mother and wife come from old, pioneer families. Their records have been clean and above reproach. Perk Dingus promises, as Sheriff, to keep the record clean. (Political adv.)

Of Course You're Thrilled, Young Lady!

... So many things have been happening since school started... so many new friends to talk to, and so much to talk about. Certainly you're thrilled, young lady! But before calling, please remember that all telephone lines are crowded now. If you're a party line user, it's especially important to avoid unnecessary calling—and to speak briefly always. Telephone materials aren't available to build enough lines for everybody, so we must make the most of the facilities we have. Your help in keeping the lines clear will be appreciated by a lot of people.
