YIPPEE FROM YPSI

Hospitality and patriotism here are dished out mostly for dollars and cents. This is the "strikingest" place I know. Besides war workers, the school kids, teachers, janitors and the dog catcher occasionally strike. To hear the conductors on street cars yell at their passengers, "Back up! Hurry up! Form double line," etc., reminds me of our old-time ox-drivers who could be heard at great distances giving commands to their oxen, some of which commands were sulphurously "blue." The government has the best "book larin'" farmer-managers here I know of. They plow up sandy deserts for "Y" gardens, and use the black loam fields for garbage dumps. Fine resorts and health centers. Nights very cool, days blazing hot. More square miles of water per fish than any place I know of. Each month is set aside for different species of fish. How they educate these fish to know when they are to eat or bite I am unable to learn. Ring neck pheasants and quail plentiful. Pheasants feed in the camp. No hawks, owls or foxes. Few crows, coons and opossums. No rabbits. The roads are so laid out, those traveling by bus pass the bomber plant six times in making one trip to work from Willow Lodge. Suggest the White Dove hospital owners establish a branch here, where the boys purchase $100 neckties, pay one dollar for a large thimbleful of booze, and purchase "soup hounds" with a "tree" bark for fifty bucks, while the girls pay $24.98 for gingham dresses and two-fifty for Arkansas diamonds. All one has to do here, to commit suicide is to run from the law as several teen-age boys have found out. Enough aluminum scrap wasted here daily to make a dishpan for each housewife in Floyd county. Don't be surprised, should some of these war workers have to borrow money for bus tickets home when the war is over.

The Courier-Journal On June 6, The Courier-Journal reprinted an article from the Kentucky Farm Bureau News, which sought to establish an attitude of unfriendliness on our part toward farmers, based largely on a supposed antagonism toward the Farm Bureau itself. The following editorial fully states The Courier-Journal case: The Courier-Journal BARRY BINGHAM, President. MARK ETHRIDGE, Publisher. RUSSELL BRINEY, Chief Editorial Writer. MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS: The Associated Press is exclusively entitled to the use for publication of all news dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in this paper and also local news published herein. Founded by Henry Watterson and Walter N. Haldeman. Published by Courier-Journal and Louisville Times Company, TUESDAY, JUNE 6, 1944. Circulation rates first classified page. TELEPHONE WABASH 2211. The Courier-Journal and the Farmer The article which we reprint on this page today from The Kentucky Farm Bureau News encourages us to believe that the facts which we have presented in behalf of price control are rather effective. Otherwise, why this elaborate avoidance of the merits of the case? Why this effort to obscure the plain truths of economics and of history by endeavoring to make the reader believe that THE COURIER-JOURNAL, in presenting these truths, is animated by a perverse bias against the Kentucky farmer and an abysmal ignorance of his problems? The allegation is, of course, as fantastic as it is malicious and will not stand a moment's examination by any well-informed Kentucky farmer. In the first place, how could we be so stupid? Even if it were assumed that no idea was ever born in this office except as sense. If there is ignorance in this office—and we do not pretend to know everything—it is in any case never ignorance born of failure to try to understand or lack of either facilities or inclination for first-hand study. But we know that it is not ignorant to be mindful of the disastrous consequences of inflation, and we are convinced that it is ignorant, dangerously ignorant, to wave all this aside, as the Farm Bureau writer does, as a preposterous bugaboo. There was nothing at all imaginary about the crash of farm prices, including tobacco prices, that followed the largely uncontrolled war boom before. We have never pretended that the farmer has had an easy row to hoe in this war. His difficulties and exasperations have been many, and his production record, in spite of them all, has been magnificent. Nevertheless, it would be absurd to pretend that on the whole he has fared badly under price control. One of the charts reproduced with this editorial shows where his income stands—it has about trebled since 1939—and let us not forget that, thanks to price control, there has been no such increase in the cost of things he has had to buy. The other chart is a grim reminder of what happened to farm income before—and, as late as 1939, farmers were still suffering the consequences. THE COURIER-JOURNAL is not unaware of the many important community services of the Farm Bureau, especially those of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation, which we think has contributed much of value to farming in Kentucky. But we are not unaware, either, that the national leadership of the bureau follows a policy of resisting farm price control and of attempting to hamstring it at every turn. It is exactly the policy of the national labor union leadership, which, though relatively quiet on the subject at the moment, is undoubtedly out to hatchet wage control at the first favorable opportunity. We think the policy in each related to our own self-interest, that self-interest would indicate profound concern for the welfare of the farmer. Our own welfare is intimately and inextricably bound up with his. Agriculture is Kentucky's basic industry. Agriculture will be Kentucky's basic industry as far as anyone can see into the future. The Louisville community will not flourish, and neither will THE COURIER-JOURNAL, if the basic industry of the state languishes—if the farmer is put upon again as he was for years following the other war. We don't think the point needs to be labored. We could not conceivably be so dumb as deliberately to cultivate the ill-will and oppose the honest and legitimate aspirations of the people who stand at the very source of everything we hope for, for this state, for this community and for ourselves. In the second place, we think the record speaks on this point. We are not going boastfully to list here all of the enterprises in which this newspaper has engaged and to which it has devoted time, effort and money for the well-being of the Kentucky farmer as he has conceived it and as we have conceived it. It is enough to remark in passing that the first important public service undertaken by the late Judge ROBERT W. BINGHAM, after he became publisher of THE COURIER-JOURNAL and The Louisville Times, was in behalf of the tobacco farmers of this state, ground down by the postwar deflation of 1921. Judge BINGHAM spared absolutely nothing in that cause, and his deep and understanding sympathy with the farmer left an impress on the policy of THE COURIER-JOURNAL which is still there and will always be there. We think that most Kentucky farmers are aware of this. If there is bias in this office, it is bias on the farmer's side, growing out of knowledge of his struggle, knowledge of the odds he has often faced in the past, knowledge of his character and common (ADVERTISEMENT) filed in the Floyd County Court Clerk's office and recorded in Deed Book No. 62, page 223. Said property having been conveyed by the plaintiffs T. J. Allen and Eva Allen to John D. Adams, now deceased, and the defendant, Ida Adams, by deed of record in Deed Book No. 119, page 422, Floyd County Court Clerk's office. Said property will be sold to satisfy a judgment in the above cause for the sum of $708.95 and the costs of the action. For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms. Given under my hand, this 6th day of June, 1944. J. B. CLARKE, Master Commissioner, Floyd Circuit Court Cost of advertising $14.75 case is woefully, almost criminally, shortsighted, perilous to the real interests of both worker and farmer, and we have repeatedly said so. We shall have to keep on saying so. We could not in good conscience do anything else, just for the dubious advantage of enjoying the favor of the Farm Bureau leadership or the labor union leadership. We shall, of course, continue to be misrepresented and called names by people like "F. B. Member," but we are not so ignorant as to believe Kentucky farmers are as ill-informed and unintelligent as that writer apparently thinks they are.

WORLD WAR I FARMER INCOME SHRANK Average farm income 1919 $1360 Average farm income 1921 $460 NET FARM OPERATOR INCOME: 1919 $8,799,000,000 1921 $2,990,000,000

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

FOR PUBLIC PLAYGROUND

Editor, The Times:

Recent issues of The Floyd County Times have advocated the movement for a public playground in Prestonsburg. This will be a major improvement for the town, and will pay great dividends in the future.

The pickpockets of today got their start picking candy bars from the dime stores; the loafers and vagrants of today got their start through idleness in poolrooms during childhood; the gangsters of today got their start by participating in undisciplined gangs as children throwing rocks through windows of vacant buildings.

It is easy to visualize how our community can be greatly improved by having a public playground and solving the problem of juvenile delinquency. If Prestonsburg wants to cultivate criminality, it rests within your jurisdiction by shunning the reality of juvenile delinquency that confronts every community in the nation today. You may be sure that you will protect a wrong and destroy the very decency and purpose of the youth of America by depriving them of the right to grow in a democratic world and in a moral and Christian community. We might well be reminded that the boys are fighting on the four-quarters of the globe today for the right that the youth of our community are demanding from you.

So while the brass-hats are trying to figure out the international situation, let us solve the problem of juvenile delinquency in our community so that we as youth will grow into men and women that you citizens of Prestonsburg will be proud to claim as your product.

Methods That Save Soil Still Needed, Says Prof. Roberts

A statement which he made in 1938 about tillage practices that were conducive to erosion, could well be repeated this spring, Prof. George Roberts, of the Kentucky Experiment Station said recently, after traveling about 1,000 miles in attending meetings on soil improvement and conservation practices. He takes similar trips over the state every year, when he makes careful observations on the condition of the land.

Prof. Roberts admitted that he saw more contour cultivation than he saw in previous years, but he said that vast areas of land are still not cultivated on the contour. Some of the observations which he made in 1938, and which he said still apply, follow:

"Many fields were seen that had been smoothed in preparation for planting, but heavy rains had come before planting was done. Erosion was severe where there was any appreciable slope. On many fields the rows of corn and tobacco had been planted with the slope. Here again erosion was severe.

"On other fields, the rows had been planted across the slopes, and there the erosion was much less. On a few fields where the rows were run across the slope, it appeared that the field had been cultivated soon after planting, leaving the land rough. The ridges and furrows made by cultivation appeared to be quite effective in checking erosion.

"These observations were convincing evidence that on sloping land contour planting and cultivation are effective in checking erosion. It was also evident that land smoothed by dragging should be planted before succeeding rains, if possible.

"It would be a good practice, after planting on the contour, to cultivate the land immediately to roughen it to check erosion. The same should be done after rains."

THE WEEK IN OPA

Ceiling Prices Set on Used Cars

All types of used passenger cars have been brought under price control, effective July 10, the Lexington District OPA Office announced this week.

Specific dollars and cents prices are set—according to model and body type—for 23 makes and about 6,000 models of passenger autos manufactured from 1937 through 1942. Older models will be priced by reference to comparable 1937 models. Two types of ceilings are set for each model and each body type—the "as is" and the "warranty" price.

The "as is" price is that paid for an auto when it is purchased from an individual, or from a dealer, just as it stands.

The "warranty" price is that paid to a dealer for a car that has been reconditioned and guaranteed.

For such sales, the buyer and seller must jointly fill out a transfer certificate and turn this in to the local board to make sure the ceiling price has been observed.

Those contemplating buying or selling used cars will be able to obtain full information from their local boards in a few days and all automobile dealers will be furnished with a copy of the regulation from the national office.

"OUT THERE"

By E. F. EPLING

We can only imagine what it is like on the beaches of France, in the mountains of Italy and the jungles of the Pacific where they're fighting.

Here, some men use all the gas they can get, take curves with tires screaming, sliding their vehicles to a sudden stop. Trying to appear so very important, in a rush to go, and instantly to stop. If they had a little incentive to be in a hurry to go along on something, to help those fighting and dying for them, they'd be better off for it. None of us does enough to boast about, not even the man in a war plant, making good money, but his contribution toward his own country's well-being is quite different from the unconcerned who deliberately sabotage the chances of our fighting men.

Every privilege we have, men died for it, and they are dying again today for the rights we enjoy, for the things we like to do. But does it seem right for you to drink all you can get, and needlessly spend on a rush-and-hurry crowd who are not sad that this war is on, but by their actions show that they are glad?

Men, wake up, and arouse the women also, for they are trying to go you one better. They not only smoke more than you, but are trying to drink more, and they don't seem to know what it's all about.

These lines are for those who know and show "they do not care."

PERMITS NO LONGER NEEDED FOR FARM SLAUGHTERING

Effective immediately, amendment 15 to WFO 75 (formerly FLO 75) removes all restrictions on the farm slaughter of livestock for sale or delivery, M. D. Royce, state AAA committee chairman, announced May 29.

It was pointed out that, although there are no restrictions on the slaughter of livestock since the issuance of the new amendment, farmers must continue to obtain ration points for all beef roasts and steaks sold.

Farmers have been working under WFA requirements whereby all farmers were required to obtain a permit to slaughter beef cattle, sheep and lambs for delivery to persons not residing on the slaughterer's farm.

The original order also required that farmers obtain permits for the slaughter of hogs, but in September, 1943, this requirement was suspended and has been suspended periodically since that time.

A FRIENDLY CORRECTION

Dear Norman:

In the issue of The Times of April 6, 1944, you made a mistake in stating that one member of the probation force had been appointed for Carter, Elliott and Morgan, while in your district of Knott and Floyd, Perry and Leslie had been added. But you overlooked the fact that The Courier-Journal in a previous issue gave the names of all those who had been appointed to the position of probation officer, and if you had looked carefully, you would have seen that I. E. Pelfrey, a former County Judge of Rowan county, had been appointed probation officer for the 21st district composed of Rowan, Bath, Montgomery and Men fee counties, succeeding one Mr. Shroat and on down to the 37th you would see that I. E. Pelfrey had succeeded a Mr. Whitt (I think it was), making seven counties where in former years there had been two districts. I saw one agent and he told me that he had seven or eight counties in his district. I know that you want to be fair and this is by way of writing to you so that a correction may be made.

Mr. Jarvis, the head of the probation office, told the agents that his office was a non-partisan department, but the new agents wanted to know when that rule had been adopted as they did not hear of it till after the election.

I have never known you very well, but went to school with your father, Mart and Luna, and Chick at Hindman was an old friend of mine, and they have all been friends of mine and my father and grandfather were their family doctors as long as they lived. I do not know any family that seems to be a relation to me, but is not in which I have as many friends as in your immediate family. I am not criticizing your editorial, but think that the mistake should be corrected in justice to all concerned.

With the kindest personal regards and certainly wish you a successful career in your work. I hardly can wait until Saturday till a friend gives me The Times, as it is like hearing from home.

NO SPECIAL GAS FOR VACATION TRIPS

Motorists contemplating extensive vacation trips in their cars this year are reminded by B. Reed Wilson, OPA district director, that no special gasoline rations may be issued for vacation travel, and also that gasoline rations issued to B-and C-bookholders for essential driving may under no circumstances be used for vacation trips.

Mr. Wilson added, however, that it is permissible for motorists to use their A book allotments for short vacation trips.

RESOLUTIONS

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has called for our midst Mrs. Elizabeth Claypool, one of this club's most outstanding members;

Whereas, Mrs. Claypool's sincerity and kindness will long be remembered;

Be it resolved, that we, the officers and members of the Lackey-Garrett Woman's Club, do humbly submit to the wisdom and will of almighty God in taking her from our midst and our fellowship and that we hereby express, through very inadequately, our deepest and most sincere sympathy to her daughter, Mrs. John Raymond, and to her brother and other relatives.

Be it further resolved that a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes of our club for permanent record, a copy sent to Mrs. John Raymond and one to Mrs. Claypool's brother, of Maysville, Ky., and that a copy be sent to The Floyd County Times for publication.

LIVING COSTS REMAIN STATIONARY

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, living costs have risen 26 per cent since the beginning of the war. This includes the sharp rises which took place before price control went into effect. During the past year, prices have remained virtually at a standstill. In contrast, during the 56 months of the last World War, prices increased 63 per cent.

It's still BIG MONEY in our business!

THE ordinary copper penny has lost a lot of its purchasing power these days—and even some of its copper. But it still buys as much electricity as ever.

For example, right now in your home a penny will toast about twenty slices of bread—or brew ten cups of coffee—or clean five big rugs—or run your refrigerator for several hours.

Rather startling what a penny will do when you think of it that way, isn't it?

Actually, the price of electricity came down so steadily before the war—and it has stayed down so successfully since—that today the average family gets about twice as much electricity for the same money it paid fifteen years ago.

All this didn't just happen, of course. It's due largely to the hard work, efficiency and experience of your friends and neighbors who man and manage this company. That's why a penny, spent for electricity, buys so much.

Maytown Production In Surgical Bandage Work Leads P'burg

Maytown, with a population well below 1,000, produced through the work of its women more surgical dressings last week than Prestonsburg, it was said here Wednesday.

After making 6,200 dressings during Invasion Week, those who worked in the Red Cross room here last week dropped to a production of only 3,700, Mrs. Lillian Keenon, director of the work, said.

"The mere fact that 12,600 boys were wounded during the first 11 days of the invasion should be incentive enough for our women to work," Mrs. Keenon commented.

The surgical dressing room at David was opened only last week. A fourth work center is located at Ailen. Every worker must bring her own head covering, Mrs. Keenon said.
