THE WEEK IN OPA

Gasoline Rations Unchanged
There will be no change in present gasoline rations as a result of the third quarter allocations the Office of Price Administration has announced.

Third quarter quotas for the nation as a whole show a reduction of 7,000 barrels daily from the second quarter quotas, OPA pointed out.

Consumption for the nation as a whole appears to be running even with or slightly above the quota for the second quarter, according to OPA.

With the tempo of war increasing in both east and west, bringing increased demands for gasoline for the armed forces, there is no prospect of civilian allotments being expanded in the near future, OPA said.

Boards to Study Used Car Regulation
Schools will be conducted at each of the 60 War Price and Rationing Boards in the Lexington District before July 10 to acquaint clerks and board members with the new OPA regulation setting ceiling prices on all used passenger cars, which become effective on that date, S. J. Yeary, district office price specialist, announced this week.

Mr. Yeary said that meetings of used car dealers also will be held at several points in the district before July 10 at which district office officials will be present to explain the regulation.

New Ruling on Waste Fats
Independent collectors of waste fats must leave household salvage fats in the original cans in which housewives and small boarding house proprietors placed them if they are to receive red points for the material when it is turned over to renderers, OPA announced this week.

Purpose of this new requirement in the collection program is to make it possible for renderers to be certain that points paid by them represent point payments only for waste kitchen fats, according to OPA.

New Stove Provisions Announced
Beginning June 26, a consumer may sell or return stoves to a dealer, distributor or manufacturer, the OPA has announced.

Under present regulations, a consumer may transfer a new stove only to another consumer.

If a consumer returns a stove to a dealer, or cancels the order before it is delivered, the dealer must either give him back the certificate or a receipt for the return. The consumer must present this receipt to his local board when applying for a new stove certificate.

Emergency Sugar Allotment
To increase the use of eggs by bakers, ice cream makers and other industrial users of sugar, OPA has announced that any industrial user who customarily uses eggs or who will increase his use of eggs—fresh, frozen or dried—in the production of products for which he receives a regular allotment of sugar will be given an additional allotment for the third quarter ranging up to 5 per cent of his base (1941) use.

This action was taken, OPA said, to help reduce the surplus of eggs in this country caused by bumper production.

Floyd County Goes To War

The expert infantryman badge, a military award for both officers and enlisted men, given in recognition of exceptional fulfillment of field duties of an infantryman, was awarded June 15 to Pvt. William P. Conley, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Conley, of Cliff, who is now assigned for duty with the 345th Infantry, 874th Division, Ft. Jackson, South Carolina.

Pvt. Conley had to qualify with his assigned weapon, as well as qualify on a familiarization test with one other weapon. He had to read maps, understand flag and field marking signals; to complete, without falling out, a foot march, with full field equipment, of 25 miles in eight hours, and another march of nine miles in two hours. The soldier must complete the infiltration course, close combat course and city-combat course; traverse a mile-compass course in both day and night operations; pass a rigid examination in the arts of scouting, first aid, field sanitation, bayonet, and must display an understanding of protective measures for himself and units that might come under his command. The physical fitness program Pvt. Conley had to undergo included push-ups, a 300-yard run in 45 seconds, a 75-yard pig-a-back run (carrying a man of approximately his own weight), a 70-yard zig-zag agility run, as well as displaying the ability to run, crawl, creep and jump on an especially prepared course.

A 9TH AIR BASE COMMAND STATION, ENGLAND—A plaque was recently awarded to Pvt. Reubush B. McCoy for his part in winning the first place silver cup for the 9th Air Defense Command in a swimming tournament sponsored by the Ninth Air Force.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McCoy, of Hi-Hat, Ky., Pvt. McCoy took second place in the 134 1/2 yard relay. A clerk, he formerly served with the Ninth Air Force in Egypt, and previous to his enlistment in the army, worked for 12 months as a welder in the Federal shipyards at Newark, N.J.

He is a graduate of McDowell high school, McDowell, Ky., where he played three years on the basketball team, and was a member of the school band.

CAN THE SURPLUS FROM YOUR Victory Garden

ANOTHER year of War and again it's a must—the need for food conservation. The threatened curtailment of commercially canned foods, the demands of lend-lease, of our armed forces and of the liberated peoples, all add up to the vital necessity for you to can the surplus.

Last year, thousands of women canned surplus food at home—additional thousands will do it this year. It's wise—it's economical—it's easy. We want to help you can and conserve your excess garden produce and have again issued a compact booklet containing essential information for the successful canning of fruits and vegetables.

Also keep in mind these basic rules for canning:

- Select only sound garden fresh fruits and vegetables.
- Follow jar manufacturer's instructions exactly for handling and sealing the particular styles of jar used.
- Pack material loosely to allow heat circulation and leave sufficient space to allow for expansion without overflow.
- Do not subject jars to sudden temperature changes—do not open jars after cooking in jar starts.
- Boil all home-canned meats and non-acid vegetables 10 to 15 minutes before eating or even testing.

Be sure to get your copy of our canning booklet. It is yours for the asking in our office.

Poison and Dust Stop Army Worms

Approximately 20,000 acres of crops in Warren county were affected to some degree by an infestation of army worms the latter part of May. Farm Agent Ray C. Hopper reports that the orchard grass seed crop was cut between 40 and 60 per cent, many grain crops suffered some damage, and that small areas of corn, tobacco and other row crops have been partially or completely destroyed.

Farmers who used poison bran in front of the army worms, as suggested by the Kentucky College of Agriculture, and then broke a furrow through which a pulled log worked up a dust mulch, were successful in confining the worms to the infested area, Hopper said.

Folks like to do business here

Sam Abernethy's little old store does a heap more business than most folks suspect. All because Sam has an almost child-like faith in humanity.

Take last Thursday when he had to leave his store half full of customers to help Bert Childers repair his tractor.

"Sorry to leave you, boys," he said, "but Bert's knee-deep in haying. You know what you want and where to find it. Help yourself and pay at your convenience."

Later Sam told me he'd been doing business that way for over forty years.

"If folks had more faith and tolerance in the other fellow," he said, "they'd come out better in the end."

Reminded me of Bill Webster who's favorite drink is buttermilk but who claims a man has a right to eat and drink whatever he chooses—in moderation.

And from where I sit, that's how things ought to be.

They Live—If You Remember

Few things are more precious than the memory of loved ones who have gone.

Grace and dignity should be the keynote of the final rites. To neglect this means years of bitter memories and regrets.

At our home you are sure of completeness in every detail and at prices well within reasonable limits.

THE GARDEN

By JOHN S. GARDNER
Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

WILT AND BLIGHT

What follows may appear a repetition of what was said here several weeks ago, but judging from current correspondence, some home gardeners have wilt and blight so much confused that repeating seems necessary.

Wilt, the disease, causes plants to become flaccid and parched-looking at about the time they bloom (tomatoes, watermelons) or at heading-time (cabbage). For a short time they appear to make recovery overnight, but ultimately they die, with the leaves attached. The germs live over in the soil, and all that can be done is to use varieties that persist in "sick" soil, as Break Day, Marglobe, Rutgers tomato, Kleckley No. 14 and Resistant Mountain watermelons, and Wisconsin All Seasons and Wisconsin cabbage.

Another "wilt" comes from extensive infestation of insects, particularly the sucking kind. These are for contact poison, but early infested may be any vegetable in the garden; each has its own plantouse apparently. A similar wilt troubles cucumbers and the melons, the result of injury to the roots, by the larvae of the striped beetle. There is an effective regime for control of this pest.

Still another wilt comes from cultivating too deep or too close. Obviously, shallower cultivation prevents this "wilt."

Blight is a disease of the foliage of all vegetables (except cabbage and onions). It starts with scattered spotting, but soon the entire leaves are covered and turn brown and drop off.

The "germ" is air-borne and the control is to cover the leaves with an armor that prevents its getting a foothold. Copper (as in bluestone, an ingredient of bordeaux mixture), or as in copper oxide, makes an effective armor. As new leaves unfold, they need covering, and this explains why a "program" is always recommended, generally, four sprayings at two-week intervals.

Bordeaux mixture may be had of druggists or seedsmen, ready-mixed, needing only to be stirred in water at the rate given in directions printed on the container. Or, it may be made of the original ingredients, bluestone, lime and water, after the "recipe" to be obtained of any county agent, or direct from the College of Agriculture, Lexington.

Copper oxide, a relatively new material ("Copper Oxide-yellow") needs no recipe, but merely dissolve it in water, a teaspoon to a gallon. As no lime is used with it, "lime injury" (on tomatoes and the melon crops) does not occur.

Copper oxide-yellow is a war material, used in painting ship hulls to protect them against barnacles and marine worms, and this year it appeared as if civilians would get none. However, in the past few weeks, some has been released for garden spraying, and jobbers have it and merchants can get it.

"Those Krauts really were armed, too, with their machine pistols and other automatic weapons. All we could do was lay there and wonder what was coming next." The Germans finally left but still the gunners had more coming. American artillery fire and the enemy's counter battery plopped shells with earth-shaking crashes all around the house and oven.

Early the next morning, American troops surged back to take the house and were all set to blast it to dust.

Commendable safety practices included good ventilation and full precaution against suddenly encountering explosive gas, use of permissible explosives, employment of a safety director, and plans to adopt dust-control measures when needed. Recommendations for this new operation called for adequate timbering, safety equipment for locomotives and trips, use of permissible multiple-shot batteries when firing several holes simultaneously, better installation of some electrical facilities, and establishment of an organized safety program.

The other five mines inspected are in Harlan and Letcher counties.

"OH, GOD, DON'T LET OUR BOYS KNOW"

A few weeks ago a soldier returned to his Memphis home from Guadalcanal. His parents met him at the station at 10:15 Sunday morning. Immediately after the exchange of sacred greetings the mother said, "Son, let's hurry home. I cooked for you the best chicken dinner you ever tasted." "But mother," he said, "this is Sunday and it is almost time for church." "Why, yes," replied the mother, "but I did not think that you would want to go to church today. You have just returned from the battle front, you are tired, you will need a bath and rest, and I thought you would like to call in some of your friends for a visit and to share the Sunday dinner. "Mother," said the boy with deep feeling, "I had rather go to church today, than any place in the world." To church they went. The boy was moved deeply; mostly because of what he did not find at the church. After the benediction he went quickly to the pastor. His first words were, "Pastor, what is wrong? They have been telling us in Guadalcanal that all of the churches at home are filled with praying people, agonizing for the boys on the battle fronts, and praying for a spiritual victory.

The church is not full, and I have not heard any agonizing prayers for the dying and suffering soldier boys." As the pastor turned away, the soldier was heard to say with deep feeling, "Oh, God, don't let the boys at Guadalcanal find out about it."—Baptist Standard. (This clipping was sent home by Henry Layne and others on Guadalcanal.)

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"I can't think of anything else you'll need for your Victory garden, Judge... you've got pretty nearly everything." "I think so, too, John. Ever get your asparagus patch going?" "I gave that up last year, Judge. Tried it six years in a row with no luck. Just haven't got the right soil, I guess?" "Well, I think you're wise, John... no use keeping on trying things you know won't work. Just like prohibition. State-wide prohibition has been tried in this country seventy-two times in the last ninety years. It has been adopted forty-seven times in the past thirty-three years and discarded everywhere except in three states. Same thing was tried in eight provinces in Canada and in Norway, Sweden, Finland and Russia but it was an admitted failure and universally abandoned. "The reason is prohibition does not prohibit. All you get is bootleg liquor instead of legal liquor, plus no end of crime and corruption."
