AND ON THE OTHER SIDE

LAST Thursday, as American soldiers crossed the last river barrier before Berlin, Franklin D. Roosevelt slipped silently out and across his Last River.

Since that time, the great of the world, its newspapers, statesmen, rulers and military leaders, have joined in paying eloquent tribute to this great Voyager. So well have they spoken and written of the late President's major aims and achievements that comment by this newspaper, a week later, would be the retelling of an oft-told tale.

Permit us, then, to write of the comparatively little things in Franklin Roosevelt's life, the things which made him so beloved of all the little people of the earth.

To us, the outstanding achievement in the life of that other war-martyred President, the immortal Lincoln, was not his freeing of the slaves, noble as it was. What stands out in the Great Emancipator's career in our mind is the cumulative effect of all the little homely traits, all the tenderness and humanities that made him noble. His poignant letter to the widow Bixby, the solemn measure of his Gettysburg address, his mercy to soldiers condemned to die, his never-failing sense of humor, his unostentatiousness—these are among the things which add up to the Lincoln the people still love.

And so it is with Franklin Roosevelt. We do not have to go to Teheran or to Yalta to see the great-souled man that left the world bereft only a few days ago. A trip down to Warm Springs, Georgia, to the crippled children there whom he cheered with his gaiety, to whom he gave a new lease on life through his own courage and joyous heart in the face of the same disease which blighted their young lives—there is found one bright facet of the many-sided Roosevelt personality.

Listen to a youngster there choke out his grief as the President's body left Warm Springs; hear the old negro accordion-player squeeze out the loved hymns the President had often had him play.

You do not have to read the Atlantic Charter to find the true Franklin Roosevelt.

Men, far back up the hollows, men deep in the slums muttered. Hope was gone. A negro child cried for food. An immigrant woman complained that she could not buy medicine for her sick baby. Franklin Roosevelt heard them with ears attuned to the breathing of men and things down to earth.

"I can't get help here—I'll write the President!" men threatened. And they did write. And the President answered. And things were done for such men.

Always the friendly heart, the loving spirit in these two martyred Presidents who, some day, will share history's brightest pages together. A story in homely humor by the one to shake from his shoulders the cloak of melancholy, a flash of wit from the other to shed his mounting load of care—both contributing to the world's laughter.

So very human—that is why human-kind loved them.

It would be no small measure of consolation if those who cherish the memories of these two of this nation's greatest could believe that Abraham Lincoln was waiting with outstretched hand on the other side of that Last River—waiting for that kindred spirit, Franklin Roosevelt.

Osborne, Pals Break Out of Breakthrough Under Noses of Nazis

WITH THE 99TH INFANTRY DIVISION IN BELGIUM—His unwillingness to let Germans pry into any of his outfit's valuable documents led Master Sergeant Robert L. Carty, of Ansley, Nebraska, and his buddies, into a peck of trouble during the height of the Wehrmacht's breakthrough.

Carty, sergeant major of the 371st field artillery battalion, woke one morning to find the town full of Nazis. A quick search turned up four other men of his battery—Sgt. James L. Thompson, Washington, D.C., Sgt. James L. Butler, Providence, R. I., Pvt. Tom Osborne, Hite, Ky., and Pvt. John Molnick, McKees Rocks, Pa.—but the rest of the battery was nowhere to be found.

The town was cut off, so the five artillerymen hiked a mile to the battery motor pool, hoping to find a way out. All they could salvage was a 50-calibre machine gun and a bazooka. Packing these and plenty of ammunition, they went back into the town and into the line with the infantry.

It was at this point that Sgt. Carty remembered that maybe his outfit hadn't had time to destroy their classified documents—so back he and Sgt. Thompson went to their former area, which by this time was covered by a Jerry burp-gunner in a barn. For two hours the two men played hide-and-seek with the burp gun while they burned anything that might be valuable to the enemy.

When they finally returned to town, the infantry was pulling out, so the five artillerymen decided to take off on their own. After going back to the battery area, they slowly worked their way along the hedgerows toward a truck that looked in good condition, hoping it was out of Jerry's field of fire.

Keeping the truck between them and the barn, they crawled slowly over and under it, and still not a shot. Then Sgt. Thompson reached up, turned on the switch, and held the starter down with his hand. The motor ground and ground—but didn't start. Still Jerry didn't shoot. He tried again and again, until the men under the truck were in a cold sweat—then finally it caught!

They all vaulted into the vehicle, Sgt. Thompson at the wheel and Sgt. Carty at the machine gun and took off across country. Finally, after 200 yards, the burp gunner let go at them—but they were now on the road and off for other places.

THIS TAKES GOOD MANAGEMENT!

It's a neat feat to navigate a windy corner with a pile of packages and keep skirts down to a modest level. We're facing a somewhat similar problem during these stormy war years—carrying bigger power loads, higher costs, heavier taxes—and still keeping prices at low pre-war levels. We're rather proud that electricity hasn't been rationed and hasn't gone up, like so many household necessities. In fact, the average family actually gets about twice as much electricity for its money today as it did 15 years ago. This takes good management, too.

J. B. CLARKE Master Commissioner Floyd Circuit Court Cost of Advertising $11.25

On the farm of G. H. Willis, in Adair county, red clover failed almost completely on unlimed land, but a fine crop is growing where lime was applied.

TO THE CITIZENS OF FLOYD COUNTY:

Last week I announced my candidacy for County Judge of Floyd county. Since that time my many friends in Floyd county have impatiently insisted that I should make the race for Circuit Judge, notwithstanding the importance of the office of County Judge and the fact that it would mean more to me financially. Because of the fact that you have twice elected me County Judge, I feel it would be ungrateful if I did not accede to your wishes and make the race for Circuit Judge. Therefore, I withdraw my announcement for County Judge while you yet have ample time to select a safe man for that office, and hereby announce myself a candidate for Circuit Judge of the 31st Judicial District.

From first-hand information I am absolutely confident of victory and when elected I assure you and promise you the following:

1st. All juries will be rolled from the jury wheel in open court, and their names announced so all present can hear.

2nd. I shall welcome women jury service on equality with men.

3rd. I shall do my utmost to give justice in every case regardless of personalities, politics, or race, and regardless of whether you are rich or poor.

4th. I shall have no bosses or dictators, save my own conscience.

5th. Adequate mercy and consideration will be shown war veterans.

6th. To be sober and honest at all times.

I know you want a dignified, qualified court, with justice administered in all cases. This shall be my highest endeavor.

In conclusion let me remind you that it is from your insistence I make this race. It is your race. I call upon you to do your part. We shall win.

Sincerely yours, EDWARD P. HILL (Pol. adv.)

TO THE PEOPLE OF FLOYD COUNTY:

I have been requested many times before I quit the race for Circuit Judge, and since, to make the race for County Judge, and, in fact, I have been giving the matter serious consideration. I am well aware of the financial condition of Floyd county and its people. If I decide to make the race and should be nominated and elected, I know where many thousands of dollars can be saved and I would promise to see that the county's business is operated on a sound and economical basis. I would eliminate the payment of poll tax—which is only a small amount of tax—and make this item up from other services; and, with sound business men for magistrates, these matters of waste can be entirely eliminated. With the assistance of the County Attorney, this would be done. There is more that can be done for the taxpayers than they have ever thought. I would give the rural roads of the county my attention, and where they need it most, I will promise you a sound, safe, sober business administration. If I decide to make this race, my announcement will be made in the near future. I thank each and every one for the confidence and trust which they have shown me. I am, Respectfully yours, HENRY STEPHENS, JR. (Pd. adv.)

Floyd Captain Finds Death on Lonely Road

Death may become commonplace to the man in battle but it retains a macabre awesomeness that cannot be forgotten. Of how he found death on a lonely road during the drive on Germany, Capt. James Darwin Stephens, son of Circuit Judge and Mrs. Henry Stephens, weeks ago wrote his wife in Lexington. Excerpts from his letter follow:

"Over the green land the space was still and vacant. The air was chilly, moist. You've no doubt seen in the movies where the mist was leaving the ground in early morning when the wind would gently blow it away from frosted grass and brown clay. It was such a morning when I set out on a journey. "My comrade and I rode for a few minutes when it began to rain—rain with a cold, clammy dampness. We rode along until we arrived at a place where we'd been previously told was under observation by the enemy. It was at this point that we speeded up in order not to make a slow target. There were a couple of shots—not any hits, tho. But war has its limitations and so does a man's luck; perhaps the worst will come later. After crossing the area, we began down a small embankment, with trees on both sides, where the road narrowed. By this time it was raining much harder. A stream was working its way down the gully on the side of the road with a rapid, swirling motion. My eyes were caught in its channel as it rolled over the tiny precipices and GI food cans and paper boxes.

"Just beyond one of the GI kration food boxes there sat a soldier. . . on the opposite side of the stream. He was erect, with his elbows on his knees and his hands almost folded above his lap. His head was slightly bent downward, as if looking at his hands; his feet were in the water as the stream gently rippled over his shoes. His clothes were wet through. His helmet was off and the rain had pressed his hair to his scalp; his hair came to a peak and hung over his forehead, where the rain dripped off and hit the stream with a minute spatter. . . I stared at him so long I began to think I knew him or had seen him somewhere. We were only passing at the time, but it seemed like hours as we went by. His face possessed the color of green-yellow, almost like the color of turpentine or dark corn syrup. On his right forehead, at the junction of the temple and the temple bone, was a blood spatch, with the dark stains of oozed blood down the right side of his face. He was dead. Still erect. . . looking at his hands as if pondering some important problem.

"Yes, I'll bet that soldier really had his mind on his job, too. But many others may never realize that there was a man who sacrificed everything to see that others may have everything, including freedom. But sometimes I wonder what care others as long as they aren't doing a similar job. . ."

HE Produces "AIR SHOWS"
The man behind the scene at WHAS

JEAN CLOS... Production Manager of station WHAS, is a Harvard man who studied to become a stock broker, and now supplies a large market of listeners with shares in his carefully executed shows. Directing the workshop of the air, hundreds of undefined details require "Clos" attention. His day begins at nine, but it may, or may not, stop at nine that night, depending upon local issues involved.

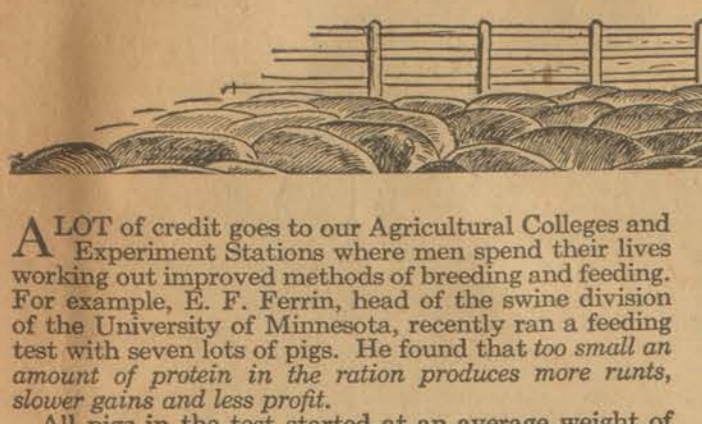

Born in New York City, Jean Henri Clos had a wonderful boyhood, traveling about the world with his father, who was correspondent for the London Times. He learned to speak Spanish, in Cuba, before he undertook English... and has been equally at home in France, England, or Mexico. He doesn't remember Vienna, where his father was stationed before the outbreak of World War I.

Angular as a weathervane, Clos has a well developed nose for changing trends in radio. He may have learned this during his eight years on the New York Stock Exchange... or the New York Daily News, which he left in 1940 to enter the field of radio, as an announcer. Jean subsequently became, in rapid succession, control operator, newscaster, Special Events Director, Publicity and Program Director. Since joining WHAS in 1943, he has done outstanding work handling every type of show, from religious broadcasts to sports programs, including many from remote points.

No Runts among these grunts

A LOT of credit goes to our Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations where men spend their lives working out improved methods of breeding and feeding. For example, E. F. Ferrin, head of the swine division of the University of Minnesota, recently ran a feeding test with seven lots of pigs. He found that too small an amount of protein in the ration produces more runts, slower gains and less profit.

All pigs in the test started at an average weight of 50 pounds and were self-fed without pasture for 14 weeks. All seven lots received the same kind of protein supplement which was tankage and soybean meal in equal parts with 10% alfalfa meal to supply adequate amounts of B vitamins. Some lots got a high-protein ration (18% of the total feed); others were cut down to 15% and 12% protein. As pigs get heavier, they need less protein, so in some lots the amount of protein was reduced as they gained in weight. The best results came from an 18% protein ration until the pigs reached 100 pounds, and 15% protein after that weight. The hogs on low-protein rations made smaller gains and were more uneven in individual weights when the test ended. By just such careful experiments, the "know-how" of hog raising has reached its present efficiency.

CATFISH CAN'T RAISE CORN

Nature has equipped catfish with feelers so they can find their way about in muddy, silt-laden rivers. Most of that mud and silt is rich topsoil from once fertile farmlands; the type of soil that should still be producing 50 to 100 bushels of corn.

Catfish can't use that fertile mud to raise corn, and that's too bad. Because right now, America needs all the corn it can produce. There's no need to let catfish have any part of your farm. Your topsoil can be saved. Soil conservation practices hold the raindrops where they fall, control water erosion, stop gullying, stabilize the soil. The Agricultural Extension Service of your State University will be glad to help you work out a special program to fit your farm.

Through soil conservation practices fertility is maintained, crops make better yields, carrying capacity of pastures is increased, more and cheaper feeds are provided for livestock. All this means more money in the farmer's pocket. Swift & Company believes that whatever helps livestock helps all of us—producer, meat packer and consumer. To you as a producer, we earnestly suggest that an investigation of soil conservation land management may be worth your while.

F. M. Simpson, Agricultural Research Dept.

There's More Money in Eggs
if you: 1) collect them often, 2) cool them promptly, 3) keep them clean. All this improves their grade and therefore means a better price to you.

SULPHUR FOR LAMB COCCIDIOSIS

Coccidiosis in lambs may be successfully prevented by the addition of ground, crude sulphur to their feed in proportions ranging from 1/4% to 1 1/2% of the ration, claims the Idaho Wool Growers Bulletin. Effectiveness of this sulphur treatment has been demonstrated by the U.S.D.A. working in cooperation with large lamb feeders, the report states.

LOST! A MILLION EXTRA ANNUAL MEAT RATIONS

Approximately 200 million pounds of meat a year are being wasted as a result of bruises, crippling and death losses of livestock in transit to market, according to H. R. Smith of the National Livestock Loss Prevention Board. This Board has found that all of us who have to do with the handling of livestock can help save much of this needed meat by following these simple rules:

1. Inspect chutes, trucks and cars for nails and rough corners.
2. Do not overload or jam animals. Partition mixed loads of livestock.
3. Never beat or prod with whips or clubs.
4. When trucking, start and stop with caution; watch for bumps, ruts and sharp curves.
5. Check your load frequently. Livestock shift in transit.

By observing these simple rules, we can all cooperate in cutting down this loss of a million extra meat rations a year; and we can help contribute to the nation the additional meat supplies which it needs so greatly right now!

1. Keep first aid articles—tape, gauze, iodine, etc.—handy in a glass jar in the kitchen, workshop or barn. Also keep nuts, bolts, and nails assorted as to size in glass jars.
2. Use a salt shaker in planting small seeds in vegetable or flower gardens. They are distributed more evenly.

U. S. IS TOP BEEF PRODUCER

Farmers and ranchers in the United States raise more cattle for beef than in any country on earth. We have a third more cattle than Russia, twice as many as Argentina or Brazil. There are actually more cattle in India, but there the cow is sacred and not used for food.

Keep Your Cream Checks Up!

If you've noticed that the cream content of your milk goes down at this time of year, it may indicate that your dairy cows are not getting all the feed they need for heavy production. Those first blades of grass aren't as good as they look, for they won't give the cows all the proteins they require. So don't turn your dairy cattle out to graze and expect them to take care of all their feed requirements with early pasture.

Supplement their spring ration of grass with grain and protein supplement mixture, and hay... grain and protein supplement for milk production, hay for necessary roughage. This tonic is sure to put new spring in the step of an undernourished cow.

The best indication of contentment in the dairy herd is the butterfat test of your milk!

FROST DAMAGE TO FRUIT CROPS THOUGHT HEAVY

By COUNTY AGENT S. L. ISBELL
A survey of our home orchard fruit prospects since the late freeze indicates a severe loss of pears, cherries and peaches. The apple crop will be very small compared to last year, but when we credit this reduction to the freeze we overlook the real cause which is that an unsprayed, over-pruned and poorly fertilized apple tree will yield a heavy crop of apples one year and a small crop the next.

An orchard which has to share the soil fertility with a cultivated garden or corn crop will, unless fertilized, be unable to produce a crop of fruit each year and also make new tree growth. An indication of over-pruning is the abundance of water sprouts. The tree also grows taller and eventually becomes top-heavy, thus is easily blown down by a storm and also makes spraying and harvesting fruit more difficult.

We spend real money for good trees and not enough for spraying equipment and material and fertilizer to enable these good trees to produce the crops which they are capable of producing. The tent caterpillar is becoming a serious orchard pest and unless controlled will destroy our apple trees since they completely defoliate the trees. If this occurs two or more years in succession, the trees are permanently injured. A spray of arsenate of lead or rotenone will easily destroy this insect.

TO THE VOTERS OF THE 31st JUDICIAL DISTRICT

When I recently announced my candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Circuit Judge I did so with full realization of the importance of the office and of the duties that will be mine if elected.

To be Judge of this district, and to do the people of the district full justice in both criminal and civil causes, is a task which requires experience as well as a will to do the job well. My experience in the circuit courts of this district as Commonwealth's Attorney is now extending into its sixth year. My desire to be a Judge worthy of the name and worthy of the good people of this district is deep and sincere.

That you may know what to expect of me as Judge, and so that you may have this to compare with my actual record as Judge, I make these promises without thought of hedging or changing my policy from day to day:

- 1. To act as the servant of all the people, with no ties of whatever sort to prevent the full administration of justice.
2. To conduct our circuit courts to the letter of the law—no outside tampering with the court or its jurors.
3. The drawing from the jury wheel in open court the names of men and women jurors placed therein by the Jury Commissioners.
4. No oppression of the many to the advantage of a chosen few.
5. To take into the courtroom a knowledge of human nature enabling me to sympathize with the unfortunate. The people have had an opportunity to observe my patience and fairness in all respects while serving as Commonwealth's Attorney.
6. To give the returned war veteran leniency insofar as the public interest will permit.
Any man now in the service of his country who has been charged with an offense short of murder will return with a clean slate. His case has already been dismissed by me as Commonwealth's Attorney. His debt to society, I maintain, has been paid to the fullest.

For the support the people of Floyd and Knott counties have given me in the past and for the hundreds of assurances of support in this campaign, I am most grateful. I want to assure the people that their trust will not be violated or forgotten. Sincerely, JOHN ALLEN (Pol. adv.)

Retired Coal Inspector, Long Wayland Resident, Is Heart Victim at 76

Funeral rites for James Franklin Honshell, for many years coal inspector for the Elk Horn Coal Corporation at Wayland, were conducted last week from the graveside in the Marion Martin cemetery overlooking Wayland, the Revs. E. V. Hopkins, M. C. Wright and R. P. Crumpler officiating.

Mr. Honshell died at the age of 77 of a heart attack April 10 at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Hubert Deskins, of West Van Lear.

Mr. Honshell had been a resident of Wayland for 25 years and news of his passing was received with deep regret by all who knew him. Ill health forced his retirement from the coal company's employ, a few years ago. "Uncle Jim," as he was affectionately known, was one of the county's best citizens.

His wife, Mrs. Nannie Howard Honshell, preceded him in death several years ago. He leaves one son and five daughters: Mrs. C. A. Bassham, Harlan, Ky.; Mrs. Roy Spears, Hager Hill; Bill Honshell, Wayland; Mrs. Richard Spears, Dayton, O.; Mrs. Herbert Deskins and Mrs. Cleburn Price, both of West Van Lear. One brother, S. T. Honshell, Jackson, Ky., and two sisters, Mrs. Elsie Gillum, Sewell, Ky., and Mrs. Sara Hays, Frenchburg, also survive, as do 14 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.
