told County Judge Alex L. Davidson they would introduce evidence at the preliminary hearing scheduled for Friday holding Isaacs innocent of the charge of bestial lust toward his daughter and showing that the girl shot him "because they wanted him out of the way." They claimed Isaacs was asleep when his daughter sent her sister to get milk from a neighbor and that the shot was fired when the sister was at the road, only a short distance from the house.

The prisoner told THE TIMES her father had twice previously forced her to submit to him and that he forced her to accompany him wherever he went. On the other hand, relatives of the victim said Isaacs kept his daughter with him to prevent her own wayward tendencies.

Mrs. Wright was shot as she stood, last Friday afternoon, on the porch of Mrs. Margie Goble. The Goble family and that of Mrs. Hager occupy a "double" house at Weeksbury. The Wright family lives in an adjoining house.

The shooting followed a quarrel between the two women after Mrs. Wright had reported to Mrs. Hager and Mrs. Goble that their children had whipped hers. Mrs. Goble said while she was chastising her son, inside her home, the shot was fired from inside the door of the Hager home.

The defendant said Mrs. Wright began cursing her and her children and threatening to kill her and that, with her hand under her arm as if concealing some weapon, Mrs. Wright was climbing across the porch railing toward her when she fired.

"She cursed me and threatened me," Mrs. Hager testified. "I backed into the house, begging to her. I saw it was shot or he killed."

Mrs. Hager said the other woman had previously threatened her and her children.

Mrs. Goble stated she did not see Mrs. Wright going over the railing toward the other woman, County Attorney W. W. Burchett for the Commonwealth contended Mrs. Wright was unarmed and at a distance from Mrs. Hager which did not make the shot necessary. Edward L. Allen, counsel for the defendant, objected to the amount of bond asked as excessive.

Funeral of Mrs. Wright was held Sunday from her home at Weeksbury, the Revs. Bill Johnson and William Blankenship officiating. She is survived by her husband, three sons, George, Jr., Wendell and Chester, and four daughters, Winifred, Rhoda, Juanita and Alice; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Turner E. Meade, Ewington, O.; three brothers, Astor, Kermit and Albert Meade, all of Ohio, and two sisters, Mrs. R. K. Johnson and Mrs. Sherman Burke, both of Hartley. Burial was made in the family cemetery.

Mr. Isaacs is survived by his father, Craynor Isaacs, his widow, Mrs. May Isaacs, 11 children, four brothers, Millard, of Hellier, Northern and Lenville Isaacs, both of Hall, Ky., Raymond, of Topmost, one half-brother, Mulky Isaacs, of Buckingham, and four sisters, Mrs. German Harris, Letcher county, Mrs. Dow Childers, Topmost, Mrs. Henry Jenkins, Garrett, and Mrs. G. D. Bentley, Jenkins. Funeral rites were conducted Tuesday by the Revs. H. D. Hall and George Cook and burial was made in the family cemetery.

"For" It—How Much?

IT IS doubtful if there is any man or woman in Floyd county who would condemn the idea of a county library. In fact, any of our upwards of sixty thousand persons will readily admit that a library is needed.

But this is as far as ninety-nine per cent of us go. Talk, as usual, is cheap.

It takes money to start and maintain a library. Those few who have been doing all the work without thought of financial reward are, unfortunately, unable to finance the whole project. Help must be forthcoming from sources yet untapped, otherwise another thing this county needs in the civilized order of things will die, as have too many before it.

THE TIMES does not doubt the intentions of the fiscal court, the county and city boards of education or the Prestonsburg city council. It believes all four are "for" a library. Only, not as interested as they might be.

All four have their financial limitations and already have their financial commitments. But none of the four should let it go into the record that they failed to support out of tax monies a thing which is one of the best long-range investments any governmental agency can make.

The Floyd County Library Association is now paying rent on a library building, drawing on meagre funds acquired during the last two or three years. The building is ready for books but there are no books. A librarian has been employed, but there is no money to pay the librarian's salary. Residents of Prestonsburg were asked to contribute books. Most folks here, like the fiscal court, the boards of education and the city council, are "for" the library, but only six or seven brought books.

There is one commendable feature about the whole situation—there are few who can point the accusing finger at another. THE TIMES can only suggest—let us more accurately say, plead—that the custodians of public funds and the fathers and mothers stop long enough to think how sorely their active interest in this movement is needed. If they will do that, the rest will be done. They will know we have delayed long enough and will wait no longer.

Let's Not Miss Again
TWO YEARS from now, an annual payroll of at least two millions of dollars will be paid at the coal operation on Spring Fork of Quicksand.

Floyd county has an opportunity to share that big payroll with Magoffin, if the state will build three miles of highway from David across the mountain to connect with Ky. Route 7. Or, if that aid is unavailable, construction by the county of one mile of road will do the trick.

If help by the state cannot be enlisted, it has been suggested, Floyd county could build the mile of road from David to the county line. From there to the mouth of Howard Branch and the intersection with Ky. 7, a distance of approximately two miles, the coal company would construct a road.

From Spring Fork the distance to Prestonsburg is approximately the same as it is to Salyersville. Trade from Spring Fork into the Middle Creek section and on to Prestonsburg and other parts of the county would naturally result from this road here urged. Likewise, the road would provide miners of this county a short route to the new operation.

While the highway constructed by the county and the coal company would not be as satisfactory as one built by the Highway Department to state standards, it would suffice until necessity of the route became so obvious and demanding that the state would assume responsibility for the road.

Short-cut routes from the Right Beaver Creek section to Middle Creek appear to be certainties. Continuation of the David road on to the new Spring Fork workings would, therefore, benefit more than one part of Floyd county.

Salyersville certainly will benefit greatly from this big industrial development, and it should. But Floyd county, too, can draw its part of that huge payroll by taking the initiative now.

Floyd county has already missed too many boats. Let's not miss this one!

SALES LOW, PRICES HIGH

'Peticoat Rebellion' Effect Is Doubtful, Butchers Declare

Butchers in some sections of the country admitted this week that buyers' strikes were crippling their business and a grocery chain in one city cut prices to keep its meat moving.

Some shopkeepers said their business was down, while others said it was too early to tell whether the rebellion of housewives, who vowed to stay away from meat this week, was taking effect.

In Los Angeles the Safeway chain reduced the price of steaks to 95 cents a pound "to keep them moving." Last week T-bone and porterhouse steak sold there for $1.17, while club steak brought $1.13. The chain cut round steak to 85 cents a pound, 8 cents under the price two weeks ago.

Wholesale meat prices held firm, however, and even advanced slightly on the New York market, Dunn & Bradstreet said food prices generally have remained unchanged for the past two weeks.

Some retailers and ranchers said the buyers' strike could not bring down prices, because the high prices were caused by short supplies.

A survey in cities where buyers' strikes have been organized brought mixed opinion on whether the "petticoat rebellion" was successful. But almost all butchers agreed that general consumer resistance to high prices—whether organized or not—was cutting sales to the bone.

Many shopkeepers said business couldn't get much worse because, in effect, "There has been a buyers' strike for the past three months anyhow."

NEW electric refrigerators, $229.50 and $269.50, for immediate delivery. At FIRESTONE STORE, Prestonsburg.

No War On, But Floyd Almost Subscribes Full Bond Quota

Despite the fact that this country is presumably at peace, and the old wartime interest in bond drives no longer exists, Floyd counties almost purchased their full quota of U. S. Savings bonds during the Security Loan campaign recently ended.

The county's quota of E, F and G bonds was set at $170,000. Its purchases totaled $132,109.

The state as a whole did even better than that, buying $29,504,000 worth of bonds, or 94 per cent of its $31,500,000 quota.

"We are extremely pleased with the results," said Norman L. Rocky, Kentucky director of the bond campaign. He added that the Savings Bond program is continuing to give citizens the opportunity to create through this, the soundest of all investments, a backlog against depression.

Elkhorn City Loses Wichita Trip To Tennessee State Champions

Elkhorn City, Kentucky state semi-pro baseball champions, lost 2-1, Tuesday night to the Tennessee champions in the finals of the regional tourney held at Elkhorn City to determine the representative of the two states to the American Baseball Congress tournament at Wichita, Kansas.

As a result of the Pike team's elimination from further ABC competition this year, the Big Sandy Baseball League is expected to resume play with a full schedule next Sunday.

Last Sunday, in the loop, Prestonsburg lost here to Pikeville VFW, 2 to 1, in a fast, well-played game.

Charlie Patton went all the way for the losers. Only other score available from Sunday games is that telling of Harold's 17 to 6 victory over Wayland.

In the regional tourney Elkhorn City won the first game, 5 to 3. Tennessee came back Monday night to win, 3 to 0. Then the finals Tuesday night. Stephens hurled both winning games for the Tennesseans.

Next Sunday's Big Sandy League schedule:

Wayland at Clear Creek, Weeksbury at Harold, Paintsville at Prestonsburg, Elkhorn City at Van Lear, Garrett at Pikeville.

SPORTS AFIELD

By TED KESTING

The person who fishes or hunts travels in a notable company of top-flight architects, miners, engineers, medical scientists, tailors, camouflage artists and military engineers, reports Bill Wolf, outdoor writer and naturalist.

Some of these creatures, who long ago anticipated many of our most modern skills, wear feathers, some are clad in fur, others possess scales or armor plate and some wear nothing much at all.

These outdoor technicians are all interesting to observe. There is no doubt that human beings learned from them and copied many of their mechanical and other devices.

For instance, watch that dragon fly closely. It is perfectly designed for its purpose in life. This one insect anticipated the airplane, helicopter, submarine and jet propulsion.

Sometimes, when hunting in October or November, look to the sky and you probably will see some of the earth's first balloonists and parachutists... common spiders, which often travel hundreds of miles before alighting.

Many of the military sciences actually owe their origin to imitation of nature. The latest model tanks were probably more efficiently "fire-streamed" because ordnance engineers studied the turtle. We are all acquainted with the skunk's military weapon, poison gas. Some octopuses discharge ink into the water to form a concealing smoke screen; and the bombardier beetle can fire four or five rounds of an acrid, reddish "smoke" at its pursuers.

Camouflage was highly developed in the last war, but we are fumbling amateurs in comparison with the masters we encounter whenever we go fishing or hunting. For all its gaudy coloring, a cock pheasant can manage to look like a rusty red rock on a bare field. Grouse and quail are invisible even when you know where they are squatting.

Next time look around you when outdoors. You will be surprised at how many ways wildlife has anticipated man. Fishes used these principles first—fins to act as rudders and stabilizers, a swim bladder to increase or decrease buoyancy, a teardrop shape to offer least resistance to water.

You'll find it difficult to understand how man has been so slow in adopting methods and principles that have been right in front of him ever since he came out of the trees.

Name Cycle Club 'Sandy Valley Ramblers'

The name, Sandy Valley Ramblers, was chosen last Sunday for the new motorcycle club here.

Members attended the meeting held at the Morell farm, approximately one mile off the highway at Auxier. New members received at the meeting were Don Conley, Dick Laferty and Vivian Siles.

A race committee was appointed consisting of J. P. Wells, chairman, Gomer Stiles and Eckle Meade. Vivian Siles was appointed secretary of the club, making the line-up of officers as follows: Lyle Netherly, president; Johnnie Hale, vice-president; Fern Hale, treasurer, Vivian Siles, secretary; W. G. Stiles, referee.

While the track is still under construction a number of persons stop each Sunday afternoon to see the boys ride and spill while trying it out. Not much activity is expected there next Sunday because of the races at Boldman, but the public is invited to ride out the Auxier road Sunday, Aug. 22, and watch the boys try out the track.

OF INTEREST TO VETERANS

Trailers and houseboats do not qualify as homes under loan guaranty provisions of the G.I. Bill, Veterans Administration branch office officials at Columbus, O., reiterated recently.

Replying to numerous inquiries, VA officials said trailers and houseboats, although frequently used as dwellings, are not "homes" within the meaning of the G.I. Bill and are ineligible for loan guaranty.

However, G.I. loans may be negotiated for trailers and houseboats if used for legitimate business purposes.

Four specific benefits become available upon the death of a veteran of any war, it was pointed out this week by Veterans Administration branch office officials in Columbus, O.

VA is authorized to pay up to $150 for funeral and burial expenses of a war veteran, provide an American flag for burial purposes, arrange for interment in a national cemetery and provide a grave marker.

Applications for any one of the four benefits may be procured from any VA office, from service organizations and from chapters of the American Red Cross. Benefits are available only when the veteran has been discharged under conditions other than dishonorable.

Appointment of Miss Olga C. Benderoff, of Cleveland, as acting chief in charge of the nursing division for the Veterans Administration in Ohio, Michigan and Kentucky was announced this week by Deputy Administrator Ralph H. Stone of the VA's tri-state branch office in Columbus, O.

A World War II veteran, Miss Benderoff joined VA four months ago as assistant nursing chief in the New York City branch office. Formerly, she was assistant director of nursing service at University Hospital, Cleveland.

Questions and answers
Q. If a G.I. loan, for any reason, is not completed after the guaranty or insurance has been entered upon the veteran's honorable discharge, or certificate of eligibility, what should be done?

A. The veteran should take his honorable discharge or certificate of eligibility to the regional office of VA where the necessary corrections will be made.

COMMON SCHOOL ACCOUNTING PUT UNDER STATE CONTROL

Six supervisory accounting districts for Kentucky's common school system were announced Wednesday by Boswell B. Hodgkin, Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Floyd county comprises the Fifth or eastern district, along with Madison, Clark, Montgomery, Powell, Estill, Lee, Breathitt, Knott, Pike, Martin, Johnson, Magoffin, Wolfe, Menifee, Bath, Rowan, Morgan, Elliott, Lawrence, Boyd, Carter and Greenup.

County Superintendent Palmer L. Hall said here today that he considers the accounting system "a good idea." "It not only will keep a closer check on school administration but it will make advice from supervisors more readily available. Sometimes Superintendents need advice in certain situations," he added.

Shelby Kash, Frenchburg, instructor and school administrator for 23 years, was named supervisor for this district.

Each district will have a bookkeeping supervisor who is to provide advice for school superintendents and boards of education and maintain an independent check on school-district finances.

Hodgkin said in the past the State Department of Education has audited school-district books. But a weakness in that procedure, he said, was that auditors were mainly concerned with simply seeing that figures on the books balanced.

The new supervisors, he explained, will have data on all the money sent by the state to the school districts, in addition to having access to local-revenue records.

The supervisors are to concentrate on general school-finance accounting, pupil-personnel accounting, and veterans financial accounting.

Finance books of the Fayette counties and Harlan county school districts will not be under the jurisdiction of the new supervisors because these districts have large trade and industrial programs in their curricula, Hodgkin said. These programs require special bookkeeping systems which will be audited by agents from the State Education Department.

Also excluded from the new setup are the independent districts of Covington, Newport, Ashland, Lexington, Owensboro, and Paducah. These are second-population class cities having district bookkeeping systems which also will be handled by special state agents.

Louisville, Somerset and Hazard are excluded, too, because of trade and industrial programs, but will get special attention from the state.

The supervisors have had an intense two-week training course in school accounting at Frankfort, Hodgkin said, and will return periodically for refresher lectures.

In a speech to school superintendents at Louisville July 1, Hodgkin forecast establishment of the accounting districts and said:

"It is not our intention to attempt to discover faults or to assume that fraud has been practiced, but, in isolated cases there has been improper use of funds, we hope to discover this fact."

"This program is new and shall continue to be one of mutual cooperation between the personnel of the State Department and local school-district officials, with the primary purpose of having better schools for all our citizens. May such assistance by the Department of Education ward off any unjustified criticism in the future of our financial operations."

More Roadside Parks Planned by Kentucky Highway Department

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 3.—Roadside planting and the establishment of additional roadside parks along Kentucky highways is being planned as a joint program for the Department of Highways and the Kentucky Garden Clubs, Highway Commissioner Garrett L. Withers said this week. The commissioner said he has been assured of garden club cooperation by Mrs. David B. Honaker, Lexington, and Mrs. Baird Price, Louisville, representing both the national and state organizations.

"Each club in Kentucky will be requested to name its own committee to work with department district engineers," Mr. Withers said. "Native planting will be used by the department in all future work. Just as rapidly as possible, roadside parks will be created for the convenience and pleasure of motorists. A recent check of our present roadside parks indicated a growing use of this facility."

"Roadside planting is a practical work of the department. Seeding and protecting native trees protects the roadside and prevents erosion. When drainage is hampered by erosion, the road surface is also affected. The process of roadside planting has been called roadside beautification, but actually it has the dual role of reducing highway maintenance costs."

"We will welcome the gracious help of local garden clubs. Where the practical service of planting the highways will also bring about more presentable and attractive roadside appearance, it will receive our full support."

Judge Hill Pledges Perkins His Support

The primary election is over and I am for the Democratic nominee for Congress. To those of you who expressed your preference for and confidence in me, I am grateful. To those of you who supported one of the other candidates, I would like to say I hold no ill will. (Vengeance is not mine.) It is true some of the over-enthusiastic supporters of some of my opponents undertook to discredit me with some of the voters by distributing false information, but they say anything is fair in love, war and politics; so it is all water over the dam so far as I am concerned. I am satisfied with the vote I received, considering the amount of money spent and pressure applied by Clements and his state machine. I am somewhat disappointed at my vote in Floyd county, but, considering the fact that Senator Hays worked hard about four months, and the fact that I did not campaign but part of three days in Floyd county, I can readily understand the result.

I repeat, I congratulate Carl D. Perkins for a hard-fought campaign, and pledge him my support this fall.

Weekly Newspaper 'Took' Dailies on Pound Robbery

The robbery, a few months ago, of the bank at Pound, Va., with a Floyd countian allegedly taking part in the hold-up, gave the weekly newspaper at Norton a clean scoop on the dailies on one of the big stories in Virginia for 1948.

The story of the scoop was recently told by the scooped dailies:

The subscribers of the Norton Coalfield Progress, a modest but growing "country weekly," were reading about the bank robbery before many of the large newspapers and radio stations in the area knew it had happened.

It wasn't one of those stories that happens right in front of the newspaper, either. The bank was robbed at Pound, Va., 20 miles to the north over rugged mountain roads.

It was shortly after noon in Norton that The Coalfield Progress was to go to press. The paper had been made up with accounts of meetings and society items laboriously garnered from the clubs and churches and P.-T.A. through the week.

Carroll Tate, a lanky, dark-haired young man who calls himself "general flunky" for the paper and who is its reporter and business manager, was relaxing in the office.

A pressman, just returning from lunch, walked in and remarked casually:

"We'd better throw out the front page."

Then he added, still casually, "The bank's been robbed at Pound."

Tate jumped to life. He telephoned Pound and confirmed what the pressman had heard a state trooper remark to passersby on the corner.

Tate drove the 20 miles to Pound in a hurry over the winding roads. He interviewed Edd Barr, the bank cashier, who had been ordered into a vault by two armed men, who neglected to close the vault door tightly enough to make it click.

Barr said he got out of the vault and shouted an alarm. He fired a pistol at one of the bandits and wounded him on the bank steps. The two leaped into a car driven by another man and drove off.

As Tate finished talking to Barr, state troopers brought in the three men for Barr to identify them. The money was recovered.

Tate sped back to Norton, wrote his story and soon the presses of the weekly rolled with a red-hot story and a banner on the front page.

Mine Inspectors Ask Improvements

Although numerous safety improvements have recently been effected at the Stephens Elkhorn Fuel Corporation's Stephens Elkhorn mine, an official coal mine re-inspection report released by the Bureau of Mines recommends the adoption of further timbering, haulage and ventilation safeguards. The mine is at Manton. It employed 150 men and averaged 1,000 tons of coal daily when re-examined in June by Inspector Leslie Johnson.

Among the principal timbering and haulage safeguards proposed in the report were wider use of safety posts in the face regions, setting of permanent timbers closer to working faces and prying down or effective support of loose roof, removal of remaining obstructions from haulage-ways and shelter holes, driving of shelter holes at specified switch throws, use of permissible trip lights, and discontinuance of certain risky practices.

Further conformance with company timbering rules, more extensive control of coal dust, and several haulage and electrical safeguards are recommended for the Alley mine, at Water Gap. Some improvements were credited to the mine, which had 81 employees when it was re-examined in June.

Inspector Russell Shaw said safety posts should be set at working faces and permanent timbers advanced promptly, permissible explosives should be fired with electric detonators, boreholes should be stemmed with incombustible material, and all shots or series of shots should be fired immediately after charging when blasting on shift.

Safer blasting practices and a rock-dusting program are recommended for the Conn Coal Company's No. 3 mine at Harold. This mine employed 19 men and produced 150 tons of coal daily when W. R. Stewart re-inspected it in June.

Coal was blasted off the solid, off shift, with black blasting powder, fired with fuses. Inspector Stewart advocated firing the shots singly with electric squibs and electric blasting units, using only wooden tamping bars, using closed individual non-conductive containers for carrying black powder, providing a suitable surface explosives-storage magazine, and keeping explosives underground in individual containers a safe distance from rails or power lines, and out of line of blast. The inspector also pointed out to the management the disadvantages of using black blasting powder, with the hope that eventually permissible explosives or permissible blasting devices would be used exclusively.

KENTUCKY ON THE MARCH

By EWING GALLOWAY

Recently I gave you part of the story about what the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Madison County Health Society is doing for backward schools in that community. There wasn't space enough for all of it, so I'm giving you the second half now, or, to be more exact, relating to you the rest of the letter from Maurice D. Bement, executive director of the committee, who, with James W. Armstrong, the committee's director of community service, visited Richmond and much of the county earlier in the year.

The ladies' organization, headed by Mrs. Shelby Carr, has full cooperation of the service clubs of the county, many churches, women's clubs, the veterans' organization, the school system, the medical society, and the county officials. Says Mr. Bement:

"We visited a one-room school that is now serving hot lunches to the students. The Lions Club donated a cook stove and the children and teacher bring in vegetables which are prepared at the school and served in the form of a hot lunch daily. No actual cash is required by the students for this hot lunch.

"Each rural school has a leader from this group assigned to the school, who, with her committee, is responsible for the total health program for that particular school. Some of the little one-room school-houses have been painted on the inside by the children. Home-made dressing tables are made by students, and a number of other small items have been added as school equipment. In most cases this has been done without any expense to the students or to the County Board of Education.

"This voluntary group of women have also established a clothing center at the consolidated county high school, which is outside Richmond. Individuals and organizations all over the county donate clothing to this center. Teachers from the rural schools come into the center and check out clothing which is needed by the students. This clothing is distributed through the teachers of the rural schools. If a child is able to buy the clothing, it is sold at a very nominal cost—for example, a dress for 50c; a pair of shoes for 25c, etc. However, if the children do not have and cannot get the 50c or 25c, the clothing is furnished through the voluntary organization.

"On the night we were in Richmond, the senior class of Central high school was giving a play, the proceeds of which were to go to this voluntary organization to help finance the program."
