

Wayland Wins Pike Invitational

Waps 3rd Straight Tourney With Win over Ashland Five

From the hornets' nest of red-hot basketball that is Big Sandy valley, the Wasps of Wayland high school week emerged as king-bees as they swept through Pikeville invitational tournament and defeated the Tom Cats for their third tourney championship and a season's record which still stands unblemished.

"Copper" John Campbell's Wasps defeated by a 17-2 margin the Tom Cats in the title contest Friday night, 10 hours after Ashland had eliminated Pikeville, the team which had held the No. 1 rating in the state rankings. In the semi-finals, Wayland licked Inez, 51-38 before that they trounced Frankfort, 60 to 48.

Pikeville had tough going in evening, for almost three full hours trailing "Scale" Martin's Prestonsburg Black Cats in their game of the meet. The Panthers were eliminated in a grueling Friday afternoon by Ashland, 46 to 46. Prestonsburg had a lead at halftime.

Wayland in each of its three games at Pikeville was far short of national during the first half, in each game caught fire to win in the third quarter, and thus away almost as they please in the championship tilt, every game in the Wasp line-up scored big figures, and this ability to score at each starter to become a scoring threat has featured in the Beaver Creek team's attack.

Senior Hunley was Prestonsburg's strongest man in the Cats' defeat of Pikeville as he scored 24 points before weakening in the final frame. He was topped in scoring only by Preston, star Pikeville guard, and a former Prestonsburg boy, who made 25 points.

Wayland previously has won the Floyd county Pre-Tournament meet at the Mountain Conference. Incidentally, the team has had more trouble with McDowell than any aggregation it has faced this season.

Named to the all-tournament team at conclusion of the Pikeville invitational were Griffith, Hopper and Fraley all of Wayland, Hunley of Prestonsburg, Preston of Pikeville, Taylor of Frankfort, Hall of Virgie, Williams of Inez, Eggleston and Rice of Ashland.

Gene Ronzani, coach of the Packers, noted for his serious, hard work that produces results, said, "Today, millions of American workers have the good habit of thrift by investing part of their savings regularly where they work through the Payroll Savings Plan. The Green Bay Packers in setting the pace for industry in the Treasury's fall campaign urges every American wage earner to save NOW for his personal future by the systematic purchase of bonds and help provide the dollars to pay for material and equipment needed for defense and help prevent inflation on the home front."

Duff of Garrett Stars At Pikeville; One of 3 Of Five's High Scores

James Duff, of Garrett, regular starting forward for the Pikeville Junior College Bears, has one of the best three individual scoring records on the squad, Bears' Coach William B. Houchin said this week. Duff's standing is topped only by those of Carson Coleman, Pikeville center, and Arnold Harmon, guard from Inez, who rank among the top three scorers in the Kentucky Junior College Athletic Conference cage race.

Duff, Garrett high school's basketball captain last year, has an average of 12.5 points per game for the four conference games the Bears have played this season. His standing for all of Pikeville's nine games to date, conference and non-conference, is 12.1.

The Bears, at present leading in the junior college conference play with four wins and no defeats, will celebrate the new year away from home. They will meet the Red Men of Rio Grande College at Rio Grande, Ohio, Jan. 6 in their first game of 1945.

The Bears' next game at Pikeville Jan. 9 will also be their next tilt with a conference opponent, the Lee's Junior College Generals, whom they topped, 66-61, at Jackson on Nov. 15.

Floyd Athletes' Marks In Marine Corps Tests At Pikeville, Perfect

Two Floyd county athletes last week attained in examinations for the Marine Corps perfect records at the Pikeville recruiting office where that mark had been attained before only on one occasion.

The Marine recruits are Eugene Mullins and Richard Rural Hicks, both of Garrett and each a former basketball star in school there. Each is 22 years old. Mullins pitched last season for the Wheelwright team of the Elkhorn Baseball League, and had a 14-2 record. Hicks played second base for Wayland in the same league.

Still Have Scoring Touch, These Ramblers Who Score 199 Points in Two Games

Prestonsburg's 1950 state VFW champions, the Ramblers, are back in action and in two December games had a scoring average if 199 1/2 points while remaining undefeated.

One of these wins was over Auxier and in this contest the Ramblers amassed 101 points. A week ago, they defeated West Liberty, 98 to 67. The team is booking games as it finds opposition available.

The Rambler line-up against West Liberty was composed of Bill Damron, Barkley Sturgill, Tommy Blackburn, Set Branham, Johnny and Frank Heinze, Henry Lewis Mayo and Donald Willis. Damron scored 21 points and Blackburn and F. Heinze each dumped in 20.

Cavendish Says Bridge Blocking Mobile Postal Route To Be Repaired

Hope for establishing a mobile postoffice route between Lexington, Ky., and Huntington, W. Va., to serve the section has been revived by a statement of Ray Cavendish, West Virginia highway commissioner, to the effect that materials are expected to be available soon for repair of the highway bridge at Wayne, W. Va., which will place the span in condition to accommodate the heavy government vehicles which would be used on the route.

Mr. Cavendish wrote Congressman Carl D. Perkins promising repairs will be carried to completion as rapidly as possible. This bridge, the Congressman was advised by the Postoffice Department, is the only barrier to establishment of the improved mail service.

The route would extend from Lexington to Hazard, Hindman, thence to Lacey and down Beaver Creek to Allen, and from there include Big Sandy river towns to Louisa where the route would cross into West Virginia.

dence submitted to this office (of the parole board) since his trial indicated that he may have been provoked into committing this crime by previous action of the victim and may, therefore, have been guilty of a lesser crime than murder."

Hancock said the evidence thus noted was in two statements, one by a witness who did not testify at the trial, and one by a witness who did. The statements show Risner acted under extreme limits of provocation, Hancock added.

The parole officer who made the local inquiry reported that of 12 Mazonin county officials interviewed, 11 favored commutation and one had no comment. Last August 120 Mazonin citizens signed a petition in Risner's behalf.

Also freed was Butler Coleman, Pike county, admitted March 2, 1948, to begin a manslaughter term of 21 years. Coleman was convicted after his fatal stabbing of Lawson Hager, of Blackberry Creek, in August, 1946.

The Court of Appeals reversed his first sentence of 21 years because the jury was not allowed to hear that one of the prosecuting attorneys had a civil action for $25,000 against Coleman in connection with the death of Hager. But the high court upheld Coleman's second conviction, also for 21 years.

Coleman was drunk when he stabbed Hager, despite efforts of Coleman's two sons, then 16 and 18, and a neighbor, Bob Dotson, to restrain him. The first opinion of the Court of Appeals states: "The evidence shows overwhelmingly that Coleman's action brought about the difficulty."

modern industries, in times like these.

"Nothing is more clear than the military need for the dispersion of industries vital to the national security. Of special importance is the need of inland location. The chances for the interception of long-range bombers before they reach inland targets is far greater than their successful detection and interception before reaching coastal locations.

"In view of the unlimited amount of the high quality coal and other natural resources that this valley possesses (described both in the House and Senate hearings, 81st Congress) I am firmly convinced that not only the national interest but the interest of all Democracy-loving people throughout the world can be served by the development of projects of this type."

Pulling no punches and asking no qualifications of his statements, Dr. Thompson categorically hopped on all of the reasons given by the government engineers for opposing canalization of the Big Sandy.

On a statement-and-reply basis these are some of the things Dr. Thompson found wrong with the government report.

Army engineers said there was sufficient high-quality coal "within practical access of the waterway" to supply at least 7,500,000 tons of annual traffic . . . which exceeds the waterbound tonnage for which markets were found.

Reply: In 1946 the Army Engineers estimated the Midwest coal demands at 46,000,000 tons annually. The Big Sandy field, including the Tug and Levisa Forks, produced approximately 25,000,000 tons in 1950. If there hadn't been a market for it this coal never could have been mined.

The engineers said the cost of mining coal in the Big Sandy area has risen more than 200 percent as compared to 130 in the competing fields.

Reply: There is no basis for such a statement. If there was that much differential we wouldn't be loading any coal at all.

The engineers said the former brisk demand for the product of the Big Sandy mines in the markets of the Middle West has been progressively deflected to natural gas and fuel oil.

Reply: Improvements have been made on all coal fields by oil and gas but other fields have suffered more than the Big Sandy. The fields producing domestic coals have been hurt worst. Big Sandy coal primarily is by-products and coking coal rather than domestic coal, which is the type used mostly in heating homes. A large part of the Big Sandy coal is used for metallurgical and steel purposes and not unduly affected by oil and gas.

The engineers said those who continue to use coal are being supplied by near-by fields which is made acceptable by improved cleaning and grading practices.

Reply: Improved cleaning and grading practices also have been placed in operation in the Big Sandy fields, where are located some of the most highly mechanized mines and most modern cleaning and grading plants to be found anywhere. The Big Sandy field produces the best high-grade metallurgical coal but the other fields get the business because they are able to deliver cheaper to the consumer due principally to low-cost water transportation.

The engineers said the industry has established rail-connected transfer tipples on the banks of the Ohio.

Reply: This is true but only a few of those are available to Big Sandy operators. Most of these river-bank tipples take care of West Virginia coal, which already has a favorable freight-rate differential and also low-rate water transportation to the Chicago, Mid-west and Pittsburgh markets.

Coal production in the Big Sandy Valley, Dr. Thompson said, has decreased from its peak years because of water-transportation advantages to other coal-producing areas such as those of West Virginia, Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and Western Kentucky.

Eastern Kentucky, he added, will continue to decline without lowest transportation such as that enjoyed by competing fields.

The cost of the Big Sandy project in 1945 was estimated by the Army engineers, according to Dr. Thompson, at $82,300,000, which included an item of 20 percent to cover possible increase of construction cost. Taking out this 20 percent the cost then would have been $66,000,000. The 1945 construction index, used by all construction people, Dr. Thompson said, for construction costs was 307. The construction index for November, 1950 was 527.

Figuring Big Sandy on this basis, the present-day cost of canalizing the Big Sandy would be $111,307,870.

The President, he said, has approved the construction plans of the Greenup (Kentucky) high lift dam on the Ohio which backs water 13 miles up the Big Sandy which would effect a saving of approximately $15,000,000 on the canalization project, including the Tug and Levisa Forks.

The United States Corps of Engineers in Washington, he said this past month allocated $2,738,700 planning fund for the 1951 fiscal the Tennessee River project. The Arkansas River project is estimated $1 to $1.08 and the Tennessee $1 to $1.01. At the same time continued, they left out the Big Sandy with a present-day rating of $1.94. "This," he continued, "does not make sense to the people of the Big Sandy and I'm sure they will not take it laying down."

"Now they say the Big Sandy is rated at the unfavorable figure of $3 to $1 (63 cents return on $1 invested). They got this figure by pulling $50,000,000 out of the air and adding it to the actual cost of construction, as evidenced by the Engineers construction index.

"People of Eastern Kentucky cannot understand why the government would choke on appropriating $161,000,000 for canalizing the Big Sandy for the welfare of 500,000 people and at the same time sanction the outlay of $70,000,000 for the creation of a steam-electric plant, high-lift dam and bomb plant in Western Kentucky. Both they believe, are in the national interest at this critical time.

"General Lewis A. Pick, chief of the United States Engineers, says that waterways provide the only form of transportation of heavy freight which cannot be seriously disrupted by enemy bombs.

"How can you justify Little Sandy, Salt River, Tygart's Creek and Rolling Fork in Kentucky and leave Big Sandy out?"

Opportunity Offered Youth by Coal To Be Shown in Course Here

J. E. Benson, chief of the U. S. Bureau of Minerals, and Russell Shaw, Prestonsburg, inspector, U. S. Bureau of Mines, will conduct a half-day coal orientation course for Prestonsburg high school boys at the grade school auditorium, next Monday afternoon, City Superintendent Chalmer H. Prazier announced this week.

Lectures, demonstrations, color slides and moving pictures will be the media used to give the youths the story of coal and the opportunities the industry offers young men. The session will begin at 1:30 p.m. and in addition to the students will draw the attention of Floyd leaders in coal production and mine management.

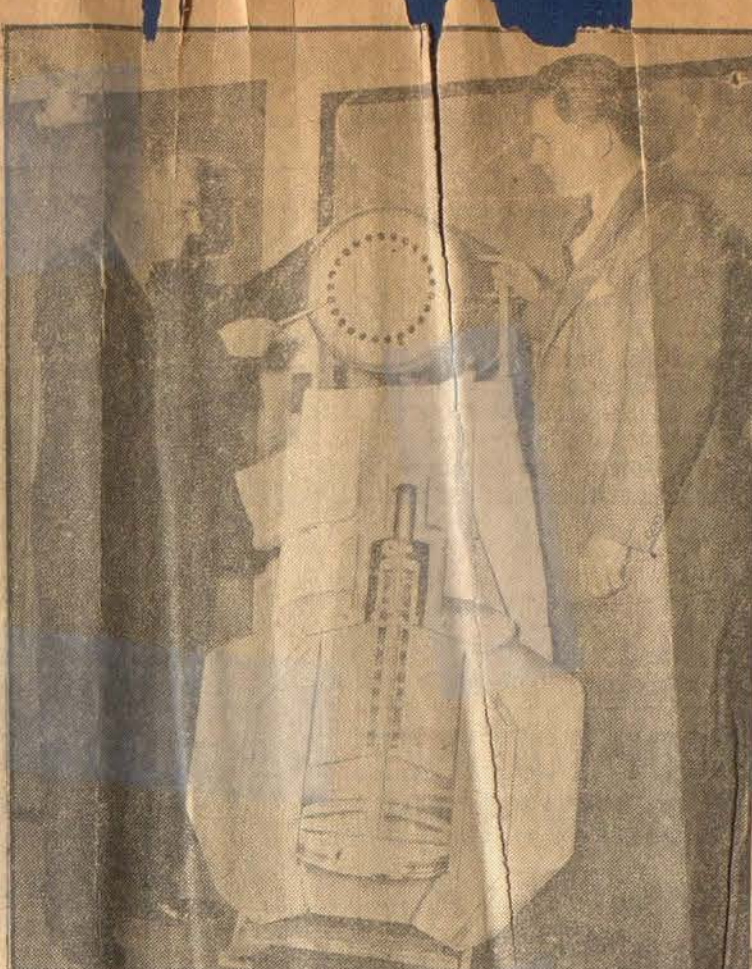

P'Burg Man's Son Dies In Fall Into Coke Oven At Hellier, Dec. 23rd

Chester Akers, general foreman of coke ovens of the Hellier Coal & Coke Company, and a son of Henry Akers, of Prestonsburg, died almost instantly, the morning of Dec. 23, in the fiery furnace of one of the ovens he supervised.

At mid-morning, only a few hours before the Christmas holiday was to begin at noon, he was walking across the fire-brick crown of an oven when it suddenly crumbled beneath his weight. His body plummeted into heat of more than 2,500 degrees.

He is survived by his father, his widow and one son. Burial of the remains was made in Johnson Memorial cemetery at Pikeville.

Retail deliveries of bituminous coal were higher in 1949 than in the preceding year.

NEW CANCER KILLER—Dr. Madison B. Brown, at left, Executive Vice President and Medical Director of Roosevelt Hospital, examines a radio-beam therapy machine being developed for the treatment of cancer. Designed by Dr. Giacchino Falla, right, the apparatus will contain 50 grams of radium—the largest unit of radium in the world for medical use—in the heavily-armed k-shaped drum below. The machine is expected to be ready for use on Roosevelt Hospital patients this summer.

More for Housewife To Do Since Jan. 1st

Kentucky housewives Monday began doing something they never did before.

They became responsible for taxes on their servants' pay under the federal Social Security program. They also must withhold from the pay of the servants the share that is to be paid by the servant. The housewife and the servant each pays 15 per cent of the salary to build up an old-age fund for the servant.

Not all housewives are affected. In fact, most won't be. The test will be whether the servant works as many as 24 days in January, February and March, and earns as much as $50. If she does, a check for the tax is due from the employer, and the servant and must be sent to the collector of internal revenue sometime in April.

The field offices of the Internal Revenue Department, the Social Security offices and most postoffices have little booklets that try to explain it all. If you must pay the tax, there is a card to use in asking for the forms.

Farm help, in certain cases, also comes under the law now in effect, as do employes of certain non-profit institutions which have asked to be included in Social Security provisions. Some employes of local governments also will begin to pay the taxes and become eligible for the benefits.

Taxes must be paid within the month following the end of the quarter. Thus the deadline for payment of the first taxes will be April 30. Internal Revenue Bureau agents said they believed the desire of servants to share the benefits would be of big help in enforcing the law.

Nation's Airforce pilots have selected little Bobby Alford, son of L. W. Elard of Mineola, N. Y., now overseas, as this year's No. 1 fledgling. Young Bobby shows that he approves honor by putting half of his weekly allowance aside for U. S. Savings Bonds. Bobby now has $300 in his accumulated through his own thrift. Bobby's father allots part of his army pay for Bonds which he is to use to help Bobby in paying for the fledgling's future education.

LET'S ALL BUY BONDS

WHEN FIGURES ARE RIDICULOUS

THOSE self-appointed oracles of high finance and aircraft, the radio commentators who second-guess everything, have during months been assailing the worth of U.S. Savings Bonds.

In this group was the well-known H. V. Kaltenborn whose respected opinion does U. S. Bonds a country a particular injury by such inveigh-Kaltenborn and these have compared U. S. Bonds with common stock. The investor might buy, but he would be better off with a common stock.

Mr. Fred F. Kopke, owner-manager of the Hutchinson, Ky., brokerage firm that bears his name, recently wrote his views on this point, and it so effectively answers Mr. Kaltenborn and his radio clique that we re-print it here, in part:

"What he did not tell his radio listeners was that General Motors common stock is not now, and never has been, a riskless investment. He did not tell his listeners that General Motors stock, the old shares before the recent split, sold at 91 in 1929, at 8 in 1932, at 56 in 1939, at 30 in 1943, at 56 in 1944, at 80 in 1946 and again at 51 in 1948. He did not tell his listeners that General Motors dividends have moved up and down with the business tides through the years as has the price of stock.

"I have a high regard for big business and for General Motors in particular, but I do not like to hear a radio commentator present only one side of the picture to the disadvantage of United States Bonds.

"This commentator did not tell his listeners that while common stock moves up and down, United States Bonds can always be cashed at par."

That's the financial answer to those who carp about profits when the country is struggling in the throes of inflation and facing worse—the spectre of a war for survival.

But, if this country of ours needs the investment of its people's dollars as well as the blood of its young men, all this talk of dollar devaluation, profits on stocks and bonds and such—all this becomes dimly ignorant, selfish and unpatriotic.

Give Us Some Light!

AS what may be the most critical year in the history of the world begins, with the United States in the middle of things, the common, ordinary people of this nation are due certain information which would go a long way to sustain them in adversity and strengthen them for the supreme effort they must make if they are to preserve their free government and their way of life.

Among these people who should have the "facts of life" in a peril-ridden 1951 told to them in language at once so plain all may understand and yet so moving that all may feel the urgency of patriotic effort and sacrifice, are the young men who will have to fight this war which seems inevitable; the parents of these young men who must be up to the stern duty of sending their sons to war on strange battlefields—these and all others who must depend upon by their labor and their substance to support bitter, all-out war for survival.

ang-Kai-Shek in China and leaving that vast land and all its resources in raw materials and manpower at the mercy of Communism. They should admit that Chamberlain doesn't stand alone with his umbrella as a symbol of appeasement.

They now should admit that the cause of freedom is no more valued in Korea than it was in China, only that circumstances have shown them the error of their way. Too, they should renounce that appeasement-tainted policy which causes them to keep Chiang's 800,000 veteran troops idle on Formosa and not fighting on the continent of Asia where they want to join a million or more Chinese guerrillas who still oppose the Communists.

Whether all these matters can be explained effectively and to the satisfaction of the American people, we do not know. But whether they can or not, the President of the United States and the State Department should start out this year of decision with one bold and boldly uttered resolution: Never again will we submit to any form of Communism—this we pledge on our sacred honor and in the name of the country we represent.

All this is due, past due, if the situation is as we have been told.

Then follow that statement, please, with plain, gospel-truth reasons why we must spend and sacrifice and bleed so sorely. Not information which might be of aid or comfort to the enemy, such as some hand out while basking in the limelight, but facts which "lay it on the line" in unmistakable fashion.

We need more of knowing, less of wonderment. If the job must be done, what is it and when does it begin? We need to know these things. We hate Communism; we don't like to have it. We fear it as an insidious doctrine which preys on men's minds and souls as much as it does on their physical belongings and beings. But we need to know why things are, where lies our goal and what we shall do when the battle's won.

We must stop thinking overmuch in terms of dollars and huge appropriations as weapons in winning wars. They are necessary, true; but the strength of the nation lies, as it did at Lexington and Valley Forge, in the bright flame of freedom burning in men's hearts and strengthening their arms to fight even when resistance seems useless.

Give us a rallying cry. Treat us as men who can see danger and face up to it. Give us a light to march by. For in the dark men can stumble backward almost as well as they can grope their way forward.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

CHRISTMAS ON RIGHT BEAVER CREEK

Throughout the United States there have been thousands of Christmas programs given from schools, churches and various other organizations, all of which have been very, very good indeed and have been a great help to our nation spiritually.

To me the manner that all citizens in and about Wayland showed their friendship has given one of the outstanding demonstrations of just what it means to be a free American.

In the first place, all classes, whatever their station in life may be, pooled their finances together for Christmas. Their slogan was a Christmas package for every one. About 2,100 packages were distributed.

It would be unfair to name personally any contributor, for some gave large amounts while others were not able to compete but gladly gave as they were able. Even though it may have been as the wisest mite it was appreciated.

What was so impressive was that in line there, meeting on an equal basis to get their packages were those who were very fortunate to have plenty of finance while the next in line may have been a child whose parents may have been moon-eaters, or a child who was an orphan all going along to get their packages from Santa.

The various churches could learn a great lesson from this. Let all get in line together and fight evil and live as God wants us to live, be friends, love all, do good, live peacefully among each other. Above all, talk about other churches and our neighbors on our knees before God. J. P. DIXON

David Youth Glee Club at Swank Greenbrier

Shown above are the 41 members of the David Youth Glee Club at their Christmas party held in the Presidents Parlor of the beautiful Greenbrier hotel, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., where they sang carols and favorite hymns during a two-and-a-half-day Christmastime stay at the renowned hostelry.

Returning home, they regaled their parents with descriptions of the beauty and magnificence of The Greenbrier—of its three great dining salons; the Ball Room with its great chandelier ablaze; the Trellis Room all green and white with tropical trees and plants fresh and blooming; the richly tapestried main lobby and its famous paintings; the dinner music, the exquisite cuisine, and, finally, of meeting and talking with the secretary and delegates of the United Nations who were dressed in costumes of their native lands.

"We didn't stare," said one of the youngsters, "but we did peek now and then."

But the delight they found in these luxurious and strange surroundings was no less than that the management and guests of The Greenbrier found in them. When Sue Thompson and Johnny Everly, two members of the David group, won the prizes offered for the most correct answers given to two questionnaires received by all the guests, UN delegates were amazed to learn they and others of the group had not received special training

Bells, Like Daughters Of Leech-Doctor, Sound Old Cry of Give! Give!

(The following from Allan M. Trout's "Greetings" in The Courier-Journal is, in many respects, the best thing Trout has ever written.—Editor.)

Silver tinsel glistens and red paper bells ring out the old, old story of Give! Give! Give! It started before Thanksgiving. The cruel pressure of Christmas is upon us in full fury. Carols rasp through the radio from morning till night. The old Yule whimsy rolls from honey-sprayed throats like toothpaste from a tube. Hawkers cry at the street corners, and artificial snow drifts higher and higher in the show windows. There is a Star of Bethlehem at every point of the compass.

The advertisements glamorize costly presents. The pictures that illustrate the ads all show ultramodern devices bringing ethereal joy to an ultrahappy family. The Adonis-husband is shown slipping, robbed and piped. His adoring Venus-wife is powdered, frilled and aproned. The cherub son is All-American, and his little angel-sister is a blessing from On High.

The blunt message in the ads is sharply put, but not in so many words. We are led to believe, by the picture, that the ultramodern device under the Christmas tree is what brings indescribable joy to Dad, Mom, Big Brother and Little Sister.

The truth is, most homes able to take magazines and newspapers already are equipped with ultramodern devices. The average family enjoys traditional blessings of Christmas 365 days a year. What are oranges to a child at Christmas when he has orange juice every morning at breakfast? Or candy, when he buys his own candy bars all through the year? Or raisins, or apples? And a new glut of Christmas toys through the front door cannot be accommodated until the old glut is swept out through the back door.

The self-defeating ultimate of Christmas giving is just around the corner. It will be achieved when everybody goes crazy trying to think of a gadget their friends do not already own. With everybody crazy, nobody will have sense enough to manufacture Christmas goods.

When the self-defeating ultimate is achieved a few years hence, I daresay peace will descend upon us as we gather at the line to make a fresh start. But until then, what is to be done? Let me suggest you give acts of kindness this Christmas. Do something nice that you cannot tie to a Christmas card, something that does not have a price on it to rub out. And for best results, do not limit your list to the poor and afflicted. Try it on your best friends, and your neighbors across the way. I see in this plan two birds with one stone. It affords valuable training for the giftless era the self-defeating ultimate will herald. And it will enable your friends to remember what you gave without having to look at a written list.

Pennsylvania was the first state to introduce inspection of minuses.

KENTUCKY ON THE MARCH

"The profession of law is the only aristocratic element which can be amalgamated without violence with the natural elements of democracy, and which can be advantageously and permanently combined with them."

De Toqueville, famous French scholar and statesman, wrote the foregoing truthful lines in his "Democracy in America" a century ago. Certainly legal minds have guided the destiny of this nation from its birth until today, and what might have become of the American republic without them is hard to imagine.

All my life I have heard people sneer at lawyers, saying they serve the public only when they have something to gain, and most of my life I have found the contrary to be true.

There is not a community betterment project in Kentucky in this good year 1951 that cannot get the free services of a lawyer for the asking. And every civic organization can use the sound advice of a good lawyer quite often.

Here in western Kentucky lawyers have been generous with their professional work in farmers' organizations—farm bureaus, cooperatives, protective organizations for the apprehension and prosecution of thieves.

Recently the Committee for Henderson City and County picked a lawyer, John Palmore for its president.

If I were to form a business partnership with as many as four persons in it, I would want one of them to be a lawyer. Any civic organization in the state that does not have a lawyer participating in all its councils should get one and apologize for not asking him to join up long ago.

While I'm on the subject of lawyers let me run the risk of being accused of giving a free ad to the legal profession by offering a suggestion to people with all kinds of business transactions. In the educational literature of insurance companies, public health organizations, you are told repeatedly to see your doctor when anything gets the matter with you. Few times if any have you been urged to see a lawyer when you have business deals to make.

Not long ago a man in our county bought a farm for $10,000. Several months later he dug up his deed and re-read it. He had paid his good money for the life interest of a woman 78 years old and nothing more. For a nominal fee a lawyer would have saved the man a $10,000 headache.

Another man bought a filling station. Paid $5,000 for the real estate and equipment and $4,000 for "good will." Later he got to wondering if he hadn't been goldbricked, and consulted a lawyer. The lawyer told him he had paid four thousand bucks for two words that didn't mean anything tangible or intangible, because the filling station carried with it all possible goodwill that could be involved.

beyond that of a public school. And when the youngsters impressed lifeguards at The Greenbrier's swimming pool with their ability to swim and dive, it surprised their new acquaintances to learn the boys and girls had had the facilities of a splendid pool, back home at David.

Christmas eve, the Youth Glee Club assembled in the main lobby in front of the huge Christmas tree and sang carols, which drew requests for more. And at noon, Christmas Day, the Teen-Agers sang in the Old White Room, particularly pleasing guests with their renditions of "Merry Christmas to You" and "Silent Night."

Wrote Gene Volk, manager of The Greenbrier, to David L. Francis, president of the Princess Elkhorn Coal Company which sponsored the glee club's trip to White Sulphur Springs:

"The David choir made a tremendous hit. Everyone was so pleased and told us so. I think Mrs. Fiedler and the children should be highly complimented on their efforts and performance, but above all I want to thank you for the tremendous spirit you have put into it and the fine cooperation you have given us. I thank you from the bottom of my heart."

Miss Nancy White, Greenbrier program director, commented: "How can we thank you? Everything went smoothly and The Greenbrier truly came alive! . . . We all thought them perfectly wonderful . . ."

The Power of Prayer—When You're Fit To Pray

(From The Reader's Digest for January, 1951)

"If his prayers are to be answered, a man has to meet his Maker half way," states Fulton Oursler in the January Reader's Digest. "When we ask help from God, we need to take a look at ourselves; we may be in no condition to ask Him for anything."

Mr. Oursley, well-known writer on religious subjects, is author of "The Greatest Story Ever Told." His Digest article is condensed from Guideposts.

Believers admit no limit to what the power of prayer can do, and even skeptics who study the results of prayer become impressed with the potency of faith. But the trouble with most prayers, as one psychologist said, is that they are not "honest to God." . . . "People have the ungracious audacity to ask for heavenly handouts although they are not on speaking terms with their next-door neighbors; they have forbidden relatives their house; they are spreaders of gossip and envious detractors of their best friends."

Prayer is infinitely more than an appeal for personal favors, Oursler says. "It is itself the greatest of all gifts; an ever-richer experience, a continuous feeling of being in harmony with the constructive forces of the universe. It brings the wonders of 'visiting with God' to the life of the humblest man. And his sense of divine companionship will powerfully influence his thoughts and actions."

Prominent men and women in all fields of endeavor rely on prayer for guidance and fortitude in their daily living. Enzo Pinza, star of South Pacific, rid himself of pre-show nervousness by "Just sitting in church," and taught his co-star, Mary Martin, to do the same. "I turn to Him all the time," Pinza says. Lourette Taylor is another stage immortal who has had a direct demonstration of the result of prayer. Dr. Robert A. Millikan, 82-year-old Nobel Prize winner and head of the California Institute of Technology, recently told the country's leading physicists that a lifetime of scientific research has convinced him that a Deity is shaping the destiny of man. "A purely materialistic philosophy is to me the height of unintelligence," Millikan said.

"As if by infallible instinct, great men of all ages have turned to God for help," Oursler says, "by-passing intellectual doubt, finding a short cut to universal truth." Abraham Lincoln called on God to help him in many difficult decisions. "I should be the veriest shallow and self-conceited blockhead, in the discharge of my duties," Lincoln once remarked, "if I should hope to get along without the wisdom that comes from God and not from man."

An announcer asked Billy Southworth of the St. Louis Cardinals whether he had shaved with a Gillette razor that morning (Gillette was sponsoring the World Series broadcast). Southworth's startling reply was, "You know bloody well I did!"—Reader's Digest.

SPORTS AFIELD

BY TED KESTING

One evening Innes McCall got to wondering about the whoppers that must have been hauled from North American lakes and streams in the last half century. What were the biggest fresh water fish that had ever been caught, regardless of the method and their game status?

So he wrote hundreds of letters. What he found is astonishing. There are no less than eight different species that have been taken in weights exceeding 100 pounds! Here are a few of the records he uncovered:

That 67-pound 11 ounce musky isn't the biggest ever. Back in 1902 two Wisconsin fishery biologists disentangled a dangerously large musky from their net, then removed its spawn and returned the fish to the water. It was a 102-pound female that was never taken again.

The year 1938 produced two record fish. One came to light by the undignified process of being in Lake Lawtonka, Oklahoma, when it was drained—a 110-pound catfish. The other was a 126-pound Chinook salmon caught in a fish trap near Petersburg, Alaska.

As to the largest fish caught in fresh water—that was the Oregon, or Pacific, or white turgeon which spawns far inland in the western rivers, drops down to the ocean and later returns to complete its life cycle.

Most of the large ones were caught some 40 years ago, so records are sketchy. Many were taken on heavy setlines, dragged from the river by a team of horses more accustomed to plowing than fishing.

A different method was used by Nephi Purcell, who in 1911 landed the heaviest Oregon sturgeon of which we can find positive record. It came from the Snake River in Idaho. Purcell used a large hook about seven inches long, baited with lampreys. The setline, a 7/16-inch rope, was double half-hitched to several green willow stakes, with slack between. A gunny sack, weighted with rocks and tied to the line with twine, served as a sniker.

When Purcell finally got the big sturgeon in near shore after two or three tries, he waded in waist-deep and shot it with a 22 rifle. Loaded into a 12-foot drag wagon, its tail dragged on the ground. They weighed it at the town lumberyard. The verdict—1,500 pounds!

ON SECOND THOUGHT

A man entered a shop in Jacksonville, Fla., picked up a suitcase and fled with it. The manager pursued, calling a cop. They soon ran down the culprit. "I don't know what I made me do it," the man cried. "If only you won't arrest me, I'll be glad to pay for it."

The manager agreed, so they returned to the shop to complete the transaction. There the customer grew cautious. "As a matter of fact," he said, "this bag is a little better than I had in mind. I wonder if you would show me something cheaper?"—Reader's Digest.

FAMILY MATTERS and VIEWS

By HAROLD B. RICE, Floyd County Agent

Every year recommendations are made stating that early chicks are the ones that make the most money. This means getting your chicks in December or January. This may mean more work and worry to you but the increase in income per hen will more than offset these. Every spring we find the market flooded with eggs. This means that very few people take these recommendations seriously. They go ahead and get their chicks in April, May and even June and have their pullets in production in time to hit the surplus egg season and thus reap the lowest egg prices of the year.

Some of the reasons why early chicks pay are: By getting your chicks early in the year, the brooding work comes at a slack time of the year; proper temperature, ventilation and feeding can be checked more closely, producing healthier pullets; early chicks are healthier because most of the organisms and parasites are dormant at this time of the year. Another big advantage is that your extra fryers will be ready for market when the price is highest.

By far the biggest argument for early hatched chicks is the fact that egg prices are so much higher during the last six months of the year than they are the first six months. The reason for this spread is because late hatched chicks haven't started laying and old hens have suit. This means that you will make more money if you have eggs when no one else has them. To get your pullets in production with a good size egg for this top market, you have to get those chicks early.

Never lose sight of the fact that to make your pullets pay you have to have a sound program. Besides getting your chicks early, buy chicks of good breeding, take good care of them and produce a high quality product. These are the key to success in poultry production for profit.

IT'S A GOOD WORLD

Thrilling to note the recent honor achieved by Carl Woods. One could predict success for him twenty years ago when he was an eighth-grader at Allen, and any man with a gal like Docia for a wife will go places!

It's hard to tell which town had the harder time recovering from the shock of that Maytown victory over Prestonsburg.

Dr. Claude Allen is the Bible for so many families, medically speaking, when HE gets stumped it's something. But he recently saw his first case of mumps with swelling that went down one day and up the next, for a week.

Karen and Dianne, baby daughters of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Martin, Jr., of Prestonsburg, practically ignored their swanky toys and gifts on Christmas morning, to fight over the one rag doll their mother had made at the last minute.

Whoever said big personalities come in small bundles undoubtedly referred to Mrs. Leon Cook. Ever hear her tell of the invalid brother who leads a successful and happy life in a wheelchair?

When the little Stone girl in Martin died from burns everybody in Demont's got busy collecting food donations for the family. Isn't it wonderful how big-hearted our business folks are?

If you have not met little Miss Pamela Hall, do so. She already shows signs of precociousness, and they say her daddy says she is sweet as a barrel of molasses.

Charlie Tingle's family from New York have just returned home. Everybody agrees there is only one word to describe his mother, beautiful! Friends who called for the tea there on Thursday afternoon were fascinated by the transformation Grandma had made in Sandy's room, which includes her personal bulletin board, holding her favorite souvenirs, plus space for mother to post daily chores.

Elizabeth Hayes, of Northern, often tucks framed poems in with her gifts. The tributes may be undesired, but they do provide higher goals worth striving for.

The Nursery Mothers' Sunday School class wished to know how old Jesus would be if living today. 1950, 1955, 1960, or 1962? Peggy Vaughn was right: reputable authorities reply he would be 1955 or 1956 years old, if alive now.

Dr. Herbert Salisbury, popular Prestonsburg dentist, is being flooded with farewells, since he leaves Jan. 4 for service. It is sad to see him go but credit to know he is ready for whatever fate brings. The guy even found time to teach a Sunday School class.

Thomas and Elsie Patrick, of Maytown, make a point, to entertain the two local blind women to dinner now and then. Kind world if all of us practiced Luke 14:13.

Those who packed baskets for Christmas gifts in the Maytown personage basement enjoyed that more than anything else they did during the holidays. Truly it is more blessed to give than to receive.

Grace Burke, somewhat of an authority on antiques, graciously examined a piece of pressed glass about which we knew little, though several places have been in the family many years. The only other piece like it she has ever found is one she bought and refuses to sell. Their unique color of rose marie makes them cherished possessions.

Several days before the feasts began we spent a whole morning on a meal of highfalutin' concoctions, plus two old standbys. Both children, home from college, ate plenty. Ronnie said, "Great meal, mother, specially those potatoes and beans." You can get us hill-folks out of the mountains but you surely can't get the mountains out of us!

Libby's gifts to the family seemed so beyond the stretchability of her allowance we accused her of skimping, but she insists prices are cheaper in Georgetown. The precious sentiments she printed on each tag played a melody on the heart strings. Sincere sympathy to the Dave Baldrick family in Bosco. They know how real the Korean War is. A son recently flown back from the front had been badly frozen, his father reports following a visit to his bedside. Folks, don't forget to pray for this boy, and do it now!

Jest Among Us . . .

By Jack Wild

Have you ever wondered, as I have, who this person Dix was for whom our Kentucky river was named? Dr. Tom Clark, head of the University of Kentucky history department, tells something about him in his book, "A History of Kentucky."

It seems that a group of 40 North Carolina "Long Hunters," so called because of their long stay in the Kentucky wilderness back in the 1770's, established a semi-permanent camp in the neighborhood of what is now Monticello, in Wayne county. Some of the men were killed by Indians, others returned home, and at last only nine of the hunters were left under the leadership of James Knox.

"While hunting one day," Dr. Clark relates, "they encountered a band of Cherokee led by a crippled chieftain to whom the whites gave the name 'Captain Dick.' Pleased with his new name, 'Captain Dick' led the whites to his (Dick's) River and bade them hunt at will." Thus the Dix River was named.

THOUGHTS AND THINGS—Geologists say the climate of Western Kentucky is "mesothermal humid subtropical," which means, I suppose, that on occasion it gets all fired hot down that way . . . My daughter, Rae, a sixth-grader, came in from school last week and reported that they were studying a new kind of arithmetic—"algebra." . . . The national debt is now 600,000,000, but there's naught that to worry about.

Bus drivers have to put a lot from their zany pay. The other night I was on "scavenger hunt" with the police and one of the items on our list was a bus transfer. We drove up alongside a city bus and I hopped aboard. I gave the driver a dime and the driver gave me a bus token and a penny change. I asked him for a transfer, which he also gave me. Then I said, "I'd like off again," and he said, "What did you say?" I said, "Please let me off," and he looked at me like I was crazy. He opened the door in a hurry and let me off, and I got the impression that he was not sorry to see me go. When the scavenger hunt was over and I went home, I discovered that in the excitement I'd dropped the penny in the token box and the bus token in my pocket.

During the horse-racing season at Golden Gate Fields, buses leave from our nearby town every half hour until the first race. On one occasion my husband and I were among the passengers bound for the races to make a "killing."

Arriving at the track, the bus driver opened the door, but before the passengers began to leave he called out, "Would anybody like a good tip today on how to make some money?"

Of course several of us called out, "Yes."

"Well, then," quipped the driver, "keep your seats on this bus and go back to town with me."—From "Life in These United States," in The Reader's Digest.

IT IS REPORTED . . .

When some of the fellows from the Eagles presented Lenna Moore at the hardware store he operates here a box containing some food-stuffs as a Christmas gift, Moore eyed it forlornly and in his most doleful tones expressed his thanks. "I tell you," he said, "selling stuff below cost the way I've been has got me to where I'm needin' some help." (So reports Herschell Graham.)

THE GOOD MEN DO

I know better, I suppose, but ever since I hung onto a taxicab between Coney Island and downtown Cincinnati, a few years back, I've stood in awe of cab drivers. I still don't know how we made it, and I'll never forget how that cab swooped over a bank and down an incline and darted like a swallow up an alley, stirring into frantic action one of the longest and laziest-looking niggers I've ever seen off the screen. All this being so, I enjoyed this anecdote:

A taxi driver weaving in and out of Atlanta traffic at a practiced clip, burst out laughing. "What's so amusing?" asked his fare.

"Aw," he said, "I was thinking of the two preachers and the cab driver who went up to heaven at the same time. St. Peter asked the first minister, 'Who are you and what have you done?'"

"I'm a Baptist minister and I've preached for 25 years."

"Well, stand over to one side there," ordered St. Peter. He then put the question to the second clergyman. "I've been a Methodist preacher for 25 years."

"Stand to one side," said St. Peter. "What about you?" he asked the last man.

"I'm a taxi driver," the cabbie answered. "Been one for about 15 years."

"Pass through the gates," intoned St. Peter.

"Why have you allowed that man to go before us?" the preachers protested.

"Because," said St. Peter, "in 15 years he has scared more hell out of people than you both have in half a century!"

Child Is Burns Victim At Martin, December 27; Rescue Efforts in Vain

Two-year-old Myrtle Jean Stone was fatally burned on the morning of Dec. 27 at the home in Martin of her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Estep Stone, as her clothing caught fire while she and a baby brother were alone.

Mrs. Stone was working in a Martin restaurant at the time of the tragedy, it was said. Neighbors rushed to the rescue of the child but she was so badly burned that death followed within a few hours at Our Lady of the Way hospital.

Burned about the hands in extinguishing the flames was Mrs. Hazel Dings, one of those near the home when the tot's screams were heard.

Surviving, besides the mother, are nine brothers and sisters, Donald, Sally, Ronald Gene, Billie Fay, Jake, Lu Ellen and Tommy Joe, all at home, Mrs. Van Mullett, Wales, Ky., and Mrs. Kimber Caudill, McDowell.

Funeral rites were conducted last Thursday by the Rev. S. D. Osborn and burial was made in the May cemetery at Alpharetta, the Hall Brothers Funeral Home directing.

STOP-LOOK-LISTEN!

The old adage, "If you can make a 'better' mouse trap the public will beat a path to your door," still holds good today.

While we are not building "mouse traps," we are building better new tires from old ones.

We invite you to call, inspect our modern plant, see the high class work and materials that go into your tires at as reasonable prices as possible.

Due to increased government demand for rubber, steel, rayon and cotton, vital materials used in the manufacture of tires, new tires will become scarcer.

It is smart, thrifty and patriotic to have us rebuild your worn tires.

BETSY LAYNE

The Betsy Layne Woman's Club held its annual Christmas party, Dec. 21, at the home of Mrs. T. J. Chandler. Mrs. Chandler and the co-hostesses, Mrs. Beecher Hardwick and Mrs. Arthur Van Kammen, served the club members a turkey dinner at 6 o'clock. The house was decorated in keeping with the holiday season. One of the attractions of the decorative scheme was a musical Nativity Scene displayed on the mantle. Mrs. Alex Davis opened the meeting by reading, "And it came to Pass." St. Luke's story of the birth of Jesus. Mrs. O. J. Williams, the program leader, next read Scott's poem, "Old Christmas." The program, "Christmas Today in Other Lands," was in radio style with Mrs. Williams acting as master of ceremonies. England, France, Germany and Italy were the countries included in this armchair cruise. Mrs. Williams gave an informal talk on American Christmas customs. The first country visited was England. Mrs. Anderson portrayed the role of Mary Blackstone, our English cousin. She was dressed in the English caroling costume and presented a delightful account of the English customs. At the conclusion of her presentation the entire group sang "Deck the Halls." The next visit was from Marie Armand, of Paris, with Miss Alice Williams taking this part. Miss Williams was dressed in the French peasant costume and told about the French holiday season. "The First Noel" was sung by the group at the conclusion of this visit to Paris. Frau Hahn, portrayed by Mrs. Glenn Blackburn, next told about the German Christmas customs. Mrs. Blackburn was dressed in the traditional German costume and when she completed her account of the German customs, so similar to ours, the entire group sang "Silent Night." The last visit or stop to the microphone was Rosa Costelli, of Rome, portrayed by Mrs. W. P. Howell, who was dressed in the Italian peasant costume and related the quaint Italian Christmas customs. The group then sang "Come, All Ye Faithful." Mrs. Williams concluded this portion of the program by a brief resume of the evening's program, and the entire group joined in the singing of "O, Little Town of Bethlehem." Secret sisters for the past year were revealed at this time. This was in the form of a guessing game, with members correctly guessing their secret sister receiving a small prize. Names of secret sisters for 1951 were drawn. Then gifts were exchanged and members presented their 1950 secret sisters with gifts. A reproduction of the Small Cowper Madonna by Raphael was on display during the evening and Miss Williams gave an informal talk on the picture. Mrs. A. A. Robinette rendered several organ numbers during the evening.

At the brief business session Miss Williams was appointed to represent Mrs. Williams, the club president, at the mid-winter board meeting of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs to be held in Louisville in January. Mrs. Beecher Hardwick, vice-governor of the seventh District, will also attend the meeting.

Monday afternoon, December 18, the Woman's Club held a Christmas party for 15 children of the Betsy Layne school. The party was held in the basement of the Methodist Church. When the children arrived at 2 o'clock, each was presented a soft drink. Then they were entertained with the playing of Christmas songs. Snapshots were made of the children grouped around the Christmas tree and the refreshment table decorated with a sugarplum tree standing in the center of the table. Cup cakes and ice cream were served each child. Suitable gifts and fruit and candy were given all. Rev. Anderson ended the party by showing two Christmas films, "The Little Christmas Tree" and "The Night Before Christmas."

Six pounds of coal are necessary for the manufacture of every pound of smokeless powder.

Unified Water Resource Planning Being Urged

Washington, Dec. 17—A presidential commission urged today that whole river basins be covered in unified planning for future flood-control, irrigation-power project development.

Reporting to President Truman on a year-long study, his water resources policy commission declared "patchwork" planning of the past led to "serious wastes."

America's "titanic contest" in defense of human freedom requires proper use of the nation's resources, the commission counseled.

A river basin approach to water development was recommended to wrap up in a single regional plan such undertakings as watershed management, flood control, water supplies, navigation, hydro-electric power, irrigation, pollution abatement, drainage, recreation, fish and wildlife propagation, and silt, sediment and insect control.

The emphasis, the commission said, should be on multiple-purpose projects—for example, a single dam to control floods, store water for irrigation purposes, generate hydro-electric power and to perform other beneficial functions.

The full development of hydro-electric power was termed a major federal responsibility.

The commission estimating that power needs will be more than double present capacity by 1970, urged that private power companies be given no licenses for hydroelectric projects where it would interfere with comprehensive river basin developments.

On the other hand, the report suggested that the federal government stay out of the steam-electric plant business unless private companies are unwilling or unable to contract for inter-connecting power exchange.

Another policy change suggested is that beneficiaries of flood control works be required to reimburse the government for "an appropriate share" of the cost. This might be done in local communities, the commission said, by general taxation or special assessment, or through the creation of special assessment districts by the states.

HAVE YOU THE COMBINATION?

One by one, over the centuries, men and women have been opening the door to life's richest treasure.

This New Year thousands more will learn the combination that unlocks our God-given destiny.

The joy of purposeful living, the confidence of courageous believing, the power of divine help, belong to every man who can rightly turn the dial of life to its appointed goal.

And the combination has been ours through twenty centuries, ever since the day of Jesus Christ!

Turn first to faith—the hunger of the heart for spiritual truth. Then to love—the capacity for unselfish devotion to one another. Then to God—the Source of All that is eternally real.

The Church helps us master the combination. Its worship and instruction help us to turn the course of our lives.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

braking. And throughout the chassis are vital improvements which add to endurance and dependability. . . . All in all, here is new lustre for the Cadillac name—and a far higher standard for the automotive world. . . . Honor System 'Freeze' To Be Put on Trial To Put Anti-Inflation to Work

An honor-system "freeze" on all prices and wages has been issued by the economic stabilization agency. This may be followed fairly soon by compulsory ceilings on some meats, possibly beef, veal and lamb. The ESA has called executives of the meat industry into a price parley.

This meeting probably will be exploratory because it is uncertain whether the economic stabilization agency would be able yet to impose and enforce livestock price ceilings. Ceilings for this scattered industry would be harder to administer than for the automobile industry, for instance, which has only 10 major companies.

Having set the anti-inflation machinery in motion with yesterday's freeze and rollback of new car prices, ESA administrator Alan Valentine gave every sign he will keep it rolling.

His next major move, officials said privately, will be to issue a general, nation-wide, voluntary ceiling on price tags and paychecks. Adherence to this price-wage standard—probably fixed at the level of December 1 or some other recent date will be asked of business, unions and the public. "This freeze" will last only until March. By that time, ESA believes, it will be ready to administer an effective control system, either on selected goods or on the whole economy.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D.
Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

REPEATING

One of the most persistent admirers of my column suggested, a few days ago that, should I run out of things to say, I could begin repeating, as my column has run so long that probably few of its present readers are the same as the first ones, or, if so, they would probably not recall just what I did discuss, say, back in 1935. I must admit that there is a temptation to repeat more often than I actually do. New things arise as time goes by to make certain of my passing institutions seem vital again. Some of the earlier ones, on the other hand, have died so completely that what I first wrote is just about all I can say. The old family nag, for example, is now twenty-odd years farther in the past than she was when I made my after-dinner speech about her, a speech that later grew into my essay. I am afraid to open up this subject again, for I know that I have no further knowledge, only dimmer memories. A home-knit yarn stocking seems even more distant.

Each year, as the glorious days of October (and I am not merely poetizing) come and go, I find myself tempted to say things that I said last year or still longer ago. Nature seems not averse to repetition. Witness the millions of acres of prairie that she illumines every fall with coropsis. I have ridden a train for many consecutive hours through fields of these golden flowers, where there were hardly enough markers to give a suggestion of direction or distance. Witness the millions of acorns that a single oak will produce in its lifetime, each one filled with all the dominant characteristics of its kind that it could, if need arose, reproduce the whole race within a few years. Witness the myriads of insects, each as truly a representative of its race as any other. Why the endless repetition of nature? Is anything gained by this endless redoing of what has already been well done? One almost expects nature to say, "Why make anything new when the endless re-making of the old is so fascinating?"

Human customs go on in the same seemingly aimless manner. Most of us live lives so strikingly like those of our relatives and predecessors that others seem to develop a sort of Jones or Smith or Wilson species. To an outsider, gifted with universal education or foresight, it might seem that the puny actions of mankind are hardly worth repeating so endlessly. But to the rest of us, right in the midst of life, the only life we have ever known, there are thrills and heartaches, discoveries and disappointments, quite as great to us in our little worlds as the same repeated acts and events brought to unremembered ages before us. Columbus discovered America. So what? Didn't I, didn't you, didn't all of us?

Did his discovery ruin our later discoveries? Should all the honor belong to the first man who saw a great sunset or sunrise, a waterfall or a mountain? Fortunately, some few in every great age leave records of what they saw or experienced; many times you and I can begin soon to see things where other observers left off. In this way we advance, but even the discoverer who saw but did not record must have experienced thrills that we can only guess at because he was of our kindred.

Some of the teachers I have had tried to tell us that only the poet could see things in their true relationship. I will agree with this only by widening the number of poets. Nature poets have taught me a greater reverence for the trees and streams and plants and animals around me. I love to quote to trees what some poet has already said. Fall becomes much more attractive through the eyes of poets who rhymed about colors and abundance of the season. But I must not forget the plain men, not writers, like my father, who loved the out-of-doors with a passion that made him seem queer to hundreds of his neighbors who loved him and depended upon him for health. He did not quote poetry to me or to anybody else; he took me up behind him when he went fishing; he cut me a pole on the creek bank; he instructed me how to put a worm on a hook to catch a sunfish or a sucker. And many another plain person is to be thanked, too, for unconsciously opening the doors that remain open.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:
The undersigned will, on and after publication of this notice, no longer be responsible for any debts incurred by any person other than himself.
