

This Town-- That World

TIME AND TIDE . . .

When I was a boy and had never been ten miles from home, much less to Prestonsburg, "Bartee" Weddington who died this week was a legendary figure to me. He had been High Sheriff. He was cashier of the only financial institution that had swum into my ken. My father spoke of him with a great affection.

He was a banker of the old school. I suppose bank examiners were not looking down cashiers' shirt-collars so often in those days; anyway, he seemed to rely more on character for security than a man's material assets. I remember yet his hurriedly scribbled notes to a customer: "You're overdrawn. Mail us $200 to cover."

That customer wrote no cold checks, even though his account was overdrawn. The bank didn't lose any money on him, either. But those were the good, old days.

Yes, Bartee Weddington was one of half a dozen of the county's real leaders. Few were better known than he. His friendships lasted him a long lifetime.

But in his last months proved this truth: No man has any reason to think that his absence from the public scene will long be missed. This is not to say that he ever kidded himself on that score. He was too sensible, too modest, ever to think himself indispensable or something of an immortal among his people. The unpleasant fact is, as time went on and he was forced by age and illness into seclusion, life swirled around him and raced on; except for a small circle of friends and relatives, he was remembered only on occasion.

And that will be the story for any of us, once we drop from our usual round of activities. Don't kid yourselves.

The great Lincoln recognized this truth. His favorite poem, you may recall, one which he liked off to quote, was, "Oh, Why Should the Spirit of Mortal Be Proud?"

NOISY AND NOISOME

I have been asked to say something about these motorcycles being operated without mufflers, roaring up and down streets and highways, past churches where services are going on, past homes where folks are sick. I would have said some-

YOUNG GROUP HITS MAGAZINE

Young Democrats Drop Demigraph; Floyd Clerk 7th District Chairman

The Young Democratic Clubs of Kentucky elected district officers Friday and prepared to denounce a publication they previously considered their official voice.

Resolutions to be voted upon include one that would disassociate the organization in all ways from The Young Demigraph, a monthly magazine.

The resolution states that editors and publishers of The Young Demigraph have consistently refused during the last two years to adhere "to the constitutional requirement of the Young Democratic Clubs of Kentucky that no part may be taken in factional disputes within the party."

It asks that a 1950 resolution adopting the magazine as the organization's official publication be nullified.

District officers were named at caucuses. County Clerk DuRan Moore, of Prestonsburg, was elected chairman, with John Greene, Sandy Hook, vice-chairman, and G. D. Black, Beattyville, secretary.

HALL SUBMITS TEACHER LIST

Says He Is Confident Law Will Force Board To Honor Nominations

County Superintendent Palmer L. Hall this week expressed confidence that the County Board of Education will by law be obliged to employ the teachers he nominated several days ago and a list of which he formally submitted to Board members at their special meeting here last Friday.

At the same time there was no comment forthcoming from anti-administration members of the Board. Joe Hobson, attorney for the Board, declined to make a statement for publication.

"The courts have held in too many cases that the Superintendent has the right to nominate the teachers for the Board to get around employing them," the Superintendent said.

His nominations included 74 teachers for the rural schools, 103 faculty-members of the consolidated schools, and special teachers including Boone Hall, Gordon Moore and Mrs. Betty M. Wellman who work out of the Superintendent's office here. Also nominated were Paris Conley for his present post of attendance officer for a period one year at a salary of $3,900 and Herbert Prater, assistant attendance officer, for the same term at a salary of $3,420.

At last week's special meeting the Board called for bids on three paid 48-passenger school buses, paid salaries and bills, and agreed to permit the REA to use the site of the proposed county high school here for its farm and home show in July.

The teacher-nominations made by Hall appear on Page 1, Section 2.

CLARK ENTERS GOP PRIMARY

Prestonsburg Mayor Files for Congress, First on His Ticket

Mayor Curtis Clark, of Prestonsburg, by declaration with the Secretary of State, for Congress, last Friday, became the first official candidate of the Republican party from the Seventh district.

Clark, a former lumberman and merchant and at present a truck mine operator, was elected mayor in 1949. His administration has been marked by civic improvements. He has a long record of civic and political activity. In 1934 he was chairman of the 7th district Retail Merchants Association, has been active in Scouting, Kiwanis, Floyd county manager for Dr. M. E. Thompson in his candidacy for Congress, and helped organize the Floyd county-Prestonsburg Chamber of Commerce. At present he is a charter member of the Floyd County Good Government and Taxpayers' League and the Floyd County Development Association.

In a statement released for publication today, Mayor Clark says: "In announcing I want to cite my record as the mayor of Prestonsburg. The city has made tremendous progress during my administration. I have shown that if elected I can bring to this district a program of progress and improvement that will assure our teachers, gas workers, miners, and farmers, a more secure future than we now have.

Canalization of our rivers is a prime issue in this district as it should be. Canalization will mean new industry will be attracted to Eastern Kentucky."

NINE SCHOOLS TO GRADUATE 266 SENIORS

16th Annual Exercises To Be Held on May 21 At Wheelwright Gym

Two hundred and sixty-six seniors of nine high schools of the county will receive their diplomas at the 16th annual mass graduation exercises, which will be held next Wednesday evening in the new gymnasium of Wheelwright high school. Wendell P. Butler, Superintendent of Public Instruction, will deliver the commencement address, and the diplomas will be presented by County Superintendent Palmer L. Hall, who will preside at the exercises.

The graduation scene will be no less colorful than its 15 predecessors: gay school colors marking sections assigned the various schools, music by the Wheelwright chorus and the Floyd county band, and each school principal taking part in the introduction of his graduating seniors. This is one event which always plays to a packed house.

Besides their diplomas, seven seniors will receive scholarships and two others will be named to compete with the same number of high school graduates from Knott and Pike counties for the two four-year engineering scholarships offered annually by the Inland Steel Company. The Princess Elkhorn Coal Company at David alone will award five scholarships—two to employees' sons for the study of engineering for four years, one four-year "open" scholarship to the son or daughter of a non-employee, and two for two years to daughters of company employees. Walter Karr Bowling Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will make a cash grant of $100 to the outstanding Floyd county senior, and Pikeville College will give a two-year scholarship to the best teaching prospect.

SAY SHEPHERD LASSOED JAP

Floyd Soldier Faces Action from Military; 4 Companions Freed

The U. S. army announced in Yokohama, Japan Saturday that Pfc. Belva Shepherd, of Prestonsburg, had been identified as the soldier who on the preceding day had roped a Japanese bicyclist and dragged him 70 feet behind an army truck.

The cyclist was not hurt seriously. The army said no charge had been filed but this would be "only a matter of time." Brig. Gen. James G. Devine, commander of the 40th Anti-Aircraft Artillery Brigade to which Shepherd is attached, earlier had promised "severe disciplinary action against the guilty individual."

Four soldiers riding with Shepherd were released after questioning.

Born in what is now West Virginia but at the time Virginia, on Feb. 4, 1855, he was a son of William and Malinda Combs Lafferty. He had resided at Dwayne and vicinity since

Undismayed by Loss of Legs, He Still 'Hopes To Do Well'

A customer came into Duke Griffith's jewelry store here recently and, looking around at the neat showcases and other evidence of a well-kept shop, remarked, "Duke, you seem to be doing well."

After a slight pause, Mr. Griffith replied, "I hope to do well."

In the interval of time that he took to answer his mind must have drifted back over the years or it may have been an automatic answer deep from his subconscious, for the reply sounded like a phrase ever uppermost in his mind. "I hope to do well" can be paraphrased into "He has done well" for, while life may have not done much for him, he has done much for himself.

Broken in body by a mine accident, without income and with a family looking to him for support, he was never broken in spirit. Many less unfortunate in physical infirmities than he had taken to the streets with a tin cup, but Duke, his thoughts revolting at the idea of public assistance, looked only to himself and a timely volunteer friend. He says: "My whole desire was to make a living and not impose upon the public. I have been offered money upon the street but I have always refused. I have got by and never begged."

Life that for him has been trag-

FISCAL COURT ACCEPTS PLAN

To Refinance Bonds At Lower Interest; Meet Held Tuesday

A saving of $10,000 for Floyd county will result, the Floyd fiscal court has been assured, through its acceptance of a bond refinancing plan submitted Tuesday to the court by R. L. Gardner.

Gardner contracted to refinance $74,000 worth of bonds which the court cannot call for payment until their maturity date and to cut the interest rate from the present 4 1/2 per cent to 3 1/2%.

Otherwise, the court transacted only three items of business. One of these was to grant a franchise to the Paintsville Appliance Company for the installation of a television transmission system at McDowell.

W. J. May, Prestonsburg, county treasurer, was named to settle with Sheriff A. B. Meade on his collection of taxes and also to prepare the 1952-1953 county budget.

George Conn was employed at a pay-rate of $15 a day to repair the wind-damaged Ivel swinging bridge.

Until a year ago he had never been a hospital patient, and he had been remarkably active even far into old age as a minister, carpenter and farmer. A member of the Methodist Church 72 years, he was ordained as a minister in 1897 and was active in the ministry for 47 years.

He preached his last sermon in February of last year at Lafferty Chapel on Bull Creek.

Slone Under $5,000 Bond In Death of Lancer Girl

Luther Slone, 22 years old, of Pippass, Knott county, is under $5,000 bond, charged with voluntary manslaughter in the death last Friday morning of 13-year-old Idals Stapleton, who was struck by Slone's car near the home of her parents at Lancer.

Slone and a companion, Hibbard Smith, also of Pippass, were held in jail here till Tuesday morning when Slone waived examining trial before County Judge Henry Stumbo and Smith pleaded guilty to charges of breach of the peace and drunkenness.

Authorities said the girl was knocked a distance of approximately 30 feet when Slone's car, en route upriver, rounded the curve at the northern end of Lancer at high speed, and bore down on her and George Hall, 13, as the two stood on the dirt shoulder of the highway.

Hall's was a close brush with death. He was knocked some distance but escaped with a gut hand and minor bruises. The girl, a daughter of Marion and Goldia Ramsey Stapleton, was injured internally and died soon after arrival at the Prestonsburg General hospital.

Slone and Smith were arrested by Deputy Sheriffs Frank Parsons and John Hopson, but Smith received treatment for head cuts at the Prestonsburg General hospital before being returned to jail. The car plunged over the fill after striking the youngsters who were en route home from the nearby Lancer post-office.

Mrs. John Dillon, whose home overlooks the scene of the tragedy, in an interview with Commonwealth's Detective Alex L. Davidson described the incident as "the most awful thing I ever saw." She said the car rounded the curve at terrific speed, veered off the pavement, was cut back, then left the surfacing of the highway again before hitting the girl and plunging over the embankment.

A pint bottle of wine, seal unbroken, was found in the wrecked car and given to Chief of Police Epp Laferty.

Three of those listed at the jail during the week paid fines. Two of the trio were Ballard Tackett and James Hurst, who were arrested by Conservation Officer Bernard Bald-

Although Smith admitted being drunk, Slone maintained he only drank some beer when they stopped the car on their way from Columbus, O., to Pippass, the preceding night. Asked if he drank any wine, Slone said he pretended to do so in order "to keep him (Smith) from begging me," but declared the beer was all he had drunk. He placed his speed at the time of the crash somewhere between 25 and 45 miles an hour.

When County Attorney W. W. Burchett inquired, "Aren't you about half-shot right now?" Slone replied, "No . . . I am just scared and worried right now. You will see . . ."

Then he remarked in the course of his sworn statement, taken under questioning, "If it was just the money I wouldn't worry, but it's that girl's life."

Harlan Mullins, who was jailed here Friday by Deputy Sheriffs Frank Parsons, John Hopson and Hall after he allegedly had shot and missed Charlie Newman, was later released under $5,000 bond to keep the peace and to answer to a charge of shooting at without wounding.

Newman is Mullins' step-son. The trouble developed, it was said here, over land.

Saturday, Malcolm Johnson was jailed by Prestonsburg policemen Epp Laferty, Bill Little and Amos Gray at a.w.o.l. from the army, and Tuesday Special Agent Donnelly, of the FBI, booked Homer Hopson at the jail as a deserter.

Three of those listed at the jail during the week paid fines. Two of the trio were Ballard Tackett and James Hurst, who were arrested by Conservation Officer Bernard Bald-

JURY CLEARS WAYLAND MAN

Glenn Harold Hall Is Held Not Guilty In Death of Craft

Glenn Harold Hall, of Wayland was found not guilty of murder by a Boyd circuit court jury Saturday night at the conclusion of his second trial for the slaying of Stuart M. Craft, former engineer for the Elk Horn Coal Corporation at Wayland.

Given the choice of returning a verdict of death, life imprisonment or acquittal, the all-male jury deliberated about two hours.

An earlier trial was interrupted by the sudden illness and subsequent death of Hall's infant daughter.

The trial began Friday, with Hall charged with the fatal shooting of Craft who was found dead in a toilet stall of the Ashland station of the C. & O. Railway Company, March 27, last year.

The Commonwealth, Defense Attorneys Edward L. Allen and A. W. Mann argued, established no motive whatsoever for Hall to kill Craft. The two had been good friends and testimony was offered claiming they had been together shortly before they went to the station and there was no indication of a rift between the two.

Commonwealth witnesses told, as in the earlier trial, of the two entering the men's room of the station, and of Hall's departure without Craft. Shortly afterward, the body was found. Hall was arrested in a Huntington hotel room where he had registered in his own name.

Hall was emphatic in his testimony that he did not kill Craft. He said he decided to resign his job as a deputy sheriff and seek other work because he could not support his family on his deputy's salary. He had gone to Ashland to look for work, he said, and had contacted two employers the morning of the shooting.

HOLDS COURT MAY REFUSE BOND SALE

Collection Of Tax For Hospital Issue Will Be Eliminated

The Floyd fiscal court has the right to refuse to sell the hospital bonds voted at the November, 1950 election and therefore to forego the further collection of taxes to amortize the $400,000 bond issue. County Judge Henry Stumbo was advised last week by Assistant Attorney General M. B. Hollifield.

As a result, Judge Stumbo said Tuesday that he will soon ask the court to withhold action on the $400,000 bond issue until such a time as it becomes apparent that an institution such as the proposed Floyd County War Memorial hospital is needed. He indicated he will also ask the court to rescind its order directing him to employ an architect to plan a county hospital to be built at Allen.

Judge Stumbo said no hope of federal aid is seen if the United Mine Workers' Welfare Fund hospital is constructed at McDowell, and this is considered a certainty. A larger Prestonsburg General hospital, soon to be open, also has been cited as reducing the need for a new hospital and more hospital beds such as the War Memorial hospital would have supplied.

The court is known to be in accord with him in the matter.

Assistant Attorney General Hollifield pointed out in his letter to the Floyd county official that the Appellate Court's ruling in the case of Houston vs. Boltz, involving an election held under a section of the Constitution different from that under which the Floyd vote on the $400,000 bond issue was held, had confused officials and fiscal courts as to their rights in such cases.

In the Campbell county case the voters were seeking to force the court to issue bonds with which to construct a hard-surfaced road. They were upheld by the Court of Appeals. Section 216.030, under which the Floyd county bond election was held, provides, however, Hollifield wrote:

"If the voters of the county determine that bonds shall be issued, (See Story No. 4, Page 6)

James Osborne, age 81 years and six months, of Buckingham, died at his home of paralysis, April 24. He was the son of Cornelius and Mary Hopkins Osborne and was a native of Pike county. He had resided at Buckingham for 63 years. His wife, Nancy Jane Hall survives and to this union 13 children were born. A deacon of the Regular Baptist Church, he had been a member of that religious body for 30 years.

Surviving besides his wife are the following children: Mrs. T. H. Hall, Melvin; Mrs. Cora Cook, Topmost; Mrs. P. M. Isaacs, Buckingham; Mrs. E. man Hall, Bypro; Wilburn, M. D. Roy, all of Melvin and Troy of Bevinville. One brother, A. J. Osborn, a resident of Pike county also survives. He leaves 74 grand children, 61 great grandchildren and 2 great-great grandchildren.

Funeral rites were held at the home, April 26, the Revs. Bud Johnson, Troy Nickles, Joe Jones and E. V. Hopkins officiating. Burial was in the family cemetery at Buckingham under the direction of Greene's Funeral Home.

Pennsylvania's bituminous coal mines employed more than 90,000 coal miners in 1951.

Coal miners in Illinois were never paid less than $2.26 per hour during 1951.

Tragedy turns the mind inward.

edy began hard, 57 years ago on a small "place" on the Rock Fork of Right Beaver Creek, in Knott county. At 16 years of age he was working around the mines in McDowell county, W. Va. Two years later, in 1913, he was in the mines, loading coal. Soon he met with his first accident. An injury to his left ring finger resulted in it being amputated. But gangrene set in and the evidence of infection could be seen in the arm, near his shoulder. The doctors planned another amputation, but he refused. Going home, his mother prepared from her native hill-land lore, a poultice of herbs and corn meal. A few applications and the gangrenous condition disappeared. Three days after his mother's initial treatment, he went into the mountains and killed a few squirrels, using well the arm doctors wanted to amputate.

Come 1918 and, now married to Minda Combs of Knott county, he was working in the mines at Lackey, an employe of the Black Diamond Coal Company. His eldest child, Virgil, was a mere toddler. He had no notion of tragedy, that day of April 6, 1918, when he entered the mines for work. He had a helper, or in miner's parlance, "a back hand," Jess Travis, who had worked for him several months. Across the "room" and through an air "break-through" were two other miners.

The "heading" was "out-cropping" and while the "top" was sandstone, it was slaked and breaking. Duke and Travis fired a shot, and a partial result was a "standard," to use a miner's definition of a pillar of undischarged coal. He started to hand-pick it out, and when the task was completed he turned in a cramped position to pick up a shovel. He was bent and had his legs crossed when the roof fell.

Travis escaped down the heading track and in his haste to get from under the falling roof, stumbled over a tie and fell upon his face. The two miners nearby heard the thunder of stone and saw Duke's light go out. They came hurriedly and, with the returning Travis assisting, pried the rock away. His back was broken and he was paralyzed from his hips down.

He would not go to the hospital. He had little hope of medical assistance and if death had to come he would rather it would be at home. Dr. T. J. Chandler, now of Betsy Layne, treated him and finally he yielded to insistence and went to a Louisville hospital. Here he stayed several months. After the specialists had done all that their science could do they agreed to release him to go home. One of these doctors said to Dr. Chandler: "He will live, probably about three years." Fourteen years later, Dr. Chandler told Duke of this prediction and they laughed heartily about it together.

Now that he was at home again, the question of making a living was arising. He settled with the compensation board for a 50 per cent disability and was paid $3,000. But this money was soon spent, for now there were two children as his daughter Birdie was born one month after the accident. "I was thinking of how to make a living in about a month after the accident. The best I could figure out was watch repairing, as I could sit in a chair to work," he says.

Good fortune came in the person of Jack Williams, the company bookkeeper. He and Duke ordered $45 worth of jeweler's tools and when the package came, C.O.D., the bookkeeper paid for them as a gift.

It was the only major pecuniary assistance he ever accepted. Today he speaks of Williams and this obligation. "He helped me get started and for that I am thankful. I went into business at Lackey. In a little while I moved my shop to Estill and stayed about a year. From there I went to Stone Coal Creek at Garrett."

The Stone Coal watch repair shop was a small place beside the railroad track. Passersby could speak to him in his shop, cramped over a little desk, as they walked up or down, to or from Garrett. Here Duke was finding himself, learning the watch repair trade and gaining the confidence that comes from trial and effort. He often received watches by mail or found it necessary to mail repaired watches back to a customer. To do this he walked on his crutches to the Garrett postoffice. Sometimes the snow was deep and when his feet or legs froze he had no pain in them, for they were paralyzed. Years later, these walks in the cold and snow to Garrett were to be the cause of additional tragedy.

In 1927 he came to Prestonsburg. The first year was hard but as he says: "I got by and didn't beg." His family grew until there were three daughters and a son, who was the eldest. Life goes on, be it tragedy or sunshine. Two of his daughters graduated from high school. He taught his son Virgil the jewelry business. When the second World War was over aid young men were looking for training he taught two veterans the trade of watch and jewelry repairing.

In late 1949 his legs, paralyzed since the accident, became gangrenous. The doctors said it was because of the cold and snow he had walked through up and down the railroad track at Garrett. It was necessary to remove one in December of that year. In March of this year he went back to St. Mary's hospital to have the other removed because of the same condition.

be it for despair or constructive thought, and since Duke had never yielded to despair, he thought through an invention to tell the time by announcement. There it sets in his shop, a clock in a homemade case. When plugged to an electric circuit, it announces the hours, as if a human voice were speaking to you. It was patented in May, last year, and an agent in an eastern city is negotiating for sale of royalty rights to a manufacturer.

He started work on that invention in 1936 and worked at it only in the spare time he could afford. Most of the work was done at home. In 1948 it was completed. The patent office calls it a "Control system for annunciators." Most people call it a "talking clock."

Duke Griffith can smile. It is not the sophisticated smile of a jewelry clerk or business man. It is a smile from an unvanquished heart and soul that has met adversity. Although he has a broken back, has lost both legs and his only means of locomotion is by a wheel chair, yet life is much better than it was in April 1918 when he was taken home crushed in body, perhaps to die. His life is a prime demonstration of the unconquerable human spirit.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

URGES SUPPORT OF DRAMATICS

Few people with little or no knowledge of play production realize the tremendous amount of work that goes into a well-presented play of three acts. It represents many, many hours of intensive memorizing, rehearsal, collecting of stage props, set designing, ticket selling and many other tasks too numerous to mention.

The productions, as presented by the various classes and groups in Prestonsburg high school, have shown decided improvement in the past three or four years. Each year, the quality of the play selected, as well as the ability displayed by those taking part, has shown rapid growth in the field of drama.

This training is most valuable and deserves the support of the Prestonsburg public, in that they will not only have an evening of high-type entertainment but they will encourage a group of young people who have worked long and intensively and whose efforts deserve to be rewarded.

This is just as much a part of our school activities program as is football or basketball and gives a group of pupils who possibly cannot compete in those fields a chance to develop their particular talents. Make our school activities well-rounded, and give our would-be young Bernhards and Barrymores a boost by attending the senior play, "Turn Back the Clock."

86-YEAR-OLD MAN FACES SINK-OR-SWIM ISSUE AFTER FALL INTO CREEK, DRIFTS TWO MILES

Henry Auxier, 86-year-old Johns Creek man, owes his life to his determination to "hang on for dear life."

He was rescued, The Paintsville Herald reports, from the waters of the Big Sandy river recently after floating two miles down Johns Creek into the larger stream after falling into the creek from a boat.

He doggedly defied the constant threat of cramping and drowning by hanging onto the side of his boat until his cries for help attracted the attention of James Setser, who was plowing in a field near the junction of the creek and the river. Mr. Setser acquired a boat and effected the rescue.

The rescued man, suffering from exposure and shock, was returned home upstream by road aboard a mattress-covered sled.

RURAL HEALTH PROGRAM SET

In Louisville Talks; Plan Is To Organize Local Health Groups

The initial step forward in establishing a rural health program in Kentucky was taken in Louisville at the first rural health conference, which was held last Wednesday and Thursday at the Brown hotel.

About 150 persons representing 13 state-wide sponsoring organizations heard state and national authorities discuss the problems involved in establishing health and medical care in the state's rural areas. Kentucky is the 43rd state to launch such a program.

Outgrowth of the conference, the sponsoring groups hope, is to have local health councils established in every rural county in the state. But all agreed it will require the efforts of people working together at the "grass-roots" level to make such a program work.

"Rural people are best able to cope with their own health problems," declared Mrs. Charles W. Sewell, Otterbrien, Indiana, administrative director of the Associated Women of the American Farm Bureau Association.

Mrs. Sewell, who is credited with the idea of establishing rural health councils throughout the country, said, "no one in the state capital or in Washington can fully understand what an individual community's health problems are. People must do for themselves and they can do what they want if they have the will and determination."

Miss Myrtle Weldon of the University of Kentucky Extension Service told the conference "rural health begins in the rural home."

"Any program we inaugurate must reach the farm home if it is to be effective," she said.

A six-point program essential for a sound community health program was listed by Aubrey Gates, Little Rock, Ark., field director of the American Medical Association's rural health council, as: (1) proper nutritional attention; (2) environmental sanitation such as pure drinking water; (3) immunization against preventable disease; (4) sufficient hospital facilities; (5) voluntary health insurance; (6) available medical advice.

Sponsored by the Kentucky Medical Association, the co-sponsoring organizations are: Division of Child Welfare, Department of Economic Security; Division of Vocational Education; Extension Service, University of Kentucky; Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers; Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation; Kentucky Hospital Association; Kentucky Pharmaceutical Association; Kentucky State Association of Registered Nurses; Kentucky State Dental Association; Kentucky State Department of Health; University of Louisville School of Medicine; and Woman's Auxiliary to the Kentucky State Medical Association.

Court Tells Firm To Pay Minimum Set By U. S. Law

Pikeville, Ky., May 14 — The Williams Feed and Transfer Company here has been permanently enjoined from violations of the Federal Wage and Hour Law in United States District Court, according to William M. Eaves, regional director of the United States Department of Labor's Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions.

The court stated that the company, when violations were disclosed, had given assurance that it would comply with the law, but had failed to do so.

The court specifically prohibited the payment of wages at less than the 75-cents-an-hour minimum for covered employees, and failure to keep employment records as required by the law.

The firm is engaged in a transfer business.

thing about this before now, but they've had me almost speechless. There's a law against it, you know—if it were enforced.

NO HELP HERE

Last winter while I had time to consider the matter coolly and objectively, I decided I could save a lot of time if I'd get myself a barometer, the idea being, and at the time accepted, that when the glass is falling fish will not strike.

So I judiciously mentioned the matter so often that Santa took the hint and left me just what I wanted and what I thought I needed. Ever since, it has almost been a ritual with me, on retiring or arising, to take a peek at the contraption.

Then, only this week, so-called scientists who have done a lot of experimentation gave with the dictum that fish strike when they strike, that they don't read the barometer and aren't concerned with atmospheric pressure.

Which leaves me exactly where I was and always have been, anyhow—go fishing every time I can.

SILLY BOYS—AND GIRLS!

After watching television advertising and listening to the radio do its stuff—bottles jump into kinetoscopic formations, razor blades click into place and shave a guy clean in two slashing strokes, singers commit mayhem on the classics to chant the virtues of some cigarette or beer—I know why newspaper advertising remains the most effective. Simply because it's more sensible.

The greatest flood in the history of Kentucky was recorded in 1937.

"Turn Back the Clock" To Be Presented May 22

Something different is in store for Prestonsburg in the play, "Turn Back the Clock," to be presented Thursday evening, May 22 at 8 o'clock.
 This production, produced by special arrangement with Samuel French, was written by Marjorie and Joseph Hayes and has been produced on the professional stage as well as by amateurs with marked success. Filled with humor, it is built around the universal truth that all generations are more or less alike after all of us saying at one time or another "this generation is going to the dogs."
 The play, cast after try-outs by various members of the senior class, is being directed by Mrs. Cora Cook, English and Speech teacher and senior sponsor. It tells the story of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hill, who, worried and disgusted with their children and the irresponsibilities of the present generation, are allowed to view retrospectively their own wild exploits in the flapper-candy ankle days of 1928. The cast follows:
 Mrs. Anna Palmer, the mother—Lillis Derossett; Arthur Palmer, the father—Maurice Isbell; Evie Palmer—Betsy Spurlock; Larry Palmer—Eugene Ramey; Sally Palmer—Mary Katherine Greenwade; Charlie Hill—Bill Ray Collins; Johnnie Stone—Donnie Smiley; Irene Sherwood—Jean Ray Cooksey; Maybelle Harrison—Vera Baldrige; Barbara Bannister—Mary Belle Layneo Ollie Bannister—Bill Joe Spradlin; Chubby Bascombe—Don Preston; Hilda—Jean Varney.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

"Growing Pains"

It must have been years since I have heard of any one's discussing growing pains seriously. Of course, speakers of all sorts speak of growing pains in government, in education, and in just about everything else. But the real, hoest-to-goodness growing pains that everybody used to have seem to have become passing institutions. In all probability, when such pains now come on, the youngster is hurried to a doctor, or the parent drives forthwith to a drugstore and buys up a lot of vitamin pills; a few doses of this sort soon make the growing pains, or whatever they are called now, disappear like magic. But it was slightly different in the consulship of William McKinley.

Growing pains in the early days were something to remember. You were feeling perfectly normal; that is, you could have eaten rations for a regiment, and you had no trouble sleeping, especially about the time your daddy started calling you to get up. Suddenly you would have a pain as sharp-edged as a knife cut, and you would imagine that life and eating and sleeping were over for you. Whenever you mentioned your agony, you were likely to be laughed at by big brothers, who looked upon such pains as evidences that you were still a little boy. Of course, mother or big sister might offer some consolation temporarily, but you hated to be regarded as an invalid unless it entailed having some extra food or something especially prepared for you as a sick person. Growing pains, too, had a way of coming and going rather suddenly, so that the same boy who feared death at a certain hour would be able to jump a fence or skin a cat an hour later. I never knew a boy to die of growing pains, even though many boys, including me, suffered enough to warrant a spectacular death and a well-attended funeral. And then, about the time you got accustomed to these horrible pains, the malady ceased, and some elderly men today might declare that all of the pains were put-on. Before I get too old to remember how bad it all was, I want to set down my own memory of growing pains and the scant sympathy that I got. I surely would hate to have such agonies again, with or without sympathy. And that brings up another bit of suffering that many a boy has felt, and felt without grown-up sympathy. I mean now that period when the boyish voice is changing to a grown-up one, when calling hogs or singing or even replying softly to mother's call to dinner might produce sounds that no musical notation can record. Many boys of a later generation than mine seemed to face the temporary loss of a stable voice with a keen sense of humor, so that they, outwardly, did not feel inferior while they were getting their voices for manhood. But I felt it keenly and wondered whether I would ever get through this trying period. One man I knew never again could control his voice after it once started changing; he would squeak out a few unexpected words and then finish in a deep bass, as profound as Jim Steele's when he sang in the choir. I feared that I might do just that and go through life as uncertain a quantity as that squeaky voice. After suffering a few months, no longer, I arrived at the voice that has been mine ever since; but I lost a world of assurance that I formerly had when we would sing a high-pitched song at Sulphur Springs church. During this enforced period of squeaky voices I had to let singing alone or else make a spectacle of myself. Maybe I could have sung softly, but that is something I have never been able to do; it was either with a full voice or none, even drowning out the weaker-lunged ones who happened to be present. Though it has been many a year since the gossling age of my life, I still can feel the humiliation of it all. I wonder whether some other elderly fellows may not also recall sympathetically when they hardly dared to sing for fear that their notes would run out at the top or bottom. What with growing pains and gossling voices, we all manage to grow up, to live through it all; but I often wonder how many still remember when it was an unpleasant experience rather than a half-comic memory.

Frog-Gigging Season Began Last Saturday

The Director of the Division of Game and Fish with the concurrence of the Game and Fish Commission after giving due study and preliminary research have decided at a meeting on March 3, 1952 in Frankfort, Kentucky, that the increase in population of jumbo and bull frogs warrants the opening of the frog season starting at 12 o'clock midnight Friday, May 9, 1952 Central Standard Time.

The creel limit, or bag limit will be 15 frogs per day, each day starting at 12 o'clock midnight, with a possession limit of not more than 30 frogs, after the first day, provided he has hunted 2 or more consecutive days.

They can be taken with a gig, by hand, or rifle and either a fishing or hunting license is required whether taken in public or private waters. The gig shall not have more than four prongs; no prong shall be longer than two and one-half inches; the prongs shall be made out of not heavier than 14-gauge wire or metal, and shall not have more than one barb on each prong.

This regulation is to apply to the entire state and will be in effect until May 31, 1952, when the regular law will apply.

Kentucky Lake State Park in Western Kentucky, one of the nation's best fishing spots, has a recreation area of 1,300 miles plus a four-mile lake front.

Training As Miner Enables Addington To Aid Injured Man

Portsmouth, Va., May 12 — The first-aid technique he learned while working as a miner for the Beaver Coal & Mine Company in Drift, Floyd county, Ky., enabled Israel Addington, now employed at the Norfolk Naval Shipyard, here, to give valuable assistance to a fellow shipyard employe last week.

Addington, who has been employed in the shipyard only a month, was working aboard ship as an electrician. He heard the crash caused by a shipfitter helper falling from a staging to the ship's deck, 10 feet below. The Kentuckian rushed to the scene and found the helper, H. H. Powers, bleeding profusely about the head.

Applying pressure to various pressure points, Addington was successful in stopping the bleeding. Naval medical personnel then arrived on the scene and arranged for hospitalization of the injured man. Addington's first-aid knowledge and quick response was considered very instrumental in preventing the man's condition from becoming worse than it would have been from the profuse bleeding.

Addington was employed by the mine company from July 1948 to January 1952. He served in the U.S. army from 1942 to 1945.

He is one of a group of new employes reporting from various Southern states in electrical, machinist, boilermaker, boatbuilder, welder and other trades, assisting in the heavy defense workload of the shipyard.

Liberty Elkhorn Coal Co. Inspected by Mine Dept.

Norton, Va. — More effective rock dusting and other improvements are proposed for the 28-man No. W-20 mine, Liberty Elkhorn Mining Company, near Maytown, Ky., in a coal-mine inspection report released today by the U. S. Bureau of Mines.

Inspector Henry Bickelman, who re-examined the 200-ton-a-day mine recently, recommended increasing the incombustible content of the coal dust so it will not enter into a possible explosion, improved ventilation in two sets of active entries, better air-coursing facilities, installing fire doors in the mine openings to prevent smoke or fire from outside sources endangering men working underground, eliminating haulage and electrical hazards, the use of goggles by employes, and discontinuing smoking in the mine.

In suggesting better timbering in one working place, inspector Bickelman pointed out that falls of roof and coal are the leading causes of fatalities in coal mines.

The workmen tested the roof frequently and air measurements were made each week, the inspector noted with approval.

Johnson County Jury Pens 80-Year-Old Man In Death of His Friend

Paintsville, Ky., May 13 — A Johnson county jury today found 80-year-old Bill Johnson guilty of voluntary manslaughter in the death of his friend Henry Van Hoose, and fixed his sentence at 10 years.

Van Hoose, in his late 70's, was found strangled and beaten to death on a bed in the Johnson home last Christmas Day. Johnson was the only person in the house at the time.

The elderly Paintsville man took the stand today shortly before the trial ended. He told the jury that he was asleep and was awakened by a noise.

Johnson testified he got out of bed, turned on a light and saw Van Hoose's body lying on another bed in the room. He said he took hold of Van Hoose's head to look at him, saw he was dead and ran outside to call for help.

The defense claimed, in final arguments, that the prosecution had produced only circumstantial evidence. The prosecution pointed to blood stains on Johnson's hands and clothing, threats to his wife earlier Christmas Day, and the fact that he was alone in the house with Van Hoose, as evidence that he killed his friend.

The jury deliberated less than half an hour in reaching a verdict. Commonwealth's Attorney W. D. Sparks said Johnson would be formally sentenced later this week, unless he appeals.

John M. Kinnard, commissioner of the Department of Motor Transportation, was the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal, with Oak Leaf Clusters, for his exploits in the China-Burma theater during World War II.

The body of Pvt. Joe Robert "Chooter" Scalf, who was killed on the Korean front last year, was returned to Pikeville, today. Missing officially since February 13, 1951, it was only a few weeks ago that the War Department notified his parents that he was dead.

Pvt. Scalf was 22 years of age and was the son of Ervin and Violet Runyon Scalf of Endicott, Buffalo creek, Pike county. He attended the Pike county grade schools before voluntarily enlisting in the army. At this time when his body is being returned for burial in the Scalf cemetery on Buffalo creek, his father, who was a veteran of World War I, is confined to the Methodist hospital at Pikeville.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete but it is said the rites will be conducted from the Burchett schoolhouse on Buffalo Sunday, and that the officiating ministers will be the Revs. E. Walter Collins, Isaac Stratton and Henry Crider. Burial will be nearby in the family cemetery.

It was recalled that the cemetery in which Pvt. Scalf will be buried is the last resting place of soldiers of three wars. His great grandfather, Hezekiah and a paternal uncle, Beverley Scalf, who was killed in World War I are buried there.

HEART DEATH RATE LOWER

In Floyd, Data Shows; Rate 17 Per Cent Off National Disease Pace

Special to The Times

NEW YORK, May 9 — Heart disease, the leading cause of death in the nation today, is less of a factor in the lives of Floyd county residents than with residents of most other parts of the country.

A smaller percentage of deaths is caused by heart disease in the county than in most other communities, according to data gathered by the National Office of Vital Statistics in 1950, covering the previous year, and just released.

Out of a total of 344 deaths in Floyd county in the year from all causes, 121 were the result of some form of heart disease, the official figures show.

Thus, heart disease was charged with nearly 35 percent of the Floyd deaths, as compared with nearly 52 percent in the nation at large and with 45 percent in the East-South-Central states. In the state of Kentucky death from this cause amounted to 47 percent.

The fact that more than half of all deaths in the country—more than the combined total of those due to cancer, the other diseases and accidents—are chargeable to heart ailments, points up the importance of the problem and the emphasis being placed upon it nationally.

The 121 heart deaths in Floyd county during the year were equivalent to a rate of 238 deaths per 100,000 population. In the East-South-Central states the rate was 412 per 100,000 population and, in Kentucky, 455. Elsewhere in the United States the average was 492 heart deaths per 100,000 people.

The chances of dying from heart disease are becoming greater year by year, it is pointed out by the U. S. Public Health Service. This is due largely to the fact that other diseases are being conquered and people are living longer. Older people are more subject to falling victim to it than are younger people.

Hope is held out for an eventual solution, however. Rapid progress has been made in the last 25 years, so that at present, according to heart specialists, we have compiled more knowledge about the disease through research than we have yet learned to apply.

SPORTS AFIELD

By TED KESTING

There's a new kind of land grab going on. It nibbles small chunks of public land steadily, day after day, and like the drip of a leaking faucet, these losses add up to a startling volume. It's all legal but nonetheless, it adds up to a racket—the filing of bogus mineral claims to gain title to public domain.

The federal mining law is 85 years old and does not make clear the difference between surface and subsurface rights in mining locations or claims. This loophole opens the way for numerous abuses of surface resources. During a trip through several western states, Cleveland Van Dresser, an outdoor writer for national magazines, saw beer parlors, hot-dog stands, private homes, motel and motor courts located within national forests and other public land areas that were masquerading as "mines."

All these people had to do was find a piece of land that is sufficiently mineralized, locate a claim, file it in the county seat—and they're on their way toward owning some property out of the public domain. The mineralization requirement isn't much of an obstacle. In fact, a judge sitting on a claim case said somewhat cynically that the copper in a penny was enough to show mineral traces for 640 acres.

In case you think this is just a flight of fancy, here is one phase of the situation confronted by the Forest Service: Close to one million acres of national forest land have passed into private ownership under the mining laws. According to the best estimates available, only about 14 per cent of these lands have ever produced minerals in commercial quantities.

Here's another case: The Bureau of Land Management inspectors heard of a sawmill operating on public land. They investigated and found the mill. This claimant simply took a broad interpretation of the law (which states in effect that a claim locator has the free use of as much timber as he may need to pursue his mining operations) and cut down all the timber on his claim and sold it. There was enough of it to warrant erecting a sawmill.

Morally, that timber was the property of the American people. But by the looseness of the mining laws and inadequate enforcement of the existing regulations, a single individual got profit from it, besides defacing a public area.

The Hoover Commission on Government Reorganization made some strong statements on this subject, and a study is under way by federal officials aimed at a revision of the mining laws. Keep an eye on it.

Since 1890, more than $29 billion worth of coal has been sold from the mines of Pennsylvania.

Coal is consumed in greater tonnage than any other commodity produced by man.

Mexico's coal production is only about one million tons, or less than the output of Arkansas.

the bonds shall, when issued, be placed under the control of the fiscal court of the county which shall determine when, at what price and how they shall be sold . . ."

In the Floyd bond election, he reasoned, the voters gave only assent to the court to incur the indebtedness, and the court has the right to refuse to issue the bonds if conditions have changed and necessity has ceased to exist.

So he advised: "It is the duty of your fiscal court in this matter to pursue the course that will impose the least burden upon the taxpayers of your county, and if refusing to issue the bonds is for the best interest of the taxpayers . . . it is their duty to make that refusal."

Between $55,000 and $60,000 was collected this year in taxes on the levy made to create a fund to amortize the bonds when issued. What is to be done with that fund is a matter which has not been decided.

The two men had been working in Columbus for the Timken Roller Bearing Company. Smith's fines totaled $15, plus costs.

In addition to the $5,000 bond asked for his release under the voluntary manslaughter charge till the grand jury convenes. Stone was placed under $500 bond to answer to trial in the county court here, May 26, on a drunk driving charge.

Surviving the victim, besides her parents, are one brother, Francis Stapleton, Lorain, O., five sisters, Mrs. Dolly Roop and Miss Norma Jean Stapleton, both of Ypsilanti, Mich., Mrs. Evelyn Booth and Miss Burtha Stapleton, both of Lancer, Mrs. Lillian Loretta Smith, of Ivel; also three half-brothers and one half-sister, Herschell Jarrell, Wheelwright, William Jarrell, Prestonsburg, Wesley Jarrell and Mrs. Lizzie McCoy, both of Ohio.

The Stapleton girl was a member of the Baptist Church. Her funeral was conducted Sunday from the residence at Lancer by the Revs. Isaac Stratton, Randall Goble and Henry Crider. Burial was made in the Wiley cemetery at Whitehouse under direction of the Arnold Funeral Home.

"I Thought the

says Sam Pearce, Seattle, Wash. "If you want pickup, there isn't a car on the road, in any price class, that can beat the Rambler. Yet for economy, the gas gauge goes down so slowly you think it's broken."

IT'S TRUE. Nash Rambler owners are amazed at the sensational mileage they get. This is the car that holds the all-time record in the Mobilgas Economy Run with 31.05 miles per gallon! This in a real "red-hot" performer with so much room inside! This in such a smart and beautifully equipped car—the only car that comes to you with its many custom accessories at no extra cost!

Come see it. Especially, come drive it. Just take five minutes to discover something absolutely new in handling and parking ease . . . and new in performance, too!

STRIP BANKS RECLAIMED

By Fertilizer Application, Crops, Pasture Program, Says Coal Co. Official

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 6 (Spl.)—Frank J. Foresman, personnel director, The Pittsburg and Midway Coal Mining Co., Pittsburg, Kansas, described the encouraging progress being made by his company in rehabilitating and farming lands acquired through the strip mining of coal, at the 1952 Coal Convention of the American Mining Congress here today.

Foresman said that rehabilitation and farming activities are carried on over more than 17,000 acres owned by the company in Cherokee county, Kansas. Of this acreage some 5,000 acres have been stripped of the underlying coal.

He told the coal meeting that the company undertook the first rehabilitation work by planting trees on mined over areas as early as 1938. He pointed out that the plantings have yielded crops of walnuts and fruits.

Foresman also said that the strip areas have been planted in forage crops which have proven highly successful and support good-sized herds of beef cattle.

In addition to the rehabilitation of the strip banks, Foresman said that considerable work is carried on to develop and improve land that does not contain workable coal. He told the convention: "The entire acreage not mined is utilized for growing wheat, corn, oats, soybeans, sweet clover, grain sorghums, prairie hay and pasture. The total acreage is made up of many tracts varying in size from as small as 1 to as large as 400 acres. Except on the experimental farm projects, the land is farmed on a sharecrop basis by tenant farmers under the guidance and supervision of the company's farm department headed by an agriculture college graduate who majored in range and pasture management. Many farmers in the vicinity have extended their acreage by working one or more tracts in addition to their regular farm. A large number of the tracts are suitable farms and are worked as such without adding smaller tracts as supplementary acreage."

He said an extensive fertilizer program, in which the company encourages the building up of the soil by paying half of the fertilizer cost, "is increasing the valuation of the land and paying the farmers a larger profit." He said, "In many instances wheat production has been increased by 66%, oat yields have been 60% higher, and the carrying capacity of flat land pasture has been substantially increased."

As part of its rehabilitation program, Foresman said, the company is cooperating with the Kansas Fish and Game Commission and the Federal Fish and Wildlife Service to improve fishing in lakes that have been formed in the abandoned strip pits on the company's lands. The Kansas Fish and Game Commission, in cooperation with the Biology department of the Kansas State Teachers College, has been doing much work collecting information concerning physical, chemical and biological conditions. These facts, he stated, will be studied and evaluated so that proper management techniques can be applied in making improvements in the lakes, which will result in better fishing. To encourage more people to take advantage of the unusual recreational facilities provided by the strip land areas, district coal mining companies, in cooperation with the Stripland Committee of the local Chamber of Commerce, sponsor an annual fishing contest with highly desirable cash and merchandise awards. The bass that won the grand prize in 1951 weighed 6 pounds, 12 ounces.

With the number of people participating in the popular sport of fishing increasing every year, strip-land lakes are helping to fill a recreational need in every community where they are found, Foresman declared.

Dr. Biggs To Return To His Alma Mater As Alumni Speaker

Pikeville, Ky., May 12 (Spl.)—Dr. A. D. Biggs, of Chicago, Ill., "Alfred" to his classmates and other friends in Eastern Kentucky—will speak at the annual banquet of the Pikeville College Alumni Association May 28.

Dr. Biggs, a noted pediatrician in Chicago and the Middle West, was graduated from Pikeville College Academy in 1911, and returned in 1918 to teach there a year. W. H. May's, alumni president, said.

A member of the 11th graduating class, Dr. Biggs was the 32nd person to receive a diploma from the young school, which was founded in 1889 as Pikeville Collegiate Institute. At commencement he won the Dr. H. C. Condit prize of a gold watch, then given each year to the highest-ranking Academy graduate.

Distinguished as a Fellow of the American Medical Association, Dr. Biggs is professor of pediatrics in the Northwestern University Medical School. He is also chairman of the department of pediatrics of St. Luke's hospital, Chicago, the hospital maintained by the University of Chicago school of medicine.

The banquet speaker earned his doctor of medicine degree at Rush Medical College of the University of Chicago in 1922, after receiving the A.B. degree from Maryville College in 1915. Dr. Biggs, a native of Greenup county, Kentucky, is a brother of the late Seton Biggs, of Praise. He is a veteran of World War I.

Income Tax Processing Is Nearing Completion

Frankfort, Ky., May 10 (Spl.)—Most checks for payment of State personal income taxes will be back in the hands of hometown banks by the end of this week, Commissioner of Revenue Clyde Reeves reported today.

Reeves said his office was beginning to get queries from persons who mailed returns close to the April 15 filing deadline wanting to know when checks will be cracked. Except for checks received late, all will be out of the Department of Revenue by the middle of the week, he said.

Of a total of 220,000 pay returns processed by the department to date, only 80,000 were received before April 10, Reeves reported. This left nearly two-thirds of the year's total for processing at the last minute. All returns are being processed according to the date received, the commissioner said.

Persons who make a business of filing returns for others generally got returns in well ahead of the deadline but a few created a bottleneck by holding returns and mailing them all at once on April 15, Reeves said. Some included checks made out several months before, he said.

CAPITAL Roundup

ROAD DISTRICTS ADDED

Kentucky will have 11 highway districts starting in June, rather than nine as at present. Commissioner of Highways William P. Curlin announced that the districts were being added to increase efficiency and economy in the department. It is the first time districts have been increased since 1932, and activities and funds of the department have grown nearly four times since then, Curlin said.

ACTION DEFERRED

The State Property and Buildings Commission deferred action on a $2,500,000 expansion program at the Kentucky Training Home for feeble-minded in Frankfort, pending study of a plan to move the patients confined at the Home to larger quarters now occupied by Kentucky State Hospital at Danville.

RATE REDUCTION ANNOUNCED

Commissioner of Insurance Spalding Southall announced a $1,200,000 Kentucky rate reduction in annual fire insurance and extended coverage premiums—bulk of which is applicable to dwellings, mercantile establishments, whiskey and farm property.

BELOW NATIONAL AVERAGE

Kentucky had 114 persons enrolled in college for each 10,000 population last year compared with a national average of 165 for each 10,000, according to a study made by Miss Louise Combs of the Division of Teacher Education and Certification, who suggested that adequate steps be taken to meet the "alarming situation." She suggested that more high school seniors be encouraged to pursue college training.

MACHINES ILLEGAL

The Kentucky Court of Appeals held one-ball pinball machines to be illegal gambling devices subject to confiscation by law if, after a jury trial, it is found they constitute a hazard or game of chance. Decision was given on appeal from Glasgow where five machines were held to be such devices—even though they were of the "free-game" variety for pay-offs.

CONTRACTS AWARDED

State Highway Commissioner William P. Curlin announced awarding of $1,340,000 in contracts for improving 245 miles of road in Boyle, Muhlenberg, Todd, Logan, Allen, Henry, Caldwell, Hopkins, Pendleton, Grant, Warren, Webster, Graves, Calloway, Letcher, Perry, Fleming, Mason, Marshall, Gallatin, Carroll, Campbell, Boone, Woodford, Jessamine, Fayette, Franklin, Union, Wolfe, Jefferson and Henderson counties.

SOLDIERS WIVES INELIGIBLE

Assistant Attorney General Walter C. Herdman held that wives of regular government employees who go abroad with their husbands may receive absentee ballots to vote in state primary and general elections but that the same privilege does not apply to wives of members of the Armed Forces who may go overseas.

NEW SUBJECTS CHOSEN

The Kentucky Legislative Research Commission called for more data on three topics it has been asked to explore for consideration by the 1954 General Assembly. They include a minimum foundation program for public education in Kentucky, a study of senility and chronically ill cases in mental hospitals and home care for cities.

The Commission already has instituted studies on the need for a new medical school in Kentucky, spastic treatment and treatment of alcoholics.

The Christian County Farm Bureau has ordered two carloads of Montana yearling ewes for July delivery.

BETSY LAYNE CHAPTER
By Orville Hall, Reporter

The Betsy Layne F.F.A. Softball Team has just emerged from a highly successful Softball season, winning five games and losing none.

The season opened on April 18, 1952, at the local field. The Betsy Layne team defeated Johns Creek F.F.A. by a score of 37 to 7. The winners collected 28 hits off the deliveries of Ratliff and McGuire while the Johns Creek boys were only able to garner 13 hits from the left-handed slants of Jack Rice. Leading hitter for this game was Jonce Cole who had six hits in seven times at bat. Ervins Settlers collected 4 for 5, and Brany Jones had three for four.

On April 22 the Betsy Layne boys journeyed to Virgie and defeated the home team by a score of 18 to 6. Vanidan Ferrell went the distance for the winners and allowed nine well scattered hits. Emit Adkins, first baseman for the Betsy Layne team, was the game's leading hitter—collecting 5 hits in 6 times at bat. Price Wright, second sacker from Betsy Layne, had four hits in five times at bat.

On April 29 the Betsy Layne team went to Johns Creek and defeated the home team by a score of 13 to 10. Howard Branham had 2 hits in 3 times at bat, Jonce Cole had 2 for 4, and Jack Rice had 2 for 4, including a 3 run homer in the second inning. Emit Adkins hit a 2 run homer in the fifth inning.

On Thursday, May 8, the Betsy Layne boys entertained the Prestonsburg F.F.A. team and defeated them to the tune of 15 to 4. Jonce Cole was the game's leading hitter, getting four hits in four official times at bat. Price Wright had 3 hits in five times at bat. Jack Rice, erstwhile southpaw from Betsy Layne, was on the mound for the winners and allowed the Prestonsburg boys only five hits.

The season was concluded on May 9 with a 23 to 3 shellacking pasted on the Virgie boys. Long, lanky, lefty Jack Rice pitched a neat four hitter while his mates were combining two Virgie pitchers for 27 solid base hits. Leading hitters for the game were Dale Adkins with 5 for 6, Howard Branham with four for 7, and Emit Adkins with 3 for 5. The outcome of the game was never in doubt as the Betsy Layne boys scored 12 runs in the first inning and coasted to an easy victory. Charles Webb and Howard Branham hit home runs.

Protection is to be afforded Bullitt, Meade, Hardin, Boyd, Wolfe, Lee, Owsley and Christian counties. With the addition of the eight counties, 36 counties in the state will be covered by fire protection with a total of 5,682,000 acres. Graves county, according to Newland, has signed an agreement to have its 65,000 acres of forest land placed under fire protection beginning next year.

County-wide fire protection is extended under agreements between the county and state, in which county, state and federal funds are used. Protection is provided by the personnel of the State Division of Forestry.

Fish and Game Club To Rear More Quail; Offers Blast Reward
The Floyd County Fish and Game Club at its May meeting at Maytown voted to rear 800 quails instead of the usual 600.

It was also voted to pay $50 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person dynamiting the streams of Floyd county.

The club requests the people of Floyd county who buy county or state licenses to buy them on weekdays rather than on Sunday.

A plaque will be given to the game club member catching the largest carp in the county. Application blanks may be obtained from John R. Baldrige, secretary-treasurer, Langley, Kentucky. Rules governing the contest provide that the catch must be made in Floyd county and that it must be witnessed by two persons.

During the month of April the state pollution inspector made a tour of Floyd county mines and found only one mine polluting the streams. The club wishes to thank mine officials for their cooperation.

The next regular club meeting will be held at Maytown, June 2. A worthwhile door prize will be given. All members are urged to attend.

The 161 million tons of coal produced in West Virginia last year almost tripled the output of all France.

Bituminous coal is used in 13 of the Veterans Administration's hospitals, office buildings, and other installations.

Prestonsburg—Martin

This month a year ago, the Rev. Harold Black, who revitalized the First Presbyterian Church here after it had suffered the doldrums over a long period of years, began at St. Cloud, Fla., the same sort of task, and how well he succeeded is the subject of a feature story in an Orlando (Fla.) newspaper.

Prestonsburg friends of the minister and his family who attended the services at the St. Cloud Presbyterian Church last winter found proof of the effectiveness of his work in the crowds which packed the church to hear his sermons. Only recently, the congregation unanimously voted to expand the church building.

The Orlando newspaper story follows, in part:

He works on the theory that consecration and membership participation are vital factors in any church program.

The Sunday School, recently de-partmentalized, has an average attendance of 100 which is a 65 per cent increase over last year.

A model nursery has been set up by Mrs. Leah O'Conner, specialist in church school work. It compares favorably with those in much larger churches and gives parents of small children an opportunity to attend all Sunday morning services.

A young adults' class of approximately 30 members gather in the living room of the manse each Sunday morning for coffee and doughnuts. This brief social period has proven popular and precedes the study hour.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Black are dinner hosts at their home each month to members of the Session. Church leaders, attending these affairs, praise this promotion of fellowship and understanding. Another recent innovation is an organized men's group which meets regularly. New members are honored and birthdays are recognized when the entire congregation gathers for a church supper the last Wednesday of every month.

"The Bible is the textbook for Christian living," he says, "and my purpose is to explain how to apply its teachings to everyday living."

The young churchman says that he is vitally interested in alcoholism. He was instrumental in organizing groups of Alcoholics Anonymous in Eastern Kentucky and was sent by that organization to the 1950 session of the Yale School of Alcoholism Studies. He has made numerous lectures and radio broadcasts on the subject.

The Rev. Mr. Black was graduated from West Virginia University and Western Theological Seminary at Pittsburgh. Mrs. Black studied at Marietta College, Marietta, Ohio.

The couple has three children, David, 12, Wayne, 8, and Barbara, 5.

WAYLAND

WOMAN'S CLUB NEWS

The Lackey-Garrett Woman's Club met in the home of Mrs. E. C. Blanton, Garrett, with Mrs. Delbert Stone, co-hostess, on May 8.

During a brief business session, it was voted to endorse Mrs. Regina Mayo, of Prestonsburg, for the Kentucky Distinguished Service award for 1952.

A film, "The Clean Look," was enjoyed. The club is especially grateful to George Evans for his services in running the film, and for the use of his screen and projector.

It was announced that the next meeting will be a breakfast in the home of Mrs. J. C. Wells, with Mrs. Roy Souleyrette, co-hostess. May 17, when officers will be installed for the new year.

Refreshments were served to 18 members.

The Lackey-Garrett Woman's Club recently sponsored a show at the Wayland Theatre with proceeds of approximately $45.00 for the club's scholarship fund of $100. The club members would like to take this opportunity to express thanks to the teachers of the Wayland high and grade school, and to Mack Elliott, who so graciously cooperated.

JUNIOR WOMAN'S CLUB MEETS

The regular meeting of the Wayland Junior Woman's Club was held in the home of Mrs. Charles Adkins, Monday evening, May 5.

Mrs. Ruel Hicks gave a report on the pocketbooks to be sent to Veterans hospitals and urged all members to get their books to her soon. The club also voted to give $5.00 toward the Cancer drive.

There was a discussion on the Birth-Date Calendar the Club will work on this year, and Mrs. A. N. Begley gave each member some blanks to begin work and instructions.

Some of the club members attended a tea Saturday afternoon given by the Lackey-Garrett Club.

A dessert course was served to the following members: Miss Anna Belle Palin, Madames David Sloan, A. N. Begley, Ralph Wright, Ruel Hicks, Jack Hammett, and hostess Mrs. Charles Adkins.

The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. A. N. Begley, Monday evening, May 19.

EASTERN STATE GETS ALLOTMENT

Frankfort, Ky., May 12—The State Property and Buildings Commission allotted $150,000 to Eastern State Hospital and $143,787 to the Parks Division late today.

The allotment to the hospital at Lexington will be used to buy furniture and equipment for the negro ward building.

Governor Wetherby said requests for funds for the coming fiscal year were deferred until all those expected had come in.

Several U. S. railroads each hauled more than 70 million tons of bituminous coal away from the mines last year.

IT'S A GOOD WORLD

BY WILMAY

When young mothers insist they cannot attend church services because baby is too young, we cite Charles Russell Hall, little son of Mr. and Mrs. Helton Hall, and Phyllis Marie Wadley, new daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Mearl Wadley, both of the First Baptist Church, Martin, regular attendants of all services.

And we think of our own mother, who reared six, and seldom missed a service with any of us, even before cars came into existence. Moreover, she could take a trunk laden with food for all-day occasions, when dinner on the ground was a real treat. As for a nursery to leave baby with others, such was unheard of.

Last we think of the old priceless saying, "Where there is a will there is a way."

Marena Grigsby, of Martin, had just one request to make of Coach Adolf Rupp when he made his recent visit in their home, relative to Pete, Jr.'s entrance at U.K. in the fall. She asked that her boy be permitted to room with a Christian. Pete, Jr., has been a Christian since he was eight years old, and, according to the town folks, he really proves his faith, for it is known that he does not drink, smoke, swear or lose his temper. How different the world would be if all mothers were this concerned for the welfare and spiritual growth of their children!

All six of the Grigsby boys are church members, and Marena Anne will be baptized soon. They have a real prayer life in their home, and Pete, Jr., proves that Christians are not sissies.

Many have asked why the Passion Pageant was presented. It originated to meet a two-fold need: first, to win lost persons to Christ ultimately, by making them start thinking about Him whose life it portrayed from beginning to end. Many individuals who never attend services anywhere, or ever read God's Word, saw, and others will see, this dramatization of the greatest figure ever to walk the face of the earth.

Religious drama is an effective means for reaching the unsaved, according to the May issue of the Baptist Training Union Magazine. The Seventh and James Church in Waco, Texas, has presented dramas regularly for more than two years to over eighteen thousand persons in B.T.U. services, all ages participating, and many spiritual decisions have been attributed to them.

Pageant leaders respect those whose opinions differ, but find nothing in the Bible to prove it is mockery as charged by a few. Jesus Himself employed illustrative material, using nature objects and lessons. Methods of teaching keep abreast of the times, utilizing inventions and introductions that prove helpful. Jesus never rode in a car or plane, for there were none in His day.

By the way, we are still wondering who told our editor Jesus preaching the Sermon on the Mount was John the Baptist in the Wilderness. But since he kindly caught our error of two "t's" in Beatitudes, we will forgive him for the slip. The point is, our mistakes were plentiful and obvious enough without having this one!

Second, the pageant was given to show the outside world what the good people of the hills are like. Too often we are judged—rather, MISjudged by the lowest class of citizens in the mountains. This is largely our own fault, through failure to boost and advertise the good that exists here. We neglect to put our best foot forward, so to speak. The pageant, which will grow annually, provides an excellent opportunity to let outsiders judge us first-hand and learn that few here go barefooted, eat with a knife and wear trousers six inches above shoe tops! Incidentally, a Chicagoan, who has seen all the great Passion Plays and Pageants, including the original, abroad, predicts that Martin's will soon be first, because of its unprecedented beginning.

LISTING NEW LAWS

Frankfort, Ky., May 13—A supplement to Kentucky Statutes, containing the 229 new laws and amendments enacted by the 1952 General Assembly, will be ready for distribution soon.

Robert W. Meagher, chief reviser for the Statute Revision Commission, said today several hundred copies were produced through a duplicating process for convenience of attorneys and others needing the 1952 laws.

Coal miners in Pennsylvania earned between $75 and $80 per week for the first 10 months of 1951, according to state reports.

Entered as second class matter June 18, 1927, at the postoffice at Prestonsburg, Ky., under the act of March 3, 1879.

We Should Get Tough

Of course the driver of that automobile which came hurtling around a curve near here, the other day, to dash to death a young girl didn't plan her death. The fact that the car plunged over an embankment after striking the girl and a young boy points to that fact.

Yet the result was no less lethal than if he had been gunning for the youngsters.

The driver of the car claims he was not drunk. He may not have been. But the tragedy in which he figured was of the drunk driver pattern: utter abandon, high speed, a car out of control—then a wrecked car and the injured or dead.

A drunk man armed with a deadly weapon can and does kill as dead by shooting by random as the cold-eyed killer does by drawing the bead.

So, not in anger but driven by a wild, demonic exuberance, the drunken man at the wheel of an automobile kills the innocent and the defenseless. Thus it is that every man or woman at the wheel of a motor vehicle while under the influence of an intoxicant is a potential killer, a killer against whose mass destruction of human life and property society has failed to build or maintain a defense.

"Shooting would be good enough for a man like that," commented some irate citizens who were horrified by the tragedy.

But what did they do about that acquaintance of theirs whom they saw whiz away with a wild screech of tires after loading up on whiskey, a few evenings or weeks earlier? "Poor fellow! Hope he gets home safely!"

Poor fellow, indeed! How safe are those other folks he'll be meeting, on the way home? How safe the boy or girl walking on the dirt at the edge of the roadbed?

Yes, he may be a good fellow out of his cups. Thought of tragedy may be far from his mind. But he is a menace to others, and he deserves no pity if you want to look at this matter of life and death realistically.

How much better for "the poor fellow" would it be for the law to be firmly enforced before he blindly drives a mass of steel into yielding flesh and brings mental torture and sorrow to others as well as to himself?

These "poor fellows and these "good fellows" are among the biggest menaces to the public. For they are given the benefit of doubt, their influence weighs heavily against strict enforcement of the law, and so they are given enough rope to hang themselves but not before bringing death to some innocent.

In Floyd county there has been a toughening of the attitude of the law toward drunk driving. It could and should be tougher. And the law here could be greatly toughened by an adequate performance on the part of the state police. Arrival at the scene of an accident long after some broken body has been hurried off to a hospital or the morgue is too late.

The state police have the facilities and the men to crack down hard on those who make use of the highways one of man's most perilous missions of the day.

Citizens of this county should demand impartial enforcement of laws governing conduct on the highways. They should support officers who crack down on the offenders rather than carp about the law being enforced when a friend or relative is involved. We hear much talk of "money hunts" and "coffee money"; too little of the rights of the lawabiding people who are fair targets for death on wheels.

With the rank-and-file adopting the proper attitude, final enforcement of the law by juries in the courts is certain; for already the people will have adopted the get-tough policy and will carry it out to the finish.

Some of us may be educated academically to the rights of others, some may learn from precept; and then some will never learn except in the School of Experience which, rightly enough, is mentored by a stern teacher.

MARTIN WINS FLOYD TITLE

In Basketball Tourney; Goines Stars in Relief To Halt McDowell Rally

Martin high school outlasted McDowell high to win last Friday the district baseball title, 8 to 7, and a place in the regional tournament at Grayson this month. Winner of the Grayson meet will take part in the state high school tourney in Louisville.

Coach Denzil Halbert's team won its second district title in the five years of his coaching regime at Martin largely through the pitching and batting of Jimmy Goines, sturdy righthander. Goines, who had downed Prestonsburg's Black Cats, last year's district champs, 6 to 1 in the semi-finals last Thursday, went to the hill in a relief role Friday after Martin's defense collapsed as the team held a 7-2 lead over McDowell in the sixth inning. After McDowell's centerfielder Yates had rapped a double in the seventh, Goines struck out the next two batters and smothered the uprising. In the top of the seventh he singled, stole second and scored on a sacrifice.

Shortstop Pete Grigsby paced the Martin attack with a single and home run and rightfielder Ronald Tackett drove home three runs with a double and single. McDowell's pitcher, K. Stumbo, whose mates kept him in hot water with six errors, led the losers with a triple and single.

McDowell reached the finals by eliminating Wheelwright 4-3 Thursday as Edgar Stevens hurled a three-hitter. aMartin, in addition to dropping Prestonsburg in the semi-finals, topped Auxier 7-1 in the tournament opener with righthander Ezra Click going the route. In the other opening round game Wheelwright bested Betsy Layne 10-9 in a slugfest.

Recreation equipment was purchased by Clay county 4-H'ers with $25 won in the National 4-H Club Recreation and Rural Arts Program.

Folk Music Program Honors 'Daughter' Clubs

Garrett, Ky., May 12 (Spl.) — "American folk music portrays the early social and religious life of America and is a living history of our country's growth," emphasized Mrs. Tom James, of Prestonsburg, singer and musician and authority on folk music, in her appearance Saturday afternoon at the Garrett high school auditorium as guest of the Lackey-Garnett Woman's Club. Accompanying Mrs. James was Mrs. C. P. Stephens, also of Prestonsburg. Mrs. James appealed to native Kentuckians to preserve their mountain ballads in their purity and simplicity, stressing the fact that most of the old love songs are pure Elizabethan ballads, ranking along with the classics. "Although most of these ballads end on a tragic note, still they portray the tragedy and hardship in the lives of our forefathers," reminded Mrs. James. "These folk songs are needed now more than ever to help us to hold our balance in a changing civilization."

Typifying early religious songs Mrs. James and Mrs. Stephens sang "Oh, What Wondrous Love," with Mrs. James at the piano. They also rendered "Poor Wayfaring Stranger," followed by "Beautiful Home Sweet Home," which, Mrs. James claimed, is written in free rhythm.

"Dove in the Lonesome Pine" was sung by Mrs. Stephens, followed by "Pretty Polly," sung by Mrs. James. In conclusion the two guest singers gave "You Must Walk That Lonesome Valley," calling on the audience to join in the chorus.

This program was given in honor of the daughter clubs of the Lackey-Garnett Woman's Club and representative groups from Hindman, Betsy Layne, Allen-Martin, and Wayland Junction were asked to stand for recognition.

At the conclusion of the program refreshments were served in the Home Economics room, with Miss Marie Coburn in charge.
