BLACK CATS WIN AND LOSE

Are at Home Friday For Meade Memorial; Hughes Heads Region

The Prestonsburg high school Black Cats defeated the Garrett Black Devils here Friday night in convincing fashion, 84 to 61, but on the following night were edged at Wayland 81 to 77, despite John Delmar Hughes' 45-point scoring spree for the Cats.

In the game against Garrett three other Black Cats for the first time this season broke into the two-figure scoring class as Dixon annexed 22 points, Laferty, a substitute, 11, and Lowell Hughes, 10. Conley led the Black Devils with 25 margins.

Hughes' 45 points in the Wayland game brought his average to 28.3 points for 15 games, the best in Region 15. Grady Wallace, Betsy Layne center, set a new regional scoring record Friday night when he scored 57 points against Phelps high school and he trails Hughes in the averages by a single point. Leonard Carpenter, Salyersville guard, heads the area scoring parade with 711 points in 26 games.

Prestonsburg plays Meade Memorial here Friday night. Tonight (Thursday) Prestonsburg is at Wheelwright, a team which last week defeated Pikeville.

There are four basic types of bass fishing — surface, shallow deep and bottom. Judging by the huge tackle chests you see some anglers carrying, you need a lot of plugs to catch bass. Or do you? Just what is the minimum number of plugs you need? Could you get along with just one?

We asked Jason Lucas, who has the biggest tackle box I've ever seen, and he reluctantly admitted a guy who knows his fishing might be able to do so by clever manipulation of that one plug.

Now, I don't expect any bass fishermen will actually believe I mean for him to get along on one or two or even three plugs. But what follows should give you a hint of how to assemble a well-balanced selection of plugs. A huge majority of tackle boxes that we see are equipped for surface and shallow fishing only.

If you were limited to just one plug, Lucas suggests a floating shallow runner, perhaps of natural scale or an orange color. His type of surface lure, on which he gets the most bass, isn't a surface lure at all but a floater which he retrieves very, very slowly with occasional jerks of the rod tip. You could convert this into a deep plug by adding split shot or lead but you'd have to be very careful not to wreck the action.

If you were to be a two-plug angler, the other plug would be a sinker. One that sinks quite slowly does very well to depths of six or eight feet—and a slow sinker hovering in midwater looks most natural when worked slowly with little jerks and dead pauses.

This means that a man fishing where the water is rarely over 10 feet deep or so will generally do best with a slow sinker; but where it's over that, unless you have the patience of Job, you'll want something that goes down faster, perhaps a metal lure. For really deep water my favorite is a small, heavy metal pork-rind lure.

A thin, flattish one will weave and wobble too much to go down very rapidly, and the smaller, heavy one won't have much action of its own at reasonable speed, so it needs the action of the rind. A single spinner blade at its head not only gives it a flash but sets up a slight jiggle that gives the rind a good action.

Cedar Cove Spring, near Frankfort, was the source of the first public water-supply system in Kentucky, established in 1804. The water was transported to Frankfort by wooden pipes.

Eagle Scout Wallace Representing Council Before Governor Today

Eagle Scout Gabriel Wallace, of Troop 21, sponsored by the Men's Bible Class of the Prestonsburg Methodist Church, has been selected to represent the Lonesome Pine Council in a report on Scout achievement to Governor Lawrence W. Wetherby today (Thursday).

This annual program at the state capital is a part of the state-wide celebration of Boy Scout Week, which marks the 43rd birthday of the founding of the Boy Scout movement.

Eagle Scout Wallace was nominated by Lonesome Pine Council as a candidate to represent Region Four in a report to the President of the United States; however, another Scout from Youngstown, O., was selected by the Regional Committee for this honor. Wallace has had four years' experience in Scouting, and has served as patrol leader, senior patrol leader, and junior assistant scoutmaster. He has been on the honor roll at school for three years, participates in the school band, and is a member of the Key Club. He is active in Sunday School and church.

The report which Wallace will carry to Governor Wetherby will show that Lonesome Pine Council had the largest increase in membership of any Council in Kentucky during 1952. The Council started the year with 2,108 Scouts enrolled in 106 units, and ended 1952 with 2,631 Scouts enrolled in 146 units, representing an increase of 26%. This was the third highest record in Region 4, out of 43 Councils, according to figures released by the regional office.

Another outstanding achievement of the Council during the year was the building of a new Scout camp on Dewey Lake, representing an investment in materials and cash of $45,000. During its first season of operation, the Camp was attended by 434 Scouts and 28 leaders. Floyd district led the Council in camp attendance with 121 Scouts and eight leaders.

There was more advancement by Scouts than at any time in the Council's history during 1952. A total of 1,380 merit badges were passed by Scouts in the Council. A total of 386 Scouts achieved the second class rank, 110 Scouts became first class, 69 Star, 12 Life, and four became Eagle Scouts.

The program of Cub Scouting for younger boys, 8, 9, and 10 years of age, showed a strong increase. At the end of the year there were 325 Cub Scouts enrolled in 28 Cub Packs, as compared to 16 Packs at the beginning of the year.

Explorer Scouting, for older boys over 14 years of age, proved even more popular. As of December, 1952, there were 178 Explorer Scouts enrolled in 13 units, as compared to 92 Explorers in five units at the beginning of the year.

For the first time, the Lonesome Pine Council did a good job of reaching boys in all age groups from eight to 17 years.

By M.H.D.

Along with several other folks, I have entertained visitors at our home for the past two weeks, the kind that just walk in and take over; take over appetites, take over activities—and if there's a sense of humor lurking on the horizon, these Lilliputians of the germ world take deadly aim at this commodity, too. The common name for the condition caused by this group of parasites (since they thrive on the bodies of others) is flu.

The first member of our family to tangle, head-on, with this heartless hoard was our ten-year-old son, Ralph, whose upbringing thus far has the sanction of modern psychologists and is an abomination to the conservatives. (Somewhere in between, a happy medium might have been reached.) Ralph's Saturdays are spent at a local corral or riding the range mounted atop a theater seat in hot pursuit of Whip Wilson or Roy Rogers. After a long day spent thusly, he comes home thirsty and headachy—due, no doubt, to bright sun and dry burning desert winds. On a recent Saturday, however, his usual lamentations were limited and he was soon asleep. A little exploration by Mama, plus the scientific aid of a thermometer, revealed torrid temperature thereabout.

Ralph, though, was not one to take it lying down; so his processing was intermittent with deep sleep, jitterbugging to the tunes of a hill-billy musician whose sound waves would have drowned the concourse of a less aggressive hoard, and a Piano Red record. "It Makes No Difference Now"—all set to the tempo of 103 degrees temperature. After about five days of the above-mentioned aspirin-studded activities, Ralph was somewhat subdued, but cowed never... jokes... laughing hysteria... unnatural sleep and Piano Red continued for the duration.

The next target on the list was R. Sr. Now, R. Senior's fight with the bug was as courageous a battle as I've ever seen lost. He would have his barrel chest, located slightly south of the diaphragm, and vigorously declare his determination to battle the thing out... on foot... and he did... for about a week... No sir... no little bit of disease germ was going to bring down this hale and hearty vitamin-packed Sampson... No sir... and so-o-o-o, just to show the critters, several times each day, red eyed, runny-nosed and aching of body, he bravely climbed into the car and went to town, virus and all... That is, until about the twelfth fifth day, when lady virus Dellilah finally laid him low.

Along about this stage of our entanglements, a third victim was putting up a feeble neurotic struggle against overwhelming odds... no jitterbugging, no Piano Red... no car driving for me... No indeed... I was hit in the nose... Laterally. Irrespective of brave hearts in unfeebled breasts 150 aspirins consumed, and a pint of Va-po-rub applied, things finally bogged down to an impasse, and Dr. X was summoned, and greeted as he let himself into the house with if not open, then mainly bared forearms, ready to receive the antibiotic hypos, for by this time countless other unethical secondary microscopic creatures had come in for their cut of the remains of the three Scrooge-faced people found seated and limply draped over chair and couch... "Hit a man when he's down" that's the motto of the germ world.

Well, to sum up a too-long story and by some peculiar turns of fate, antibiotic, nature, or what-have-you, the victims were the winners in this, the Davis family's BOUT WITH THE BUG.

MARTIN TEAM WINS NO. 20

Purple Flash Win Three Last Week; Are Slated Next at Elkhorn City

The Martin high school Purple Flash put together three victories last week to bring their season record to 20 won and four lost, thus becoming one of the three teams in the 15th region to enter the 20-game circle.

At Wayland last Tuesday the Flash licked "Copper" John Campbell's improving Wasps, 67 to 60. Friday night, they downed Maytown at Martin, 71 to 58, and on the following evening, again at home, they licked Betsy Layne, 72 to 61.

Tackett, big Martin center, led his team's attack in all three games. Wallace, of Betsy Layne, was high-scorer of the Bobcat-Martin game, with 26 points.

Friday night, Coach Halbert's boys hit the road for a game with the Elkhorn City Cougars, a team which last week defeated both Pikeville and Wheelwright on successive nights.

Community Girl Scouts To Conduct PTA Meeting Here Next Thursday Eve

Girls representing each troop in Prestonsburg will conduct the P.T.A. program here next Thursday at 7:30 p. m. to enable the public to see what the Scouts are doing and acquaint others with the nature of their work.

This is International Friendship month. Every troop throughout the Council will be making sacrificial gifts to this cause.

This is done through the Juliette Lowe Fund. In addition Troop 2 of Prestonsburg has gone beyond this responsibility and combined this activity with their Christmas activity. Instead of drawing names for gifts at Christmas, each girl brought 50¢ (amounting to $10.00) and bought at $10 coupon through UNESCO. This money has been sent to Al-Morj School in Libya. This is an agricultural school and implements will be purchased for students' use. In return, each girl received an UNESCO stamp for her collection and will be corresponding with some girl in that school.

"International Thinking Day" will be observed Feb. 22. Every Girl Scout throughout the world will think about her sister Scouts in other countries, thus bringing the girls closer together and strengthening the organization as well as International relations.

The Sandy Valley Council board had its regular meeting Feb. 10 at the Pikeville office. Among the many things reported and discussed was the Dewey Lake Girl Scout Camp on which work will be begun within the next two or three weeks. It is expected to be usable by mid-summer.

Pikeville, Prestonsburg and Betsy Layne have reached their financial goals, with other districts assured of success.

If You Remember...

The sun shone and the old man plowed for it was late spring. As he turned his team he could see the smoke rising from the house. Martha would be putting a fire in the kitchen stove. Overhead a plane droned. At first he thought it was a car and that it might be Jim who was in Ohio at work.

An hour and he sat upon his porch and smoked while the mules ate and rested from the huge plow. Martha was putting in the kitchen and the old man heard the snatch of a "meatin' song". He knocked the ashes from his pipe and looked towards the field. The shadows were soft like the day's peace.

There was a sudden noise, the harsh labor of an aged car. It pulled up to the gate and a man motioned. The old man went out to the road and talked. He returned to the house as a man walks who carries a burden and would lay it down but fate wills that he cannot. He must tell Martha that Jim was dead. He had died the night before, and was dead when the foreman stopped the press.

The neighbors were there soon after Aunt Martha screamed. Others, having heard the news came later to talk and plan. One dashed off to send telegrams and another drove furiously away on a trip to Ohio. The old man sat on the porch until the shadows deepened. The chill of the night did not make him rise.

It was morning when he arose from the porch chair. All night the neighbors had sat with Martha who no longer cried but sat, too, as only those who sit and await the evidence of tragedy and death.

Someone stirred the fire in the kitchen stove. A plane roared, no it was the neighbor's car that had dashed off to Ohio in the twilight of the day before. Brakes screamed and caught unevenly slewing the car against the paling gate. The driver thrust open the car door and burst into the yard, his eager news stunning his hearers. They wondered why, it had to be that rumor and false news had wings and served no purpose but to make old folks weep.

The old man plowed that day. The sun shone but he thought the shadows were deeper. Near noon he saw the smoke rise from the kitchen flue again. When he sat upon the porch and smoked while the mules rested he heard Martha putting in the kitchen. Strange, he thought, she sang no "meatin' songs". Then he remembered the night before.

Floyd War Veteran Jervis
Completes College Work;
Has Good Conduct Award

Pikeville, Ky. — Three World War II veterans, one of them a Floyd countian, finished their junior-college courses as the fall semester at Pikeville College closed recently.

Curtis Jervis, Endicott, and two Pike county men make up the class which completed the requirements for graduation from the school. All three will be candidates for diplomas at spring commencement May 28.

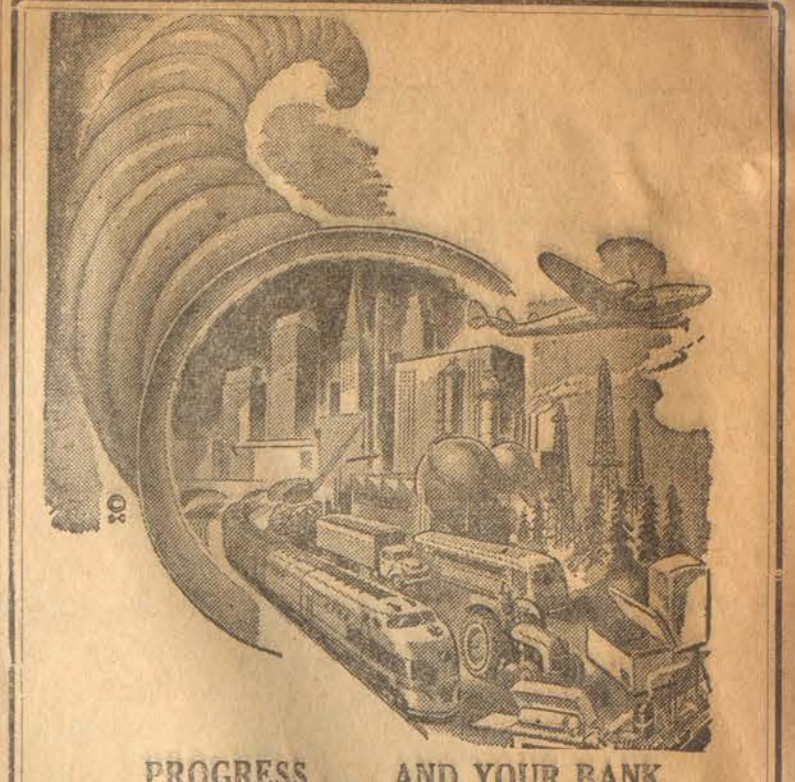

Jervis and Kermit Chaney, Millard, were enrolled in the teachers course at the college, and will be qualified upon graduation for the provisional elementary certificate.

Their group will be among the last to earn the certificate with two years' preparation, Dr. A. A. Page, college president, said. Requirements for fully qualified teachers will be raised to four college years on September 1.

Jervis, a private, first class, in the U. S. army in the European Theatre during the war, holds the Good Conduct Medal and the Purple Heart. The son of Jeff Jervis, Endicott, he is a Prestonsburg high school graduate.

NO COURTESY CARDS

Cities that have installed parking meters are without authority to issue courtesy cards to public officials and business houses, allowing parking privileges not common to the general public, in the opinion of the Attorney General's office. "Otherwise, the purpose of establishing meters in the first instance would be defeated", the Pineville authorities were advised.

LIVING FENCE IS ENVISIONED

By Using Multiflora Rose And Bicolor Lespedeza, Says Conservation Service

To increase food and cover for game, the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources will give lespedeza bicolor, multiflora rose, and other plants to interested farmers in Floyd county.

Multiflora rose will make an effective living fence in as little as three years, with proper care. It is about eight feet high and eight feet wide, and does not spread into cultivated or grazed land. It requires no maintenance and is excellent for contour fences. To songbirds and small game it furnishes food and protection against enemies.

Bicolor lespedeza will produce enough seed on one-eighth acre to winter a covey of quail. (One-fourth acre is better, especially during unfavorable years like 1952). Much of the seed will fall in January and February, when other quail foods are scarce and covered with snow. Bicolor will not withstand grazing, but will grow on very poor soil, and along woods borders.

Other plants include black walnut, Russian olive, and Russian mulberry, which is a good post tree. Most of the plants will be distributed through the Floyd County Soil Conservation District and L. R. Johnson, Soil Conservation Service technician, will advise farmers on where to make plantings and how to care for them.

Bernard Baldrige, conservation officer for Floyd county, and Terry McGowan, district biologist, will deliver plants to individual farms or to a central location similar to fish deliveries. They will also advise farmers on where to make plantings and how to care for them, or on any other problems regarding wildlife.

LAW CONSTITUTIONAL

Frankfort, Ky. — Constitutionality of Kentucky's real estate licensing law—applying equally to brokers and dealers, requiring written examinations on the part of licensees and maintenance of a main office on the part of all—has been upheld by Judge William B. Ardery in Franklin Circuit Court. A group of Lexington brokers attacked validity of the measure.

Lee county farmers who grew Ky. 26 tobacco as a demonstration in 1952 are planning to grow it as their main crop this year.

In Garrard county, 21 4-H club boys and girls have 62 calves on feed, the largest number for several years.

The Week Ahead

AGAIN it's Brotherhood Week, the period between next Sunday and the next.

Those seven days are set apart to emphasize a pattern of living for the entire year—to point the way to tolerance, to direct us away from prejudices and hatreds, to strengthen us in the humanities.

Brotherhood is simply the doctrine of loving one another. That is the theory, and it is age-old. To get the theory into practice is the aim of this Week which will be emphasized in sermons, editorials and programs broadcast by television and radio over the land. The gap between theory and practice is wide and hard to bridge, but slowly it is being closed.

Veterans' groups this year observed Four Chaplains' Day. That day commemorated the heroism of the four men who, representing differing religious faiths, met death, arm in arm, on a sinking ship, their last thoughts on the same ultimate goal, their prayers directed to the same God, and their lives sacrificed for the same purpose—that others might live. That is Brotherhood.

A wealthy man greets his poor neighbor on common ground, as one man to another, without condescension; a white man's life is saved by the skilled hand of a yellow surgeon; the glorious voice of a black singer claims the rapt attention of a fashionable white audience and draws enthusiastic acclaim; a white missionary lives and walks among savages and their disease and superstition, devoting his life to them—these are the things that spell Brotherhood.

It is perhaps no mere coincidence that Brotherhood Week begins immediately after the birthday of the immortal Lincoln is observed. The observances certainly have a strong relationship. Lincoln, somebody has said, is all men grown a little taller.

And it was St. John who wrote:

"If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?"

Floyd County, Home of Dewey Lake.

By Irving Galloway

If the insurance lobbyists who got compulsory liability killed in committee in Frankfort a year ago thought the issue was dead they were very much mistaken.

The issue is very much alive in New York, thanks to Gov. Dewey, and bills will be introduced in practically all legislatures that meet this winter. Two years ago New York got a phony law that didn't mean a thing till after a car was involved in one accident. It was similar to the fake Kentucky statute which takes car licenses away from car owners who fail to satisfy judgments against them.

This quotation from an editorial in the New York Herald-Tribune may interest you:

"Governor Dewey is in a determined mood about highway safety. He is asking the Legislature for a law requiring every motor vehicle owner to have liability insurance. This seems only elementary reason — that no one should be allowed to enter the highways with a machine capable of killing people and wrecking property unless fully able to answer for damages. Yet, as is generally known, the New York financial-responsibility law contains a large gap. Almost any one is allowed to have one accident before the law steps in and requires the motorist to prove he is financially responsible. As a matter of fact, 90 to 95 per cent of the car owners do carry adequate insurance. But the others do not bother, and are a constant menace to the intelligent majority. When an accident occurs, it is no comfort to know that the uninsured culprit will thereafter be compelled to carry insurance. The damage has been done — perhaps some one was killed."

Rep. William L. Jones, of Caldwell county, introduced a compulsory liability bill a year ago, and it died in committee. Jones couldn't get popular support enough to force the bill out for a free-for-all discussion. And if the newspapers of Kentucky uttered a single word editorially in support of the bill I didn't hear of it. This column had asked repeatedly for an honest compulsory insurance law, but that was about all the endorsement the Jones bill got.

Next January it will be a different story. I believe Governor Wetherby will follow Dewey's example and insist that an honest law be enacted to protect motorists against car owners who kill or cripple victims and cannot be compelled to pay for the harm they do.

Athletics and A Grades Do Mix, Says Hatcher

Pikeville — The idea that basketball and scholarship don't mix received another blow at Pikeville College Academy.

Bill Scott, a member of the Academy Club, earned the only all-A first-semester standing among the school's 64 students, it was announced by Mrs. Carl B. Hatcher, Academy principal.

Scott, a junior, in the Academy, is a resident of Evanston, in Breathitt county.

The 22 others listed on the semester honor roll as having average grades of B or better include a Floyd county girl and a boy who is a native of Floyd county.

Alice Snyder, daughter of A. D. Snyder, Betsy Layne, is one of six juniors whose names appear on the honor list. One of the 11 seniors listed is Sam Paul Combs, Norton, Va., a native of Betsy Layne.

| Wash and iron the clothes | Load and unload the hay & feed |
| And heat the house. | And ventilate your barn & house |
