This Town— That World

Here it is, Thanksgiving Day again, and we are working through the holiday again. But even so, we should be thankful for jobs at which to work.

OUR REAL BLESSINGS

I am not versed in the profound truths, but I have my inescapable convictions, and I cannot mention Thanksgiving here without reminding folks, as others have more eloquently reminded us, that our deepest gratitude to God should be for our spiritual blessings.

Without recognition of our spiritual heritage we cannot be genuinely thankful to God for material blessings, for our hearts do not truly and without reservation accept Him as the Giver.

Those of us who have stumbled along the way a good part of our lives and finally found that inner peace which is as a cup that runneth over, defying description in our tongue, know why these spiritual blessings should be first when we give thanks.

AGAIN!

Just this moment — at 9:27 Thanksgiving morning — has it dawned on me that others will not be working today, and that we may not be able to get into the courthouse offices for the Suits Filed and Marriage Licenses that occupy a part of that first column on Page 1. It is thinking (?) like this that has on occasion caused me to rattle at bank doors before finally realizing my note was behind locked doors because of a holiday.

Only 25 shopping days till Christmas—ouch!

Believe it or not, it was a woman who said, "Hereditry determines the color of the eyes, but environment lights 'em up."

REPORT TO READERS

Some of my readers—well, one or two, if you insist on the truth—have been wondering why none of this column's former stories about fishing trips that were amusing to everyone but yours truly. One looked me over with a good deal of scorn and wondered, out loud, if I could have indeed passed into my dotage and given up fishing for

Barn and Trucks Burn On Mare Creek, Tuesday; Newsome's Home Razed

Fire razed a barn and a tool-house belonging to Charley Adkins, of Mare Creek, Tuesday evening. Destroyed were a large amount of feed, a freshly butchered hog, two trucks, several hundred dollars worth of tools and garage equipment. All livestock perished also in the flames.

Adkins was working on a leaky gas line on a truck when a carbide lamp ignited the fuel line. He and a small nephew, who was standing nearby, narrowly escaped injury.

Absence of wind and the efforts of neighbors enabled workers to save the house from burning.

The home of Ralph Newsome, at McDowell, burned down, Sunday afternoon, it was learned here. The fire occurred at 1 p.m., while the family was away. Nothing was saved from the flames, it was said.

Harold Man Is Charged In Pike County Stabbing Estell Sloan is Jailed

A Harold man, Joe Hopkins, is wanted in Pike county for wounding with intent to kill and Glenn Coleman, Jr., 22, of Broad Bottom, is in the Methodist hospital, suffering from abdominal stabs. Hopkins stabbed Coleman, at midnight, last Sunday, near the home of Estell Sloan on Coon Creek. Sloan, charged with selling moonshine whiskey, was lodged in the Pike county jail the next day.

County Attorney Kelsey Friend, of Pike county, told The Times Wednesday that contrary to reports, Willard "Catfish" Damon, Boldman poolroom operator, charged with the murder of a headless boy, found on Caney Fork of Johns Creek, and tentatively identified as Clyde Jack Clements, was not a witness to the wounding of Coleman. Friend said that Lonnie Goodman and another Coleman were the two witnesses. He added that Coleman is expected to recover.

One report states that Hopkins, who is about 23 years old, took Coleman to the hospital sometime after the wounding. As of yesterday, Hopkins had not been apprehended.

KY. PROGRESS IN GAME, FISH TOLD AT FETE

Wallace, Others Speak As Floyd-Co. Club Holds Annual Banquet, Monday

Approximately 300 persons attending the annual banquet of the Floyd County Fish & Game Club Monday evening in the Maytown school cafeteria heard Earl Wallace, commissioner, Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources, and other officials of the department tell the story of progress made in conservation in Kentucky over the last 10 years.

"Kentucky has more small game today than when Daniel Boone was here, better fishing than when Dr. Walker came across the mountains," Mr. Wallace declared. He pointed out that in 1944 when his department was placed under the State Merit System Kentucky stood 38th in the United States in the matter of conservation and in fish and game. Today, he said, it ranks seventh.

"The federal Fish & Wildlife Department tells us we have made more progress than any other state in the Union," he added.

"We have difficulties, it is true," Wallace said. "But any active man or woman or any group has difficulties. We have had them here, but if we can't overlook mistakes, or differences, we have no right to represent the public."

Commenting on the Merit System which presumably takes the Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources out of politics, the speaker admitted that "nothing is entirely out of politics in Kentucky." Then he mentioned efforts of politicians "to destroy the Department." "If we have bills proposed again that would later destroy this department," he said, "we propose to come to you, the people. . . . We have 70,000 members of the League of Kentucky Sportsmen. They could elect a Governor," he commented.

The Commissioner indicated future developments might lead to his calling for action on the part of sportsmen.

Minor Clark, director of fisheries, described Deway Lake as having "one of the best populations of any lake we know of." He told sportsmen and their wives that the lake has too many shad but that his division thinks it has found a way of wiping out this over-supply. Mr. Clark indicated the lake will be poisoned next April when the water temperature returns to about 50 degrees. The division claims this operation can be carried out without damage to game fish.

He described the bass population (See Story No. 3, Page 2)

RIVER HEARING SET, DEC. 8th

May, Music Appear On Panel Discussing River Improvement

Col. J. C. Dalrymple, acting district engineer, U. S. Corps of Engineers, Huntington, W. Va., last week announced that a public hearing on proposed Big Sandy river improvements will be held in the Pike county circuit courtroom, Pikeville, Dec. 8.

The proposed river work would include canalization, flood control water supply and power projects. Hydro-electric development is a new phase to receive consideration.

Already moves to stimulate interest in the new fight for river improvement an dto gain a representative attendance at the hearing have been launched. Congressman Carl D. Perkins announced last week that he will attend the hearing and urged local citizens to attend.

One of the moves to rouse new interest in the river project was a forum held last Thursday night at Wickham Chapel, Pikeville College, under sponsorship of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Pikeville. Brief, impromptu talks were made by Ex-Congressman A. J. May and Marvin Music, of Prestonsburg, Mayor J. B. Wells, of Paintsville, James W. Wine and O. S. Batten, of Pikeville. The speakers discussed the great need of canalization and other river developments and cited the beneficial results to be expected from such work.

A roundtable discussion followed with questions asked by the audience.

The Junior Chamber of Pikeville has assigned each of its 50 members to committees to do research work on the past century of water development and plans for such development from Louisa to Pikeville.

Todd To Leave Floyd For Post at Lima, O., With Ex-Cello Corp.

Clark Todd, director of industrial engineering at the Princess Elkhorn Coal Company operations at David and Permele, has resigned his position, effective Dec. 11, it was announced here this week.

Mr. Todd resigned to accept the post of assistant to the general manager of the Ex-Cello Corporation, Lima, Ohio. Another former Princess Elkhorn employe—Max Burns, personnel director at David —is personnel director for the same Lima corporation.

Mr. and Mrs. Todd came to David about five years ago from Newcastle, Pa. His successor has not been named.

BARKLEY LEAD DOWN IN 7th

But Statewide Margin Over Cooper, 71,161, Official Tab Shows

Senator-elect Alben W. Barkley ran 4,349 votes behind his running-mate, Congressman Carl D. Perkins, in the Seventh Congressional district, but at that he amassed a margin of 10,889 votes over John Sherman Cooper, Republican candidate for re-election, figures released this week by the State Board of Election Commissioners show.

Barkley's majority, statewide, was 71,161—a lead that surprised his supporters almost as much as it did those who opposed him.

Barkley carried 79 of the 120 counties and six of the state's eight Congressional districts, losing only the Third and the Eighth to Cooper. The vote by congressional districts was:

District	Barkley	Cooper
First	64,597	29,425
Second	52,540	35,334
Third	48,980	38,746
Fifth	58,293	49,588
Sixth	58,938	49,927
Seventh	43,461	32,572
Eighth	34,925	69,277
TOTALS	434,109	362,948

Official returns in the five contests for members of Congress are:

Third District — Representative John M. Robson, Jr., Louisville Republican, 72,073 to 71,500 for Harrison M. Robertson, Louisville, Democrat.

Fifth — Representative Brent Spence, Fort Thomas Democrat 63,640 to 40,679 for M. J. See, Louisa Republican.

Sixth — Representative John C. Watts, Nicholasville Democrat, 59,434 to 38,145 for Robert L. Milby, Lexington Republican.

Seventh—Representative Carl D. Perkins, Hindman Democrat, 44,353 to 19,115 for Curtis Clark, Prestonsburg Republican.

Eighth — Eugene Siler, Williamsburg Republican, 56,182 to 32,128 for Mitchell S. Pannin, Whiteley City Democrat, and 302 for Robert P. White, Somerset Independent.

The total vote of 797,060 was the greatest in Kentucky history for an off year U. S. senatorial race without presidential balloting.

The previous record turnout for a Kentucky senatorial contest without presidential balloting was 645,928 in 1930, when the late Sen. M. M. Logan, Democrat, won.

The 76-year-old Barkley who already has served 22 years in the Senate, longer than any Kentuckian, carried six of Kentucky's eight congressional districts.

NAB 3rd MAN IN PIKE CASE

Sexton Named as Aid To Former Floyd Men Accused of Slaying

A third man has been named accessory to the murder in Pike county of Hermit Damon for which two former Floyd countians had previously been indicted.

Earl Sexton, Detroit, formerly of the Marrowbone area of Pike county, has been charged with aiding and abetting in the 9-year-old murder, Sheriff Alex Blackburn said.

Willard Hurt, 35, and Henry Jennings, 39, half brothers, of Hillsboro, Ohio, formerly of Auxier, are charged with murder in the case.

The victim, a Belcher coal miner, was last seen alive February 11, 1945, on a train which was traveling near Regina. The sheriff said Hurt Jennings, and Sexton were believed to have been on the same train.

SEAL MAILING STARTS DRIVE

5,000 Floyd Countians Get Christmas Seals; Need of Funds Told

A small group of women worked here far past midnight, recent nights, to get into the mails the thousands of Christmas Seals which approximately 5,000 Floyd countians received this week.

This was begun in the county the 48th annual Christmas Seal Sale to raise funds for the continued fight against tuberculosis.

"We naturally hope that every person who receives these Seals will contribute something, but we ask even those who do not, or who cannot, to keep the Seals and use them on envelopes they mail," Mrs. A. H. Mandt, president of the Floyd County Tuberculosis Association, said. Use of the Seals serves to advertise the program to others, she explained.

Funds are more sorely needed from local sources now than before, since there has been a drastic cut in federal aid to tuberculosis control work, it is emphasized. In the past Seal sale returns have complemented this loss so effectively that the original intensive TB control program begun in January, 1951 by Mrs. J. D. Mayo, now of the Floyd County Health Department, continues to reduce the number of deaths from the disease.

Between 1945 and 1950 there was an average of 35 TB deaths a year in Floyd county, which was twice the TB death rate in Kentucky, a state having the third highest death

Visitor Home after 49 Years Returns to Boyhood Foxhunt

Patrick Vaughan, of Enid, Okla., who returned to his native Floyd county on a visit last week after an absence of 49 years, and his wife, whom he married in Oklahoma.

Patrick Vaughan, who left this county 49 years ago when he was a stripling of 18, returned last week on a short visit, and as soon as he could arrange it, he went fox-hunting.

That fox-hunt was one of the biggest thrills of his few days here. He had been reared on the present Auxier Road, grew to early manhood knowing the thrill of following the hounds. Out in Oklahoma near Enid, where he farmed for a half century, he chased coyotes in his spare time. He followed them with greyhounds over the prairies. Nothing, though, he thinks, equals in pure enjoyment a chase over Floyd county hills with a pack of fox-hounds.

Training for Handicapped Discussed at Conference

Handicapped children must be considered as children first, as handicapped second.

This was among the theories heard by Mrs. A. H. Mandt, of Manton, representing Floyd county recently at the annual Kentucky Conference for Handicapped Children, held in Lexington. The Rev. and Mrs. Robert Martin, of Martin, leaders in the move to bring aid and training to handicapped tots of the county, went to Lexington for the talks but Mrs. Martin was stricken seriously ill of pneumonia.

Special classes for these children should be housed in regular school buildings where many of them can spend much of the school time in regular classes.

TREE SETTING FINISH IS SEEN

3 Dogwood Trail Gaps Remain To Be Closed Early in December

The Dogwood Memorial Trail will be completed in early December, it was said this week by Lon C. Hill, procurement committee chairman. There are now three missing links, adding up to five and a half miles. Twenty and a half miles of the trail have been set out, Hill added.

Missing links in the trail which will run from East Point to Harold, are the section from Tom's Creek to Allen, Prestonsburg city limits to Lancer, and from the Blackburn schoolhouse on Little Point to the Johnson county line. Needed to set these three links are about 2,000 trees. Hill expects to issue an appeal for them next week.

A protection and maintenance committee was set up by the Winnie P. Johns Dogwood Trail Association last Thursday evening when the regular weekly meet was held at the Municipal building. The two members, charged with protection and keeping the trees growing, are Dr. M. J. Leete and James Camlica.

Twenty trees arrived this week from Mrs. Ella Harris Wellman, of Morehead, who asked the trees be dedicated to the memory of a nephew, Robert Rummels, who was killed in World War I.

Pictures of the teachers and pupils assisting Hill to procure the trees will appear in The Times next week. Three-hundred award certificates, recognizing service to the Association, were being given out this week to the teachers and pupils. The next meet of the association is set for Dec. 2.

These were opinions expressed by Dr. Warren A. Ketcham, Ann Arbor, Michigan, co-ordinator of psychological services in the University of Michigan's elementary school.

The special teacher, the speaker said, "should teach handicapped children but he should also work with other teachers in an effort to adjust the children to the total school program as well as to adjust the total school program to them."

Stating that "healthy positive feelings about one's self and others is the most positive ingredient of life," Dr. Ketcham added:

"The most important responsibility of adults is to build this ingredient into all children's lives. Handicapped children have a special need for it. Meeting that responsibility is one of the simple complexities of life."

"It is accomplished best by providing learning experiences through which each child finds his share of success, always providing encouragement for the raising of sights for new and more difficult experiences. "This provides each child with his rightful share of success. Life and chance will do their part in providing each with his rightful share of failure."

Parents play a major role in the education of the handicapped child, said Mrs. Edith M. Stern, Silver Springs, Mo., in an address at the opening session of the conference today.

Mrs. Stern is the author, with Elsa Castendyck, of the book entitled, "The Handicapped Child: A Guide for Parents."

"If one is interested in a handicapped child, he must work with the parents," Mrs. Stern said. "In the largest sense of education—education for living—they (parents) are crucial, no matter what the physician or educator does."

Faith is very important in dealing with a handicapped child, she asserted.

"Every really good professor I know who devotes himself to the cause of the handicapped child has a certain quality I can only describe as religious," Mrs. Stern said.

"It is a spiritual quality. They must have a feeling for the divinity of human life or they would not dedicate themselves to the imperfect specimens."

"Parents can get sustaining faith, not only from the clergymen, who alone can help them find the answer, but also from the physicians, nurses, teachers and therapists who work hopefully with their (handicapped) children," she declared.

Other speakers at the general session were Dr. A. R. Shands, Jr., Wilmington, Del., medical director of the Alfred I du Pont Institute of The Nemours Foundation, and Dr. Henry H. Work, associate professor of psychiatry and pediatrics at the University of Louisville's School of Medicine. Neil Dalton, Louisville, chairman of the Co-ordinating Council on Handicapped Children, presided.

HYDEN VICTIM IN CAR WRECK

Auxier Road Resident Fatally Hurt As Auto Wrecks at Boons Camp

George Hyden, 52 years old, fatally injured Saturday morning in the wreck of an automobile at Boons Camp, Johnson county, while enroute to his home on the Auxier road, near here, from Ragland, W. Va., where he was employed. He died at the Paintsville hospital 30 minutes after arrival as the result of a crushed chest and punctured lung.

Mr. Hyden, his brother, Otto, also of Auxier, and a third man left Ragland about 7 a.m., Saturday. Otto Hyden said he was driving at a speed of about 30 miles an hour when the car hit a slippery spot on a curve of the rain-soaked road and went out of control. It skidded, left the road and plunged into a creek.

The victim was a son of the late Roe and Anna Burchett Hyden. He was employed at Ragland as a miner by the Island Creek Coal Company. Survivors are his widow, Mrs. Alka Burchett Hyden, one son, Thomas A. Hyden, of Auxier, and three brothers, Otto Hyden, of Auxier, Glenn Hyden, of Lancer, and Thomas Edward Hyden, of Helier.

Funeral rites were conducted Monday afternoon from Horn Chapel on the Auxier road, the Revs. S. C. Honeycutt and Woodrow Branham officiating. Burial in the family cemetery on the Auxier road was under direction of the Carter & Callihan Funeral Home.

He is a son of the late John J. and Cynthia Alice Hill Vaughan, natives of the Auxier section. They (See Story No. 1, Page 2)

PEN NEWSOM FOR INCEST

Middle Creek Man, 70, And His Daughter Say None of 10 Tots His

One of the five pen terms meted out within the week by juries of the Floyd circuit court was the two-year sentence of Freddie Newsome, 70-year-old Middle Creek road man, who was convicted Tuesday of incest.

Newsome's conviction was voted, despite his claim that he was innocent and the testimony of his daughter, Lilly, that the charge against her father was without foundation.

She denied that any of her 10 children is his.

Hannah Newsome, wife of the accused man, testified however, that she had seen Newsome go to his daughter's bed on two occasions, and another daughter, Addie, said her father had accosted her on two occasions.

Newsome said he did not know who was the father of the children. He admitted he had been convicted on four previous occasions and had served pen terms. Newsome said the (See Story No. 2, Page 5)

McCOY NAMED IN PEN DEATH

Former Pike Resident Accused in Remington Slaying Inside Prison

One of the two men accused of the murder in the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., of William Walter Remington is George Junior McCoy, 34, of Grundy, Va., who figured in criminal records of this section.

Remington was serving a term for perjury for which he was convicted when he denied he gave government secrets to the Communist. His head was bashed in and his face badly cut when he was attacked Monday morning while he slept. He died 16 hours later.

A native of Grundy, McCoy lived for a time in Pikeville.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation said McCoy was first arrested in January, 1947, by the Grundy sheriff's office on a charge of transporting a stolen car interstate. He received a one year and ten-months sentence for the offense and went to the Federal Reformatory at Chillicothe, Ohio. Subsequently he was transferred to the Federal Correctional Institute at Ashland, Ky., and was conditionally released from that institution in late 1948.

In January, 1949, he was charged at Ashland with Post Office robbery and given a one year and one day sentence.

His next arrest occurred in November, 1950, at Columbus, Ohio, when he was detained for investigation in connection with a burglary at Mount Vernon, Ohio. Convicted on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon he went to the Ohio State penitentiary in early 1951, for a one-to-three-year term.

In September, 1953, he and a fellow convict walked away from the honor farm at Roseville, Ohio. The two stole a car which they later wrecked and abandoned at Mouthcard, Ky.

McCoy was arrested by the F.B.I. and the Kentucky State Police at Pikeville a couple of weeks later and drew a three-year sentence for the interstate transportation of that car. He went to Lewisburg to start his time in October, 1953.

ARNETT HANGS SELF IN CELL HERE SUNDAY

Fourth Suicide Attempt Of Man Who Shot Himself Last Week Is Successful

William (Bill) Arnett, 49-year-old Prestonsburg man, succeeded Sunday morning in his fourth attempt in as many days to take his life.

During the early morning hours he hanged himself, using a bed blanket, one end of which he had tied around his neck, the other knotted around a bar in his cell.

Last Wednesday night, he was treated at the Prestonsburg General hospital for a self-inflicted wound in his chest. The same night, he was returned to the county jail on a peace warrant his wife, Liza Baker Arnett, had sworn out during the day.

After his return to the jail, where he had earlier spent 54 days of a six-month sentence, he made two ineffectual suicide attempts, with fellow-prisoners preventing his serious injury as he essayed death by hanging, Jailer Prock Hayes said.

Arnett became violent Saturday night, Jailer Hayes said. He broke up a commode in the jail, then alternated between singing and cursing. He was locked in the "death cell" when he could not be controlled.

Around 4 a.m., he was given a glass of water by another prisoner. When the prisoner again rose at 7 and heard no noise from Arnett's cell he called downstairs, and Ray Chick found the body.

The blanket-ropes was long enough to permit Arnett's feet to rest on the floor, and his knee were drawn up, lending credence to the theory that he may have deliberately strangled himself.

Deputy Coroner W. R. Callihan said the cause of death was officially placed as "strangulation and possible broken neck." He said no inquest was held because there was no doubt of suicide.

Jailer Hayes said Arnett's previous "suicide attempts" were regarded merely as attempts to get his wife to visit him, and that Arnett had asked him to relay word to Mrs. Arnett that he was "bad off." When Mrs. Arnett did visit him after his last imprisonment, however, the result was a hot quarrel, the Jailer's wife said.

Mrs. Arnett had asked that her husband be searched for a knife, saying she feared he would kill her.

Surviving, besides his widow, are his mother, Mrs. Caroline Sparks, of Ivyton, a daughter and three sons, all children of a previous marriage: Russia Arnett, Jackson, Mich., Rufus, Wayne and Robert Arnett, all of Tecumseh, Michigan.

Funeral rites were conducted Tuesday morning from the Ivyton school by the Revs. Byrd Cole and Ellis Whittaker. Burial in the family cemetery at Ivyton was directed by the Carter & Callihan Funeral Home.

DEPUTY NABS ESCAPEE HERE

Virginia Fugitive Asks Idle Pay from Coal Firm Resulting in His Arrest

An escaped convict attempted here last week to collect unemployment pay on the coal company he allegedly defrauded to begin with, and so wound up in the Floyd county jail and later in the hands of Virginia authorities.

The prisoner, Joe Everett Clevenger, listed as a resident of Drift, had appeared at the office here of the Division of Unemployment Insurance several days earlier and filed application for benefits because of his severance from the payroll of a company in the vicinity of Grundy, Va. This action, as a routine matter, was reported to the company, and thus Clevenger's whereabouts became known to the sheriff of Buchanan county are buried near the old homeplace. Patrick went to see the old farm, one of the first things he did after returning here. "The old place just doesn't look natural," he says, "Plenty of changes have taken place here since I left," he added.

Vaughan likes to reminisce about the "good, old days" in Prestonsburg before he left here nearly half a century ago. There was a big square block in front of the courthouse. He thinks it was built of concrete. It had hitch racks around it for horses. There was a big crowd on court days then, he says. The hitch racks were filled. On the courthouse porch, someone was sure to start picking the banjo. People crowded about, soon somebody started to dance.

"The river has changed a lot," Vaughan says. "When I was young here, I caught saw-logs that were escaping down the river. I got a quarter each for them. A quarter was a large piece of change then." He thinks the river is narrower now, not as many big sand bars or shoals as it once had. He recalls that when he left here town people got water from the river in barrels. It was delivered for a quarter, the customer furnishing the barrel.

Speaking of water, he recalls fondly an old colored man, Charley Richmond, born a slave, who continued to serve the Richmond family long after Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation. Uncle Charley hauled water for "his folks." Vaughan recalls how old Charley rode one of the prized Richmond horses down to the river every evening, to water him. When he came to the river, he dismounted, turned the horse loose. The animal walked into the water, drank and returned to him. "Uncle Charley must have been a hundred years old," Vaughan recalls.

There was a single telephone in Prestonsburg in 1905, Vaughan says. It was in store owned by Frank Hopkins. Ollie Powers worked for Hopkins in the store. People called it Ollie Powers' telephone. People have quit farming the hillside here, too, he notices. He did not expect to see them uncultivated.

Out in Oklahoma, Vaughan raised cotton for the first five years but he shifted to wheat, still raises it. In 1912 he married Dama Belle King. "This was her first trip to Kentucky. 'I like the mountains,' she says. 'I like the beautiful autumn colors.'" Asked if her husband ever got homesick for Kentucky, she says: "If he did he kept it hid, but we knew he would like to see it again. So when we visited a daughter in Florida, we arranged to come back by here. He did not know we were on our way here until we had a big start," she laughs. Perhaps he didn't object, because he was thinking of a Kentucky fox hunt.

Vaughan and his wife, who are visiting nephews and nieces here, particularly Dove Vaughan and Mrs. Alice Ball, have nine living children. One daughter, a son Robert and a son-in-law made the journey back with them. He has a surviving sister, now nearing 80, who lives at Orlando, Okla. She is Mrs. W. L. Hopson, who went from here to Oklahoma in 1907. He sees her often. His brother, Will Vaughan, former Floyd county magistrate, died two years ago.

as good, but said the food supply in Dewey Lake is so plentiful that the bass "feel like you folks who have just now eaten at this banquet—they don't feel like striking." Turning to the crappie situation in the lake, with a plentiful supply of that species but fish which have not developed as they should, Clark said that the State Department stocked the lake with black crappie but "somebody surreptitiously added white crappie to the impoundment." "We don't know how to handle white crappie," he admitted. The speaker noted that biologists working at the lake this summer and fall have definitely determined that the Great Northern released there have spawned.

Ed Adams, director of conservation, declared his division is having its best year insofar as cooperation with the school people is concerned. "We don't have enough men to organize all the conservation clubs we could," he declared. Mr. Adams lauded the work of Bernard Baldrige of Martin, district junior conservation supervisor, and pointed out that the youth program in this state is a model for 13 other Southern states.

Larry Gale, director of game management, said his division's primary concern in the Dewey Lake area is with waterfowl, deer and turkey. Given three to four years' good protection, the area will have a good deer population, he predicted. "The big problem," he said, "is too many dogs." More time will be required to develop a sizeable turkey population than will be needed for deer, he said.

Others who spoke briefly after having been introduced by George E. Allen, toastmaster, were:

"Hez" Henson, director of the division of law enforcement; Bernard Baldrige, junior conservation supervisor; Roscoe Davis, Seventh district commissioner; Bob Eversole, district biologist; John W. Redwine, Seventh district supervisor; Conservation Officers Raymond Copley and Charles Lafferty, of this county, and Prater, of Magoffin county; George W. Newman, president of the Floyd County Fish & Game Club, and Forrest Burchett, Floyd county forest ranger.

Music was furnished by the Maytown high school mixed quartet, accompanied by Justin Turner and Mrs. Thomas Patrick.

LAST RITES HELD

Funeral rites of Mrs. Martha Horn, of Cliff, who died Thursday of last week, were conducted Saturday, at 10 a.m. Revs. W. H. Horn, Ernest King and W. S. Daniels officiated and burial followed in the family cemetery under the direction of Hall Bros. Funeral Home.

Authorities have cited robbery as the motive in the slaying. Hurt and Jennings were indicted in the case right after Damron's disappearance but the charge was dropped when police were unable to find the body. Damron's remains were discovered by two hunters near Regina last month. Hurt and Jennings were arrested in Hillsboro and reindicted at a special session of the grand jury November 15.

Vishinsky's Death—No Cause for Elation

There are those who doubtless will dismiss the death of Andrei Vishinsky, the Russian, with a "good riddance," pleased that another enemy of a free world and of human progress as we know it has passed to his reward.

But is it good riddance? Should any individual out of love of his own country be glad a human being has died?

It should go without saying that the answer to these questions is, No. If Vishinsky were the free world's greatest enemy and if there could never be another as great, and if his death would remove some of the hatred from the world, the Soviet diplomat's passing might be considered cause for general rejoicing.

But there is no assurance this is the case. Indeed, his successor may be even more Machiavellian and more bitter toward those nations of the world which we like to think are trying to advance the cause of peace.

In a calm analysis of the work of this man Vishinsky we should recognize the fact that he had a job to do, a job he did well from his country's point of view. He was an able exponent of the Red doctrine; he was adroit in the art of deception—and that was the task assigned him by the masters of the Kremlin.

Here was a man gifted with a brilliant intellect, with qualities of leadership, who worshipped only at the altar of crass materialism; who never aspired to anything higher than high rank in the Communist party; who had no purpose except to serve a ruthless totalitarian power; a man who, we are told, scoffed at God, who aspired not to heaven and feared not hell. There is no sense of elation with us on learning of the poor creature's death.

"One of the Least of These"

(Christian Science Monitor) "And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me" (Matthew 25:40).

Frank Dillon is a New York policeman. He was eating his "dog watch" snack at a restaurant when someone reported a fire in an ancient abandoned hotel nearby. He turned in an alarm over his prowl car radio. Then he and a fellow policeman, Richard O'Connor, led six occupants, some painfully burned, to safety, braving roaring flames themselves. Patrolman Dillon was slightly burned.

Just in line of regular duty? Of course. That's what one comes to expect of policemen and firemen: to risk their own skins saving people in danger. And these two "cops" did what they did, undoubtedly, through both a sense of duty and of common humanity. But there was something else here. Let Patrolman Dillon tell it in his own words:

"I knew Bowery delinquents were accustomed to sleeping there. Bums, people call them—down-and-outers. But they are human beings. They are people." Perhaps Mr. Dillon learned this long ago. Perhaps he learned it all in one tremendous moment that night when he heard, as he said, "a human being screaming in pain." And what Dillon must have learned is this, although he might not put it in just these words: Until we are willing to see beyond the person of "one of the least of these"—of the "down-and-outer," the convicted criminal behind prison walls, the misguided subversive before the bar, the lazy "no account," the offensively aggressive, the ignorant, the unwashed, the citizen of a hostile land, the member of another race, anyone we despise or shun—to see even a trace of that divine fatherhood that makes him one "of these my brethren" we have yet to touch the hem of Christ's garment.

BY WILMAX (The views expressed herein do not necessarily reflect the views of The Times.)

Several errors got into this column last week. The wonder is that more do not. The mixed paragraph should have read: A mother on TV said years ago schools taught children their Three R's, while parents took them to the circus, but now it has been reversed. She was a bit extreme, though she has a point, since many complain of too much play in our schools. We shall attempt more articles about the modern program, including one that lists its chief assets.

The only thing nicer than having a grandbaby is having TWO. Gregory Stuart May, arrived, Nov. 13, in Cincinnati, to keep Eric Ronald company. We are all eager to make his acquaintance. His daddy says he is much like his beautiful mother. So far, Eric is content to stroke the baby's head all day. So far! We saw another precious grandbaby Saturday, little Gerry Coy, of Lexington, whose grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jarrell, recently moved to Prestonsburg, after a five-year absence from the county. This paragraph is specially for Gladys Allen, who says she enjoys those about grandchildren. Were it not for boring many, we could write weekly about Eric, and now Greg.

The prettiest sight we ever saw in this state was the Dogwood Trail Saturday. It is a dream come true. Years will elapse before it flowers, but may Mrs. Johns and her many helpers live to see it in all its glory. (What have you done to help, Mr. and Mrs. Reader? Did you give time, trees or money?) May others unite with them until every road in Floyd is outlined with beauty. Few foresee the economic value of this trail, whose major purpose is esthetic and spiritual.

This week a young girl said Shirley Stewart can put on any old thing—not that she often does—and still look like five million dollars. The principal of Maytown High fully agrees.

Mrs. Charles Marshall says she is Grandma Moses, having recently started studying piano. All we can say is if the lady does by that what she does in other fields, watch out!

I saw Suzanne Todd 'tother day. The last time we saw her she was nine years old, in the Anthony Hotel, doing the Charleston for spectators. She is the daughter of the late Congressman and Congresswoman, Mr. and Mrs. John Langley of Pikeville, where she was accustomed to much attention from the public. This did not spoil her. Her rich, vibrant speaking voice is something like that of her mother, whom many believe was one of the best speakers in Eastern Kentucky.

Ran into Mrs. Ray Howard recently. You would think she is a little school girl, though she has a family of children. Have you ever seen a prettier woman than Em-marie Hemphill, from Texas, who is with the U. S. Health Survey in Prestonsburg? The nice thing is that she is as sweet as she looks! And have you ever seen more beautiful hands than those belonging to Mrs. Bob Francis? Every time I see hers I wish I had the painting ability of Reba Mayo. I got goggled in Hutsinpillar Drug one day, turned to see Gilma Catherine Jarrell, high school junior, who used to live two doors from us. Mt. Sterling's loss is Prestonsburg's gain. Gilma has moved recently. She is a grand kid, whom the Warco folks love like one of their very own. Everybody is happy to have Margaret Spradlin back home and on the mend. (Some paragraph, eh? Saves space!)

Herman and Marguerite Harmon are sensible parents. They have a huge rocker in their spacious living room, and Master Robert Vance Harmon gets his daily fill of emotional security. The experts who

They Bowed Their Heads And Gave Thanks

BY HENRY P. SCALF

The old farmer turned on the radio, listened a moment, snapped it off. It was too early for his favorite morning newscast. He went outside, peered at the sky. Thanksgiving day was breaking, the first evidence of dawn only a faint light above the eastern hills. He returned to the house, entered the kitchen. His wife picked up a steaming kettle, poured warm water in a pan he extended. There was little talk until the children emerged from bed, searching for clothes, hurrying to eat with their parents.

Returning to the radio, he now caught the voice of the newsman. Since he listened greatly from habit and less from deep interest, the sentences of the announcer were broken up on his consciousness, the continuity lost because the labor of the coming day impinged. He remembered, though, snatches of strange new words and phrases, talk of things like giant bombs, distant fall-out, coexistence, atomic stalemate and radioactivity. There was a call from his wife in the kitchen and he silenced the voice out of the ether with a flick of a knob.

The day was scarcely begun when he climbed a hill to a distant grain field, and peered, with a hand shadowing his eyes, back down into the valley. He could not see his home; the rising fog obscured even the bottoms under him. When his son moved out among the rows of corn and fodder, he was quickly lost in the gray light. Far away he heard the halloo of a man to his hounds, now and then he was aware of distant gunfire. That others could hunt this day, that he had to work, were unjoined in his consciousness.

When the sun shone and dispelled the fog he wound up a crude windlass and tied bundles of fodder and bags of corn to the end of a wire. Assisting now was his son, for he liked to watch the bags and bundles swing downward to the bottom, liked to hear the zing of the taut wire that carried the load away. Down in the flatland there was a big pile of fodder and grain. The loads coming off the mountainside struck it with a deep thud. Father and son alternated in rolling the wire back up the mountainside on the windlass.

Since they were far from the house they ate their lunch on the mountainside. Having eaten, they took time out to talk as they lay on the bundles of fodder, their heads propped against the piles of corn. They rose, as if they had looked at a watch, went to a nearby spring. Each placed a knee on a flat stone, the son waited while his father drank.

Slowly the shadows from the woodland line at the back of the field crept down the corn field, wrapped each of them in its evening fold. The old farmer swung back toward the farther side of the field, was working towards the path that began its drop over the steep hill. Stumbling, he looked down, saw the object he had tripped on was a giant pumpkin. He smiled a bit, for he remembered now the other big one, the largest of the field. He had carried it down the hillside, and the children had made a Jack-o'-Lantern. He was amused, he remembered, at their squeals of delight and near-fear caused by the ogre-like aspect of their handiwork.

It was that one hour of the day when light yields to darkness that father and son were back in the bottom, walking slowly towards the barn. Entering it, the old farmer took down a lantern, lighted it. The son held it, guarded the flickering flame while the livestock was fed. His mother had milked the cow an hour ago. Back at the house they found the children at their usual places around the fireside, each of them looking for interest in a drawing book or piecing together a broken toy, or prattling to mother about something seen or done that day. The old man stirred the dying fire, added an extra stick of wood. It was chilly, he remarked to his wife. It would probably frost, he said.

Again this day he turned the radio on. Checking with the clock, he sought, with a moving needle on the dial, his favorite evening newscast. It was another newsman who talked now, but he, too talked of strange things. Only, after repeating the unfamiliar words of the man in the morning, he added others. Other words like population dispersal and civilian evacuation. Strange, the old man thought, few talked of peace.

Came the call from the kitchen for the evening meal, and the family filed through the darkened hallway toward the kitchen. A light was hung on the wall, just above the table loaded with food. Children took their places around it. The mother poured milk for each.

The old man was pulling his chair back to sit down when he became aware of the radio. The newsman was droning on, still talking in strange, unfamiliar phrases. A child, requested by its father, went into the living room, turned it off.

Outside darkness enveloped the earth, covered both bottom and hill. Inside the oil lamp shed light over the table around which the family sat. They bowed their heads in unison, the old man gave thanks for the bounty of life here in these rude surroundings where there was peace—where the populace dispersed only to go about familiar, daily tasks.

Although the light was dim, it shone steadily as the family ate.

Got a letter from Johnnie Murphy, down at Camp Gordon. He is one of my former school boys. Everybody in Wayland is proud of Johnnie. He would have been a junior this year in school, just a kid, with a sure spot on the basketball squad. But bad luck hit his family all around last spring. Mr. Murphy, his dad, had a seriously injured ankle. Mrs. Murphy, a chronic sufferer of asthma, was again hospitalized at frequent intervals. Don, who was graduated in May and planned to enter service, broke his arm and was delayed. Mr. Murphy, like most Wayland men, found himself jobless, with the closing of the mine there. A family of six cannot live on air. Savings disappear quickly under such circumstances. Johnnie, who is only seventeen, quickly volunteered for service, and is sending home all he can spare, to help that fine family of his. He plans to complete school, too. Our country needs more like him. He is a kid who will go places some day.

rate from that disease in the nation. This year, as of Tuesday of this week, only four persons have died of TB in this county.

In 1947 when the late Dr. Marvin Ransdell first alerted the Floyd County TB Association to the need, an X-ray machine was purchased. From the date of its installation the death rate dropped in 1950 from 35 to 26. Last year, TB deaths were down to five.

With the reduction of federal funds early last year, the Floyd County Health Department found it necessary to call on the TB Association to supply X-ray films, solutions for developing the films and also the services of a technician. The Association also paid the postage on the 2,991 reports mailed to persons who were given X-ray examinations by the mobile unit this year. In addition to these expenses, all literature relating to TB, including movie films, is supplied for the educational program conducted throughout the year in homes, schools and with groups where further knowledge of the disease is needed.

And, it was pointed out, the money necessary to achieve these things is raised by the sale of Christmas Seals.

charge against him was a "frame-up."

Willard Howard drew a one-year pen term for knowingly receiving stolen property, but the same charge against Granville Howard was dismissed. Willard Howard was later granted a new trial. Eugene Yates and Chester Stone offered no defense to the charge of breaking and entering, and each was sentenced to a year's imprisonment. The same term was given Yates for grand larceny and to Stone on another breaking and entering charge.

The two men face possible indictment in the shooting and wounding of Mrs. Sue Ward during a break into her store at Warco recently.

The fifth man given a pen term was James Hatfield, whose penalty was fixed at one year by the jury convicting him of grand larceny.

Others convicted:
Junior Collins, drunk driving, $100 fine; Billie Price, adultery, $50, the same charge as to Mary Beatrice Baldridge being dismissed; Haris Stone, reckless use of a deadly weapon $50; Ted Burchett, assault and battery, $50 fine, the same charge against Gene Burchett dismissed.

The murder trial of Ray Click was continued till Jan. 10.

Answering to indictments alleging embezzlement and making false entries, Jack Myhner entered a plea of having been placed in previous jeopardy, and Circuit Judge Edw. P. Hill indicated Wednesday afternoon this phase of his case will be decided by a jury.

The probation of Herbert Salisbury, of Left Beaver Creek, was revoked and he was sentenced to serve a one-year pen term. In another non-trial action of the court the judgment requiring Everett Stone to execute a peace bond was rescinded. This action was taken after he had served 64 days in jail on an assault and battery charge.

Acquittals were won by Virgil Jacobs, accused of child desertion, Ballard Little on his trial for shooting and wounding, and George Weddington, who was charged with drunk driving.

Wife of Floyd Native Author of New Book, 'Operation Knapsack'

A book published by the Wilcox & Folett Co., Chicago is "Operation Knapsack," by Mrs. J. P. Baldridge, of Blanchester, Ohio.

The author is a sister-in-law of Mrs. Ray Stephens, of Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Carl Woods, of Columbia, S. C., formerly a Prestonsburg resident. Her husband is a native of Bonanza.

Mrs. Baldridge's book is listed as a tailored historical fiction story suitable for ages from 12 up. Grown-ups who are not too seriously inclined will enjoy it as well as teenagers. The redheaded Winston towns, Judy and Greg, of Cincinnati, journey to Ambler, Pa., via train to join a hosteling group headed by Steve Andrews, medical student and ex-G.I. Each of the hostellers has a specific reason for taking the trip, which enables the author to point out the many advantages of this interesting low-priced way of travel. Hosteling has been very popular in England and on the European continent for many years and was started in the United States in 1934 by a school teacher and his wife who had enjoyed hostel trips in Europe. The hostellers travel by bicycle through the southern highlands and the historic South. Since boys will definitely not read girls' books, while girls are not so prejudiced, the author wishing to appeal to as large an audience as possible, has six boys and four girls characters in her story.

Steve's pretty young cousin, Teresa, who might be classed as a "jubilant" delinquent, causes him no end of difficulties until he threatens to send her home. Katie Wagner, a Home Ec major from the University of Chicago, helps Steve keep the group in line. A thread of romance runs through the book, with Steve and Katie supplying the love interest.

The publisher says: "Here is a teen-age story that will make almost anyone long to pack his knapsack and go a-hosteling. The very attractive jacket is by a well-known artist, Robert Frankenberg, and plays up the Pennsylvania-German angle."

HEALTH NOTES

By Floyd County Health Department

"A child should be prepared young in years for his regular dates with the dentist," says J. F. Owens, D. D. S., Director of Division of Dental Health, Kentucky State Department of Health.

Everyone becomes date-conscious—Christmas, birthday, the trip to see the family physician—and a child can as easily be oriented to regularly scheduled twice-a-year visits to a new friend, the dentist.

Baby or primary teeth as well as permanent teeth are less sensitive to pain if filled while cavities are small, Dr. Owen states.

Sixty percent of the three-year-olds have tooth decay. If the dentist is seen when the youngster is around three, and then other visits keep the teeth in proper condition a fear of dental work should not develop.

With this early trip to the dentist, and with nutritional food and proper home care, your child may grow into adulthood with strong healthy teeth which are instrumental toward good health. A neglected mouth means cavities now and possible illness later.

Health information pamphlets on dental health are available from your Floyd County Health department. The staff will be glad to see you.

Man and Wife Jailed But in Separate Cells

A Mud Creek man and his wife went to jail almost at the same time, Monday, but to separate cells. Anthony L. Hall was booked on a peace warrant sworn out by his wife and on an assault and battery charge. Meanwhile, Hall had named his wife, Ruby, on a child desertion charge. Both were arrested by Constable Joe Lykins, Jr. Mrs. Hall later was released under bond.

Others jailed during the week:
Arner Wilson, arrested by Conservation Officer Raymond Copley and accused of hunting without license; Edward Paine and Fred Maxwell, both of being absent without leave from military service, arrested by Constable Mathew Napier; Ralph Clark, drunk driving, booked by State Trooper Armitage; Harrison Marsillett, drunk driving, and Old Thomas, drunk driving and leaving the scene of an accident, both arrested by Prestonsburg Policeman Epp Laferty and Bill Potter.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

NOTES PROGRESS HERE

Editor, The Times:
The Mayor, the City Council, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and all concerned, take note:

Over a period of years, I have taken notice of Prestonsburg undergoing a decided change, a change culminating a switch-over from a town backward in civic ideals and appearance. Of late, this change has progressed rapidly. Modern food marts have been replacing the corner grocery stores, where old-timers used to assemble around a coal heater to swap yarns. There are also the department stores, fluorescent illuminated, and with sales personnel as gracious and polite as those of a Wannamaker's. One sees massive motels, bright-lighted drug stores, and neon lights flickering. Modernistic, architected homes grace the suburbs. All in all, Prestonsburg has discarded its ancient hillbillyism and has become transfigured and transformed.

Prestonsburg has not only changed its skyline geographically; the mode and character of its citizens has also changed. Remember awhile back, when there were frequent shooting forays on the streets? Many murders were committed then, and it was probably this which aroused our citizens from their Rip Van Winkle lethargy. The result was a superb police department which made this city an ideal in discipline. I can remember back in those "old days" when, on the morning after Hallowe'en this town would look like a virtual wreck. Now, thanks to law and order, the populace is more civilized.

Notwithstanding all this change for the better, this writer would like to conclude with a few remarks again addressed to the Mayor, the Council, and to "Whom It May Concern." It concerns those useless parking meter poles. These are only bent, crooked, iron pipes having a big hole where the meter head used to be. They are in the way of a pedestrian or a curb parker and should be either removed or repaired to a useful condition. I thank you!

Elephant Walk is the name of a fabulous plantation in the wilds of Ceylon and was so named because its eccentric owner built it on a path that the Elephants have used for centuries in their journeys to the river. In this wild, remote jungle there takes place one of the strangest love stories ever told. It is one of the Box Office Champions of this year.

Lucian E. Coleman, Sr., secretary of Baptist Brotherhood work in Kentucky, will make two addresses Sunday before Baptist audiences in Floyd county. The first of the two engagements will be at an Association men's rally with the First Baptist Church of Martin at 2:30 in the afternoon and the other at the evening service at Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church, Prestonsburg, at 7:30.

Mr. Coleman, who was a prominent Baptist layman in Arkansas before entering definite Christian work, came to the helm of Baptist Brotherhood work in Kentucky several months ago. He is an interesting and forceful speaker and a capable leader in Baptist life in the state and the South. This statement was made by the Rev. Ira McMillen, Jr., pastor of the local Baptist church, who is requesting that all Baptist men and others who are interested, avail themselves of the opportunity to hear Mr. Coleman.

GI BILL AIDS MORE VETS

Number of Veterans Of Korean War Aided By GI Bill Increases

More veterans are now taking training under the Korean GI Bill (Public Law 550) in Kentucky than at any time since the bill became law two years ago, Ray R. Adams, manager of the Kentucky Veterans Administration Regional Office in Louisville, announced recently.

Approximately 11,400 veterans have taken training or are presently taking training in Kentucky under the Korean GI Bill. This is approximately 18 per cent of Kentucky's Korean veterans who have returned to civil life, Adams estimates.

Most of Kentucky's Korean GI trainees prefer schooling. Approximately 38 per cent entered colleges and universities and another 38 per cent enrolled in schools below college level such as vocational and trade schools, business schools and correspondence schools. On-the-job training has attracted 11 per cent of these veterans and on-the-farm training has drawn 13 per cent of the Korean veterans. Farm training is a combination of classroom work and actual supervised experience in scientific agricultural methods on the veteran's own farm.

Mr. Adams pointed out that a recent nation-wide VA study of veterans training under the Korean GI Bill shows they are preparing themselves for the high-skill jobs and avoiding "snap" courses. This study analyzed the courses chosen by the half-million post-Korea veterans who had enrolled in training during the first two years of the Korean GI Bill.

The largest single group of veterans—one out of every five, or a total of 144,000—enrolled for highly-skilled craft and trade occupations. Included are 37,000 who studied mechanics, with automotive mechanics leading two to one; 36,000 who chose radio and television; 21,000 in metalworking, and 18,000 in the construction trades. Smaller numbers selected other trades such as printing and electrical work.

Ten per cent of the trainees—or a total of 51,000—chose business administration, and 14,000 prepared to be accountants or auditors.

Another 10 per cent, or 50,000, entered training in the field of science. The majority, 30,000, studied engineering, while 13,000 chose medicine and related courses. Other science courses which attracted substantial numbers of veterans were chemistry, geology, physics and biology.

Among other veterans studying for the professions or the arts, 16,000 were enrolled in teaching courses; 9,000 in law; 6,400 in psychology, economics and other social sciences; 2,500 for the ministry; 12,000 in art and design; 1,200 in architecture; 2,500 in music, and 1,000 in journalism.

On-the-farm trainees under the Korean GI Bill numbered 24,000.

In addition to the veterans training for specific jobs, a number of others were using the Korean GI Bill to acquire a general education—for most a jumping-off point for specialization later on. Among them, 105,000 were in America's colleges and universities—21,000 taking liberal arts courses and the remaining 84,000 not specifying their fields.

GI students in the nation's high schools and grade schools total 33,000.

Combs on Committee To Establish Program Leading to Scholarships

A committee made up of attorneys from all sections of Kentucky has been formed for the purpose of establishing a scholarship program for law students at the University of Kentucky.

This state-wide committee is made up of more than 100 Kentucky lawyers—representing all of the 42 Kentucky judicial districts and most of the 120 counties. Under the proposed program, any Kentucky attorney may nominate a student for the new scholarships.

Floyd county's committee member is C. Kilmer Combs, Prestonsburg attorney.

Chief qualifications to be considered will be the student's character, need and demonstrated ability. A committee made up of two members of the state bar and one member of the UK law faculty will make the final selection of scholarship recipients.

The state committee met on the UK campus in Lexington recently to begin organization plans for the scholarship program.

You may owe your life to a CONCRETE PAVEMENT

You can see farther and stop in a shorter distance on concrete, the safety pavement because:

1. Concrete's light-colored surface reflects up to four times more light than dark-colored pavements. You see pedestrians, obstructions and other driving hazards sooner and have more time to slow down or stop.

2. Concrete's gritty surface has uniformly high skid resistance, wet or dry. Your tires get a firm, tight grip, permitting quick stops without skidding.

Your license fees, gas and other taxes pay for roads and streets. Insist that they be paved with the safest possible pavement—concrete. It may save your life!

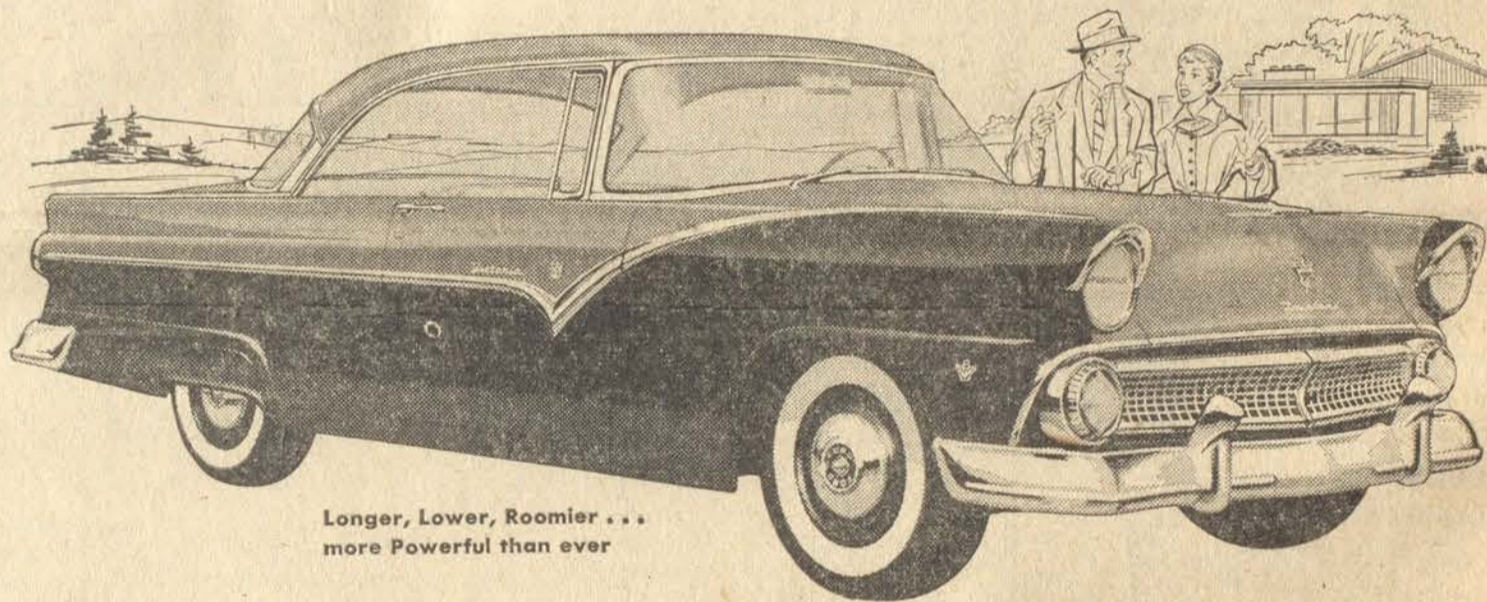

Remember, you pay more for poor roads than for good roads. Kentucky deserves the best—insist on concrete.

BETSY LAYNE

The Betsy Layne Woman's Club held its regular monthly meeting, November 18, at the home of Mrs. Edward Lykins. The meeting was called to order by the program leader, Mrs. Beecher Hardwick, chairman of the Public Welfare department, who introduced the speaker, Mountain Clark, Floyd county health administrator. Mr. Clark gave a very informative talk on state health legislation, including some of the old laws along with laws recently passed. Mr. Clark said that in his opinion the biggest problem in public health is public health education, or acquainting the public with the work of the public health department. The old existing public health laws were discussed first. Mr. Clark took the various laws and thoroughly explained them. Among the laws discussed were the plumbing law, laws concerning food handling establishments, the law governing public health nuisances. The difference between a public health nuisance and a public nuisance was thoroughly explained. The VD law was explained and discussed, with the fact that federal aid had been reduced and as a result the VD investigators had been dismissed, brought out. The law concerning communicable disease was discussed at length and the stream pollution law was explained.

The new public health laws were discussed as follows: A law was passed whereby the State Board of Health and State Department of Health were reorganized, thus making the two into separate departments. There was also a law reorganizing the county boards of health and health departments, making them separate departments. Mr. Clark told about the reorganization of the vital Statistics Bureau and noted that under the law the county health director and administrator become the vital statistics registrar without pay. The anti-rabies law was discussed at length and it was brought out that this law has met with much success.

A question and answer period followed, with Mr. Clark discussing and answering many questions.

Mrs. Edward Lykins presided at the business meeting. Mrs. Lykins read a letter from the new governor of the 7th District, KFWC, Mrs. Crystal Howard, West Liberty, in which Mrs. Howard greeted the club.

Members donated to the "Meals for Millions" project and the collection will be sent for friendship food for a hungry world. The gift items made by club members were on display throughout the evening. At the close of the meeting a salad course was served the following: Mr. and Mrs. Mountain Clark, guests; Mesdames O. J. Williams, C. H. Dickerson, E. P. Davis, Beecher Hardwick, Glenn Blackburn, Wm. Humphrey, Miss Alice Williams and the hostess, Mrs. Lykins. The next regular meeting will be the annual Christmas party at the home of Mrs. O. J. Williams, on Thursday night, December 16.

U. M. W. WELFARE FUND REPORTED GOING BROKE

Providence R. I., Nov. 23 — Joseph E. Moody, president of the Southern Coal Producers' Association, said here this afternoon that John L. Lewis' Health and Welfare Fund for coal miners is going broke.

In an interview after a speech before the Rotary Club on labor trends, Moody said that the United Mine Workers' fund, into which he said coal operators had already poured about a billion dollars, is running about 1,000,000 in the red each month.

There is, Moody said, only about $62,000,000 of "free money" left in the fund, apart from money earmarked for hospitals now being erected, and he estimated the monthly outlay from the fund at 10 to 12 million dollars. To save the fund from bankruptcy, Moody said, Lewis will probably have to cut miners' benefits.

Moody said that economic necessity is forcing mine operators to go non-union, so that U. M. W. miners now produce only 75 percent of the nation's bituminous coal instead of the 84 per cent they formerly did. He said that his association has formed a committee to try to stop the non-union movement, realizing the result will be a "dog-eat-dog" situation.

N.L. Places Nine on The Sporting News 1954 Rookie Team

For the fourth time in the last five years, the National League dominates the Rookie All-Star major league team selected by The Sporting News for 1954.

Nine National Leaguers and four from the American were picked on the yearling squad of 13.

The National League trend began in 1950 with the Philadelphia pennant-winning Whiz Kids. Briefly, thanks to the Yankees' bumper crop of 1951 rookies (Mickey Mantle, Gil McDougald and Tom Morgan), the A. L. had a decisive 7-3 edge for one season. But since the Nationals took seven out of 13 positions awarded in 1952, they've run away with freshman honors in The Sporting News' selections.

The biggest factor in National League dominance has been the considerable house-cleaning and rebuilding done by the Cardinals in Eddie Stanky's three years as manager and Anheuser-Busch's two seasons of ownership.

A year ago as the most prolific producers of farm talent, the Redbirds took three spots on the annual team of top tyros, an able trio of Harvey Haddix, Rip Repulski and Ray Jablonski. This time they again placed three—First Baseman Joe Cunningham, Center Fielder Wally Moon and Pitcher Brooks Lawrence.

In '54, however, the Cardinals were forced to share honors with the Cubs, who won three spots with Ernie Banks at shortstop, Gene Baker at second base and a lefty reliever, Jim Davis, as one of four pitchers chosen.

The only other major league club to place more than one player on The Sporting News All-Rookie team was the Yankees—Bill Skowron and 20-game winner Bob Grim—as consolation for the first season in six in which the Bronx Bombers weren't a world's championship club.

The complete All-Rookie team: Cunningham, Cardinals, first base; Baker, Cubs, second base; Banks, Cubs, shortstop; Jim Pinigan, Athletics, third base; Hank Aaron, Braves, left field; Moon, Cardinals, center field; Bill Tuttle, Tigers, right field; Jack Shepard, Pirates, catcher; Skowron, Yankees, utility, and Grim of the Yankees. Lawrence of the Cardinals, Davis of the Cubs and Art Fowler of the Redlegs, pitchers.

In selecting the team after earlier naming Moon and Grim as the Rookies of the Year, The Sporting News defines as a "rookie" any player who has had not more than 45 days of big league service.

HUNTER

CELEBRATES 55th BIRTHDAY

Gomer Moore, of Hunter, celebrated his 55th birthday dinner at his home. A buffet dinner was served to the following guests and children.

Gomer, Alta, John B., Frank D., Margie, Frances Kaye, Judy, Loretta, Gary, Emogene Moore, Mrs. Donia Warrens, Joyce Garnet, Paul Douglas and Betty Lou Warrens, Geneva and Jay Salisbury, Smith Salisbury, Ora Salisbury, Mrs. Gertrude Johnson and son, Willard and Lucy Lykins, Laura Mae and Dorothy Lykins, Minnie Nitchie, Mrs. Thelma O'Brine, James O'Brine, Anna Ruth Frazier and son, Mary Francis, Glenda, Joyce, Donnie, Freddie and Doris Osborne, Janis, James and Johnnie Adkins, Christine Lykins, Mary Tackett, all of Hunter; Inis, Forrest Ray, Ronald, Glenn, and Rosemary Moore, from Right Beaver; Ballard and Ronald Shelton, Drift; Helen Prater, Martin; Elesta Eugene, and Larry Douglas Hamilton, and Mrs. Verna Daniels, of McDowell; Mrs. Eva D. Young, Rittman, O.; Carmel, Jerlene, Bobby Joe, Peggy Sue and Larry Gomer Moore, Orrville, Ohio; Ellis, Jose, and Sherlie Moore, of Harold.

LOSES BY ONE

Yankee Catcher Yogi Berra lost the American League runs-batted in title to Larry Dobby by one single run this past season, 126 to 125. But says the Sporting News, Yogi was still the top run producer for the Yankees for the sixth straight year. Even Hall of Fame Catcher Bill Dickey never dominated the Yankee batting picture the way Yogi has. And no catcher except Yogi has hit 20 home runs in six different seasons. He has done it six straight.

Caught on the Fly

Veteran Pitcher Virgil Trucks says he'll be shooting for 20 victories again in 1955 and feels that he can do it. He has a good incentive. He has just signed the best contract in his long baseball career. Trucks hit the 20 mark in victories for the first time in 1953, and won 19 this past season. He told The Sporting News he'll finish his career with the White Sox. "I'm 35 now," he said, "and this will be my nineteenth year in baseball, 14 of them in the big leagues. I'm nearing the end of the line, and it's too late for me to break in with another ball club. If I'm traded, I'll retire from the game."

If there's a man who can be called the "Football Dad of America," says The Sporting News, it's Paul Burris of Muskogee, Okla. Five of his six sons are, or have been, football stars. Buddy, the oldest, was All-America at Oklahoma in 1947 and '48. Kurt and Robert are on the present Sooners' squad, and Kurt is highly touted for All-America center. The Burris twins, Lyle and Lynn, play on Muskogee's undefeated Central High School team. Dad Burris is modest about his boys. "I just watch 'em play," he says. "Mrs. Burris raised them and deserves all the credit."

The Sporting News isn't happy about the Jack Benny television show in which Leo Durocher, Fred Haney, Charley Dressen and Beans Reardon had a part. In an editorial in its current issue, it says that any time a baseball notable appears in the uniform of his team, he carries the obligation of wearing it proudly. The diamond garments of Ty Cobb and John McGraw, it adds are not the proper costumes for buffoonery. From baseball's point of view, The Sporting News says, the performance was regrettable.

Nobody has more trouble than a losing football coach. So says Bear Bryant of Texas A. and M., which lost eight of its first nine games. As quoted in The Sporting News, Bryant said: "It's always OUR team to the fans when we're winning, but this year everybody asks: 'How is YOUR team going?'"

Who is going to be named the College Coach of the Year? Among the leading contenders for the honor, says The Sporting News, are Woody Hayes of Ohio State, Red Blaik of Army, Red Sanders of UCLA, and Bowden Wyatt of Arkansas. There they are, says The Sporting News. Take your pick.

The Farm Bureau donated $100 toward paying expenses of sending the state champion Lewis county 4-H poultry judging team to Chicago.

The Washington Senators first baseman, Mickey Vernon, passed three milestones in batting in the 1954 season, according to The Sporting News. UK WILDCATS NOW FACE JOB

Of Rebuilding; Departure Of the "Fabulous Five" Poses Present Problem

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 22 (Sp.)—Kentucky's basketball Wildcats, facing one of the biggest rebuilding jobs since the departure of the "Fabulous Five" in 1949, open a challenging 24-game schedule on December 4 by meeting arch-rival of the court, Louisiana State, at Lexington.

Minus the services of the "Big Three" of last season's undefeated national champions, All-America Cliff Hagan and Frank Ramsey plus Lou Tsioropoulos, the charges of Coach Adolph Rupp will be hard-pressed to maintain a glittering record that has seen them undefeated by a conference team since the finals of the SEC Tournament in 1951.

Top threats on the coming season's power-packed schedule, which could spell fins to UK's national-record-length home floor win streak of 124 games, are defending NCAA Tournament champion LaSalle, who will be a participant in the second annual UK invitational Tournament, and SEC powerhouse Alabama. All told, the card includes 15 games with league opponents, including the opener against LSU which will not count in the final loop standings, and nine meetings with six non-conference foes.

The complete 1954-55 UK schedule follows:

Dec. 4, Louisiana State, home; Dec. 11, Xavier, Cincinnati; Dec. 18, Temple, home; Dec. 21-22 UK Invitational Tournament (LaSalle, Utah, So. Calif., and Kentucky), and Dec. 30, St. Louis U., home; Jan. 1, Temple, Philadelphia; Jan. 8, Ga. Tech, home; Jan. 10, DePaul, home; Jan. 15, Tulane, New Orleans; Jan. 17, LSU, Baton Rouge; Jan. 22, Tennessee, Knoxville; Jan. 29, Vanderbilt, Nashville; and Jan. 31, Ga. Tech, Atlanta; Feb. 3, Florida, home; Feb. 5, Mississippi, Memphis; Feb. 7, Miss. State, Starkville; Feb. 9, Georgia, home; Feb. 14, Xavier, home; Feb. 19, DePaul, Chicago; Feb. 21, Vanderbilt, home; Feb. 26, Auburn, home; Feb. 28, Alabama, home; and March 5, Tennessee, home.

SPORTS CHATTER

By Gordon Moore

Those who "swore off" going to Kentucky-Tennessee games because they grew tired of seeing UK lose may be getting ready to swear "back on" after last Saturday's game.

A well-deserved tribute to the play of Prestonsburg's John Delmar Hughes, Wildcat quarterback who excels at annexing those precious points after touchdown was written by Earl Ruby for The Courier-Journal. All this boy, two years out of high school here, did was to kick both extra points—the last under the tremendous pressure created by the difference between a tie game and victory depending on the accuracy of his boot, with thousands of wild-eyed fans sitting (or standing) in the stands looking on.

Mr. Ruby's article follows, in part:

It was a really beautiful football day for Knoxville. No snow. No ice. Just a two-day down-pour of rain, a chilling wind and a sloppy field.

But the mud and slick grass turned what might have been a brilliant, free-scoring contest into a tense fight for possession of the ball.

Tennessee, as expected, opened with a kicking game, looking for breaks. The breaks came, too, in bunches like grapes and gave the Vols a 7-0 lead in the first half. But Kentucky's superior defense staved off more serious trouble until Wildcat runners settled down in the second half.

Then it came about that a kicking game—or I should say game kicking—by a Kentuckian won the contest for Kentucky.

The kicker was John Delmar Hughes of the celebrated J. Thurman Hughes family of Prestonsburg.

A good solid placekick by Hughes, after a touchdown by Bob Hardy, of Paducah, tied the game at 7-7 early in the third quarter. . . . And another clean confident boot by Hughes after a touchdown by Howard Schnellenberger, of Louisville, in the fourth quarter produced the winning 14-13 margin.

That accurate bit of toe work gave Kentucky two consecutive wins over Tennessee for the first time since 1924-25. It also gave the Wildcats their first win in Knoxville in 30 years.

The two all-important kicks recalled a similar feat in the same city two years ago that gave UK a 14-14 tie in the snow. Then it was Bob Bassett, a freshman who saved the day. This boy later dropped from school.

John Delmar played freshman ball last season and is now a sophomore. He not only is an accurate kicker, but a promising young signal-caller and an excellent passer. While at Prestonsburg High, he flipped the ball 397 times for a total of 3,401 yards. He passed for 51 touchdowns and scored 25 himself. He also kicked 67 extra points. . . . Quite a boy.

Basketball play in the 15th region and again in Floyd county is being tremendously handicapped by coaches refereeing other county games on off nights, then later playing the same teams. As a result ill feeling is running high.

One rule that the Kentucky High School Athletic Association should adopt is to prevent any cage tutor from working games inside the county in which he coaches, or with any team he meets during the season.

When coaches trade around for games to officiate, it is not in the best interest of the kids, but merely supplementing the pay of the coaches.

STILL AT IT

It's time for the principals and school officials in Floyd county to enforce the starting time of their basketball games. . . . All are usually advertised to start at 8 p.m., but it seldom happens. . . .

For two years constant complaints by the game officials and paying customers have brought little if any results to start the games on time.

It is little wonder that school attendance falls off from 20 to 30 percent in the student body the following morning after mid-week games.

All this - and more miles per gallon too!

Be sure to test out the phenomenal effect of "variable pitch propellers" in Dynaflo Drive!

MAYBE—among the upcoming crop of new 1955 models—there's another car with an advance that can hold a candle to this one. But we doubt it. We doubt it because nowhere—among the rumors of what's cooking in automotive laboratories—is there anything to compare with what's actually happened at Buick.

It all started with the fact that modern air liners get two big advantages because they can change the pitch of their propellers.

First, they get off the ground hundreds of feet sooner than they used to.

Second, they can stretch their gasoline by setting propeller blades at just the right "pitch" for cruising.

MILTON BERLE STARS FOR BUICK
 See the Buick-Berle Show Alternate Tuesday Evenings

So Buick engineers asked themselves—"If you can do it with air, why can't you do it with oil—the oil inside a Dynaflo Drive?"

They designed and engineered the propeller-like blades inside the "stator" of a Dynaflo Drive so they can change their pitch as much as 75 degrees.

That provides one setting for more—miles-per-gallon, and another for an instant safety-surge of power when it's needed.

All you have to do is push the accelerator pedal down to the last half-inch beyond the full throttle position—and a-way you go!

Of course, there's a lot more to make a visit to our showrooms the "must" of the new-car year.

There's a step-up in styling as sensational as the step-up in power. And the step-up in horsepower is this: 236 in the ROADMASTER, SUPER and CENTURY—188 in the low-priced SPECIAL.

But the thrill of the year is Buick's latest engineering "first"—and what it does for the man or woman who drives the latest and greatest Dynaflo Drive.

Pay-off on progress!

Buicks today go a lot farther on a gallon of gas, thanks to constant improvement in Dynaflo and in engine design. Even the new 236-hp ROADMASTER averages 4.8 more miles per gallon than Buicks of six years ago.

*Standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series.

Thrill of the year is BUICK
