WHEN TO GO FISHING

The summer doldrums have hit me, along with some others I could mention but won't. When fishing ceases to be attractive to some people, they might serve the community well by going into hibernation.

Last Saturday I sank so low even that I took certain members of the family out in a boat and left all fishing gear behind. This resulted in the inevitable. As I returned up the lake there was Henry May, of Langley, having it out with a bass that, I figure, went four pounds.

After we had sat by and watched the tussle to its highly satisfying conclusion, I reminded the aforesaid Mr. May that on a certain Sunday afternoon two years ago I ventured up the lake with members of my family, leaving the old rod and reel behind, and that on that occasion he landed a fish as big as this one.

Henry seemed plumb grateful. Said if I would let him know when I planned to go boating again he would go fishing.

Charles Goble was over from West Liberty the other day, and he brought along with him his usual stock of yarns. Having quit cigarettes himself, he tells of the new organization called Cigarettes Anonymous. Says a member when he feels himself slipping calls up another member, and they get drunk together.

If the writer of a letter discussing bootlegging here and other matters will supply us his name, we will publish his views. Again we say: No anonymous contributions accepted.

THE OLD, FAMILIAR PATTERN

The dictator Peron in Argentina is following the established pattern of dictators in his war on the churches of his country. For a long while Protestant churches have suffered there, as they have in Russia, Hitler Germany, and in any other country where one-man rule has been the aim. Now he is waging open warfare on the Roman Catholic church.

Protestants who may be inclined to hail the news of Catholic persecution should stop to think. They should remember that all dictators are enemies of Christianity and that what a dictator does to one church he will do to all churches.

One of Mussolini's weaknesses was that he could not, or did not, dominate the Catholic church in Italy. It was too strong.

Adolph Hitler and Joe Stalin, stronger pagans than he, quickly drove Christianity out of their countries or underground.

They did this because Christianity is the one basic freedom, and dictators cannot afford freedom for their people. They demand absolute subservience, and the true worshipper of Christ cannot be subservient to a Hitler or a Stalin, or any other mortal.

These who would rule by the

BOOTLEGGERS GIVEN NOTICE

Sheriff, Chief Deputy Say Property Forfeit Penalty To Be Exact

Sheriff Gorman Collins and his chief deputy, Troy Mullins, served written notice this week on owners of property or vehicles used in the whiskey traffic that the law providing for forfeiture of such property to the state will be enforced in all future violations of the local option laws.

Similar action was threatened a few years ago, but the penalty was never executed.

Collins issued typewritten notices for posting and for newspaper publication. They cite Section 242.310, Kentucky Revised Statutes, which provides:

"Any person knowingly or intentionally renting or permitting the use of, or using, any premises, or part thereof, or any vehicle for the purpose of unlawfully selling or transporting or possessing intoxicating liquors in dry territory, shall be guilty of a nuisance and of a violation of this chapter. Any property so used shall be forfeited to the state. The forfeiture shall extend to the whole of the premises or vehicle owned by the defendant, or to his interest in said property, including all land and buildings in one boundary."

Upon a judgment of forfeiture the Sheriff would sell such property at court direction.

Hearing on Peace Writ For Martin Set Sept. 3

ALTERCATIONS HERE INVOLVE TWO OFFICIALS

Meade Hits Prosecutor, Pays Fine; Martin Jailed On Charge by Sen. Hays

Trial of Commonwealth's Attorney Burnis Martin on a peace warrant issued for him Saturday after he allegedly had struck State Senator Doug Hays during an argument at the courthouse was postponed Wednesday till Sept. 3 after opposing attorneys had failed to agree on a special judge to preside at the hearing. County Judge Henry Stumbo, who issued the warrant, disqualified.

Issuance of the peace warrant and a writ charging Martin with assault and battery was one of a series of week-end events here that created considerable excitement. In the order of their occurrence these were:

1. The altercation between Hays and Martin.
2. Issuance of warrants for the prosecutor.
3. An assault Sunday by Astor Meade, Prestonsburg contractor, on Martin on the sidewalk in front of the courthouse.
4. The arrest and jailing later in the day of Martin by Constable Johnny Caudill, of Magisterial District No. 3, on the warrants sworn by Senator Hays Saturday.

Arrested at his home on Central avenue here late Sunday afternoon, Martin protested that his injuries

COUNTY FAIR SET OCT. 6-8

Fair Board Adopts Basic Rules; Slates Rides As Amusement

The third post-war Floyd County Fair will be held Oct. 6-7-8, it was decided last Thursday evening when the Fair Board met at the Municipal building. The setting of the fair date had been deferred until then while basic policies were being formulated and the committees were being fully staffed.

The Godding Amusement Company will furnish six different kinds of rides for the amusement of the fair-goers, it was said this week. There will be no concession stands this year. The amusement company will set up at the fair grounds a few days earlier than the scheduled fair opening, as was done last year.

The date slated for the rides to be open to the public is Oct. 2.

The fair board completed a revision of the general rules this week but, basically, there were few differences from last year's rules. The rules, as released to The Times are as follows:

1. All exhibits must be listed with the secretary of the fair between the hours of 1 p.m. and 8 p.m., October 5.
2. All exhibits, except livestock,

Where's The Drouth in This Picture?

Dry and Dusty out your way? This didn't last long but a down-pour here Tuesday afternoon, last week, created conditions at the Court street and Lake Drive intersection that were reminiscent of last spring's "flood". Capacity of a sewer there was overtaxed, with the result that water rose almost to the door-level of the First National Bank (right), actually dampened the floor of Ranier's restaurant (left foreground) and furnished a perfect roadblock for an hour. The auto in the picture is that of Ernest "Red" Osborne, and was the first to get through after the water began to recede.

FLOYD AIRMAN CRASH VICTIM

Pvt. Lloyd Hunt Among 66 Dead As Two Planes Brush Wings and Crash

Pvt. Lloyd R. Hunt, son of Mrs. Norcie Hunt, of West Garrett, was one of 66 American airmen who were killed last Thursday when two Flying Boxcars brushed wings and crashed in flames in Germany's Black Forest.

The airman's mother survives. His father died about 18 years ago. Lindsay Hunt, of Michigan, is a brother, but names of other survivors were unavailable.

The planes came to earth with terrific impact near the German village of Groenbach. The bodies were burned beyond recognition.

Nine C-119's of the 60th Troop Carrier Wing took off from Echterdingen Airfield, near Stuttgart, about 1 p.m. last Thursday in clear, sunny weather. They were loaded with troops and equipment of the Seventh Army for air-transportation exercises.

Soon after take-off, one plane developed engine trouble at 4,000 feet and wavered in formation. It touched the tail wing of its neighbor and plunged earthward. The second plane held its course for a minute. Then it also fell.

The first plane crashed among the tall pine trees of the Black Forest near Groenbach. The other came down nearly three miles away in a cornfield.

Foresters and farm workers heard massive explosions and ran toward the wreckage to give aid, but flames drove them away.

The first German policeman to reach the spot said:

"Everyone was dead. We stood there, but could not help. We all cried like babies. I have never seen anything like it."

DOCKET LISTS 145 FOR TRIAL

September Term Docket Considered Light; Names Of Jurors Are Announced

One hundred forty-five cases have been docketed for trial at the term of circuit court which will convene here Tuesday, Sept. 6. This is considered a light docket here.

Equally light is the murder docket for the term, with only one such case and that a case which already has been heard twice. The defendant is Ray Click, at whose last trial the jury failed to agree.

Child desertion cases, many of which will never come to trial, continue to clutter the docket and to comprise the one offense most frequently listed. Forty-five such cases are docketed, most of them set for trial on the first day of the term and on the following Monday.

Sixteen of the cases docketed accuse the defendant of breaking and entering, grand larceny, theft or an offense in that category. Only two persons are listed on the docket for carrying a concealed deadly weapon, and four are charged with drunk driving.

The names of persons drawn from the jury drum for service during the term follow:

Claybourne Bailey, Betsy Layne; Effie Hopkins, Prestonsburg; Elizabeth Burchett, Lancer; Benton Smith, Bonanza; Jonah Lafferty, Garrett; Troy Nichols, McDowell; Charlie Conn, Dony; Ed Brown, Garrett; Bernice W. Porter, Allen; S. R. Hatcher, Allen; W. M. Terry, Lackey; Cynthia Dove, Mantion; Bill

ALLEN KILLS SELF, VERDICT

Coroner's Jury Holds Printer Man Shot Self; Victim Widely Related

A jury empaneled by Deputy Coroner W. R. Callihan held that the gunshot wound which killed Johnnie Allen, 47-year-old miner at his home at Printer at 5:30 p.m., Friday, was self-inflicted.

The charge of a 20-gauge shotgun had been fired into Allen's forehead, and tests revealed that the weapon was short enough to enable him to level it at his head and push the trigger with a finger. Evidence heard by the jury also disclosed that his wife had feared such a tragedy and had hidden from him guns he owned.

Mrs. Allen was milking at the barn, a short distance from the home, when her 12-year-old son ran there to tell her his father had the gun. Report of the shot was not heard, but when she entered the house she found her husband dead.

The victim was an employe of the Kathryn Elkhorn Coal Company, and was widely related in the county. He was a son of Mrs. Sally Brooks Allen and the late Alex Allen. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Armina Conn Allen, his mother, five sons and three daughters, Johnnie Allen, Jr., of Martin, Lonnie, James Alex, Ronald David and Kenneth Allen, all of Printer, Mrs. Willie Hallbest, Detroit, Mich., Miss Betty Joyce Allen, Hialeah, Fla., and Miss Mary Allen, of Printer. He also leaves three step-children, Mrs. Leroy Lambert, Madison, W. Va., Herbert G. Salisbury, of Printer, and Mrs. Stanley K. Horner, Norfolk, Va., and one sister, Mrs. Polly Farmer, Grundy, Va.

Funeral rites were conducted Monday from the Salisbury Baptist Church, the Revs. Banner Manns, M. C. Wright, Mack McCloud and Melvin Conn officiating. Burial in the Allen cemetery at Printer was under direction of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

GIRL KILLED, 3 HURT HERE

Paintsville Teen-Agers In Wreck Tuesday Night; Miss Johnson Is Victim

Seventeen-year-old Eva Lee Johnson, of Paintsville, was instantly killed and three other teen-age companions were injured, one critically, Tuesday night when their auto left the highway at Ball Alley in the upper section of Prestonsburg, and plunged over a high embankment toward the river.

Critically injured was William Randy Boyd, 18, Kentucky Military Institute student, who is a nephew of Mayor J. B. Wells, of Paintsville.

Less seriously hurt was Miss Ann Dixon Bailey, 18, of Paintsville, whose left leg was almost severed. Arnold Wells, 19, also of Paintsville, was dismissed from the Prestonsburg General hospital after treatment for minor injuries.

The auto, driven by young Boyd and owned by his stepfather, Edd Redd, Paintsville insurance man, left the highway while rounding the curve at Ball Alley as the youngsters were approaching Prestonsburg. The car ran along the ditch-line at the upper side of the highway a distance of 75 to 100 feet, then cut across the road and careened, end over end, down the embankment.

Miss Johnson was found beneath the smashed car. She suffered a broken neck and fractured

COOK STARTS DOG ROUNDUP

States Countywide tour To License Dogs, Offer Serum, Round Up Strays

Roy Cook, county dog warden, this week began in Martin and vicinity the work of selling dog tags, picking up and destroying worthless strays and rendering other services connected with enforcement of the new state dog law.

At the same time he announced a schedule designed to cover the entire county over the next several weeks.

Mr. Cook said he also is offering one-year immunization of dogs against rabies.

"I am picking up stray dogs whose owners can't be found. Those that appear to be worth keeping are being taken to my pound and the others killed," Mr. Cook said.

Mr. Cook's salary for this fiscal year was recently raised to $1,200 by the fiscal court in order to justify his full attention to the job of enforcing the dog law.

The schedule for his visits by magisterial districts follows:

Aug. 22-27, in District 2; Aug. 29-Sept. 3, District 1; Sept. 5-17, District 3; District 4; Sept. 19-30, District 3.

Livestock losses due to destruction by stray dogs has been reduced in Kentucky by at least 50 percent during the past 12 months, Ben S. Adams, Kentucky Commissioner of Agriculture, said this week.

Ex-dairyman Points To Sheep For More Hill-Farm Profits

The easiest way to make money on a hill farm is to raise sheep. So says Paul Dotson, former dairyman who quit that business over a year ago and started in the business of growing lambs for the market.

Dotson tried dairying for three years, quit in disgust when the price of milk fluctuated too much. To get in the sheep business he bought 15 aged western ewes from Wyoming last year. Several months later he bought 25 ewes from Oliver Hall, of Branham's Creek. A registered, purebred Hampshire ram completed his foundation stock.

To date he has sold 34 lambs for a total of $534 and when he gets his last wool incentive check from the government, the wool, plus the incentive payments, will amount to $243, perhaps slightly more. And he didn't sell all his lambs, either. He kept several head for breeding purposes next year.

The ewes bought from Hall had 20 lambs and he lost five of them. "The loss of those lambs are chargeable to lack of experience," he explains. He lost some money, too, by breeding to native rams. Twenty lambs were sold at a lower price because they were not top quality. "A man learns from experience in this business," Dotson says, "but he can make money while learning, too." As evidence of it he points to a fine foundation flock besides the figures in his book. He has 56 ewes to breed for early spring lambs with two registered Hampshire rams.

The 15 aged ewes, bred to a good ram, made money for Dotson. These ewes had 19 lambs. Needless to say, the native ram isn't on the Dotson farm any longer. He figures an average of $22.21 per ewe from the lambs sold and the wool, plus the government incentive payment. Plus all of this, too, of course, is the increase to 50 head of good ewes.

Dotson isn't afraid of dogs too much. He explains that for a small sum sheep can be insured against dogs, against everything but natural death, for that matter. Fencing isn't a problem, either, he says. "I'll guarantee that six strings of barb wires will hold sheep," he says. "My sheep are behind a fence that yearling cattle can go through with ease but the sheep stay in," he adds.

Dotson plans to run a hundred head of sheep as soon as he can get his pasture sodded. He hopes these hundred head will return him 100 percent gross profit as this year's market did.

COUNTY BOARD ENTERS ORDER IN MEET HERE

To Start Compliance With Court Mandate Removing Color Line

Complete separation of white and colored pupils already has ended in Floyd county, and the county board of education has taken steps toward eventual full compliance with the Supreme Court decision which requires discontinuance of the traditional separation of the races in the common schools of the country.

The transition has been effected quietly, effectively and without semblance of dissension.

Only 1.1% of the 14,444 pupils listed in the 1955 Floyd county schools census, or a total of 153 children, are colored. No more than four communities in this county have colored children.

At the recent meeting of the county board the key term of the Supreme Court decision was studied, and the fact that county school systems already are under investigation by federal authorities to determine if a "prompt and reasonable start" toward desegregation is being made in compliance with the court mandate was discussed.

The key demands in the Supreme Court opinion specify that the school systems must act in good faith, must make a "prompt and reasonable start" toward desegregation, must move at deliberate speed to effect this, and must base their actions on equitable principles.

The resolution adopted by the Floyd county board to comply with this mandate, avoid liability on the part of the board and escape drawing down upon it federal suits, provides:

All children, regardless of color, are now permitted to attend the school serving the local district in which they reside, except the Wheelwright and Weeksburg districts where school services are provided for both negro and white pupils.

County Superintendent V. O. Turner was instructed to study the situation in these two districts with the view of final compliance with the law as it now stands.

Desegregation has been effected to date on the friendliest terms, it was said. At Tram, for instance, desegregation went into effect in reverse. A white mother there appeared at the County Superintendent's office here and asked permission to send her children to the colored school there. She explained that the colored school is nearer her home, that the colored teacher is an excellent one and that her children will learn more at that school, and that her youngsters play with the colored children daily anyhow. Her request was promptly granted.

The first actual consolidation of the two races in a Floyd county schoolroom was made on Little Paint where children of a colored family were permitted to attend school. They are in their second week there now, and the change has been effected almost without notice or comment.

Two high school pupils at Tram who in the past have been transported past the Betsy Layne high school to the Pikeville colored high school, where their tuition was paid by the Floyd county board, will attend Betsy Layne high school this year. One colored pupil is attending the Ivel School.

These janitors were employed at the 15 larger schools of the county:

David—Deford Shepherd; Prestonsburg—Graham Calhoun and Arthur Hicks; Allen—Flora Gray; Auxier—Noah Porter; Maytown—Clarence Slone and Claude Rowe; Betsy Layne—Grover Sammons and Henry Harmon; Martin—Alifair Flanery and M. J. Borders; Garrett—Claude Pack and Carl Jenkins; Wayland—Lee Martin and Seymour Campbell; McDowell—Johnny and Maxie Caudill; Wheelwright—Hobart Burke, Farris Branham, Dewey Mc Knight; Lackey—B. L. and Lula Hughes; Drift—Marion Martin; Weeksbury—J. B. Fouts.

The list of school bus drivers is incomplete. These contract drivers were employed: Spurlock, Left Beaver Creek—Elza Adkins; Sugar Loaf—Forrest Burchett; Jockey Hollow to Auxier—Garnet Goble; Goble Branch—Marie Crider; Lick Fork—Johnny Whitaker.

The board accepted bids submitted on coal for rural schools. These ranged from $5 to $7 a ton. A third school bus was purchased under previous bidding from the Floyd Motor Company; the bus, the price of which is the same as one previously bought from the same firm, will accommodate 48 passengers.

The second carload of western sheep was being consigned to Floyd county farmers this week from Wyoming. The sheep are aged ewes but are good for breeding purposes for the next two or three years, County Agent O. E. Boggs says.

The first car was unloaded at Allen several weeks ago and orders are now being taken for a third car by Russell Hagedorn at the First National Bank who is secretary of the sheep committee. Also orders are being taken on a car of late lambs to be shipped about Oct. 15. These lambs will serve as breeding ewes next year. The lambs are black face and are expected to cost $15 each. They can be "roughed" through the winter, Boggs says, at a minimum of feed cost.

Twice the Lake Site Was Picked—Where Is a Better?

There should have been a gentlemen's agreement, to start with, when this matter of selecting a site for the proposed regional 4-H camp first arose. The series of delays and dissensions from decisions honestly made help the cause not at all.

A beautiful site on Dewey Lake was selected, first of all, by the site committee which toured all the places proposed for the camp. But that didn't end the matter. A vote of the various county committees as a whole was demanded, and again the lake site won.

"Best two out of three" doesn't win in this case, however; for now the whole thing is back where it started, and die-hard proponents of another site have succeeded in getting the location left to an out-of-state committee.

Perhaps this sort of committee should have been named, in the first place; but no body could foresee the continued opposition to the Floyd county selection.

Now, at this late date, we are told, a gentlemen's agreement has come into existence. All the counties to be served by the camp have agreed to abide by the decision made by this group of outsiders, and to cooperate fully with the big undertaking. So a new attempt to pick a site is to be made.

Boy Scouts of a huge mountain area have found Dewey Lake ideal for their camp; they have located there, and have never regretted the choice. Boating, swimming, hiking, nature study, sequestration—all these give Lonesome Pine Council those things which go toward attaining the Scout's ideal.

Sandy Valley Girl Scouts have a beautiful camp on a picturesque spot overlooking the lake. There they find everything that is available to the Boy Scouts except an isolated locale, and this one feature that fails to match the ideal has created no great problem.

The site proposed on the lake for the 4-H camp has everything offered by the Boy Scouts' Camp Shawnee, including isolation from the public. It is there for the asking, thanks to the generosity of the U. S. Corps of Engineers. Floyd county has pledged all necessary cooperation to the end that the camp will be accessible to an established highway through construction of a new road. Floyd county's citizens and those of a wide surrounding area are enthusiastic about the spot as a summertime gathering-place for those fine youngsters who are developing through 4-H Club work.

Somehow, on two occasions those closest to the plans and hopes of the 4-H movement in this section of the state chose this Dewey Lake site. We cannot think those who are now to come into the state to make a selection for us will find a better.

IN THE MAIL

A package received from Walter Snavely, formerly of Prestonsburg, now manager of a Stuckey's branch in Virginia contains a note referring to the Fisherman's Prayer this column reprinted recently. It also contained another Prayer, handsomely done on wood, which reads:

God, grant me grace
To catch a fish so big,
That, telling of it, even I
Need not tell a lie.
And we add a fervent "Amen" to that one, too.

A BULLETIN FROM BULLETIN KNOB

This lofty spot on Buffalo Creek will probably be shunned for some time to come by Alex Woods and Adrian Blackburn, because of an experience they had here Saturday night.

While the two sat on a big rock waiting for their hounds to pick up the trail of a fox they heard an ominous rattle. The venturesome pair investigated, and beneath the rock they killed 10 rattlesnakes. Eight measured about 14 inches, one had nine rattles, another 12.

They're not going back, because two of the rattlers got away.

HILL THANKS VOTERS

I sincerely appreciate the confidence of the voters of the 96th Legislative District as expressed by the large vote given me all over the district. One of the finest compliments it is possible to receive is to be chosen by your fellow citizens to represent them in their official business. A greater compliment still is to be re-elected to an office of trust. I have received both honors and I am deeply grateful. I humbly accept the task of representing the people in my district to the very best of my ability in the 1956 General Assembly.

I have no ill-feeling towards any person who opposed my candidacy and I congratulate my recent opponent, George Edward Allen, son of Dr. J. H. Allen and brother of Dr. Claude Allen, on his clean campaign.

Baptist Youth Rally Scheduled for Monday

The youth of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist church of Prestonsburg will be host to the Baptist youth of the churches of Floyd county at a rally to be held on the lawn back of the Baptist Sunday school annex Monday night beginning at 7 o'clock. Quentin Allen is chairman of the local committee arranging the activities for the evening. According to his announcement the first hour of the program will be devoted to fun and fellowship with a stunt or skit presented by each group present. Following this period the more serious side of the program will be devoted to the theme, "Christ In All Our Ways." A young person from each of the groups represented will give a brief testimony on a subject relating to the general theme, after which special music numbers will be provided. The meeting will be closed with an inspirational message by a visiting speaker. All the youth of the Baptist churches of Floyd county are extended a cordial invitation to be present.

from blows struck by Meade were such that his doctor had instructed him to remain in bed. He was released about 9 p.m., when Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill directed in the absence of County Judge Stumbo that he be allowed bond for his appearance in court and to keep the peace in the amount of $2,000. Commonwealth's Detective Alex L. Davidson was his surety.

Martin was not present when his case was called for hearing Wednesday morning, but it was explained he would appear to testify when called. A sizeable crowd was on hand for the proceedings, but after parleying over the designation of a special judge brought no agreement the case was continued around noon.

Martin said the attack on him by Meade was "a plot laid Saturday night at the Eagles Club." He added that he will padlock the Eagles Club.

These were the versions given by Hays, Martin and Meade of the two altercations:

"We got into an argument over the election on the porch of the courthouse," Senator Hays said. "Burnis left and went into the courthouse. I was sitting down, showing the election returns to Oliver Hall, and Burnis came back and said, 'You lied when you said you voted against the old-age lien law.' I gave him the lie, said he was a dirty liar. I laid my hand on his shoulder as I usually do in talking to a man, and he slapped me with his open hand and knocked my pipe out of my mouth. I didn't hit him back. I thought it was wrong for a man 78 years old to be fighting, and besides, I had been to a doctor on Friday. I told him I would get a warrant for him for hitting me, and he said, 'It won't do you any good—it'll be in circuit court.'"

Of the altercation Martin said: "It isn't a thing in the world but a publicity stunt being staged by a bunch of Bert Combs supporters who can't take defeat. I was going into the courthouse to look up a record when Doug said, 'Hey, Martin, look up there and see if you see Ernest Moore's picture.' I glanced up and told him I couldn't. Then he accused me of being against him and fighting him. I told him I was against him but that I had been too interested in the Governor's race to fight him. Doug got up then and came over to where I was, poking his finger at me. He kept on and I backed up four or five steps. I told him, 'You can say anything you want to to me but keep your hands off me.' He kept on, and I told a man I don't know who was at his side not to let him put his hands on me."

"Then Doug grabbed, sort of hit, me by the neck and shoulder. I reached up and jerked his hand off. His own hand hit his pipe." Both Martin and Meade agreed in their versions of the Sunday altercation that not a word was spoken between them. Martin said he and Ernest Hopkins were walking in the direction of his car and the postoffice, with Hopkins perhaps in front of him, while Meade apparently was about to enter his truck. He said Meade struck him after he had passed Meade. He added that after Meade's first blow he was practically out.

Meade said he had gone to his truck and was leaning against it with his feet spread slightly on the edge of the sidewalk. "He started to kick my foot and I hit him," the contractor said.

Meade was taken before Police Judge R. W. Feller by Chief of Police Epp Laferty, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of breach of the peace and paid a $22 fine.

Members of the family of the Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Durham, of David, including their five sons and five daughters and several of their 22 grandchildren, photographed at their recent reunion at Meredith's Cave, near LaFollette, Tennessee. The children are Charles Hubert Durham, Glenn Roggers, West Virginia; Mrs. Obie Wainseott, Chicago, Illinois; Mrs. C. L.

Ogle, Chicago; Mrs. James Morris, Morgantown, West Virginia; Rev. J. E. Durham, Jr., Clarksburg, West Virginia; H. W. Durham, Morgantown, West Virginia; Mrs. Herbert Morris, Beckley, West Virginia; James Durham, Louisville, Kentucky; Robert Durham, Dayton, Ohio; and Mrs. Thomas J. Durham, Washington, D. C.

Newspaper Story Marks Durham Family Reunion

When the Rev. J. E. Durham, of David, returned recently to gather in a reunion in his native Campbell county, Tenn., the scattered members of his large family, The LaFollette Press marked the occasion with a feature story dealing with the veteran minister's reminiscences of boyhood days in the Clinch river country which is now a part of Norris Lake.

The story follows, in part:

Rev. J. E. Durham, of David, Kentucky, who was born on the Clinch River, recalls the labors and seemingly—from the present day viewpoint—uninteresting pastimes of the river country before LaFollette had developed into a good-sized trading center.

Rev. Durham, a 66-year-old Baptist minister, lived on the Clinch River until he was 13. That was around the turn of the century. His family, 10 children and 22 grandchildren, held a reunion at Meredith Cave last week.

"My old homestead was located about three miles from the forks of the Clinch and Powell Rivers," he said, "on the right hand bank of the Clinch." The bottom land of the 100-acre farm is now under 130 feet of water. Only the ridge-land remains to invoke his memories of rugged, country life.

At its normal height, the river was about a quarter of a mile wide, he said, and "we would get fish for the pan just as well as you can get out and get chickens." The favorite fish of the time were red horse and blue channel cats, and a big pool near the Durham farm provided the river life necessary to keep the Durham frying pans full.

The anglers of the day didn't bother with the slow, rod and reel type fishing; they used baskets and traps.

"Trapping fish wasn't illegal back then," Rev. Durham explained.

Logging Operations

The Clinch wasn't navigated by barges, but it was used extensively by loggers who floated log rafts down to Knoxville, Rev. Durham said. The log rafts were long chains of logs "as much as six feet thick." For the most part, the wood was ash and yellow poplar.

Rev. Durham recalls that his father sold hundreds, "some over six feet in diameter," for $1 a tree. The logs were floated down the river by men who rode and guided them with long oars to Knoxville, and sometimes, Rev. Durham recalls, the loggers would ride the rafts to Chattanooga to sell them to saw mill operators.

The loggers from the Clinch country returning from the mills could ride a train only to Clinton, Mr. Durham said, and from there they had to walk the remaining distance. For clothing, Mother Durham wove linsley cloth on her hand loom. To give color to the rough-woven garments, green wheat was used for a vivid green, walnut bark and hulls were used for a rich brown and onion peels could be treated to produce a loud red.

Shoes In The Fall

In the fall, the seven children of the Durham family celebrated a gala occasion—they got their yearly pair of shoes. To buy them, they sold walnuts for 50 cents a bushel, berries, and other food stuffs growing wild in the area.

Social life was at a bare minimum in the river country, and what little social life they enjoyed was simple.

In the fall, Rev. Durham said, the farmers would gather for corn "shuckings." At these affairs a boy and girl would shuck together, and if the boy found more red ears than the girl, he got to kiss her.

"I've seen a fight or two because some fellow would steal an ear to kiss a girl," he said.

Church Socials

The church was probably the most active institution of the day. "Everybody went to church," Rev. Durham said, "and the church would have an occasional box supper. We went to the Mt. Pleasant Church (in Anderson County), and that's where I first learned about the Scriptures."

Other social institutions of the turn of the century were bean stringing, blind fold and candy stretching, according to Rev. Durham. The candy stretching game was played by a boy and girl. Each would take an end of thinly stretched molasses candy in their mouth. They would then commence to eat the end, and when they met, they would kiss. If the thread-like piece of candy was broken, the girl was kissed anyway.

"Either way the girl lost" Rev. Durham mused. "I thought it was a horrible thing then," he said with a twinkle in his eye, "but when I grew up, I didn't think so."

Many seldom-heard legends were popular in the Clinch River country at the turn of the century.

Legend of Painted Rock

Rev. Durham recalls the legend of Painted Rock. The rock is located about a mile from the forks up the Clinch River on the right hand bank. The rock was so named because it was decorated with images sacred to the Indians of the time. The 75-foot structure, now completely below the lake surface, was designed with a reddish paint.

"There is a story of a vast amount of gold buried in the river bluffs near the rock," Rev. Durham said. He tells the story of Dan Ridenour, called "Punkin Seed Dan," who dug around the rock looking for the gold. Dan was between 60 and 70 at the time, Rev. Durham said, and he dug huge holes in his search for the gold.

"If he ever found it," Rev. Durham stated, "no one ever knew." The rock, which had natural shelves around it, was thought to be haunted by ghosts. Rev. Durham said that his mother, as a young girl, was told by two Indians that at one time "gold was as cheap around there to shoe horses with as was iron."

The top of painted rock is sometimes visible when the water is low. When the Rev. Durham was 13, his family moved to LaFollette and there he saw his first train. "I don't know if I was ever in town before that," he said.

Rev. Durham was ordained in the old Mountain Baptist Church near Habersham, June 15, 1913. Since then, his ministry has covered the states of Kentucky and West Virginia.

He left LaFollette to move to West Virginia in 1917, but he tries to get back once a year for a reunion with memories.

Truck Operators Seek Rate Increase

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 15 (Spl.) — Commissioner of Motor Transportation John M. Kinnaird today set for hearing September 15 a proposed increase in rates sought by common carrier truck operators in the state—and suspended the proposed rates for not to exceed six months pending final determination of the question.

Central and Southern Motor Freight Tariff Association, Inc., Louisville, filed the proposed rate schedules which, generally, provide: An increase of 20 per cent on shipments of 2,000 pounds or less, and a minimum fee of $2.50—instead of the now $2 minimum—on any shipment.

Meanwhile, Kinnaird announced that the Department's Division of Rates and Services was conducting a survey on what effect, if any, the proposed rate increases would have on traffic movement in the State.

Delmer Ison, director of the Division, appealed to common carriers to reply to Department inquiries as soon as possible, as a preliminary to a hearing on the merits of the issue.

The Association represents most of the common carrier truck operators in the State.

Social Security Offices Observe Law's 20th Year

The Ashland social security office is participating in the nationwide observance of the twentieth anniversary of the enactment of the original social security law, Robert A. Flynn, district manager, announced this week.

The Social Security Act became a law on August 14, 1935. "At that time only about one worker in 10 was covered by any retirement system, and only about one worker in 20 by a public retirement program," Mr. Flynn said. As for July of this year, 2,250 persons in Floyd county were receiving a total of $78,857 in monthly social security benefits.

Pointing out that 9 out of 10 people who work for a living can now look forward to retirement benefits under the old-age and survivors insurance program, Mr. Flynn said that the original law provided only that the original law provided only that old-age protection. It applied to some 33 million workers in commerce and industry. The 1939 amendments added payments for dependents of retired workers and for the survivors of workers who died.

It was not until 1951 that coverage was extended to the self-employed, and to certain employees of non-profit organizations, regularly employed domestic and farm workers, and some employees of Federal, State, and local governments. Ten million more workers were brought under the program through the 1954 amendments which extended coverage to self-employed farmers, most farm employees and workers in private households, and certain self-employed professionals. Protection was also made available, under special agreements, to more State and local government employees, and to ministers and members of religious orders. "About 67 million persons will build this protection for themselves and their families during 1955," Mr. Flynn declared.

Mr. Flynn pointed out that the average old-age benefit payment has increased from $22.60 monthly in 1940 to $60 monthly at the end of 1954. Payments are still higher for retired workers who have more recently come on the rolls.

As an illustration of the progress of the program during the twenty years of its existence, Mr. Flynn said that many people who had themselves received benefits as children now have families of their own and are building old-age and survivors insurance protection through employment or self-employment now covered by the law. Looking to the future, he said that by 1975, when there will be 20 million Americans age 65 or over, 4 out of 5 of them will be eligible for benefit payments as retired workers, aged wives, dependent husbands, widows or dependent widowers or aged parents. At that time, nearly 90 million people will be in work covered by the law, and 93 million people will be insured.

H. Glenn Holyfield, resident representative of the Ashland Social Security office, will be at the Employment Office, Prestonsburg, each Monday and Tuesday (except September 5, legal holiday), at 10:00 a.m. Mr. Holyfield will assist claimants in applying for benefits under the Social Security law.

COAL GROUP HEAD WARNS LESS OUTPUT DANGEROUS

Washington, Aug. 15 (Spl.) — On the tenth anniversary of the end of World War II, Tom Pickett, executive vice-president of National Coal Associations, warned that expeditious implementation of a Cabinet Committee's recommendation on energy supplies is essential to preclude the possibility of a fuel deficit in another emergency.

The statement issued today by Mr. Pickett included the following data:

When World War II came to a close, ten years ago today, the national output of bituminous coal amounted to 11,500,000 tons per week; current production is running at about 9,500,000 tons per week—17.4 per cent lower than the comparable period of a decade earlier.

In the first six months of 1945 America's mines produced 293,245,000 tons of bituminous coal; for January through June of this year the figure was 218,965,000 tons—a differential of 27 per cent.

Since the end of hostilities on Aug. 15, 1945, a total of 5,056,000,000—an average of more than 500 million tons per year—of bituminous coal have come from America's mines; the total for 1955 will amount to less than 440 million tons if the average monthly production for the first six months prevails through December.

To be ready to produce the 650 to 700 million tons of bituminous coal that would be required in the first year of an all-out mobilization effort, the bituminous coal industry must maintain a production level of at least 500 million tons annually in the interim period; the industry output is currently more than 60 million tons below the safe normal production level.

Mr. Pickett pointed out that the Cabinet Committee, realizing the necessity of enabling the coal industry to stockpile the capacity necessary to meet emergency conditions, issued recommendations which include:

A prohibition on sales of natural gas by interstate pipelines which "drive out competing fuels because the charges are below actual cost plus a fair proportion of fixed charges."

Holding imports of crude and residual oils in check to prevent further impairment of the domestic fuels industries.

Voluntary reduction by the railroads of freight rates on coal—compulsory action if necessary.

Revision of the government's coal-buying policies to give more equitable treatment to coal.

When these recommendations are effective, the coal industry will move quickly toward the "safe" production level, Mr. Pickett said. Emphasizing the danger that is involved in placing reliance on foreign fuels, he recalled the acute fuel shortages that came about—particularly in New England and New York—in the first of World War II when enemy submarine action took a heavy toll of tankers along the East Coast and in the Gulf of Mexico.

"The Cabinet Committee by its recognition of underproduction in the coal industry as a national security problem, has moved to preclude the possibility of a fuel deficit in another emergency," Mr. Pickett explained. "Its recommendations must be implemented to become effective, of course, and we are hopeful that this implementation will be expedited by reasonable officials."

"Removal of the inequities that have risen under government acquiescence, if not actual sponsorship, will increase coal production and give management the opportunity for the expansion activities that can come only when the product brings a fair return. When these conditions prevail, America need have no worries about fuel supplies regardless of international developments."

LEAGUE WINS BY AMERICANS

Red Crum, Sherman Stumbo Guide Teams To 9-7, 9-5 Wins

The Americans edged the Nationals in the Martin Little League All-Star game 9 to 7, August 11, at Martin.

The Americans, managed by Red Crum, were composed of the stars from the Maytown Red Sox and the Kiwanis Braves. The Nationals were handled by Haas Stone, whose squad was selected from Legion Cardinals and Allen Indians personnel.

The Martin Little League playoffs will start August 22, Commissioner Denzil Halbert announced this week, with the first team in the league playing the third team and the second place team contesting the fourth team in the standings.

The Beaver Creek Pony League All-Star game was won by the Americans who beat the Nationals, 9 to 5, August 9, at Drift.

Sherman Stumbo guided the Americans, composed of players from the Doty Creek and Dermont organizations, to the win over Charles McSurley's Nationals, whose players were from the rosters of the Drift and Grigsby teams.

The playoffs, to start August 29, will be held exactly as the Martin Little League, Commissioner Denzil Halbert announced, with the first team playing the third and the second playing the fourth.

SPORTS CHATTER

By Gordon Moore

Unquestionably two of the leading football players on the East squad that lost to the West all-stars 19-7, last Saturday night in the fourth annual Kentucky high school coaches association game were Prestonsburg's Ronnie Goble and Bert Dixon. Goble averaged seven yards per try in carrying the ball five times and Dixon was a standout on both defense and offense.

Six western Kentucky fishermen were caught and fined last week, in addition to losing their boats and motors, after trying a fairly new, illegal method of trying to capture a mess of fish. The unlucky victims were using electrical charges from telephone equipment to stun the fish.

The first part of the split squirrel season ends October 15, and dates of the second half are November 19 to December 16. The bag limit is still 6 per day, or 12 after two or more days of hunting.

Sports Illustrated in its August 15th issue has an informative article on pike fishing, entitled "Promised Land of Pike". It should stimulate the average fisherman to pack his gear and head for Manitoba, Canada.

High school football in Eastern Kentucky continues to attract fewer potential candidates each year, which is probably attributed to the late summer heat, early September games before school is properly under way, and the easy living of present-day youths. Last year, 105 Kentucky high schools played the sport and at present it looks as if that number will drop below 100 this year.

The 1955 Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference race should be a three-way battle with Paintsville, Whitesburg and Pikeville, all capable of winning the title. The schedule favors Paintsville as the Tigers meet both teams at home.

Don't forget to attend the annual fish fry of the Floyd County Fish and Game Club this Sunday at the Allen Golf Course. The club is continually aiding fishing and hunting in Floyd county, and the sportsmen of our area should support the club in every way possible.

YANKS BREEZE TO PLAYOFF TITLE IN FOUR CONTESTS

The clutch pitching and hard hitting of Jim Mosley carried the pennant-winning Yankees to their second straight playoff victory in as many years as the Yanks put four runs together in the third inning to nose out the fighting Cardinals, 4 to 3, last Saturday.

John Grant Anderson, the league's standout at second base, ended the fray by one-handing a line drive and tossing out a runner at first. The Yanks won the contest in the third when Hamilton singled, stole second, went home on Anderson's bingle to left. Anderson then scored when Mosley unloaded a drive to right center that cleared the Little League regulation fence of 180 feet for two markers. Frank Burchett then doubled to left center and chalked another run on Ronald "Cowboy" Cooley's one-baser to right for the total of four runs.

The fielding gem of the game came in the second inning when Thurman Akers went far to his left to catch what appeared to be a sure home run. Akers also contributed heavily to the Cardinals attack as he rifled a homer over the left fielder's head for two markers.

Perhaps the turning point of the game came when Pitcher Mosley turned on the heat with the bases loaded in the first inning with only one out. Displaying a fine exhibition of clutch pitching, he forced one man to pop up and the other to ground out to second baseman Anderson to get out of the running. The win boosted Mosley, the league's winning pitcher, to a 9-1 mark.

On Thursday of last week the Yanks won the first game of the double elimination tournament by downing the Cardinals, 10-2, as Mosley held the Cards to three hits while he led the Yanks attack with a triple and a single. The smooth fielding of the Yankee infield featured this game as the Cards managed to push two runs across in the sixth.

Two Prisoners Attempt Escape From Pike Jail; Third Man Foils Effort

Pikeville, Ky., Aug. 12 — Pike County Jailor Frank Coleman got aid from an unexpected quarter in an attempted break last night. Two prisoners throttled a third who attacked the little jailer from the rear and beat him with a piece of metal, Sheriff Alex Blackburn reported.

Coleman, who weighs only 120 pounds and stands about 5 feet 2 inches, entered the jail about 8:30 p.m. and Taylor Shortridge, 19, Merriam, W. Va., grabbed him by the neck and tried to take his keys and bilfold, Blackburn said. Arnold Stewart, Long Fork, Ky., and Eugene Boggs, Pikeville, went to the jailer's aid. They helped overpower Shortridge.

Coleman was struck on the head 10 to 12 times with an object weighing around 2 pounds, the sheriff said. The piece of metal had been removed from a radiator, he added. Coleman suffered multiple abrasions on the head and a possible fracture of the right hand and wrist. He was not hospitalized.

Stewart suffered a hand injury and Shortridge facial cuts, in the scuffle. Shortridge is serving a term for drunk driving. Stewart was sentenced on a weapons charge and Boggs for child desertion.
