

This Town— That World

WRONG AGAIN

Well, we may as well start this thing off by correcting a mistake. Nothing serious, but a mistake, and you may say to that. This is to say that G. B. Hughes, whose collection of pencils was shown in this family gazette last week, is not Dr. G. B. Hughes. More than likely, "Gabe," like myself, never pulled a tooth in his life without the help of a stout thread. The old similarity of names was what got us. There is a Dr. G. B. Hughes, and he lives at Pikeville, and he is a dentist, and a relative of our G. B. Hughes, but—well, I was wrong.

Some people are so shiftless they couldn't even become radioactive.

SUCH IGNORANCE:

Johnny Reb stalked into the house, in a state bordering on high dudgeon (whatever that is). Off came the gray cap, and the sword that threatened to tangle with his legs quivered with his anger. When his mother asked what was wrong, he exploded: "That little, old boy don't know nothin'. I wanted to play Yankees and Rebels, and he said the Yankees wuz a baseball team!"

DIDN'T PAN OUT FOR ME

It helps fill up the column at a time when there's little grist for the mill; so I'll break down and confess that I didn't go overboard on "Peter Pan" on TV. Liked the general thread of the story, but whenever I see and hear a story told in song the thread seems just a bit too slender. Guess I'm just a red-meat guy when it comes to my TV plays. Personally I got more of a bang out of "Crime in the Streets," the story of juvenile delinquents in the slums, than I did out of the boy who never grew up. Mary Martin, as far as my ear and eye could detect, was great in her role, and so was the guy who played Captain Hook, but I was strangely unmoved.

These "spectaculars" just aren't for my bi-focals.

But what can you expect out of a guy who maintains that the finest cereal ever invented for human consumption is corn bread mixed with sweet milk?

WE TOUR THE WATER. FRONT AND CENTER

Ten of us toured Dewey Lake Monday at a time when it was a real lake, with "Red" Weaver at the helm, and those who had landmarks in mind could really appreciate the immense volume of water being held back by the dam. For instance, there was the bathhouse on Stratton Branch which normally

DOZEN CLUBS PLEDGE HELP

On Polio Vaccination Program in Floyd, If Go Ahead Comes Apr. 1

If the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis gives the green light, as expected, early next month for health authorities over the nation to proceed with a sweeping program of immunization against polio through the use of the Salk vaccine, Floyd county expects to be ready for the job. Ray Howard, chairman of the program in this county, said Wednesday.

For already all 10 Woman's Clubs of the county, the Junior Woman's Club here and the Prestonsburg Kiwanians have volunteered their services to help the Floyd County Health Department in administering the big job.

Volunteer help such as this will be used in various ways: to keep records, transport supplies and personnel, handle children at clinics and do countless other tasks.

Children in the first and second grades of school will be eligible to receive the vaccine.

$550,000 Park Fund Depends on 2 Moves

ROAD, BONDS WOULD CLEAR DIFFICULTIES

$50,000 Fund Marked For This Year; Ward Cites Parks' Earnings

With $50,000 allocated for expenditure at Dewey Lake State Park this year, an additional $550,000 will be spent there when two things are done.

These two things are:

1. Construction of a road connecting the Arrowhead Point lodge site with existing roads at Hager Gap and Stratton Branch.
2. Action by the State Property and Building Commission in compliance with request of Commissioner of Conservation Henry Ward that it issue revenue bonds in the amount of $3,640,000 to finance the Dewey and other state park improvements.

A 30-room lodge, dining room, lounge and gift shop at Dewey State Park is figured to cost $300,000. Twenty-five two-bedroom vacation cottages planned would cost $250,000.

Plans for this year at Dewey include:

Dock headquarters with site at the old launching ramp. This would include restaurant facilities similar to those on the boat dock at Lake Cumberland, with rest rooms and some storage space.

A caretaker's home to be built near the Brandy Keg dike, with a small service building in the same area.

Bathroom and beach similar to that at Carter Caves, these on Stratton Branch.

Studies have been requested by Mr. Ward of the location of a permanent service area; new picnic and recreational facilities, with a future master plan for the park in mind; scenic route skirting west side of the lake from Hager Gap to Brandy Keg.

Further development await road-building.

In a prospectus urging the issuance of revenue bonds for park improvements Mr. Ward estimated that annual receipts at Dewey State Park will exceed $88,000 and that all eight parks the fund would improve and yield receipts of $625,955 a year.

"The overall picture of Kentucky state parks operation," Mr. Ward wrote, "justifies complete confidence in the picture. Both attendance and cash receipts have climbed through the years. It is estimated that 3,500,000 people visited the 25 state parks last year. Receipts have climbed from about $175,000 in 1947 to more than $2,000,000 last year."

"The state parks have been developed on the theory that the state could operate in a business like manner if it followed the business practice of employing people who were qualified to fill particular jobs. We have hired people on the basis of what they knew rather than what they knew. The past demonstrates that we can have confidence in the future."

Approximately 800 acres of land and the entire water area at Dewey are considered the park, which is under 50-year license from the U. S. Corps of Engineers. Tom Clark is manager of the boat dock and present park facilities.

Name Three Trustees For Tram Span Fund

John M. Conn, Floyd Blevins and Lige Hixon have been named trustees of a fund being raised by popular subscription to finance, with county aid, the construction of a bridge across Big Sandy at Tram. Funds raised by this means are to be matched by the county.

Approximately $2,500 of the $5,000 sought by subscription already has been raised, it was said this week. Contribution may be made to either of the trustees, or to the First National Bank here. It was explained that the trustees have executed bond and that if the bridge is not built all contributions will be returned to the donors.

PARKS HEAD TALKS PLANS

At Dewey State Park; Mrs. Smith Addresses Club Here Last Week

Visitors to Dewey Lake State Park this season will see some changes made, Mrs. Lucy Smith, Director of State Parks, declared in an address at the March 3 meeting of the Prestonsburg Woman's Club.

Park improvements listed by Mrs. Smith for this year are:

A permanent boat dock, with lunchroom and rest rooms; a new bathhouse as a permanent improvement at Stratton Branch recreation area, opening of a parking lot, and construction of a caretaker's home.

Mrs. Smith pointed out, however, that the 30-room lodge with dining room and 25 nearby vacation cottages planned for construction at Arrowhead Point will not be constructed until the State Highway Department starts a road around Arrowhead Point to connect the Brandy Keg entrance to the park with the road now under contract which will connect the Auxier road and Van Lear via Dewey Dam.

The speaker reminded her hearers that Henry Ward, Commissioner of Conservation, has recommended to the State Property and Buildings Commission that it authorize the issuance of $3,640,000 in revenue bonds to finance a lodge and cottages at Dewey and similar improvements at several other state parks. With improvements made that are planned, Mrs. Smith envisioned Dewey as one of the most beautiful of the 25 state parks in Kentucky.

She also told of the building of the first state park in Depression days under C. C. C. direction and of the rapid growth of the movement. She added that Kentucky is fast becoming one of the tourist vacation states. Kentucky's state parks, she said, were planned to accommodate the average family at the lowest possible cost, at the same time offering tourists as well as native residents recreational facilities in a well-preserved setting of natural beauty.

Kentucky's system of state parks, she continued, now constitute "big business", with an annual income of $2 million dollars. Profits from the parks go into administration and improvements, but these profits are realized only on cabins and hotel accommodations. The picnic grounds, parking and swimming facilities are

LOCAL MOTEL CONTRACT LET

Burchett To Start Construction, April 1 On 20-Unit Structure

Contract was awarded last week by Edward B. Music and Thomas Hereford, Jr., on construction of a 20-unit motel on U. S. 23 in the Richmond Addition here, and work is scheduled to start by April 1.

Bev. Burchett, Prestonsburg contractor, was low bidder on the work of construction, and the VanHoose Lumber Company has contracted to supply materials for the project. The owners said this week they hope to be able to open for business by July 1.

In all, the motel will have 26 rooms. In addition to the 20 units for public use, the motel will include a large lobby with second floor living quarters.

Each room of the motel will be 13 by 20 feet, with individual air conditioning and heating. Television reception will be immediately available for any room requiring this service, and is planned for all rooms later. Individual bathrooms will be of ceramic tile.

Floyd Men Effect Correction Of State Income Tax Error

Joint efforts of two Prestonsburg men—James B. Camicia, treasurer of the Princess Elkhorn Coal Company at David, and State Representative Lon C. Hill—resulted this week in the State Revenue Department taking belated action to correct an error printed in Kentucky's 1954 income tax withholding forms that has been costing many taxpayers up to $5 too much in taxes.

Mr. Camicia discovered the error while preparing a tax return for a foreman employed by Princess Elkhorn. When his first letter to Revenue Commissioner Robert H. Alphin failed of effect, Camicia enlisted Representative Hill's support. The two maintained the error should be corrected now. They drew the support of Hugh Morris, of the Courier Journal's Frankfort Bureau.

The Department of Revenue finally capitulated this week. The tax-table error affects every taxpayer whose income subject to Kentucky tax ranges between $5,000 and $8,000, if he elects to use Kentucky's new short-form returns.

The new income-tax law requires taxpayers who do not wish to itemize their deductions to use short-form returns, and to see the tax tables printed on these short forms.

This taxtable was designed to allow a "standard deduction" of about 10 per cent of taxable income—up to maximum deduction of $500.

The tax table informs persons with taxable incomes of $5,000 to $8,000 that their tax bill will be $110 plus 5 per cent of the excess over $5,000.

This is a mistake. Actually, the table should say that the tax for incomes over $5,000 is 4 per cent of the first $500 and 5 per cent of the excess up to $8,000.

Here is an example of the penalty imposed on taxpayers by the tax-table error:

Suppose a taxpayer had an adjusted gross income of $5,500. If he were making a long-form computation, he would deduct the $500 maximum allowable standard deduction and calculate his tax at $130.

If he uses the tax table, he finds he is liable to $110 plus $25, or a total of $135.

SENATOR ASKS FLOOD RELIEF

On Roads and Bridges For Stricken Counties Under Public Law 845

Senator Earle C. Clements wired The Times Saturday that he has called on the White House and the Civil Defense Administration for assistance to Floyd county and other flood-stricken areas.

Senator Clements said the disaster relief provisions of Public Law 845, when invoked, include temporary structures to replace washed-out bridges, culverts and roads, also removal of debris, repair of buildings, sewers and other public works; the distribution of food to the needy from surplus commodities; the 100 per cent re-allowance of credit by the Housing and Finance Agency on devastated homes, and the releasing of federal equipment by the General Services Administration for emergency use.

Bridges and roads have been hardest hit in this county. Last week, County Judge Henry Stumbo said reports of washed-out roads and bridges were coming in from all parts of the county and that urgency of repair needs was so great "we don't know where to start."

Both County Judge Stumbo and County Attorney Hollie Conley were out of town Wednesday, and it was not learned if this county will file application for flood relief aid in the event provisions of Public Law 845 are invoked.

FUND DRIVE RETURNS NOT IN AS FLOOD COSTS RED CROSS

While there had been no report of the success of the Red Cross fund drive which began in the county March 1, with some delays because of flood conditions, Floyd Red Cross Chapter had a report this week of $493 spent for relief of Floyd flood sufferers.

Five families at Dwaile and two at West Prestonsburg have been given Red Cross assistance, Miss Ella Noel White, executive secretary of Floyd Red Cross Chapter, said.

Disaster offices have been set up by the Red Cross in Ashland, and from this center all affairs pertaining to flood relief over

OPEN HEARING ON PIPE LINE

Kentucky West Virginia Line Costing $1,296,700 Is Unopposed before PSC

The Public Service Commission opened a hearing Wednesday on Kentucky-West Virginia Gas Company's application for authority to build a $1,296,700 pipeline.

The line, now being surveyed, would connect with a company main at the Virginia state line near Osburn Gap, Pike county, and run to Maytown. There it would connect with the proposed hydro-carbon recovery plant of Kentucky-West Virginia.

There was no protest against the application. The PSC announced it would set a date later for resuming the hearing if more testimony is necessary.

Kentucky-West Virginia has announced plans to build a nine million dollar hydro-carbon recovery plant at Maytown. It would process part of the gas produced by the parent company.

Morning Blaze Destroys Barnett Store At Martin

Fire destroyed the store of R. C. Barnett on Buck's Branch, near Martin, last Sunday morning, at 2 o'clock. Origin of the blaze was attributed to overloaded electrical appliances.

The fire, discovered by Ed Hampton, who was passing the store at the time, completely razed the building. Nothing was saved from the store. It was estimated the damage was $7,000. Efforts of the Martin Fire department saved the adjoining houses from the blaze.

WATER RISES SECOND TIME

Roads and Farmlands Suffer Heavy Damage From 2 March Floods

For the second time within a week Floyd county streams were at flood stage over the weekend, and Prestonsburg, though escaping damage, had a severe attack of the flood-jitters Monday as the Big Sandy rose again within inches of the street level at the Court street and Lake Drive intersection.

Rain, accompanied by heavy hail, fell Friday night in the upper section of the county, and Saturday night and on into Sunday morning the rainfall was generally heavy.

Pikeville had more water last week-end than early in the week when Floyd towns suffered most, but the rise in the Beaver Creeks of this county was less and this saved Big Sandy communities from a repetition of their earlier experience.

Some Floyd schools were closed Monday. One of these, the Prater Creek school, which was badly flooded early last week, had four inches of water above its floors.

During Friday night's wind-and-hail storm the Dark Hollow Freewill Baptist Church at Tram jostled from its foundations.

The two floods have wreaked havoc with county roads and bridges, and this week the effect on major highways became more apparent. U. S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Betsy Layne has three breaks, biggest of which is at Allen, Route 80 on Beaver Creek has been similarly affected. The damage to the county's roads has been unofficially placed at $100,000.

Greatest damage to farmlands has been along stream banks and in the washing off of topsoil in the bottomlands, is the view taken by Alex M. Spradlin, of the PMA office here. "Very few hillsides in the county have been in cultivation the last few years, and our grass program has lessened the damage that otherwise this area will be handled. Biggest of the Red Cross tasks lies in Catlettsburg, where high waters have created a serious situation with many families driven from their homes.

The Red Cross relief load at Paintsville is expected to be heavier than Floyd county's but the loss there is far less serious than at Catlettsburg.

Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill is Red Cross drive chairman for this county. The county's goal is $8,800, and if this is reached the county will again participate in the blood program.

"We have realized for some time that this situation exists but have also been advised by legal counsel that the department is unable to change this table since it was written into law.

"There was certainly no intention to change this table since it was written into law.

Pilot Takes To Air From Scioto Road

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio, Feb. 28 — State Highway Patrolmen today linked air and highway traffic control today to help Bud Reams get started to his New Decatur, Ill., home.

Patrolmen blocked off a three-mile strip of U. S. 52 east of here so Reams could take off in his one-engine private plane. Soggy turf stopped takeoff at Raven Fork airport.

MINING UNEMPLOYMENT INVESTIGATION PENDING

WASHINGTON — (Special) — A full investigation into the reasons for rising unemployment in coal production areas and a number of other American industries got under way in Washington this week.

Opening day witnesses included Walter Thurmond, secretary of the Southern Coal Producers' Association, Charleston, W. Va., and Lester Thomas, international representative of the United Mine Workers of America.

The hearings are being conducted by a special subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare composed of Senator Matthew Neely (D), of West Virginia, chairman, Senator George Bender (R), of Ohio and Senator Herbert Lehman (D), of New York.

Both coal spokesman painted a very serious picture of reduced production and dwindling jobs in the bituminous and anthracite fields, and attributed much of the distress to the import of cheap residual oil from the Caribbean into former coal markets of New England and along the Atlantic Coast.

Mr. Thomas said that unemployment increased by 18,000 between November, 1953 and November, 1954 in the Scranton, Wilkes-Barre-Hazleton and Poitsville areas of Pennsylvania, which comprise the anthracite production region.

Anthracite coal production declined by some 14,000,000 tons and employment fell off by almost 33,000 men between 1952 and 1954, he said.

Likewise, production of bituminous coal in Pennsylvania declined by about 37 million tons and employment fell by 43,000 employees in the same period, he reported.

An equally serious picture of the Southern bituminous regions of West Virginia, Eastern Kentucky and Tennessee and Virginia, was painted by Mr. Thurmond.

He said that a recent check of mines in his area, showed that 153 mines had closed down completely, 133 of them because of economic conditions, between January, 1951 and September, 1954.

"These closed mines formerly employed 19,129 men, and had a total daily capacity of 115,944 tons — or more than 25 million tons a year if they were worked to full capacity," he declared.

He said this loss of 25 million tons of production meant the loss of jobs for 20 to 25 thousand coal miners, with a consequent loss of $75 million in wages to them.

He said that rising unemployment in West Virginia, most of it due to dwindling coal markets, had reduced the state unemployment compensation fund by $30,000,000 in the past two years, and that the reserve was now very close to a point which would mean an automatic increase in contributions costing the state's employers many millions of dollars a year.

Both Mr. Thurmond and Mr. Thomas cited the importation of residual oil as a major contributing factor in reducing the domestic market for coal.

"In 1954 nearly 133 million barrels of residual oil were imported into this country, equal to approximately 32 million tons of coal," Mr. Thomas pointed out.

Two P'burg Women Are Representatives At Morehead Meeting

Mrs. Marion Wilson and Miss Linda Stephens, members of the Prestonsburg high school faculty, were among 35 representatives of Kentucky high schools who attended Morehead State College's first Senior Sponsors Conference, February 17.

Purpose of the all-day meeting, according to Morehead President Adron Doran, was to bring together representatives of the college and those teachers who are directly concerned with guidance of students about to graduate from high school.

The conference program featured informal discussions led by specialists from the college faculty and staff, on problems of the senior class sponsor. These topics included guiding the senior toward college; opportunities for scholarships and administering senior class activities; high-school career conferences; social and recreational aspects of college.

Attending the conference were representatives from the following high schools: Camargo, Mt. Sterling, Montgomery County, Ezel, Greenup, Prestonsburg, Raceland, Sandy Hook, Morgan County, Carter City, Dayton, Owingsville, Highlands (Ft. Thomas), Paintsville, North Middletown, Olive Hill, Hitchens, Prichard (Grayson), Williamstown, Morehead, Oxford (Georgetown), Boyd County, Estill County, (Irvine), and Johnson County.

The Time To Get This Work Done Is Now

Now that Floyd county has given the State Highway Department the cooperation necessary to clear the way for letting a contract on the Auxier-Dewey Dam-Van Lear road, we of this county have a right to be, and we should be, insistent on the state's building a road skirting the lake from the vicinity of Hager Gap to Stratton Branch to connect with an existing road there.

We should be insistent, because until this road is built Dewey Lake State Park will be no more than a boat dock, a bathing beach and picnic grounds. A lodge and vacation cottages cannot be built until there is a highway to the site. And highways aren't built in a day.

Henry Ward, Commissioner of Conservation, is, we are convinced, anxious to make Dewey Lake State Park a reality. He already has called on the State Property and Buildings Commission to authorize the issuance of $3,640,000 in revenue bonds to finance the improvements needed at this and other state parks. That matter of issuing bonds need not be a matter of months; it can be done quickly. But as long as roads do not link the Dewey site with a source of materials the whole state treasury would not get the lodge and cottages and other installations built.

This road work should be started soon. If necessary, a temporary route should be constructed, so that work can be started at the Arrowhead Point site this summer. For there is a possibility that delay could leave Dewey Lake State Park on paper for years to come.

"Happy" Chandler has said that if he is elected Governor the state will "go out of the motel and restaurant business." We do not know the full implications of that statement, but it is possible that it could mean that in the event of his election present state parks would be turned over to private control and the state would be very, very slow to spend a lot of money to establish more state parks for rent to private individuals.

Which is another reason for Floyd county to go to work, now. If enough is done this year, it will stand next year, whatever happens in the arena of politics.

Where the Floods Started

Fifty years ago, give or take a few years, the richest belt of hardwood timber in the world stood on Eastern Kentucky hillsides. Those were the days of rafting down the Big Sandy to Catlettsburg; the days of famed Front street, Catlettsburg, and its rather infamous Saloon Row.

In those days the river, not highways or railroads, was the main artery of commerce, and Eastern Kentucky's wealth in timber went down the river then. As a consequence of the slaughter of the forest, much of the area's wealth in soil has followed the timber—down the river.

But that pillage of the natural wealth that lay in virgin forests took place too many years ago for us to pause now and shed a tear for what might have been. Vain regrets and repining will not bring the great oaks back.

Yet, at this late date, there is much that can be done to save those who will be living fifty or a hundred years hence from more regrets. There is a conservation and reforestation job to be done by the present generation that will save from destruction the decimated stand of timber that remains and prevent the continued erosion of these slopes till the bare rock is reached.

Those who witnessed the recent floods along the Big Sandy and its tributaries in Floyd and other counties literally watched farms go by as the swollen, muddy streams swept countless tons of topsoil seaward. And a few who stood by and watched did not go back fifty years to think of what wastrels we be but thought of all the careless hands that in months and years past have set fire to the hillsides and burned away all the leaves and part of the timber that would have held back the torrents of water that swept down hillsides, taking precious soil along to make of every stream a yellow, destructive monster on the prairie.

That soil went to other counties and states to make fertile river bottoms. Such widespread erosion has left creek and river bottoms the only land in this county worth cultivating. And these creek and river bottoms of ours are periodically swept by floods.

Dams can contain floods. But they cannot prevent them at the source. This work at the starting-point of floods is a job in which every individual should be interested. It is a job that will entail reforestation, the protection of timber and leaves from fire and the sowing of more pastures on those slopes that already have been denuded.

Every forest fire that breaks out in Floyd county is quickly spotted by somebody. The trouble is, there are too many who would not lift their voice, not to mention their hand, to prevent this destruction.

This spring's fires will add to next winter's floods. Remember that. Let's not wait till fifty years hence to dream about flood control when there's nothing left to protect.

FARM NOTES

SOIL TESTING
Farmers who plan to grow corn, seed, hay or pasture, or use commercial fertilizer on any land should first have their land tested to determine the kind and amount of plant foods needed to give them the yield they want. Many farmers found out, last year, that by soil testing and applying the needed plant foods it often made the difference between 15 and 100 bushels of corn per acre or a good stand of grasses and legumes as compared to a failure.

It is simple and easy to have your soil tested. Take a sample and bring it to the County Extension Office and we will see that it is analyzed. After the soil has been tested, we will make your fertilizer recommendation based on the test results and the past cropping history of your soil for the crop you want to grow.

We are expecting to test a large number of samples this year and have added a second laboratory technician to give the farmers faster service, but if you want your fertilizer recommendations early, you should take the samples just as soon as the ground is dry enough to plow.

Alfalfa is by far the most dependable and highest yielding hay crop that can be produced in Floyd county. In order to succeed with alfalfa, you must seed the right variety, inoculate the seed, prepare a firm seed bed, have well drained soil, and fertilize according to soil test results.

The spring seeding dates for alfalfa is February and March, and the best adapted varieties for Floyd county are certified Atlantic, Buffalo and Ranger.

Ranking second to alfalfa is red clover, either alone or in a mixture of grasses. A new variety of red clover has been developed that lasts from one to two years longer than the old varieties. This variety is Kenland. Farmers all over the county seem to prefer this new variety both from the stand point of yield and length of stand. If you would like more information on hay crops and mixtures call or write me.

The First National Bank of Jackson gave 1,000 4-H calendars to club members in Breathitt county.

Ninety-five picture frames have been reconitioned in Metcalfe county as a result of a homemakers club lesson.

Sheep raisers in Pendleton county are planning to enlarge their flocks with northwestern Hampshire-cross yearlings or ewe lambs.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

OF OLE MAN RIVER

Editor, The Times:
I would like to commend The Times for its timely editorial in last week's edition (Mar. 3) relative to the construction of a flood-gate at the mouth of Trimble Branch. This is the precise point where Ole Man River makes his entrance, and remains an unwelcome and uninvited guest of the town's citizenry for many hours.

He affects adversely not only those business establishments which he enters but also the people of the entire city. People going to and from work will have to traverse blocks to arrive at their destination. Why, this writer walked nearly a mile to get a lady a pair of boots to wear to the beauty shop but the boots were too large and so she went in a canoe.

The Times mentioned that this floodwall project could be paid for on a local basis. It could, but I think we should have some help from Washington. To secure this aid—which would be appropriated in the Rivers and Harbors bill—our citizens should make their urgency known to the U. S. Senators and the state's eastern district representatives. Unlike the channeling of the rivers, there would be no powerful antagonists in the way.

The Bible says that if anything offend thee cast it off. Ole Man River is very offensive, very mean and inconsiderate. We cannot cast him off, but we can close the narrow inlet, and by doing so we will forever be rid of his rude ways and inconveniences.

GLENN M. CLARKE.

SAYS "CONFESSION" ALSO GOOD FOR SCHOOLS AND CHILDREN

Editor, The Times:
It was with a great deal of interest and satisfaction that I read your CONFESSION in the Feb. 24 issue of the Floyd County Times. I take this means of commending you very highly for your clear thinking and your honest, straight-forward approach to the solution—or partial solution—of some of our major school problems. I would also like to take this means of citing the article as one worth reading for those who perchance did not find and read it; worth rereading for those who actually did not read it; worth reflection by and for those who read without reflecting; and, last but not least is worth reprinting for those who perchance would be stimulated to read more after having read this humble but fair appraisal.

You would seem to have been listening through the "key hole" while I was talking to some gathering somewhere, or perhaps just reflecting on the matter of how much better schools would be if only we could add the parent to the all-important school trio—parent, teacher, child. Or is it a fact that many of our opinions about this matter of education are beginning to "jell"? Certainly we are together; have, in fact, always been together in this fight for our children's birthright—namely, the best education that our society can provide.

We, as teachers, welcome you as parents to visit us often. We invite your constructive criticism. We respectfully request your assistance, and must have it, before we can do the best job for your children—your nearest and dearest possession.

We as teachers are striving, under adverse conditions, to give your children the best that we have. We are trying to make our schools, community schools rather than schools in a community. We are trying to make a well-rounded individual of your child by caring for his mental, physical, emotional and spiritual needs. We accept the new concept that academic training, as formerly, is only partial training. We are interested in the whole child, and we CONFESS that we need the parent to help and advise us on how best to minister to his needs. In short, we strive to merit your confidence, but please do not let your confidence lull you to sleep on the whole matter.

I feel, Mr. Editor, that if all parents will CONFESS, along with you, and then do something about it, we will be well on the road to giving your child the heritage that is rightfully his—and the HOME away from HOME—at school, which every child deserves.

PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR OF THE Commonwealth of Kentucky

To All To Whom These Presents Shall Come:

WHEREAS, education is essential to democratic government and to the health, happiness, and prosperity of the people in any community, state or nation; and,

WHEREAS, the teacher is the central factor in any program of education; and,

WHEREAS, there is a shortage of well-qualified teachers in Kentucky; and,

WHEREAS, as a result of a continuous decrease in the number of young men and women in training for teaching and an increase in the school population in Kentucky, the teacher shortage will become more acute unless immediate attention is given to this problem; and,

WHEREAS, the Kentucky School Boards Association recognizes the urgent need to retain our teachers and to attract young people for teaching in our schools;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Lawrence W. Wetherby, Governor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, in order to promote an appreciation of the great contribution our teachers are making to the Commonwealth of Kentucky, do hereby proclaim the week of March 20-26, 1955, as and ask that appropriate steps be taken by all of our citizens as individuals and in organized groups, to show their appreciation by appropriate programs and activities honoring our teachers. Local Boards of Education are urged to increase the salaries of teachers as much as possible with the funds available, considering the other necessary services and facilities that must be provided for their schools. Local school boards and the citizens of the Commonwealth are urged to encourage capable young people to enter the teaching profession and to recognize the contribution of men and women now teaching.

Done at Frankfort, Kentucky, this the fifth day of January in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and fifty-five, and in the year of the Commonwealth, the one hundred and sixty-third.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D.
Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

One of the most valuable studies now going on is a mapping of what the linguists call "linguistic geography." Trained observers are being sent into every area of the United States, as the study progresses, with some very definite things to find out; sounds given certain words, accents given, meanings when they vary from the accepted standard, and actual words or expressions that differ from words that are universally used among educated people. New England has already been studied rather thoroughly, and many studies have been made in the tier of states that border the Atlantic Ocean. Slowly but rather thoroughly, the Middle States are being studied. It will be a good many years before the whole study is completed, but, when finished, it will be, in language and folklore, a sort of "geological survey." All future studies of this sort will start with this foundation one; students will come to know just what to expect commonly or sparingly in each area.

For example, the coastal states show some very definite things about the uses of you-all, youse and you'uns, the three folks ways of pluralizing our pronoun you, which was originally plural but is now regarded by all the folk as singular. You-all, as you would suspect has a wide range, chiefly Southern and areas that border on the South. Youse is more localized in large urban areas; you'uns, very obviously, is an older effort at a plural and is found chiefly in back-country places. You-all has a wider range socially than either of the other two, for it is used by white and black, poor and rich, educated and illiterate, young and old, almost universally in the area below the famous old Mason-Dixon Line. In a few places it extends northward beyond this line, even into western Pennsylvania and is extending into the Middle Western States. Youse has a modern, un-English flavor, and rightly so, for it apparently grew up among the newer immigrants. You-uns is not wholly an illiterate usage, for many excellent older people of the Southern mountains use it naturally and constantly outside that area, however, it is a left-over that usually provokes lifted eyebrows.

Here is another phase of the study: the quality of certain vowels. Ask, for instance, has, for most of America, the same vowel as at. In certain areas of New England, in Tidewater areas of the Old South it has the same sound as a in father. Some New England areas and some individuals scattered across all over the country give it a sound intermediate between these two. A Scotch sound that not too many people can give without practicing. But for more than a hundred million of us, ask has the first sound mentioned, the so-called short a. When one encounters either of the other two, it is necessary to look for New England or Tidewater influence, natural or artificial.

Those extended studies have shown that the so-called dropped r's are not localized as was once thought. Most of western New England, for example, sounds its r's about as do all other parts of the country, except eastern New England and the Deep South. Only a few seacoast places, like Whittier's Marblehead in his famous "Skipper Terison's Ride," have audible r's; that accounts for the strange spelling that Lowell suggested—two or three r's, to show that they were sounded and even trilled. Much of the Upper South has plenty of r's, sometimes too many, as then thousands of people add a r to a word ending in a vowel, especially proper names—Emmer, Ider, Ader and Loler. My area in the Jackson Purchase had all the r's one could wish and then some more; I think many of those r's are still around. Only the Deep South and the eastern parts of Virginia and the Carolinas seem to be consistent in dropping final r's and r's before consonants.

The variations in names for the same thing are endless, especially for old-fashioned cooking vessels, food, parts of a house, and some wearing apparel. Does our house have a porch, portico, a gallery, or a verandah? Could you properly identify a skillet, or a spider, or a pipkin?

The second heavy and prolonged rainfall in a matter of eight days kept Dewey dam closed tight, with the result that the impoundment rose to the highest level in its brief history. When the gates were opened at 3 p.m. Wednesday, to begin reducing level of the lake after the Ohio had crested at Ashland and the danger of a Big Sandy flood had passed, the lake stood at elevation 682.32—only 3.68 feet short of the spillway at the dam, a point expected to be reached by water on an average of every hundred years.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE TIMES

BY WILMAX
(The views expressed herein do not necessarily reflect the views of The Times.)

Since WSAZ does not carry the regular sermons of Dr. Billy Graham, many heard him for the first time Sunday, in his interview on Meet The Press. When several are asking questions, as in that program, it is easy for some to get a false impression.

It was not Dr. Graham who spoke of new converts holding out. It was one of the newsmen who used that term. He does not entertain that belief. God does the holding, and we do the letting. Jesus says in John 10:28, "Neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand." He believes salvation is the gift of God and that all men can do to obtain it is to have faith to believe and accept it. Ephesians 2:8-9 reads: "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God: Not of works lest any man should boast." If we had to do things to hold out it would be of works.

But Dr. Graham did speak of people who profess Christ and then do not live Christian lives. There is a distinction between this and holding out to obtain salvation. Dr. Graham believes in works in the sense that they follow salvation, for "Faith without works is dead." Eph. 2:10 reads: "For we are created his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them."

Works do not save but they determine the degree of reward. "Behold I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be." Rev. 22:12. Even then the busiest and noisiest may be told on judgment day to depart, while some who say the least and seem to do the least are powers for God in secret prayer and faith. What we say and do is less important than what we are, but what we are determines what we say and do.

In his book, Peace With God, Dr. Graham says, "The reality of our Christian profession is shown in the things we say as well as in the things we do not say; the things we do as well as in the things we do not do. For while Christianity is not primarily a matter of externals, it finds expression in conversation, habits, recreation, emphasis, and ambitions to be noted in our daily life."

Converts, old and new, backslide. None is perfect. David, a man after God's own heart, sinned and lost the joy of his salvation as the result of it. But he got forgiveness because he was a child of God. Unfortunately, many who denounce the more obvious kinds of sin like drunkenness, forget that lies, gossip, a proud heart, deceitfulness, etc., are equally wicked.

New Christians will remain anemic unless fed. Dr. Graham's book gives a fine chapter on Rules of the Christian Life. It tells how new Christians can grow, but only if they were saved first. When those who profess Christ are fed but do not develop there is a possibility that their experience was not genuine. And when they return to their old ways and stay in them the world knows something is wrong. Unless one puts on the new man, hates the old things and loves the new, somebody has been fooled. The same Bible that speaks of salvation by faith over three hundred times says, "By their fruits ye shall know them." There are inner fruits and outer ones, and both will be evident in time in the life and heart of the believer.

In his book, Dr. Graham says, "Faith is a power that results in godly living and surrender. Saving faith is a faith that produces obedience. It is a faith that brings about a way of life." It is what Dr. Graham meant when he said some are not living it. They cannot obtain salvation by the way they live, for Isaiah says our righteousnesses are as filthy rags in the sight of God, but all who were truly saved will live a different life, out of love of God.

God alone knows the heart, Dr. Graham emphasized the fact that God uses people in different ways. He has a life plan for all. He has different tasks for various persons, but work for all. The janitor of a church may do more for the kingdom than its pastor. Christians are held responsible according to individual talents, but talents used to glorify God are always multiplied.

Christians will find no better book—aside from the Bible—than that by Dr. Graham, when it comes to one that sets forth the obligation of Christians to society, especially to the oppressed.

Of Books and Such

By Laura Virginia Roberts
Books which might help take your mind off your income tax or the back-water in your basement are (a.) Hollis Summers' "BRIGHTEN THE CORNER, in which two little boys live things up around home. (Home, in this case, is a Baptist parsonage). (b.) F. Hugh Herbert's play, THE MOON IS BLUE, (even if you saw the movie, you'll love it); and (c.) any one of the Pogo collections. My favorite is Pogo's STEPMOTHER GOOSE, (Simon and Schuster, $1), not to be confused with Pogo's Cinderella and the Three Bears, currently running in the Sunday COURIER-JOURNAL.

Dr. Hollis Summers doesn't limit himself to collections of short stories (KENTUCKY STORY) or happy little boys, but has teamed with another writer, Jim Roark, to do a murder thriller. The team writes under the name of Jim Hollis, and they call their wacky TEACH ME A LESSON. (Harper and Bros., $2.50). It scared the daylight out of me.

Music of the Southern Confederacy ($10.), a 45-rpm record album, is on sale locally. The records are small, yes, but the album is 78 size, because it has something in it besides records. Gray, with uniformed soldiers and a Confederate flag for cover design, it encloses the several records and a number of pages of Civil War history. Printed on heavy, slick paper, the history includes drawings and photos and a discussion of the music of the period. If the unreconstructed Southerners who are displaying the album won't sell it, perhaps they'll order you one. The musicians give the right flavor to the old songs. "Lorena" is nice, and "Dixie" is complete with the Rebel yell. Hurrah for Jeff Davis and the Southern Confederacy; or the Southern Confederacy.

Rudolph Valentino starred in the movie version of it. The book itself required 37 printings in the last six months of 1918. It was THE FOUR HORSEMEN OF THE APOCALYPSE, a novel of the first World War. Too long, too wordy—yes; but its characters living and loving, struggling with the horror and despair of war seemed as plain to me last month when I read it as they must have been to author Ibanez 37 years ago. The sad thing is that one would hardly know from reading the novel that it was written long ago. It might have been written in 1939 or 1950, or next week.

Carl Sandburg could rest on his laurels. He could point to his fine poetry and to his American ballad collection and justly call them a noble life-work. His six-volume life of Abraham Lincoln might well have taken the entire life of a lesser person to write, but Sandburg, at 77, has completed a one-volume condensation, and titled it, like the six, "Lincoln: The Prairie Years and The War Years" (Harcourt, Brace, $7.50). It is currently being read and enjoyed by two or three people that I know.

George Kilgore was dead and gone long before I crossed Pine Mountain, but I have heard so many funny stories in which he was the leading character that I know him, it seems, as well as if I had been raised up with him. If there ever was a character in these parts, George Kilgore was it. Anyone on Rocky Fork or Beaver Dam will tell you that. George passed on around forty years ago but even today when old cronies get together at the storehouse or at regular church meetings, they tell tales about George and his peculiar doings. George was sort of odd, all his life. In some ways he was not like other men. But, with all of his queerness, he married and fathered children and the two outstanding tales they tell of his doings are based on incidents of his days as a family man. Any man or woman, in the neighborhood of Big Laurel or Hopkins Chapel, above fifty, could serve as the narrator of the tale about George and his baby losing its arm, but I will set it down here as it was told me by the late Elbert Bond several years ago. Elbert said: "George Kilgore was the funniest man I ever knew. You could make him believe anything. He never doubted anything that he heard. "There was the time that he and his wife were a-goin' from somewhere on Rocky Fork to Indian Creek. Out about the Vanover Swag they met up with somebody. I don't remember who. But whoever it was wanted to have a laugh at poor George's expense, and he noticed the baby that George was packing had worked its arm out of the sleeve and the sleeve was a-hanging there dangling along and whoever it was, said, 'Lord, Lord, George! Your baby's lost its arm.' Poor George took one look and hollered back to his wife, 'Run here, woman, the baby's arm's come loose and I've lost it somewhere as we come along. Run, woman, run! Lord have mercy on us!'

"Poor George, they said, didn't wait for his wife to examine the baby (and she was just about as peculiar as poor George). But took right back up the rocky Fork road, crying and taking on, like the baby was dead. Met up with somebody else. Told them what was the matter and they showed him the baby's arm slipped down under its dress and, they said, that he was so tickled that he just fell down on the bank and laughed and cried for half an hour.

"And that," said Elbert, "was the God's truth." George, they say, finally had a splitup with his wife. They couldn't get along and she left him. They had two children and she had a little girl by a first husband. When she and George separated George made no objection to her taking their children, but he wouldn't let her take her own little girl and his wife wandered about from neighbor to neighbor for a week or two and went back home. She couldn't, and wouldn't, give up the little girl.

HEALTH NOTES

By Floyd County Health Department

You are a man in your forties and you are resting at home for a few months. Not your idea of living? Of course not. But it is happening to an increasing number of men who break down with tuberculosis in their middle years.

Treatment of TB with drugs developed in recent years has made it possible for some patients to leave the hospital after a certain point and finish treatment at home. Selected patients are able to go through the entire course of treatment at home with regular visits to a clinic. As one of either group, you have some very special problems, as you well know.

It's a lonely life in spite of being with your family. In a hospital you would be with others making the same fight against TB. Eager as your family and friends are to help, they cannot share all your burdens. You have to do the "resting" to give your body a chance to heal. You have to fill hours that seem much more than 60 minutes long. You may be plagued with worries about the future.

Stop right there. You can do something about the future. Your state and Federal government are partners in a program to prepare you for and place you in the right job when you are well again. This could mean helping you return safely to your old job or some new kind of work. These are not charity services. They are your right, just as a public school education is your child's right.

Your doctor will tell you when you are physically able to start training. He or the public health nurse or social worker can help you get in touch with the proper agency, in most states called the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation. You may be able to start on a correspondence course right away. Later there may be special school or on-the-job training. You can be sure of getting all necessary help in starting back to work. There is no cost to you for most of these services.

But I am not this man, you insist. Let's hope you won't be one of the 110,000 Americans who will be stricken with TB this year. But chances are you will know one of them. You can help and encourage him to take full advantage of his "rest period" to build a better future.

3. Name the four kinds of soil in the parable of the Sower, and the four kinds of people that hear. (Matt. 13:1-8).

IN MEMORIAM The years of his life were numbered, of our dear son, Woody Osborne who departed this life one year ago, March 1. Gone is the face we loved so dear, Hushed is the voice we loved to hear. We cannot help but wonder why The years of his life were numbered When the messenger whispered low, "The Master has come and called for thee". He answered, "I am ready to go." From this world of pain and sorrow To the land of peace and rest God has taken you, dear son, Where you found eternal rest. Could you ask if we miss him? Yes, it fills our hearts with pain, But we know you are sweetly resting And we hope to meet again. Dear son, you are not forgotten. Though on earth you are no more; Still in memory you are with us, As you always were before. Sadly missed by father, mother and brother. Lee and Della Osborne 1t.

DOZEN ISSUES ARE AT STAKE

In Bell-Union Dispute, Is Claim of Employees; March 14, Strike Date

It is not the issue of a No-strike clause alone but a dozen issues that form the basis of the dispute between the Southern Bell Telephone Company and its employees, a Union statement captioned, "An Open Letter to the Public," declared this week.

The dispute is expected to be dramatized March 14 by a general walkout of Southern Bell workers. "We have," the statement released by the union said, "been bargaining for more than eight months and trying to mind our own business. . . we did not intend to debate the issues publicly. That has all been changed by acts of Southern Bell management. They are now attempting to bargain with the public rather than with the Union."

The statement claims that there are a dozen vital issues in dispute and that these are a matter of record. Continuing, it says:

"We are asking for a reasonable wage increase. The Company has given out a story about a $4 wage offer. The truth is that thousands of the 50,000 workers involved would receive nothing, and only a handful would receive as much as the top of $4. We also think it is time to take a real step toward the elimination of the Bell System's North-South differential and other geographic differences in pay."

Other issues listed were: Shorter hours for women employees who work nights; craft work being performed by supervisors and contracted to outside agencies; improved arbitration. In the event of a strike, it was said, the employees will offer their services in cases of disaster or other real emergency.

HOTTEST BUICK IN HISTORY No wonder you see so many 1955 Buicks on the highway—they're rolling up bigger sales than ever before in history—topping the popularity that has already made Buick one of the "Big Three" in total sales.

Did you think you couldn't afford the price of a new 1955 Buick? You certainly can—if you can afford any new car. And we proudly show our price here to prove it.

For the delivered price of the Buick SPECIAL Sedan shown here is sharply competitive with those of the three best-known smaller cars—lower, in fact, than some models of those same cars.

Buick Sales Are Soaring That's one big reason why Buick production and Buick sales are hitting all-time record highs today—and why Buick is outselling all other cars in America except two of the best-known smaller cars.

But an even bigger reason is this fact: The price you pay for a Buick buys you a lot more automobile than the same money buys elsewhere.

It buys you big-car room and size and comfort and brawn. It buys you Buick styling,

DID YOU KNOW—That the Buick SPECIAL is priced below any other car of 188 horsepower and 122-inch wheelbase? That the Buick SPECIAL is priced below some models of the three best-known smaller cars? That the Buick SPECIAL gives you more pounds of automobile than any other car of its low price?

NAME BLACK CENTER HEAD

Retiring Army Chief Of Medical Service Welfare Fund Pick

The appointment of Robert Lee Black, retiring chief of the Medical Service Corps of the Army, to be administrator of the Memorial Medical Center in process of construction at Williamson, W. Va., was announced Tuesday by Fred D. Mott, M. D., administrator of the Memorial Hospital Association.

The Memorial Hospital Association is establishing a chain of 10 general hospitals with a total capacity of over 1,000 beds in the coal fields of southeastern Kentucky, southern West Virginia and southwestern Virginia to meet the needs of coal miners and their families who are beneficiaries of the United Mine Workers Welfare and Retirement Fund. The hospitals, one of which is located at McDowell in this county, are being organized on a regional basis. The Memorial Medical Center will be one of three key central hospitals.

As Administrator of the Memorial Medical Center, Colonel Black will also have over-all responsibility for the operation of the three smaller, affiliated hospitals in the surrounding area, those at McDowell and Pikeville, Ky., and at Man, West Virginia. The more highly specialized facilities and services for the group of four hospitals will be concentrated in the Memorial Medical Center at Williamson. The initial total bed capacity of the four hospitals will be 330 beds, with expansion possible to about double this capacity.

During his Army career, Colonel Black had extensive experience in the pre-war period in hospital administration. In World War II he served as chief of Medical Supply for Army forces in England and in 1945 as chief of Medical Supply for all Army forces in Europe. In 1948 he became assistant chief of personnel for the world-wide Army Medical Service on the staff of the Surgeon General in Washington.

In 1951 the Secretary of the Army appointed Colonel Black Chief of the Medical Service Corps for a four-year term. This position deals with the assignments of some 5,000 Medical Service Corps officers on active duty and calls for extensive world travel each year to inspect facilities and review operations.

Fire In Lake Section Endangers Scout Camp

The Times was notified this morning (Thursday) by J. R. "Red" Weaver, Dewey reservoir manager, that a fire was raging uncontrolled in the Goble Branch section near the Girl Scout camp area. Mr. Weaver said he discovered the fire around 10:00 a. m., and immediately called Forrest Burdett, county forest ranger. Probably Floyd county's first forest fire of the season, the blaze is spreading before the wind and was endangering the Girl Scout camp area.

"We do not have enough men to fight a fire of this type," he said. He concluded that the people should realize that fires are extremely dangerous, especially during the windy month of March.

RESOLUTIONS

WALTER SCOTT HARKINS, III
 Walter Scott Harkins, III, younger son of Joseph D. Harkins, Sr., and Reba Baker Harkins, at the age of thirty-eight, passed away on December 12, 1954, and was laid to rest in the Harkins Cemetery on December 15, 1954.

After receiving his law degree from the University of Michigan in 1941, he joined the law firm of Harkins & Harkins, Prestonsburg, Kentucky. His father Joseph D. Harkins, Sr., and his brother, Joseph D. Harkins, Jr., were the other members of this firm.

After his father's death on January 3, 1954, he and his brother were attorneys for the bank, and after the death of his brother on August 8, 1954, he, as the surviving member of the law firm of Harkins & Harkins, was one of the bank's attorneys.

On October 6, 1954, he was elected a member of the board of directors of the bank to succeed his brother, Joseph D. Harkins, Jr. While he only attended three meetings of the board, he showed great interest in the progressive growth of the bank and carried forward, as his father and brother had done while they were members of the board, the principle that the interest of the bank must come first.

We mourn his loss and extend to the family our deepest sympathy in their bereavement.

THE FLOYD COUNTY TIMES
 THEREFORE, BE IT
 RESOLVED:

First: That a page be set apart upon the record book of this board, whereon shall be recorded these resolutions.

Second: That no further business be hereafter entered upon the original record of this board subsequent to the minutes of this meeting at which these resolutions are adopted and entered.

Third: That a copy of these resolutions be furnished to the family and to the Floyd County Times for publication.

Floyd Only Big Sandy County Ready For Vegetable Market

Floyd is the only county in the Big Sandy section that will have a marketable vegetable crop of any importance this year, it was said by sources familiar with the needs of the Huntington produce market.

Tuesday of this week, two specialists of the University of Kentucky's Extension Service visited the Huntington market to explore the possibilities there of marketing the Floyd crop.

Pointing up the interest the Extension Service has in this section is the appointment of A. I. Farmer, field agent in marketing, to a permanent assignment to the Big Sandy section. Mr. Farmer assumed his duties here several weeks ago. Accompanying him to Huntington Tuesday was C. D. Phillips, research marketing specialist of the Service.

O. E. Boggs, county agent, pointed out that this county will have about 30 acres of beans to market this year as well as 30 acres of the 42 acres of strawberries growing. Prospects are good on the Huntington market for strawberries this year, Boggs said he was told by the marketing specialists. Good also are the prospects for Top Crop beans, the new prolific variety of bunch beans which the West Virginia market needs.

Marketing of the Floyd crop will be done this year through the newly organized Big Sandy Marketing Association.

Cadillac

Acting on a 20-Year-Old Decision!

Let's suppose it was a couple of decades ago when a young lad, with his book strap over his shoulder and his lunch basket under his arm, started slowly down a dusty road that led to a country schoolhouse.

But his walk was short that day. For a big, handsome Cadillac—with its smiling driver traveling in the lad's direction—stopped and gave him a "lift."

And as he stood there on the schoolhouse lawn and watched the big car roll off into the distance, he made a decision. He decided that, some day, he would own a Cadillac.

And here you see him, his dream come true—taking the keys to a new 1955 Cadillac!

As a Cadillac dealer, we've been privileged many times to help make such a dream come true. And it never ceases to be a thrill.

But we do feel, in all sincerity, that many motorists

—not realizing the Cadillac car is practical as well as wonderful—wait too long to make the move.

The lowest-priced Cadillac, for example, actually costs less than twelve different models of other makes. Its economy of operation is far beyond anything you could logically anticipate from a car of Cadillac's size and luxury. And at the time of resale, a Cadillac traditionally returns a greater share of its owner's investment than any other car in the land.

If, like the gentleman in the picture above, you have been looking forward to a Cadillac of your own—you should give careful consideration to these remarkable Cadillac facts.

It is entirely possible that the time for your Cadillac has come—and, as we said, it is always a pleasure to help make such a dream come true.

Better come in and see us today.

CHANDLER, BAYLOR IN TIFF OVER BOLTING IN 1946-48

Frankfort, Ky., March 8 — The former editor of A. B. Chandler's Versailles newspaper today charged that Chandler dictated the policies under which the newspaper "bolted" support of Democratic nominee for Governor in 1943, for the U. S. Senate in 1946 and 1948 and President and Vice-President in 1948.

Orval W. Baylor, editor of The Woodford Sun from 1942 to 1949, challenged Chandler's statement to a Louisville colored newspaper that Chandler had never given support to the anti-Truman-Barkley Dixiecrat movement.

Baylor said the Versailles newspaper supported the Dixiecrat ticket in 1948 "because Chandler wanted it that way." He also said that Chandler "always dictated the editorial policy of the newspaper."

"Chandler dictated the policy of the newspaper in 1943 when it bolted J. Lyter Donaldson, the Democratic nominee for Governor. He dictated the policy of the paper when it bolted John Y. Brown, the Democratic nominee for U. S. Senator against John Sherman Cooper in 1946. He dictated the policy of the paper when it bolted the Truman-Barkley ticket and also bolted Virgil Chapman, the Democratic nominee for U. S. Senator, in 1948," Baylor declared.

Baylor's challenge to Chandler's statements was evoked by a front-page article in the February 24 issue of The Louisville Defender, in which Chandler was reported to have said he never gave any support to the Dixiecrat movement.

Baylor said he accepted the post of editor of the Versailles newspaper in 1942 when urged to do so by the late J. Dan Talbott, who then owned a one-third interest in the publishing plant. The other co-owners at that time were Chandler and Robert Humphreys. He said he resigned as editor of the newspaper in November, 1949, after Talbott had advised him to do so.

Asked why Talbott advised him to leave the editorial post of the Woodford Sun in 1949, Baylor said: "Talbot, along with Chandler, gave wholehearted support to Earle C. Clements in his race for the Democratic nomination for Governor in 1947. When Chandler broke with Clements in 1948, he sought to influence Talbot and others to do the same thing. Talbot, however, refused to desert the Clements banner. He was displeased over The Woodford Sun's frequent outbursts against Clements and, upon several occasions, lectured me rather severely upon the subject. I told him that I was running Chandler's newspaper the way he wanted it run and as long as I remained with the newspaper I was obliged to respect the publisher's wishes. He then said, 'Why don't you resign? Don't continue to do something your conscience and better judgment tell you not to do.'"

Baylor charged that in 1948 Chandler conferred with the Dixiecrat leaders, J. Strom Thurmond and James F. Byrnes, and others several months prior to the campaign, and that he advised on the conduct of the campaign in Kentucky.

"Chandler was commissioner of baseball in 1948 when he joined hands with the Dixiecrats," Baylor said. "He expected to remain as commissioner for many years to come. He was not then an aspirant for any elective office. He probably did not anticipate a future campaign in which he would be the central figure, seeking the support and votes of loyal and true Democrats, for whose party he sought defeat. However, the club owners of organized baseball 'kicked him out' and left him no alternative but to again seek public office at the hands of the people whose nominees he repudiated in 1943, in 1946 and in 1948."

A. B. Chandler issued a statement Monday denying that he ever has bolted the Democratic ticket.

Here is what Chandler had to say: "I have made mistakes in life, and the mistakes that I have made I readily admit. However the charges that I bolted the Democratic ticket in 1943, in 1946, in 1948, or at any other time are absolutely untrue."

"I have been honored by the Democratic party by election as State senator, as lieutenant governor, as governor, and as United States senator. I have never at any time failed to vote the Democratic ticket . . ."

Chandler recalled that he made "a number of speeches" for Donaldson during his 1943 campaign for governor. In 1946 and 1948 he was baseball commissioner "and in that position, did not actively participate in any political campaigns."

Baylor's statement said he resigned as editor of The Woodford Sun in 1949 upon the advice of the late J. Dan Talbott. But Chandler asserted this was not true, "He was discharged as editor . . . and was given State employment . . . although he was state chairman of the Kentucky States Rights Democratic Party in the 1948 campaign."

"It was Baylor who bolted the Democratic Party when John Young Brown was the Democratic nominee for United States senator in 1946," Chandler charged.

"It was Baylor who bolted the Truman-Barkley ticket and Virgil Chapman, who was the Democratic nominee for United States senator in 1948."

"It was Baylor who wrote the editorials referred to in his statement, on his own volition. Yet, when he was discharged as editor . . . he was given State employment . . . through the Clements and Wetherby administrations and is now actively, openly violating the provisions of the Hatch Act. . ."

The federal Hatch Act forbids federal employees, and employees of agencies supported by federal funds, to engage in political activities.

"I do not believe I have violated the Hatch Act by refuting false charges made against me by Chandler," Baylor said Tuesday.

"I did not open my mouth against him in connection with the stand his newspaper took in 1948 until he made a statement to the editor of The Louisville Defender a few days ago in which he sought to alienate himself from any connection with the Dixiecrat movement in 1948 and place full responsibility for his newspaper's wholehearted support of that movement upon my shoulders."

"Many Kentuckians who supported the Dixiecrat movement did so because they believed that Chandler endorsed the movement. 'This belief was greatly strengthened, no doubt, by the fact that Mrs. Chandler signed the States Right Party petition filed in the office of the Secretary of State in Frankfort for the purpose of getting the party's nominees for president and vice-president on the ballots in Kentucky.'

"Doubtless, too, they were influenced by the newspaper reports of the very warm reception given to Governor (of South Carolina) and Mrs. J. Strom Thurmond by Mr. and Mrs. Chandler when they came to Kentucky in September, 1948, for the purpose of opening the States Rights Party's campaign within the state."

FIRE WARNING VOICED HERE

Forest Warden Urges Precautions; Towers To Be Manned Mar. 15

"All four lookout towers will be in operation by March 15 to locate woodland fires in Floyd county," Forrest Burchett, forest warden in this county, said Wednesday as he looked ahead to a new "fire season." These towers will aid in the almost instant location of fires, he added.

Warden Burchett said that it is time for the farming season when people will want to start clearing ground and to clean off gardens and yards. He commented that it is hard to avoid burning in clearing off land but, in doing so, there are a few suggestions to follow for the protection against fire:

- Do not burn until after 4:30 in the evening.
- Do not burn when the wind is blowing.
- Be sure to have a good fire line raked to separate what you are burning from the woodland.
- If you wish to burn off broom-sage, be sure to build a good fire line around the field. Then start at the upper side and burn down hill and, by all means, have plenty of help.

"Unless we get the united support of the people, it will be impossible to combat all the fires with our small force," Burchett said. "Remember that every time you start a fire in a woodland you are doing damage to yourself and to the public at large. You are also violating the law which stipulates that you will be fined not less than $10 nor more than $100, or imprisoned for not less than ten days nor more than six months, or both for each separate offense," he added.

Members of Bracken county home-makers Association contributed $50 to the county bookmobile fund.

tion on the part of the Legislature or the department to fleece anyone out of $5, but in any project as large as the complete re-writing of a tax law, mistakes are bound to occur.

"No attempt has been made to be secretive about this difference and I believe most accountants and lawyers are aware that it exists."

But Hill brought the matter to a head last week-end by writing Allphin and asking him to publicly acknowledge the error, and correct it if at all legally possible.

Hill, who voted against the 1954 income-tax withholding law during the last Legislature, wrote Allphin:

"I have no desire to embarrass you, the Revenue Department, or anyone connected with the Administration. However, I think you should publicly announce through all the means at your disposal, the discrepancy in the tax tables.

"It is the only honest and fair way of keeping faith with the people who might otherwise be penalized, and would make the best of a bad situation.

"Also, you should clarify the status of the extra $5 payments already sent in. Will these be refunded, or can the overpayment be deducted from the next year's taxes?"

"Had Allphin read my letter in the first place and given me a constructive answer, he could have avoided the embarrassment of the situation as it developed," Mr. Camicia commented this week.

"I wrote him as a citizen and taxpayer and have no political axes to grind. I am satisfied now that our mission has been accomplished."

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 28 (Sp.)
A gigging season for rough fish in certain streams in Kentucky will open on March 1 and continue through April 30.

The regulation governing gigging, snagging or grabbing points out the season will be effective in all streams of the state except the following:

Herrington Lake and Dix River and its tributaries and watersheds located in Mercer, Garrard, Lincoln and Boyle counties; Tysart Creek and its tributaries located in Carter and Greenup counties; Kincaid Creek and its tributaries located in Lewis county; Elkhead Creek and its tributaries located in Scott, Fayette, Franklin and Woodford counties; Triplett Creek and its tributaries located in Rowan county; North Fork of Kentucky River and its tributaries from Kentucky highway bridge on Rut. 15, Jeff, upstream; Harrods Creek and its tributaries located in Jefferson and Oldham counties; Dale Hollow Lake that lies in Kentucky and its tributaries 200 yards from the lake, and Cumberland Lake and its tributaries 200 yards from the lake.

The regulation points out that a person may gig on foot in streams only from the banks but not from a boat or platform.

Fiscal Courts Cannot Overspend the Budget

Frankfort, Ky., March 10—Members of fiscal courts who cause to be spent more than sums available during a given fiscal period may be penalized up to $500 for such offense. Assistant Attorney General M. B. Hollifield ruled in passing on a Casey county dispute.

He wrote Casey County Magistrate Wesley Smith that "road claims presented to the fiscal court that were created after the court had spent all the tax proceedings had been exhausted, cannot be paid" and suggested that the matter be called to attention of the County Judge and County Attorney for investigation.

THE RACING WILL BE ON AGAIN. THE SEASON IS RIGHT AT HAND.

Lots of people are asking when is the track going to open this year. That means a lot of people are interested in this exciting sport.

So here is the answer!

I am going to sell or lease the track. Either way I do it, it will be at a reasonable sum. I am so busy in other engagements I can't properly handle it all.

For one or a group who can take it over and put their full time and support behind this business, it is a money maker.

Interested parties, come and see me. We'll make a deal and we'll have red-hot auto racing in the Big Sandy this year.

The mad men of the Kremlin will pull the trigger on World War III if they are ready, and not before. They won't be prevented from launching their legions of tyranny and enslavement against the free world by the absence of a blockade of any other so-called war-like incidents.

The powers given to President Eisenhower recently by Congress for the immediate and necessary action to defend Formosa and her adjacent islands if necessary is the first step in the right direction towards a firm line in stopping Communist aggression. The next all-important step should be the establishment of a National Security Training program. The American Legion supports both this program and a strong hand in dealing with aggression. Today America still has a choice. Tomorrow we may not!

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS a divine providence has seen fit to call from among us one of our respected and honored colleagues, the Hon. Joseph D. Harkins, Sr., a member and President of the Floyd County Bar Association; and

WHEREAS, it is desired by the members of our Association to reverence and honor the memory of our departed brother.

NOW, THEREFORE, be it resolved:

1. That in the passing of our distinguished colleague and President of our Association, we have lost one of our most distinguished and courteous brothers, in whose memory and honor we hereby adopt this resolution as our parting tribute.

2. That the loss of this learned, able and conscientious lawyer has brought grief and frustration to his many clients and friends and has left his clients without his valuable and persevering services in the protection of their legal rights, wherever and whenever they were jeopardized. May they, in the future, be able to obtain the same fearless and fruitful services from the Legal Profession as they always enjoyed at the hands of Mr. Harkins and may the memory of his ethical conduct abide with us always as an inspiration to us to follow in his footsteps.

3. That in his passing we have lost a fine colleague, friend and one of Eastern Kentucky's illustrious members of our Profession. That his family has lost a faithful and attentive husband and father, to whom our sincere condolence is extended, and his Church has lost a faithful member and supporter. Our loss, however, is his eternal gain.

4. That as a further mark of respect to our departed colleague and to perpetuate his memory, we resolve that this resolution be entered upon the Order Book of the Floyd Circuit Court and by proper entry upon the records of this Association, and a copy be sent to the family; that a copy be sent to The Floyd County Times, and a copy be sent to the Kentucky State Bar Journal.

There's even more to Chevrolet styling than meets the eye!

This is beauty with a bonus... for Chevrolet styling is designed to add safety and comfort while you drive, and to return greater value when you trade.

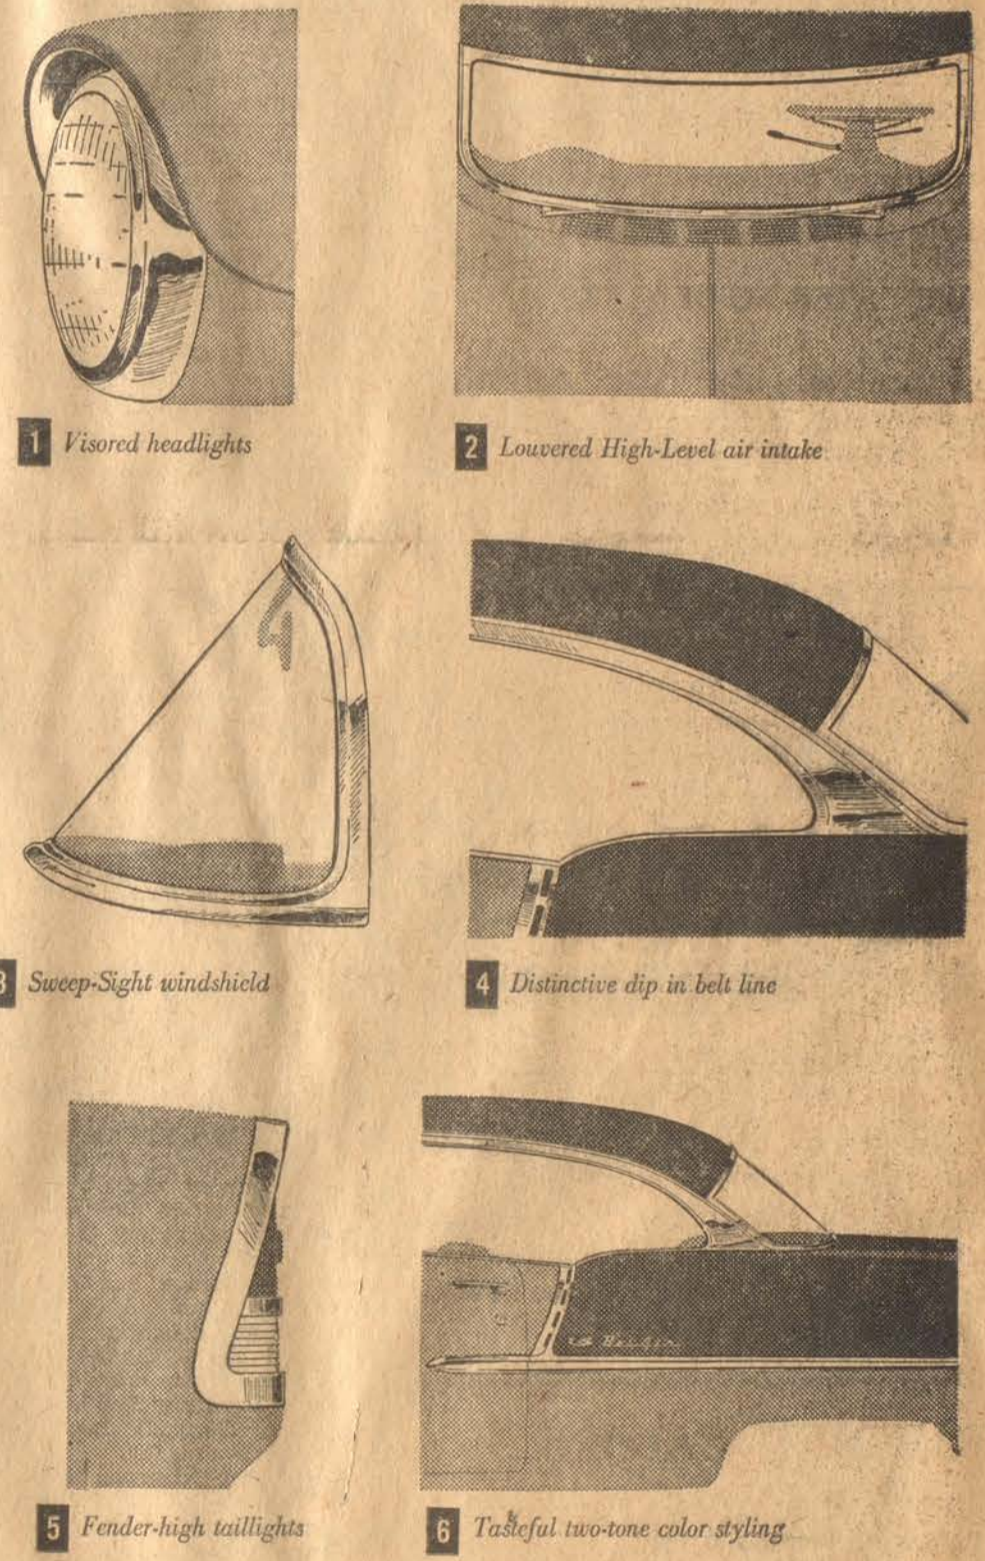

Truly modern lines are shaped by usefulness. You can see what we mean in the deep crystal curve of Chevrolet's Sweep-Sight windshield... a dramatic style note, certainly, but one that stems from the need for wider, safer vision. Or take high-set taillights—they add to the impressive length of line... but they are up there where they can be seen for safety's sake, and as convenient guides in parking. So, too, with the jutting peaks over the headlights.

The smart louvers across the hood aren't just decoration... they mark the intake for the High-Level ventilation system for cleaner, fresher air. And the whole shape of the body—its lowness, the dipped belt line—is merely a reflection of a lowered center of gravity, the added stability.

This is truly functional styling that serves you better every mile, and preserves its value against the distant day when you trade. This is Body by Fisher—another Chevrolet exclusive in the low-price field. Come in and let us demonstrate that this new Chevrolet is just as exciting to drive as to look at!

WHEELWRIGHT STUDENTS DISCUSS DELINQUENCY

The Wheelwright Parent-Teacher Association held its meeting for February in the grade school. The program chairman introduced Mrs. F. E. Conley who presented a panel of 13 students from the Junior classes at the high school. Their subject was, "Juvenile Delinquency." These students studied the subject and discussed it at large, but presented in particular the problems confronting the children in Wheelwright.

Some of the questions asked and discussed were (1) What is juvenile delinquency? (2) Which is the most important factor in leading the child to crime, heredity or environment? (3) Are there more male or female delinquents? (4) Are they healthy or unhealthy? (5) Are juvenile delinquents the fault of their parents?

These questions were answered and discussed at length by presenting facts and figures from statistical magazines read on the subject, also by examples taken from problems facing the children in the community.

It was agreed by the majority of the panel that environment, more than heredity contributed to juvenile delinquency. Most delinquents have an I. Q. of 90. J. Edgar Hoover has said that the kind of movies shown in theaters have done more to advance juvenile delinquency than anything else in this country. These conclusions were reached:

A Christian home with lots of love and understanding from the parents is one of the biggest factors in combatting delinquency; parents should teach religion, go to church and Sunday School with the children, discipline the child, setting good examples and ideas, seeing the child has good associates and inviting them into their homes; more home life, more recreational facilities in the community, and improvements in our schools are needed; juvenile delinquency is everyone's problem, but parents more than anyone can do more to combat it.

The panel was commended for its excellent presentation of the program. Parents and teachers were enlightened very much on some of the problems confronting our children in this community and how they would like them improved. Wayne Ratliff, principal of Wheelwright schools, assured the panel that some of the ideas they presented would be carried out in the school curriculum as much as possible in the following years.

With such a program, the only business and reports given were that the acoustics in the high school auditorium have been finished and have improved the building very much. Painting will be done soon. P-T-A membership has risen to 253 members, the largest ever in the association. Four teachers won prizes of $2 each for the largest number of parents present at the meeting. Next month, a special program will be presented in conjunction with "Teacher Appreciation Week."

Prestonsburg Native Gives 100-Acre Tract For Girl Scout Camp

The Central Kentucky Girl Scout council will establish a permanent Girl Scout camp in Morgan county for Girl Scouts in six Central and Eastern Kentucky counties.

A 100-acre tract in the Bigwoods section of western Morgan county near the Licking river was made available to the Central Kentucky council by James A. "Andy" Layne of Winchester at a luncheon meeting of the council in Paris last Saturday. Mr. Layne, a native of Prestonsburg, is salesman in Kentucky for Watis-Ritter Co., of Huntington.

Mr. Layne is donating outright to the Girl Scout council acreage on which the permanent buildings will be erected and is providing the Girl Scouts with permanent use of the remainder of the tract.

Mrs. Guy Arnold, of Frankfort, president of the Central Kentucky Girl Scout council, accepted the gift at the Paris luncheon. Previously, she and representatives of the National Girl Scouts had visited the site and approved it for a summer camp.

A committee was named this week to launch a campaign to build a permanent camp and a number of business firms in the six-county area have donated materials for the construction. Menifee county has agreed to build a road to the camp site. Entrance is from US 460 via the Dan Ridge. The camp is in the edge of the Cumberland National Forest near the Morgan-Menifee county line.

What explains the great fascination the fly rod has for all who learn to use it reasonably well? For one thing, it gives the most sport, the most pleasure—it makes big fish out of little ones. Fly fishing lies between spinning and casting in the amount of skill it requires one to develop. And Jason Lucas, angling editor of Sports Afield magazine, says flatly that fly casting has a far more smooth, pleasing rhythm than any other form of casting. Which brings us to a discussion of where it is effective and where it isn't.

Trout—Fly fishing is the traditional method of taking trout in streams and small rivers. But very big trout, generally found in larger rivers, take flies rarely, and to be at all successful you must use lures with spinning or casting tackle. In a lake fly fishing for trout is usually of doubtful value, or useless.

Northern bass—On the average lake in the northern part of the country, taken the season through, the fly rod can't be called at all successful for bass. However, it may work fine in the early part of the season, and very early and late in the day until late midsummer; in fall it's poor indeed. In the usual northern smallmouth stream, most of the time fly-rod fishing is likely to hook as many good-sized fish as any other method.

Southern bass differ from northern in one respect: in the typical river or natural lakes of the deep South, bass are much more inclined to surface and shallow feeding. This makes fly-rod fishing for them successful a far greater percentage of the time.

Bluegill—There is no other fish in the country for which fly fishing is so superior to other methods; it will invariably catch more bluegills than will live bait, and especially more of the larger ones.

Walleyes—in some shallower rivers these can be taken successfully on a fly rod, with streamers or such. But usually fly-rod fishing for walleyes is very poor.

Eastern Pickerel—a long streamer (my preference is usually white) seems to take these very well. A shiny metal fly-rod lure is better, but disagreeable to cast.

Pike and Musky—Smaller pike can be caught by the same methods used for pickerel. Larger pike and musky can be taken on fly rods—but it's a stunt.

Carp—Carp seldom take artificial bait of any kind. But when other fishing is dull, knead a wet piece of bread into a dough-ball, put it on a small hook with a fine leader, and let it rest on the bottom. Carp on light fly tackle will put up a terrific fight—and it's excellent training and practice for catching large game species.

WHEREAS, our loss of a brother has left us deeply grieved, along with his many friends, and we, his brothers of the Floyd County Bar Association, holding the fondest memories of our pleasant associations with such a fine, kind and considerate member, it is our wish that this resolution be adopted by our Bar as a final tribute to his remarkable qualities as a man and brother.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED:

1. That our membership does hereby express deeply our regret at the loss of such an esteemed, able and devoted member of our Association with whom our past associations have been most pleasant and who was possessed of the highest ethical ideals.

2. That in his passing, his clientele has lost the able services of a consecrated lawyer, for whose loss we also join in our most profound sympathy. It is our fondest hope that they will, in the future, be able to choose from the ranks of his profession men of such fine qualities and sterling worth.

3. That his family has lost a beloved son, husband and father and one whose vacancy in their lives can never be replaced, and one, the fond memory of whom will long linger in their minds and hearts. We extend to them our most sympathetic feelings in their loss.

That as a further expression of our Association of deep sorrow, and to perpetuate our revered memory of him, we hereby resolve that this resolution be entered upon the Order Book of the Floyd Circuit Court and upon the records of this Association; that a copy be sent to the Floyd County Times and the Kentucky State Bar Journal. Testing Center Located At Pikeville College

Pikeville, Ky., March 8—Kentucky's fourth testing center for College Entrance Board tests, given five times yearly at some 750 centers in all parts of the world, has been established at Pikeville Junior College.

The first administration at Pikeville of the widely recognized tests will be on Saturday, March 12, one of the world-wide testing dates, Dr. A. A. Page, college president, announced today. Other College Board testing centers in the state are at Louisville, Lexington, and Mayfield.

The tests form parts of the entrance requirements of numerous American colleges besides the 160 which make up the College Entrance Examinations Board, Dr. Page said. The day-long examination includes a three-hour scholastic-aptitude test in the morning session and three hours of shorter tests in selected subjects including English, mathematics, language, sciences, and social studies in the afternoon.
