This Town— That World

LOOKING AHEAD 17 YEARS During the recent locust "season" the carp went mildly crazy at Dewey Lake, pouncing on surface lures, particularly flyrod poppers, with the greatest abandon. I enjoyed some of the best fishing of the year at that time. And now I grow gloomy, just wondering if my joints will be so ancient by the time they get around again that I won't be able to cast a fly.

THIS IS CONFUSION This similarity of names is getting us down. Last week it was Herb Salisbury and Ollie Robinson on the jail records. And neither of the aforementioned is the man of the same name who lives quite peacefully in Prestonsburg. Reminds me of the time a certain Norman Allen blew into town, got drunk, went on a rampage and wound up in jail. I wrote the story, straight, with no identification other than the name, nothing—except that in the very last paragraph I did say that this guy was not the editor of The Floyd County Times. Which made it all right. Only Henry Arrowood, who was publishing a newspaper in Paintsville at the time, picked the yarn up next week and printed everything except that last paragraph. Note to new parents: If it's a boy, call him Xerxes.

HEART CLINICS PLANNED HERE

Doctors of Five Counties Hear Specialists; Service Slated for Indigent Tots

Heart clinics will be held for a five-county area at the new Floyd County Health Center here, with the first clinic scheduled in August or September, it was decided last Wednesday at a meeting of about 30 physicians and surgeons representing the various counties.

The clinics, which will be held at six-month intervals, will be limited to indigent children or to any child referred to the clinics by a physician or surgeon. The service will be diagnostic only, with two specialists to make examinations at each clinic. Indigents requiring surgery or treatment will be accepted at Children's hospital, Louisville, it was said by M. V. Clark, administrator of the Floyd County Health Department.

Speakers at the meeting were Dr. Little, Louisville pediatric surgeon and specialist, and Dr. Woodford Troutman, Louisville cardiac surgeon; Ormon Wright and Finley Booth, representatives of the Kentucky Heart Association.

Counties represented at the dinner meeting at the B & W Cafe and at the lectures in the auditorium of the Health Center are Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Magoffin and Martin.

The proposed clinics will be a service of the Kentucky Heart Association. The meeting held here was sponsored by the Floyd County Medical Society.

COURT NAMES JUDGE TO TRY CONTEST CASE

Meade's Reply Alleges $20,000 Spent by Moore; To Appeal See's Order

J. B. Johnson, of Harlan, has been designated by the Kentucky Court of Appeals as the special judge to preside in the hearing of the absentee-vote contest case of A. B. Meade against DuRan Moore, Democratic nominee for County Court Clerk. Trial of the case may begin here next week, it was said.

Paul E. Hayes, J. B. Clarke, and F. M. Burke, attorneys for Meade, have filed notice of appeal from the order entered by Special Judge M. J. See in the injunction action the contestant filed to prevent tabulation of the absentee votes cast in the race.

Last Wednesday, the contestant filed in circuit court here his reply to Moore's answer and counterclaim to the contest action, and in this reply he alleged that the contestee, his friends and strikers, with his knowledge and consent, violated the Corrupt Practice Act by spending at least $20,000 in money or other things of value to bribe or influence voters. His reply also said Moore was present at various meetings when the pool was made up for the election fight and when strikers were named for the precincts.

Because the contestee violated the Corrupt Practice Act, Meade's reply says, Moore has no right to maintain his counterclaim. Except for admitting the contestee's age, residence legality as a voter and the fact that he was a candidate, the contestant denied all the allegations in Moore's answer, including the claim that Meade spent $40,000, or its equivalent, in the election.

COLLINS QUILTS JUDGE'S RACE

Floyd Committee To Pick Candidate As Opponent Of County Judge Stumbo

Gordon Collins, of Lackey, Republican nominee for County Judge, Monday night announced his intention to withdraw from the race. The announcement was made at a meeting here of Republican nominees and party leaders.

The party will name a candidate soon, it is expected. This selection of a candidate to oppose Henry Stumbo, Democratic incumbent, will be made by the county G. O. P. committee.

Collins, a brother of Sheriff Gorman Collins, was nominated without opposition in the May primary.

The party's county committee will meet Saturday to name a nominee.

Explaining reasons for his withdrawal, Mr. Collins said, "I have pressing business affairs—a store at Lackey and a radio station soon to go on the air in Prestonsburg—and simply do not have the time to wage a campaign. So I have asked the committee to select somebody in my place. I will say, however, that if nobody is found to take my place on the ballot I will make the race myself."

HEALTH BLDG. TO OPEN SOON

New $104,000 Structure, Termed Best of Its Kind, Is Ready for Acceptance

The Floyd County Health Center, a $104,000 structure, was being readied for state acceptance this week and occupancy next week by the Floyd County Health Department.

Already accepted by county and federal authorities, the health center has 11 rooms and measures 66 by 63 feet.

Officials have called the building one of the best of its kind in the state. The structure, located on the grounds of the old Prestonsburg high school and fronting on First avenue, has a large reception room with a U-shaped desk. Eight office desks will be situated in the room. All rooms are steam-heated.

On the first floor of the brick building are the reception room, director's office, sanitarian's office, health education office, general clinic, X-ray room, ladies' rest room, medical laboratory, consultation room, dental clinic, maternal clinic, and the recovery room. This floor also includes four small rooms for storage space.

The basement contains an auditorium which can be used by any civic organization. A kitchen, furnace, restroom, and two storage rooms complete the basement.

The Health Center is said to be the largest of its kind in Eastern Kentucky.

KNOTT WRECK FATAL TO ONE

Anderson Fatally Hurt, His Two Cousins Injured As Car Wrecks at Mousie

One Left Beaver Creek man is dead and two others are in serious condition as the result of an auto wreck which took place Saturday afternoon at Mousie, Knott county.

Dead is Robert Charles "Sonny Boy" Anderson, 21, of McDowell. The injured are Curtis Salisbury and his cousin, Coley Salisbury, both of Hunter. The Salisburys and Anderson also were cousins.

Anderson died shortly after arrival at the Miner's Memorial hospital, McDowell, of internal injuries.

Curtis Salisbury is in critical condition at King's Daughters' hospital, Ashland. He suffered internal injuries, a dislocated hip, crushed shoulder and arm, brain concussion and crushed face.

Condition of Coley Salisbury, though serious, is regarded as favorable to recovery, it was said Tuesday morning. His back was broken and he suffered a compound fracture of the right arm and cuts about the face. He is at the Miners Memorial hospital.

The auto which the three cousins occupied was owned and driven by Anderson. It left the highway at high speed and rammed into a tree. The car was so badly jammed that the three could not be removed until the doors were cut open. Curtis Salisbury's right arm was pinned between the car and the tree into which it crashed.

Anderson, an army veteran, had been residing in Prestonsburg.

Last session of the Floyd fiscal court for the 1956-57 fiscal year was held last Friday to clear up outstanding bills.

The court heard from members of the Floyd county Bar Association an appeal for painting of the courtroom. It was explained that the Bar Association plans to hang on the courtroom walls photographs of deceased judges of the court and that painting should be done before the photographs are placed in the room. Repair of the courthouse roof also was discussed.

The fiscal year ended with June 30.

BREAKS GROUP AWARDS WORK

$90,000 Construction Job Awarded Virginia Firm On Three Park Buildings

The Breaks Interstate Park Commission awarded a contract for $90,000 at Pikeville Tuesday to the McClure Lumber & Building Supply Company, McClure, Va., to construct three park buildings.

The commission also named a committee to select a superintendent for the park, at the Breaks of Sandy, astride Virginia and Kentucky.

The McClure Company, lowest of four bidders, will build a concession stand, superintendent's residence, and maintenance buildings, all to be completed within 80 days after July 15.

Cost of developing the park is being shared equally by the two states. The commission, headed by K. J. Day, Pikeville, had originally set a limit of $75,000 for the contract awarded today. Mr. Day, however, recently received word that Governor Thomas B. Stanley of Virginia had approved an additional outlay so as not to "reduce the quality of the buildings."

NAME RATLIFF PROGRAM AIDE

Floyd County Educator Named to Advisory Body To Plan 3-Year Program

Wayne Ratliff, Floyd county schools supervisor and former Wheelwright high school principal, has been named to an advisory group to plan and evaluate a three-year experimental program in education to be conducted by the University of Kentucky and Berea College.

Financed by a $147,800 grant awarded by the Fund for the Advancement of Education, the two colleges will administer the program for preparation of educational supervisors for local school systems.

Announcement of the grant was made recently by President Francis S. Hutchins, of Berea and President Frank G. Dickey, of U. of K.

Berea College, the official recipient of the grant, will serve as fiscal agent. It will make arrangements with local school systems that will take part in the project. The actual program of preparation will be provided by U. of K.'s College of Education. The program will be concerned with the preparation of two groups of supervisors by directed internship and correlated course work.

The first group will begin work this summer at U. of K., and will move into a series of both on-campus and off-campus activities during the regular academic year. A second group will enter the program next summer. Members of each section will spend two calendar years in this manner.

BANNER MAN JAILED AGAIN

Hamilton Held for Ohio While Awaiting Action Of Jury in Allen Case

Norman B. Hamilton, of Banner, who is under bonds totaling $6,000 for his answer to the September grand jury term here, is also wanted in Ohio, it became known here as he was jailed last Thursday on a charge of parole violation in that state.

Hamilton, jail records disclose, was taken from here to Ohio in 1955 and was given a one-to-five-year term on a charge of theft. He was arrested last week by Deputy Sheriff A. J. Reed.

The Banner man was at liberty at the time under bond after he had waived examining trial here a few months ago on charges of armed robbery and striking and wounding with intent to kill. He was accused of beating 69-year-old Homer Borders, Allen fruit market attendant, on the head

Accidental Gun Blast Kills 12-Year-Old Boy; Mother Was Only Witness

Funeral rites were conducted Sunday, June 23, at Handshoe for Clyde Vanderpool, 12, who died from the accidental discharge of a shotgun two days before. The boy's mother was the only witness to the tragedy that occurred near the home on the Trace Fork of Licking, in Magoffin county.

He had started hunting and crawled through a fence adjacent to the house. As he attempted to pull the gun through the fence it was discharged. The blast struck him in the abdomen and he died instantly.

Surviving, besides his parents, Charles and Exie Hicks Vanderpool, he is survived by the following whole and half brothers and sisters: George Vanderpool and Mrs. Effie Conley, both of Garrett, Willie Conley and Mrs. Haley Crager, both of Kendalville, Ind., Mrs. Vina Coburn, Detroit, Mrs. Frankie Cox, in Virginia, Mrs. Frankie Handshoe, and Mrs. Myrtle Robinson, both of Handshoe, Raymond Robinson, Willard, O., Ronald Conley in Indiana, Misses Gaynell, Annel, Helen, and Hazel Vanderpool, all at home.

The last rites were held at the home of Will Handshoe at 10 a.m. and burial was made in the Handshoe cemetery under the direction of Turner Funeral Home.

CAMP IS PART OF DUAL PLAN

Dewey Lake, Other Camps Would Help Youth, Offer Training Help for Agents

The new conservation camp in the Dewey Lake area, announced last week as a part of Kentucky's planned program for problem boys, will become a part of the state's two-fold plan to accelerate development of the forest industry in eastern Kentucky as well as the setting up of conservation centers which began Monday of this week, according to an announcement of Laban P. Jackson, commissioner of conservation.

Go-ahead signal on the Dewey project awaits only the approval of President Eisenhower who is expected soon to affix his signature to a lease for the 12,000-acre park area, Jackson said. He and Governor Chandler have already signed it for the state.

Harrod Newland, director of the Division of Forestry the past 13 years, will be detached indefinitely from his duties to co-ordinate the program, Jackson said. Newland's successor will be announced later, the commissioner added.

Jackson said Newland was selected to head the program because of his extensive experience in forestry. Newland has been in State forestry work in Kentucky 24 years. He is a native of Louisville.

NATURAL GAS BY-PRODUCTS GO INTO LINE

Full-Scale Production At Big Maytown Plant Seen Within Ten Days

Limited production of gas concentrates for the chemical market began June 20 at the huge, new Maytown plant of the Kentucky Hydrocarbon Company, and four days later these gas by-products in liquid form were started through a four-inch pipeline on their way to the Carbide & Carbon Chemical Company plant at Institute, West Virginia, 100 miles away.

The Floyd plant is expected to swing into full production within a week to 10 days, it was said Monday. Only minor adjustments and changes in new machinery remain to be done before the plant hits top production.

Products of the plant are known by such technical names as methane, propane and other derivatives. All these are reduced to liquid form by a low-temperature fractionation process at the new Floyd plant.

Kentucky Hydrocarbon, a subsidiary of the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company which is one of the heaviest producers of Kentucky natural gas, has a 20-year contract with Carbide & Carbon to supply the liquid extracts taken from raw, natural gas without damage to the quality of the gas itself for heating purposes.

The process, it is explained, consists of taking gas in its natural state and subjecting it to high pressure while freezing it to a sub-zero temperature, thereby converting components of the gas to liquid form.

Construction of the Maytown installation was originally estimated to cost $9,000,000 but that figure may be below the total outlay. It was built by the Jamison Company, contractors, who began the work in March, 1952. Structures include a 30 x 50-foot powerhouse, a 46x200-foot compressor building and a 50 x 200-foot separation center—all located on a fenced-in area of about seven acres near the southern limits of Maytown.

Cost of the plant, supply and "feeder" lines are estimated to have required an outlay of approximately $11,000,000.

One of the big pipeline projects growing out of the Maytown plant construction and operation is the 12-inch line laid from Osborne Gap, near the Kentucky-Virginia line, to the plant by the H. R. Ranier Construction Company, Prestonsburg. This job, one of the biggest undertaken in this section, covered treacherous, mountain terrain and was done at a cost of about $1,200,000. The line supplies gas to the plant from the Virginia field developed by (See Story No. 6, Page 6)

FEW TEACHER CHANGES FEATURE LIST OF 389 NAMED BY BOARD

Most drastic change in the lineup of Floyd county teachers, as announced late Tuesday afternoon following a meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education, was the replacement of Otis D. Spurlock as principal of Prestonsburg high school by James V. Bolen, of Garrett.

Mr. Spurlock, who recently ended his second year as principal here, was not listed as a teacher. County Superintendent Virgil O. Turner said, however, that a good position at no reduction in salary will be available for him if he wants it.

The grade school principalship here, which was left open by the recent resignation of Chalmers H. Frazier, was not filled. Besides Mr. Bolen, new faces on the Prestonsburg high school faculty with the opening of the next school term will be Colonel Blankenship, who was employed to teach chemistry and perhaps advanced mathematics, and Robert J. Kitchen. Mr. Blankenship is now working on his doctorate at the University of Kentucky.

Mr. Bolen, the new principal employed for Prestonsburg high, has taught in the county school system the past eight to ten years and is now working on his doctorate at the University of Kentucky.

In addition to the hiring of teachers, the Board employed Walter Frasure, of Allen, as attendance worker.

In all, 389 teachers were hired, leaving 70 places in the schools yet to be filled.

It was explained that teachers whose names are listed are not to be considered as definitely employed if they are not certified teachers.

The teacher list follows: Allen—C. Phillip Dings, principal. Kelsa Elliott, Alton Crisp, Alka J. Gray, Elsie Hicks, Ethel Johnson, Golda Short, Lucretia Spurlock, Pluma J. Stumbo, Edith Akers, Ethel Ratliff.

BIG SANDY PUSHBOATS

The pushboats of Big Sandy supplemented steamboat transportation on the river when the water was low in summer or when it was necessary to move goods up the non-navigable tributaries like Beaver Creek, Johns Creek, Middle Creek and Abbott. The pushboat had, however, been in use before the first steamboat came up the river in 1837.

Shown here is a pushboat, loaded with barrels of flour, salt and boxes of merchandise preparing to "push" out from a ware room that had received goods from the steamboats. The scene was near the mouth of Johns Creek and was taken about 65 years ago.

Transportation was improved and the economy of our section expanded when the railway entered the upper reaches of the river after 1902. The sudden burst of business activity following the coming of the railway prompted the founding of the First National Bank in 1904. It is ever seeking an opportunity to serve the people of our area as its founders were over half a century ago.

Hale Thanks Voters

Since the cry of battle is over and the smoke has partly blown away, I want to thank the 1957 voters who so gallantly supported me against my odds in the May Primary. Although defeated, I am not discouraged, as I find so many people over this county telling me my defeat was solely by not being acquainted with the people. To my supporters and all others, feel free to call upon me for any assistance I may be able to render and to the nominee I congratulate him as the winner and I assure you I am still a Democrat. So thank you one and all for your unwavering support, believing if I should decide to run again we would double our strength. Thanks, a hundred times.

THE PEOPLE SHOULD KNOW THE TRUTH

In two or three articles in last week's paper your County Court Clerk, Du Ran Moore, attempted to cause the voters of our County to believe that the absentee balloting was carried on by him and his clerk in a fair and lawful manner. Moore takes up more than a quarter of a page to set out the law and how carefully he has followed it. He calls this "THE TRUTH ABOUT ABSENTEE VOTING." More truth is given in the short editorial of the Floyd County Times editor right beside Mr. Moore's article. Referring to the absentee voting law, the editor of our County paper says:

"Not till this year did the law, as written, reach its full potentiality as a corrupting influence in Kentucky elections. Now it is apparent what can be done with the ballot under this law. IN THIS CASE THE LETTER OF THE LAW IS NOT SUFFICIENT TO GIVE A PROMISE OF HONEST BALLOTING. The resulting furore has been heard in almost every county of the state."

Before the absentee ballots were counted I had a lead of 95 votes over Mr. Moore. In the absentee ballots Mr. Moore overcame this lead and, himself, obtained a lead of 24 votes. Even after some 95 absentee ballots had been excluded by the election commissioners, Moore received 190 absentee votes to my 71 absentee votes, almost 3 to 1 in Moore's favor. Moore received almost as large majority in this absentee ballot box as he did in any other 3 precincts in the county. At least one Court of Appeals case has pointed out that the County Court Clerk is a one-man election officer team for absentee voting, and when there is such a wide difference between the results of voting in the precincts and absentee voting, some explanation is required.

Realizing, even before May 18, that Mr. and Mrs. Moore had ignored not only my suggestion but the recommendation of our own Circuit Judge to refrain from campaigning with absentee voters behind closed doors while voting, but both of them gave me to understand they were going to do as they wanted to and that I had nothing to do with it. At no time did I say anything to Mrs. Moore to offend her other than I did not think she should campaign with the voter while voting behind closed doors and if I was Clerk I would not do you all that way. She still insisted that it was none of my business, it was their office yet, until I was elected and got the keys. I filed the injunction suit to prevent the counting of the absentee ballot box. Special Judge See expressing the thought that most of the irregularities charged should be brought out in a contest suit instead of by injunction action, limited me to five witnesses. Allowed only five witnesses it was, of course, impossible to prove the many irregularities and frauds all over Floyd County in handling the absentee voting. With this small number of witnesses here are some of the irregularities shown by witnesses or admitted by Moore's deputy clerks:

1. One deputy clerk, who lives at Lackey, verified or notarized some 50 or more applications, OUT IN THE COUNTY, had the voters bring many of these ballots back to this deputy clerk. This deputy clerk then voted or watched the voting of many of these ballots, and mailed many of them back to the clerk himself. Many of these so-called absentee voters were at the polls on election day.
2. This same deputy clerk verified or notarized applications in blank, and allowed a person to take such applications to Ivel precinct where names of voters were filled in, then this person was made a deputy clerk of DuRan Moore. After being made a deputy clerk he got the ballots from the Post Office, took them to the voters, and had them voted, or voted in his presence.
3. One voter testified that one of Moore's clerks voted his ballot and that of his wife's in a garage at Lackey. The voter's wife was not present at the time.
4. One of the same two deputy clerks advised voters it was not necessary to go to the polls to vote, that they could vote absentee whether they would be gone from the County or not.

I ask you to judge for yourself whether or not this was fraud. Certainly the election commissioners thought there was fraud shown because they refused to count approximately 85 ballots on the basis of the evidence presented.

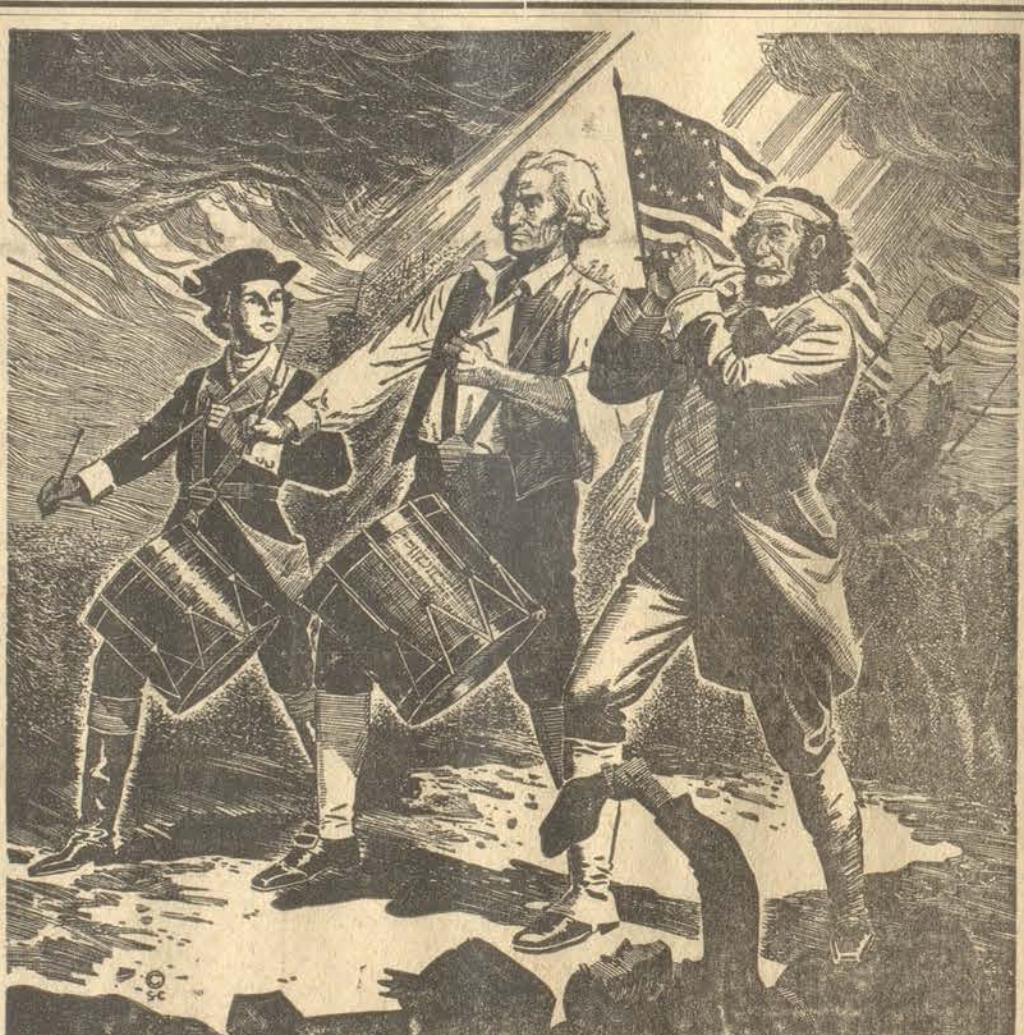

Judge See did not by any means clear Mr. Moore and his deputies of fraud in connection with absentee voting. He did say that, with only five witnesses allowed, not sufficient fraud was SHOWN AT THAT HEARING to keep the ENTIRE ABSENTEE BOX from being counted.

In the contest action which has been filed, I think I will be able to show the court and all the people of Floyd county how illegally and unfairly the absentee voting was carried on. This will include evidence to show that a large number of those persons who voted in the clerk's office were openly and callously campaigned with for Mr. Moore by Mrs. Moore.

In addition I am strongly urging that the present absentee ballot law is unconstitutional and should be changed.

I hope that you will not be deceived by Mr. Moore's protestations that nothing has been done wrong. I feel that I won the election fair and square, and I urge you to get behind me in this fight to expose the manner in which absentee voting has been conducted in this county to the end that it will not happen again. Therefore, I expect to let the Court of Appeals make the final decision in this case.

WE STILL HAVE

The Spirit of '76

IN OUR BANK

It took a lot of courage and vitality for our ancestors to fight a war with the most powerful nation in the world, and win! It took a lot of the same strength for our pioneers to break raw, virgin earth and plant crops and plan big cities! And we're still progressing! As individuals, a community, and as a nation! We, as a bank, are part of all of this. When you hear the bustle and activity inside our doors—when we help to solve the financial problems of families, businesses and industries, you know that the Spirit of '76 still goes on!

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK

Entered as second class matter June 18, 1927, at the postoffice at Prestonsburg, Kentucky, under the act of March 3, 1879.

It's Easier To Find on a Map

We are told that in the tourist business lies one of the great economic potentials for Eastern Kentucky.

And we agree. It does indeed have great possibilities.

The Big Sandy river is a stream of great potentialities, too. But for these potentialities to be realized the river must be canalized, and the same holds true for Eastern Kentucky if its tourist trade potential is ever realized.

While talk of "tourism" is heard Dewey Lake, the greatest single attraction in the area to visitors, lies undeveloped. Roads haven't been built, buildings haven't been erected. The place is beautiful, true, but it is beautiful in its own right, and only the status quo is being maintained.

The Times is not critical of any individual, in particular. It has waited patiently, along with many others, for something to be done during the present and the preceding state administrations. But something is wrong, somewhere, and somebody needs to do something.

Kentucky license plates bear the invitation, "Tour Kentucky". That means, "Tour all of Kentucky you can; some places can't be reached by auto." A great road-building program is planned, however, roads are even now being built, and the day may be nearer than we think when every section of the state can be toured.

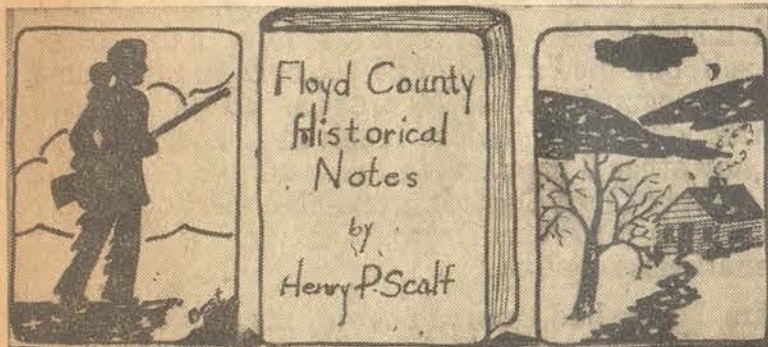

The state also invites people from all parts of the United States to visit its beautiful state parks, and Dewey Lake State Park is listed as one of these. But you first must find Dewey Lake State Park.

As of this date, you will find it on paper.

Something To Consider

If Floyd county had only one automobile agency, every person wanting a car would flock to that one spot. The jam would be terrific.

By the same token, if Floyd county ever has one town where legal liquor is sold, every drunk in the county will jam into that one town. The mess will be nauseatingly disgraceful.

BROWN-HARRELL-YOUNG

Several years ago Brig.-Gen. Robert W. Brown, then a Colonel in the United States Army, planned a period of research on his family history as one of the projects scheduled for retirement. He writes, June 20, from Round Hill, Va., about his maternal ancestors, the Harrells, now Herald.

"The wife of Enoch Harrell, my great-great-grandfather was a Miss Young. I do not know her first name. I think it was Nancy for that was the name of her oldest daughter who became my great-grandmother Brown. I sent you an extract of the Census of 1820 showing the little community where the Youngs and Harrells and Browns lived.

"There must have been an epidemic of some sort around Prestonsburg in 1807 for the court records show that at the first recorded term of court in 1808 letters of administration were granted to my great-great-grandfather, James Brown, concerning the estate of his father, Robert Brown. He was also acting as the guardian of the children of William Young, deceased, namely, Nancy, Peggy and Phoebe Young. James P. Harris came in to court to obtain discharge of guardianship for Nancy because he, James P. Harris, had married her. Elizabeth Young was granted letters of administration on the estate of her deceased husband, James Young. (I think these were my great-great-grandparents.)

"In 1809 Elizabeth Young remarried to Bautiste Jerome. The first recorded court session in 1808 shows that it met in the home or house of Jean et Bautiste Jerome. I find nothing more about Bautiste Jerome but it appears Elizabeth Jerome married James Cummings who became County Attorney in 1813. In 1819 Wm. J. Jerome, residence Paris, France, was confirmed in ownership of 910.954 acres of land located on the Kentucky and Big Sandy rivers. They were doubtless French traders. In the famous Southwest Virginia story of the Moore family, James Moore, the son, in relating the events of his captivity in 1784, states:

"Meeting with a French trader from Detroit by the name of Batest Airome who took a fancy to me on account of my resemblance to one of his sons he bought me for 50 dollars Indian money. . . Mr. and Mrs. Airome were to me parents indeed. They treated me like one of their sons. I ate at their table and slept with their sons in a good feather bed. They always gave me good counsel and advised me, particularly Mrs. Airome, not to abandon the idea of returning to my friends. I worked on the farm with her sons and occasionally assisted him in his trading expeditions. We traded at different places and sometimes went a considerable distance in the country."

"It seems clear to me from the number of Moores in the valley at that time that the sons with whom James Moore slept and worked were Wm. J. and Bautiste Jerome for Airome is the French equivalent of Jerome. But I also do not know what happened to the Jeromes!"

THEY WERE SO KIND THEN—HOW KIND ARE WE NOW?

Early last February, on the heels of the destructive flood that hit this area, the people of Prestonsburg and other communities of the valley were heartened, even amazed, by the spontaneous response from the great heart of America to their needs.

Other people were so very kind and good then. How kind and good are we now?

A few days ago, a part of Louisiana—a state which sent help in to our valley when we needed help—was visited by a hurricane and flood beside which our January flood was a mere "rise". Our losses, though grievous, were mere property losses, in the main. In Louisiana not only homes are gone—the lives of human beings are gone from those homes.

The bodies are still being recovered. The dead are still being buried. The living are finding the stench in that vast scene of destruction unbearable.

We may think we can, but we cannot imagine the horror and despair of these people.

They and others helped us in our time of need. Shall we simply remark, "How awful!" and dismiss the plight of these from our minds now?

Please, let us not have it said of us that we are ungrateful. Mere long-distance sympathy is no expression of gratitude in a time such as this. Money, food, clothing—so many things are needed.

Checks should be made to American Red Cross. Contributions may be mailed to Floyd Chapter, American Red Cross, or left at any bank in Floyd county.

THEY GAINED A YEAR

Does the 17-year locust make his appearance on schedule every 17 years? Well, almost, we would say, and we have the record to prove it.

Lewis Mayo came to this county in 1837, and he wrote Virginia friends of the great number of locusts here that year. Letters of a pioneer minister, dated that year, also are extant, and they attest to the presence of the locusts.

By adding 17 years to 1837, we would deduce that the next "locust year" was 1854; and after that, 1871, 1888, 1905, 1922, 1939, and—here's where we get off schedule.

The 1957 locust year, according to these figures, should have been last year. Still, that's running pretty well on time over a period of 120 years.

FOOD NOTES

By Dixie Trapp
Home Demonstration Agent

Does your taste run to sweet or to tart foods? Cherries can please you either way. Actually the tart or sour cherry crop is the larger. Most cherries sold fresh are sweet cherries.

The fresh cherry season is short. The best chance to have fresh cherries is during June and July. Most of the sour cherries come from the Great Lakes area. Sweet cherry production, on the other hands, is concentrated in the Far West.

You can tell a good quality cherry by its bright fresh appearance, firmness, and color. Immature cherries will be small and hard, and will lack color. Overripe fruit is soft and leaky and has a dull appearance.

Fresh cherries are perishable. Handle carefully and keep refrigerated. Moisture hastens breakdown so do not wash or pit until just before using.

About three-fifths of the sweet cherries go to the freezers and canners. Almost all the sour cherries go to them. Most of the frozen cherries come to you in the form of ice cream and pies. Specialties are Marshino cherries (40-50 per cent sugar) and cherry pie fillings.

To make an 8 inch pie, you need:
1 1/2-2 pounds fresh cherries.
1 16 ounce package frozen cherries.

2 No. 2 cans canned cherries, or 1 can of cherry pie filling.
Flour, cornstarch, or tapioca may be used to thicken cherry pie filling. For 2 cups canned, pitted sour cherries and 3/4 cup sugar, use 4 T. flour or 2 1/2 T. cornstarch or 2 T. quick-cooking tapioca. The Extension Office will be glad to send you a complete recipe.

Additional Fact:
Two quarts of fresh cherries will yield 3 pints of canned or frozen cherries.

This is to advise you that on and after publication of this notice I shall no longer be responsible for any indebtedness incurred against me by my wife, Ella Chullen.

LEGENDS AND MEDICINAL LORE OF MOUNTAIN FLOWERS NOTED

By MARY HILL HOPSON
(In The Middlesboro Daily News)

It is surprising to me, to find home-made and handed-down recipes for medicines, made from stems, roots and leaves of wild flowers, still widely used in our Mountain homes today.

One of the earliest and loveliest of our Spring blooming flowers is the Hepatica or Liverwort. The leaves of this plant do not dry up or wither away during winter. They offer shelter from the frost. The first warm sun hits the broad leaves, the ground around them is the first to become freed from frost and arouses the root to activity. The general color of the blossoms vary from a delicate blue lavender and pink to white. Its six to twelve oblong sepals are supported by three small, oval reddish green leaflets, these are often mistaken for the bloom. Solitary flowers are borne on the slender hairy stems, from three to five inches tall.

The leaves of the Hepatica are very interesting. They are broader than long, and heart shaped. The old leaves on the ground, and the new ones, which follow the buds, form pretty, thick rounded tufts. Hepatica is from the Greek, meaning Liverlike, alluding to the shape and color of the thick tough leaves.

Next come the Anemone, or wind flower. Greek Poets tell us that the Anemone originated in the tears dropped by Venus while she was grieving in the forest, over the tragic death of her sweetheart Adonis. The flowers are pure white. As to age they become tinted pale pink or blue. The stem is smooth and very slender. The delicately textured, medium green leaves are gathered on short stems, about half way between the blossom and the root. They are three paddy-shaped parts or lobes. You will find them near the base of old trees, stumps and rotten logs.

Almost at the same time, in more open woodlands, you will find the finely ribbed white, yellow tipped, bloom of the Bloodroot.

The root is composed of a number of small tubers, when cut or broken they will bleed. The Indians used this juice for war paint and in dyeing blankets. Our grandmothers used the bitterish blood on a spoonful of molasses or sugar, to heal sore throats and coughs. After the graceful flower is gone, the leaves reach a height of ten or twelve inches, and a narrow pointed seedpod matures in their shadow. Early in the spring you will see mountain women out in woods and fields, with their pails or paper-pokes and a knife, gathering Bloodroot leaves along with other wild leaves, which they cook with bacon for a delightfully different and very healthy greens, very similar to spinach.

Now comes the hard to find Yellow Adders Tongue or Trout Lily. It is found near a brook or stream, in partially shaded moist woodland. I have had the good luck to find it near where Indian Creek runs into Powell River. It is also called Dog-Tooth-Violet, but it is not a violet at all, it belongs to the lily family.

The leaves are mottled, long pointed oval, smooth and shiny. The bulbs or corms rest about six or eight inches below the surface. Soon after the bloom is gone, the leaf withers away, then you can't find the slightest sign that a month before, that spot had been carpeted with this beautiful bell shaped lily.

A little later we have an abundance of False Solomon Seal or False Lily of the Valley. Then Spring Beauty makes its striking display of delicate pink and white flower.

The odorless, rosy purple wild Geranium is very common and found most everywhere around Cumberland Gap.

You will find "Jack-in-the-Pulpit" or Indian Turnip. This is a curious looking plant. To me it doesn't look like a pulpit, more like a "jack in the box," standing waiting for you to peep under the flower hood.

The Indians used the tube root as food. The violent acrid bulb is fiery to the taste before cooking. It has been used as a remedy for asthma and whooping cough.

The sweetest of all wild flowers, to me, is the Wild Sweet-William, or Wild Phlox. The plant grows from six to fifteen inches tall, with clusters of bluish orchid, five petaled flowers. The odor is a sweet clean woody smell, that I can't describe, can only say don't miss this one. They usually bloom in late April and May.

I see that writing about the flowers makes me ramble on and on. The same as I do in the woods. So I'll not describe them so minutely, just list a few flowers to be found in our Cumberland Gap area.

We have the Trailing Arbutus, which is about to become extinct, because people have been so careless with it. If you happen upon it, please be very careful how you rake the leaves from around it, but be sure you bend down for a smell of it.

During April and May we have many blooms of all kinds and colors. There's the Trillium, about fifteen varieties of Trillium and we find six or eight species in our woods.

The dark red and deep pink are called Nodding Wake-Robin and Painted Wake-Robin. The Toadshade of Yellow Trillium is a very interesting variety, it is only found within a one hundred-fifty mile radius of Knoxville. I found this one near Norris Lake, not like the true green of the other Trillium. Another interesting fact about the Trillium is, it is so tender-hearted it dies when its bloom is picked or broken.

Now it is time for the Magnificent Lady Slipper, a member of the Orchid family. In Cumberland Gap we find the Pink Moccasin Flower, the largest flower of all. Two thick, large pointed oval many ribbed leaves, clasping at the base, from which a stem rises. On the top of this stem hangs the flower, a large hollow pouch, it is slit at the top and its edges turned inward. The color is a kind of orchid pink. The yellow Lady Slipper grows a little higher on our mountain and is much harder to find. There are quiet a few of them on the mountains around Fern Lake. There are about 140 varieties of them in our locality.

Some of the Violets found in our vicinity are: Common Blue, Downy Yellow, Meadow and the Bird-Foot Violet gets its name from the shape of its leaves. They are called wild Pansties in some localities.

In many parts of the world the Violet is considered a token of good luck.

The Wood Sorrel is very common here. Children delight to eat the leaves and stems, it is often called Sour Grass. The colors vary, white to yellow and pale pink.

The Wild Iris or Blue Flag looks exactly like a miniature orchid, are found on most all of our sandy or rocky slopes.

We find Chisroy, the delicate blue flowers with the shaggy stalk, decorate our roadsides from early summer until frost.

Even the Joe Eye Weed of late August and September, with their tall swaying heads of purplish flowers, have a beauty all their own. It was named for an Indian Doctor, Joe Eye, who gained notoriety traveling across the United States, and used this plant in treating typhus fever.

There are many, many more, maybe some time I can find time to describe some more of them for you.

I will stop with the Kentucky State Flower, Golden Rod, of the Thistle family. There are at least 80 species in our country, they all have yellow or golden flowers except one, which is called Silver Rod. Along with the Purple Aster, they add beauty and enjoyment to your fall trips through the woods and fields, and I feel sure it must have been on one of these treks that Thoreau was inspired to write "The Sun has shown on the Earth, and the Golden Rod in his fruit. The Stars, too have shone on it, and the Asters are their fruit."

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D.

Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

"AND THERE IS A LITTLE QUEER"

All of us have heard many times of the honest old Quaker gentleman who told his demure wife: "All the world is queer but me and thee, and thee is a little queer." Probably his Quaker neighbors would have added the old fellow himself to the queer list. But the odd thing is that queer ones used to be a dime a dozen, anyway. Though there are still some people who are eccentric, even to the point of being suspected as "tetched in the head," the total number of oddities seems to be decreasing rapidly.

Years ago I reviewed in this column a very fascinating book called GRANDFATHER WAS QUEER, a collection of sketches of quaint characters who used to live in New England, two to four generations ago. Rather oddly, I have found very few in that list who seemed strange to me. You see, Fidelity had its quota of nuts and other queer creatures. An occasional one got so queer that we had to send him off to what was called, rather harshly, a lunatic asylum. But, if some outsider had set up court of inquiry and investigated the rest of us, the institutions, as we mildly call them now, would have been bursting at the seams. Fortunately, as one of my college teachers used to say, nobody ever publicly challenged our sanity. As a result, most of us remained loose, able to be as unpredictable as ever.

Some families felt that it was cruel to incarcerate these strange ones. If the Lord had not wanted them to be off center, he would not have made them "that a-way." Besides, who knew but that half wits and other unfortunates were not sent as punishments for some horrible, even though secret, crimes done by the parents or by some member of the family? Since these unfortunates were around, they came to church with their folks; the rest of us were used to them and forgot to laugh, inside the church, at their strange ways. Of course, out of earshot of our elders we acted out the pathetic creatures without a blush.

Considerably higher in the intellectual scale than these half wits were other people who were equally unpredictable. Some of them could read and write and even were readers of big books. But they had different standards of cleanliness, of dress, of speech, of thinking. Going to meeting at that time offered a good many surprises to enliven the grimstone nature of the sermons we heard. Some eccentric might be there in a queer garb or might actually get to shouting and fairly steal the show. Many a neck of a proud Fidelity solid citizen drooped visibly when some such person broke out in meeting.

And then there were still others at Fidelity, at least, who might have got into the old Quaker's category of being queer. Some of these from time to time, I have told about in this column: the miller who read books that seemed too unreal to be true and who litus got the reputation of being an atheist or some equally bad person; the village wog, who knew no restraints in his endless imitation of personages of our community; the neighbor who could get a case of pouts and not speak to his family for days at a stretch and who sometimes, after he got old, would run away like some spoiled brat; the greasy hired man who talked big about witchcraft and believed that even his own son had suffered because of some evil-eyed neighbor; the poor fellow who somehow made a living for himself and his family, even though he never learned to distinguish I and me and used the latter as the subject all his rather long life; the colored man who could not read and write but who could still make remarks that revealed a very rare judgment of his master. No wonder, when I think of it, that by brothers-in-law used to say that everyone in my little village of Fidelity was queer! Standardization, as revealed in cars and radios and television and R.E.A. and the Fidelity high school, has done much to make our little world at Fidelity painfully like the rest of the world; all the queer ones are not dead, but queerness as such is retreating before our modern leveling of society.

King David, a man of war and many wives. God punished him for his evil and rewarded him for his good.

Many women today are denied their God-given rights by ungodly husbands and fathers, but God always has, according to the Bible, come to the rescue of the innocent party, man or woman, in due time. I speak and work for qualified women—SHE women. Qualified and honest HE men. Women with tight pants and few clothes have invited crime and have stunned police and lawyers. So I have read it and I believe it. No man or boy without a shirt or woman or girl in pants or shorts comes in my yard if I see them at my gate. I labored hard to clothe and feed and educate my fatherless children. I think preachers and school teachers should awake.

Sincerely and prayerfully,

It's a dear bargain to buy insurance from the "sell 'em and forget 'em" agent who doesn't bother keeping a professional eye on your constantly changing insurance requirements.

We have a hunch you'd rather BUY FROM AN AGENT who takes a personal interest in you and your family, who takes the time to review your needs periodically so that you never have too little—or too much—insurance.

That's how this Agency conducts its business.

with a hammer last March and of taking a sum of money from the market.

Hamilton is under $5,000 bond to answer to grand jury action on the armed robbery charge and $1,000 bond on the striking and wounding count.

Hershell Johnson, of Ligon, was arrested Monday by Deputy Sheriff's Joe Wheeler Lewis, Edgar Patrick and John D. Martin on charge of operating a moonshine still and of possessing moonshine. He was taken before the U. S. Commissioner at Pikeville.

Bill Allen and Bill Higgins were booked at the jail here last Thursday by Deputies Lewis and Patrick on charges of selling whiskey and beer in dry territory, and Frank Hall was jailed two days later by Deputies Howell, Bryant and Brown on charges of drunkenness and possessing moonshine whiskey.

Allen and Higgins were arrested when Deputy Sheriffs Lewis and Patrick disguised themselves as workmen, joined a group of workers and themselves bought whiskey from the two, Sheriff Gormon Collins said. Reports of liquor sales to workers at Maytown have been received here frequently.

A raid on William Moore, near Drift, Friday netted 24 cans of beer. Moonshine was found on the premises of Emmitt Vance at Drift, but he eluded arrest, officers said.

PURPOSES OF THE PROGRAM ARE:

1. To set up a training program, in co-operation with the College of Agriculture at the University of Kentucky, to help County agents in East Kentucky work with landowners in forestry procedure and flood control.

2. Develop conservation training centers for delinquent and dependent boys, similar to the one started at Kentucky Dam Village nursery last year.

The program will offer training to county agents who, in turn, would help farmers obtain economic return from timber that is of inferior quality for lumber, but that can be used for manufacture of by-products such as charcoal briquettes.

Then, the county agents will advise the farmers about reseeded land.

Five more conservation training centers are planned, but sites for only two have been selected. They are at Kentucky Ridge State Forest near Pineville, and Dewey Lake State Forest near Prestonsburg.

the Clinchfield Gas Co., a subsidiary of the Clinchfield Coal Corporation, which has a contract with Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company to supply 11,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day as a replacement of the gas supply diminished by extraction of chemical fluids at the new plant.

The 100-mile, 4-inch line laid to carry the product of the plant from Maytown to Institute, W. Va., was completed at a reported cost of $2,500,000.

As a consequence of all this, it was pointed out this week by L. E. Roberts, superintendent of the Maytown plant, "we are taking the most desirable part of an Eastern Kentucky resource and have increased its value by making it available to the chemical industry."

Mr. Roberts pointed out that all non-supervisory personnel at the plant are Floyd countians, and that part of the supervisory employees are from this county.

Complete Health, Safety Rules Set In Summer Camps

For the first time in Kentucky, several summer camps will be operated this year under a complete set of health and safety regulations, according to an announcement this week.

The program is a voluntary, trial one. It will be used as a basis for state-wide regulations for all summer camps, expected to go into effect in 1958.

Only general sanitation rules applying to many types of public places have been in effect for summer camps in Kentucky.

The tentative new ones, drawn up by the State Health Department, include such provisions as these:

Each camper must be allotted 40 square feet of floor space in sleeping buildings. Cots must be at least two feet apart. State fire-safety regulations must be followed, including adequate extinguishers or barrels of water.

Areas of poisonous plants must be controlled or eliminated where dangerous to campers. Hazards such as holes, glass on the ground, and splinters must be eliminated. Insect killers must be labeled and stored in a safe place.

Each camper must have a doctor's certificate that he is in good health. An infirmary must be provided, and a doctor be available on call.

Other regulations apply to food preparation, water, toilets, sewage disposal, swimming facilities and the like.

The rules will apply to both public and private camps, for children or adults, operated for five days or longer for recreational, educational, or vocational purposes. Day camps are not included.

Harry A. Marsh, assistant to the director of sanitation for the Health department, said the regulations were worked out with aid from the American Camping Association and a committee of Kentucky camp leaders.

Inspections of the participating camps will be made in July. Final regulations will be drawn by the State Board of Health. They will have the force of State law.

Slayer of Louisa Man Found Guilty of Murder In Lawrence-Co. Court

An ex-convict who admitted he struck an elderly pensioner for his money, but hadn't meant to kill him, was found guilty of murder in Lawrence circuit court Wednesday of last week.

The jury of 11 men and a woman fixed sentence for 48-year-old Newton R. "Buck" Daniels at life imprisonment without parole.

As the only defense witness, Daniels had told the jury that he had intended only to knock 82-year-old Robert Laney unconscious.

Laney, who had befriended Daniels on two occasions in recent years, was killed by a blow from a maddock handle on the head as he slept in bed in his rural home June 3.

His body was found about a week later.

Daniels, who had been staying with Laney since they met recently on a Louisa street, was arrested and indicted last week.

He said Laney still was breathing when he took about $75 and two pistols and fled. He knew Laney had the money because they had gone to a store nearby to cash Laney's Chesapeake & Ohio Railway pension check the same day.

Mack Hammond, the store owner, testified to this as one of 13 Commonwealth's witnesses.

The State had asked a death sentence.

LEWIS AND STEEL EXECUTIVE JOIN IN OPPOSING CONTROLS

United Mine Workers Chief John L. Lewis and United States Steel Corporation executive R. C. Tyson teamed up in Washington Friday against legislation to give the federal government a measure of control over employees' welfare and pension funds.

Citing the conduct of his own union's funds, the miners' chieftain declared that more federal prosecution, not new disclosures, are required to keep union welfare funds free of scandal.

Lewis told a Senate subcommittee that proposed new statutes would place an "undue burden" on the funds, increase the cost of administration, and deprive workers of full benefits.

"The veteran union leader also warned that federal "encroachment" in the field might be a first step toward a "police state."

"I am deeply concerned," Lewis said, "about the encroachment of the state into the field of the voluntary association of citizens."

"I do not believe that the Republic... can regiment these associations, either in whole or in part, without of necessity expanding its powers to the point where it will become a police state in truth and in fact," he said.

Lewis pointed with pride to the operation of miners' welfare plans. "No fact is withheld," he said, "and there would be no unlawful financial transactions concealed from these reports."

He declared that new disclosure laws in New York might cause some of his union's smaller funds in that state to fold up, because of the expense of additional bookkeeping.

Lewis referred caustically to city and state scandals in Illinois, where he said there was "full disclosure." And he said, "there are more bankers in the penitentiary than coal miners."

Lewis took a dig at some of his colleagues in the labor movement. He said: "I am completely impatient with the attitude of those who say 'Please hurry up and enact a statute that will compel our leaders to be honest and stop thieving from our members.'"

He declared that the least amount of legislation is "best for Congress, the people and for welfare funds."

Robert C. Tyson, chairman of the finance committee of U. S. Steel, which operates a large captive mine at Lynch, Ky., testified his firm feels "there is no evidence of any need of public supervision of welfare funds." It is proposed to regulate health and insurance plans as well as the welfare and pension funds.

Apart from the costs and burdens involved, Tyson said, there are other reasons why the question of financial disclosures should be approached carefully.

He said one of the facts that the business of investing funds is highly competitive and "we do not wish competitors in this field to know our trustee's investment policies or the amount or nature of particular investments."

The hearing brought out that there are some 500,000 plans that might be affected by the legislature, with about 30 billion dollars involved.

Lewis conceded there have been some scandals in the handling of union welfare funds. But he said there are laws to deal with dishonesty, and that dishonesty isn't confined to a few individuals in the labor movement.

The U. M. W. has a welfare and retirement fund that had a balance of more than $130,000,000 last year.

Osborne Case Causing State-Wide Concern

Flat Gap's Charlie Osborne, son of Prestonsburg Postman William Osborne, is causing considerable controversy state wide, especially between Morehead and Western State College. Both are hot after the all-state cager, who looms as a top-flight prospect for next season's play.

Osborne, who flipped in the winning baskets in Kentucky's second triumph over the Indiana's All-Stars, 77-76, in Indianapolis Saturday night, appears to favor Western at present after earlier indicating that he would attend Morehead.

This action has brought about charges and counter charges, and our good friend, W. E. Crutcher, editor of the Rowan County News, devoted last week's column to discussion of the Morehead angle, which we herewith quote:

"At least three readers have contacted us about our comments on the Charlie Osborne case - that of the Flat Gap basketball player who says he will go to Western instead of Morehead.

"A Flat Gap citizen says the reason is that athletic scholarships at Morehead are cancelled if the player fails to make the team. Of course, this is ridiculous because both Western and Morehead operates in the same manner.

"It is true, however that Western's coach, Ed Diddle, has an arrangement where his players live in the Diddle home and he makes no bones about the fact that the family refrigerator is open at all times.

"Officials at Morehead college are getting a little bitter and outspoken about the cream of Eastern Kentucky athletes going elsewhere.

"There has been, through the years, some downtown criticism from uniformed persons about Morehead not offering scholarships to boys in this area.

"Almost without exception, Morehead has tried to get the good athletes. And, almost without exception, they go elsewhere. Morehead has to look to Indiana, other states and other parts of the state.

"Perhaps those furthest pastures look the greenest, but it does appear that MSC alumni are not working as efficiently as grads of some other schools.

"Perhaps we can get the second and third best from this area. But you don't win OV titles and rank in the nation's first 20 with the athletes that Kentucky and Western and other colleges don't want.

"Of Morehead's five in most games, one was from Indiana, another from Connecticut; another from Ohio; and the other two were from Maysville and Cynthiana, respectively.

"Coach Bob Laughlin has used every means to get the best boys in Eastern Kentucky, but once again he is having to go elsewhere. Last week he issued a scholarship to a 6-foot, 10-inch Cincinnati lad; another to Steve Hamilton's brother in Indiana.

"If you know of some legal way that Morehead can attract our home boys, everybody connected with the Eagle Athletic program would like to hear from you. President Adron Doran admits he just can't understand it... that Morehead seems to have them until about this time each year. Then the letters start saying that 'I've decided to enroll elsewhere.'

"What are these other schools doing that Morehead doesn't? What is their second formula? 'And, as we pointed out last week, are our competitors living up to NCAA regulations as Morehead, or is there some under-the-table maneuvering?'

"It's not amusing but very confusing and disheartening."

TWIN FOREST PROGRAM SET

Training Centers Planned By Commissioner Jackson In East Kentucky Region

A twin program to speed up development of the forest industry in Eastern Kentucky and to establish additional conservation training centers has been announced by Conservation Commissioner Laban P. Jackson.

Purposes are to set up a training program, in cooperation with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, to help county agents in Eastern Kentucky work with land owners in forestry procedure and flood control and full-scale development of conservation training centers for delinquent and dependent boys like the one at Kentucky Dam Village nursery.

The program will embrace cooperation of the Departments of Conservation, Welfare, Economic Security, Economic Development and Agriculture, Jackson explained.

Jackson said the program is considered so important and its scope so broad that a man of extensive experience is needed to head the project.

"The assignment is being given to Harrod Newland, who is being detached from his duties as director of the Division of Forestry so that he can give his full time to the project," Jackson said.

Jackson said a second conservation center is now being set up at Kentucky Ridge State Forest near Pineville.

A third center is planned at Dewey Lake State Park, which covers 12,000 acres near Prestonsburg, the commissioner added.

Three other training centers will be set up in Kentucky soon, Jackson said.

Largest Walleye Caught In Kentucky Is Reported By Eastern Kentuckian

An eastern Kentuckian has landed what may be the largest walleye ever taken in the state. This was revealed a few days ago in a belated report to the current annual Courier-Journal free fishing contest.

Torrence Warrick, Seco, caught this prize walleye while drifting and trailing a live minnow with in 200 yards of the London Boat Dock on Lake Cumberland. When weighed, it sent the needle on the scales soaring to 19 pounds 4 ounces and above the 17-pound walleye which held the Kentucky record until this whopper was taken on April 23.

The present world's record is one of 22 pounds 4 ounces from Ft. Erie, Ontario, Canada, taken on May 26, 1934. It was 26 1/4 inches long with a girth of 21 inches. Warrick's walleye was 34 inches long with a girth of 24 1/2 inches.

In the rough fish class James Cole, Lothar reported a catfish of 44 pounds 8 ounces caught on a trot-line baited with a live minnow, set in Lake Cumberland near Noe's Fishing Dock at Corbin.

JOHNSON IN KOREA

24th Div., Korea - Pvt. Martin L. Johnson, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Johnson, of Weeksbury, Ky., recently was assigned to the 24th Infantry Division in Korea.

Johnson, who just completed basic combat training at Fort Knox, is now a rifleman in Company E of the division's 19th Regiment.

Before entering the Army in December, 1956, he attended Pikeville Junior College and worked for the Washington (D. C.) National Airport.

On a high hill directly opposite the south side of the courthouse in Hawesville, Hancock county, is Lover's Leap. Local legends tell of several Indian maidens who died in this traditional fashion. One of the heroines was called Negahnakee. When her brave was killed, grief-stricken she plunged over the rocky edge.

KOREANS SEEKING $86,000 FOR MacARTHUR STATUE

Seoul — A nationwide committee hopes to collect 43,000,000 hwan ($86,000) for the statue of General Douglas MacArthur which the group plans to complete before September 10 on Wolmi Island at Inchon harbor. MacArthur will be invited to attend the unveiling ceremony on that date the seventh anniversary of his landing there at the head of United Nations forces.

Drivers' Point System Upheld

Frankfort, July 2 (Spl.) — Kentucky's highest court has upheld the state's point-system method of keeping habitually bad drivers off the highways.

The decision by the Court of Appeals reversed Franklin circuit court, which had declared the system illegal on the grounds it imposed a penalty not authorized by the Legislature.

The appellate majority opinion said "we believe the administration of the traffic rules can lawfully be delegated to administrative officials."

The system, adopted by executive order of Gov. A. B. Chandler last December, provides for mandatory suspension of a driver's license for six months if he accumulates 12 points for traffic violations during a three-year period.

Both Chandler and Public Safety Commissioner Don S. Sturgill hailed the high court's decision.

KY. ROAD BOND ISSUE IS UPHeld BY COURT

Kentucky's proposed $100,000,000 bond issue to help finance a huge road-building program has won approval of the Court of Appeals.

The state's highest court recently upheld validity of the bond issue in a 6 to 1 decision. The proposal had been approved by Kentucky voters last November by a margin of nearly 6 to 1—511,656 to 85,635.

Gov. A. B. Chandler declared after the appellate court decision that "this is a momentous thing, with far-reaching effects."

He had recommended and the 1956 Legislature had submitted the proposal for the vote last fall.

The governor expressed belief the State would be able to sell some of the bonds when offered in the bond market. The bonds would be sold in blocks of at least $5,000,000, under the law, as needed to match federal aid for highway and bridge construction.

Proceeds from the bonds could be used only for this federal aid matching. But, highway officials said, use of the bond money for this purpose would free state road funds which otherwise would have to be earmarked for matching federal aid. These released funds then could be used to speed up other road construction, they said.

The court held the bonds, which would be general obligations of the state, must be limited by 3 per cent interest. They must be retired in 30 years, at the most.

Federal aid is at the rate of $9 federal money to $1 in state funds for construction of Kentucky's 641-mile portion of the interstate system of national and defense highways and at rate of $1 for $1 for aid in building primary and rural secondary roads.

County Health Agencies Aided

Frankfort, July 2 (Spl.)—About 50 per cent more local money was appropriated to county health departments during 1955-56 fiscal year than in the previous year, the State Commissioner of Health says.

In a report to Gov. A. B. Chandler, Dr. Russell E. Teague, said this indicates "people were becoming more aware of their local health departments' budgetary problems."

The State Division of Local Health Services establishes policies governing activities and practices of county health departments, the report says. The division is an arm of the Kentucky Department of Health.

The division, the report continues, performs these services for county departments:

Supervises financial, personnel, program, administrative and other functions; evaluates organization and activities; conducts State and district conferences for employees, and allocates State funds.

New Recreation Division Sought

Frankfort, July 2 (Spl.) — A new division of recreation for Kentucky was recommended unanimously at a Governor's conference held here recently by a group of recreation leaders and state officials. A program coordinator was suggested.

Attending the meeting were State Conservation Commissioner Laban P. Jackson; Economic Development Commissioner George Hubley; William M. Hay, National Recreation Association, New York; Charles Vettiner, Superintendent, Jefferson County Recreation; Ed Adams, Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, representing Commissioner Earl Wallace; G. Harry Bowen, State Highway Department (Roadside Parks); Oakley Brown, Jefferson County Playground and Recreation Board; George Carr Ganter, Deputy Commissioner of Conservation; John Gettler, Director of Recreation and Parks, Lexington; T. J. Nelson, Assistant Director of State Parks; Walter Shouse, Director of the Division of Planning, in the Economic Development Department; James Sublett, Assistant Superintendent of Public Instruction, representing Dr. Robert Martin; and Julian R. Walker, Fayette County Recreation Department.

Mr. Vettiner, Louisville, made the motion which was seconded by Mr. Sublett, and passed unanimously, the group's recommendation to the Governor of Kentucky "that a division of recreation be established to serve the Commonwealth of Kentucky" and that a program coordinator be employed whose duties would be to direct the division's activities.

Waterfield Commissions Hoak

Frankfort, July 2 (Spl.) — Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield presented a Kentucky Colonel's commission to Don Hoak, brilliant new third baseman for the Cincinnati Redlegs baseball team, before a recent doubleheader with Philadelphia.

Hoak, a native of Pennsylvania has announced he will move to Lexington after the 1957 baseball season to establish residence and enter business.

Waterfield, along with Mayor Kincaid, of Lexington, welcomed the new Redleg to Kentucky, as part of the "Don Hoak Day" ceremonies sponsored by a group of Lexingtonians at Crosley Field, Cincinnati.

The 1956 World Series marked the first time that the winning team's pitchers turned in five straight complete games.

CHANGES IN ECONOMY NOTED BY EDUCATOR

By Robert R. Martin
Superintendent of Public Instruction

During the last two decades, we have seen the development of a major change in Kentucky's economy. Once primarily an agricultural state, Kentucky now counts itself among those states whose economies are increasingly being built upon trade and industry.

As this change was being effected in our state, it created many related problems and affected almost every aspect of state government and public service agencies—not the least of which is education.

One of the most consistent concerns that has resulted from industrialization in Kentucky has been the ever present problem of supplying enough trained man power to meet the new demands. Though this was only one area among many in which education found itself involved, it was certainly one of the more important. And as industrial techniques became more and more complex over the years, the problem of man power became equally difficult. No longer is quantity of labor important in itself—today's labor must also be skilled or semi-skilled. Quality is of as much importance now as quantity.

Using the accessory power that modern technology has given him, the worker in 1957 can do as much work in forty hours as a worker in 1857 could do in 210 hours. Thus, our modern industrial employee can do five times as much work as his great-grandfather. This fact has tremendous significance to trade and industrial educative processes. If a worker is expected to produce under these conditions, he must have important fundamental skills and know-how when he comes to the job. It is the responsibility of education, in large measure, to so prepare him.

It was in recognition of this and of the continued growth of the Kentucky industrial community, that Mr. George Hubley, Jr., Commissioner of Economic Development and I, requested Governor Chandler to initiate an industrial-training study aimed at improving and expanding the program of trade and industrial education in Kentucky.

Kentucky now has thirteen area trade schools in operation. The primary purpose of these is to train people for employment in industry and the trades. These schools are enrolling about 8,000, but as new plants are constructed in the state and others expand their production, greater demands will be exerted on the trade schools to furnish additional trained personnel.

Recently, the Governor named a twelve-member advisory committee to analyze the industrial-training program. These men will study the educational program in the trade schools as well as the facilities, methods of financing, and administrative organization. They will be concerned with determining the type and number of schools that will be needed to meet problems of furnishing skilled man power.

Former Floyd Minister Enacts Role in Film Showing Sunday Night

A 29-minute religious film in color, "Plus Power," will be shown at the Betsy Layne Methodist Church Sunday night, July 7, at 7:30. This film was produced on the campus of Asbury College in Wilmore, Ky., under the sponsorship of the Methodist Student Movement on the campus.

It is the story of a boy who was the son of a missionary and who had entered college with the determination that he was not going back to the land from which he had come as a missionary. The story of the events which took place in his life and the decision which he made makes an interesting film with a great missionary challenge. Dr. Robert L. Anderson, now pastor of the Wilmore Methodist Church and formerly director of the Big Sandy Valley Larger Parish, plays the role of the missionary in the film.

The pastor, Rev. William G. Garrett, Jr., invites the public to see this film next Sunday night.

PVT. ALLEN IN KOREA

24th Div. Korea — Pvt. Wayne E. Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Allen, of Martin, Ky., recently participated in the 24th Infantry Division's annual Armor Day parade with the 6th Tank Battalion in Korea.

Allen is regularly assigned as a driver in Tank Company of the division's 21st Regiment. He entered the Army in July 1956, and completed basic training at Fort Chaffee, Ark.

Old Southern Harmony Singing held annually in Benton, Marshall county, on the fourth Sunday in May, was established in 1884 by J. R. Lemon, a west Kentucky newspaperman.

Named to the Governor's committee were: Dewey Daniel, Hazard; B. F. Reed, Drift; Mack Smith, Hazard; Floyd Fairman, Lexington; Everett J. Moore, Bowling Green; O. L. Weaver, Jr., Ashland; Ira Thompson, Hopkinsville; Alex Veech, Finchville; Burl Travis, Lexington; William E. Garland, Paintsville; C. W. Seaward, Paducah, and William A. Stoll, Louisville.

When the trade schools were started some twenty years ago, there was little demand for skilled labor. But in recent years that trend has been completely reversed. Fred A. Martin, Director of Trade and Industrial Education, tells me that it is probable that the enrollment in the state's trade schools could reach 30,000 in the next five years.

In Kentucky, we are all interested in seeing new industry come into the state. An education program that will supply industry with skilled employees who need little or no training at the expense of the employing company will certainly merit much consideration from prospective industry. I am sure that the work of this committee will be of great significance to the future of our program of trade and industrial education and of equal importance in the work of advancing education in Kentucky.

 Chief of Police.

Scaif, who has served as patrolman for four years, took over the post.

HOW TO BURN A HOLE

IN YOUR OWN POCKET

There are still some people who say: "Why worry about forest fires? There's plenty of timber in this country. Besides, trees grow back pretty fast after a forest fire."

Don't you believe this. It takes 20 years to replace a pine forest, much longer for Douglas fir and hardwood forests.

Wood is vital to your own life... the floor you stand on, your chair, the packages that contain most of your food, your newspaper; perhaps, even, the clothes you wear. All—and more—may be derived from wood.

As supply decreases, the cost of wood products increases, and you pay the higher costs. Whatever the loss in forest fires, you pay the bill.
 That's why you may be burning a hole in your own pocket when you toss a burning match or cigarette from your car.

Remember - only you can PREVENT FOREST FIRES!

Old Mail Hack
Now Is A Relic
In State House

By Charles F. Hinds
Secretary-Treasurer, Kentucky
Historical Society

Frankfort, July 2 (Spl.) — A red and green "mail hack", reminiscent of horse-drawn rural mail service, is seen by visitors just to the left as they enter the front hall of the Old Capitol.

It was used for 26 years on Route 2 in Hopkins county by R. L. Mangum of Nortonville, a rural mail carrier beginning in 1921. In 1955 Mangum gave his vehicle to the Kentucky Historical Society in memory of "the early days of the rural mail delivery service" as one of the last mail wagons used in Kentucky.

The wagon, manufactured by Harrington Co., Peoria, Ill., in 1921, sold for $135. It was the smallest type of vehicle used by rural mail carriers. The cab, with four windows and two narrow side doors, measures only 27 inches in width and 4 feet and 2 inches in length.

Once when driving over a section of his route, gutted with deep holes, Mangum leaned forward to check the mailpouch in the front of the wagon. Working in close quarters, his head was suddenly thrown through the front windshield when the front wheels dropped into a large mud hole. The glass was never repaired.

It is hard to visualize Kentucky with no post offices and mail routes. But only 167 years ago, the U. S. postmaster reported only one mail route east of the Appalachians, running from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh once every two weeks.

Kentuckians depended on occasional travelers for mail until 1792, when the first route was laid out to Kentucky and the first post offices established at Danville, Washington, Paris, Lexington, Frankfort, Harrodsburg, Bardstown, and Louisville. Mail was brought down the Ohio River until another regular interstate mail route was added in 1798, entering eastern Kentucky by Cumberland Gap.

Mail was at first delivered almost entirely by horse and rider. But in 1825, about one-half of the mail was carried by coach. Congress yielded to popular demands for an expanded postal service throughout the 19th century. In 1851, 1883, and 1885, the cost of sending letters was reduced to two cents an ounce. Free delivery was installed in cities and towns beginning in 1863.

Ten years later, post cards were introduced into the United States from Europe. Probably the most significant advance was inauguration of free rural delivery in 1896.

HEALTH NOTES

By Floyd County Health Department

A new mobile station for collecting specimens for serologic testing for syphilis will be ready for use by July, according to Russell E. Teague, M.D., Commissioner of the Kentucky State Department of Health.

The new bus replaces an outdated unit which has been in use during the past two years. Sponsored by county medical societies and health departments the bus travels to serve smaller or out-of-the-way communities which have no facilities for drawing or testing blood. For some time the mobile unit operators have complained that motor and equipment breakdowns on the first unit have made the service unsatisfactory.

State and federal funds have made possible the purchase of the new unit, which is designed to encourage people to come for the tests. Three members of the staff of the Division of Venereal Disease Control will man the unit. The blood specimen will be drawn at the unit and sent to the State Department of Health laboratories for the serology test.

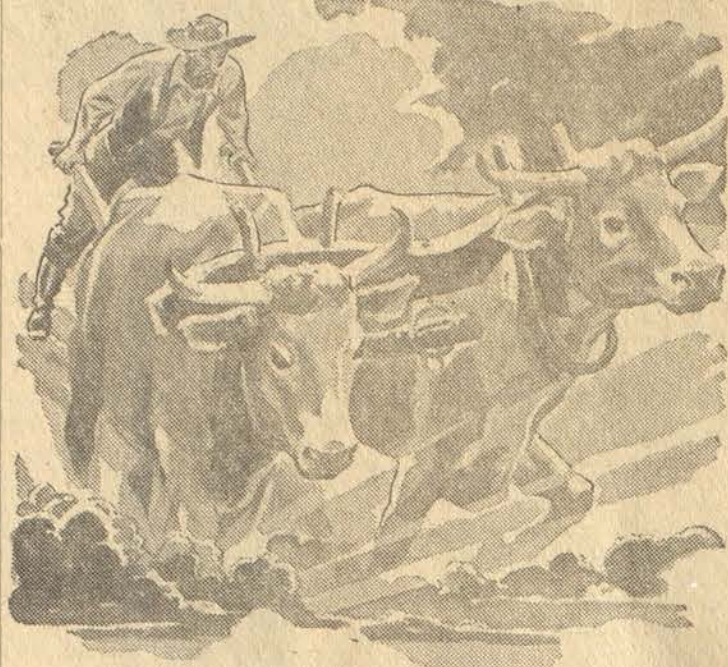

Dr. Teague emphasized that syphilis is one of our most serious public health problems today. He added, "More than half of the people who have syphilis do not know they have it. The confidential test at the unit is good mental health insurance that syphilis is not present." Persons with positive reports are referred to their family physicians.

Recordings of popular songs will be amplified to attract attention to the mobile units' stopping place. The unit will travel to all parts of the state on the request of local physicians and health departments.

4,000-Year-Old Tips
On Water Still Good

Bahad — The earliest record of purifying water is in a Sanskrit collection of medical lore written about 200 B. C. The writers recommended keeping it in copper vessels, exposing it to sunlight, and filtering it through charcoal. All this is still considered good advice.

PIONEER DAYS

SALE

In this sale we go 'way, 'way back to Pioneer Days. And in this sale there hangs a tale—a bear's tail, if you will pardon the pun.

More than a hundred years ago, David Cooley, father-in-law of Isaac Richmond, operated a General Store here in Prestonsburg. He was the great-great-grandfather of the present I. Richmond Store manager.

In those early days of this, the oldest of Floyd county businesses, Mr. Cooley owned a bear which he kept chained to a tree on the property where the store was located on First avenue here, a few doors away from the site of the present store. It was his custom in those days to invite home with him for lunch all customers who happened to be in the store at the noon hour. The invitation was usually accepted, and store and bear were left unattended.

On one such occasion Mr. Cooley and his friends returned to the store to find the bear had broken his chain and was inside the building. Since he kept sugar in a barrel, the whereabouts of the bear was no mystery. They found the barrel overturned and the bear helping himself to its contents.

As a result of this incident, Mr. Cooley staged Prestonsburg's first sale—a sale of the sugar from the barrel, at bargain prices.

And now, a century later, we go 'way back to the bear and this bit of history to tilt over for our customers and friends barrels and barrels of bargains in our Semi-Annual Sale.
