This Town— That World

QUESTION

What's wrong when the state insists on spending a lot of money where it isn't wanted and plans to spend little where it is desired?

Down in the Kentucky Lake section motel and hotel owners are so up in arms about the state proposing to use a million and a half dollars from the sale of $3 1/2 million worth of revenue bonds in the building of 50 cottages at Kentucky Dam Village and a lot more money in building 50 more rooms onto Kenlake Hotel that the private interests have filed suit to halt the sale of the bonds.

That must be plumb discouraging to the state. We could have saved the state and the private interests all that trouble this lawsuit creates if we had been asked for advice, but we weren't. We would have made a simple arrangement—leave out Kentucky Lake and all others where state help isn't wanted and divert that money to other places where nothing has been built and where building is wanted, with nobody to sue.

Dewey Lake State Park, for instance.

Why fight a lawsuit in order to spend money where it isn't wanted? Answer us that question, somebody, quick!

FIENDISH THOUGHT

There are occasions when the horns start sprouting on just about all of us as we think of onery tricks we would like to play on somebody. There's one that I've been thinking about for years and probably would have pulled already if I could stay under water without swallowing it all.

COUNCIL FILLS VACANT POST

New Fire Chief Here, Brother of Amos Gray, Named at Second Meet

The Prestonsburg City Council in the second of two meetings this week named Henry Gray fire chief to fill the fire department vacancy created recently by the death of his brother, Amos Gray.

His salary will be the same as his brother's—$400 a month.

At the first Council meeting Monday night there were three applicants for the post—Mr. Gray, James William Lafferty and Bill Ray Collins. The applicants were discussed but no action was taken as members of the volunteer fire department requested permission to make a statement to the Council. The meeting was adjourned till Wednesday evening.

Bill Ray Collins withdrew his application for the job at Tuesday's meeting, leaving only Lafferty and Gray. Collins and Gray were the only applicants who had been members of the fire department. Five members of the Council voted for Gray, and these then were joined by the three who had voted for Lafferty.

The new fire chief said Wednesday he hopes to move by this week-end into the apartment formerly occupied by his brother and family. He has the full support of all members of the volunteer department, it was said following his employment.

SMALL-MINE THREAT DELAYED IN SENATE

COOPER ASKS ADDED STUDY BEFORE VOTE

Senator Says Effect Of Bill Is Not Clear; UMW Journal Critical

The amendment to the mine safety bill which most small-mine operators claim would put them out of business and throw thousands of miners into the ranks of the unemployed has been at least temporarily delayed in the U. S. Senate.

The delay resulted from a call by Senator John Sherman Cooper for further study of the pending bill before final action is taken. Senator Cooper explained last week that he did so because it is not known what effect such legislation would have on small mines and their employes and what safety measures are needed in the smaller operations.

The legislation was up for further action, Wednesday.

The United Mine Workers Journal has criticized Cooper sharply for his stand on the bill.

Some small-mine operators have averred that the big operators and the UMWA are advocating a measure which would remove the competition provided by truck mines and other small operations.

Cooper amplified on an interview given last Thursday in which he was quoted as saying the bill might put many small mines out of business unnecessarily.

If this is true, he said, it would not only deny employment to miners but prevent recovery of much of Kentucky's natural coal resources.

The bill would make all mines subject to the same federal mining safety-rules. Mines with 14 or fewer employes are now exempt.

Cooper suggested the United States Bureau of Mines hold hearings in the coal states and in Washington over the next several months to:

1. Learn the truth of charges of economic hardship on the small mines, without any appreciable increase in safety.
2. See if the safety measures for small mines should be different than those for big mines.
3. Make a special study of roof cave-ins in all mines. Cooper said this is the chief cause of mine disasters, and occurs about equally in little mines and big.

POLITICAL POT GETS WARMER

Waterfield Announces, Combs Opens Key Office, Wyatt Comes Visiting

The Kentucky gubernatorial election, yet a full 10 months away, continues to command the attention of voters on the Democratic side of the house as four candidates are officially in the primary and at least three of the four are actively campaigning.

Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield, who has the blessing of the Chandler administration, was the fourth to enter the race as he announced two weeks ago; Bert Combs, of Prestonsburg, established campaign headquarters in the Seelbach hotel, Louisville; and Wilson W. Wyatt, of Louisville, came visiting in Prestonsburg, Combs' hometown, Monday.

The fourth man in the Democratic primary, Hubert Carpenter of Louisville, remained quiet.

Floyd county was the 65th county visited by Wyatt, the candidate told The Times. He called at the law office here of Judge Combs but Combs himself was away, campaigning.

Wyatt said the three major issues of the campaign are: Chanderism, bickering and constructive government. "I am doing no bickering because I have no grudge to settle," he said.

As of last week, Judge Combs had traveled 11,000 miles and visited 62 counties since announcing for office in early April.

Judge Combs estimates that he will cover more than 100,000 additional miles before the November, 1959 election.

FLOYD TRIO QUALIFIED IN WATER SAFETY WORK

Miss Eilla Noel White, executive secretary of Floyd Chapter, American Red Cross, said this week that Floyd county has three young women who are qualified water safety instructors. The three and colleges where they received their training are:

Mary Alice Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Hall, Wheelwright, Purdue Lumber-Camp of the National Aquatics School, LaGrange, Ind.; Miss Jacqueline Hensley, daughter of Mrs. Zella S. Archer, Prestonsburg, Georgetown College; Miss Julia Mayo May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. V. May, Prestonsburg, Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass.

Miss May and Miss Hensley are, respectively, water safety directors at the Paintsville swimming pool and Camp Chatterawha on Dewey Lake. Miss Hall is serving in the same capacity at Camp Dick Runyan, North Webster, Ind.

4 RAIDS NET RUM, 2 CARS

Two Other Raids Fail During Week in County; Drunk Drivers Arrested

Six liquor raids have been staged by deputies of the Sheriff's office since last Thursday, with four resulting in confiscation of intoxicants and the arrest of their alleged owners.

The auto of Simon Moore was confiscated near Price when five cases of beer and 13 half-pints of whiskey and gin were found in it. This was followed by a raid at Tram on the premises of Zella Mae Salisbury, with 19 cans of beer being found. Twelve half-pints of whiskey and one of gin were taken in the second raid made within a week on the premises of Curtis Bentley, near Allen.

The fourth successful raid was staged July 4 here when liquor was taken from an auto allegedly operated by Edward Gayheart. A Nash car was confiscated by the arresting officer, Deputy Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis.

Among others jailed since last Wednesday were:

Fannin Franklin, drunk driving, arrested by State Trooper Wright and Deputies Herschel and Clyde Lester; Everett Bevins, fishing without license, arrested by Conservation Officer Don Meade, fined $15 by Magistrate Johnny Caudill; Sam Crawford, drunk driving, no operator's license, jailed by Deputy Sheriff Herschel and Clyde Lester; Milford Newsum, drunk driving, no operator's license, hit-run driving and leaving the scene of an accident, fined $100 on one count by County Judge Stumbo; Jack Donald Hall, possessing moonshine, and Roy Elliott, attempt to kill, both booked by Constable Roy Tackett; Herman Coleman, speeding, arrested by state troopers, fined $21.50 by Judge Stumbo; Day Hall, breaking and entering, arrested by Deputy Sheriff George Hall, Jr.

Sam Dillon, Ivel Farmer, Dies Of Heart Condition; Funeral Held Wednesday

Sam Dillon, 67, Ivel farmer, succumbed to a heart condition, Monday, at 7:30 p.m. He was a son of the late Sam and Rachel Garrett Dillon. His wife, Kate Harmon Dillon, preceded him in death.

Surviving sons and daughters are Eugene and Bob Dillon, both of Fort Wayne, Ind.; Willard Dillon, Jackson, O.; Mrs. Margaret Mead, and Mrs. Helen Stephens, both of Ivel, Mrs. May Blackburn and Mrs. Roby Clannahan, both of Grundy, Va., and Mrs. Mary Wall, Charleston, S. C.

A sister, Mrs. Sarah Ratliff, of Ivel, also survives.

Funeral services were conducted from the Baptist Fellowship church at Ivel, at 1 p.m., Wednesday, and burial was made in the Davidson cemetery under the direction of Hall Bros. Funeral Home.

SCHOOL OPENING DATE SET

Floyd county rural schools will start July 28 and consolidated schools will open August 25, according to an announcement by County Superintendent Virgil O. Turner today.

GYM DAMAGE REPAIR SEEN

Air-Circulation Lack Causes Floor Swell; Early Study Planned

Virgil O. Turner, superintendent of Floyd schools, said Wednesday that he hopes to arrange a conference here this week with the architect and contractor on the Prestonsburg high school gymnasium to determine what steps are to be taken to halt future damage and repair the damage already caused to the gym playing floor.

The floor has swollen because of dampness and the entire playing surface is threatened. This resulted, he said, from dampness caused by lack of air circulation between the concrete sub-floor and the playing floor itself.

Mr. Turner quoted the architect, Clell H. Hayes, of Ashland, as saying it is possible that louvers, or metal-grilled slots, placed at the outside of the floor will permit sufficient circulation of air to dry out the wood floor and permit its restoration without heavy expense.

A condensation problem at the gym is already believed to have been solved. In the past condensation of moisture on the steel room trusses has caused water to drip onto the floor. Screens have been ordered for the windows and the windows will be kept closed except when the gym is in actual use, thus reducing the possibility of condensation.

The gym floor was built to specifications, and a cork strip around the floor was inserted as a precaution against buckling. In addition to that, a metal strip was placed on top of the 2 x 4-inch timbers between the floor itself and the concrete base.

WELLS NAMES RURAL ROADS

To Be Built In Floyd; Commissioner Explains Necessary Planning Job

Pledging his cooperation toward the construction of rural roads in this county, Rural Highway Commissioner J. B. Wells told a group gathered at the courthouse Monday morning of many of the problems faced in road-building.

"It's not good business," he said "to survey roads unless you are going to build. Nobody ever rode a survey."

Mr. Wells, who said he had been requested to come here, discussed the difficulties faced by counties in procuring rights-of-way and the necessity for procuring such rights, since modern roads cannot be built to follow the twisting curves of old-type roads. Highways should be built, he pointed out, for safety as well as to accommodate today's heavy traffic loads. Engineers spend long hours collecting information by means of surveys and converting their field notes onto paper and into road designs, Wells told the group.

In addition to those rural roads on which surveys already have been made and which have been designated for work, the rural highway commissioner said these Floyd roads will be built:

Dock Man One of Trio Sought by Authorities In Break from Prison

Robert W. Ousley, 21, years old, of Dock, is one of three prisoners sought by military authorities and Pennsylvania state police after they escaped last Wednesday from the Army's disciplinary barracks at New Cumberland, Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania police said the three were serving terms for desertion when they made their break. The other fugitives who escaped with Ousley are Emmett W. Robinson, 21, Columbus, O., and James Perkins, 21 whose mother lives at Galion, Ohio.

JUDGE DENIES TWO MOTIONS

Swinford Rules Out Contempt, Intervening Moves in Water Suits

U. S. District Judge Mac Swinford dismissed Tuesday two motions filed in federal court at Pikeville in connection with the litigation involving the Floyd County Water & Gas System.

First of all, he overruled a motion to hold in contempt of court plaintiffs in the suit filed here two weeks ago seeking to sell the several utilities involved. This motion was filed by the law firm of Hayes, Fahey and Skaggs, representing U. H. Benderman, a principal holder of the bonds sold to finance purchase of the gas and water systems from their private owners. The contention was made in the motion that the action of the Floyd County Consumers Association and its members appearing in the circuit court suit here as plaintiffs was prohibited because it affected the property while it is being operated by a receiver appointed by the U. S. court.

Next, Judge Swinford refused to permit Claude P. Stephens, attorney for the consumers group, to intervene in the suit filed by Benderman in district court against Floyd county and the fiscal court. The petition filed by Stephens in U. S. court this week was similar to the suit entered in circuit court here recently, except that it did not seek to recover from the sellers of the properties to the county.

The federal court, in a decision on the Benderman suit, held several months ago that Floyd county is not responsible for the bonds issued for the purchase of the utilities.

AUTO BEARING 'CORPSE' CAPTURED BY OFFICERS

The name, Russell Whitlock, and the charges marked against him on the county jail record—breach of the peace and disorderly conduct—tell nothing of the excitement and sense of horror he helped to create here, July 4 afternoon.

It all began when a human arm was detected hanging from beneath the trunk lid of an auto here. "A human arm, covered with blood!" was the report that came to county officers, police and state police.

And so began the chase of the car with the corpse in the trunk. Several had seen the limp arm and its smears of red.

SENATE BODY OKEHS PLANNING FOR 3 DAMS

The Senate Appropriations Committee last week approved expenditures which would broaden planning of vital flood control reservoirs in the Levisa Fork watershed of the Big Sandy River.

Senators Thurston B. Morton and John Sherman Cooper and Congressman Carl D. Perkins said the Committee recommended $200,000 to continue advance engineering and design on the big Pound reservoir in Virginia. This is $50,000 more than contained in the House-passed public works appropriations bill, the Kentuckians said.

The Committee included $140,000 for initiating advance engineering and design on Fishtrap Reservoir, the same amount which passed the House, but tacked on $10,000 for planning of the Haysi Reservoir, a third structure in the comprehensive upper-Levisa program, the Senators stated.

Addition of $50,000 to the Pound planning money means that a speed-up is anticipated on this project, they said. The Haysi Reservoir, located in Virginia, has been carried in a "deferred for restudy" classification.

The Senators said the Corps of Engineers has reported Haysi is not economically justifiable by itself, and is scheduled for completion after the Fishtrap project. The moderate amount recommended by the Committee indicates a restudy of the Haysi Reservoir's cost-benefit aspects possibly is in the offing, Morton and Cooper commented.

"The tragic experience of 1957 and the near-tragedy of just this past spring indicates the dire need for these reservoirs if the people of the Levisa Valley are to have any relief from annual floods," the Kentucky Senators said, adding, "It is not only a case of economics, it's a case of humanity."

Congressman Perkins, who had urged even heavier appropriations, expressed gratification on the Senate's action.

Aged Knott-Co. Minister Is Heart Attack Victim

Rev. George Hagans, 74, of Carr Creek was found dead on the porch of his home, Saturday morning. A heart attack was given as the cause of death.

Rev. Hagans, a colored minister of the Regular Baptist church, was well-known in this county and in Knott and Perry counties. He lived alone and it was concluded that he had started to church as he had a brief case and Bible in his hands. He had been dead about three hours. Rev. Hagans was a former moderator of a Baptist association and a minister formerly associated with the Indian Bottom church.

CAR RECOVERY NO SURE BET

The Company Wins Back One Auto Confiscated By Sheriff on Raid

Although a finance company was granted ownership Tuesday of an auto confiscated by Sheriff Hershel Warrens when he found illegal liquor in it, recovery of such automobiles will be no easy matter.

This was indicated by Circuit Judge Edw. P. Hill after he had restored a car purchased by Leonard Marsillet from the Cooley Motor Company here and later confiscated by the sheriff.

In Tuesday's case it was shown that Joe H. Cooley, now deceased, sold the car to Marsillet and there is no evidence that he knew it would be used in the sale of liquor. It also was shown that $700—more than the worth of the car—is due on it and that Mr. Cooley's widow would be required to pay the lien held by the finance company if it was not released.

Judge Hill said each such case will be heard on its merits and that the finance company involved will be required to employ an attorney in each case.

A suit was filed by the Levisa Motors, Inc., June 18, to recover another car confiscated by the sheriff. This case has not yet come to trial.

URBAN RENEWAL HERE O. K.'D IN WASHINGTON

P'burg, 35 Other Cities Get Planning Contracts From State Department

The State Department of Economic Development presented planning contracts Monday to Prestonsburg and 35 other Kentucky cities.

Meanwhile, Prestonsburg continued to await action on its application to the Urban Renewal Administration. The application has been sent to Washington, officials here have been notified.

When the state planning contracts are accepted by local planning commissions, the contracts will bring comprehensive planning services to the communities.

Walter Shouse, Division of Planning directors, said they represent more than 30 per cent of Kentucky's urban population outside of Louisville and Lexington.

Contracts went to Barbourville, Brandenburg, Central City, Corbin, Cumberland, Fulton, Franklin, Florence, Georgetown, Glasgow, Greenville, Harrodsburg,

$16,000 FUND FOR PLANNING SOUGHT HERE

Entire Project May Cost $344,600; Meter Income To Finance City Share

Prestonsburg's plan to eliminate slums and a blighted area received the approval Wednesday of the Urban Renewal Administration, according to telegrams received from Congressman Carl D. Perkins and Senator Cooper and Morton.

The city had asked for $16,171 for planning of the improvement, which will center on the Lake Drive-Court street area south and east of the intersection of the two streets, but it was not learned if the entire amount was granted. Clifford B. Latta, executive secretary of the Prestonsburg Planning Commission, said.

Preliminary estimates on cost of the overall project, two-thirds of which would be borne by Urban Renewal Administration funds, total $344,600. This would pay for planning, administration, acquiring of property, clearing it of buildings which were flooded last year and a subsequent beautification program.

The city's share of the cost, $114,867, would be financed by parking revenue bonds. Existing parking meters now gross about $7,000 a year, it was said, and a well-known bond firm has said the meter returns will be adequate to amortize the bonds and make them readily salable.

The program envisioned here would clear away existing buildings on the east side of South Lake drive from the traffic light to the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company building and along Court street east from the traffic light to the courthouse lot. Property at the rear of the courthouse may be acquired, a street built through it from Lake Drive to Third street, with adequate parking provided there.

One-third of planning funds allowed are repaid by the city but if the project is not completed the city is under no obligation to make any payment.

COURT VOTES TO FIGHT FEE

Names Conley To Act Protesting Lewis Fee After Wellman Refuses

The Floyd fiscal court voted unanimously Monday afternoon to resist payment of a fee of $12,354 allowed by Special Judge Lawrence F. Speckman to Jess K. Lewis, Lexington attorney, for Lewis' services in the case of Edward B. Leslie, et. vs. W. W. Burchett, et., in which judgment was recently rendered to the plaintiffs.

The court in its official order directed County Attorney Robert S. Wellman to appeal from that part of the Speckman judgment allowing any fee to Lewis and "to resist the payment . . . in the Court of Appeals and in any other place and court."

County Attorney Wellman refused, however, to take the action requested by the court. The three magistrates attending the meeting and County Judge Henry Stumbo then voted to employ Commonwealth's Attorney Hollie Conley to represent the county in the action.

Magistrate Grover C. Holbrook was unable to be present at Monday's meeting of the court because of illness, but Judge Stumbo said the magistrate said in a telephone conversation with him that he was for the action being taken toward fighting payment of the $12,000 fee.

The court's order termed the allowance made by Speckman to Lewis as "unreasonable and excessive." It said the court was of the opinion that the plaintiffs in the action has paid Lewis for his services.

County Judge Stumbo announced last week that he would ask the court to oppose payment of the fee. He said the money represented by the fee allowed by Speckman "is needed for the building of roads and helping the needy people of the county."

The home of Jack Turner, of Langley, was looted of approximately $70 during the day while he and his family were at the Floyd County Fish & Game Club's annual fish fry at Dewey Lake, and the tractor of Homer Neeley was damaged on Abbott Creek when hit by a car allegedly driven by Elmer Greer. Greer was jailed here on drunk driving and hit-run charges and later drew a $100 fine.

12TH FISH FRY DRAWS MANY

Jackson, Gilpin Speak At Sportsmen's Event; Ranier, Smith Featured

The 12th annual fish fry of the Floyd County Fish & Game Club last Sunday drew thousands to Dewey Lake State Park in ad-throng that heads for that area.

Outstanding features of the day, which was only slightly marred by afternoon showers, were addresses by Laban Jackson, commissioner of the Department of Conservation, and J. J. Gilpin, of the Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources; a water safety show staged with effective realism; a bait-casting tournament featuring casters of both sexes; a superb exhibition of marksmanship and trick shooting by Bobby Ranier, of Prestonsburg; an equally expert demonstration of the art of bait and fly-casting by Russ Smith; an archery exhibition and contest; a field trial and bench show by the Floyd County Coon Hunters Association, and the awarding of an array of valuable prizes.

The crowd bought, and presumably ate, a quarter-ton of fish. Bait-casting tournament winners were:

A canoe, given in honor of Girl Scout Anna Laura Goble, of Emma, who lost her life in the school bus tragedy, Feb. 28, was presented to Camp Chatterawha, Wednesday of last week. Funds for the canoe were contributed by the Girl Scouts of Sandy Valley County.

The canoe presentation was made by Girl Scout Faye Farley, of Pikeville, and was accepted by Mrs. R. V. May, Scout leader here.

The Goble child was one of the first Scouts to register for the present encampment at Camp Chatterawha.

Chandler Names Group To Study Free Choice for Medical Service

Governor Chandler this week appointed a commission to consider the question of free choice of physicians by those taking part in medical-service plans.

Freedom of choice of doctors was an issue raised in the General Assembly at its last session by legislators from Floyd and Pike, two of the state's big coal-producing counties.

The United Mine Workers vigorously fought a bill in the 1958 legislature that would have prohibited administrators of such plans from designating eligible physicians.

The union said adoption of the bill would have wiped out the U. M. W.'s hospital program in Kentucky. It was passed in the Senate, but died in the House Rules Committee.

Chandler's commission was appointed at the request of the House of Representatives to consider what the public policy of the Commonwealth should be on the question.

It will report its findings not later than November 15, 1959, for consideration by the 1960 Legislature.

Chandler appointed Dr. Clyde C. Sparks, Ashland; Sam Caddy, Lexington, president of U.M.W. district 30; Wade Mountz, Louisville; Sam Ezelle, executive secretary of the Kentucky State Federation of Labor; William Curry, Lexington; Owen C. Hammonds, Louisville; John W. Koon, Louisville; William J. Drummy, Lexington; Monsignor C. A. Towell, Covington; Dr. Vincent Barr, Frankfort, and Dr. E. H. Bouton, Frankfort.

Ex-officio members are the commissioners of health and insurance and the chairman of the State Tuberculosis Hospital Commission.

Dr. Carter To Speak From Baptist Pulpit

Dr. John M. Carter, president of Campbellsville College, will be the guest-speaker at the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church on Sunday, July 13.

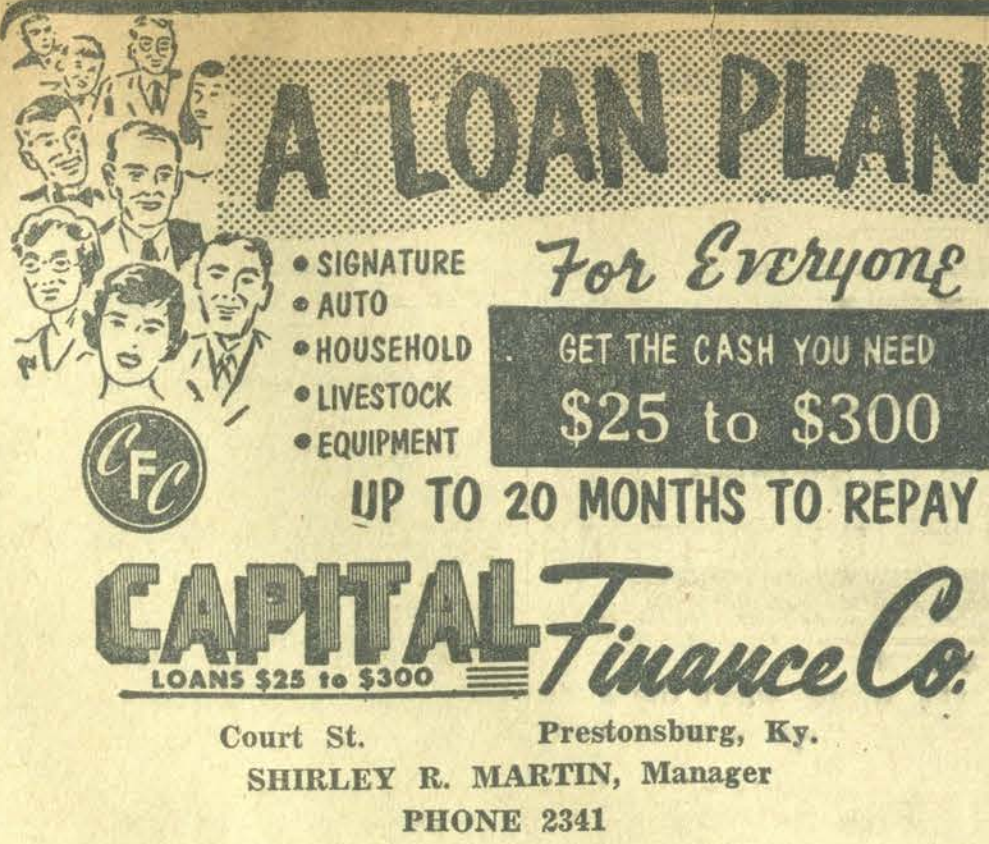

Dr. Carter, who conducted last fall's revival at the local church, was one of the outstanding Kentuckians who last year was nominated for the title of Kentuckian-of-the-year. The public is invited to hear him.

REVEALS KENTUCKY

U. S. Highway 25, locally called the Eastern Dixie Highway, reveals a typical cross-section of Kentucky. It crosses the low wooded hills of the Ohio River, passes rolling orchard land and prosperous country estates with waving bluegrass meadows, and between the great gorge cut by the Kentucky River and the rugged foothills of the Appalachians, and follows Daniel Boone's Wilderness Road.

Paducah was incorporated as a village in 1830 and as a city in 1856.

This vile scheme of mine has been to get in water where some fisherman is casting, get his plug and take off.

And now I learn that this stunt has been performed up in Massachusetts, although it was done without malice aforethought. The story, as told in the daily newspapers July 3, is this:

Fisherman George Vasquez, of Waltham cast his line far and deep, trolled it slowly in and suddenly had a strike.

It was a big one without a doubt, thought Vasquez, who had switched to heavier tackle only minutes before.

His line jerked, the reel hummed and Vasquez set his heels firmly to avoid an impromptu dip in the ocean. It was the strongest fish the 53-year-old angler had ever hooked.

He played it expertly, giving and taking at just the right moments. Slowly, but surely the quarry was pulled toward shore, despite its powerful and almost frantic jerks on the line.

Vasquez wasn't to be denied.

The net was ready, the angler could almost smell frying fish, when suddenly the line took an unexpected leap. Vasquez nearly fainted.

There stood a skin diver, fishing hook firmly planted in the rear of his bathing trunks. He whipped off his oxygen mask, glared at Vasquez and said:

"Really old man, you fishermen should be more careful."

And with that he jumped back into the ocean and disappeared.

IT'S A JOKE, SON

For a minute the other morning I thought my old friend, "Pat" Patrick, had flipped. He called me to inquire if my son had a power mower and did mowing for people.

I finally managed to gasp, "No—not my son," and explained to him that somebody had not only been pulling his leg but had practically yanked it off. I've got the power mower, all right, but it may require threat of court martial to get it used on my own lawn.

CONVINCED

Arbor Jones isn't convinced that I need a duster, false mustache and goggles for a drive in the son's convertible when caught with its top down, but after dashing around in one of these gay affairs, barehead, he's willing to concede that maybe fellows like me, who for obvious reasons never take their hair down, should wear a cap.

Mrs. Dolly Clark, 74, Of Garrett, Succumbs To Heart Condition

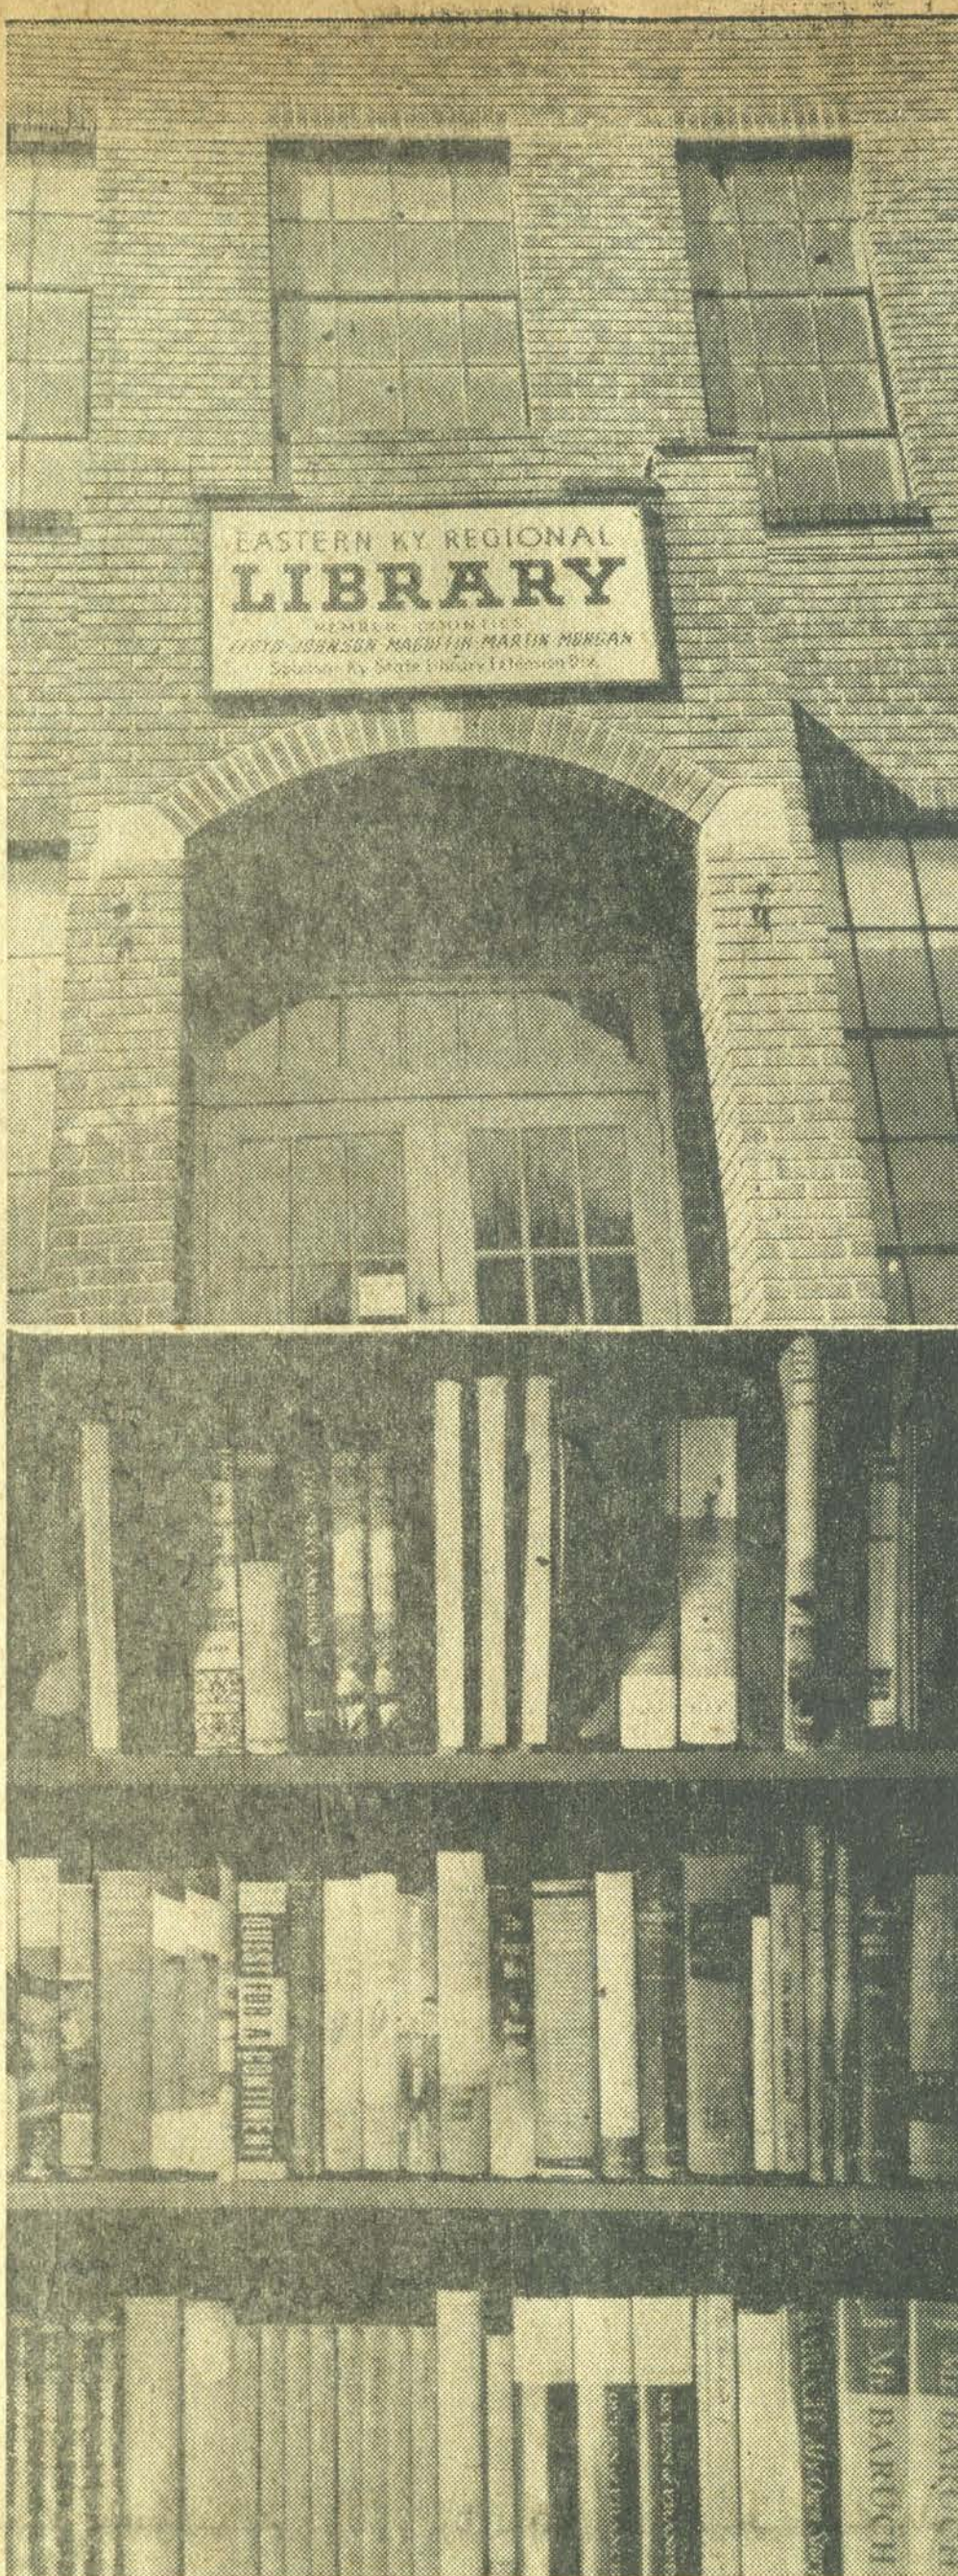

Mrs. Dolly Clark, 74, of Garrett, died Sunday at home at 12:30 p.m. of a heart condition. She was a daughter of the late William Tussey and Louann Watkins Tussey and the widow of Frank Clark.

Funeral rites were conducted today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. at the Baptist Bottom church at Garrett and burial was made in the church cemetery under the direction of Hall Bros. Funeral Home.

OLDEST BUILDING

Giddings Hall is the oldest building on the campus of Georgetown College. It was erected in 1839 as a monument to Dr. Rockwood Giddings, a former president of the college. The hall was designed by Dr. Giddings and erected entirely by student and faculty labor.

The picture of the crowded shelves is indicative of the huge amount of reading matter available to the schools and the general public.

Cooper added that pending this study, which would be ready for the next session of Congress, the bureau should be empowered to close down any mine—big or small—where disaster appears imminent.

The senator said he has prepared an amendment to the bill to provide for this last point. It has not been submitted to the Senate Labor and Public Works Committee, he said, but has been discussed by the committee.

The United Mine Workers Journal declared Thursday that Cooper blocked committee action on the pending bill last week.

Cooper denied this. He said Thursday that the bill was not up for vote at that time and that he merely told the committee the subject deserved fuller discussion. The committee unanimously agreed this should be done, Cooper said.

Further discussion was held by the committee Wednesday and at the suggestion of Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon, still another session is scheduled next Wednesday. Bureau of Mines Director Marling J. Ankeney has been asked to appear at that time.

The U.M.W. and some big-mine owners favor the bill. Cooper noted Friday the present law has stood unchanged since 1952. The new bill was proposed on February 17, and two days of subcommittee hearings were held in March.

The full committee, of which Cooper is a member, did not have the measure before it until about two weeks ago. Cooper said the subcommittee chairman, Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, agreed with other full committee members to further discussion on it.

Cooper repeated he was concerned about the safety of miners. As evidence of this concern, he said he made his proposal that any mine be subject to closing if danger is imminent.

Referring to full consideration of the subject, he said he felt he owed it to the people he represents to have all the facts and possibilities before him.

"If we can't have this kind of consideration on this type of bill, we might just as well go home," he said.

"LITTLE GIANT" IS 10. I see by my calendar that just ten years ago, Bell scientists successfully developed a tiny electronic marvel that was destined to revolutionize communications. Called the transistor, this little substitute for the common vacuum tube has, indeed, played an important role in recent telephone and other electronic developments. Able to amplify signals a hundred thousand times, the transistor is one of the items that have helped Southern Bell bring more and better telephone service to you and your neighbors. A more dramatic use of transistors has been in America's space satellites where this very moment they are relaying to Earth the space-data sought by scientists. Who knows? Some day when you take that vacation trip to the Moon the transistor will be right there with you!

Thanks, Dr. Gabrielson!

It is a pity that official Washington, including the President, the Congress and high-ranking officers of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers were not in the audience when Dr. Ira N. Gabrielson, president of the Wildlife Management Institute, Washington, D. C., spoke before the League of Kentucky Sportsmen recently.

For this man Gabrielson was iconoclastic enough by the old standards adopted and nursed along by those who plan and authorize waterway improvements to say something new. The Times regrets it does not have the full text of his address at hand, but one short excerpt will suffice to show his line of thought. Said he:

"Do not build any more lakes in Western Kentucky; build them where they are needed."

Then, we are told, he added that the lake-building should be done in Eastern Kentucky.

"I hope I have made somebody mad. Perhaps it will make you think," Gabrielson said in conclusion.

The respected president of the Wildlife Management Institute made that statement after reminding his hearers that "there is no partisanship in conservation." His boldness in opposing more dams for Western Kentucky, where flood is not a constant threat, where the world's largest man-made lake already is located and where a second great reservoir is now in process of construction, was in keeping with that high ideal.

There surely were included in Dr. Gabrielson's thinking knowledge of the chilling flood disasters that have hit Eastern Kentucky; the dismaying loss of soil to erosion; the lack of all-season water supply and the total absence of water transportation at any time. His were thoughts that, for some mysterious reason, have with dismaying consistency evaded the craniums of the men who could have done something about the situation long ago but instead turned national resources to other parts of Kentucky or other parts of the country where the need is trivial as compared with that of Eastern Kentucky.

It is true that a start has been made toward flood control by the construction of dams in this section. Dewey Lake was created largely through the efforts of one man, Floyd county's Ex-Congressman A. J. May, and it has proved its worth to communities along the Big Sandy river below it. And funds for early planning of Fishtrap, Pound and Haysi reservoirs have been voted. For this much we are duly grateful, we who have so long played the beggar's role.

But when will these upriver barriers be built across the Big Sandy and those tributaries which feed and build the river so often into a devastating torrent? They apparently are several years away, at best. They could be decades away, unless those who should know better stop scattering the nation's largesse where it is not needed.

Tidbits Of Kentucky Folklore

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.

Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

Even the best of weather prophets will have to admit that the winter of 1957-58 was a queer one. There have been a few colder ones, many winters have brought much more rain, and there have been seasons with much more snow; but the combination of days on end that remained damp and cold have stumped all but the stoutest-hearted weather men of Podunk and similar places. Of course, if the local weather man cannot or will not remember typical winters, he can always fall back on what Grandpap said about weather when he was a boy. Poor old Grandpap must have been called on many times in this wiper, for we smart observers who put down our observations including, grudgingly, the Weather Bureau operators who themselves can find nothing like it in our experiences and have to fall back on previous observations by accurate recorders of the weather.

And that always brings up a question that is sure to be asked: "What caused this unusual weather?" Such a question at Fidelity would have been downright wicked; the most natural answer would have been, "It's just natural." Of course, that is right, for everything that happens is from nature; therefore, it is natural. But persistent questioners want some sort of logical or satisfactory answer. They normally ask again, trying to find some solution to the puzzle. Weather observers down our way were not very kind to those who questioned the explanations given. A few bad boys would make their own records and hold them in reserve, not to dispute the weather sayings of the graybeards to their faces but to tell the other boys. This sort of scientific observation, however, seemed to be futile, for nearly everybody would continue to quote Grandpap or the other all-knowing weather prophet.

Here are some solutions that I have heard offered. I cannot vouch for the truth of them, but some people I have known believed them. At Fidelity everybody and his friends were Democrats, rock-ribbed and unvarying. Often strange weather was attributed to the Republicans. That was hardly fair to the opposite party, however, for the Republicans were in power, nationally, almost all the time. There was a deep snow sometimes in Democratic time, as in 1886, with Cleveland in the White House, when the snow to end all snows came. We were told by aging Confederate veterans that bombing caused heavy rains in Civil War days, and nearly everybody believed it. I have even seen that one in books. Some years ago I heard a drought of sorts attributed to the presence of large numbers of radios in my immediate section. Those same radios must have lost their rabbit foot, for, with five times as many in the same area, the great flood of 1957 came. Now it seems to be Sputniks and our own grapefruit-sized moons that are causing trouble. What can we expect when moons big enough to hold human passengers take off for the moon proper? We may have to take refuge on the highest mountains or start digging for water or pile up enough coal to warm things up. I am not an authority on the effect of radios, Sputniks, and such like on weather and cannot say whether we should look for dry or wet or hot or cold weather. Anyway, there are those who do know, judging by their talk; if you want to know, ask them.

TO THE EDITOR

APPRECIATES EDITORIAL
Your very kind editorial concerning the State Police action in Marion County is greatly appreciated by both the Department of Public Safety and myself. It is indeed gratifying to know of your support of our program, and I assure you that when all the facts in this case are known, our action will certainly be justified.
Sincerely yours,
Don S. Sturgill, Commissioner

YOU ARE GUILTY
(An Editorial in The Manchester Enterprise)

Clay County is fast becoming a lawless, uncivilized, unbecoming and uncontrollable county wherein righteous and indignant people are looked upon by people of other places as hoodlums, reprobates, culprits, outlaws, maniacs, and madmen.

It seems rather apparent that the reputation is appropriate by the action of Clay Countians last week and every Clay Countian can be expected to be treated as such. Yet, when confronted with your actions you scream, cry and quarrel that you are being misrepresented, that you are law-abiding citizens, and that there are no better people in the world. If so why do you tolerate so much adulterated action?

Too often people in high places allow people to act as they choose for fear of losing votes in the next election. They "pass the buck" and expect the job to be done. They refuse to take legally constituted action and are afraid to show you, their fellow citizen, that they are not as corrupt as they probably were when you elected them. But these same officials scream and plead to be let alone by the newspaper.

The average citizen stands by and watches his neighbor commit crimes without the slightest alarm and often praises his action. He also refuses to serve on juries, to be a witness in court, and to stand up for what he knows and feels is right. However, when he is told he is not a good citizen he cries his character has been insulted.

Other citizens cry that there are only a "few bad people in our county." A person who does not legally combat what he knows and feels to be wrong cannot be anything but bad himself. So those who promote or passively watch such corruption are as bad as those who commit the wrong.

Clay County can never be anything better than what it is considered to be, or what it is now, without the cooperation of each law-abiding individual in a movement to decrease all the unlawful action that has been going on in their law enforcing and law making officials. This includes every official located on Court House Hill in Manchester, in the legislature in Frankfort, and the Congress in Washington. Also it includes your friends and neighbors.

The most important person in doing away with the corruption in Clay County is YOU. Don't let someone else scare you by their money, reputation or threats. Remember you may be the person that gets the next dose of mistreatment. Don't talk, ACT.

HEALTH NOTES

By Floyd County Health Department

"Communities should make a continuous war against the common house fly," states Earl Compton, Sanitarian of the Floyd County Health Department. "Environmental sanitation is the key to fly control," he said.

Entomologists agree that the house fly is an insect that has no useful function. Yet every day it plays a major role in the transmission of disease, resulting in loss of man hours and causing economic losses to livestock and dairy industries.

But, ironically, the fly problem is created by man-made filth or by the animals that man keeps. Many communities are now engaged in clean-up campaigns but unless sanitation is fostered year-round, the fly will continue to breed and carry diseases such as diarrhea, typhoid and dysentery.

To combat the enemy effectively, breeding places must be eliminated. Garbage should be wrapped and placed in tightly-covered containers; garbage should be collected twice weekly in residential areas and daily in business districts.

Animal pens are ideal fly-breeding spots. Lots should be cleaned daily and manure disposed of regularly. Open privies also produce flies and supply disease germs which flies may carry to your food. Septic tanks and kitchen sink drains discharging on the ground are the fly's friend. And so are grass and leaves left piled high.

Possibly many have heeded the housewife's pleas to put up their screens to keep flies away. Spraying kills flies, too. But screening and spraying will not complete the task. The Floyd County Health Department, has information about proper garbage and refuse disposal, plans for construction of a sanitary pit privy, and spraying techniques. Fly control is a continuous task of sanitation and the responsibility of you and your community.

ADVANCING EDUCATION IN KENTUCKY

By ROBERT R. MARTIN
Superintendent of Public Instruction

The other day I read a statement by a Maryland educator to the effect that high school graduation is no longer the climax of a youngster's school life but that the "casual delivery" of a simple form letter from a college admissions office sometime in May is the more significant event.

The statement then goes into some detail about the concern of parents for their children's chances of college admittance. Certainly this is a situation that justifies parental anxiety. Just how critical is the college "getting-in" problem? In some parts of the country, the door has already closed—at least to the extent that applications must be in a long time before entrance is desired. In many other colleges throughout the nation, the door is not closed but neither is it so wide open as in days past. In Kentucky, this situation has not reached the critical stage except in matters of housing on some campuses; and our state schools as well as many of our private schools have been expanding their housing facilities as rapidly as conditions will allow.

What is happening that causes anxiety over college entrance is the same thing that has been happening in the public schools for the last several years—the vast increases in enrollments that have created such grave pressures on our public school systems across this nation have begun to exert similar pressures now on our institutions of higher learning. The problems that increased enrollments have brought with them to the colleges—shortages of instructors, overcrowding, changes in standard—all of these things, are merely repetitions of the same patterns that have plagued the elementary and secondary schools.

In 1900 there were not quite 200,000 persons attending colleges in the United States. Today, the number is almost 3.5 million and by 1965—just seven years from now, it is expected to reach just under 5 million.

Obviously then, getting into the college of one's "choice" is a difficult proposition at best. But of course, a great deal depends upon the college that one does choose. Certain colleges have a great many more applications than they can accommodate. Miss Terry Ferrer, Education Editor of THE NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE did a survey which showed that there was 3,690 application at Harvard for 1,600 places; 3,900 applications to Yale for 1,104 places, and 2,124 applications to Smith College for only 587 openings. But her survey—addressed to 200 colleges—also brought to light the fact that 139 of those polled advised that they did have vacancies. An important consideration seems to be dependent upon the college one "chooses."

What should you do about a choice? Mr. Fred M. Hechinger, publisher of the Bridgeport, Connecticut SUNDAY HERALD, writing in a public affairs pamphlet entitled, WORRYING ABOUT

COLLEGE, advises the following formula: first, decide what type of college you want to attend—co-educational, large or small, specialized, junior or senior, public or private. Get advice on this from your parents and your guidance counselor at school if you have one, or from school administrators. Second, select three colleges that meet your needs and make applications to them—says Mr. Hechinger, "Under no circumstances should you apply to more than three . . . (nor) more than once to the same category of school." In other words, three applications to Ivy League schools is really only the equivalent of one application. Third, don't overlook the state schools in your own state; these will not only be more convenient for you but by being a resident you can go more economically and stand a better chance of getting in.

Kentucky students can still get in our colleges without major difficulty provided of course that they meet the entrance requirements. In 1957, a total of 37,121 students were enrolled in Kentucky colleges of all types. This is a 4.4 per cent increase over 1956 but many of our colleges have constructed, or are presently constructing, new dormitories to take care of increases. If you want to attend college in Kentucky, you will not have major obstacles to overcome. If education is to continue its advance in this State, we want our colleges full—but full of good students.

REWORKING YOUR STRAWBERRY FIELDS

Good after-harvest care of strawberry fields can give you another productive harvest of berries with little expense. This practice is far less expensive than setting a new field every year and if properly cared for can be equal to first year fields in yield. The points of procedure are generally as follows:—

1. Immediately after harvest mow the field close but do not injure the strawberry crowns.
2. If the refuse is too heavy to work into the soil, it should be raked off.
3. Fertilize the row area with about 500 pounds of complete fertilizer such as an 10-10-10 or 12-12-12.
4. Using a rastus, double shovel, small turning plow or tractor cultivators work out the balk. Leave rows about 20 inches wide.
5. If plant bed was heavy it may be thinned slightly by running a section harrow or light cultivator over the row.
6. When you have your field clean you want to use Crag Herbicide the remainder of the season for economical weed control.
7. Should you have a heavy infestation of leaf spot, spray or sprinkle the row area with a 4-4-50 blue-stone-lime mixture.

Capitol Notebook

An American Express travel survey and forecast reports Kentucky to be among the states which have increased budgets the most for promotion of tourism. The survey notes that the Kentucky increase was from 40 to 75 thousand dollars. Kentucky ranked 10th among the states in the amount of income for tourism in 1957, the survey says. It reports the Commonwealth's tourist take at 500 million dollars.

CHILD WELFARE

PERSONNEL at Kentucky Village, Fayette county, and the Kentucky Children's Home, near Louisville, have been praised by the Advisory Committee on Child Welfare.

Said the committee: "These two institutions are in excellent condition, well run, and are serving the purposes intended for them. Many improvements have been made."

Other aspects of Kentucky's child welfare program were praised in the committee's report to Gov. A. B. Chandler. They included the homemaker, maternity care and adoption programs.

BOY'S GOVERNMENT

MOST HIGH STATE officials in the Capitol were visited recently by the counterparts elected by Blue Grass Boys State, a mock government sponsored by the American Legion. Gov. A. B. Chandler surrendered the Chief Executive's chair for a while to the Boy Gov. George Robinson of Lexington.

NEW POLICY

THE MAJORITY of patients to be discharged from the state's mental hospitals as ineligible will be eligible for public assistance payments, says Dr. H. L. McPheeters. The commissioner of mental health made the statement as he announced that only persons who actually are mentally ill will be admitted and kept in the institutions.

HAIL TO C. A. A.

GOVERNOR Chandler has proclaimed June 23-29 Civil Aeronautics Week in Kentucky in observance of the 20th anniversary of the civil Aeronautics Administration. June 23 was proclaimed Civil Aviation Day. Said Chandler: "We are proud of our local C. A. A. installations and the contribution they are making to the safety of our airways."

MONEY FOR LIBRARIES

THE STATE Library Extension Division reports that Kentucky has received $9,817 as its share of federal library services money which was not accepted by two states during 1957-58. Indiana and Wyoming certified that they would not request their allotments from the five million dollar appropriation for fiscal 1958. These allotments, totaling $176,677, became available for re-allotment to other states. The amount to each qualifying state is granted basically in proportion to its rural population.

POTENTIAL INDUSTRIAL WORKERS

"IT IS estimated that Kentucky has a potential reserve of about 180,000 men and women, widely distributed throughout the state, that could be tapped for industrial expansion. These are mainly men in low-paying jobs, principally farming, and women for whom employment opportunities currently do not exist."—Booklet on chemical industry opportunities in Kentucky published by the State Department of Economic Development.

Frankfort, July—Kentucky has three new third-class cities as a result of legislation which became effective this summer—Erlanger, Florence and Glasgow. The State has two new fourth-class towns—Carlisle and LaGrange—and four new fifth class cities—West Point, Mount Olivet, Lynn View and Hardinsburg.

LAND FOR PARK

FIVE ACRES, part of the Central State Hospital site near Louisville, will be donated by the Commonwealth to Jefferson County for development of a park. The State also will improve an access road to the proposed park.

ODD REQUEST DEPARTMENT

THE KENTUCKY Library Extension Division has received these requests: "We are studying milk. I would like for you to send me some information and pictures of milk."

"Please send me any material you have on metal diseases."
"This summer I plan to learn badminton. Please send me a book."

BIG DOINGS

THE FOURTH of July has always had double significance for Bardstons—the birthday of Stephens Collins Foster as well as Independence Day. This year the day will have a triple meaning. Ground-breaking ceremonies at "My Old Kentucky Home" will mark start of construction of an amphitheater. Its stage will be the setting of a new outdoor drama about Foster and his music. The play by Paul Green will open next summer. Attending the July 4 ceremonies will be many high State officials, Green and his wife, members of the Foster family and Artist Haddon Sundbolm, Chicago, who painted the first picture of the home.

A DAY IN JERUSALEM

By IRA McMILLEN, JR.

(The following, excerpted from a letter written June 24 from Jerusalem by the pastor of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church here while on a tour of the Holy Land, tells of the places visited as he and others of his party "walked where Jesus walked"—Editor.)

This has been a very good day for our group. The words, "I Walked Today Where Jesus Walked," took on new meaning for me today as we visited the traditional site of the tomb of Lazarus and the home of Mary and Martha at Bethany. There is a beautiful church built over the place believed to be their home. We plan to go back this week and walk the old road across the Mount of Olives that Jesus used those last three days before coming to Jerusalem for the last time. Following Bethany we went to the place believed to have been Bethphage where the disciples got the colt which Jesus rode into Jerusalem for His triumphal entry. During Holy Week the procession begins at this point and proceeds along the Mount of Olives and on into Jerusalem.

From here I took a panoramic view of the city. From here we could see a part of the old city wall belonging to the time of Christ. Next we went to the Garden of Gethsemane, a portion of which contains old olive trees and beautiful flowers maintained by Franciscan monks. There is a very elaborate church built here over the rock where Jesus is supposed to have prayed. We later went into the church which is called the Church of the Virgin where Mary was supposed to have been buried until the time of the dogma of her bodily assumption decreed by the Roman Church in 1950.

Later we visited the Gihon Spring which was the source of water for David's city when he was king. This was a part of the ancient Jebusite city taken by David. A rock-cut tunnel came down from inside the city to the pool, making it possible for the women (always women and children, even today) to carry water without exposing themselves to the enemy. It is believed that Joab, David's general, and his men detected this tunnel and gained entrance into the city and opened the gates for their army to move in and take over. Later in Hezekiah's time another tunnel was cut connecting with this one and joining with the pool of Siloam of New Testament times. It was here that Jesus told the blind man to go and wash and he would see. Dr. Morton is going to arrange for us to walk through this tunnel. It is eighteen feet long and about one hundred feet underground in places. We will have to wade through water in places up to our knees but it will be an experience to remember. Today there were boys playing in the Pool of Siloam who quickly got their clothes on when they saw us coming. Boys are about the same everywhere. Near here we could look along the Valley of Hinnon, or the place of Gehenna or everlasting burning from which hell of fire is taken. I got a picture of a pomegranate tree with fruit on it.

In the afternoon we went to the Church of Saint Ann, said to be built on the site of the home of the parents of Mary, the mother of Jesus. Near here was the Pool of Bethesda where the lame man (John 5) was healed. This is the authentic spot. The Saint Ann Church is built on the foundation of the fortress of Antonia, built by Herod the Great. The church is built on some of the original foundations of the fortress and over one of the guard cells. Here underground we see also some of the large stones of the Roman highway or pavement built by Herod the Great. These stones were a part of the street during the time of Christ and were no doubt walked on by the Lord Himself. I had a very strange closeness to the Lord here. I bought some slides of this, since I could not get a shot myself. This is one of the nearest places we can find today where Christ carried His cross. Still in use under this church are two large cisterns built by Herod the Great in which to catch waters of the winter rains.

We then visited the most important Moslem Mosque in the world—the Dome of the Rock—so named because it was built over the rock where it is believed Abraham offered Isaac and later the place of sacrifice in Solomon's time. From there we walked along King David's Street which is very narrow and actually is a series of long steps lined with quaint, old shops on both sides. Some sold grain, fruit, repaired tin ware, shoes, vegetables, toys, etc. As we walked up the steps of the street we had to stop occasionally to let a man by driving a donkey with a heavy load. One time we were almost run into by a boy rolling a hoop and not watching where he was going. When we arrived at the top and the end of the street we saw parts of the old city wall but were not allowed to take pictures, as this is considered a defense area today. From here we took our taxis and went the only remaining site of the Temple enclosure of Herod's time. Some of the large stones of the original wall still remain.

Close by we saw the old Wailing Wall of the Jews. Here prior to the Jewish-Arab conflict in 1946 the Jews came to this wall but were not allowed to enter the sacred temple enclosure, so they came to this wall and wailed for the lost glory of Zion. The devout Jews would come here and place prayers rolled up on little bits of paper in the crevices between the large stones. There are no Jews in this side of Jerusalem any longer, so the wall is only a tourist attraction today. There were many children who followed us saying, "Hello—bakshis" (which means money or a gift). One cannot afford to give to one in a crowd or he would have the entire group swarming on him. Many of the children have bright eyes and sweet smiles but they are from such poverty-stricken families, they really do not have much of a chance in life. Our hearts ache for them because of their physical poverty and also their spiritual poverty.

In this city over which our Lord wept and died—a city of much religion and rich tradition—the majority will die and be eternally lost without a Saviour. This indeed was a busy day in Jerusalem, a most profitable one for me. Tomorrow we go to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the Palestine Museum and other points of interest to our group. I am looking forward to going up on the Mount of Olives for some quiet meditation and reflection.

HATFIELDS AND MCCOYS

From Miscellany, Talk of the Town, by Catherine Bliss Enslow, in the Huntington Advertiser, June 10, we excerpt the following bit of interest:

The "Singin' Gatherin'" in Ashland, Ky., Sunday (June 8, 1958) presented by the Traipsin' Woman, Jean Thomas, brought people to the old McCuffey school from far and near to hear the mountain folks, both old and young, entertain with their music and singin'.

Now that the "gatherin'" is over I have been thinking about some of the interesting people I met, old friends who were there and some interesting facts I learned about many of the people.

There were numerous Hatfields and McCoy's present. One who had never attended the festival before seemed to have a wonderful time. She was Lula M. Curry of Delbarton, (W. Va.) who is "kin" to both the Hatfields and the McCoy's. She is a niece of Lou Vicer Hatfield, the wife of Devil Anse, and a granddaughter of Johnson McCoy who was seven feet tall, weighed 300 pounds and wore number 13 shoes which had to be made for him especially.

Several generations of this family were there also. Mrs. Curry's daughter, Mrs. Polly Bannister, her granddaughter, Mrs. Sally Lou Marcus and grandson, Wallace Oliver Bannister; great grandchildren, Lackawanna Bannister and Delta Jill Bannister all of Delbarton. Mrs. Curry was supervisor of the school lunch program in Mingo county (W. Va.) for 15 years and is now retired.

SCHOOLS 100 YEARS AGO

One hundred years ago Commissioner John M. Burns made an annual report to the Superintendent of Public Instruction, Frankfort, and noted only 2,830 pupils attending Floyd county schools. There were 63 schools in the county in 1858, the largest having an enrollment of 78 children.

All schools had terms of three months except five which continued an additional month. Every school had four months school had supplemented the state or county provisions from local funds.

The state granted Floyd county $3,522.60 the preceding year for school use, according to the Burns report. He shows that insignificant sums were remaining in the hands of trustees or held by himself.

Attendance was very low, Burns noted. Many of the school dropped to an attendance of one pupil at times, and many had less than ten pupils. One school with an enrollment of 21 pupils had days with no pupils in attendance. School No. 55 had an enrollment of 41 pupils but the highest number attending was 15, the lowest one and the average was six. The cost of educating those children was $3.28, "counting the highest number of children." The state had given School No. 55 the sum of $40.80 of which $3.60 remained at the time

FLOOD ALARM SYSTEM GOOD

Kresge Appraises System After Tour of Big Sandy; Floyd Station at Martin

Eastern Kentucky's flood warning system is performing effectively and would be of great value in another emergency, according to Ralph Kresge, U. S. Weather Bureau area hydrologic engineer.

The engineer's report was made to Commissioner of Economic Development George W. Habley, Jr., at Frankfort, last week, on the completion of a three-week tour of the river and rain gauge reporting stations which make up the principal part of the information and warning system. Floyd county's unit of the warning system is at Martin.

The system was established, following the disastrous 1957 Eastern Kentucky flood, by the U.S. Weather Bureau at the request and with the help of the Eastern Kentucky Regional Planning Commission of which B. F. Reed, of Drift, is chairman. Kresge described the system as being "of national significance to the U. S. Weather Bureau since it is the only project of its kind for gathering information and coordinating forecasts on a regional basis."

Kresge added that information gathered on his tour would be used to expand the system in Eastern Kentucky, and that the entire project would be used as a pilot operation on which to base plans for similar systems in other areas.

In a meeting with Department of Economic Development planners at Frankfort, Kresge outlined the system as consisting of a region-wide organization of voluntary observers who keep daily watch on rain gauges and river gauges, strategically located throughout the region, and who make routine reports at regular intervals of gauge readings to Weather Bureau offices.

This reporting system, Kresge said, is working in excellent fashion to (1) provide a continual flow of routine information to allow the best early warning for flood potential; (2) allow for the automatic functioning of the reports on the immediate situation when they are most needed for flood crest forecasting in an emergency and (3) provide a growing wealth of observed data on which to base continued improvement of forecasting.

"The people in Eastern Kentucky have been outstanding in their cooperation, and the work of the Eastern Kentucky Regional Planning Commission has been most effective in helping us obtain local co-operation and in working out local details," Kresge said. He pointed out that considerable advantage is resulting in the area through an increasing confidence in a formal gauging and forecast system to eliminate the constant fear of flash floods without warning.

Second place winner at Martin was Miss Marsha Babb and third place winner at Prestonsburg was Miss Kathy Waddle, of Cliff. The Martin event was classed as a bathing beauty contest.

Wool Payment Program Explained By ASC Here; Payments Are Scheduled

Shorn wool payments will amount to 15.5 per cent of dollar returns each producer received from sale of shorn wool during 1957 marketing year, it was noted at the local ASC office this week. This will result in incentive payment to producers of $15.50 for every $100 received from sale of shorn wool. Payment rate on sales of unshorn lambs to compensate for wool on them will be 33 per cent of live animals sold. This payment is designed to discourage shearing of lambs before marketing. Because average mohair price of 88.6c per lb. received by producers was above mohair support price of 70c per lb., no payments will be made on mohair sold during 1957 marketing year.

County Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation (ASC) offices throughout the state will begin making payments soon after July 1. Applications for payment were filed with these offices by April 30, 1958. Payments will be made only on shorn wool & lambs marketed between April 1, 1957 and March 31, 1958. Reductions of 1c per lb. from shorn wool payments and 5c per 100 lb. of liveweight from lamb payments will be made for advertising, promotion, and related market development activities on wool and lamb.

Samuel Wilbur Hager, onetime State Treasurer and State Auditor, and Democratic nominee for Governor in 1907, was a native of Salyersville, the son of William James Hager. Although he was the heir of the J. C. W. Beckham administration and was Beckham's chosen nominee, Hager was defeated for Governor by the Republican nominee, Augustus E. Willson.

The First National Bank was but three years old when Hager was speaking at Prestonsburg, fifty-one years ago. Since then it has grown in assets and service to become an integral part of the economic fabric of our section.

Sheriff's deputies and state police failed to uncover clues as to the identity of those who entered the Turner home. Absence of fingerprints indicated that the burglars were experienced and used gloves. The house was thoroughly ransacked.

In Prestonsburg, behind Town center Deputy Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis interrupted Independence Day liquor sales when he arrested Edward Gayheart, cabdriver, and confiscated 29 half-pints of whiskey and gin and the 1950 model Nash auto in which the intoxicants were cached.

There's an ironic twist to the travels of the Prestonsburg lawyer who is opposed by the present state administration. It was estimated that Judge Combs will pay the Commonwealth approximately $600 in state gasoline and oil taxes before the election.

"And a portion of that money," he ruefully adds, "will go into the campaign against me."
He recently suggested that state employees, assessed by administration leaders for campaign expenses, might get an accounting of their contributions if a suit were filed.

COAL PRODUCTION FORECAST MADE BY COAL ASSOCIATION

(Special to The Times)
WASHINGTON, June 26—Bituminous coal production in the United States is expected to total 463 million tons in the 12 months starting July 1, the National Coal Association estimated today. The forecast represented an increase of 30 million tons from the 12 months now ending.

The prediction was based on an expected gradual upturn in industrial production closely tied to the general level of industrial activity and has been hurt by the current recession.

For calendar 1958, NCA's Committee on Coal Economics and Statistics predicted production of 420 million tons, contrasted with 490 million tons last year. The committee, revising an earlier prediction of 443 million tons for this year, said consumers have continued to lower their stockpiles, mainly because of the recession.

In the revised estimate for 1958, electric utilities are still the biggest users of coal, but their consumption was expected to decline slightly, for the first time since 1949, to 155 million tons. They used 157.4 million tons in 1957. The decline was blamed on extraordinary water supplies for hydroelectric power, increased availability of natural gas and heavy fuel oil, and use of more efficient coal burning equipment.

The committee anticipated that the recent upturn in steel production would continue, with an estimated 85 million tons of coal used to produce coke this year, and another seven million tons consumed by steel and rolling mills. The cement industry is expected to use eight million tons, other industrial users, 80 million tons, railroads, four million tons, and retail market, 33 million tons, and overseas exports are expected to total 39 million tons.

Award Winner Describes Adena People In State

Charles W. Hackensmith II, of Lexington, whose father is a U. of K. professor, is one of the state's most promising young students of the Adena culture in Kentucky. On June 7 young Hackensmith received the Outstanding Boy Historian award from Governor Albert B. Chandler. The award, presented each year by the Kentucky Historical Society in its annual Boone Day exercises, was given by the Kentucky Press Association.

In his paper, submitted in the state-wide contest, Hackensmith dates the Adena culture in Kentucky from approximately 800 B. C. to 700 A. D. which he said has been verified by radiocarbon tests made from artifacts taken from the Newt Kash Rockshelter and the Drake Mound.

Further information submitted by the Outstanding Boy Historian reveals the origin of these people, sometimes referred to as mound builders, their physical characteristics and customs, and their methods of obtaining a living.

About 10,000 years ago, the fore-runners of the Adena people migrated from Asia to the Western Hemisphere across a land bridge, which no longer exists, on the site of the Bering Strait and the Aleutian island chain. One group moved slowly southward along the western slopes of the Rocky Mountains to Mexico and thence across the Isthmus of Panama to South America. Another group descended along the eastern slopes of the Rockies and finally eastward across the plains, settling in what is now Illinois, Kentucky, Ohio and points as far east as the present state of New York.

The skeletal remains and the artifacts of the Kentucky Adenas of 2,500 years ago disclose that the Adenas were about five feet six inches in height and had round heads and straight, black hair. Other physical characteristics held in common were prominent foreheads, large cheekbones and wide chins. They were muscular, deep chested and stoop shouldered and had the habit of squatting on their haunches. Their dead have been found also in a cremated state, and their weapons were flint knives, grooved axes, and spear throwers which antedate the use of the bows and arrows.

They lived in rock shelters at first and later in rude hogans or earth-covered dwellings. They were principally hunters and fishermen, but they supplemented their diets with such agricultural products as gourds, pumpkins, squash, and sunflowers.

When young Charlie, a student of Morton Junior High, was asked how he became interested in the Adena people, he gave the credit to a neighbor. That neighbor is Dr. Charles E. Snow, head of the Department of Anthropology of the University of Kentucky.

DON'T READ this to the kiddies unless you want to take them to see Roy Rogers at the 1958 Kentucky State Fair. He, Dale Evans and the Sons of the Pioneers will appear Sept. 4-7. Roy sends us this little story with a moral:
"I've got a confession to make. None of the fights I've had in movies or television are, real except one. A trick rodeo rider we hired to play a heavy was trying so hard to make good that he forgot to pull punches. When I came to, my lip was all messed up. The poor fellow who conked me was worried sick that he might be fired. I guess the moral is: don't try to look too good the first day of a new job. Wait until you know what you're doing."

New Estimates Made On Number Of Alcoholics

By J. Collis Ringo,
Executive Director Kentucky Commission on Alcoholism

The June 1958, issue of the Quarterly Journal of Studies on Alcohol carries new estimates of the number of alcoholics in the United States. These estimates, prepared by Mark Keller and Vera Efron, staff members of the laboratory of Applied Biodynamics, Yale University, are based on the Jellinek formula. This estimate formula is accepted as being as accurate as the Gallup poll.

The figures, complete for 1954 and 1955, are broken down to male and female, to the ratio of alcoholics per 100,000 of population (aged 20 years or over) and to the total number. The rates are rounded to nearest ten.

MALES
U. S. . . . .	4,002,000 7,860
Kentucky . . . . .	60,100 6,590
FEMALES
U. S. . . . .	710,000 1,330
Kentucky . . . . .	7,350 810

TOTAL
U. S. . . . . 4,712,000 4,520
Kentucky . . . . . 67,450 3,700

Percentage-wise, Kentucky is well below the national average. In the roster of states, Kentucky ranks 21st in incidence of alcoholism. Space does not permit the complete listing by states but, as a matter of information, California ranks first with a rate of 6,600 per 100,000 and Wyoming last with an incidence of 1,510 per 100,000. It should be borne in mind that the population figures include everybody over 20 years of age. Thirty-five percent of the total population are abstainers. When the abstainers are eliminated from the calculation it raises the number of alcoholics per 100,000 of persons who drink to 6,954 in the national average and to approximately 5,500 in Kentucky.

This new estimate is very close to the estimates made in former years. It is convincing evidence that the figure of between six and seven out of every 100 who drink will eventually get into trouble. The accuracy of this percentage has been questioned from the time when Jellinek made the first estimate on alcoholism in the United States but every subsequent check has confirmed the original figure. There are more alcoholics in proportion to population increase, but the percentage has remained practically constant.

The increasing amount of information, the wider dissemination of facts about alcoholic illness, the gradual acceptance by the general public that alcoholism is an illness offer some hope that this public health problem may eventually be controlled.

Alcoholism is a disease. Alcoholics are sick people. Alcoholics can be helped and are worth helping. A major objective of the Kentucky Commission on Alcoholism is to convince every citizen of the Commonwealth that this is the true concept of alcoholism.

"Mark your calendar for July 12th."

That's the advice of the Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative, which will hold its annual meeting and Farm Show on that date at Paintsville.

This year's meeting, said co-op manager Ora Hinkle, will be an afternoon affair, with registration beginning at 12:30 p.m. The whole program is open to the general public as well as co-op members.

Top professional entertainers will be on hand as usual to entertain the crowd along with the perennial favorites—the beauty and handicraft contests. For co-op members there will also be the important business meeting of their co-op and plenty of registration prizes.

This year's Farm Show is headlined by top entertainers who will put on a show that should leave the crowd laughing and clapping.

There will be Penny the Seal, an outstanding animal act. Then there are the side-splitting antics of Johnny Alladin and his dancing, singing, comedy routine.

The Perry's versatile singers and dancers, will entertain with renditions of popular songs and top-notch routines. And one of the best jugglers in the business, Bill King, who was featured for five years with Spike Jones, will do his amazing juggling act which is climaxed by his handling 13 pieces of live fire at one time.

For the audience's musical and listening enjoyment throughout the program there will be talented Jimmie Applegate on the Hammond organ.

At the annual meeting beauty contest some lucky lady will walk off with the title of "Miss Big Sandy Rural Electric Co-op of 1958." She and the runners-up also receive beautiful prizes, courtesy of the General Electric Company, Louisville district distributor.

The handicraft contest will give those talented in sewing and craft work a chance at beautiful electric appliances prizes to be awarded by Westinghouse's portable appliance division.

Auditor Checks On Excess Fees

One service to Kentuckians by the state auditor of public accounts is an audit of excess fees collected by county officials.

The field auditors check to see if excess fees are being returned to the county treasury, according to law.

In fact, law requires Auditor Mary Louise Foust to make two audits of Kentucky's 120 counties—one to inspect the fees and the other to determine if the county is in sound financial condition with books in order.

So far, says The Commonwealth magazine, Miss Foust's office has completed excess-fee audits in 44 counties since the service started in 1956. The audits showed that in 26 counties, officials owned a total of $332,515 to county treasuries over a one-to-three year period. In eight counties, overpayments totaling $3,283 were discovered.

Under Kentucky constitutional law, compensation of county judges, attorneys, court and circuit court clerks, sheriffs and jailers cannot exceed $7,200 a year. Any excess of this must be returned to the county treasury.

Field auditors are finding two reasons for nonpayment or overpayment of excess fees—errors in bookkeeping or failure to keep any records. It's up to fiscal courts, after the auditor's report, to collect money due or return overpayment and see to improvements in county record-keeping systems.

Counties are billed for the county and excess-fee audit made by the State. Cost is based on the field auditor's time, travel and living expenses involved in making the audit. The State pays for the expenses incurred in making the State audit of a county.

First Kentuckian Died In Electric Chair In 1911

Stanford, an attractive residential town with a leisurely life, has many old houses bordering its quiet tree-shaded streets. It is the seat of Lincoln County, one of the three original counties of the Kentucky District of Virginia formed in 1780.

JAMES E. ALLEN
WATER WELL DRILLING
Langley, Ky.
Phone Martin 3225

Few persons this year are celebrating July 8—the 47th anniversary of Kentucky's first legal electrocution.

Prior to that date in 1911, all criminals condemned to death were sentenced to hang. Since then, 161 persons have died in the electric chair at Eddyville State Penitentiary.

The first was a young man found guilty of murder by a Marion County jury. He was granted a 30-day stay of execution by Acting Gov. W. H. Cox because of a delay in installation of the electric chair, which served until about a year ago when a new one replaced it.

Looking on from a cell across the corridor was a Lincoln County man who was to become the chair's second victim.

A reporter, describing the first electrocution, wrote:

"In the progress of the execution, the death of the prison physician, Dr. H. H. Moss, was narrowly averted by timely warning not to touch the condemned man's arm while the current was passing through his body. Just after the first shock, before the current had been released, Dr. Moss came near meeting a similar death when he started to touch Buckner's arm to feel for pulsation. But for a timely warning from the chief engineer from the electric room as the doctor's hand was within a short distance of the arm, he too would probably have met death."

Since a provision of law that persons convicted of rape be hanged in the county where the crime was committed was repealed in 1938, all legal executions in Kentucky have been by electrocution.

A bill to abolish the death penalty in the Commonwealth died in the 1958 Legislature.

THIS WEEK'S QUOTE

"THE AVERAGE tourist in Kentucky spends $20 per day and stays 28 hours. On this basis we receive approximately $500 million annually. If we could, by showing the tourist the advantages of Kentucky by making his stay more pleasant, keep him for an additional 28 hours we could double the amount of money he spends. The tourist business in Kentucky then would amount to $1 billion a year, which would be a 25 percent increase in our total state economy." — The Commonwealth Magazine.

EYES ARE WONDERFUL

Although we use our eyes every day, few of us realize how complex and wonderful they really are. Our eyes control 80 per cent of our actions, are responsible for 83 per cent of our learning, yet seeing consumes only 25 per cent of the energy our bodies generate.

ATTEND CHURCH SUNDAY

GETHSEMANE AND THE MOUNT OF OLIVES

This is the Garden of Gethsemane today. Note the old beaten foot-path leading to the top of the Mount of Olives. Our Lord presumably walked up the hill over the old stones which are deeply worn from much use over the centuries.

Gethsemane was a garden of flowers and olive trees. Eight venerable olive trees still stand today. One of these is called "The Tree of Agony" because some believe it to be the tree under which the Saviour prayed. Possibly none of these trees witnessed our Lord's agony; they are said to have been subjected to the Arab tax levy of the Seventh Century. There are however olive trees in Palestine today which some believe to date back to the Romans.

Gethsemane signifies an "olive press." It was a favorite place with our Lord. The owner must have given Jesus and His disciples special rights to enter the spot for He often resorted there for prayer and meditation. On His last visit it seemed that His soul passed through a great press that crushed Him to the earth.

WALLACE GIVEN LEAVE, CLARK OCCUPIES POST

Special To The Times
Frankfort, Ky., June 24 — Earl Wallace, Commissioner of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, was granted a 60-day sick leave by the Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission in meeting at Frankfort, June 23. Put in charge of the operations of the Department during that time was Minor Clark, assistant commissioner, and director of Fisheries. The announcement was made today by Elmer Davis, Owenston, chairman of the Commission.

Commissioner Wallace, who suffered a heart attack about six weeks ago, has been unable to resume his duties and that was the reason for the Commission's action yesterday. Wallace has been commissioner of the Department since 1944.

Clark became an employee of the Department in 1937 and from fisheries biologist became director of the Division of Fisheries and later assistant commissioner. He is a resident of Frankfort.

PERKINS ASKS PAY INCREASES

For All Beneficiaries Under Social Security To Meet Cost Of Living

Congressman Carl D. Perkins, of Hindman, appeared before the House Ways and Means committee Monday to urge that Social Security benefits be increased at least ten per cent to bring them in line with the higher costs of living. He asked that laws governing the Social Security Administration be liberalized and charged that the affairs of the administration were poorly handled.

Perkins appeared before the Congressional committee to charge that:

1. Decisions about individuals who can draw disability payments under the Social Security Act are often "disturbingly" slow. Some claims are delayed a year or more.
2. The disability fund — for payments to covered persons who are totally disabled at age 50 or older — is greatly overfinanced. Income to the fund in fiscal 1958 is estimated at $912,100,000, but payments total only $187,000,000, Perkins said.
3. Social Security officials are too strict in their interpretation of the disability provisions of the act. For example, they deny benefits to a person who can do "any kind of work," or who is able to ride in a passenger car rather than require an ambulance.

(A check with the Social Security regional office at Pikeville by The Times recently elicited the information that the applications for disability benefits in this area was one of the highest, if not the highest, in the United States. The hazards of mining, the predominating industry, was given for the high rate of applications for disability benefits.)

The Hindman Democrat said Welfare Secretary Folsom wanted to "hold the line" on all Social Security payments despite a 7.7 percent rise in consumer prices since 1954.

Wages have increased an average of 12 per cent in the same period, Perkins said.

A 10 per cent increase in payments would stimulate purchasing power by $62,000,000 a month, Perkins said.

He suggested also that higher medical-care payments be made available to State old-age-assistance recipients; that the Social Security retirement age be lowered to 60; that the 50-year-age limit for disability payments be removed, and that such payments no longer be reduced if veterans or workmen's-compensation payments are also payable.

Disability payments are so slow, Perkins says, that a claimant in some cases had died before his first check arrived.

In one case, a claimant pressed for disability payments three years and three months before being finally notified he was eligible — provided he could submit acceptable proof of his age.

BEAR MARKET

SALE

THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS WORTH OF MERCHANDISE SACRIFICED!

The great-great grandfather of the present I. Richmond Company store manager operated a general store in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, more than a hundred years ago. He owned a bear which was kept chained to a tree next to the store. It was his custom in those days to invite home for lunch all customers who happened to be in the store at the noon hour. The invitation was usually accepted and store and bear were left unattended.

On one such occasion he and his friends returned to the store to find the bear had broken his chain and was inside the building. They found him inside the overturned sugar barrel, enjoying the sweet. As a result of this incident he staged the first sale in Prestonsburg—a sale of the sugar from the barrel, at bargain prices.
