

This Town— That World

What is so rare as a sunny day in June (1958)?

ONE REASON
I am reminded that we may be bearing down too hard on Ike because of this—er, recession that has hit Floyd county. My informant blames the doldrums, in part, on the fact that the county for the first time in the memory of living man had no primary election this year. Says it kept a whole lot of money out of circulation.

A GOOD IDEA

Mrs. Henry B. Wright, of Prestonsburg, has what we think is an excellent idea. She suggests that the schools here display plaques bearing the Ten Commandments and to have these plaques in conspicuous places where all may see. This separation of church and state idea has been carried to the point of absurdity, and as a consequence children and teachers alike steer wide all through the school year of the Bible teachings all need.

Mrs. Wright's is an idea that should be adopted by all schools.

INDEED—HOW MANY?

How many residents of this county are really interested in it? That is a question you can debate all week long, come up with a hundred answers and still not know the truth. We sometimes wonder. For example, an event that honors Floyd county and its people will not draw as many to it as a good, old-fashioned dog fight. . . . Come to think of it, I have stayed away from such events a lot, myself.

THE CASE OF THE MISSING TEETH

LAKE STOCKED HEAVILY, SAID

Walleye, Bass Fingerlings Recent Dewey Additions; Other Species Stocked

If Dewey Lake doesn't produce good catches in the future, it will not be because the impoundment has suffered from a scarcity of young fish, it was indicated this week by conservation officer, Raymond Copley.

Early this year, 1,080,000 walleye fry were placed in Dewey. Two weeks ago, 80,000 fingerling bass were released there, and last week 10,000 walleye fingerling were added.

How heavy this year's bass spawn is has not been determined, but last year's new bass crop in the lake was a good one.

Prior to this year, the stocking program included white bass and shiner cracker. Success of this phase of the program has not become apparent, however.

Some of the walleye released last year have been caught on hook and line, and a good rate of growth has been noted.

Northern pike were introduced to the lake a few years ago, but these apparently did not reproduce and most poisoning operations have failed to reveal that any of this species remain in the impoundment.

Crappie and bluegill are plentiful at Dewey, but most crappie caught there are on the small side. This failure of crappie to grow has puzzled fishermen. Occasionally, however, large fish of this species are landed in the early spring.

RUGGED 'BREAKS' AREA DRAWS NEW ATTENTION

ELKHORN CITY SILICATE FIND CREATES STIR

Silica in Purest Form Reported Found There; Iron, Limestone Present

One of rugged Eastern Kentucky's most rugged areas may soon become its wealthiest, it was indicated here this week as reports were heard of the find of a rich deposit of silicate in the vicinity of Elkhorn City.

Silicate is in great demand, is used in production of steel, ceramics, glass and various other products, and it is this demand that has created high interest in an area long known to hold such a vital resource.

Core-drilling is being done in the mountains surrounding Elkhorn City, and it was said here that "outside" interests are giving the "Breaks of Sandy" area close attention.

O. S. Batten, Pikeville engineer, told The Times Tuesday, that while he has not seen the results of this core-drilling, the silicate deposits visible at Elkhorn appear to be pure and not adulterated by iron and sulphur as is the case in the vicinity of Jenkins.

Silica, or silicate, in its purest form is a pure-white stone of sedimentary origin. Its mining is a hazardous occupation because of the danger to workmen of developing silicosis. The silica-bearing stone ranges at Elkhorn City from 25 to 75 feet in thickness, it was said.

The same area has the same vein ore that is mined in Alabama, engineers say, but a fault in the rock formation at Elkhorn City has the rock-bearing ore inclined at a steep angle, making its mining a difficult procedure.

One of the purest ledges of limestone in the United States also is in the Elkhorn City vicinity. The demand for limestone, with a gigantic road-building program under way, or ready to begin, over the United States, also is great.

The unconfirmed report received here says the Elkhorn City silicate deposit is the richest on the American continent.

BOARD OF EDUCATION EMPLOYS 398 TEACHERS FOR NEXT TERM

The list of teachers employed for Floyd schools during the 1958-'59 school term was released Wednesday morning following a special meeting of the County Board of Education, Tuesday afternoon.

Few major changes in the teaching roster were noted. In Prestonsburg Jack Frost Wells, basketball coach, was supplanted by William O. Goebel, Jr., and Wells was assigned to Goebel's coaching post at Auxier high school. Edwin Stewart, principal at Maytown high school, was not re-employed, and Burnis Gearheart, of Hueysville, former Garrett high school teacher, was named for the Maytown post. Walter Frasure, of Allen, who served the Board this year as social worker, was employed at Martin high school.

Three hundred twelve teachers were employed for the consolidated and other larger schools of the county, and vacancies in those schools are few. For the rural schools 86 teachers were named, with about 30 places yet to be filled.

In employing teachers the Board of Education order made all teach-

STREET WORK PLANS TALKED

Wide Section of P'Burg To Get Paving, Is Plan; Urge Pinball Play Carb

Street paving and pinball machines were the main topics of discussion at Monday night's meeting of the City Council. Councilman J. Y. Goble presided as mayor-pro tem in the absence of Mayor Napier.

Because of the magnitude of the street-surfacing job to be undertaken here it was decided that the city will finance the work by sale of bonds which will be amortized by property-owners on the streets improved. Joe Hobson, attorney here, was directed to prepare an ordinance for consideration by the Council. Streets to be surfaced are in the Mayo Addition, the Porter Addition and at the southern end of Riverside avenue.

Chief of Police Epp Lafferty was instructed to initiate enforcement Tuesday of the ordinance already enacted which prohibits any person under 16 years of age from playing a pinball machine. He and other officers were asked to notify all places where such machines are located to abide by this ordinance.

The Council was told that the present occupants of the Turner hotel here will vacate it by Thursday morning. This word came after the Council had started action to close the structure.

Fair Board Meeting Is Scheduled Tonight At Library Building

A second meeting of the Floyd County Fair Board is scheduled for this evening (Thursday) at the Regional Library building at 7:30, according to Jesse Elliott, chairman. The first meeting was held last week.

The fair date was set at the last meeting for October 2-4 and present plans are to hold it at the high school building here.

"The new location should be a big boost to the fair," Elliott said, "and it should be easier there for committee members to carry out their jobs."

Matters to be considered at the meeting this evening are election of officers, committee assignments, and advertisement.

"We must get started early to hold a fair in October so make a special effort to be present at this second meeting," Elliott urged.

"At the last meeting only a few board members attended which limited the business carried out. If a county fair is to be held this fall it will require more than a few interested citizens," he added.

Memorial-Anniversary To Be Held June 23rd.

A memorial service honoring departed members of the original group which with Mrs. Edith F. James first presented the ancient plainsong here will be held at Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church here Monday, June 23, at 7:30 p.m.

NAME DORSEY FOR 6TH YEAR

Methodist Conference Assignments Made; Rev. Garriott Retires

The Rev. Harold W. Dorsey began his sixth year as pastor of the First Methodist Church here after his reappointment to the pastorate at Kentucky Methodist Conference held in Wilmore last week. Ministerial appointments were announced Friday by Bishop William T. Watkins.

Six other Floyd ministers were reappointed. They are: Harry T. Barnett, Jr., Vogel-Day; Harry Fegan, Wayland; H. M. Wiley, Maytown-Garrett; James Kirk, Wheelwright; Floyd Lafferty, Dwale circuit; Woodrow Branham, Horn Chapel-Auxier.

Betsy Layne constitutes a new station after having been cut off from Vogel-Day, and the Rev. Charles Elswick was named pastor there. Other new pastors assigned to this county are: Charles Lake, of Ashland, to Community Methodist Church here, and the Rev. Leroy Sanders to Allen-Martin.

The Rev. Gene Wells, who has been pastor of Community Methodist here, was assigned to Redwood, Madison county. The Rev. J. P. Carr, former pastor at Allen-Martin, goes to Stone.

The conference season saw the retirement of the Rev. W. B. Garriott, former pastor of First Methodist here. His retirement followed 10 years as pastor at Flemingsburg. During his pastorate there the church built a new parsonage and educational building. He was pastor here for eight years before going to Flemingsburg, and that is said to have been the longest service by one pastor to the Prestonsburg Methodist Church in the modern history of the church. The Reverend Dorsey's is said to be the second longest.

DAMAGE SUITS ASK $188,269

Man, Wife Sues Company In Middle Creek Mishap; Knife Victim, Plaintiff

Two damage suits filed in circuit court here last Thursday by a Floyd man and his wife ask of the Kentucky Power Company, Inc., a total of $157,900 damages, and a third filed Tuesday by a Wheelwright woman asks $30,369 of the neighbor who allegedly knifed her recently.

The three petitions were prepared by the Prestonsburg law firm of Tackett & Tackett.

In the suits against the power company, John H. Meador, of the Middle Creek road, seeks to recover $51,200, and his wife, Ellen, asks $106,700. They claim they suffered severe burns last Feb. 12 when a television aerial which they were taking down came in contact with a large tree that had become charged while wet by the company's high-voltage wire. The petition claims the company negligently permitted the tree to stand on its right-of-way directly beneath the wire and that the tree became charged with at least 44,000 volts of electricity.

The husband says he was severely burned and that as a result his little finger was later amputated. Mrs. Meador claims third degree burns on her head, body, arms and legs which required skin graftings and more than two months' hospitalization.

CONSUMER GROUP SUES TO VOID BOND ISSUE

Mrs. Duff Sues Burkes For $15,750 Damages Following Auto Mishap

Mrs. Hazel Duff, of Prestonsburg, has filed a suit in circuit court here asking a total of $15,750 in damages and for hospital and medical expenses growing out of a May 11 auto collision here.

Bobby Burke, a minor, and his parents, Heber and Minta Burke, are named defendants in the petition which was prepared by Atty. W. W. Burchett.

The plaintiff claims negligence and carelessness on the part of Bobby Burke caused the collision of his car and hers at the intersection of Third avenue and Graham Street. Claiming permanent injury to her back and hip, she says her ability to work has been impaired.

CLINE VICTIM IN GUN FIGHT

Johns Creek Man Third To Be Killed in Week; Allen Free under Bond

The third Floyd county homicide within a period of five days occurred last Thursday afternoon when Roland Cline, 41, truck mine operator, was shot and killed in an exchange of shots with Joe Allen, 63, at the Allen home at the mouth of Cline Branch of Johns Creek.

A .22-caliber rifle bullet which struck Cline high in the left chest and ranged down apparently cut a large blood vessel.

Allen, a former resident of Martin, was jailed here late Thursday and later was released under $5,000 bond after he had waived examining trial to await grand jury action.

As far as is known, the exchange of shots was unprovoked except by the two men. Allen gave officers this version of the shooting:

Roland Cline came to his cabin Thursday afternoon, accused Allen of letting his hogs and turkeys out of their pens and threatened to kill him. Allen was unarmed but while talking with the other contrived to reach his gun and ordered Cline to leave. The latter complied but said he would be back and would kill Allen. Allen said he had not set free the hogs and turkeys, added that he had worked for Cline and that they had been close friends.

Allen then left the cabin and got behind a tree. Cline soon returned, driving his car, stopped perhaps 50 yards away, and, shooting from across the top of the car, began firing bullets from an 8-mm. Mauser into the house. Allen answered the fire with the small-caliber rifle and a 16-gauge shotgun.

The shooting took place about 3 p.m., and Sheriff Hershell Warren's office here was notified about two hours later.

Warnie Cline, who lives between the Allen cabin at the mouth of the branch and the Roland Cline home up the branch, said he was working when Roland Cline, his nephew, passed and told him that if his hogs damaged his crop not to worry, he would pay him double. He said his nephew went on toward the Allen place but returned shortly afterward, was gone a short time, then

$98,100 PAID ON INSURANCE

$70,000 Of Fund Divided 27 Ways In Bus Tragedy; Insurance Paid Survivors

A total of $98,100 insurance has been paid to survivors of passengers on the school bus which wrecked near Lancer Feb. 28 with the loss of 27 lives.

Of this total, $70,000 was divided into 27 equal parts for each life lost. Fifty thousand dollars were paid by the Wabash Insurance Company on insurance carried by the Floyd County Board of Education, and a policy carried by Donald L. Horn, owner-driver of the wrecker with which the school bus collided, in the amount of $20,000 was paid by Travelers Insurance Company. Division of this $70,000 provided about $2,590 for each victim.

In addition to the $50,000 paid by Wabash, it gave each of the 22 survivors of the bus wreck $50. Sixteen of the parents bereaved by the tragedy also received $1,500 each, or a total of $24,000, on school pupil insurance written by the Pilot Life Insurance Company, and six parents already have been paid $500 each on family automobile policies they carried.

The parents were represented by a committee of the Floyd County Bar Association in collecting insurance, without charge. W. W. Burchett headed the committee which was named by Bert T. Combs, bar association president.

The $98,100 total given here does not include other insurance that may have been carried by a few of the families affected.

PETITION SAYS 'GIANT HOAX' PERPETRATED

Consumers Would Sell Water, Gas Systems; Say Rates Exorbitant

Purchase by Floyd county of various water and gas systems for $230,000 in 1953 from private owners was a "giant hoax and fraud upon the public generally, the taxpayers and consumers of gas and water," a suit filed in circuit court here Monday claims.

The petition, prepared by Claude P. Stephens, Prestonsburg attorney, seeks a judgment cancelling all unpaid bonds of the $230,000 bond issue and for the sale of the several utilities, with the proceeds of such a sale to be applied toward payment of outstanding bonds. On whatever balance that would remain unpaid after that a judgment is asked against Burl Spurlock, Russell Hagewood, Ralph L. Gardner, George E. Evans, the Glo Realty Company and the Glo Valley Coal Corporation.

Besides the six against whom judgment is asked, U. H. Benderman is named as a defendant. The petition says he owns $20,000 worth of the bonds issued by the county to purchase two water systems and the several gas systems.

Plaintiffs are Charles Clark, of Garrett, Marlin Combs, of Estill, W. L. Triplett, of Garrett, Ralph Elkins, of Dwale, Dewey Sergeant, Chester Patton and Walter Frasure, of Allen, Edwin Frasure, of Hueysville, Orville Hansford, of Wayland, and the Floyd County Consumers Association.

NAPIER ORDER SUSPENDS ONE

Council Delays Action On Howard Suspension And Hiring of Fire Chief

Mayor Bill Napier last Friday suspended Policeman James Wesley Howard for a period of two weeks without pay. "Conduct unbecoming an officer" was the reason given in the suspension order.

Since the Mayor was in Washington, D. C., Monday night when the regular City Council meeting was held, mention was not made of the action.

Patrolman Howard, however, was ready to submit to the Council a prepared statement reviewing events leading up to the Mayor's action. An incident on the street here relating to the Mayor's statement of last week in The Floyd County Times was said to have led to the suspension. Howard said he did not threaten the Mayor by either word or action.

The Council did not discuss a new fire chief to fill the vacancy created by the death of Fire Chief Amos Gray. Johnny Perry continues in the post of temporary chief. It was said this week that several persons are interested in the job.

1958 TAX ASSESSMENT IS UP TO $25,391,667

Final recapitulation of the Floyd county assessment—which is the totals standing after the board of supervisors had raised or lowered the Tax Commissioner's original assessment—shows an increase of more than $3,000,000 over the 1957 assessment.

These assessment figures have not yet been approved by the state, Tax Commissioner Manis Conley said.

The total assessment for this year is $25,391,667 as compared with $22,038,037 for last year. The Board of Supervisors made only one assessment increase, and that for $6,000 on residential property, but it cut from the Commissioner's figures a total of $765,973. Heaviest assessment reductions made by the board were on commercial and industrial land and improvements, mineral and timber and other tangible property.

Down into various types of holdings, follow:

Residential property (houses and lot), $3,413,807; farm land and improvement, $5,002,302; business buildings, $877,33; oil rights, $147,671; other mineral and timber, $3,383,861; autos and trucks (8,900 in number), $3,293,778; mercantile inventories and manufactured finished goods, $1,030,408; trade tools, business furniture, etc., $473,069; drilling, mining and construction equipment, $1,357,269; other tangible personal property.

To these figures are to be added manufacturing machinery, $1,792,490; manufacturing inventories and raw materials, $16,282; farm machinery, $875; livestock, $1,920; stocks and bonds, $3,587,271; annuities, $34,301; bank shares, $974,695.

Old High School Program Recalls First Prestonsburg Commencement

Four decades ago Prestonsburg high school graduated its first senior class. Members of the class were Mrs. Martha Allen, of Hindman, Mrs. Gladys Wellman, of Morehead, and Miss Anna Martin, teacher in the grades here.

Twenty years later, under Ishmael Triplett, principal, the school graduated 49 seniors. In 1938, the school under the principalship of Chalmers H. Frazier, graduated 72 pupils. One hundred twenty-six seniors received diplomas this year.

Back in 1918 graduation exercises were held in the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church at its old location near where the Fountain Korner now stands. Walter S. Harkins, Prestonsburg attorney, gave the principal address.

Heading the Prestonsburg high school educational institution in its infancy 40 years ago was Prof. John Burke, who was a one-time State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Tilden Collins was county superintendent.

A copy of the 1918 program at the Baptist Church has many names of persons no longer living.

After a song by the audience, Rev. J. T. Pope offered the invocation. Following the Rev. Pope, Martha Josephine Harris read an essay, "The Little White Schoolhouse." Edith Patrick sang, "Joan of Arc," and Gladys Ellen Harris read another essay, "Love of Country."

Other songs and another essay were as follows: "Just a Baby's Prayer at Twilight," by Josephine Harkins; "The Life Beautiful," by Anna Martin; and the audience rendered "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Following the Harkins address, Superintendent Collins presented the diplomas, after which Rev. H. K. Moore gave the benediction to end Floyd county's first commencement exercise.

Trustees of the school listed by the old program were A. M. Spradlin, W. H. Layne, Z. S. Dickerson, B. F. Combs and S. C. Ferguson. Only Mr. Dickerson and Mr. Ferguson still survive.

The program, recalling many memories of the county's first graduation exercise 40 years ago, was preserved by Mrs. Minnie Grace Sutherland, now a teacher in Prestonsburg high school.

A highlight of the reunion was provided in brief accounts given of happenings and current events in the lives of various members of the family.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Bill Damron and three children, of South Shore, Ky., Mr. and Mrs. James S. Mayo and daughter, Russell Springs, Ky., Mrs. Annie Mayo, of Allen, widow of Seymour Mayo, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lewis Mayo and two daughters, of Paintsville, Miss Anna Bruce Neal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Neal, of Ashland.

Star Army Athlete

Specialist Johnny Thompson, 21, of Prestonsburg, now attached Headquarters U. S. Army Inter-American Geodetic Survey, at Fort Clayton, Canal Zone, is chalking up an outstanding sports record there. He has an average in baseball of 19 points and stands third in scoring. The team on which he played won 16 games, lost none in the Panama Canal Zone League, composed of both Army and Navy personnel.

Thompson, who played winter baseball and led his team in scoring, attended a guided missile school before being sent to the Canal Zone. He will be discharged the first of next year and plans to return to school.

Landscape Notes

Roses are probably the most popular of all garden flowers. They are adapted to many purposes and grown in every section of the country.

Roses require much care. Careful thought should be given to the type of care required. What equipment do you need? Does a certain kind of rose grow better in the location you have selected? Will you have time to give them weekly care? Does your neighbor care for his roses so disease and insects would not carry to yours?

Expert recommend roses be planted where they are convenient to tools and where you can easily stroll to for dusting or cutting. Avoid the front yard. Most roses are prettiest when in bloom. They often times become leggy and unattractive after bloom.

Weekly spraying of Malathion and captan will control most disease and insect of roses. The first requirement for successful disease and insect control is to begin with insect and disease-free plants.

Sanitation is very important in the rose garden. Old foliage and weeds can be a breeding place for spider mites, thrips, and leaf hoppers, as well as disease organisms. Cut and burn rose stems having borers, insect and bacterial galls, cankers, and rosette-infested thrips. Prune or cut close to nodes or buds so they will heal rapidly. Further injury of the pith can be prevented by pushing carpet tacks into the cut ends to close the wound, or by painting the wounds with tree-wound.

USDA has a bulletin "Roses for the Home," "Home and Garden" bulletin No. 25, has information helpful to you. You can receive a copy by writing your Congressman or sending 15 cents to Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C.

"PAST GENERATIONS have left us a heritage. We in turn will leave a heritage. Our appreciation of what was left to us should reinforce our sense of duty in regard to what we must leave for those who follow. This is a principle, the ignoring of which causes many of our present social and economic ills."—Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield.

FOOD NOTES

By Dixie T. Higgins, Home Demonstration Extension Agent

Will you be one of the estimated 200 million family vacationers visiting state and national parks this summer? Whether it's a short trip or a long cross-country excursion, the wayside picnic area is a welcome convenience to relieve periods of driving.

Homemakers are planning picnic lunches and preparing to use the park and wayside facilities. This way the wife or mother can look forward with pleasure to a picnic.

Much of the "rounding up" of picnic supplies can be eliminated by keeping staples in a picnic box or basket. Such items may include: roasting works, flashlight, books of matches, can-bottle opener, paring knife, napkin, vacuum bottle, disposable cups and plates, roll of waxed or transparent paper, salt and pepper, insulated cooler, plastic dishes, coffee pot, skillet, paper towels, hot pads.

A lesson many picnickers learn is to keep foods simple. Some foods can be prepared in advance and kept in the freezer. Sandwiches store well in the refrigerator for 12-24 hours under 50 F. If frozen they will keep for longer periods. Prepare sandwiches by spreading bread with soft butter or margarine. Fillings that freeze well include: peanut butter, cheese and cheese spreads, and pickled or smoked meats.

Lettuce and mayonnaise should be packed separately and added to the sandwiches just before eating. Or you can carry buttered bread and fillings separately. Make sandwiches of your choice on the spot.

Baked goods are "seasoned travelers" which may be prepared long ahead, wrapped in moisture-vapor proof wrap and placed in the freezer until needed. These travel well: rolls, cakes, cookies, donuts, fruit-filled pies, and cupcakes.

Cream-filled desserts are not good hot weather travel foods.

Fresh fruit and vegetables are always good especially when they can be chilled.

Before the picnic, it is wise to discuss respect for public property and a few methods of procedure with family members. This practice helps prevent unnecessary accidents that can spoil a picnic.

1. Read signs about correct waste disposal. Leave a clean picnic area.
2. Check for and avoid areas with poison ivy.
3. Put out all open fires before leaving the picnic area.
4. Teach children how to chop wood and how to handle cutting tools if they are old enough and are permitted to use them.

Elliott - Murray Vows Solemnized

Miss Cynthia Joyce Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hereford Elliott, 1407 Fifteenth street, Huntington, W. Va., became the bride of Frank David Murray, also of Huntington, in a quiet home ceremony on May 16. The Rev. Robert B. Hall, rector of Trinity Episcopal church performed the double-ring ceremony.

Music was furnished by Mrs. Thomas W. Boyd.

The bride's only attendant was Mrs. Homer Alley. Mr. Joseph M. Venable, of Nitro, W. Va., served as best man.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of candlelight silk paper taffeta and had a sheer illusion yoke with a band of lace forming a mandarin neckline. Lace and folds of the tulle gave a dropped shoulder effect. The long sleeves draped the wrist. The skirt was of taffeta with lace applique over it, forming a peplum and going all most to the hemline, on each side. It had a slight sweep. Her veil was a pleated candlelight silk taffeta band edged with tiny seed pearls with a full finger tip veil of imported silk illusion. The bride's only jewelry was a strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

The matron of honor wore a ballerina gown of a delicate powder blue nylon chiffon. The shirred bodice was accented by a cowl effect neckline. This was finished with a double flowing panel in back. The skirt was gathered to the waistline and was very full. On her head she wore an ice blue feather and velvet clip. Her bouquet was yellow rose buds.

The ceremony, which was to have been a church wedding, was held at the bride's home due to the illness of her mother. Following the ceremony, a small home reception was held for members of the bridal party and the families.

Mrs. Murray attended St. Agnes school in Alexandria, Va., and graduated from Marshall high school. She attended Mary Washington and Marshall colleges.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray left for a wedding trip to Colorado, where Mr. Murray will enroll in the Colorado School of Mines at Denver. He is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Sebaugh. His mother was the late Mrs. Frances Sebaugh Murray. Mrs. Murray is the granddaughter of Mrs. J. M. Porter, of Prestonsburg.

Five Full Scholarships, Grants To Be Offered By Transylvania College

Transylvania College next year will provide five full-cost combination scholarships and work grants for seniors graduating from high school in Kentucky in the upper two per cent of their class who are not expecting to attend college because of extreme financial hardship, it was announced by Transylvania President Irvin E. Lunger.

"Subsidization for athletes is common in America colleges and universities," the Transylvania president said, asking, "Why should we not subsidize brains in the same manner, since it is for education that our schools exist?"

"This is one way," he said, "in which America's intellectual resources can be conserved and increased."

In making the announcement, Dr. Lunger pointed out that the furor over education occasioned by the launching of Sputnik 1 has died out with very few positive steps being taken.

The Transylvania full-cost scholarships will include room, board, tuition and fees, and will total approximately $5,000 per student for the normal four year college course.

Dr. Lunger emphasized that the grant is for Kentucky students at the top of their class academically who cannot possibly go to college otherwise. It will not be an outright gift, but the students will be provided with jobs on campus and will be expected to work as much as possible without interfering with their academic program.

eat a hamburger, and when the hamburger was gone so were the teeth. This thing has a lot of mystery about it. We are unable to understand why the teeth were removed before he ate, and he is mystified about what could have become of them. . . . Anyway, he's offering a $5 reward for their recovery. Told that that is too much reward to pay for teeth that aren't used for eating purposes, he said, "Oh, I just wear 'em for show."

Anyway, call Prestonsburg 2889 if any stray false teeth show up on your premises.

DOG TROUBLE

Not till we added a Dalmatian to our menage and the dog developed a series of ailments did I know that do, suffer occasionally from tonsillitis and a whole list of other ailments common to humans. This breed of ours is a classy dog—now they say he may have hepatitis. And he's as deaf as an adder. I am duly concerned about the poor fellow's condition, but I definitely am not in the market for a hearing aid.

DEAR DIARY

Every time somebody calls me by telephone or visits the office and fails to find me, I am accused of having gone fishing. Busy with details, the other morning, meanwhile meaning about the sad fate that prevents me from as much time on the lake as I would like, I was asked by Tom Hatcher if I didn't think it might be a good idea to publish a diary of a typical week so that misconceptions as to my whereabouts might be allayed or something. So we take such a week.

MONDAY: A-fishing I did go, after work, and caught of fish did I get. The water was beautiful withal, and coming home in the dusk was worth the trip.

TUESDAY: Worked late at the office. Was, forsooth, thwarted verily.

WEDNESDAY: Had a prior and regular engagement for that evening. Did not fish.

THURSDAY: Fished again from 6 to after 8 p.m., and, lo! there were no witnesses to the two bass I did catch, for I took pity on their youth and sent them home to mama.

FRIDAY: Had another prior and regular engagement for the evening. Did not fish.

SATURDAY: Fished four hours and saw my partner, James Clark, lose the Big One and by superhuman effort succeeded in not losing his temper.

SUNDAY: No—no fishing. No disappointments. A good day. And there's always tomorrow.

And that's about the way it runs, the way the cat hops, or—should I say?—the way the bass jump.

Tidbits Of Kentucky Folklore

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.
Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

LOOKING BACKWARD

Through I have not made any special effort to introduce folklore into the schools, many teachers have written me of their being inspired to use local folk customs and beliefs as bases for English themes and for exercises in research. I have rejoiced at seeing many of these collections and interpretations in print; in county newspapers, in our state magazine, THE KENTUCKY FOLKLORE RECORD, and in national magazines, like MIDWEST FOLKLORE. Once a student is shown how vital a folk custom is, he begins to search out some commonplace event and see it as a genuine relic of other times. One such boy, whose papers have appeared in national magazines, studied old-fashioned Baptist Association and set down, before all the old-timers had died off, the actual flavor of what these great events used to be. Dr. Halpert was responsible for this excellent bit of research and is to be commended for his years of teaching Kentucky students the value of our folk heritage. I can claim no part of this; I merely mention it as a sample of what is being done in the more modern methods of studying our way as folk.

A very excellent study has been made by another scholar who has spent some years in Kentucky. Miss Marie Campbell, originally from Illinois, later from Georgia, and now from New Jersey, has recently written a whole book on folklore as it has appeared in Kentucky newspapers, from our earliest days as a wilderness settlement to our own mid-century. She has found countless echoes of the folkishness of editors and country contributors, of early quack-medicines and remedies, of burial customs and other strange ways in which we have expressed ourselves as a rather distinctive people.

It is not an exaggeration to say that our KENTUCKY FOLKLORE RECORD has done more for folklore than any other publication in the history of Kentucky. It has looked upon the whole field of folklore and not merely at the doings and sayings of substandard people. And it has attracted the attention of two groups of people who know most about folklore: scholars in the field and plain people who have lived long enough to see their own cherished customs changing into something different, whether rightly or wrongly. The president of our state folklore society is a living example of the newer method of studying folklore. Dr. Leonard Roberts, of Union College, at Barbourville, has done an enormous amount of collecting in mountain counties and has especially centered his interest on one family and all of its folk ways: songs, stories, superstitions, customs. To hear him discuss his finds "south of Hell-fer-Sartain," the area he has studied so long and so well, and to hear some of his actual folk characters tell stories and sing songs—these are convincing illustrations of what can be done when scholarly collectors an interested "collectees" meet.

With this twelve-hundredth essay, then, the writer of this column acknowledges a great debt to hundreds of correspondents, to dozens of scholars, to nearly a hundred newspapers, and to unknown and unnamed readers. All of whom have helped make this column. A strange indebtedness, too, exists that I do not know how to pay; I am thankful for having lived in a time when we have taken a more sensible attitude toward our cultural backgrounds, when we have been willing to look at history accurately but also sympathetically. This phase of our study is still in its infancy. Such scholars as Dr. Richard Dorson, of Indiana University, a famous historian and an equally famous folklorist, will help to develop this sort of accurate-sympathetic study of Americans in all their quaint, fascinating ways of doing and saying and hoping and fearing. It would be great to know what changes will take place in the next twenty-three years of folklore study. Certainly this column and its writer will be eager to see every step forward in knowing and interpreting our folkways.

of men. And he was the last one to disturb that halo. The way he could roll the names of places we were with a person who had made history, who had, single-handedly, won a battle.

We younger ones were somewhat responsible for this glorification of war, for we would not let a chance pass without hearing, for the nineteenth time, about our uncle's escapades while he participated in four full years of a Sunday School picnic. Even when he mentioned death, it was a cheerful sort of comment, as if it did not amount to much. Gruesome accounts of shallow burials, accounts that I have verified many times since then, seemed to our uncle half funny. The horrible inconveniences of a war that apparently nobody had planned for were just a part of a four-year picnic, with nobody especially to blame. And, because of the cheerfulness of our uncle, we grew up wishing we could have been born earlier and shared with him some of his experiences. Many people, much older than we, were just about as realistic as we children and kept alive for far too long the romantic aspects of man's inhumanity to man.

Maybe, as a famous novelist has said repeatedly, the Civil War was the last gentleman's war. You stood pretty close to your enemy; when your gun missed, if he had not meanwhile got you, you could pick up a stone and do a lot of damage. Some of those Civil War lines were so close together that you wonder how anybody ever survived the battles. And, of course, the casualties were tremendous, sickeningly so. And even the slightly wounded often died of gangrene or froze to death before they could be rescued from where they fell. I am writing this essay near the anniversary of Fort Donelson, where blood of my blood was represented. In the bitter winter weather men who were wounded were burned from leaf fires; the next day ice was forming on all the fallen. But even all this glory history failed to impress people so much as they would now. In the four wars that I have known the romance died a-boring. America tried to whip up a lot of fervor in the brief Spanish-American War, but typhoid and tropical jungles somehow stifled some of the ardor. The gruesome experiences of our boys in World War I, especially in the severe winter of 1917-1918, did not produce any sentimental ballads such as might have come out of the Civil War. And the similar experiences in the two later wars further removed war from the realm of the imaginative writer. Somehow it does not seem so poetic to be shooting at an enemy whom you cannot see as it did when two brave men met face to face and slew each other manfully. All of us now, I suppose, look upon war as a fearful thing, to be entered into only to avoid national disaster and not to poetize about. The boys who have always had to do the fighting have seldom led the procession of those who glorified war; they knew too well what it was all about and agreed with Sherman in his famous definition.

Golf Competition Eligibility Told

All Floyd county boys under 18 years of age as of August 15 are eligible to compete in the 13th International Jaycee Junior gold tournament, the Prestonsburg Junior Chamber of Commerce announced this week. Quentin Allen, chairman of the project, has said that the winner of the contest will receive a free trip to the state competition on July 13 and a fifteen-inch trophy, donated by Castle and Burchette Jewelry Stores of Prestonsburg. Second place winner will receive a 12-inch trophy. Allen said that all competing golfers should be free to enter the state competition in the event of a possible win. This year's contest is expected to bring out more spectators and entrants than last year's. Allen said that questions concerning the tournament have been coming in from all parts of the county. The tournament will be held at the Beaver Valley Golf Course at Allen, Ky., June 26 and 27. Entry forms will be available at the Fountain Korner in Prestonsburg or through Quentin Allen, Prestonsburg.

COURT GIVES SALARY RULE

Constitutional Limit Of $7,200.00 Applies To Persons, Not Offices

Frankfort, Ky., June 13.—The Court of Appeals ruled Friday that the constitutional salary limit of $7,200 a year imposed on certain public officers applies to the person regardless of the number of offices he may hold.

The decision came in a dispute from Warren county. There, the county Judge, County Attorney, County Treasurer, and several magistrates sought a court ruling on several questions raised by an audit of county officials' accounts.

All of the officers involved are paid wholly or in part by fees they collect for their services.

The court held: 1. A Circuit Court Clerk who also serves as Master Commissioner may not receive total compensation in excess of $7,200 a year—the constitutional limit. Any excess must be paid to the county.

2. Justices of the peace may not collect mileage for traveling from their homes to the courthouse, nor may the fiscal court allow them to hire and pay office assistants.

3. A County Attorney may collect his percentage of fines and forfeitures for lower-court prosecutions, even though he is not present personally at the trial, if he has rendered some legal service in the case. If he fails to render some service, he is not to be paid a fee.

4. Fiscal court may pay part of a County Attorney's office rent in a downtown building, if the county does not have adequate facilities at the courthouse.

5. County Attorneys are entitled to be paid for actual and necessary travel away from the county or within it on official business.

6. A Sheriff may not include in expenses chargeable against his income sums of interest he may have had to pay on money borrowed to keep his office operating.

7. A Jailor who raises food on his farm and sells it himself is a contract that should be treated as invalid on its face. It may be overcome by establishing that the food sold was of equal quality and at less cost than could be obtained in the open market.

8. Justices of the peace may not include in expenses creditable against their compensation fees paid attorneys to defend them in a lawsuit involving lack of jurisdiction, especially when they fail to show the County attorney refused to represent them.

9. It is the duty of fiscal courts not only to fix the number, but the pay, of sheriff's deputies, and this must be done on or before the May term of court in the year when sheriffs are elected. Failure to so act limits the number of deputies and their pay to that of the preceding term.

Regarding allowable expenses of fee officers, the appellate opinion said:

"We think it (K.R.S. 64,350) means that the fiscal court may fix, in advance, the categories that will be allowed and the maximum amount that will be allowed for each category.

"In such case, the officer still will be required to submit a detailed account of expenditures, with adequate supporting data in order to obtain credit . . ."

McGUFFEY READERS

A few decades ago McGuffey's readers were standard textbooks in the great inner heartland of America. Almost universally accepted as the reader texts for grade schools they went out with improved illustrations and format. But to oldsters who learned to read from the stories that mostly pointed a moral these old texts are still considered the greatest readers of all time.

For years these readers remained collectors' items, found in old attics or used book shops. Now the complete set can be bought from a reprint of the old volumes. We are indebted to an advertisement appearing in a trade paper for information where they may be procured.

"After a long and costly search a complete set of the original 1870 McGuffey's Readers has finally been located and reprints of the grand old readers have now been completed," the ad says. "Each reader is custom made from plates used in the 1879 revised edition—same type and binding."

HINDS WRITES

A letter from Charles F. Hinds, executive secretary of the Kentucky Historical Society, Frankfort. Mr. Hinds was the featured speaker at the recent membership meet here of the Floyd County Historical Society.

"I have been swamped. After getting back from Prestonsburg I had two engagements at Western State Teachers College . . . and then ran to Northern Kentucky for a couple of engagements with a few others sandwiched in between . . . I came back to Frankfort to find that we were swamped with letters and projects which had to be carried through."

Hinds remarks on the "sell-out" of the January issue of the Register that carried this columnist's article on the Battle of Ivy Mountain. "We can't start subscriptions with the January issue, however, because we are out of them. The January issue is the first one we have ever sold out in such a short length of time. And we ordered about 150 extra, too. Why, we have plenty of issues of the others way back to 1925."

Which shows that many, many Kentuckians are interested in the rich history of our mountain region.

FRANK JAMES

Several letters to this column have taken issue with the inference in a recent column that it was Frank James, not his younger brother, Jesse, who was the real leader of the James Gang. To this column it is pointed evidence of an outlaw's sagacity who lives longer than his competition. Then, too, there is much evidence that it was Frank James, not Jesse, who took refuge in the security of Johns Creek after that while his brother went riding away, chased by possemen and detectives for months.

It is legend, not history, that has made Jesse James the archetype of all American outlaws. For some reason quite unconnected with the facts, it is the name of Jesse James that springs to mind as the leading desperado of his era, the leader of the band and the dramatic figure of his time and place. Actually this credit, if credit it is, should rightly belong to Jesse's older brother, Frank. Examination of the record of people who knew both boys well clearly shows that Frank was the leader of the gang. But, perhaps because his name was not so striking, perhaps because he died a peaceful death, Frank James has been relegated to second place in the annals of American outlawry.

Alexander Franklin James was born in Kearney, Mo., on January 10, 1843. And there he grew up during the bloody years—among the blackest in American history—of the Kansas-Missouri border warfare. Known from earliest childhood as a boy who "took things serious," Frank James learned to ride and shoot in earnest at a very early age. And at the outbreak of the War Between the States he was among the first volunteers to join the Missouri State Guards to fight for the Confederate cause.

The war didn't end at Appomattox for him. He joined Quantrell's terrible guerrilla raiders, and rapidly rose to be one of that bloodthirsty leader's most trusted lieutenants. It was while he was a member of that desperate crew that Frank was first joined by his kid brother, Jesse. People who knew both boys—they were little more, then—united in saying that Frank's icy courage and cool, calculating brain made him a far more dangerous man than his more flamboyant, reckless younger brother.

When Quantrell's gang broke up, a few of the wilder spirits, headed by Frank James, united to form what soon came to be known as the James Gang. While Jesse was the more showy and the more foolhardy, there's little doubt that it was his older brother who planned and directed their most successful coups. It was also the older brother, Frank who broke away most often in attempts to earn his living the hard way.

Perhaps the best evidence that Frank was more intelligent than Jesse is the fact that he lived much longer, dying peacefully at home in 1915 and, after his brother's death, managed to earn for himself the respect of honest men.

Although his schooling had been almost exclusively conducted in matters of bloodshed and passion, he was a wide reader with a taste for the classics. Curiously enough this wasn't an unmixed blessing to him. Once when he was on trial for his life, he was identified by a minister as the soft-spoken, well-read stranger who had had such interesting views on Shakespeare and who could quote so much poetry. The defense sought to prove that the minister had mistaken Frank for his cousin who looked a lot like him, but that broke down in view of the fact that Frank and only Frank was known to have any interest or appreciation of books.

In October, 1882, years after Jesse's death by an assassin's bullet, Frank "came in," surrendering to Governor Crittenden of Missouri. He stood trial several times for several crimes, and each time was acquitted. It was good sense that made him stay in hiding as long as he did, and good sense that made him come in at last.

Frankfort, June—From the Kentucky Post comes a new twist that we're passing on to Commissioner Don Sturgill and the Department of Public Safety.

Says a Post editorial: "Make a pal of the back-seat driver."

The newspaper reason that a driver, instead of being critical of the person fidgeting beside him or in the back seat, should make a buddy of him and heed his warnings. This person may see signals and other autos that the driver does not.

"Back-seat drivers can be a real help," says the editorial. "A wife, who used to sit with nothing to do on a trip can be co-pilot."

came back down the branch. It was soon after that that he heard a burst of firing. There was an interval of silence, he said, then another fusillade of shots.

At that time he decided, he said, to go down and see if there had been trouble, then decided not to do so. Then, he said, he heard a single small-caliber rifle shot and heard Roland Cline yell.

It was then he said, that he went to the scene of the fight and found Cline dead, lying a few feet away from his car. He added that Allen ordered him away and persisted in doing so until he left in the truck of Ernest Lafferty who had arrived after he did.

Sheriff Warrens and Deputy Sheriff Jarvis Allen were the first officers at the scene. They found Cline, his rifle beside him and his shotgun in his car. Allen was inside his cabin when they arrived and, officers said, apparently did not know Cline was dead, although Warnie Cline says he had told him he had killed Roland.

The two officers soon were joined by other deputies and by state police. They said three rifle bullet-holes were found in the cabin. Ten shots may have been fired in the fatal exchange, they said. Allen had fired three shotgun blasts and possibly three shots from his rifle, they said. They said some shotgun pellets hit Cline in his arm but that the wound was superficial.

The shooting scene is about two miles up Johns Creek from the German bridge across Dewey Lake.

Mr. Cline, a veteran of World War II, had been operating a truck mine in Virginia. He was a son of Homer and Dollie Thompson Cline, of Thomas. Other survivors are his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth George Cline, three children, Debra Ann, James Colonel and Patricia Lynn; one sister, Garnett Cline, of Pikeville, and two brothers, Homer Cline, Jr., of Thomas, and Howard Leslie Cline, University of Kentucky student.

Funeral rites were conducted Saturday at Pikeville by the Revs. Johnny Conley, and burial was made in the Cline cemetery, the Baker Funeral Home directing.

LITTERBUGS, GO HOME!

One very pleasant duty of this column is to attract vacationers to the beauties of Kentucky.

But there is one type of vacationer that we don't want on our highways—the litterbug. In his wake lie discarded beer cans, candy wrappers, old newspapers and picnic refuse—enough to mar the beauty of Eden.

That makes our job hard. It's difficult to convince anyone that the trail into the Promised Land is paved with trash and garbage.

FEWER HIGH SCHOOLS

THE STATE BOARD of education recently accredited 488 Kentucky high schools. Citing a trend toward large, centralized schools, Dr. Robert R. Martin, superintendent of public instruction, said that 25 years ago there were more than 800 high school in Kentucky. Ten years ago, he said, there were 589. The number has been gradually reduced by consolidation of schools within counties and merger of independent and county districts.

Fourteen high schools have recently been discontinued either through merger or consolidation.

ADVANCING EDUCATION IN KENTUCKY

By ROBERT R. MARTIN
Superintendent of Public Instruction

In March of 1957, I named an advisory committee of school superintendents, architects, contractors and lay citizens to study ways of effecting economies in schoolhouse construction. Following several meetings of that group, a conference was held in Lexington in June, 1957, devoted to a consideration of every aspect of school construction from plumbing to insurance. Its purpose was to bring to light every possible aspect of construction procedures with an eye toward alleviating the critical classroom shortage by finding economies in construction.

As a result of studies made by the advisory committee and of the research conducted by its members into the problems of construction costs, we are now in a better position to find ways of cutting construction costs. More than that, we are in a position to get more for each school building dollar expended for new classroom facilities.

After studying and discussing ways of getting more for our tax dollars, this committee discovered several ways of economizing. Such a simple thing as changing the swing of a classroom door permits impressive savings when added to similar planning techniques. The committee made recommendations of this type to the State Board of Education.

Based on the recommendations of the advisory committee, the State Board of Education adopted new school building regulations that pointed toward economies. Among other items the regulations provided for lower ceilings, lighting secured by a combination of natural and artificial means, changes in plumbing codes, and modification of regulations pertaining to specific instructional areas and shops.

EMPLOYMENT RISE

The Department of Economic Security reports that seasonal increases of 3,700 jobs in retail trade, 2,500 in service industries and 2,200 in contract construction during April helped raise the total for non-manufacturing industries to 460,900, or 7,100 more than in March. This more than offset a job loss of 6,700 by manufacturing industries, mostly seasonal in nature.

Marine Colonel Fought Seminoles, Creek Indians

"Gone South to Fight Indians" was the sign hung on his door by Colonel Archibald Henderson, Commandant of the Marine Corps, in early 1836.

In December, 1835, the Seminole Indians had started attacking troops sent to Florida to move them to reservation. The Navy's West India Squadron was ordered to help subdue them. Marines from the squadron arrived at Fort Brooke, on Tampa Bay, January 22, 1836, just in time to help ward off a serious attack.

The Creek Indians went on the warpath about the same time in southern Georgia and Alabama. Colonel Henderson closed his Washington desk and set out for Georgia at the head of a hastily-mobilized Leatherneck regiment which began field operations June 3, 1836. The Army, aided by the Marines and volunteers, soon brought the Creeks under control. The Leathernecks moved on to fight the Seminoles, taking along a force of friendly Creeks.

In Florida, Henderson's Marines fought in the battles of Wahoo Swamp (November 21, 1836) and the Hatcher-Lustee River (January 27, 1837), both part of Army General T. H. Jessup's campaign to harass the Indians by destroying their crops and breaking up their camps. After a few months, the Seminole chiefs agreed to a general surrender. Since the war seemed to be over, all but two companies of Henderson's regiment were released, leaving Florida May 22, 1837.

However, the Seminoles soon slipped back into the swamps and reopened the war. The two remaining companies of Marines chased and fought them until July, 1838, while Leathernecks from the West India Squadron and a special naval expedition remained in Florida until July, 1842.

Finally, the impossible job of running down the Seminoles was practically given up. Those who wouldn't move west were given a small reservation in the Everglades, where their descendants live today.

More than half the Marine Corps fought in the Florida war. Valuable field experience was gained there, experience which was to prove extremely useful on the distant battlefields of the Mexican War a few years later.

TWO FORAGE GRASSES RELEASED BY USDA Two hybrid forage grasses — annual pearl cattail millet and perennial Bahia grass—have been released by the USDA and the Georgia Experiment Station. Both forages are adapted to portions of the southeastern U. S.

last winter by gas consumers residing in the several committees. It is contended by the plaintiffs that the "exorbitant" price paid for the several utilities requires consumers to pay high rates, so that payments may be made on the principal and interest of the bond issue, and that consumers have been deprived of the just right to have gas delivered to them at fair and reasonable prices. They add that the receiver named by the federal court for the utilities systems has borrowed $20,000 to make repairs and that the federal government has "donated" a sum believed to be $7,500 for further repairs. They add that at even the rate of 75c per 1,000 cubic feet for gas the receiver cannot show enough revenue to pay interest and principal.

The current rates are so high, the suit says, that many consumers will not use the water or gas but will purchase gas from other companies in the vicinity for 25c per 1,000 cubic feet.

Pursuing the claim that the utilities systems were bought at exorbitant prices, the plaintiffs' petition says: The Allen Dwell system was bought for about $2,000 and sold to the county for $54,000; the Wayland, Garrett and Bosco systems for approximately $20,000 and sold for $117,000; the Weeksbury waterworks sold to the county for $22,500 but the former owner had offered to sell the system for about $2,500; and that the Glo system was sold for $13,500 when not worth more than $750.

To keep fresh milk at its best, follow the rule of the three C's and a D, says Mrs. Lucille Warren, UK Extension specialist. They are: Keep Milk Clean, Cold, Covered and Dark. Milk holds both flavor and food value when it is kept cold. It is also more appealing and refreshing.

Councilman Wm. O. Goebel said that lights about the county and regional library here (the old high school building) are being installed this week. One street light also is being added at West Prestonsburg. A new board of tax supervisors here was named. It includes Sam Hatcher, Sam V. Hale and C. F. Rinehart, clerk. Mr. Rinehart has been acting as city tax assessor and has the assessment almost complete, it was said.

County Judge Henry Stumbo told the Council that if the Council and adjacent property owners would surrender to the county their rights to the road to the city garbage dump on Middle Creek the county will maintain it.

Discussed were needed repairs on the Municipal building roof, cornices and gutters. A committee will determine the need of repairs and will ask bids on the work.

CARD OF THANKS
We acknowledge our debt of gratitude to every one who in any way helped us and by word or act made our burden more bearable upon the death of our dear husband, father, son and brother, Amos Gray. We would especially thank the ministers for their comforting words, those who sent flowers, the American Legion and the Moore Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service.

Capitol Notebook

John L. Crawford writes in his “Ravelling” column in the Corbin Daily Tribune:

“The first performance of the musical-narrative pageant at Cumberland Falls, ‘Endless Waters,’ could be termed spectacular, without exaggerating in the least. Given its premiere last night before the visiting newspapermen of the Kentucky Press Association, it drew much favorable comment from a great majority of those who saw its majestic unfolding in the mists of Cumberland Falls, amid all the rugged beauty of the spot; and thus centers attention upon the heart of this park as no other feature has done since the early days of the development of this vacation area.

“Endless Waters” is a production in lighting and stereophonic sound, based on the Twenty-Third Psalm. It is billed as a legend and a prophecy of the Moonbow. Written and produced by Col. Eben Henson, it features Conrad Nagel as narrator . . . Musical adaption is by Howard Scott.”

The show will be presented every night that the weather permits. Mrs. Ben Kilgore, state parks director, has announced.

BIG WEEK FOR ESTILL
SPEAKING OF PAGEANTS, Estill county will celebrate its sesquicentennial July 20-26 with music, dancing, parades, and a beauty queen.

Events will include: “Freedom of Religion Day” on Sunday, with an inter-faith meeting; homecoming day; youth day, with athletic contests and parades; “United America Day,” with dancing, singing and music by local string bands, and agriculture day.

The evening of July 19, a queen will be crowned at a celebration ball. Brothers of the Brush will wear beards, goatees, sideburns, mustaches and other facial adornments throughout the festival. Women will wear pioneer bonnets and costumes. Each night at 8, there will be a historical pageant with a cast of 250, followed by a fireworks display.

PROGRAM LAUDED
KENTUCKY’S mental health program has been complimented by Dr. William C. Menninger, co-founder of the famed Menninger Foundation at Topeka, Kan. In a letter to Gov. A. B. Chandler, Menninger expressed satisfaction “that Kentucky spent 26 percent more for treatment of each mental patient per day in 1957 than in the previous year and led all other states in its percentage increase.”

SHORT ON LAW
NOT SO LONG AGO, the State Library Extension Division received this request from a prisoner at Eddyville penitentiary: “I am very much interested to know if you have any old law books that you might be able to send me. This is probably an odd request, but I assure you that such books would be of great benefit to men like myself in prison, as most of the men in prison, I find, know very little about law.”

LESS TIPSY TRAFFIC
THE DEPARTMENT of Public Safety revoked the licenses of 400 persons during May for drunk driving, according to Commissioner Don Sturgill.

PRaise FROM CANADA
MUCH INTEREST in Kentucky’s sheep industry was shown by two Canadian agricultural officials who visited here recently. Ontario Livestock Commissioner W. P. Watson and Provincial Veterinarian Harold Worton also had words of praise for the organization of the Kentucky Agriculture Department as they were shown around by Assistant Commissioner Mancil Vinson and Administrative Assistant June Davis.

PRINCIPAL SPEAKER
G. C. Randall, Washington, D. C., chief of the USDA’s livestock and wool branch of the Farmers Cooperative Service, will be principal speaker at the two livestock field days sponsored in July by the Kentucky Experiment Station’s animal husbandry department.

NOTICE TO DRIVERS OF CARS

Last week I made an effort to state what was necessary under the new law relating to operator’s licenses: You must get your license in this county where you live and if you go to another county other than your residence, it is a heavy fine, punishable by fine and imprisonment in the county jail.

The renewal license issued this year will expire on your birth month in 1960, and each two years thereafter.

Those to be issued next year will expire on your birth month in 1961 and all renewals thereafter will expire within two years. After 1959 there will be no A to K and L through Z. Your birth month will be your guide. There has been in the past a lot of people living in this county and going to other counties to secure their license and no doubt many coming to this county for the same purpose, which is a violation as above stated. Renew early and avoid the rush. I will have someone at Wheelwright and other places in the county during the month of July for your convenience. Your cooperation in all matters pertaining to the issue of renewals of licenses will be appreciated.

BRUCKER ASKS EARLY ACTION

Says Lock Reconstruction At Louisa Badly Needed At Senators' Request

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 6 (Special)—Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker today was asked for a quick decision on reconstruction of Lock and Dam No. 3 on the Big Sandy River at Louisa, Ky., and Fort Gay, West Virginia.

Senators John Sherman Cooper and Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky and others had previously requested the Secretary to approve restoration of the Louisa-Fort Gay structure, destroyed by floods early in World War II and never repaired. Under the law authorizing restoration reconstruction cannot take place until the Secretary of the Army determines such restoration is not incompatible with improvements envisioned for the entire Big Sandy River development program.

"The people of the area are desperately in need of the year-round water supply that would be wrought by such a restoration", the legislators informed Mr. Brucker. "From the information that has come to our attention, it would appear that there is no possible program for the Big Sandy that would in any way be adversely affected by the restoration of Lock and Dam No. 3."

The senators then said that "we recognize the pressure of your many other duties, but hope that you will very quickly find time to make the necessary determination in order that the work may proceed without further delay."

The Secretary said recently that the Corps of Engineers has been reviewing information compiled during the comprehensive Big Sandy River survey to determine if sufficient data has already been developed to permit making the determination.

Restoration of Lock and Dam No. 3 will give Louisa and Fort Gay a year-round source of healthful water and provide the potential for planned industrial and recreational development, the congressmen stated.

State Campaigns Against Oak Wilt

Frankfort, June 9 (Spl.)—Thirty-two employees of the Kentucky Division of Forestry and the Cumberland National Forest will meet at Hazard June 10-11 to study latest methods for detection and control of oak wilt.

Instructors for the school will be Dr. Carl Seliskar and Tom Jones from the Central States Forest Experiment Station, Ohio, and Glendon E. Keaton from the U. S. Forest Service office, Philadelphia.

All species of oak trees are susceptible to the wilt which has been found in 46 counties of Kentucky, officials said.

In the survey, observers in planes, flying 1,000 feet above tree tops, will plot on maps all suspected trees. Ground crews will locate the suspects, take twig samples, and mail them to the laboratory at Columbus for culture.

Trees showing positive oak wilt will then be cut and sprayed with chemical, and the stumps will be poisoned to prevent sprouting. Infection centers, once discovered and controlled, will be visited annually for three years, to determine effectiveness of control.

Harry Nader, associate director of the Division of Forestry, will be in charge of the school.

Noxious Weed Control Is Advised By Akers In Acreage Reserve

Farmer's who have put land in the Soil Bank's 1958 Acreage Reserve should remember to control noxious weeds and otherwise take care of the "reserved" acreage Daniel Akers, chairman, Floyd County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, reminded growers today.

Under the Acreage Reserve agreement, the chairman explained, the producer agrees to take such steps as may be required by the county ASC Committee to prevent the Acreage Reserve from spreading noxious weeds. Weeds designated as "noxious" in Kentucky are:

Buckhorn, Canada Thistle, Corn Cockle, Dodder, Johnson Grass, Quack Grass, Sorrell, Wild Onion, and Oxeye Daisy.

Akers added that the farmer must also be careful about meeting such other program requirements as preventing wind or water erosion or planting a protective cover crop on Acreage Reserve land, when these steps are required by the County ASC Committee. Failure to meet any of these provisions could mean loss of the payment the farmer would otherwise have earned for putting his land in the Acreage Reserve.

Talk About Gasoline

SAVINGS

We sell quality gasoline at low prices. And it is the same quality you buy for higher prices at other filling stations. Our gasoline is not inferior—but it is cheap.

You will save an average of 70c on 10 gallons by buying here. If you can prove our gasoline impairs your car in any way, your money will be returned.

We can sell cheaper because:

- (1) We eliminate the middle man. We buy directly from our own Refineries located at Somerset, Ky. In this way the local distributor is eliminated.
- (2) It is well known that 75% of our refined gasoline is used in our Home Town filling stations over the state while the other 25% is sold to name brands. Our gasoline is exactly the same in many cases.

We buy our gasoline from the same sources as other filling stations. How can our gasoline be of lower quality than other dealers? If it is not and we invite you to make your own personal test of our gasoline.

Do This:

Bring your car in with the tank almost empty. Buy our gasoline and then test your car for any noticeable difference in performance.

Keep your gasoline cost down.

New Map Shows Mineral Deposits

A new map of Kentucky showing principal mineral deposits and producing areas is the latest addition to the variety of map types on hand in the Maps and Minerals Division of the Department of Economic Development.

The minerals map, prepared from basic data and recent minerals investigation activities, provides a generalized picture of the occurrence and extraction of seven leading Kentucky minerals.

It outlines the eastern and western coal fields and their major producing areas; shows principal oil and gas producing areas; outlines the fluorspar district in Western Kentucky with operations spotted within the district; depicts eastern and western high-calcium limestone zones and limestone operations over the state; shows principal areas of occurrence of clays and extraction operations, and spots former rock asphalt operations.

The oil-discovery boom in Breathitt county has brought on a flurry of map buying, the Department of Economic Development reports.

The Maps and Minerals Division of the department has on hand a variety of maps of interest to oil drillers and Breathitt property owners. Four topographic maps—which show natural and man-made features—cover the so-called "Golden Triangle" area of new oil production in Breathitt.

Also on hand in the division's office in the New Capitol Annex are aerial photographs, geologic structure maps, oil and gas maps showing producing and dry wells, and highway maps of the Breathitt area.

More than 30 wells have been drilled since last January. Experienced oil men have said there will be a sustained yield from the Breathitt field. Some wells are yielding up to 135 barrels a day, and a number are described as mild gushers, the department said.

Writer On Jenny Wiley Is Named Outstanding State Junior Historian

W. Hackensmith II, Lexington, and Nita Lathon, Catlettsburg, were named Kentucky's outstanding junior historians Saturday at the Boone Day celebration in the Old Statehouse.

The Kentucky Historical Society, sponsor of the annual event honoring pioneer Daniel Boone, judged their essays as being the best of those submitted from some 50 high schools.

The observance marked the 72nd anniversary of when Boone stood atop Pilot Knob in Powell County and viewed the "beautiful level of Kentucky."

Hackersmith's subject was "The Adena People in Kentucky," and Miss Lathon wrote about Jennie Wiley, an early heroine of Eastern Kentucky.

Gov. A. B. Chandler awarded each a prize—a camera for Hackensmith, 14-year old freshman at Morton Junior High, Lexington, and a silver bowl to Miss Lathon, 16-year-old junior at Catlettsburg high.

Hackersmith said he had been reading about the Adena people, who were mound builders and fore-runners of white settlers in Kentucky, and thought "it would be a lot of fun to write about them."

Miss Lathon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Lathon, is a member of her school's nurses' club and makes B's and C's on her report card. She said she first wrote her winning essay for an English class. Her teacher thought it was good enough to enter in the contest. She described Jennie Wiley, who was captured by Indians and later escaped to John County, as her great, great, great grand-mother.

Safety Council Tells Of Dangers of Drink In Holiday Driving

A fifth can be deadly on the Fourth—and even two cocktails are dangerous if you drive within three hours after drinking them.

Fourth of July celebrants are given that reminder by the National Safety Council, which points out that the average person needs at least three hours to eliminate the alcohol in two cocktails.

Social drinkers are a greater menace than commonly believed, the Council said. They greatly outnumber the obviously intoxicated driver. And Council studies show the drinking, but not necessarily drunk, driver is a big factor in holiday traffic tolls.

Alcohol, even in small quantities, impairs the critical judgment needed by drivers, these studies show. And two cocktails may reduce vision as much as wearing dark sun glasses at night. What's more, coffee does not offset the effect. Only time can eliminate alcohol from the blood stream.

The throttle and the bottle are the arch villains in the nation's holiday traffic death toll, the Council said.

An analysis of highway fatalities during both summer and winter holidays showed that about half of the drivers involved in fatal accidents had been drinking. And speed was a factor in more than 7 out of 10 fatal holiday traffic accidents.

Forty-five million motor vehicles are expected to be on the nation's roads over the three-day Fourth of July holiday—so drivers will need to be especially alert and responsive if they are to avoid trouble, the Council said. "If drivers avoid drinking and speeding the highways will be much safer for themselves and others."

JUNIOR GOLF

The Prestonsburg Junior Chamber of Commerce will hold its fourth annual junior golf tournament for Floyd county youth at the Beaver Valley Country Club, June 26 and 27.

All county boys who have not reached their 18th birthday as of August 15 are eligible to compete in the 36-hole two-day medal tournament.

STATE TOURNAMENT

The July meeting of the Kentucky High Athletic Association Board of Control will reveal the site of the 1959 Kentucky High School State Basketball tournament. The eight-man board is awaiting the outcome of the N. C. A. A. action on whether or not the group will again hold the finals in Louisville.

If the N. C. A. A. fails to return to Louisville, in all probability the state tournament will return to the Fairgrounds coliseum.

The following poem is dedicated to the wives of Floyd county's coaches who may or may not agree with the version.

Caney Alumni Group Talks Boys' Structure At Wayland Meeting

The Caney Alumni held its regular meeting at the Wayland Woman's Club House, June 7. The following members were present for the meeting: Circuit Judge John Cris Cornett, of Hindman, president of the association; Elizabeth S. Stone, Larklane, secretary-treasurer; Cordell H. Martin, Hindman; Lasse M. Hatcher, Lackey; Monroe Wicker, Morehead; Anna Sue M. Stumbo, McDowell; Buena R. Howell, Price; Charles Clark, Garrett; J. Commodore Slone, Pippa Passes; Joseph Pruitt, Jr., Wise, Va.; and Sylvia H. Newman, Hi Hat.

Main business of the meeting was the discussion of the completion of the boys' dormitory, which is under construction, as the first project of the Alumni Association. The dormitory, a structure of native stone, was started before World War II by the founder and head of the school, Mrs. Alice S. G. Lloyd, but was not finished because of shortage of building materials and lack of funds.

J. Commodore Slone, chairman of the building committee, reported that the roof is now under construction. He also reported that he is very hopeful that the dormitory will be completed and ready for use by the beginning of the term for the college.

Judge Cornett announced that the bank note which is being circulated for signers to borrow money to complete the dormitory now has 54 signatures. The goal is at least 80 signers. The treasurer reported that funds are at an all-time low.

At this meeting plans were discussed for the annual home coming day, which will be held on the college campus for all alumni, their families and friends in September.

The executive directors will meet again, August 30, at the same place. The members present were served a fried chicken dinner by the Wayland Woman's Club members.

This is done at close range and London says he will catch the bullet in his teeth. In order to guarantee that the gun is actually fired and that a real bullet is discharged, there is a piece of glass held between the rifle and Mr. London. The bullet goes through the glass, breaking it, and London then catches the bullet in his teeth.

THE WIFE OF A COACH

If you never know how to time the roast,
If the guests drift in long before the Host.

If he loves the kids, but the ratings most,

You're the wife of a coach.

If the air is blue with the words he uses,

If you want him for bridge, and he refuses,

If he sits in a game and always loses,

You're the wife of a coach.

If he's always lending his weekly pay,

And giving the passes you want away,

If he has to work when you want to play,

You're the wife of a coach.

If he seems to be blind as to what to wear,

To the startling change when you cut your hair,

If he looks at you with a far off stare,

You're the wife of a coach.

If your dreams are heavier than your purse,

If you're mother, comrade, wife and nurse,

If you look at another and think he's worse,

You're the wife of a coach.

If you're loyal, kind-hearted, good humored too,

If you love the guy, and I know you do,

There's nobody quite as glad as you, The wife of a coach.

SPORTS AFIELD

By TED KESTING

The word "luck" takes a beating in fishing circles, says Robert D. Hall, Salt-Water Editor of Sports Afield Magazine. Serious anglers know that success in fishing is most often the result of careful planning and know-how. This, not luck, is why one fisherman consistently catches more than his neighbor.

There are many little tricks of rigging a lure or cutting a bait that have been handed down from fisherman to fisherman. The more we fraternize with our fellow-anglers, the more we will learn the special gimmicks of the trade than can turn a seemingly blank day into several hours of very hot fishing.

In certain areas where it is common practice to use groundup fish for chumming, anglers have discovered that on many occasions fish, such as school tuna, become so intent on feeding the chum that they will often disregard a piece of cut bait. You can eat a hamburger, but just try and hold a ball of ground mousbunker on a hook. Use a hairnet around a ball of chum for holding it together on a hook. This will often bring desirable results when fish are finicky and the water is clear.

Anglers have developed a method of keeping bait down without a sinker fastened to the line which could distract the fish. To overcome the customary method of rigging with hook, leader and sinker, they use a hook on a short piece of wire leader, placing the hook through the lips of the bait fish and dropping a sinker into its stomach. The round sinker is fastened to the hook with a short length of line. By varying the weight of the sinker the bait fish can be moved in a natural feeding manner.

Many years ago surf fishermen added a tailhook pork rind to the hook of the metal squid for the fish that would strike short. Now they are utilizing the method of the tandem rigging using one lure ahead of another, which has proved to be very successful in freshwater fishing. A bucktail-streamer fly, dressed on a 1/0 "Z" nickel hook, in various color combinations is used on a nine or ten inch length of nylon, which is then fastened to the upper end of the leader on which the squid is attached.

FUNGUS DISEASE "SCAB"

The fungus disease known as "scab" is hitting Kentucky grain crops—barley, wheat, oats, rye, corn, etc.—and hitting it hard, says Verne Finkner, Kentucky Experiment Station grains specialist.

Unfortunately nothing can be done about the disease once it strikes grain fields. Scab-hit grain is discounted on the sales market, and it also has less feed value, Finkner noted.

COAL ASSOCIATION SEEKING OIL IMPORT RESTRICTIONS

CHICAGO, June 5—The National Coal Association called on Congress today to place mandatory restrictions by law immediately on imports of foreign crude oil, residual oil and products.

NCA, the nationwide organization of bituminous coal producers, asked that imports be limited in conformance with the formula set out by the Presidential Advisory Committee on Energy Supplied and Resources Policy in 1955.

The coal association also urged Congress to set up an independent coal research commission, as recommended by a special House subcommittee on coal research last year.

The import resolution, adopted on the closing day of the NCA convention here, said imports of foreign oil—particularly residual oil—"continue to be a serious threat to the coal industry" and thereby threaten the national security as defined in the 1955 Trade Agreements Extension Act.

The resolution, passed as the House moved toward a vote on another proposed extension of the Trade Act, recalled that Congressional leaders and the Administration promised in 1955 to support further legislation limiting oil imports if the 1955 act did not accomplish its purpose.

The Office of Defense Mobilization found more than a year ago that crude oil imports exceed the 1954 level to an extent threatening national security. ODM recommended voluntary cutbacks in crude oil imports, but they still exceed the 1954 level "to the detriment of the bituminous coal industry," and threaten national security, NCA said. However, it added, ODM has not recommended cutbacks or taken other action to restrict import of residual oil.

The coal association said the imports of crude oil, residual oil and products, exceeding the 1954 level, are "a continuing threat to national security which contributes to unemployment, damages the bituminous coal industry and impairs our over-all fuel economy."

The research resolution said the future of the coal industry depends on the industry's ability to meet demands of the nation's increasing needs for energy.

Research is increasingly important to the coal industry's maintenance and expansion of productive capacity and markets, NCA said.

The resolution particularly urged members of the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee to approve legislation now pending before them to establish an independent commission to administer a program of coal research.

Records Show Alcoholism Is Ancient Problem

Frankfort, June—Associated with drinking of beverage alcohol are many factors. Some consider it a social problem, others an economic problem. Many churchmen think it solely a moral degeneracy. The American Medical Association has declared it a disease and, as such, a public health problem.

There is a continuous record of the use of beverage alcohol from earliest written history until the present. The record shows that always there have been persons who develop an uncontrollable thirst. They drink compulsively to satisfy a craving that will power cannot affect, regardless of how hard they try.

Until 1935, no exploration of this uncontrollable craving had ever been made, in spite of the fact that drinking had been a custom in certain strata of society for literally thousands of years. It was well-known that in certain individuals even a small amount of alcohol would trigger a craving for more and more. These alcohol-prone persons have wrecked brilliant careers by constant resort to the bottle. They were unable to exercise control of thirst.

It is a reasonable assumption that if every person who drank followed the same pattern, if it was natural for imbibing to develop uncontrolled craving which led to ruin, we would have prohibition which would be strictly enforced.

The studies started in 1935 by Yale University have established certain facts—that one out of every nine people who use beverage alcohol will become a problem drinker, that one out of 16 will become a confirmed alcoholic. Why this minority of drinkers gets into trouble is the objective of more than 30 separate research projects in the United States. While no completely satisfactory answer has yet been found there is much evidence that psychological tensions play a part, some evidence that the bio-chemical individuality may be an important factor.
