This Town— That World

If, as we sit down to that Thanksgiving turkey, we don't remember those who would find salt bacon a feast, we are not as thankful as we should be.

NICE BEAVERS

Now comes the report that beavers have started a dam on Middle Creek. It would appear that our busy friends have given up on the federal government and decided to do the job for Eastern Kentucky themselves.

OUTSIDE HELP

We wonder what the reaction has been here at home to our recent story on the Boy Scout fund-raising drive and how badly it is lagging. What makes us wonder more about this reaction is that of the M. D. Angel Company, Huntington, W. Va. An official of this firm read about the need for funds to carry on the Boy Scout work, and last week—all unsolicited—came a letter from Angel's to The Times, with a $25 check enclosed. Makes some of us a little ashamed, doesn't it?

"UNABLE" (SIC)

At hand is a letter from Puzant and Company who do business at Shahabad street, Kouche Mohandes No. 21, Teheran, Iran, which reads: "We shall be very much obliged to you if you subscribe us for one year to Floyd County Times and send us 3 copies of every issue together with your invoice to unable to send you remittance."

Now it appears that we may have to call a staff conference about this subscription, since the letter says they want an invoice "to unable us" to send the subscription price.

We've already sent out so many invoices that apparently have "unable" folks to remit that the wolf is threatening to bring her pups inside.

"ROAD" ENDS AT BERA, KY.

Civil War Drama Staged Past 4 Years Will Not Be Shown Again, Report

Those who did not see "Wilderness Road," the Civil War drama staged at Berea College during the last four years, will never see it.

For the college board of trustees has decided not to repeat the play for a fifth season. Announcement of the decision was made Monday by Berea president Francis S. Hutchins.

The drama, dealing with the Appalachian area people during the Civil War, was written by Pulitzer Prize-winning author Paul Green.

During its four seasons, it attracted 162,000 persons to the outdoor amphitheatre built at the foot of Indian Fort Mountain three miles east of Berea.

Dr. Hutchins said the board based its decision partly on the fact that the play had suffered financial losses in the first year and last season because of heavy rains.

The first showing was in 1955, the final one last summer.

COMMISSION CHAIRMAN SUBMITS RESIGNATION

ACTION MAKES NEW VACANCY TO BE FILLED

Approval of Roberts' Appointment Expected; Letter Hits 'Intrigue'

Burl Spurlock, chairman of the Prestonsburg Gas & Water Commission, Tuesday submitted his resignation from the Commission in a letter addressed to Mayor Bill Napier. The resignation is effective immediately.

Mr. Spurlock said he had delayed mailing his resignation to the Mayor until he had given Charles A. Hirsch & Co., Cincinnati, fiscal agent of the city in the sale of outstanding bonds, time to consider the situation and the effect of his action.

Final approval by the bondholders of the recent appointment of George T. Roberts as the new member of the Commission had not been made Tuesday but was expected. He and Adrian Collins recently were sworn in as Commission members by Mayor Napier. Roberts to succeed Russell Hagewood, whose term expired Nov. 19. A successor to Spurlock will be named by the Mayor.

The letter of resignation follows, in part:

"For the past ten years I have served as a member of the Prestonsburg City Gas and Water Commission and for approximately six years I have served as chairman of the commission. During this time we have been able to secure for the City of Prestonsburg a greatly expanded gas and water system and a new water plant. I have performed the duties of this office in an effort to provide this community with adequate and efficient gas and water systems. I have given my services gladly, but not without personal sacrifices of time, effort and money.

"As long as I was able to serve with benefit to the people of my community I was glad to do so. Now, however, it appears that you have injected factional interests in what should have been an entirely non-factional body. You have done so under the guise of taking the Commission out of the hands and giving the citizens a representative. Yet

SCHOOL LUNCH COSTS SHOWN

USDA Foods Shipped Through Prestonsburg; 16 Counties Are Served

Commodity distribution for school lunchroom use is funneled through Prestonsburg for seven counties in the Eastern end of the state, according to Blanche Dingus, health coordinator of the Floyd county school system.

Six counties, besides Floyd, that receive the U. S. Department of Agriculture foods by rail from Prestonsburg are Martin, Johnson, Pike, Knott, Magoffin and Morgan. Nine other counties receiving part of their foods from cars at Prestonsburg are Breathitt, Perry, Harlan, Wolfe, Letcher, Lee, Carter, Rowan, and Lawrence. In addition, much food for Powell county is handled through here by the Wolfe county system.

The cost of the lunchroom program in Floyd county is reflected in the amount of $22,456.99 paid in October. Food bills alone accounted for $18,215.10 of this amount and cooks were paid a total of $3,910.18. A few current bills remained unpaid at the time the figures were compiled.

This county has 18 lunchrooms, feeding 4,600 children, it was said by Miss Dingus who is in charge of the program. The entire program is financed by the 25 cents paid by children for the lunches with a four to five and one-half cent reimbursement from the state in certain categories.

Additional figures that point up the magnitude of the lunchroom program is the $5,521.71 remaining to be paid for the months of September and October and other unpaid expenditures of $526.19 for the two months.

Trucks of the school systems served here pick up the food from cars at the Prestonsburg depot upon notice from Miss Dingus that it has arrived.

Quarterly Court Term Monday Convicts Eight; Driver's Permit Revoked

Eight persons were convicted and ordered to pay fines in quarterly court Monday while one was winning an acquittal at the hands of a jury. Two other jury trials ended in convictions.

Heaviest penalty imposed was the $100 fine of James Hays, convicted of drunk driving. His driver's license was revoked for a period of six months.

Acquitted was Charlie W. Clark, accused of hunting without license. A second charge on the same offense was set for trial Dec. 2.

Others convicted, charges against them and fines assessed follow: Buddy Hyden, slander, $10 and costs; Doffa Howell, hunting without license, $15; Junior Jones, drunkenness, $10; Coon Sammons, drunkenness, $10; Othar Lumpkin, drunkenness, $10.

The whiskey case against Bill Hagan was filed away, subject to re-arrest. Breaking and entering charges against Tavis Hamilton and Buddy Huffman were dismissed when there was no prosecution.

FIRM ASSISTS RESCUE SQUAD

Steel, Windows Donated By Gas Company Here; Equipment Tour Slated

Officials of the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad said this week that the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company has made a contribution toward the squad's proposed new building of steel and windows, valued at $3,000.

The steel may be sufficient for the entire structure. Enough windows were given by the gas company to supply all needs of the new building.

Equipment accumulated by the Emergency & Rescue Squad will be on exhibit throughout the county Saturday, Dec. 20, it was said Monday. All rolling stock of the squad loaded with lifesaving equipment, boats and the like will tour the county, accompanied by squad members.

New items recently acquired by the squad includes a 25-kilowatt generator, fire extinguishers, stretchers, blankets and radio equipment.

A site for the building proposed as permanent quarters for the Emergency & Rescue Squad has been provided by the fiscal court, and construction work will be begun as soon as funds are available. "But we must depend on public support for that money," a squad leader pointed out. "It all depends on how much the people are interested."

FIRE SUSPECT JAILED HERE

16 Little Paint Blazes Cause Officers To Eye 'Firebug' Possibility

Shell Spencer waived preliminary hearing before County Judge Henry Stumbo, Wednesday morning. When he failed to execute the $1,000 appearance bond asked, he was remanded to jail.

Sixteen small forest fires in the Little Paint section of the county have authorities seeking to pin down a "fire bug" and one phase of this legal action was slated to be done today with the hearing of Shell Spencer, 22, of that community, who was arrested and jailed here Saturday.

Forest Ranger Roe Turner said that when the work of an incendiary was suspected after an unusually large number of woodland blazes had broken out on Little Paint, a watcher was posted in the hills, armed with field glasses. The ranger added that Spencer was sighted setting a fire and that his arrest followed. Spencer was released Monday under $1,000 bond for his Wednesday court appearance here.

Turner said there have apparently been more woodland blazes of incendiary origin this season than usual. But, he added, most of the fires still are caused by hunters smoking out game from trees and beneath rocks.

On the whole, the forest ranger said, Floyd county has been suffering less from forest fires than other counties. "We have had a number of fires this season but have been able to keep up with them and hold down the acreage burned over per fire."

Turner said the largest crew used in fighting a fire in the county this season numbered 14, and that these were used in bringing a Bull Creek blaze under control.

Conservation Officers Arrest Five Violators Of Game, Fish Laws

Five arrests for fish and game law violations were made last week by Conservation Officers Raymond Copley and Don Meade, and two of the five have paid fines.

Chipley Bennett, Kermit, W. Va., was fined $21.50 on a plea of guilty to fishing with improper license, and Jim Conn, who was arrested on opening day of the hunting season on a charge of hunting without license, paid $31.50.

Others arrested and charged against them follow: Buddy Ward, of Martin, hunting without license; Levi Ousley, of Dock, hunting without license; John B. Burchett, of Endicott, poaching on the Dewey Lake game refuge.

PRISON TERMS FOR 2 VOTED

Former Deputy Sheriff Convicted Second Time; Roark Given One Year

Two men drew prison terms at the hands of Floyd circuit court jury Monday, and one of these, Silas Derossett, former deputy sheriff, was convicted for the second time.

Derossett was given a one-year term at an earlier court term upon his conviction on a false arrest charge but was later granted a new trial. The same penalty was voted at his second trial this week.

The other defendant convicted and given a pen term was Fess Roark, who was accused of grand larceny. He, too, was given a one-year term.

Derossett was indicted by John Reynolds, who claimed he was falsely arrested for drunkenness. He will appeal the jury verdict, it was said.

Five liquor defendants were convicted within the week, and the penalties for most of the five were stiff. These, the charges against each and penalties assessed follow:

Thomas West, possessing moonshine whiskey, $50 fine, 30 days in jail; Simon Moore, possessing for sale, $100 and 60 days, $1,000 peace bond required; Ezra Marsillett, possession for sale, $50 and 30 days, $1,000 peace bond required; Ermine Poe, possessing moonshine whiskey, $50 fine, case dismissed against Mrs. Poe and a second case against both husband and wife dismissed; Lonnie Neeley, possession, $100 and 30 days, $1,000 peace bond asked.

Green Johnson, former Floyd deputy sheriff, who was marked up as escaping custody after leaving the courtroom last week when $1,000 peace bond was asked of him, returned here last Thursday and executed bond.

Charlie Nelson was cleared of a manslaughter charge in the death of a Craft child who was struck by his auto on Little Paint. Dewey Hall and Ezra S. Collins won acquittal at the conclusion of their trials for liquor possession.

Several liquor cases were continued or dismissed. Defendants in cases continued were Fred Newsome, Sr., Curt Bentley, James Lucas, Floyd Kestner, two cases, Viola Tackett, Harold Yates, James George, Zella Mae Salisbury and Edward Gayheart.

Liquor defendants winning dismissals were Jim Marsillett, James Newsome, second offense, Bill Hagan, Ervin Shepherd.

The manslaughter case of Adrian Newsome was continued till Jan. 26. Other cases dismissed were: Kermit Joseph, obstructing justice; Kermit Joseph and Fred Newsome, obstructing justice; Buddy Huffman, carrying a concealed deadly weapon, confessed, subject to re-arrest. The perjury indictment against Leonard Marsillett was quashed, to be re-submitted to the grand jury. The grand larceny trial of Herbert Salisbury was continued.

COUNCIL FOR RETARDED RECEIVES $3,300 GRANT

The Floyd County Council For Retarded Children has received a grant of $3,300 from the 1958 WHAS Crusade For Children.

The announcement was made today (Thursday) on the "1958 WHAS Crusade For Children Report To The People" over WHAS Radio and Television on Thanksgiving Day by the ministers of the "Moral Side of the News" radio panel.

The Council for Retarded Children of Pike county also received a grant from the WHAS Crusade for $9,000.

The grants were made possible by contributions totaling $138,751.37 by citizens of Kentucky and southern Indiana to the WHAS Crusade which was broadcast for 16½ hours on WHAS

Radio and TV, September 20 and 21. The total contributed to the 1958 WHAS Crusade was the highest in the five-year history of the drives.

The Floyd County Council will use its $3,300 grant to maintain classes for 25 retarded children first organized four years ago with a WHAS Crusade grant, in its Martin school.

Despite the tragedy of floods and discouraging economic conditions, this group has persisted in its work. Part of the 1958 grant is intended to help it with a new third class at Prestonsburg.

The $9,000 grant to the Council for Retarded Children of Pike county will add further WHAS Crusade support to a project that has survived floods and serious economic recession, with $7,500 earmarked for operating expenses of the school for retarded children, now being conducted in the Health Center basement in Pikeville. The additional $1,500 is toward the new three-room school building which has been erected and will be opened as soon as the heating system is completed.

The Floyd County Council has received grants from all of the WHAS Crusades, the fifth making a grand total of $16,850. The Pike county group has received two previous grants, bringing their total to $24,614.

A total of 32 grants were allocated by the ministers, including $152,202.16 to 30 Kentucky agencies, and $18,852.69 to Indiana agencies. Two Kentucky agencies received $5,500 for their work with southern Indiana children. The grand total, $171,054.85, was the largest amount ever allocated from the WHAS Crusade for Children.

Under the rules of the WHAS Crusade, grant recipients provide quarterly reports on the use of the funds given.

The "Moral Side" clergymen who allocate the funds include Dr. Duke K. McCall, president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary; the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Felix N. Pitt, secretary of the Catholic School Board, Archdiocese of Louisville; Rabbi J. J. Gittleman of Temple Adath Jeshurun; Dr. Frank Caldwell, president of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary; and the Rev. Robert T. Weston, minister of the First Unitarian Church. All are from Louisville.

CONTRACTOR ON ROAD ASKS UNION RESTRAINT

Home Of Deputy Sheriff Razed By Saturday Fire; Wiring, Thought Cause

Deputy Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis, his wife and their 11 children lost all their household belongings, including clothing, with the lone exception of a mattress, in a fire which last Saturday afternoon destroyed the home they occupied at Mare Creek.

The residence occupied by the Lewis family was owned by Wayne Scalf. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis were away from home at the time. Their children said smoke was first discovered near the roof, and it was held that the blaze was caused by defective wiring. The house was a two-story frame structure, of six rooms.

Neither Lewis nor Scalf had insurance.

SMALL BUSINESS HELP TO BE MEETING TOPIC

Seek Killer Of Merchant

Securing of investment capital for small businesses in Eastern Kentucky under the new federal Small Business Investment Corporation Act will be explored at the December 1 meeting of the Eastern Kentucky Regional Planning Commission at Pikeville.

The commission is an agency of the Kentucky Department of Economic Development. Eastern Kentucky bankers have been invited to attend the session, set for 2:00 p.m. (E.S.T.) at the Hatcher hotel.

Opportunities for organizing a corporation under provisions of the new legislation will be discussed at the meeting by Tyrus R. Davis, Louisville investment counselor. Davis aided in drafting the Small Business Investment Corporation Act and is helping to draft regulations under which it will be administered. Corporations organized under the Act would provide capital for small businesses meeting certain requirements.

In announcing the meeting, Commission Chairman B. F. Reed said, "We feel that a source of financing for good small businesses in our area, especially those using local resources as well as labor, is one of the most urgent requirements for development of Eastern Kentucky." He added that it is hoped that the new legislation will provide "effective help in this direction."

ELAM CLAIMS WORK HALTED BY PICKETING

Contractor Under Bond As Peace Warrant Sworn By Men Alleging Threats

Work stoppages on the Dewey Lake road resulting from alleged interference by labor union members caused the contractor on the project, Bill Elam, to seek a temporary restraining order last Friday against members of Local 1445, International Hodcarriers Union.

The temporary order was granted and a hearing of the case has been set for Dec. 1.

Meanwhile, members of the local swore out a peace warrant for Elam, alleging he threatened them. He is under $500 bond, and when the case was called for hearing Tuesday afternoon by County Judge Henry Stumbo both parties to the action agreed to permit him to remain under bond, pending hearing later.

Elam, who is in the contracting business under the firm name of the Elam Construction Company named in his complaint Eldred Akers, Ballard Russ and all other members of Local 1445, as well as the local itself. His petition, prepared by Atty. W. W. Burchett, says he contracted with the United Construction Workers' Local 778-A to furnish labor on the road project skirting Dewey Lake to the Stratton Branch recreation area. Pursuant to that contract, it was stated, UCW members signed for work and are employed on the job.

But, the petition adds, Akers, Russ and others, claiming to be members of Local 1445, International Hodcarriers, have caused a picket line to operate around Elam's place of work, molesting and interfering with him, with the result that work on the project shut down. The defendants, the complaint alleges, are claiming that Elam and members of the UCW do not have a right

CHAPTER HERE OKEHS PLAN

Pledges Full Support Of National Foundation For Broadened Program

Floyd County Chapter of The National Foundation has enthusiastically endorsed the organization's new health program announced on July 22, Ray Howard, chairman, declared today.

Chapter members pledged their full support of the broadened health objectives. This means continued attention to the problems of polio and includes virus diseases, arthritis, birth defects and extended investigations of central nervous system disorders as initial targets.

"We discussed all phases of the program and what it will mean to our communities," Howard said. "We believe that this is a long step forward in the field of health and that the lives of local citizens as well as those in communities across the land will be enriched by the results.

"The experience of The National Foundation has qualified it to undertake these new goals. Like polio, arthritis and birth defects are diseases that cripple and often keep their victims from normal, productive lives. Expanded research in virus diseases is expected to throw new light on many diseases, since the program will be sufficiently flexible to move in whatever direction research leads.

"For 20 years The National Foundation has fought polio and brought about a preventive vaccine. With the encouragement and support of the American people, physicians also made great advances in helping repair the damage done by polio through rehabilitation. This experience will be useful in our new work."

"The chapter will continue to assist local polio patients who need help, the chairman added, and in time will develop a patient aid program for victims of arthritis and birth defects through 18 years of age. The chapter will continue to conduct the March of Dimes campaign in January to assure financial support for the enlarged program.

Tidbits Of Kentucky Folklore

"The Teacher — Half Century Later"

(Part I)

As I am soon coming to the age of retirement as a school teacher, I cannot help thinking back over more than a half century of my own work and the reasons why so many of my generation chose to be teachers. Back in our little Fidelity neighborhood, fifty and sixty years ago, the teacher was somebody, a symbol of learning and advancement. Though most of my own teachers then were not far advanced in learning, they wanted to know; and our society gave them every opportunity to be regarded as actually scholarly. Of course, knowing even a few things at that time raised you above the general level, so that "book learning" seemed to exalt people rather fast. Many of my acquaintances, especially older people, could not read and write; many others could barely attest their literacy by writing their names when necessary or spelling out a few items in the county paper. Knowing anything above the average was certainly a mark of distinction. And our elders, for some strange reasons, felt that knowledge was a great thing, though they might not have had very clear ideas of what constitutes education. Since nobody was even a high school graduate, it was easy to imagine that one became educated largely by his own efforts. Maybe that was one reason why a person with some learning was fairly worshipped in our far-away neck of the woods. This attitude toward a teacher was not lost on me, I assure you. I was not a strong boy and young man. I early had spinal curvature and was worthless at lifting at log-rollings, and similar occasions when strong backs and arms were at a premium. But I could spell and read and do simple arithmetic and grammar and geography and history. Consequently, I wanted, as far back as I can remember, to be a teacher, to acquire some of the strange glamor attached to people who knew things.

Everything, as seen a long time afterwards, seemed to help my dream. Because I could read and did read, I was exhibited as a sort of strange freak. My early teachers, almost as soon as I could read very well, would ask me to help some smaller child with his lessons. That gave me greater thrills than any subsequent achievement. My pupils were not always bright or eager to learn, but I tried to teach them just as the teacher would have if she had had time, with all eight grades in one room. Being asked to help these country boys and girls made me feel that I was called to be a teacher, a strange sort of feeling that fifty years has not wholly erased. Nobody ever seemed to think that I could have been anything else. I certainly dismissed most other dreams of being something besides a teacher.

And, when I was eighteen, like so many other boys in my generation, I began my first one-roomed country school. It is true that I was not the exalted personage that I thought teachers to be, but, looking back now, I can see that I was treated by the people of the community where I taught as if I were somewhat different from any other eighteen-year-old. That treatment made me grow up too fast and appear to be an ancient sage, but it helped to carry on the tradition that the teacher is somebody. Though it met many reserves in that first great year and sometimes wondered at the end of the day whether I could tackle my job the next day, I somehow arose with the dawn, for I lived with a very industrious family, walked across the fields to my schoolhouse, and tried again to prove to the world that a teacher is a very important person, what is now called a V.I.P.

That was a long time ago. Teachers have come and gone. Our schools have grown beyond our own dreams of size and complexity. Not always has the teacher been a very important person in our times, but we who have stayed with our early dreams have felt, beneath our humble exteriors, that the things of the mind are great, that the teacher, whether he lives up to his ideals or not, can be and ought to be somebody, just as we ignorant back-country folks regarded him at the turn of the century.

STALK POPULATION OF CORN

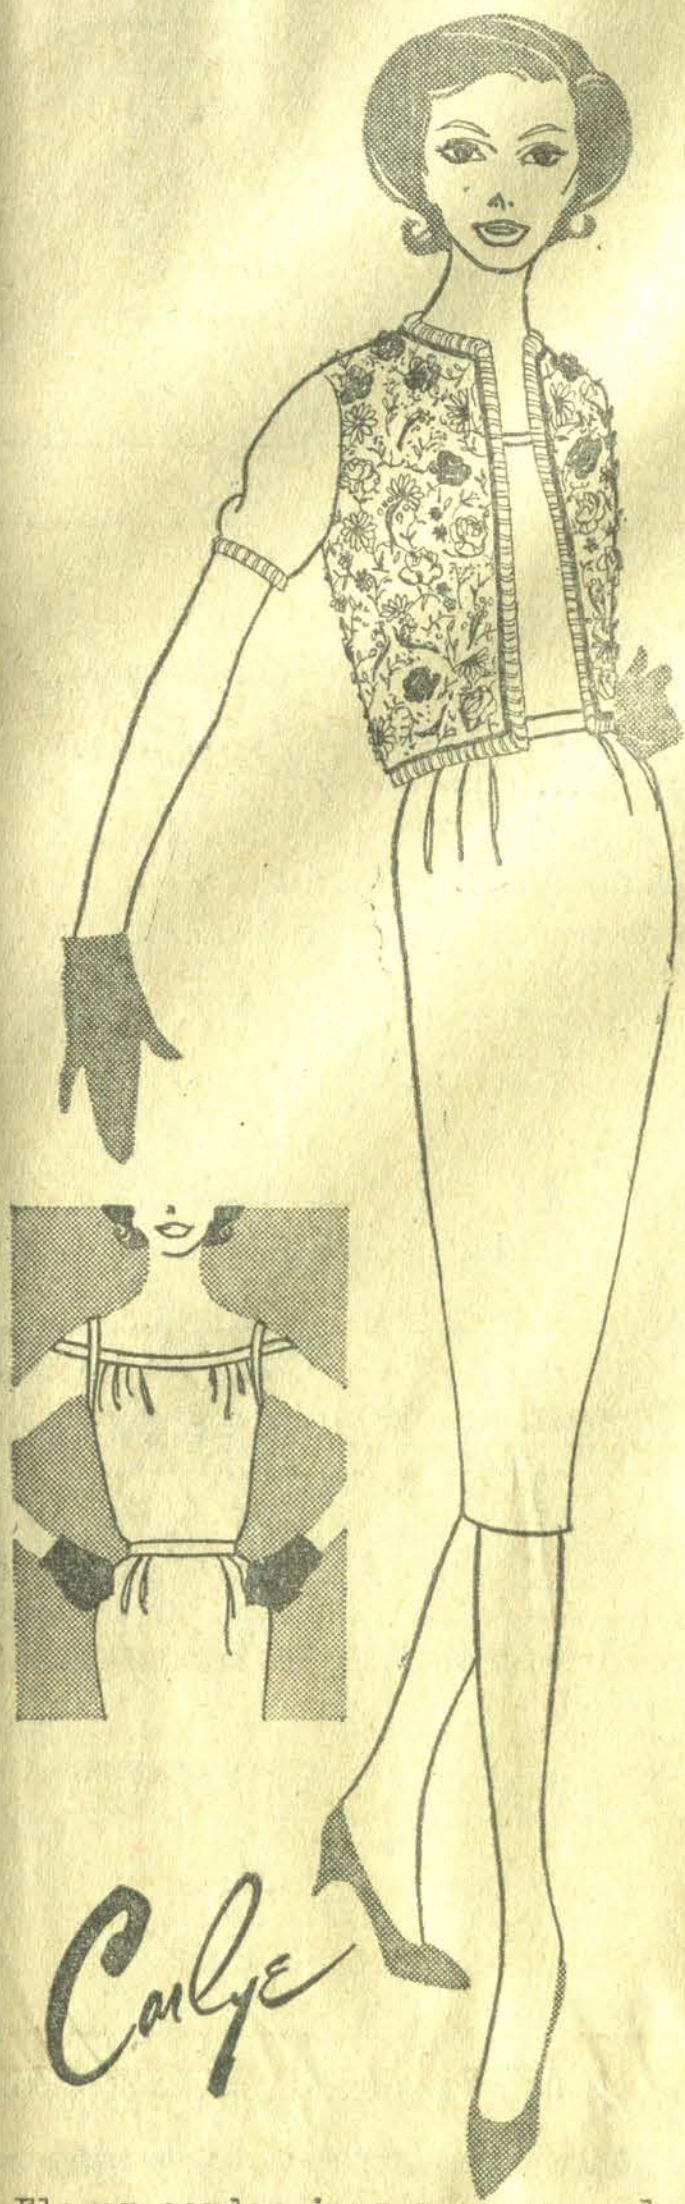

Farmers are not getting full returns from nitrogen fertilizer if they don't plant corn thickly enough to use up all the nitrogen put on the field. That's the conclusion of E. C. Doll and C. E. Wyatt, Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station fertility specialists, who ran a corn-fertility test this year. They used varying amounts of nitrogen and varied the stalk population per acre.

Kentucky is one of nine southeastern states to which canned sliced apples and apple sauce have been allocated for use in the school lunch program this year, reports the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

FARM-HOME WEEK

Two important phases of farming—contact farming and "agribusiness"—are on the annual Farm and Home Week program this year. Farm and Home Week is held at the University of Kentucky. This year's edition, the 48th consecutive one, is Jan. 27-30.

you have chosen a "citizen" who is a brother-in-law to a director of one of the banks and whose family connection with that bank is well known. Furthermore, the manner of your appointment and of the installation of the two bank representatives in secret, does not lend credence to your desire to be impartial. The further fact that each member of the City Council received a telegram from the chairman of the Board of that same bank urging the appointment of this "citizen" would seem to indicate a more than passing interest on the part of that institution.

"You are aware of the disapproval which the bonding companies have voiced in regard to the manner in which you have handled this appointment. You are aware that a suit has been filed by the attorney for that bank on behalf of your "citizen" appointee seeking to insure his appointment; a suit without legal foundation. You are aware that a meeting of the Utility Commission to be held in your private office has been called by two purported members of the Commission but that these men are not in fact qualified members of that body. They cite as their authority for calling such a meeting the same ordinance which declares them to be unqualified. Therefore, they have no authority to call such a meeting and no action taken at said meeting will have any legal effect.

"As I have indicated, I believe the record of the present duly qualified Utility Commission is a commendable one. Throughout the past days it has become apparent, however, that the administration and methods of operation of the City Utilities have been under attack from certain quarters. The facts have been misrepresented and misconstrued, not from any sense of civic responsibility or civic virtue but from a desire for personal advantage.

"I cannot serve effectively within a framework of political chicanery and factional intrigues. The affairs of the Gas and Water Commission are too important to the entire community to be used to advance the interest of any one group. Since I cannot condone such tactics, nor cooperate with men who do, I herewith tender my resignation from the Commission so that you may be free to appoint members more acceptable to your way of thinking. This resignation is effective immediately."

to work on the road project. Right-of-way clearing has been done on the road job. But most of the work has focused on a culvert and fill where the road crosses the upper part of the inlet on which the boat dock is located. This and other concrete work, Elam claims, must be done before inclement weather arrives, and any delay in the work will cause him great harm, since concrete installations must be made before other work on the road can be completed.

Elam's petition also says he fears bodily harm, since acts of the defendants are of a continuous nature, and that his contract is in danger of forfeiture.

Speed Is Dangerous

The Kentucky Department of Public Safety reminds motorists that the excessive speed is still the greatest danger on highways. In every event speed should be so controlled as may be necessary to avoid colliding with any person, vehicle or other conveyance on or entering the highway.

Baptists To Launch Week Of Preparation For Revival Dec. 7-14

The congregation of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church will launch Sunday a week of intensive preparation for eight days of evangelistic services, December 7-14.

The Rev. Harper Shannon, coordinator of the Morris-Nicholson Evangelistic Association, of Birmingham, Alabama, will preach in both services this Sunday and lead during next week in the enlistment of members and a program of visitation.

One of the features of the preparation period is the visitation by the deacons of the church in the homes of resident church members on Sunday afternoon. Neighborhood prayer meetings will be held throughout Prestonsburg next week and early morning prayer meetings for men will be held at the church daily at 7:30 a.m.

Evangelist for the week of revival services will be the Rev. Max Morris, of Birmingham. He is an able, young preacher of the gospel and, according to the local pastor, has been used of the Lord in many churches of the Southern Baptist Convention to bring a great number of souls to Christ. The evangelist will be assisted by Eddy Nicholson, composer and singer, who will be in charge of the choir and congregational singing. He is the composer of the beautiful gospel song, "Try Jesus" and others which will be used during the meetings.

The pastor, the Rev. Ira McMillen, and members of the congregation extend a warm welcome to everyone in the community to attend these special services.

The week-night services will begin at 7 o'clock, and a nursery will be provided for infants and small children during each service.

JAP BEETLES INVADE PIKE

Infestation by Insects Causing Deep Concern; Insecticides Being Used

Japanese fliers in December, 1941, made their presence felt at Pearl Harbor — but another Japanese flier, in existence a lot longer than the Nipponese air fleet, still is doing more damage every day to U. S. possessions.

This "flier" is the dreaded Japanese beetle, an insect pest first identified in this country about World War I. It is a voracious feeder on about 280 species of plants, and a pest extremely hard to wipe out.

Right now it's causing concern in Pike county, and is the target for a special eradication campaign in which the Governor of Kentucky, the Extension Service, the USDA, the Kentucky state entomologist, the State Department of Agriculture, and other agencies are working.

About the only thing that has saved this state, and possibly the nation, from widespread destruction by the Jap beetle—it looks almost exactly like our common June bug except for color—is that as a flier it is not much "shakes." About 300 to 400 yards is as much as it can—possibly will—fly to appease its appetite.

If it were a jet-fighter-type insect—capable of long sustained flight—we'd be in deep trouble.

It's that rarity among insects, a year-round pest. There's almost never a day goes by that the Jap beetle isn't attacking our food and fiber crops. For several weeks in the summer as a flying beetle, they eat foliage from fruit trees, devour corn silks, hit grapes—or any of the other 230 species of plants.

The rest of the year it is a grub, a worm-like creature, that feeds on root systems, particularly grass roots. The female Jap beetles mate and lay eggs in the mid-summer; when the grubs develop, they move underground and live off the root systems.

The pity of the first American Jap Beetle infestation in 1917 is that a $25,000 eradication program then would have wiped out the pest. But nothing was known then of the pest, and methods and materials were primitive compared with today.

It first was noticed in Louisville in 1937 in one Jefferson county area. Prompt control work reduced the danger, though a constant check is kept for the insect. Several other counties have reported it since but the beetle has been kept under tight control.

In Pike county, the control job, says Howard Tilson, deputy state entomologist, is not a "one-shot" job. The current campaign is on a large scale—but after the beetle is brought under control, a constant check must be made to see that it will not recur.

The Pike method involves use of Dieldrin, a powerful phosphatic insecticide applied in granular form. The granules are like unto sand in consistency; in hilly Pike county, it was applied from airplanes since ground application was difficult. The granules are dropped in Jap beetle areas. The "sand" sifts down through the grass to which it is applied and stays there until it rains.

The granules dissolve in rain—but the Dieldrin, not being soluble in water—penetrates a few inches into the subsurface and stays there. Jap beetle grubs, which live in this area, come in contact with the poison and die.

It's that simple—provided you can find the Jap beetle infestation areas.

and he went in, but Mrs. Stamper failed to answer when he called.

Gibson and some nearby women went in the Stamper store and found Mrs. Stamper lying bound and gagged at the back of the store room between the end of a counter and a refrigerator.

Gibson said he found toast burning and Mrs. Stamper's breakfast partly eaten when he entered her living quarters at the back of the store.

Later, it was learned, Edward Amyx had passed up the Grassy Creek road with a tractor and corn picker about 15 minutes till 8 and saw a black Oldsmobile car parked by the store. He said he observed the car while backing up twice in order to get around it. The car had Magoffin county license, he remembered, and no one was in it.

When Sheriff Phipps got there about 9:10, the body was still warm.

Coroner L. H. Owens said death was caused by skull fractures and strangulation. In addition to binding her hands and feet with bailing wire, the robbers had gagged her with a handkerchief and had put tape around her face to hold the gag. She also had been bludgeoned on the head and had two skull fractures, Owens said.

Sheriff Phipps said money had been taken from a leather purse she kept on her person and that the glass in a door leading into a back office had been broken. Mrs. Stamper had a safe in the office, but the safe had not been opened.

Sheriff Phipps and State Police said they believed the robber or robbers had tried to force Mrs. Stamper to open the safe or tell them the combination before killing her.

It's Interesting...

To note that most people who manage to have substantial savings account balances in the bank do so by saving systematically—modest amounts—deposited regularly.

It's Surprising...

How your savings grow and grow, once you get the habit of banking something every payday. Cast an eye on these examples:

OF WONDER AND SUCH
From the Saturday Review we learn that one of its readers, with time on his hands and a certain curiosity to satisfy, is spending a lot of that time searching for words which are spelled the same way, forward or backward, from stem to stern. And he has come up with these words: ere, bib, did, bob, dud, eke, ewe, eye, kayak, level, refer, radar, revolver, rotator and deified. But he doesn't stop there. When he tires of this search he goes hunting for words which spell another word backwards. For instance: straw, diaper, reknits, deliver, dessert.

A story we would like to write—if it could be confirmed—would concern that Martin county tournament in which certain men jostled with bulldozers for steeds.

VICTORY AND DEFEAT

I have a reputation of being a moron in the area of mechanics, if not in other fields of endeavor. This is a matter that does not admit of much argument, since I have been known to sit by at a safe distance and watch the wife repair electric irons and a wide assortment of other items, and inasmuch as my one attempt to mend an air rifle resulted in a completely dismantled rifle which was destined never to fire another shot. This reputation for helplessness has saved me a lot of work around the place, yet it hasn't been good for my ego.

Try it sometime, if you don't know what I'm talking about. Reach for a temporarily stalled toy, for instance, and have it snatched from your hand by a horrified member of the family. Or listen to some smart aleck remark that the only nail the old man can hit is the one on his thumb. It's plumb exasperatin'.

I had my brief moment of triumph recently, however, when some other bright member of the family pushed the catch on the bathroom door and slammed said door shut as he left. The door stayed that way a desperately long time, and others of the family admitted defeat.

Then Old Stumblebum gets out his trusty screwdriver, takes the metal plate off, spies the little hickey that needs sliding back, actually slides it back, and presto! the door is open. More than that, I get that plate back where it belonged.

I am not one to boast of my achievements—at least, not publicly—but on this one occasion I hie myself up town and over a cup of coffee relate the story to a friend, carefully pointing out that at last I have assumed my rightful station in my own home—the master fixer-upper.

The friend seems duly impressed till, finally and as gently as he can, he asks if I noticed a little slot in the lock facing before I took it off. I did recall such an opening.

"All you needed to do," he said, "was run a small screwdriver in that little slot, and push the latch back."

That was a bit disconcerting, but I still am proud to state that it was I—me—none other—who opened the bathroom door.

ONE FERTILIZER GRADE

The grade of fertilizer known as the "8-24-16" analysis has been temporarily discontinued by fertilizer producers in this state.

To find the "population center", Tilson and his co-workers used several hundred traps. These are baited with a substance that never fails to attract the Jap beetles. The traps are set out generally in a straight line for as much as a mile or two and a few yards apart. Accurate counts are kept of the number of Jap beetles found in each trap. When this is finished, the traps are then set in a similar line at right angles to the first line, and a new count made. By plotting the trap counts from this giant "X" the entomologists can find the center of the population. Then the Dieldrin is spread in that area.

Here is where the beetle's poor flying capability helps. When center of an infestation area is found, the entomologists know that the edges of that area probably will be only a few hundred yards away.

The Martin Homemakers Club met Nov. 18 at the home of Mrs. Chris Straub, of Allen, who had charge of the devotions.

Mrs. J. D. Adams introduced the Floyd County Homemakers president, Mrs. J. T. Spillman, of Wayland, who read the Homemakers' Creed and a poem by Grace Noll Crowell.

Mrs. Adams gave a detailed lesson on floor coverings, their construction and care. Mrs. Straub served a dessert course to the following members: Mesdames J. D. Adams, Emmitt Tackett, Sherill Frazier, Charles Marshall, Earrit Hayes and three guests, Mrs. J. T. Spillman, Mrs. Raymond Childers, and Miss Frances Howland.

Drift Club Observes Annual Men's Night

Annual Men's Night was observed by the Drift Woman's Club at the Turner Elkhorn Mining office building Nov. 15.

A turkey dinner preceded one of most interesting programs the club ever had. The members sang their prize-winning skit, with two verses added to honor the husbands.

Miss Mary Jerome, chairman of the Americanism committee, was in charge of the program. She chose the timely topic of Alaska, where she had spent five years with the U. S. Public Health Service.

She mentioned several obstacles that Alaska faces. Since it has been a territory, everything is government-controlled — communications, transportation, fur and lumber, industries. Some arrangements for private industry to come in will have to be made to provide taxes for Alaska to govern itself, she pointed out. Miss Jerome showed some very interesting slides and answered questions.

Door prizes were awarded to the men holding lucky numbers.

Historical Unit Probably Has The "TickLicker"

By CHARLES F. HINDS
Secretary-Treasurer, Kentucky Historical Society

Historians are reasonably sure that the famed "Ticklicker" is located in the Kentucky Historical Society Museum in Frankfort. "Ticklicker" was Daniel Boone's favorite rifle.

It was bought in 1900 from Colonel Gilbert Walden, a self-styled "Southern Elocutionist, Rough Rider, and Cow-boy Orator." According to Walden it was made for Daniel Boone by a North Carolinian gunsmith by the name of Graham, whose muzzle mark consisting of eight stars indicates that it was made sometime in the latter part of the 18th century.

"Ticklicker" was featured in the February 25, 1925, issue of THE AMERICAN RIFLEMAN. According to the article, there is no contradiction between the period ascribed to the historical-society-owned rifle and the characteristics of the first of the Kentucky rifles. It lacks the pronounced crescent-shaped butt plate common among flintlocks of the following century. Furthermore, the absence of a patchbox in the stock marks it as a Southern rifle, perhaps, one made in North Carolina.

The Boone rifle was passed on to Gilbert Walden with the information that Graham made the rifle for Boone around 1760. This, then, was the rifle in all probability which Daniel Boone had with him when he first entered Kentucky in the Prestonsburg area in 1767 and which he continued to use until the year 1784 when he gave it to a mountain trapper by the name of Dedman.

It remained in the Dedman family for years, hidden away, almost forgotten in a closet, until it was discovered and publicized in a newspaper. Colonel Ellis of Louisville read the news articles, looked up the family, purchased the rifle. Dr. Percy W. deBarnay of Tallulah Falls, Georgia, was the next owner, and it was from this last named gentleman, a gun collector, that it was purchased by Gilbert Walden.

What proof can be found in the Draper or other original manuscripts that this is indeed Boone's famed "Ticklicker"? Several references mention this rifle by name, but a complete description of it in manuscript awaits the diligent researcher.

Irby Hensley, of Langley, will retire December 1 from service with the compressor department of United Fuel Gas Company. He is an oiler at the Beaver Creek compressor station.

Mr. Hensley first started with United Fuel in 1920 at Cobb compressor station, near Clendenin, W. Va. He moved to the gasoline plant at Cobb in 1923 as a pumpman. In 1928 Hensley worked on construction at various compressor stations, including Beaver Creek, this county, and at Lewis and Kenova in West Virginia. In 1929 he moved to Beaver Creek and has worked there since then, except for one year when he worked on the construction of Boldman compressor station.

The retiring oiler has belonged to Clendenin Lodge No. 126, F & AM, and to Bent Kedem Temple, AAONMS, of Charleston since 1922. A veteran of the U. S. Here's good advice from a busy Doctor

Most doctors are busy caring for patients all hours of the day and night. Dr. William P. Templeton is no exception, but he has a prescription for better living.

"Being a physician with long, irregular hours demands a home as free from worry as possible," Dr. Templeton says. "That's exactly why ours is all-electric — it lets me relax during my rare free moments, because there's greater comfort and convenience and fewer household repairs to bother with."

Mrs. Templeton is enthusiastic about all-electric living:

"Electricity plays a big part in our daily lives. It cooks and preserves our food, washes and dries our clothes, heats our water as well as our home. The electric wall panels provide perfect heat, even on the coldest day, and they are absolutely safe and trouble-free. As for my range, it is simply wonderful... it does a beautiful job on every meal. And with three youngsters around, you can imagine how much time and work I'm saved by my electric washer and dryer."

Mrs. Templeton, busy wife of a busy man and mother of three young children — Barbara, Scott and Cindy — enjoys cooking and baking on her modern range. "Everything always turns out exactly as planned," she says.

FARM NOTES

By ROBERT M. JONES
County Agricultural Agent

CATTLE LICE

Before the weather becomes too cold, is the best time to treat your cattle for lice. Spraying is preferred over dusting, but this must be done before the weather turns cold, as there would be danger of pneumonia. Dust should be used in case of emergency during the winter.

Either 50 per cent wettable D.D.T. or chlordane is recommended at the rate of eight pounds in 100 gallons of water. The cattle should be sprayed until wet to the skin.

For dusting use either 10 per cent DDT dust or 1 per cent rotenone dust.

FALL GRAZING

The beautiful fall weather has provided the farmers with many extra days of good pasture. The pasture season can be extended by applying fertilizer at this time. During the past few years many acres have been seeded to fescue in the county. Fescue will grow throughout the winter. An application of nitrogen fertilizer will increase growth. Two hundred pounds of ammonia nitrate applied per acre will save approximately one ton of hay. If their hay will run short this year, farmers should seriously consider treating their fescue now.

CORN FIELDS

Much of the corn has now been harvested. The stalks are left standing to be turned under next year. Standing stalks offer but little protection for the soil during the winter. The stalks also will be slow in rotting when turned under next spring.

A much better way is to disk the stalks in the field. This will provide more protection for the soil, and the stalks will rot much easier. This practice will also make plowing much easier.

Disking stalks won't take the place of a cover crop, but is the second best practice.

FOREST FIRES

Now that the leaves have fallen, the danger of forest fires has greatly increased. Let's continue to make every effort to prevent fire from starting. Fires are not only costly to landowners, but to every one. Burned forests will never be able to support a forestry enterprise in the county, that will increase the total county income.

NURSES TELL EXPERIENCE

Floyd Health Nurse Do In-Service Training At Lexington Hospital

To enable themselves to perform the services they are expected to render under the state mental health program, the public health nurses of the Floyd County Health Department recently spent a week of in-service training at Eastern State hospital, Lexington.

The nurses found particularly interesting and helpful the care and treatment given the 49 Floyd county patients who are now patients at the institution. In a report on their findings during training the nurses said:

Early diagnosis was encouraged whereby a patient may be admitted voluntarily, the physician referring either to a mental health clinic or 35 days in the state mental hospital. Medical certification by two physicians may also be used as admission for a period of 90 days. These admissions have no legal involvement and no loss of civil rights.

With the use of the tranquilizing drugs, 60 per cent of the patients are now able to return home after 60 days' treatment and observation. The new Allen building where patients are entered resembles a modern hotel with its large foyer furnished in natural maple with colorful upholstery and a low table with a lovely floral arrangement.

All personnel are soft-voiced, smiling rather than dour, and are specially trained for their particular jobs. The improved shock treatment whereby the patient is helped to return to reality was demonstrated by a woman physician.

The psychiatrist told of the tranquilizing drugs that are keeping the patients so calm that restraints are no longer needed. Group therapy has taken the place of isolation, and occupational therapy is available to all in some form.

Artistic arrangements of flowers, weaving, ceramics, wood and leather and other hand craft made by the patients of more skill were on display. Simple forms of occupation for those of lesser talent were in evidence also.

One happy oldster wearing a white butcher apron was cutting white paper in strips and talking of the apron he was making.

Play therapy also enters into their lives, sometimes for the first time. Simple games are taught, with evenings for dancing, picnics in summer and seasonal parties. A volunteer worker was interviewing patients in the male ward for Christmas gifts. This is just one of the many functions the volunteers perform, entertainment being a favorite.

"We were told," the nurses reported, that of the 1,600 patients, 629 are totally abandoned and forgotten people. These are the ones who are recipients of gifts from the Be a Friend Club members who contribute some of the treats and gifts for special occasions."

Since the government is aiding in the building program and maintenance, regular clinics are being held by a qualified psychiatrist in five different districts for the purpose of early diagnosis and continued treatment after discharge from the hospital.

Problem alcoholics are now being accepted at Western State hospital at Hopkinsville and are being rehabilitated into usefulness again.

No longer is there a stigma upon mental illness. Science has placed this affliction along with other sickness, found relief and with the understanding help of society the majority may be returned to their rightful places in their communities.

BABE DIES

Bert Shepherd, one and one-half years old, son of Dewey and Margaret Patrick Shepherd, died at the Prestonsburg General hospital, Sunday. It was said the child was a victim of burns. Funeral rites were conducted at 2 p.m. Wednesday at home, the Rev. Ashland Shepherd officiating. Burial was made in the family cemetery under the direction of Carter & Callihan Funeral Home.

Hardinsburg, seat of Breckinridge county, came into existence in 1780 as a fort built by Capt. William Hardin, soldier and frontiersman, who was known to the Indians as "Big Bill."

Kentucky dairymen in 1936 marketed 337 million pounds of whole milk to dealers compared to 1 billion, 760 million in 1956.

There's a NEW TWIST in BUNNY BREAD!

Just as it goes into the oven, two dough pieces are expertly twisted together. What a difference this "Twist" makes!

The structure of the loaf is magically changed. Dough cells are elongated, they retain moisture—and keep your bread fresh longer. The twisted loaf is soft but firm, it won't tear as you butter it.

But best of all, is the taste! Twisting seals the flavor in—and it's gently guarded by a firmer, richer crust produced by a special "Steam-Bake" process:

New BUNNY Twist is the bread your baker babies—it takes more time to bake and it costs no more.

More and more smart shoppers are reaching for the new BUNNY Twisted enriched bread. So fresh—keeping! Delicious all ways—always!

BLACK CATS PLACE 2 ON ALL-LOOP ELEVEN

Prestonsburg high school's Black Cats, 1958 winners over both Paintsville and Pikeville, were given only two places on the All-Loop Eleven at the conference last Friday. Meanwhile, Hazard, the 1958 Conference champs, and seventh-place Pikeville dominated the mythical eleven, with Paintsville placing three players.

Named to the all-star aggregation from Prestonsburg were James Allen, to the offensive backfield, and Henry Hughes to a guard position on the defensive eleven.

Jim Caudill's Bulldogs placed two players on the offensive team and two on the defensive team, while Pikeville placed two players on each team in the most unusual balloting in the league's five-year history.

In the stormy four-hour session that usually marks the fall meeting of the ten-team conference, the coaches voted to name an offensive and defensive team and as a result several players who played only offense were named on the defensive team, and vice-versa.

For example, Jenkins' Tommy Brush was an offensive fullback throughout the season but was named an offensive tackle, and Hazard's brilliant quarterback, Ken Cobb, was left off the offensive team and put on the defensive team, although he played less than 20 minutes on defense during the season.

A notable absence on the teams was Nicky Dann, six-foot-five senior Jenkins end, who had a fine season, and was an all-loop choice last season and a third-team all-state choice.

Astor Sizemore, Hazard halfback, who led the state in scoring this season, was the only repeater from last year's team.

The balloting for the second offensive and defensive teams was so confusing that the group voted to have Secretary Arthur Mullins, Elkhorn City high school athletic director, compile a master list of the players and have a committee name the team.

The League's representatives voted to return to a ten-team basketball tournament in the 1959-'60 season to select the loop basketball champion.

'WILT THE STILT' SLATED WITH GLOBETROTTERS HERE

Basketball's great two-in-one attraction—the Harlem Globetrotters with Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain—pays a visit to the Prestonsburg Gymnasium, Wednesday, December 10.

The most phenomenal cage aggregation in the history of the sports, featuring its new seven-foot-plus pride from the University of Kansas, takes on the Hawaiian All-Stars in the headliner of a gala program of basketball and added entertainment features, starting at 8 p.m.

Either the Globetrotters of old or Wilt himself would be sufficient to draw a capacity crowd to Prestonsburg, but the two of them together wrapped up in one brilliant package with plenty of other gate lures thrown in for good measure means the fans literally will be breaking down the gates to get inside.

It is claimed that with mighty Chamberlain in their lineup, the Globetrotters are even more outstanding than ever. Shortly after signing with Abe Saperstein's group last June, the No. 1 college player of all time joined them in Europe on their annual overseas summer tour, and presto! The Trotters looked like the most brilliant cage brigade of all time, eclipsing even their own great ones of the past 31 years.

The attractive Texas Cow Girls will play the Prestonsburg Ramblers in the preliminary to the Globetrotters' game.

'LITTLE WOMAN' ASSERTING SELF IN ANGLING SPORT

Frankfort, Nov. 24 (Spl.) — When man took to fishing as a surcease from the rigors of home life, little did he realize he soon would be accompanied on fishing trips by the lady of the house, says Harry Towles, public relations director of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

But, says Towles, a bit of research reveals that about 100,000 women fish in Kentucky each year.

Observation showed that more and more women were taking up fishing, Towles declares, but the great numbers that have adopted this form of recreation was undreamed of a few years ago.

A check of fishing license sales of last year, picked at random from six counties in various sections of Kentucky, revealed that one of four was issued to women, Towles points out. He adds that 400,000 licenses were sold in 1957.

Towles says 200 licenses were checked in each of the counties and listed the numbers issued to women: Boyd, 53; Marshall, 51; McCracken, 60; Jefferson, 56; Garrard, 38; and Ballard, 44.

He advises: "So, boys, move over. The women have invaded the once exclusive fishing fraternity."

Pikeville Bears Down Ky. Christian College For 2nd Straight Win

Pikeville, Ky., Nov. 21 (Spl.) — The Bears of Pikeville College raised their season point total to 253 points in two games as they romped over the Rockets of Kentucky Christian College, 118-52, for their second win of the year.

Former Meade Memorial high school star Donniss Butcher again held the top scoring spot for the Bears with 27 points on nine field goals and nine free throws. Butcher, although four inches shorter than the squad's tallest, also rebounded with the best, snaring 15 rebounds as big Garrett Mullins was getting 16.

Height told the tale, with Butcher, Mullins and Vern Woods taking 46 of Pikeville's 69 rebounds. The Bears dominated both backboards, raking in all but 17 rebounds in the game.

Most of the evening's thrills were in the preliminary, in which the Pikeville Freshmen rallied in the second half to regain the lead from the Generals of Lees Junior College, and win going away, 83-66.

Blowing a 10-point lead they had spent the first half building up Paul Butcher's frosh were down to two points to the visitors, 34-32, at half-time. After a second-period spurt had brought them even again, the lead changed hands five times in two minutes. Then Roger Meek, another Meade Memorial product, put the Butcherboys ahead to stay, 45-43, with 14 minutes in which to widen their lead.

Pete Campbell led the Pikeville Frosh with 21 points, but was tied by Matthew Scodellaro, of Lees.

Purple Flash Edged 78-75 By Virgie For First Loss

Virgie high school edged the Martin Purple Flash 78-75 in a see-saw fray.

The team of Coach Denzil Halbert waged an uphill battle the entire contest as they trailed 16-18 the first quarter, 36-41 the second quarter, then led by 54-53, and finally tumbled to defeat 78-75 in the last quarter's play.

B. Osborne, a guard, was the thorn in Martin's side the entire night as he hit 29 points in Virgie's winning effort. King, Martin forward, tallied 25 points for the Purple Flash.

We don't believe you gain anything at all by driving long distances to shop at BIG CITY stores. Our local sources have merchandise that's just as good and costs no more.

But merely for the sake of argument, suppose you do save a few dollars on a time-consuming trip many miles from home. And suppose you don't even cut the cost of gasoline and oil, car wear, parking fees, etc. Forget, too, if you like, the hazards of driving in today's heavy highway and city traffic.

But don't overlook these things: What you buy here can be in your home in a few minutes—no waiting several days for delivery. And if the merchandise doesn't give full satisfaction, any needed service or adjustment of the purchase can be made without shipping the items back to the BIG CITY or being forced to make a second trip yourself.

Why drive scores of miles looking for trouble? Shop right around the corner and be safe and satisfied.

Capitol Notebook

A fellow once was heard to remark, "I don't know why they call this insurance policy comprehensive, because I can't comprehend it."

If you have trouble understanding the language of the insurance policy, maybe this remark by Insurance Commissioner Cad Thurman will relieve some qualms. "Most of the highly technical phraseology of lengthy insurance contracts is required by law, and, despite the attempt of witty critics to disparage something they do not understand, is designed to protect the policyholder and not the insurance company."

POLITICAL DIRT

Kentucky Finance Commissioner Orba F. Taylor told this one at a public administrators' clinic at New Orleans recently:

A worker digging on a government job complained, "I've dug this hole where I was told to, but all the dirt won't go back." The foreman's reply was classic. "There's only one thing to do. You'll have to dig the hole deeper."

CLARK FAMILY

A letter from Rexford Clark, 1616 Race St., Cincinnati 10, Ohio, asks about the Clark family of Floyd county.

"I would like information on grandfather Reuben Clark, born May 22, 1845, and Grandmother Helen Clark, born July 12, 1850. They lived in the house where Lillian Ferguson now lives in Prestonsburg. I understand they were raised on the Clark Branch of Buffalo Creek.

"My great-grandfather was W. G. Clark, born Oct. 14, 1806, came from North Carolina. He had a brother but I never knew his name or what became of him. My great-grandmother was a Lewis, born in Floyd county, April 10, 1810."

There is a reference to an Eldern Clark in the letter but unfortunately the sequence of the thought is broken. It is deduced that the writer's reference to his great-grandmother Lewis is to Eldern Lewis Clark. The writer was evidently copying from an old Bible record.

WILLIAMS FAMILY AND POWERS FAMILY

Mrs. R. N. Lobdell, Route 1, Pisgah Forest, North Carolina, gives much information on the Williams family.

"It seems that the Williams family were confirmed Baptists. I really got started on them because I wondered if we aren't descendants of Roger Williams or perhaps his brother Robert, who was a New England teacher, as you probably know. Was the Reverend Mason Williams Isaac's son or his grandson Mason H. P. Williams, born in the early 1800's? Mason Isaac's son was born 1779 according to our records. Isaac's daughter, Charity Williams Power, had two sons who were Baptist ministers. They both moved to Texas where they lived until after the Civil War. Their sister, Sarah, married a Baptist minister, the Reverend Cullen Bryant Young. My aunt told me that one of Isaac's sons or grandsons, I did not remember which, was a senator; as I did not find his name as a U. S. senator, and did not have a list of senators, I was glad to have your corroboration of the family tradition in that particular.

"I regret very much that I do not know where Isaac lived in Kentucky. My father and aunt both thought that he at one time lived and owned property at Crab Orchard Springs, that perhaps he even died there, but they were not sure that they remembered the name of the place correctly. I am of the opinion that he moved, or perhaps traveled, would be a better word, about considerably. The family tradition is that he made two or three trips to Kentucky before moving his family there. It is thought that he went with Daniel Boone before the Revolution. I think that it is possible that he was a young relative of John Williams of N. C. who was a member of the Louisiana Company that sent Daniel Boone to Kentucky to locate land. I think it quite possible that young Isaac went along, thrilled at the prospect of such a trip and proud to represent the family. The first explorations were made in 1764-65 by Henry Scraggs, Richard Calloway, and Daniel Boone who were to study the land along the main rivers. On this trip it was the Cumberland and Tennessee. The Louisiana Company was organized in 1774. The purpose was "to rent or purchase a certain territory lying on the west side of the mountains on the waters of the Mississippi from Indian tribes now in possession thereof." On Jan. 6, 1775, the company was reorganized as the Transylvania Company. Henderson's company bought the title to the lands which were to be sold to individuals. The idea was to form a "fourteenth colony." A report of these land companies can be found in "North Carolina, the Old North State" by Archibald Henderson.

"Isaac Williams moved his family to Kentucky about 1795. His wife, who before her marriage was Mary Anderson, died on the trip. Sarah (Sally) Williams their elder daughter did not move with them, but remained in North Carolina near Charlotte. In 1800 my great-grandmother Charity Williams was married to James Power in South Carolina. So apparently the family had either moved back to Carolina or they had gone back for her wedding. James Powers' family had lived at Laurens, South Carolina; a younger brother Lewis was born in Laurens, January 1, 1786.

"However, James Power's eldest son was born in Floyd county, Kentucky, April 14, 1802. They named him Holloway Lee Power. When Holloway was eight years old the family moved from Kentucky to Alabama, where his father died in October 1831. It was not until 1849 that Holloway moved his family to Texas."

WILLIAMSON AND WEDDINGTONS

Immediately after or in a decade or two following the Civil War many Eastern Kentucky families left for the West. Among them was a Williamson family. Information on this family is supplied by Mrs. George Koester, 105 Douglas Drive, Jefferson City, Mo.

"Samuel Robins (Bob) Williamson b. June 10, 1844; d. Dec. 31, 1926, married Deborah Allifare (Al) Weddington, b. Aug. 8, 1847; d. Sept. 2, 1907.

Their children: John Henry, b. Aug. 26, 1867, never married, died about 1942.

William Keith, b. Jan. 1869, m. Ella Peer, no children. He d. 1896.

Andrew Franklin, b. April 13, 1870, d. Nov. 13, 1932.

Claude and Maude, twins—b. Apr. 2, 1873. Maude died Feb. 16, 1875, age 2. Claude still living in Minnesota. His wife was Emma Compton, who was born in Pikeville, Ky. Several children. Emma died June 29, 1958.

Don James b. Aug. 27, 1875, d. July 23, 1918, never married.

Robert E. Lee, b. Mar. 14, 1877, living in California. Married twice, first to Annie Sprod Collings in 1901 in Missouri. Five children, separated in 1940. He then married present wife, Helen, on Jan. 24, 1950.

Mary Ettie, b. July 31, 1879. She married Will Morris and lives in Wichita, Kansas. Four children.

Walter W., b. Dec. 15, 1881, d. July 28, 1922, never married. Earnest W., b. Oct. 20, 1883. Married and living in Canada near where my brother Ed lived—near Calgary.

Grady Steve, b. Dec. 11, 1885; he died in Washington State.

"Bob and Al Williamson went to Washington in the spring of 1902. Both died there and are buried in Washington. Their farm in Missouri was just about a mile from the Jonathan Gearheart farm. I copied this record from a family Bible."

E. KENTUCKY FIGURES IN PHEASANT PROGRAM

Frankfort, Ky. (Spl.) — The possibility of pheasant for Kentucky hunters, a dim dream only months ago, took a new hop today, and Eastern Kentucky figures in these fresh hopes.

Division of Game officials here announced the initiation of a new pheasant research project, one revolving around the Reeves pheasant, a different, more hardy breed which, in the words of State Federal Aid Coordinator Don Strode, "comes closer to filling the bill than anything we've tried before."

Kentucky biologists had worked doggedly with ring-neck pheasant in the state, but the bird wouldn't take to Kentucky's weather conditions.

Then Kentucky joined a cooperative research project with the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, headed by Dr. Gardner Bump. One of the top research men in the nation, Dr. Bump is traveling in remote parts of the world in search of game species existing in climate and habitat similar to those found in the various states. The new research project is the result of Dr. Bump's findings and recommendations.

A native of central China, the Reeves is a larger, hardier bird than the ring-neck and an excellent sporting target.

Kentucky biologists are tabbing him for the eastern mountain region of the state. Habitat and climate conditions there closely approximate conditions in his native territory and the Reeves is, essentially, a forest bird. They believe the eastern hills can support more than native grouse and turkey and think the best chance for success with the Reeves will lie in that region.

The first phase of the project kicks off Monday, November 24. A crack biological crew led by Lee Nelson, exotic game bird research leader for Kentucky, and Gene Krodger, chief forest game research biologist for Ohio, will begin selecting release sites in the eastern area. Krodger has already begun similar experiments in Ohio and is acting as mid-west liaison representative for Dr. Bump.

The first releases will be made next summer. Game officials pointed out the project is a research project, one designed to answer questions about the bird and is not a stocking program. They said no birds would be available for release other than by biologists and only on specially selected areas. The project is set up on a three-year basis and experts expect no significant answer before that time.

Dr. J. S. Bell Returns To Kentucky Revival

The First Baptist Church of Martin announces revival services commencing December 1-10 with Dr. J. S. Bell, of Temple Baptist Church, Champaign, Ill., as the evangelist.

The Rev. Bell was formerly pastor of the Hindman Baptist Church for about 18 years. He did a momentous work in this church and Knott county in founding many missions and establishing churches.

The Rev. Guy M. Deane, Jr., pastor of the First Baptist Church of Martin, announces that the services will begin with class prayer meetings for members and friends at 7:15 p.m. and song and preaching service at 7:30 p.m. nightly. Special music will be furnished by the church choir and junior boys and girls choir.

The public is invited to attend each service.

Opinions Differ On Main Causes Of Alcoholism

"Our laboratory and clinical studies of alcoholism during the past several years have convinced us that alcoholism is a metabolic disease." (James J. Smith, M. D., director research on alcoholism, New York University—Bellevue Medical Center.)

"The psychiatric literature of the past few years have stressed more and more that compulsive drinking is a symptom and a result of a personality disorder." (James H. Wall, M. D., assistant medical director, New York, Westchester Division.)

"Environmental factors are potent and indispensable for bringing about alcoholism, but they do not do so unless the person involved possesses the type of metabolic individuality which predisposes to addiction." (Roger J. Williams, Ph. D., D. Sc., Department of Chemistry, University of Texas.)

These quotations from three eminent researchers in the field, show the divergence of opinion on alcoholism. All agree it is an illness but attribute the result to different causes. This is evidence of the complexity of the problem and the necessity of more study and research.

The lay organization of Alcoholics Anonymous ignores scientific reasons. They simply admit that the problem exists and make a positive approach, trying to correct the individual sufferer. The degree of success achieved by A. A. has attracted the notice of the professionals.

As of today, there is a greater degree of understanding between the professional groups and the individual members of Alcoholics Anonymous than formerly existed. Areas of conflict have been eliminated. The professional group recognizes the help that lay therapy can offer the alcoholic. The recovered alcoholic recognizes the tremendous contribution scientific study has made.

Agreement that researchers, physicians, clergymen, social and welfare workers, members of Alcoholics Anonymous, each have some special skill or knowledge, that each can make a worthwhile contribution to the eventual solution, is rapidly taking form.

STURGILL ASKS ROAD SAFETY

Safety Head Urges "Careful Attitudes" By Holiday Drivers

Frankfort, Nov. 24 (Spl.) — Kentucky Safety Commissioner Don Sturgill has urged Thanksgiving week-end motorists to demonstrate careful attitudes behind the wheel.

The safety agency head called attention to Kentucky highway death figures for recent years, pointing out that 20 persons died during the four-day period last year. Traffic deaths during the Thanksgiving holidays totaled 9 in 1956, 18 in 1955 and 13 in 1954.

Sturgill said all available Kentucky state troopers will be on duty over the long week-end, and numerous mobile safety roadblocks will be held.

He especially urged motorists to avoid such death-dealing road violations as: exceeding speed limit, exceeding safe speed, failing to keep to right of centerline, not having right of way and under influence of intoxicants.

"When these and other violations are committed in bad weather and on slippery roads, danger is increased for oneself and other highway users," he emphasized.

"Motorists who plan a long trip this holiday week-end should have their cars thoroughly checked and properly equipped to meet any unusual changes in road and weather conditions," Sturgill declared.

PHOTOGRAPH OF A TEACHERS' MEETING IN THE 1890'S

Teachers Institutes were, a few decades ago, of several days duration and were usually held at the county seat towns. A few in the early 80's were held at Mouth of Beaver, now Allen.

One feature of these meetings was the speech of some visiting educator, who was often an instructor. Records, reports and the theory and practice of teaching were subjects discussed.

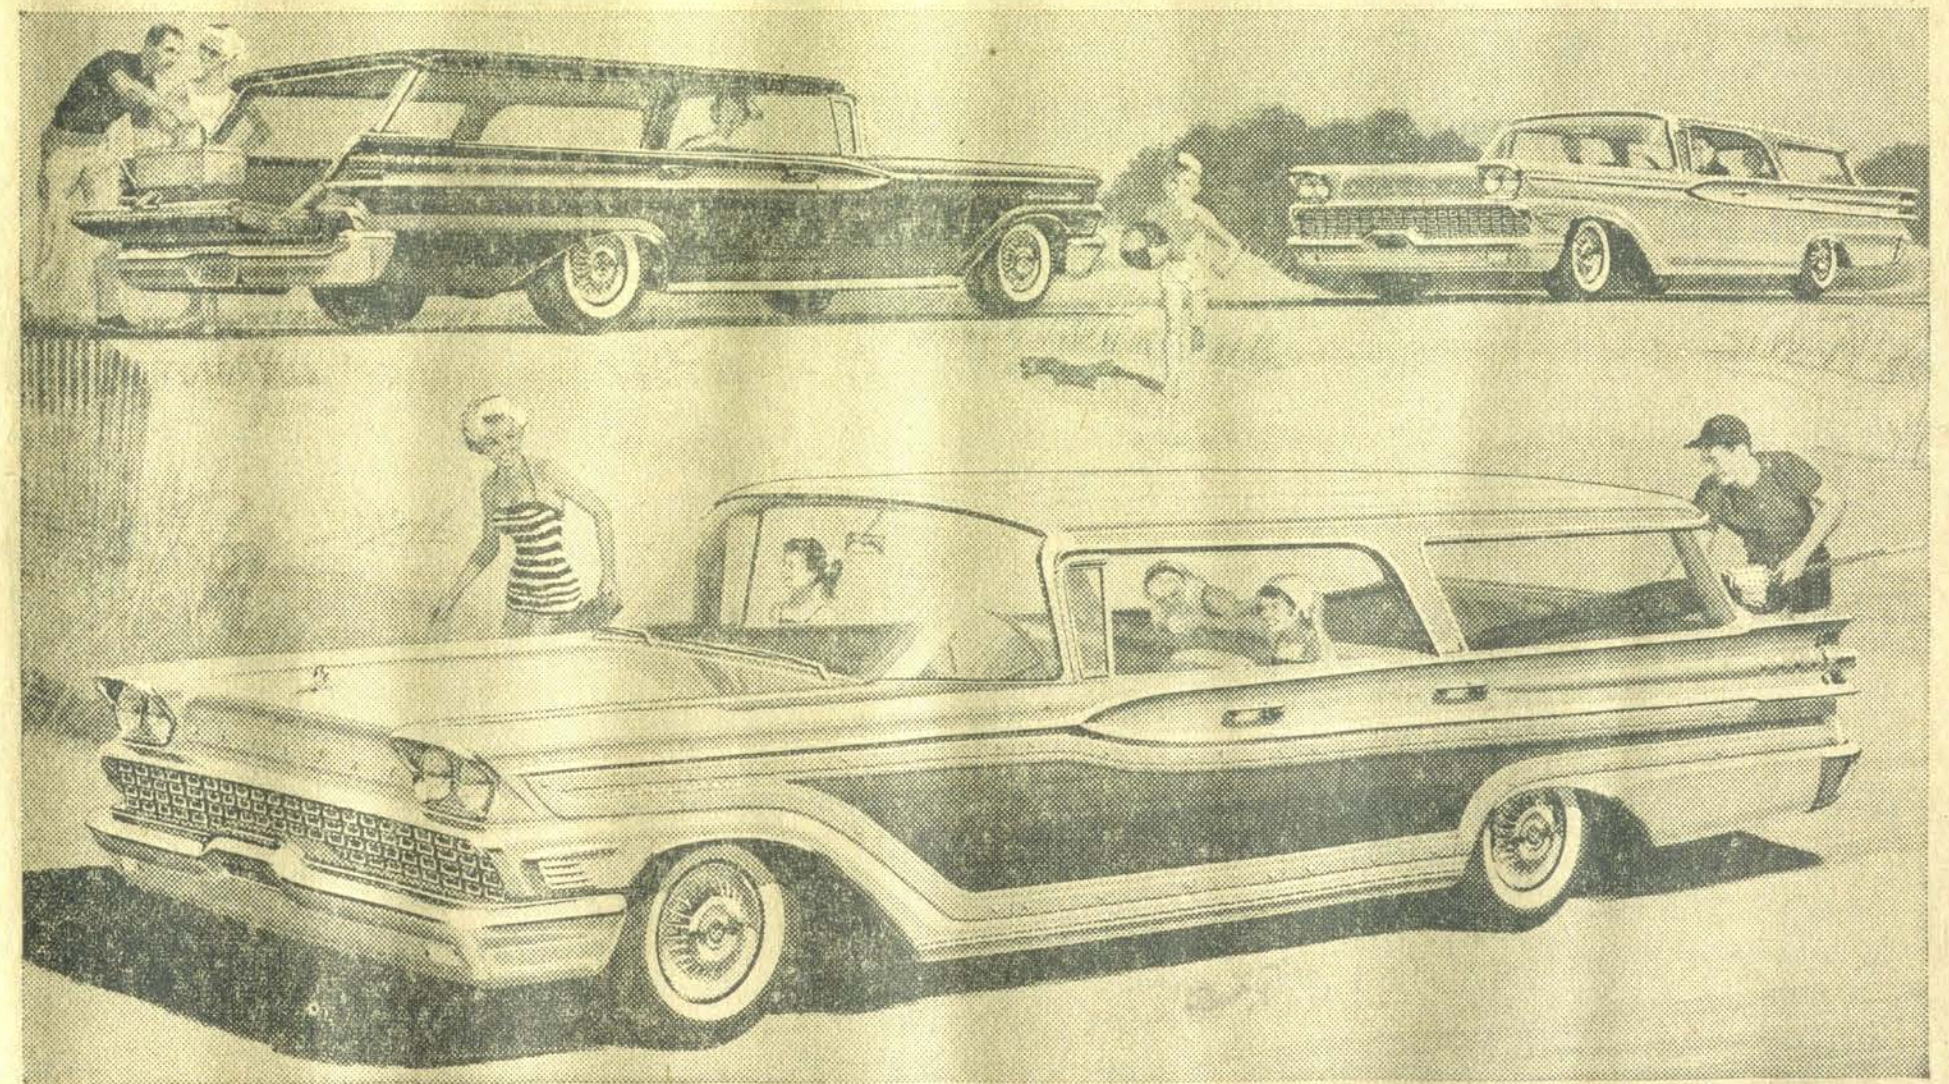

This old photo, shows what is thought to be a teachers meet in the 1890's. Dr. G. D. Callihan, for half a century a practicing physician in Prestonsburg, is shown in the front row, toward the left. Prof. George Clark, of Greenup county, founder of schools at Hueysville and Hindman, is shown standing under the trees.
