THURSDAY

This Town— That World

If the coolness between some people would reduce the weather temperature, such foolishness would not be so bad.

If there be any who wonder why this column has so studiously avoided, during recent weeks, the usual discussion of fishing, its woes, joys, tribulations, etcetera, be reminded that this is the Dog Days season. The fish are sulking, and so am I.

PLEASE, FELLOWS!

I will unsulk long enough to make a few remarks which I hope somebody will ask Minor Clark and others of the Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources to consider.

Dewey Lake this year has the largest number of small bass anybody has seen there since the second or third year the lake was impounded. Some of these were added through the state restocking program, which we appreciate. Others came by the natural reproductive route. It is obvious that the bass population is more like it should be than for years.

What I'm getting around to is to ask the fisheries boys, please, not to poison Dewey Lake again this year. Why stock it and kill off all you've gained?

We're not quarrelling with the boys at Frankfort. They are working hard, and we respect them for what they've been trying to do. But for the life of us, we can't see how it would hurt to let Dewey Lake alone for at least one year.

Cumberland, Norris, Kentucky and those bigger lakes are getting by without the rotenone treatment. We believe nature will prevail at Dewey as well as at any of these.

I FLUNK THE TEST

I wish Allan Trout hadn't printed that "joke." It put me in a very bad light, around our house, where I do not stand in any particular need of same. The wife, who had readily got the point of the anecdote, or joke, or whatever you want to call it, got quite a kick out of watching me do a perfect imitation of a hapless Englishman.

SLIM MARGIN VOTE FEATURE

At City Council Meeting On Renewal Plan Change; Mayor Napier Unties Vote

The Prestonsburg City Council last Thursday night by the narrowest of possible margins reinstated to the area covered by the city's Urban Renewal plans property hitherto eliminated. Mayor Bill Napier cast the deciding vote.

Result of the meeting was reported to the Urban Renewal Administration but it was not learned if the addition of the property will make the proposed program here acceptable, although it is believed it will be.

Property added to the area are buildings owned by Mrs. Osa F. Ligon and the residence of Orville Cooley. This and other issues engendered the usual heat attendant upon Council meetings.

The vote on the reinstatement of the property to improvement plans stood:

For—Dr. Edward B. Leslie, William O. Goebel, Sr., J. Y. Gobie and Mack Harmon; against—Watt Hale, Curtis May, Joe Wheeler Jarrell and Shannon Greer. Mayor Napier then cast the decisive vote.

Consideration of a request to cut from the corporate limits of Prestonsburg that part of Lancer lying north of "the big rock," near the Lucy Rorer home, was postponed till a later meeting.

Hard-pressed for funds, the Council voted to borrow enough money to defray necessary expenses, the loan to be paid when tax revenues are collected.

SCOUT GROUP HEAD NAMED FOR JUBILEE

Branham Is Appointed On Council Committee To Observe 50th Year

Appointment of Jack Branham, of Betsy Layne, as chairman of the 50th anniversary committee of the Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America, is announced by Walter P. Walters, of Pikeville, president of the council.

The Boy Scouts of America will celebrate their fiftieth birthday in 1960. By the close of next year it is estimated that 33,500,000 persons will have been identified with the organization since its inception in 1910, Mr. Walters said.

"Our program for youth," Mr. Walters said, "has extended its influence throughout the length and breadth of our land. It can be found in our nation's most sparsely settled areas, as well as in the midst of our great cities. Over twelve million boys have learned to live in the out-of-doors, felt the thrill of adventure, learned how to survive, and become self-reliant citizens of our great land."

"The Boy Scouts of America has left a lasting impression on the life of our nation," Mr. Branham, the newly appointed chairman, said. "Scouting has become a vital part of our American way of life. It (See Story No. 3, Page 3)

McDowell Man Arrested In Perry County; Beer, Gun, Whiskey Is Seized

Agents of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board reported this week that they arrested Sherman Cook, of McDowell, Monday night in Perry county and confiscated from his truck 198 cases of beer, three cases of whiskey and an automatic shotgun. Cook later was fined $206.50 by the Perry quarterly court, it was reported.

Booked at the county jail here within the week were:

Charles Steward, Clyde Eblevins, Dee Amburgy and George Rose, Jr., all charged with possession of moonshine whiskey; Dee Amburgy and Perry Burke, drunk driving; James A. Looney, reckless driving and possession of moonshine; Will Bolen and Mary Bolen, grand larceny; Mary Bolen, reckless use of a deadly weapon and possession of moonshine whiskey.

A moonshine raid in the Grethel vicinity, Mud Creek, Wednesday netted a gallon of moonshine and the arrest of Amon Mature, who was taken before the U. S. Commissioner at Pikeville and arraigned on a moonshining charge. After Deputy Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis, James Hall and Albert Spradlin had taken a gallon of moonshine from Mature they found a still approximately 2,000 feet from his home. They said Mature did not admit that the still was his.

Anti-Rabies Treatment Seen For 20 Residents; Infection Is Suspected

Upwards of 20 residents of the Mayo Addition to Prestonsburg may undergo anti-rabies treatment, it was said today (Thursday) after a kitten which died there Saturday night was declared rabid. Ten already are taking preventive "shots."

"The cat was kept at the home of Joe Hall by his young daughter for the daughter of Mrs. Maman Leslie while the Leslie family was out of town. It had been played with by numerous children, and others had come in contact with it while rescuing it from a dog.

HARLAN LEADS EAST REGION

In Needy Number, Said; Floyd Recipients Get $71,851 In Aid In May

Harlan county led all East Kentucky in May in the number of recipients of public assistance and in total funds received, according to figures released recently by the Kentucky Department of Economic Security. Pike county was second.

Only the two populous counties of Fayette and Jefferson led Harlan or Pike, it was pointed out. Lexington and Louisville are in these counties.

A total of $98,318 went to 3,708 recipients in Harlan county in May and $97,196 was paid to 3,603 persons in Pike county. Floyd county was eighth in the state with 2,558 recipients receiving $71,851.

Aid was extended to 144,118 persons in the state in May, the departments reports. Amount paid to those recipients was $4,494,693. The money was distributed in old-age assistance, aid to dependent children and adults, aid to needy blind, and to partially and totally disabled.

Knott county, with its relatively small population, had only a slightly less number of persons receiving public assistance than Floyd county. A total of 2,518 persons were aided with $64,673. This is calculated as about one person in each seven.

The ratio in Floyd county is approximately one to 20. Other Eastern Kentucky counties and the number receiving public assistance, follows:

Bath, 1,038; Bell, 3,280; Boyd, 1,255; Breathitt, 2,604; Carter, 1,425; Clay, 2,904; Elliott, 741; Estill, 1,176; Greenup, 1,437; Jackson, 1,360; Johnson, 2,251; Laurel, 1,157; Lawrence, 1,499; Lee, 738; Leslie, 1,873; Letcher, 2,616; Lewis, 994; McCree, 1,537; Magoffin, 1,279; Martin, 1,114; Menifee, 556; Morgan, 1,157; Owsley, 606; Perry, 2,843; Powell, 600; Roekcastle, 1,208; Rowan, 643; Wayne, 1,270; Whitley, 2,776; and Wolfe, 936.

Jefferson county had 14,216 persons receiving $450,840 in public assistance and in Fayette county 3,419 received $115,185.

COOPER HITS AT UMW HEAD

John L. Lewis Answered At Subcommittee Meeting In Mine Bill Controversy

Senator John Sherman Cooper struck back, Friday, at John L. Lewis before a Senate subcommittee following an attack on the Kentucky senator leveled by the head of the United Mine Workers. Cooper said he preferred to accept the judgment of Kentuckians on his motives in supporting a bill to regulate safety features of small mines.

Cooper reminded members of the labor subcommittee that Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, "cast aspersions on my motives" last Tuesday while testifying in behalf of a measure that would extend federal safety regulations to mines that employ fewer than 15 men.

"Perhaps I should ignore his statements," Cooper said to Senators Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania and Jennings Randolph of West Virginia, both Democrats. "But I am not intimidated by him."

"I am willing to let this committee and the members of the Senate make their judgment on my motives, and I am not afraid of their judgment. "And I am willing to let the people of my state make a judgment on my motives. I live in the eastern part of the state, as has my family for 170 years. Before I came here, I had served as an official, a judge, in my state.

"I know its people, its problems, and I believe they know me. I will take their judgment ahead of my motives rather than that of Mr. Lewis."

At issue is a measure, introduced by Clark, which would apply to small mines the same safety requirements that now apply to those that employ 15 or more men. It is supported by the mine workers, by operators of large mines, and by the Federal Bureau of Mines.

Opponents of the bill claim it is not designed so much for safety as it is an effort by "big labor and big business" to drive out the small, independent, non-union mines, which could not stay in business if they had to make outlays for safety devices.

Last year, Cooper sponsored a bill which, while not requiring heavy expenditures by the small mines, would have given the federal bureau power to close any small mine which it found to be "in imminent danger" of catastrophe.

Cooper has called this year for a commission to study the problem and to make recommendations.

Lewis charged Tuesday that the Kentuckian was trying to put the problem on the shelf until after the 1960 election. He also accused Cooper of being more interested in the welfare of India, where he served as ambassador, than in the safety of Kentucky miners.

In his testimony Friday dealing with the danger of forcing Eastern Kentucky's small mines out of business, Cooper said: (See Story No. 6, Page 3)

P'BURG MOTHER OF 8 SUES FOR STATE AID

A Prestonsburg mother of eight who claims her husband, the family's only support, is totally and permanently disabled by illness, last week turned to the Floyd circuit court for help toward collecting from the state's Division of Public Assistance the aid needed for the support of her dependent children. The action taken is a petition for review. It was filed by Mrs. Florine Hughes against Vego E. Barnes, commissioner of the Department of Economic Security, of which the Division of Public Assistance is a branch.

Mrs. Hughes' petition, which was prepared by the Prestonsburg law firm of Howard & Francis, says state aid was given until February, this year, when it was suspended. She appealed the suspension and was denied help by a referee's decision made last May 16. The referee's decision was upheld by the Appeal Board, July 8.

According to the woman's petition, two reputable physicians, Dr. George P. Archer, of Prestonsburg, and Dr. Paul B. Hall, of Paintsville, both stated that, in their opinion, her husband, Bill Hughes, is totally and permanently disabled.

TALK PLANNED ON AREA ILLS

EKRPC Schedules Tour To Study Agriculture; Part of Overall Program

Representatives of the U. S. Department of Agriculture will meet with Kentucky farm leaders early next month to seek answers to questions about Eastern Kentucky.

Some questions to be considered will be: What can be done to improve farm income in Eastern Kentucky? What crops are best suited to growing conditions here?

What new farm products can be profitably produced? The conferees, 21 in number, will get together for the Eastern Kentucky Agricultural Development Conference, a two-day meeting August 3-4 sponsored by the Eastern Kentucky Regional Planning Commission, an agency of the Kentucky Department of Economic Development. The Kentucky Division of Agriculture will serve as conference host.

Purpose of the meeting, said John D. Whisman, EKRPC executive director, is to stimulate a coasts-of-brass talks discussion of immediate, short-term projects to improve the mountain region's agricultural economy.

Such topics as feeder pigs, poultry production and crop practices will come in for attention, it is understood.

The tour is the second in a series of 10 scheduled conferences set up by the Regional Planning Commission to develop workable action programs attacking all phases of Eastern Kentucky socio-economic ills.

Recommendations and findings will become a part of the Planning Commission's comprehensive regional program to be submitted in November as the basis for recommended action at federal, state and local levels.

The conference series was inaugurated by a four-day forestry tour in June. Other conferences to follow will cover the fields of tourism, education, health, welfare, community development, industrial development, housing and cultural affairs.

The agriculture development meeting will get under way at 1 p. m., August 3, at West Liberty. A following session is set for the following afternoon at Grayson. In the evenings the group will meet with local community leaders to exchange ideas and opinions.

In addition to Whisman, the EKRPC will be represented by Russell Worden, member of the commission, and Henry C. Mayer, research assistant. Co-sponsors are Frank Lebus, agricultural development director of the Department of Economic Development, and Dr. Ernest J. Nesius, director of the extension service, University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The Kentucky Division of Agriculture will be represented by Commissioner Ben Butler and Deputy Commissioner Manell Vinson.

Curtis Clark Renamed To U. S. Marshall's Job For Eastern District

Appointment of Curtis Clark, formerly of Prestonsburg, now of Lexington, to a second four-year term as U.S. Marshal for the Eastern Kentucky district was confirmed Monday by the U.S. Senate judiciary committee. At the same time the appointment of Lama A. DeMonbrun to be U.S. Marshal for the Western district also was approved.

Mr. Clark is a former mayor of Prestonsburg, and is widely known throughout this section.

TURNER NOTES COURT ACTION

In Woods Law Violations; Suppression Costs, Fines Total $494.00 For Season

"This is the highest number of convictions we have ever had in court for any fire season," Roe Turner, of the Division of Forestry, said this week in releasing the names of those paying fines for violation of the forestry laws.

Turner noted that the high incidence of forestry law violations last spring was due primarily to the unemployed who were burning trash and debris. These people, he said, are usually uninformed as to the precautions necessary. Turner said, too, that he suspected many fires last spring were of incendiary origin.

A full-time investigator, Lee Roberts, has been designated to investigate the origin of fires in the forestry district. Roberts' work will lead to convictions in many cases, it was predicted.

In releasing the names of convicted persons, Turner said that several fires are still under investigation and warrants will be issued when sufficient evidence is available.

Paying fines and costs recently were: Ezra Shorridge, $53.50; Harrison Campbell, $21.50; Carl Brown, $21.50; Vivian Hamilton, $21.50; and Troy Blackburn, $21.50. Paying suppression costs were James (Coot) Hunter, $12.60; Margaret Walk, $10.67; Lauchli Thornsberry, $6.55; Bobby Banks, $12.35; Bud Handshoe, $10.45; Roy E. Salsbury, $4.94; Dean Lafferty, $12.32; Gladys Ward, $5.92; Amy Briggs, $10.80; Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, $99.40; Smithie Scarberry, $7.54; J. A. Brown, $21.50; Leonard Conn, $21.60; Mellie Hall, $6.42; Robert S. Wellman, $25.02; Mrs. Charley Osborne, $10.64; Dick Hatfield, $10.50; Blooma Keathley, $9.92.

Suppression costs in pending cases are Ellen Osuley, $20.40; and Wayne Hall, $36.78.

Warrants are pending for the following persons: Della Green, West Prestonsburg; Jim Hall, of Teaberry; Betty and Elizabeth Caudill, of Melvin, and John Leedy, of Betsy Layne.

Total suppression costs paid were $299.18; suppression costs outstanding are $57.18; court costs and fines paid total $138.50. Grand total collected, $496.86.

Infantile Paralysis Attacks Wayland Babe

Jackie, nine-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bentley, of Wayland, is a patient at Morris Memorial hospital, Milton, W. Va., suffering from infantile paralysis.

The child was admitted to the hospital July 26 but the onset of polio was in July, 1958, the hospital notified Ray Howard, Floyd county chairman for the National Foundation.

FORMER FLOYD WOMAN AIDS VIETNAM LEPERS

A young doctor at the McDowell hospital last summer read of the Grail Movement, the international organization of Catholic lay women who are dedicated to becoming Christian leaders in their own environment or as lay mission workers in foreign countries.

A few weeks ago, the young doctor, 32-year-old Patricia Smith, left Seattle, Wash., to fly to Vietnam to answer the appeal of a French nun for help in staffing a leprosy hospital.

In Kontum, a province of Vietnam, Dr. Smith will work among the primitive Montagnard (mountain) people. She will work alongside Sister Marie Louise, the frontier-type nun who singlehandedly started a 300-patient leprosy in the vicinity of Djiring in 1956.

UMWA CLAIMS RANKS BROKEN BY OPERATORS

Coal Men Deny Claim That Union Is Winning In Small-Mine Strike

The United Mine Workers' claim that a break in the Eastern Kentucky coal strike stalemate has taken place was disputed this week by operators.

Although acknowledging that some contract-signing has been done, the operators claimed no major breakthrough had been made in their ranks. Carson Hibbits, president of the UMW's district 30, issued a statement saying "virtually all mines and ramps in the Hazard field are under contract."

Hibbits said 58 truckmine operators and ramp owners in the district have signed contracts in the past 10 days.

He said this includes nine ramps, where coal is loaded for shipment to market. The activity is the first major signing of contracts announced by the U.M.W. since April. It follows the usual period of time mines close for vacations and was predicted a month ago when vacation time loomed.

Robert Holcomb, president of the Pike County Independent Coal Operators Association, said Hibbits was dealing in "wishful thinking."

He said there never has been a stalemate and that 85 percent of the mines in Pike county are not signed.

UTILITY BODY FIXES POLICY

Advances Council $1,700 To Buy Police Cruiser; Profits To Determine Aid

The Prestonsburg Utility Commission recently voted to pay the new police cruiser which has been in use for several weeks, but in resolutions adopted July 14 it specified the conditions under which this and future sums will be made available to the city.

The Council voted unani-mously that at the end of each fiscal year, which is Sept. 30, it will determine the net profit it has made in the operation of the water and gas systems and that at the same date it will determine how much money it can safely pay to the city in lieu of taxes, "keeping in mind that the solvency of the gas and water system must be maintained and that a sufficient reserve must also be maintained in order to carry out improvements to water and gas systems."

Then, after such annual payments are made to the city, which will be made on or about November of each year, no further funds will be released to the city until the end of the next fiscal year, the Commission voted.

The $1,700 advanced on the police car will be credited against any amount the Commission would under this arrangement pay to the city on or about Nev. 1, this year.

The resolutions, adopted by George T. Roberts, Adrian Collins and S. Dickerson, members of the Commission, pointed out that the Commission has under consideration different projects for the improvement of the utilities systems and that it is to the interest of the citizens of Prestonsburg that these improvements be made as quickly as possible.

Open Wedding Planned At Church Here, Aug. 8

The marriage of Miss Mary Alice Leslie, of Prestonsburg, and Mr. Frank Phillips, Dayton, O., will be solemnized in an open wedding at Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church here at 3 p. m., Saturday, August 8.

A reception will follow at the home of the bride's uncle, Dr. Edward B. Leslie.

Farm Land Values Rise, Extension Service Notes

Kentucky farm land values increased 9 percent during the year ending March 1, 1959. The rise probably will continue in the last half of 1959, although at a lower rate than during the past year.

This is the prediction of the UK Cooperative Extension Service economic department in its bi-weekly outlook letter.

The increase in Kentucky is slightly higher than the national average; last year farm land values rose 8 percent all over the United States.

Age value of $95 per acre; average Kentucky farm land had an average value in 1959 is $120 per acre. Farm land values in Tennessee increased at about the same rate. Values throughout the United States rose from $85 per acre in 1959 to $108 in 1959.

In commercial farming areas, small tracts of land are often more in demand than complete farms, he noted. This is usually because many farmers are substituting more and larger machines for labor and need a larger acreage to make the most efficient use of the machines. Thus, farm owner-operators are becoming more important as buyers of farm land, thereby increasing the demand.

CHILD DIES

Michael Lee Hughes, 17-month-old son of Willard and Birdie Lee Hughes, formerly of Garrett, died at 10 a.m., Friday at the Sturgis, Mich., Memorial hospital. The cause of death was not given. Surviving, besides the parents, are four brothers and sisters. Funeral rites were conducted at 10 a.m., Sunday at the home of Edgel Hicks at Garrett, the Revs. Raymond Howard, Earl Howard and Banner Manns officiating. Burial was made in the family cemetery under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Scouting's Golden Jubilee year will be a year-long celebration marked by several great national events and by countless local celebrations.

The first will be Boy Scout Week, February 7 to 13, Mr. Branham said.

Locally, Mr. Branham said the celebration will recognize authorities and heads of local institutions for their help in making Scouting available to youth. During a nationwide television network broadcast everyone in Scouting will dedicate himself to the Scout Oath and Law.

Local leaders will also take part in the 50th annual meeting of the national council to be held in Washington, D. C., June 1-4.

Local Boy Scouts, Explorers and adult leaders will be among the 52,000 expected to camp together at the fifth national jamboree. This will be held on a 2,000-acre camp site at Colorado Springs, Colorado, within sight of Pike's Peak from Friday, July 22 through Thursday, July 28, 1960.

During the national jamboree there will be outdoor events for the "stay-at-homes." Cub Scouts will hold "Cub Scout Jubilees" on Saturday, July 23, while Boy Scouts will have three-day campouts and Explorers will stage Jubilee Field Days.

A principal golden anniversary activity will be the National Good Turn for 1960. This will be the third non-partisan Get-Out-the-Vote campaign conducted in cooperation with the Freedoms Foundation of Valley Forge. In 1956 more than 36 million Liberty Bell door-knob hangers were placed at the homes of America.

Local Boy Scouts, Explorers and adult leaders will be among the 52,000 expected to camp together at the fifth national jamboree. This will be held on a 2,000-acre camp site at Colorado Springs, Colorado, within sight of Pike's Peak from Friday, July 22 through Thursday, July 28, 1960.

and this time Ellis spun around, blood streaming from his hand and shoulder. Harve Mounts dashed from the protection of the tree and sprinted up the road. Ellis ran after him, holding a hand red with blood but looked back as he raced for life. The killer was running the other way, his rifle held high in his right hand as he fled.

Ellis and Mounts ran up the road until they came to the cabin of Oliver Clay, who had heard the shots. An inspection of Ellis' wounded hand and shoulder showed no serious injury and after a hurried and crude dressing to stop the blood, the three went down the branch to aid the stricken John Mounts. They found him in agony, rising and falling, crawling and staggering until he was several feet from where he was shot.

The dying man looked up at Clay, said weakly, "Lord, I'm bound to die. I am bound to die."

He prayed and talked and cried in agony. Shuddering from cold, he begged Clay to get him to a fire. Clay went back to his cabin, returned with an axe, built a roaring fire in the road. Harve Mounts went to get assistance to move his dying nephew.

Ellis watched as the young logger grew weaker. Now and then he moved him a bit, seeking to keep him warm, for he complained steadily of the cold.

"I am bound to die, Oliver," Mounts said. "Get me to a house. Take me to a fire. I am freezing. I want to die by a fire in a house."

Clay picked him up, had to let him slide back to the ground, for Mounts was a large man. Harve Mounts returned in a few minutes. He was alone. He and Ellis had a short conference. The uncle went away again, leaving Clay with the dying man.

Sometimes later—some said it was hours—neighbors in the sparsely settled area came to the scene. They saw Mounts was dying and decided against moving him. He died at three o'clock in the morning.

The body of the dead West Virginia logger lay in the road until 11 o'clock when his wife, Sarah, arrived on muleback. She had the body of her husband removed across Tug River to their home.

The ambush-killer, beginning to realize the enormity of his crime as soon as it was done, continued to flee down the Andy Branch. The exact trail he took to escape is not known but a mountain ballad, "The Legend of John Hardin," says that, coming to Tug River and not finding a boat, he plunged into the stream and swam across in an effort to catch a train that was due. The train was late and Hardin sought safety in the woodlands.

Six days later, James Charles, sheriff of Buchanan county, approached him at War Eagle, West Virginia. He was brought to Grundy, Virginia, and incarcerated in the little wooden jail, Sept. 30, 1897.

Mountain minstrels sang for years a typical ballad, of how Hardin tried to escape but was captured because the "eastbound train was late."

The day Sheriff Charles arrived at Grundy with his prisoner an examination of the charge was made. Hardin waived it to the Buchanan county grand jury. He was indicted Oct. 27 and by agreement of counsel of both sides the case was docketed for Nov. 3.

The court at the beginning of the trial placed the prisoner in the custody of two hefty deputy sheriffs, J. N. W. Blankenship and H. M. Francis. These two took every precaution to see that the 21-year-old Criminal did not escape, and during the trial the two flanked Hardin's every move from the courtroom to the jail.

The trial, at which he pleaded "not guilty," lasted five days. On the afternoon of the fifth day, final arguments having been completed, the jury retired. They returned in a short while to announce disagreement. Judge G. L. Counts sent them back to try again. The next morning the jury filed into court and handed Judge Counts its decision. The prisoner was guilty of murder in the first degree. The defense moved for a new trial. It was overruled.

Judge Counts ordered the prisoner to stand up. The spectators were quiet, realizing that the first degree murder verdict carried no other sentence but death. Slowly the judge intoned that Hardin was to be hanged by the neck "until you are dead, dead, dead. May God have mercy on your soul." The condemned man was led away, escorted by Blankenship and Francis.

Legal maneuvering consumed weeks. There was an appeal but the sands of time ran out for John Hardin. The day of execution was set for Dec. 17.

In the meantime it had been concluded by the authorities that the wooden jail was insufficient to hold a prisoner as desperate as a man sentenced to hanging must be. He was taken to the Tazewell jail.

Considerable sentiment was worked up for Hardin, many people expressing the opinion that hanging was too severe a crime for a man to suffer because he had killed another in a jealous rage. As one writer expressed it, "Hanging was a kind of justice that didn't seem a man's just portion."

The scaffold was erected a mile and a half below the town of Grundy on the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy river. The structure completed, Sheriff Charles ordered himself a black suit. Relatives of Hardin came to the sheriff, solicited the body and said they would take it at the scaffold for burial on Andy Branch. This errand done, they went out and ordered a black suit for their kinsman.

The day of execution approaching, Sheriff Charles and his deputy, Paris Charles, went to Tazewell to claim their prisoner. On their return they traveled by train to Raven, Virginia, where the three began a long horseback ride to Grundy.

Twenty-four hours before Hardin was to go to his death he requested the rites of baptism and before a great concourse of people on the bank of the Levisa Fork, Elder Wallace Compton officiated at the ceremony.

Hanging day arrived and so did thousands of people from the entire tri-state area. It was the greatest crowd that had ever jammed into the mountain town on the Levisa Fork. Wagons loaded with entire families came from all the main head stream valleys of the Tug and Big Sandy.

Early in the morning Sheriff Charles saw to the last preparation for his official duties. The home-made coffin, lined and covered with white satin, was placed in a wagon drawn up beside the little jail.

A few minutes past noon Charles and a deputy entered the condemned man's cell. Hardin, comforted by his wife, Lizzie, in his last hours, was neatly shaven and dressed in the black suit. He was ready, he said. The shadow of the scaffold had effected a reconciliation between husband and wife.

Sheriff Charles, his deputy, the prisoner and wife, entered the wagon. Hardin and Lizzie sat down on the white coffin, neither speaking, neither paying any attention to thousands lining the wooden sidewalks. The mule-drawn wagon lumbered down the muddy street.

Hardin and his escort walked up the thirteen steps of the scaffold with unchanging mien. Sheriff Charles was grim and sombre. Elder Compton began to pray. Hardin bowed his head and there were those who said they saw his lips moving with a last minute supplication. The prayer ended, some one began a song. Hardin stood and joined his voice with the others.

Asked if he had anything to say, Hardin addressed the crowd:

"I am here for killing a man because of my wife. My wife was the cause of it all. I thought I was doing right when I killed Mounts but now I see I was wrong. The Lord has forgiven me for it and I am ready to die."

He announced he had composed a hymn that he would like to sing. It was titled, "Let Thy Bosom Be My Pillow."

Taking a sheet of paper from his pocket, he slowly unfolded it. "On this scaffold high for murder, Let Thy bosom be my pillow," he sang.

The song ended, he bowed his head in prayer. In a few moments he looked up, said quietly: "I am prepared to go. I will soon be free from sin, prison, death and misery."

Sheriff Charles looked at his watch, told Hardin he had but nine minutes to live.

"That's a short life," the prisoner quipped with a smile. He took a piece of tobacco from his pocket and while reaching it to Charles requested him to give it to a Mrs. Dennis who was in the crowd. "I am ready now," he said. "Don't tell me when you are ready to let me drop."

Charles adjusted the rope and prepared to slip a black hood over Hardin's face.

The killer of John Mounts saw the sheriff's action, and remembered the cigar he had put in his mouth a moment before, reached it to the man who was to execute him, said sardonically: "I will this cigar to you."

The sheriff held the cigar in his left hand, raised his right arm to swing down with a hatchet to cut the rope that would send John Hardin to death.

The spectacle of a man going to his death as nonchalantly as Hardin endeared him in the hearts of the rugged mountaineers. Even today, in the recesses of the Cumberland, there are places where people will gather in the late evenings and sing, "The Legend of John Hardin," to the accompaniment of a guitar or banjo.

They sing of how an eastbound train was late and of John Hardin who went to his death with a jest and smile.

THIS IS WHAT THE CITY COUNCIL DID AT ITS JULY 20th MEETING

(1) Urban Renewal Subject—Clifford Latta read petition to rescind previous action of Council and place Mrs. Osa Ligon's property and home of Orville and Gladys Cooley back in original plan. Needed Cooley property for exit and entrance to proposed parking lot.

Voted to place properties back in:

DR. EDWARD B. LESLIE
WILLIAM O. GOEBEL, SR.
MACK HARMON
J. Y. GOBLE

Voted against placing property back in:

JOE WHEELER JARRELL
WATT HALE
SHANNON GREER
CURTIS MAY

Mayor Napier broke tie by voting for petition.

(2) During reading of petition and discussion, Councilman Goebel told some ladies to shut up and that something was wrong with people who wouldn't sell their property.

(3) Thereafter, and after the council had voted to adjourn, the members of the council remained in the meeting room. It was pointed out that condemned property was source of revenue to city in taxes and such would be lost by making park. Also pointed out that the parking meters already installed were not paid for and cost of proposed 64 new ones would use up money for some time.

Also, it was pointed out that if the city had to borrow money to operate for coming 6 months, where would money come from to pay new debts such as city's 1/3 share of cost of proposed Urban Renewal Plan?

(4) It was also pointed out that streets were unpaved in many places in the City and that other projects, more essential to the welfare of the City than a parking lot were needed such as badly needed sewers and the repair of the street adjacent to the Fountain Korner Building and the Ligon Building where water collects after each rain.

(5) The Council ignored suggestion by Orville Cooley that the proposed Urban Renewal Plan be placed on the ballot and voted upon by the people.

(6) The Council re-assembled after the motion to adjourn had been carried. At this time, Councilman J. Y. Gooble informed the Council that July income was not sufficient to pay July bills. A motion was made that the city borrow enough money to run city on each month until 1959 taxes were collected. It was voted to do so.

We thought tax payers would like to know what business the City Council transacted.

SPORTS AFIELD
By TED KESTING

In the realm of sporting dogs, the prefix "Champion" which the owner proudly places before the registered name of his dog has an important significance, says Henry P. Davis, Sporting Dogs Editor of Sports Afield Magazine. To the dog man, the title takes on additional meaning when it is made clear that it was won in the red-hot crucible of field trial competition.
Such a title is proof that the dog possesses extraordinary abilities in the hunting field and indicates that he might make a successful mate for the prospective breeder's good female. This does not mean that all champions make excellent sires or that nonchampions do not reproduce effectively. Many dogs, in all sporting breeds, that have not been successful in annexing a field trial crown, or even have not been campaigned in field trial competition, prove to be exceptional sires, and many field trial champions have been produced by nonwinning parents.
The title dogs, however, indicate that the dog has, on occasion at least, risen to the heights of brilliance in the field against well-seasoned competition. And such a dog might well merit, for several reasons, more consideration as a prospective stud than a comparative unknown. Yet bird dog history has known a number of dogs that have gone on to immortal fame as sires after failing to win important field trial titles. In fact the controversial decisions that cost them the titles brought them into sharp focus before the breeding public and gained for them many breeding opportunities.
Such a dog was the famous pointer Fishel's Frank, the lone representative of his breed to compete in the National Bird Dog Championship of 1908. Frank made an error on his first covey find and then came on to perform with shining brilliance during the rest of the long three-hour heat, finishing with strength to spare. The large gallery following the stake was fairly buzzing with speculation. So high was the interest that a vote was taken among the spectators. This resulted in a tie between Fishel's Frank and the setter Danfield.
Count Whitestone II, a dog that had turned in a goodly bird score but whose race was spiced with numerous false points, was not considered "in it." Yet the judges called back the two setters Danfield and Count Whitestone II for a second series, and it was in this heat that Count Whitestone II won the title. So much publicity was given to the performance of Fishel's Frank that pointer breeders flocked to his court and he established a veritable family. Two of his sons avenged his defeat by winning the National Championship. These were Comanche Frank and John Proctor, whose names are familiar to all pointer fanciers. Both sired many winners, and a large percentage of today's pointers can trace their pedigrees back to Fishel's Frank.

Joseph Johnson, Lexington, a mine operator in Perry county, said owners of mine ramps and a number of mines that formed the Perry County Independent Mine Owners Association still are holding out against union demands.
The union struck in the Hazard and Big Sandy fields of Pike, Letcher, Perry, Brathitt and Knott counties in mid-March. It also struck in the Knox-Harlan-Bell fields a week earlier. Harlan is in the union's District 19.
About 5,000 coal miners went on strike. The union now says some 1,500 are back to work.
Hibbitts said:
"Recent developments indicate that many holdout small operators in the Kentucky River and Big Sandy fields will soon follow (those who signed in the past 10 days).
"It is my firm belief that this situation has been knocked off dead center and that my original contention that the operators can make money under the new agreement will be confirmed."
Johnson charged that the union is signing contracts with bogus operating corporations.
"I've done this in the past, but I'm not going to do it again," he said.
He said that the "bogus" arrangement is a leasing of the operating rights of a mine to a man or a group which have no assets.
This operator pays so much a ton for every ton of coal mined and then gets what he can from what is left.
"When he fails to pay the union scale or the royalty, the union doesn't sue because he has nothing to collect," Johnson said.
Johnson also said that some of those signing actually cut their wages to pay the royalty.
A union spokesman said it makes no difference who is operating the mine or who is leasing from whom.
"They are going to all make money under this contract," he said.
The spokesman also said that the current steel strike has the coal-market situation "fouled up."
"If it hadn't been for the steel strike many more mines would be signed up," he said.
During the strike, three men have been shot to death, several wounded, and more than $700,000 worth of property destroyed. The violence prompted Governor Chandler to send National Guard units into the area for two weeks.
At one time more, than 7,000 miners were out of work. Some returned to their jobs after a federal court order enjoined the union from all strike violence, including mass picketing.
The U. M. W. is scheduled to appear in Federal court at Lexington, August 17 to answer charges it violated the order.
The hearing was granted on a request by Louisville & Nashville Railroad, which claimed pickets were hampering its operations.
The National Labor Relations Board recently postponed indefinitely a hearing on alleged acts of violence in the strike. The board said the federal court order "can serve to hold the situation in status quo."

Too many anglers worry far too much about fly patterns. What they should do, to be most successful at the sport, is to practically forget about patterns, perhaps to carry along only one pattern—and to learn to fish a fly properly.
There's an old crack that fishermen make to each other: "To catch fish, you must have more brains than the fish." Of course the most stupid angler has a brain of monster size compared to the fish's pea-brain.

Floyd-Co. Lads Attending 4-H Forestry Camp Meet With 25 County Titlist

Frank Bush, Jr., who lives with his cousin, Lee Hall, retired store manager at Wheelwright, and Freer Martin, son of C. & O. conductor Graydon Martin, of Langley, are spending this week, guests of the forest industries of Kentucky as they attend the Kentucky 4-H Forestry Camp at the University of Kentucky's Robinson Forest in Breathitt county.

Bush and Martin are among the 25 county champions in 4-H forestry who won trips to the week-long expense-paid camp for their proficiency in forestry as reflected by their high ratings in the 4-H program. The camp is utilizing the technical knowledge of graduate foresters from the University, the Kentucky Division of Forestry, the U. S. Forest Service and from private industries who will serve as instructors.

Extension Forester James A. Newman, of Lexington, is serving as camp director for the sponsoring Kentucky Forest Industries Committee.

The campers will be given advanced instruction in all phases of technical forestry including forest fire prevention and suppression, management, tree planting, identification, logging and sawmilling.

It won't be all work, though. A busy program of recreation has been planned by Camp Director Newman and his staff, which includes Service Forester Arthur Leach, of the Kentucky Division of Forestry in Prestonsburg, and Robert Jones, Floyd county agricultural agent, Prestonsburg.

Frankfort, July 30—Veterans and war orphans who plan to enter school this fall under the Veterans Administration program, should apply now, says Director R. R. Thomas of the Kentucky Disabled Ex-Service Men's Board.

While most motorists know that it is dangerous and unlawful to pass on a hill or curve, did you know that passing within one hundred feet of a bridge is also prohibited by law? In fact, the law further prohibits passing within one hundred feet of a viaduct or tunnel, or when within one hundred feet of any intersection or railroad grade crossing.

We don't believe you gain anything at all by driving long distances to shop at BIG CITY stores. Our local sources have merchandise that's just as good and costs no more.

But merely for the sake of argument, suppose you do save a few dollars on a time-consuming trip many miles from home. And suppose you don't even count the cost of gasoline and oil, car wear, parking fees, etc. Forget, too, if you like, the hazards of driving in today's heavy highway and city traffic.

But don't overlook these things: What you buy here can be in your home in a few minutes—no waiting several days for delivery. And if the merchandise doesn't give full satisfaction, any needed service or adjustment of the purchase can be made without shipping the items back to the BIG CITY or being forced to make a second trip yourself.

Why drive scores of miles looking for trouble? Shop right around the corner and be safe and satisfied.

Natural Attractions, Carefully Exploited, Would Ease The Pinch

By JOE CREASON
(Courier - Journal Staff Writer)

THE MORE I travel the mountains of Eastern Kentucky, the more firmly convinced I become that the economic future of that coal depressed region depends upon one thing—tourism, exploitation of its great natural beauty.

In making that statement, I'm aware that most observers say there's nothing wrong with the area that an influx of industries wouldn't cure.

However, Eastern Kentucky has a potential for tourism, while for a variety of reasons—poor water supply, flood danger, labor strife—its potential for industry is something that still must be cultivated.

More to the point, a solid tourist flow might be the break needed to attract mass-employment industry into the hill country. For it is a fact that perhaps the fastest, most effective way to attract industry is by first attracting tourists.

That, experts say, is because in selecting plant locations, industrialists generally seek the same kind of community atmosphere that appeals to tourists. Both industry and tourists are looking for friendly communities with better living conditions, better facilities, better civic organizations and a variety of recreational activities.

Along that line, it's significant that the top six tourist states—New York, Florida, New Jersey, California, Michigan and Texas, in that order—do more than a third of the nation's manufacturing business. All of which proves that industrial and tourist development are interrelated and actually assist each other.

Many communities all over Kentucky, and particularly in the mountains, are not cashing in on their lucrative tourist possibilities, mainly because they haven't made a real, all-out effort to do so.

From one end of the state to the other, I've heard local residents try to rationalize the situation with one or all these lines: "We're too far off the beaten path for tourists to come here."

"There's no place for tourists to stay, even if they came here." Those points of view simply don't conform to the realities of the tourist business, according to those agencies that keep track of such matters.

There's almost no such thing as being too far off the beaten path today. In fact, being remote often can be a great asset. It has been proved that tourists will go just about anywhere to see something unusual.

Virtually every area of Kentucky has something that would be of genuine interest to travelers if they know about it. The point of interest doesn't have to be earthshaking, either.

For instance, a community in Kansas hit on the idea of advertising its deep-water wells, claiming that one of them was "the world's largest hand-dug well." More than 100,000 tourists flock to see it each year.

Imagine what that number of tourists, spending an average of $10 per day, would mean to Pineville if its Fording Rock, the huge boulder in the Cumberland River the pioneers used as a gauge to determine if the stream was safe for fording, or its Chained Rock, the big knob tied to the adjoining cliff with a chain, were exploited similarly.

As for places for tourists to stay, while some demand the finest, hundreds or thousands don't demand and can't afford high-priced accommodations. Statistics show that four out of five tourists earn less than $7,000 a year, one out of four stays in a hotel and six out of seven travel by car.

If there's a road leading into or out of a community, it has a chance of attracting tourists. Instead of expensive beaches and high-cost rooms, the average American vacationer wants comfort, change, amusement and pleasant surroundings.

Eastern Kentucky is filled with things that are taken for granted by local residents, but that might have great appeal to tourists who never have seen anything quite like them.

It may seem strange, but nowhere in the mountains is there a genuine log cabin in an authentic setting where tourists can see life as it was lived in the old days. Nowhere, outside of Berea, is there a place where old-fashioned weaving and spinning is practiced for the benefit of tourists. Nowhere is there a real Kentucky mountain moonshine whiskey still on display, nowhere is there a watermill that still grinds grain. Nor is there a place where tourists can hear honest mountain folk ballads sung by a descendant of those who brought the songs from England and Scotland.

The Smoky Mountain region of Tennessee and North Carolina long ago proved how strongly such commonplace things appeal to visitors.

By advertising its mountain rock structures as "natural chimney," "rock houses" and "devil jumps," Virginia lures tourists miles out of their way to see them. Yet Virginia has nothing more impressive than Rock House on the Cumberland River near Creelsboro, the Shimbone near Jamestown, Bald Rock near Albany, Pilot Knob near Clay City, Devil's Jump on the South Fork River near Stearns or the Indian shelter atop the mountain near Pineville.

I've always felt that scattered remains of the Wilderness Road are potential tourist attractions. Then there is the bluff on Paint Creek in Johnson County where Indian drawings are visible, Short Creek in Pulaski County, the location of the world's first oil well in McCreary county, Big Black Mountain in Harlan county, the Kentucky River cut-off and the Panhandle in Breathitt county.

It always has seemed a shame that there isn't some place where tourists can see coal mined, or at least processed at the tipples. Real Swiss cheese is made and sold by descendants of the men and women who founded the colony at Bernstadt, but that hasn't been exploited fully. Tourists no doubt would come to see pottery made by hand in the Waco and Bybee sections if they were aware of it.

The mountain settlement schools would appeal to tourists. Communities with such picturesque names as Hell-fer Certain, Cutshin, Ordinary, Pippa Passes, Zula, Ibeax and Kaliopi are themselves tourist bait.

Maybe tourists wouldn't rush over each other to get at these, and other, attractions. But if only 100 tourists a day came into a community during just June, July and August, they would leave an estimated $90,000 in fresh money.

And what town in Eastern Kentucky wouldn't jump at something which, with a minimum of effort, could mean as much to it as the annual payroll of a small industry?

HALL IN SOUTH CAROLINA

PORT JACKSON, S. C.—Pvt. Lowell D. Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elzie B. Hall, of Betsy Layne, Ky., has been assigned to Company C, 2nd Battalion, 1st Training Regiment at Fort Jackson, S. C., for eight weeks of basic combat training.

Upon arrival at Fort Jackson, he was issued clothing and given a complete physical and a comprehensive battery of aptitude tests.

As part of his basic training he will be taught rifle marksmanship under the Army's new TRAINFIRE program. In TRAINFIRE, he will learn to use an M-1 rifle by firing at pop-up targets on terrain which duplicates combat areas.

Navy Midshipmen

The beginning of midshipmen in the Navy is traced to the early days when each warship carried a number of young lads who acted as messengers, rushing orders from the officers aft to the men up forward. Generally, a midshipman was regarded as an officer candidate.

QUOTES

That Southern Appalachian Study Tour, financed by the Ford Foundation and held at Berea College recently, had its highlights, and among them were statements made by Kentucky and Tennessee mountaineers, educators and others.

I liked, in particular, the statements made by an unemployed miner, on crutches, who was asked how he hurt his leg and replied: "I creeded my ankle."

That's a perfectly good expression, as far as I am concerned; mainly, because I've used it myself.

Then there was the more debatable statement made by Dr. Cratis Williams, dean of the graduate school of Appalachian State Teachers College, Boone, N. C. He declared that venereal disease is "civilization's contribution to mountain culture."

And the one by W. R. "Red" Cowden, the best whittler in the Whittler's Valley section of Sevier county, Tennessee:

"During the war I went to the shipyard at Mobile to work. I came back during the Christmas holidays and never did go back. A hill-billy has to have a hill."

Many Inquiries Received On Civil Service Schools

The U. S. Civil Service Commission receives numerous inquiries, sometimes complaints, regarding the activities of so-called "civil-service" schools. Some of these schools exaggerate opportunities for Federal employment. Some give the impression that they are connected with government. To warn the public of misleading information, the Commission's Cincinnati office, covering Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, and West Virginia, points out that:

1. No "civil-service" school is connected with the U. S. Civil Service Commission or any other agency of the federal government.
2. The Commission does not make recommendations regarding any school. It does not sponsor any advertising or other material issued by any school.
3. No fee is charged for securing Federal employment. It is not necessary to secure the services of a school to compete in examinations or of a private employment agency to obtain Federal employment.

Mrs. Josephine Martin, 79, Victim At Minnie Home

Mrs. Josephine Martin, 79, wife of Noah Martin, well-known Floyd county man, died at 10:30 p.m., Monday, July 20, at her home at Minnie. She had been in failing health for five years but was seriously ill only a week.

Mrs. Martin was the daughter of Bill and Betsy Martin. She was a member of the Regular Baptist church for 35 years.

Surviving sons and daughters are Earl Martin, Orlando, Florida, William Martin and Mrs. Wayne Helton, both of Martin, James Martin and Mrs. Edith Hopkins, both of Minnie, Miss Ella Martin, Louisville, Mrs. Stella Hamilton, Detroit, and Cassie Martin, Washington, D.C. Brothers and sisters surviving are Hasadere Martin, Mrs. Jeff Miller and Miss Nan Martin, all of Jump, Mrs. Milford Hall, of McDowell, and Mrs. Willie Clark, of Harold.

Funeral rites were conducted at 10 a.m., July 23, from the home, Revs. Jerry Hall, Mack McCloud and Troy Nickles officiating. Burial was made in the Martin cemetery at Minnie under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Fourth Prize Is Won By Turner In Contest; Denny Awarded Eighth

Ernest Turner, field representative, won fourth cash prize of $200, and Roy R. Denny, the eighth cash prize of $55, and both won trips to the national convention of Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Society, July 20-23, in Minneapolis, Minn. Both men are residents of Drift.

The prizes were awarded in the Society's Sovereign Campaign membership contest in the 10 months, September, 1958, through June, 1959. Mr. Turner scored fourth most, and Mr. Denny eighth most, based on insurance business written.

Twenty-six other Woodmen field representatives won both cash prizes and expenses-paid trips to the convention. The cash prizes were presented by Talmage E. Newton, national field manager, at a field men's meeting during the convention.

Hueysville Man Dies of Heart Attack In Handshoe Church after 'Testifying'

John Sexton, 68, of Hueysville, a member of the Holiness church at Handshoe, was claimed at 9:45 p.m., Tuesday by a heart attack immediately after he had "testified" while services were being conducted.

Mr. Sexton, a retired miner, had been in failing health for ten years. He was a veteran of World War I and a member of the church where he died.

He was a son of Green Sexton and the late Amanda Wicker Sexton. He was twice married, his first wife, Launa Baldrige Sexton, preceding him in death. His second wife, Rosa Pratt Sexton, survives. Three sons survive: Raymond Sexton, of Price, Mason Sexton, Los Angeles, Calif., and Delbert Sexton, San Francisco, California.

When selecting peaches, be sure that the background color is most important. This is a clue to ripeness. It may vary from creamy white to deep golden yellow, depending on variety, but should never be greenish, as peaches that are picked too green have a poor flavor and never become fully ripe.

Heart Patients Receive Medical Aid

Starting August 6, Central Kentucky Heart Clinic for medically indigent heart patients will be held each Thursday at St. Joseph hospital in Lexington instead of twice a month as it has been in the past.

Increased referrals to the clinic not only from the Blue Grass area but from many Eastern Kentucky counties have made it necessary to more than double the number of clinic sessions, according to Dr. Richard R. Crutcher, Lexington, clinic medical director.

To be eligible for the clinic a patient must be referred by a private physician and the referral must state that the patient is medically indigent, Dr. Crutcher said. All patients must be registered by 9 a.m. Central Daylight Saving Time on clinic days or they will not be examined, he added.

Sponsored by the Kentucky Heart Association as a Heart Fund service, and by the hospital and a team of Lexington heart specialists, the clinic's primary purpose is to provide a diagnostic service for indigent heart patients of all ages.

County welfare officials are asked to certify to the indigency status of each patient referred.

A study of 400 Air Force wives disproved the notion that a woman's activities during pregnancy can cause miscarriage, says the August Reader's Digest. The 400 traveled an average of 2,000 miles each, by automobile, plane, train, bus and truck. Five were in smashups; one was thrown out of a car. Twenty had to be extricated from houses demolished by a tornado. But the miscarriage rate was no higher than among women who sit home knitting little garments.

URBAN RENEWAL FUNDS HIT BY VETO OF BILL

Unless some form of urban planning and housing legislation is enacted in this session of Congress, Kentucky may have to reduce planning assistance to local communities by about a third, a state official said this week.

Walter L. Shouse, director of the Kentucky Department of Economic Development's Planning and Zoning Division, said President Eisenhower's veto of the Omnibus Housing Bill has cut off matching federal funds on which Kentucky relies to provide planning services to some 50 cities.

Shouse said the veto also casts doubt on the future of public housing programs under way or proposed in 31 communities of the Commonwealth, except in several cities which already have received housing funds from past appropriations.

All public housing projects are financed by the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency, whose budget requirements were wrapped up on the Omnibus Bill.

Shouse said Kentucky received $35,000 in federal urban planning assistance funds for the 1958-59 fiscal year and that the "absolute minimum" needed for the current year is $25,000. Anything less, he said, would force a reduction in his staff of professional planners and result in serious curtailment of urban planning assistance to Kentucky cities.

Cities expecting to undertake either public housing or urban renewal projects must have an active planning program. The Department of Economic Development furnishes technical consulting assistance and thus helps them to qualify for federal funds.

Although the President recommended authorization for $20 million in urban planning funds in his fiscal year budget message, the effect of his veto of the Omnibus Bill may be that various sections of the bill now will be considered separately.

"If this happens, it is entirely possible that the $20 million may get lost in the shuffle, since the proposed appropriation for urban planning assistance was small in comparison with other items included in the bill such as FHA, public housing and community facilities aid," Shouse said.

He said he had hoped to extend planning services to an additional dozen cities on the waiting list this year. This would require at least a $45,000 to $50,000 federal allocation, which Kentucky would have had a chance to obtain if the housing measure had become law, he said.

Demand for state planning services has grown rapidly. The Planning and Zoning division now serves nearly four times as many cities as formerly as a result of urban growth and an increase in the number of industries seeking for more thorough community planning.

The state's Planning and Zoning Division recently increased its charge for planning services from ten cents per capita to 15 cents for cities of 25,000 population or under. But this increase was necessary to insure that services could be maintained at the present level, Shouse pointed out.

There is little hope, he said, that many of the 41 cities having public housing programs in the works can carry them through unless housing funds are reinstated in a separate bill or a new omnibus measure is introduced on which the President and Congress can act.

The 31 cities recently were certified as having "workable programs" in effect. Workable program status is necessary to enable a city to qualify for federal public housing or slum clearance funds. The Planning and Zoning division currently is supplying planning assistance to 24 of the 31 qualified communities.

The 31 include Prestonsburg, Martin, Paintsville, Barboursville, Cadiz, Catlettsburg, Corbin, Covington, Cumberland, Frankfort, Glasgow, Hazard, Hickman, Hopkinsville, Irvine, Jackson, Lebanon, Louisville, Lyon county, Mayfield, Morehead, Murray, Newport, Nicholasville, Paducah, Russellville, Paris, Pineville, Trigg county, Whitesburg and Williamsburg. In addition Morganfield has plans submitted and in process.

REV. ALLEN HARROD

YOUTH-LED REVIVAL FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH, MARTIN.
Services, August 3-9, at 7:30 p.m. The evangelist will be Rev. Allen Harrod, a young preacher preaching the "old-time" gospel. Allen is a student from Cumberland College. He will be representing Kentucky at the Southern Baptist Conference at Ridgecrest, North Carolina this year as a youth speaker. He and his team will have been in ten revivals in our state this summer. They are sponsored by the state Baptist Student Union, General Association of Baptists in Kentucky, and the various local churches.

Blaine Tucker is the advance and follow-up man for the revivals and is a student at Berea College. The pianist is Miss Judith Wilson, a student at Georgetown College. Good gospel songs will be led by spirited Vade Bolten, song leader, from Murray State College.

Every young person in our area will want to plan to attend every service. Mothers and fathers will want to see youth in the lead for Christ. Your support is necessary and everyone of all age groups are invited to attend these services. The church bus will run for each service from Drift to Martin. (Adv.)

yard and other requirements of the district are complied with as closely as possible in the opinion of the Board of Zoning Adjustment.

Section 82. Group Housing. In the case of group housing of two or more buildings to be constructed on a plot of ground, not subdivided into the customary streets and lots, and which will not be so subdivided or where the existing or contemplated street and lot layout make it impracticable to apply the requirements of this ordinance to the individual building units in such group housing, the application of the terms of this ordinance may be varied by the Board of Zoning Adjustment in a manner which will be in harmony with the character of the neighborhood. However, in no case shall the Board of Zoning Adjustment authorize a use prohibited in the district in which the housing is to be located, or a smaller lot area per family than the minimum required in such district, or a greater height, or a smaller yard area than the requirements of this ordinance permit in such a district.

Section 83. Exception on Height Limits. The height limitations of this ordinance shall not apply to church spires, belfries, cupolas and domes not intended for human occupancy; monuments, water towers, observation towers, transmission towers, windmills, chimneys, smokestacks, derricks, conveyors, flag poles, radio and t.v. towers, masts and aerials.

Section 84. Mobile Home Parks. Mobile Home Parks may be located only in neighborhood business districts. Each boundary of the park shall be at least two hundred (200) feet from any residential building located outside the park, unless separated therefrom by any river, creek, railroad or public street.

ARTICLE IX ENFORCEMENT

Section 91. Enforcing Officer. The provisions of this ordinance shall be administered and enforced by a Building Inspector appointed to that position in the same manner as other city employees are appointed to theirs. Who shall have the power to make inspection of buildings or premises necessary to carry out his duties in the enforcement of this ordinance.

Section 92. Building Permits and Certificates of Occupancy.

92.1 Building Permit Required. It shall be unlawful to commence the excavation for or the construction of any building, including accessory buildings, or to commence the moving or alteration of any buildings, until the Building Inspector has issued a building permit for such work.

92.2 Issuance of Building Permit. In applying to the Building Inspector for a building permit, the applicant shall submit a dimensioned sketch or scale plan indicating the shape, size, and height and location of all buildings to be erected, externally altered, or moved and of any building already on the lot. He shall also state the existing and intended use of all such buildings, and supply such other information as may be required by the Building Inspector for determining whether the provisions of this ordinance are being observed. If the proposed excavation or construction as set forth in the application are in conformity with the provisions of this ordinance, and other ordinances of the City then in force, the Building Inspector shall issue a building permit for such excavation or construction. If a building permit is refused, the Building Inspector shall state such refusal in writing, with the cause, and shall immediately thereupon give notice of such refusal to the applicant at the address indicated in the application. The Building Inspector shall grant or deny the permit within a reasonable time from the date the application is submitted.

92.21 The issuance of a permit shall, in no case, be construed as waiving any provisions of this ordinance.

92.22 A building permit shall become void six (6) months from the date of issuance unless substantial progress has been made by that date on the project described therein.

92.23 There shall be a fee charged for each building permit issued.

92.3 Certificate of Occupancy. No land or building or part thereof hereafter erected or altered in its use or structure shall be used until the Building Inspector shall have issued a certificate of occupancy stating that such land, building, or part thereof, and the proposed use thereof are found to be in conformity with the provisions of this ordinance. Within three days after notification of a building or premises or part thereof is ready for occupancy or use, it shall be the duty of the Building Inspector to make a final inspection thereof and to issue a certificate of occupancy if the land, building or part thereof and the proposed use thereof are found to conform with the provisions of this ordinance; or, if such certification is refused, to state refusal in writing, with the cause, and immediately thereupon mail notice of such refusal to the applicant at the address indicated in the application.

Section 93. Penalties. Any person violating any provisions of this ordinance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not less than one (1) dollar nor more than fifteen (15) dollars for each offense. Each day such violation shall continue shall constitute a separate offense.

Section 94. Remedies. In case any building or structure is, or is proposed to be, erected, constructed, reconstructed, repaired, converted or maintained, or any building, structure or land is, or is proposed to be, used in violation of this ordinance, the Building Inspector or any other appropriate authority, or any adjacent or neighboring property owner who would be damaged by such violation, in addition to other remedies may institute an injunction, mandamus or other appropriate action or proceeding to prevent the work or occupancy of such building, structure or land in any court of competent jurisdiction.

ARTICLE X
BOARD OF ZONING ADJUSTMENT

Section 101. Creation and Appointment. A Board of Zoning Adjustment is hereby established in accordance with Kentucky Revised Statutes, Section 100.560. The Board of Zoning Adjustment shall consist of five (5) members, not more than one (1) of whom may be a member of the Planning Commission. They shall be appointed by the legislative body of the city. The term of membership shall be three (3) years except that the initial individual appointments to the Board shall be terms of one (1), two (2), and three (3) years respectively. Vacancies shall be filled for any unexpired term by the city legislative body.

Section 102. Procedure. Meetings of the Board of Zoning Adjustment shall be held at the call of the Chairman, and at such other times as the Board may determine. All meetings of the Board shall be open to the public. The Board shall adopt rules of procedure and shall keep records of applications and action thereon, which shall be a public record. Upon appointment and annually the Board of Zoning Adjustment shall meet and organize and shall elect its own Chairman who will serve one year or until his successor duly qualifies. Said Board members shall be paid the sum of three (3) dollars per meeting for their services, provided, however, that said Board shall not be entitled to compensation for more than two (2) meetings per calendar month.

Section 103. Appeals: How Taken. Any appeal to the Board of Zoning Adjustment may be taken by any person, firm or corporation aggrieved, or by any governmental officer, department, board or bureau affected by any decision of the Building Inspector based in whole or in part upon the provisions of this ordinance. Such appeal shall be taken by filing with the Board of Zoning Adjustment a notice of appeal, specifying the grounds thereof. Said notice of appeal shall be filed within sixty (60) days from the date upon which the notice of refusal of building permit or notice of refusal of certificate of occupancy is mailed by the Building Inspector; and failure to file notice of appeal within sixty (60) days shall constitute a waiver of the right to appeal. The Building Inspector shall transmit to the Board all papers constituting the record upon which the action appealed was taken. The Board shall fix a reasonable time for the hearing of the appeal, give public notice thereof as well as due notice to the parties in interest, and decide the same within a reasonable time. Upon the hearing any person or party may appear in person or by agent or by attorney.

Section 104. Powers. The Board of Zoning Adjustment shall have the following powers:

104.1 Administrative Review. To hear and decide appeals where there is error in any order, requirement, permit, decision, determination or refusal made by the Building Inspector or other administrative official in the carrying out or enforcement of any provision of this ordinance; and for interpretation of the Zoning Map. The concurring vote of four (4) members of the Board shall be necessary to reverse, or modify any order or decision of an administrative official.

104.2 Special Exceptions. To hear and decide applications for special exceptions as specified in this ordinance and for decisions on any special questions upon which the Board of Zoning Adjustment is specifically authorized to pass.

104.3 Variance. To hear and decide applications for variance from the terms of this ordinance, but only where, by reason of exceptional narrowness, shallowness or shape of a specific piece of property which at the time of the adoption of the ordinance was a lot of record; or where, by reason of exceptional topographic conditions or other extraordinary or exceptional situation or condition of a piece of property the strict application of the provisions of this ordinance would result in exceptional practical difficulties to or exceptional and undue hardship upon the owner of such property, provided that such relief may be granted without substantial detriment to the public good and without substantially impairing the intent and purpose of this ordinance. Financial disadvantage to the property owner is no proof of hardship within the purpose of zoning.

104.31 In granting a variance the Board may attach thereto such conditions regarding the location, character and other features of the proposed building, structure or use as it may deem advisable in the furtherance of the purposes of this ordinance.

104.32 Before any variance is granted it shall be shown that special circumstances are attached to the property which do not generally apply to other property in the neighborhood. Before any variance is granted, a public notice (one public notice in a newspaper of general circulation) shall be given at least fifteen (15) days before issuance of such variance.

104.33 The Board does not possess the power to permit a use prohibited by this ordinance.

ARTICLE XI AMENDMENT

Section III. Procedure. Such regulations, restrictions, and boundaries as are provided for in this ordinance may be amended, supplemented, changed, modified or repealed. The restrictions or amendments made available to protecting property owners by Kentucky Revised Statutes 100.540 are made a part of this ordinance.

111.1 A public hearing shall be held by the City Council before adoption of any proposed amendment, supplement or change, at least fifteen (15) days notice of the time and place of which shall be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the municipality.

Section 112. Approval of Planning Commission. No amendment shall become effective unless it is first submitted to and approved by the Planning Commission, or if disapproved, shall receive a majority vote of the entire membership of the City Council.

ARTICLE XII
LEGAL STATUS PROVISIONS

Section 121. Conflict with Other Ordinances and Private Deeds. In case of conflict between this ordinance and any part thereof, and the whole or part of any existing or future ordinance of the City of Prestonsburg, or the whole or part of any existing or future private covenants or deeds, the most restrictive in each case shall apply.

121.1 The Zoning Ordinance and Map adopted by the city of Prestonsburg, prior to this zoning ordinance and map, with subsequent amendments thereto is hereby repealed.

Section 122. Validity. If any section, clause, provision or portion of this ordinance shall be held to be invalid or unconstitutional by any court of competent jurisdiction, such holding shall not affect any other section, clause, provision or portion of the ordinance which is not in itself invalid or unconstitutional.

Section 123. Effective Date. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force immediately after its adoption, the public welfare demanding it.

FOLKLORIST TO BE SPEAKER AT PIKEVILLE COLLEGE DINNER

Dr. Gordon Wilson, head of the department of English of Western Kentucky State College, will address some 70 summer graduates of Pikeville College at a dinner August 14.

Nine Floyd countians are members of the class. The candidates for degrees this summer, all but three seeking the teacher's degree of Bachelor of Science in Education, will be honor guests at the banquet, the closing activity of summer school at Pikeville, Dr. A. A. Page, college president, has announced. The other three of the graduates, all of whom took part in commencement exercises last May 31, expect Bachelor's of Arts degrees.

Dr. Wilson, head of Western's English department for 31 years, holds bachelor, master and doctor of philosophy degrees from Indiana University. A native of Calloway county, he began his teaching career with three years in the Hickman county schools before going to Western Kentucky State College, where he has taught since. He has written grade-school and high-school English-language-text material.

A self-styled "dabbler all his life" in folklore and ornithology, Dr. Wilson was one of the founders of the Kentucky Ornithological Society in 1923. Besides editing its publication, THE KENTUCKY WARBLER, for a number of years, he has contributed extensively to ornithological journals.

He was editor of THE KENTUCKY FOLKLORE AND POETRY MAGAZINE from 1926 to 1931, and still writes a weekly newspaper column, "Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore," used in some 100 papers, including The Floyd County Times.

For 22 years Dr. Wilson has conducted an annual study of changing bird life in the Mammoth Cave National Park for the National Park Service. He is the author of two books which grew out of his weekly column, PASSING INSTITUTIONS and FIDELITY FOLKS.

Floyd countians among the summer graduates are Iola Crisp, Martin; Wilma S. Crisp, Martin; Edna M. Davis, Pyramid, Violetta A. Davis, Pyramid; Aileen D. Fraley, Weeksbury; Adrianna H. Francis, Garrett; Ollie S. Gibson, Heenor; Georgia S. Hall, Galveston; and Ruth T. Smith, Weeksbury.

Clay Sheriff
Tells Troubles
To Area Council

Berea, Ky., July 23—The problems faced while trying to uphold the law as sheriff of Clay county were outlined to the Workshop on Urban Adjustment of Southern Mountain Migrants here today by T. C. Sizemore, of Manchester.

Sizemore, who became sheriff a year and half ago because he wanted to "clean up Clay county" where his father was shot and killed in a feud when young Sizemore was only 11 years old, said that his job has not been and is not easy.

He implied laxity on the part of the courts in his county in supporting his efforts. One week-end, he said, he raided 14 bootlegging establishments, but by the time he got to court for the trials all 14 suspects had been released on bond. After he had subpoenaed witnesses, he said, the judge told him: "Sheriff, this is a bad search warrant. It says no time of day or price of liquor." Eleven of the 14 arrested persons went free, the sheriff said; two were subsequently acquitted by a jury and one was fined $100 and costs.

Sizemore said that when people from Clay county "return from Cincinnati, they have a healthy respect for the law." Referring to Cincinnati, he said, "I thank God they've got a police force. Why can't we have courts like in Cincinnati? When people know there is no law and order they have no respect for you. When they sign bond in Clay county you never know what happens to them."

He said that the "only way to stop crime is a severe jail sentence. The people who migrate to Cincinnati and get into trouble are sent to the workhouse. When they come back here and get in trouble and I tell them to appear in court, they come."

On one weekend, the sheriff said, he and his deputies arrested 50 persons on such charges as drunkenness, breach of peace and assault and battery. "On Monday morning," he said, "the judge said they'd all got bond."

He said the judge told him: "I was sheriff too, once, Son. You ain't learned much. Don't you know everyone wants the law enforced for everyone else, not themselves?"

The sheriff said that since he was elected he had appointed 17 deputies, but that there was so much trouble and so many shootings that now he has but one. "He's a relative," he said, "and felt sorry for me."

Sizemore concluded, "Shooting an officer on the streets of Manchester is like shooting a dog."

Declaring that he took his oath of office and swore to uphold the law, he added, "I don't know how long I'll be upholding it."

STUDENTS OF PROF. W. B. WARD AT PRESTONSBURG, 1910-1911

Prof. W. B. Ward, native of Inez, was an instructor who inspired many students of the area to success. Under his guidance many Floyd countians received the necessary normal school training to enable them to start life as teachers. Many of his students rose to prominence as teachers, lawyers, school administrators, businessmen and public officials.

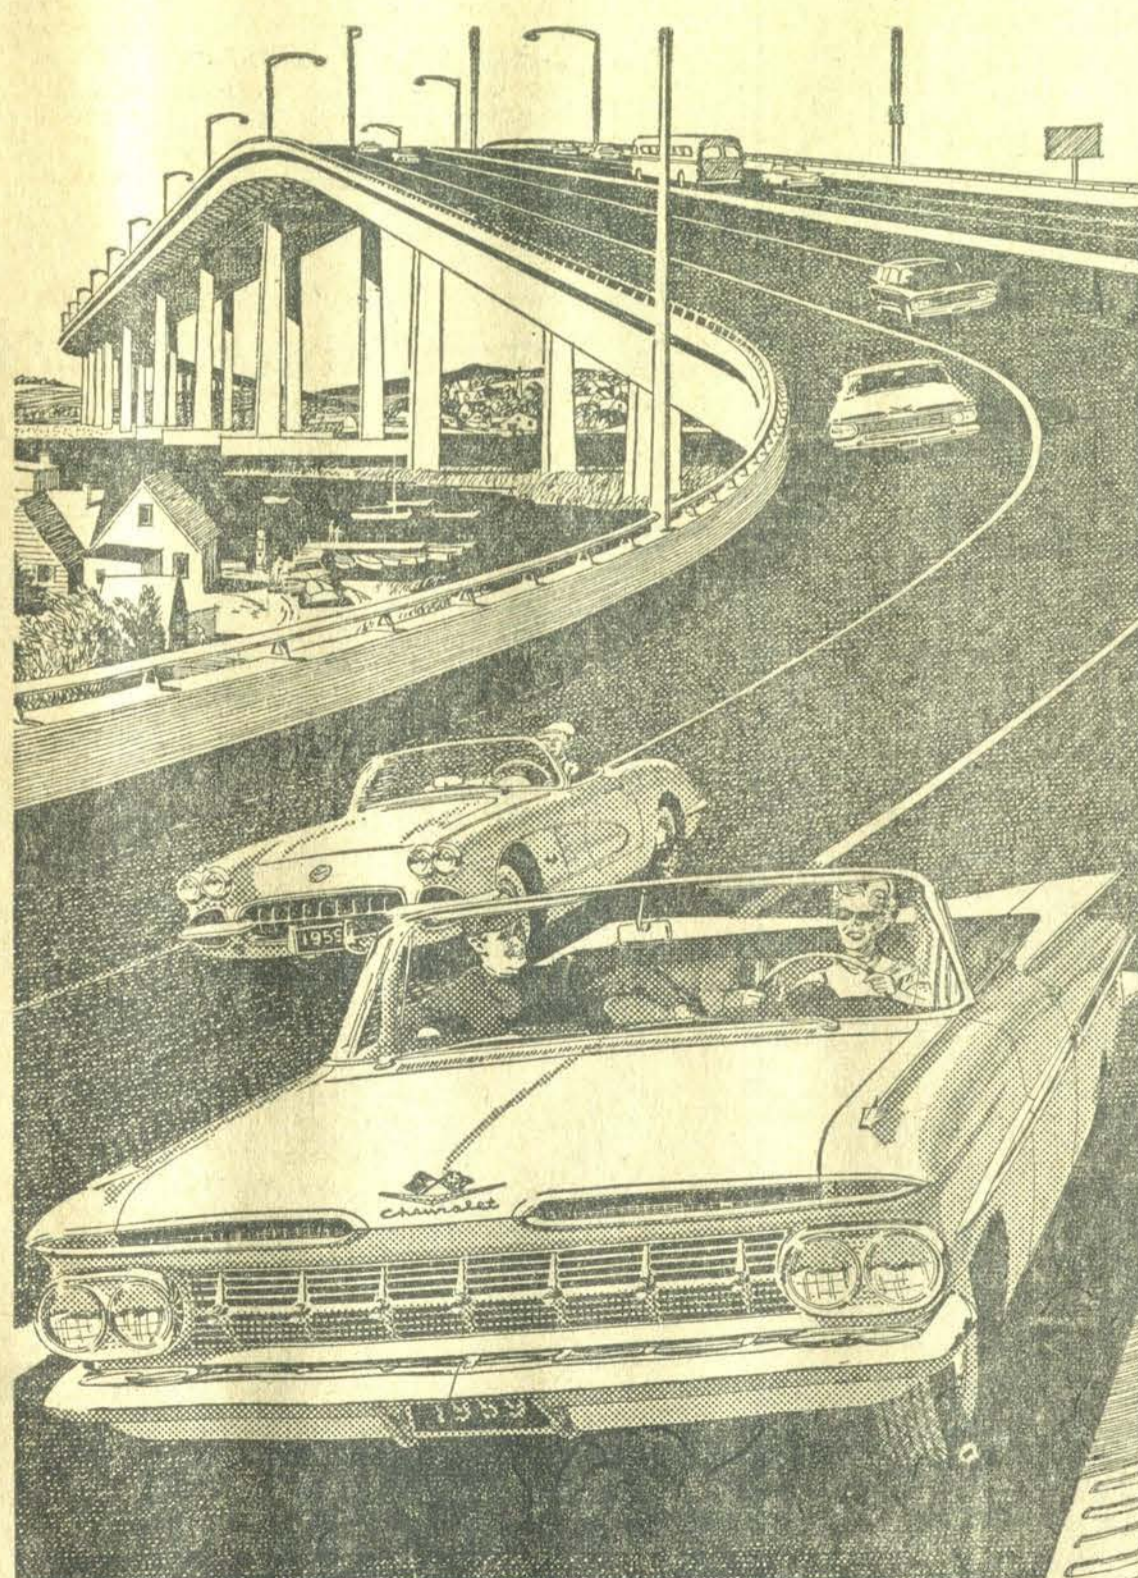

The above picture of Ward's 1910-1911 class at Prestonsburg shows, front row, left to right: Frank Stratton, Thomas O. Nunnery, J. H. Nunnery, E. V. (Hack) Hall, Prof. Taylor, Miss Stringfield (teacher), Mrs. Beam (teacher), Prof. Beam, W. B. Ward, Grace Marrs,* Anna Harris, Pearl Lafferty, Frances Reynolds. Second row, sitting: O. C. Hall (blurred), Ballard M. James, Maggie May, Beatrice Adams, Sue Salisbury, Martha Harris, Ella Stanley, Evelyn Harris, Miss Miller (teacher), Luther Osborne, Crit Hall, Frank Hall, Clyde Burchett. Standing: Mary Langley, Tommy May, James May, John Spradlin, Tom Calhoun, Oscar Preston, Bennie Banks, Manis Conley, Grady Bevins, Noah Jones, Joe Stanley, Betty Stephens, Earl Burchett, Grace Mellon, Mabel Spurlock, Nannie Hall, Amy Snively and Coochie Burchett. One of 7 Big Bests Chevy gives you over any car in its field

Open invitation to excitement, the Impala Convertible... and America's only authentic sports car, the Corvete.

You've got more to go on than our say-so: Every motor magazine has given Chevy's standard passenger car and Corvete V8's unstinted praise. SPORTS CARS ILLUSTRATED says it this way: "... surely the most wonderfully responsive engine available today at any price." And if you want the thrif of a six, you still get the best of it in a Chevy.

BEST ECONOMY No doubt about this: a pair of Chevy sixes with Powerglide came in first and second in their class in this year's Mobilgas Economy Run—getting the best mileage of any full-size car, 22.38 miles per gallon.

BEST BRAKES Not only bigger, but built with bonded linings for up to 66% longer life. Just to prove what's what, Chevy out-stopped both of the "other two" in a NASCAR*-conducted test of repeated stops from highway speeds.

*National Association for Stock Car Advancement and Research.

BEST RIDE A few minutes behind the wheel will leave no doubt about this. MOTOR TREND magazine sums it up this way: "... the smoothest, most quiet, softest riding car in its price class."

BEST TRADE-IN Check the figures in any N.A.D.A.* Guide Book. You'll find that Chevy used car prices last year averaged up to $128 higher than comparable models of the "other two."

*National Automobile Dealers Association.

BEST ROOM Official dimensions reported to the Automobile Manufacturers Association make it clear. Chevy's front seat hip room, for example, is up to 5.9 inches wider than comparable cars.

BEST STYLE It's the only car of the leading low-priced 3 that's unmistakably modern in every line. "In its price class," says POPULAR SCIENCE magazine, "a new high in daring styling."

Our Highways, So Uniquely Littered

It isn't often that this or any other newspaper will take a second glance at an unsigned contribution, but the following from a Bonanza resident expresses our own opinions so faithfully from another point of view that we publish it as an editorial:

"I wonder if it would help any if you should write an editorial on the cleanliness of our highways? We have just recently returned from a vacation in Ontario, Canada, up through Ohio, Michigan to Detroit and north-east 300 miles to Rice Lake, Bailieboro, Ontario, back through New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and home.

"But only in East Kentucky do you find the highways littered as ours are. In over two thousand miles of travel I did not see one single garbage dump beside the highway—only in my own beloved Kentucky that has scenery surpassed by none. If only it were not so littered.

"Sunday, as we drove along U.S. 23, I was heartsick as I noticed all the ditch lines filled with trash of all kinds. How easy it would be, if only we would carry a small box or paper bag in our cars for the things we toss out the windows. Our state provides trash cans every few miles. If only we had officers with enough courage to enforce the twenty-five dollar fine for dumping. (Wish I had the power to make it $100)."

Dewey Lake Outdraws Famed Dale Hollow

When one considers the great expanse of Dale Hollow, home of record smallmouth and walleye and one of the most beautiful impoundments in the entire TVA chain, it does not seem possible that Dewey Lake, smallest of the five major lakes in Kentucky, drew more visitors over the July 4 week-end than the older and more famous Dale Hollow.

Yet that is what happened. The total number of visitors at Dale Hollow was placed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers at 13,000. Figures produced by the same source, and arrived at by the same method, show that during the same period 18,335 were at Dewey Lake.

Dale Hollow surely was not up to its usual power as a drawing-card, for four other lakes in the Cumberland valley, plus Dale Hollow's 13,000, drew a record-breaking 310,000 persons; yet none of these huge reservoirs was in a class with the Floyd county lake, size considered. Lake Cumberland, for instance, which is 100 miles long and has dozens of arms that are as large as, or larger than, Dewey, attracted 106,000 visitors—less than six times the number at Dewey.

All this emphasizes three facts:
 1. A great region in Eastern Kentucky and adjacent West Virginia and Virginia has in Dewey Lake its only sizeable body of water for fishing and other recreation.
 2. Dewey Lake is a recreation center, geographically speaking.
 3. The state of Kentucky, now that it has assumed responsibility for development of the lake, should add to the great natural beauty of Dewey Lake all those facilities which will afford the visitor his money's worth of recreation.

Four duplex vacation cottages, modern as they are, are not enough. Access to the lake, particularly at this time when the only road to its main recreation area is torn up, is pitifully inadequate; the lakeside drive from Hager Gap to Stratton Branch should be given priority; a golf course—only one of several features already planned for Bunker Hill Island (now Chandler Island) on Lake Cumberland—should be constructed; more vacation cottages and a lodge with dining room service should be built.

Individuality Is Keynote In Loomhouse

In Berea, where the Bluegrass of Kentucky meets the Southern Appalachian range, you will find the Churchill Weavers producing hand-woven articles in the same manner as did the Egyptians 6,000 years ago or grandmothers 100 years ago.

With organizational and selling talents, but with a sentiment for the past, Carroll Churchill, a physics professor at Berea College, established here one of America's unique operations.

Upon discovering that ancient weaving was still taking place in the southern mountains, Churchill put hundreds to work on hand looms of all sizes and shapes. The big Churchill Loomhouse is carefully adapted to the mountaineers' independent ways and has no rows of automatic machines.

Individuality, a freedom of creativity, and a connection with the past are woven into the Churchill weavers' shawls, scarfs, linens, neckties, blankets and other goods. These articles are turned out in such quantities that it is sometimes difficult to convince buyers that they are all hand work.

Churchill and his wife, Eleanor, who contributes her skill of design to many of the goods maintain that there will always be customers with a craving for individual workmanship, which machine goods cannot satisfy.

These hand-woven articles, which include both old and modern designs, are known and sold throughout the United States and foreign countries. Many travelers come here to see the hand-woven products and the process by which they are made.

When you visit Churchill Weavers, you may take time to watch each operation in the Loomhouse on a self-guided tour. You will see all steps of production, from the making of the warp to the shipping of the finished product.

HOME FREEZER CARE

You can cut the operating costs of your Home Freezer by good management practices.

The location of the freezer determines the convenience and operating efficiency. Operating costs are lower if the freezer is located in a cool, dry, well ventilated room, out of direct sun light. Space around the freezer is needed for good air circulation to remove heat from the condenser.

Keep the condenser free of dust and lint by cleaning it with a brush or vacuum cleaner several times a year. If your freezer is not self-defrosting remove the frost when it is from one-fourth to one-half inch thick. Defrost at a time when the freezer is low on food.

Avoid overloading the freezer with food to be frozen. Limit the freezing load to two or three lbs. of food for each cubic foot of freezer capacity.

For economical operation, it is important to keep the freezer full with a rapid turnover of food. Avoid long storage as no food can stay at top quality indefinitely, even though frozen. Choose good quality food and process it carefully.

You might remember these freezer management practices: Keep a thermometer in the storage compartment and be sure the temperature remains at zero or below. Foods stored at temperature above zero lose flavor and nutritive value rapidly. Keep the cabinet and door gasket clean. Wax the outside of the cabinet about twice a year to preserve the finish. Oil the hinges and latches for better freezer wear.

Here's How To Raise A Juvenile Delinquent

(By H. H. Robinson, in The Hub)
Begin at infancy to give your child everything he wants. Raise him on the idea that the world owes him a living.

Never give him any spiritual training until he is 21, then let him decide for himself. Show him how much smarter he is than all the neighbors' children.

Avoid use of the word "wrong." (It may develop a guilt complex.) This will prepare him to believe, when he is punished for stealing cars later in life, that society is "against him" and he is being persecuted.

Pick up after him, do everything for him so he will gain experience in throwing his own burdens onto others.

Quarrel frequently in his presence. In this way he will be prepared for a broken home later on. But give him all the spending money he wants; never let him earn his own.

Take his part against policemen, teachers and neighbors. And when finally he gets into serious trouble, you can say, "I never could do anything with him."

CLIFF

Mrs. Will Stephens is still confined to her bed and wheel chair after suffering a fall at her home four weeks ago. Calling on her this week were two of her nieces, Mrs. C. E. Hornbuckle and Mrs. Herman Taylor, of Ashland, her sister, Mrs. Celia Hackworth of Bonanza, her brother, W. L. Baldridge of Little Paint and nephew, William Baldridge, Jr., Mrs. Baldridge, and daughters, Carolyn and Sandra.

Larry Johnson was the overnight guest of Stephen Lee Best, Wednesday.

Stephen Lee Best accompanied the L. R. Johnson family to Flemingsburg, Monday where they visited friends. They also visited Blue Lick State Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Stephens attended the funeral of Jeff Music at East Point, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stephens and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Stanley visited the Breaks Interstate park, Sunday.

BOARD OF THANKS
I wish to thank our many friends, neighbors and relatives for the thoughtfulness, kindness, sympathy and beautiful flowers tendered during the recent illness and passing of our beloved mother, Mrs. Josie Martin. Our sincere thanks go to the ministers for their consoling words and to the Hall Bros. Funeral Home, whose services did so much to ease our sorrow. We shall always be grateful.

WHY PEOPLE PREFER TO SAVE WITH INSURED SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS

- SPECIALIZED FOR SAVINGS
Our type of financial institution exists especially to serve persons desiring to accumulate a fund by saving from current income, or persons seeking to put accumulated money to work earning a safe return.
- EQUAL TREATMENT
Each saver's dollar shares equally with all other dollars in the institution's distribution of earnings.
- SAFETY ASSURED FOR SAVINGS
Your funds placed in this institution are protected three-fold: safeguarded by the sound policies of management; protected by the inherent safety of first mortgage loans repayable monthly; and finally, the funds of each saver are insured to $10,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Corporation, an instrumentality of the United States Government.
- FLEXIBILITY OF USE
Because a person can add to or withdraw a portion or all of the funds from his account without payment of a service charge, the Association is an excellent place to build a working reserve fund or estate.
