This Town-- That World

They say man is a creature of habit. I've been writing this column for years now, and I could quit tomorrow--just like that.

HOW INTERESTING!

I once read, some place, that if a columnist ever runs short of ideas--perish the thought!--all he or she has to do to turn out interesting copy is to write something about food or health.

That still leaves me out in left field. As for food, all I know about it is that it's to be eaten if you can afford it; that corn bread and sweet milk still stand unbeset as a cereal--and whoever had the idea of putting sugar in cawn bread should be deported. Besides, I'm considering going on a diet. And my knowledge of health matters extends only to "allin'" and "puny" or "pearl" and "to'able" . . . I'm just "to'able"--how're you, . . . Interested?

HAPPY DAZE

At the risk of having some youngster call me a liar or pop me one in the snoot, I hereby state, with the rural schools opening next Monday morning, that these are their finest hours and happiest days. What's fun about studying? Don't ask me--but there are a lot of things that are worse.

I now recall some of the anguish of soul and body that school days brought, way back then, but from this distance I see that I never had it so good. Even those rules teacher used to make, with revisions, (See Story No. 4, Page 6)

RIVER CLAIMS GEO. HOPSON

Prestonsburg Man Is Drowned Saturday At Betsy Layne Bridge

Eighty-five-year-old George Hopson, of Prestonsburg, drowned in the Big Sandy River at Betsy Layne last Saturday morning while fishing.

His body was recovered during search operations conducted by the Floyd and Pike County Rescue Squads in 15 feet of water, approximately 35 feet downstream from the sandbar from which he toppled.

Mr. Hopson, Mrs. Eliza Sanders, of Betsy Layne, and her two young grandsons were fishing from the sandbar, and the woman and boys spread the alarm immediately after he fell into the river and was swept downstream. Percy Howell, who was crossing the bridge across the river at the fishing-spot, said he saw the aged man rise, begin staggering, then fall into the stream. Witnesses said the victim fought the current, and this fact eliminated the theory that he might have suffered a heart attack.

A jury empaneled by Coroner James J. Carter held that Hopson came to his death by accidental drowning.

The victim was a onetime miner and was a son of Litt and Delliah Music Hopson. He was a native of the East Point community and was a member of the Free Will Baptist Church. He was thrice married--first to Susan Frazier, after her death to Sarah Ellen Rose, and following the passing of his second wife to Mrs. Louise Caudill.

Surviving him are one son, Buck Hopson, of Prestonsburg, three daughters, Mrs. Alice Bilotti, of Prestonsburg, Mrs. Josephine Lewis, Lancer, and Mrs. Eliza Hamilton, of Hite; three step-children, Mrs. Myrtle King, Huntington, W. Va.; Mrs. Mary Short, Prestonsburg, and (See Story No. 3, Page 6)

SECOND WELL ON JOHNS CR. BIG PRODUCER

Combs, Associates Plan Drilling of Third Well; Strike Arouses Interest

Gov. Bert Combs and a group of Floyd county associates continued to be in luck last week as they drilled in a second heavy producer in both oil and gas on the Collinsworth Branch of Johns Creek, near Elm Log.

The well, considered stronger than the first which was drilled on the same branch about two months ago, produced in one test at the rate of 288 barrels of oil per 24 hours. Its gas volume was estimated by Smith Bradley, of Prestonsburg, driller of the wells and member of the firm, at "better than half a million."

The pay sand is the Maxon. During a six-hour test the new well produced 12 barrels of oil an hour without hindrance of gas pressure. Against 125-pound line pressure, the yield was three barrels an hour.

The first well drilled by the group is now producing about 50 barrels of oil a day, in addition to 300,000 cubic feet of gas.

The firm expects to begin a third well soon.

This second oil-and-gas strike has spurred holders of leases in surrounding areas, both established companies and independent groups, to new activity, and it is held possible that the Johns Creek section will experience a sizeable drilling boom.

Owners of the two Collinsworth Branch wells are marketing both the oil and gas production. The oil is being piped across the hills to the foot of the mountain on Cow Creek where Ashland Oil Company trucks pick it up.

INLAND SETS SAFETY DAY

Annual Coal Firm Event Slated At Wheelwright; Plan First Aid Contest

Inland Steel Company's coal mining operations will hold their seventh annual Safety Day at the Wheelwright athletic field Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

The principal feature will be a first-aid contest between teams representing the mines and the Price preparation plant. Nine teams composed of mine workers will compete for the Inland championship trophy and the right to represent the company in the Big Sandy district contest, which will be held at Pikeville, September 17.

In addition to the Inland championship trophy, which goes to the winning team, prizes will be awarded to the members of the three leading teams, and these teams will be entered in the district contest, which is sponsored by the Big Sandy-Elkhorn Coal Mining Institute.

The annual Safety Day is promoted by the Inland Steel Company with the cooperation of Local Union No. 5899 and the district office of the United Mine Workers of America, the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, the United States Bureau of Mines and local and national coal operators' associations. A number of men actively engaged in mine safety work have been invited to attend and participate in the safety day activities.

Ambrose Mandt, commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, and J. S. Malesky, district supervisor of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, will be the chief judges. Other officials and inspectors of these organizations will serve as team judges.

Among those invited to participate are James Westfield, assistant director, U.S. Bureau of Mines; Charles Ferguson, safety director, United Mine Workers of America; George Trevorrow, safety director, Bituminous Coal Operators' Association, all of Washington, D.C.; George Parry, district supervisor, U.S. Bureau of Mines, Barbourville; Carson Hibbits, president, C. E. Beane, vice-president and B. B. Bloomer, representative, District 30, United Mine Workers; J. M. Thornsbury, president, Local Union No. 5899; Arlie Webb, safety director, Big Sandy-Elkhorn Coal Operators' Association, Pikeville; Robert Dickson, safety director, Kentucky River Mining Institute, Hazard; and Willard Stanley, district inspector, Kentucky Department of Mines, (See Story No. 2, Page 6)

Middle Creek Woman Struck By Stray Shot From Nearby Hillside

The rifle bullet which struck Mrs. Thomas Estep in the arm while she was in the garden near her home on the Middle Creek road last Friday afternoon may have been a stray shot, authorities believe.

The shot apparently came from a nearby hillside and is believed to have been fired without malice. The bullet was removed from Mrs. Estep's arm at the Prestonsburg General Hospital. Although it had split into several pieces, it is believed to have been of .22-calibre.

It was said here that the Estep's daughter Katherine suffered a bullet wound, several years ago, in the same fashion.

HAROLD FIRM PLANS EVENTS

Open House, Dedication Of Exchange Building Are Scheduled Sunday

Dedication ceremonies will be formally held Sunday evening at the Wheelwright high school auditorium for the new Melvin telephone exchange building of the Harold Telephone Company, it was announced Wednesday by Paul Gearheart, president of the utility.

The dedication scheduled at 7:30 p.m., will follow open house at the Melvin building, to be held from 2 to 5 p.m., Gearheart said. Woodrow W. Burchett, of Prestonsburg, a member of the Public Service Commission, and H. O. Zimmerman, of Wheelwright, manager of coal properties for the Inland Steel Company, will be featured speakers at the dedication. The general public is invited.

Gearheart noted that the new Melvin exchange will offer free service to Wheelwright. More than 375 subscribers will be serviced by the exchange.

"Telephone service is available to everybody in Floyd county at the present," Gearheart pointed out in commenting on the expansion of his firm and others.

The Melvin building, part of a $301,000 program of development by the Harold Telephone Company in that area, is modern in every respect. Cost of the building was $20,000 and the equipment was purchased for $52,000.

Construction Worker Injured In Accident On Knott Road Job

The foot of John Leckrone, 30, of Sugar Loaf, was so badly mangled Monday by gears of a tractor of the Winston Ford Construction Company that amputation was necessary.

It was said that Leckrone stepped in oil and that his foot skidded into the running gears of the machinery which was being used in the construction of a road up Caney Creek, Knott county, toward Caney Junior College at Pippa Passes. Amputation above the ankle was performed at Our Lady of the Way hospital, Martin. His condition was termed satisfactory, Wednesday noon.

The road on which Leckrone was working will be driven to little more than a mile of the school.

LICENSE SALE IN CONFUSION

Due To News Story; Mrs. Moore Explains Misunderstanding Cause

Mrs. DuRan Moore, of the County Clerk's office, said this week that a misunderstanding of the new law governing occupational licenses has slowed their sale and caused many Floyd dealers to become delinquent. The confusion began with a simple statement in a daily newspaper to the effect that the state no longer collects occupational licenses. This is true, but, Mrs. Moore points out, the state merely surrendered the collection of these license fees to the counties.

The Floyd fiscal court set the occupational license fees, earlier this year, and when the misunderstanding arose granted an extension of time to give all merchants a chance to buy licenses without being charged a penalty. The extension period expired July 16, and the penalty is now being collected.

"We've even had some who bought occupational licenses this year to come back and demand a refund of their money," Mrs. Moore said. She added that they simply did not understand that occupational licenses are now issued by the county and the fees collected by and for the county.

THIEVES LOOT FLOYD STORE

Guns, Other Merchandise Stolen From Baldrige; Garrett Loot Located

The first burglary reported in the county this month took place Wednesday night, with the grocery store of W. A. Baldrige, of Little Paint, being looted of merchandise.

Entrance was effected through one of three narrow vertical panes in the front door of the building. Mr. Baldrige listed as missing between 20 and 30 cartons of cigarettes, a case of sugar, two .22-calibre rifles, two work shirts, a small quantity of tobacco and other miscellaneous items. The cash register which contained a few pennies apparently was untouched.

The robbery was being investigated today (Thursday) by State Detective Chester D. Potter and Sheriff Hershel Warrens. Fingerprints were photographed.

Detective Potter said that approximately $1,100 worth of merchandise taken from the store of Keith Scott at Garrett, the night of May 23, was recovered Monday by him, Mr. Scott and State Detective Combs. The merchandise was found in two Letcher county homes, occupants of which said they bought the stolen items. Nobody has yet been arrested in the Scott robbery which netted the robbers an estimated $4,000 worth of drygoods.

Jailed here this week: James E. Turner, breaking and entering and peace warrant, arrested by State Trooper E. B. Allen; Charles A. Belcher and Larry J. DeLongchamp, both absent without leave from military service, jailed by Policeman A. J. Reed, of Martin; Amos Poe, drunk and resisting arrest, booked by Prestonsburg Policemen Bill Potter and Kelley Frasure.

HALL OF FAME HONORS MRS. MAY AND RANIER

A former Floyd county woman, Mrs. Wilma Gunn May, of Mathis, W. Va., and Harry B. Ranier, Prestonsburg contractor, were named Saturday evening to the Floyd County Hall of Fame at the fifth annual meeting of the organization. Announcement of the honor accorded the two was made to members and officers of the Hall of Fame at the banquet held at the Wise Restaurant. Dr. Homer Vanderpool, well-known Methodist minister and evangelist, was the after-dinner speaker, and his address held the complete attention of the 40 persons attending the meeting.

Mrs. May, wife of Edgar R. May, is a native of Lucedale, Miss., but has resided in this county for years, coming to the Maytown community as a teacher. She has taught in the schools of this county for years. A few years ago, she gained wide recognition as the author of the book, "A Teacher Views the School Crisis." She also has been a contributor to Southern Baptist publications, has been active in church and civic work, and presently is teaching a class of retarded children in West Virginia.

Mr. Ranier, who was born in Letcher county, has resided in Prestonsburg most of his life. The Hall of Fame honor came to him in recognition of his unselfish service during the 1957 flood and the Floyd county school bus disaster the following year. A contractor, he threw the full resources of his machinery and hired personnel to the service of the flood victims and to the rescue work following the bus tragedy at a personal outlay of several thousands of dollars, the Hall of Fame citation recounted. Neither of the new Hall of Fame members was present at the meeting.

In the business session, the Hall of Fame elected Dr. Harold W. Dorsey, former pastor of the First Methodist Church here, no w pastor of the Pikeville Methodist Church, president for the coming year; Marvin Music, of Prestonsburg, vice-president; Mrs. Betty Stephens, of Prestonsburg, secretary, and Miss Ruth Sipple, of Martin, treasurer. Two new members were added to the board of directors: Robert Wallace and Mrs. Chalmer H. Frazier, both of Prestonsburg, for two years each. Jesse Elliott as retiring president, will serve one year as a director.

The Committee on Arrangements for the 1961 Hall of Fame is composed of Mrs. Chalmer H. Frazier, chairman, Fred G. Francis and Dr. Harold W. Dorsey.

AUXIER SPAN OK IS SOUGHT

Highway Department Asks U. S. Engineers To Approve Structure

The U. S. Corps of Engineers, Huntington, W. Va., announced this week that the Kentucky Department of Highways has applied for approval of location and plans of a highway bridge to be constructed across the Big Sandy river at Auxier.

Plans for the Auxier bridge, which is a part of the Prestonsburg-Pointsville road work along the river, call for a three-span, continuous-girder bridge, the main span over the river to be 455 feet long with a minimum vertical clearance of 53.75 feet above high water at the middle of the channel span. This span would be 4.25 feet above the 1862 high water level.

The Corps of Engineers at Huntington will receive and consider any objections to the proposed bridge until August 15.

Construction of the Auxier bridge has been reported as having No. 1 priority on the overall Prestonsburg-Pointsville project, and its completion may precede that of the road itself. The new highway has been completed to a point a few yards short of the present bridge there.

HARRIS NAMED IN GUN DEATH

Marion Hatfield Dies From Shotgun Wound; Floyd Men Involved

Tommy Harris, 41-year-old Gallia county, O. farmer, is in jail at Gallipolis, O., charged with the shotgun slaying late Sunday afternoon of his former Floyd county neighbor, Marion Hatfield, 35, of Jackson, Ohio.

The slain man was a son of Frank Hatfield, of Jackson, former Floyd deputy sheriff, ex-resident of Jacks Creek, and now the Democratic nominee for sheriff of Jackson county, Ohio. The man accused of his slaying is a former resident of Melvin.

Details of the shooting have not been fully learned here. It was said that Hatfield was shot in the neck with a single blast from a shotgun while he and three other Floyd countians were at the Harris home, between Vinton and Rio Grande, Ohio.

Harris was being held without bond, early this week. Sheriff Oscar Baird, of Gallia county, said he was questioning Hatfield's companions, all of whom are formerly from Floyd county.

Harris was quoted as saying he was drinking at the time of Hatfield's death and that he did not know what happened.

Body of the victim was taken to the Mayhew Funeral Home, and burial was made Wednesday in the Oak Hill (O.) city cemetery.

FREE TEXTBOOKS ANNOUNCED

Free high school textbooks will be furnished by the state this year for English composition in grades nine, ten, eleven and twelve, and in literature for grade twelve only, it was announced this week by the county superintendent of schools office.

Floyd School Openings, Annual Meeting Slated

Floyd county rural schools will open Monday, it was announced recently by the county superintendent's office. Consolidated schools will open August 29.

Rural teachers will formally open their schools and dismiss at noon to attend the annual meeting at the Martin high school. At Martin the rural teachers will be issued record books and other materials.

SLONE KILLS 3 CHILDREN

Former Mental Patient Takes Own Life, Friday At Knott County Home

A mentally disturbed Knott county farmer last Friday killed three of his four children, then ended his own life as officials were preparing to sign papers to re-commit him to a mental institution.

The slayer-suicide was 29-year-old Willard Slone, who used a single-action shotgun to kill his children and himself. The child-victims were Nona Slone, 10, Douglas, 4, and Bill, 9. Slone spared another son and his pregnant wife, although she attempted to wrest from him the shotgun he was using.

The shooting took place at the Slone home near Carrie, five miles downstream on Troublesome Creek from Hindman.

Knott Sheriff Carlos Huff described the scene like this: "Slone's father, Mose Slone, went to Hindman Friday morning to procure papers re-committing his son to Kentucky State hospital, Danville. He had been there a year ago, received treatment, and was released.

While the sheriff was waiting for a doctor to sign the papers, a call came notifying him that "Willard had done some shooting."

Huff said Slone killed Nona in the yard of their home at Carrie. He wounded Bill in the leg and the youngster fled to the home of a neighbor, Willie West.

Slone then entered the house, dragged the boy outside, and fired one charge into his head.

He then killed Douglas with another shot and reloaded the weapon and turned it on himself.

Slone was loading the gun again when he died.

Coroner John Everage later issued a preliminary verdict of homicide and suicide.

He said Mrs. Slone was treated by a Hindman doctor and sent home.

Mrs. Myrtle Campbell, Age 55, of Auxier, Dies Following Long Illness

Mrs. Myrtle Campbell, 55, of Auxier, succumbed to a long illness at home Sunday evening. A daughter of the late Thomas and Polly Clark Burga, she was twice married. Her first husband, Shug Erick, preceded her in death. Her second husband, Earl Campbell, survives.

Mrs. Campbell has no surviving children. She was a member of the Free Will Baptist church.

Surviving brothers and sisters are Mrs. Tilden Collins, Prestonsburg; William Burga and Ollie Burga, both of Wheelwright; Robert Burga, of Lancer, and Thomas Burga, Jr., Dayton, Ohio.

Funeral services were conducted at 2 p.m., Wednesday at the Moore Chapel, the Rev. Henry Crider officiating. Burial was made in the Ferguson cemetery at Boldman under the direction of the Moore Funeral Home.

FISCAL COURT SEEKING BIDS ON EQUIPMENT

Legal Snarl Causes Advertising for Bids Tho Machinery in Use

The Floyd fiscal court met today (Thursday) with a major item of business being to arrange for the advertising for bids on road machinery, although the machinery has already been acquired under a lease-purchase agreement and has been in operation on two road projects the past several weeks.

Advertising for bids was decided upon after Gov. Bert Combs announced Monday that the Division of Rural Highways is being directed to make equipment rental payments only to counties that have procured machinery according to the spirit and the letter of the law, which calls for advertising for competitive bids.

Governor Combs' action was taken after an Associated Press writer uncovered the fact that several of the counties cooperating with the state in the rental-purchase of machinery for use on their roads had not advertised for bids.

County Judge Henry Stumbo said the Floyd fiscal court acted in good faith in acquiring from the Whyne Machinery Company $73,601 worth of new equipment, although bids were not asked by newspaper advertisement. Bids were received, however, from two firms, he said, and Whyne's was accepted as the better of the two.

County Attorney Robert S. Wellman said the Floyd court's action was made in July, prior to an Attorney General's opinion holding that advertising for bids was necessary. He added that he wrote Rural Highway Commissioner T. R. Marcum, asking that he be given a letter confirming legality of the court's intended action but said this letter never given.

ASK $10,300 IN DAMAGES

Recovery Is Sought Against Defendants In Allen Auto Mishap

Damages totalling $10,300 are asked by Mrs. Georgia S. Davis and her daughter, Charlene Davis, 17, of Martin, in a suit filed in circuit court last Friday against Dickie Mitchell, Maurice Mitchell and Donald Ratliff.

The action, outgrowth of an automobile collision in which the two women were injured Dec. 19, last, at the intersection of U.S. 23 and Ky. 80 at Allen, claims negligence on the part of Dickie Mitchell, driver of the vehicle which allegedly struck the Davis car. Both plaintiffs claim permanent injuries.

Donald Ratliff was named a defendant as owner of the vehicle driven by Dickie Mitchell, and Maurice Mitchell also was listed as defendant because his son, Dickie, was under age 18 at the time and he signed the application for driver's license for his son. The suit was prepared by Atty. Joe Hobson.

In another suit Mrs. Mollie Allen asks $1,000 damages of the Southeastern Greyhound Lines, alleging that she purchased a bus ticket from Prestonsburg to Cincinnati, gave the bus driver the ticket and rode to Lexington where she was forcibly ejected and refused further passage to her embarrassment, humiliation and inconvenience. The action was filed by Atty. W. W. Burchett.

PRESTONSBURG PLANS CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN

Prestonsburg is now in the first stage of the most intensive clean-up campaign yet undertaken here, and the interest in the community effort along that line extends all the way to Frankfort.

Meeting with officials and interested citizens at the Municipal building last Friday evening was Jerry Mahoney, director of Development branch of the Kentucky Department of Economic Development.

To come here early next month for a meeting with all citizens of the community will be Governor Combs himself, who has expressed a deep interest in what Prestonsburg does for its own benefit and as a part of the statewide beautification effort recently announced by the Governor.

Speaking at last Friday's meeting, Mr. Mahoney pointed out how industry, even if interested in this or any other community, may be repulsed by littered streets, weed-covered empty lots and unsightly accumulations along streets and highways. It is to Prestonsburg's own benefit that a major clean-up job be launched and carried to completion, he urged.

The meeting was called by Mayor Edward B. Leslie, who said this week that an executive committee has been named to spearhead the work and that sub-committees will be functioning to carry out various phases of the drive.

The executive committee is composed of Mrs. R. V. May, chairman, Fred G. Francis, Councilman Watt Hale and Virgil Griffith, Mrs. Fred G. Francis, Ed Music and Arbor Jones.

BANK BUILDING UNDER CONSTRUCTION . . . Construction of the Allen branch building of the Bank Josephine, started in June, is expected to be completed by Nov. 1, according to H. D. Fitzpatrick Jr., vice-president of the parent bank. The Allen bank will have drive-in as well as conventional banking facilities. Mr. Fitzpatrick, left, is shown here as the concrete base of the building was being poured.

It's an aerial view of the Red Sea area flashed back to earth from TV cameras in our country's recently launched TIROS satellite. Orbiting some 450 miles out in space, this satellite is observing global weather conditions. The Red Sea is the dark body in the middle. At the left is the Nile River, and the shaded area above is the Mediterranean Sea. Amazing, isn't it? Incidentally, I'm happy to report, the guidance system which helped put TIROS into orbit was developed by telephone company scientists—just another of the many projects they work on continually to make living safer and more convenient for us.

SPEAKING OF SPACE, have you ever thought how easily we can cover space right down here on earth? An ordinary Long Distance call, for example, can send your voice practically anywhere in an instant and at the same time bring you the voices you want to hear. Long Distance—it's really a Space Age miracle, yet it's an everyday service available to us anytime we feel like picking up the phone. How about right now? The cost is little, but there's always big pleasure in a Long Distance call.

PHONE FACTS: In the U. S. and Canada about 17,000 telephones are added every working day to those already in service—which adds up to over 4 million new phones a year.

Education on Trial

As Floyd county's schools prepare to open their terms, the Floyd County Board of Education, for the first time in years, finds itself with an ample supply of teachers.

No longer do teaching jobs go a-begging. Teachers have probably benefitted more than any other single group from the great, new program of progress for Kentucky that Governor Combs' administration has initiated. Teachers' salaries and "starvation wages" are no longer synonymous; there is a reason for teaching that is more than "art for art's sake."

All this is good. It is good that the Board of Education now has a backlog of applicants large enough to permit it to choose the best. It is to be hoped that the Board will indeed so choose.

It also is well that teachers now at least begin "to see daylight," economically. The profession deserves rewards more tangible than the satisfaction of filling an important niche in the life of a community and in the lives of individual children.

But neither a surplus of teachers nor a full treasury will solve Kentucky's educational ills. Much more is needed.

Unless boards of education do some soul-searching and select teachers solely on the basis of their worth as teachers, on their fitness intellectually, temperamentally, and morally, education will not benefit, even if there should be a dozen teachers available for every teaching position. There is a job of deadwood-clearing to be done. The teacher tenure law offers a hindrance to that work, but strong, courageous, dedicated school administrations can do it.

That is a part of the great responsibility placed on school boards. On the teachers themselves rests the responsibility of doing the job, of earning their money, of thinking of their jobs in terms that transcend thinking of mere jobs and monthly salaries. All the money in the world will not benefit education unless it is spent on education—plain, simple education that requires work for teachers, pupils and parents and conscientious administration by those officials who head the educational movement.

Education is on trial, this year of 1960 and next. If it fails, the next General Assembly may not be as generous as the last.

Not An Insignificant Item

A gambling raid is insignificant news in a world plagued by unending threat of war and such sinister figures as Khrushchev, Castro and their like, but to a community or even to a county it can be, and is, important.

The recent arrest of a "street carnival" owner at Allen who was openly and in flagrant disregard of the law operating gambling devices was important news to Floyd county and to the newspaper which attempts to represent the county. It was important because that action was an indication that the law does not always look the other way.

We hail this action by Deputy Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis, County Attorney Robert S. Wellman and his assistant, Harold Stumbo, because they refused to close their eyes to the offense of a "big operator" while petty offenders were feeling the power of the law.

There are other "big operators" in Floyd county—big gambling operations, big bootlegging activities—which need the attention of these men. We hope to be able again to point, as we do now, with pride to official acts which afford protection only to the people of this county, particularly those young people who are being introduced to ruinous habits and practices by the gambling-liquor gang.

Reporter Slims Down,
Losses Slow Now;
41 Pounds Off

By GORDON MOORE

(Reprinted from Huntington Herald-Advertiser)
(Seventh in a Series)

Many outside interests have been essential to keeping my brain from relaying hunger pains to my stomach in these 103 days of dieting, but now several national magazines are constantly reminding me that my weight-problem is common to the bulk of the nation.

In one publication, light-heavyweight boxer Archie Moore (no relation) goes into great detail about how he sheds from 7 to 8 pounds before his brutal encounters. However, this is a far cry from the 41 pounds I've lost.

I must commend him on one endeavor and that is his ability to chew the ingredients from a charcoal steak and not swallow any of it. This, in my estimation, is similar to finding a hundred-dollar bill in a ten-acre field and not picking it up.

Another periodical of national fame has analyzed a power food preparation which is currently sweeping the country as a "new reducing plan" a new and truly revolutionary concept in weight control.

Scientists say they have disproved this theory and more or less classified it in the milk diet, banana diet, corn-oil diet, high-fat diet, the high-protein diet, and other variations called the Hollywood, DuPont, Rockefeller, Mayo Clinic, 7-Day, 12-Day, Good Housekeeping, McCall, Pageant, etc., diets.

Its true this plan attempts to dictate a well-balanced diet and offers the simplicity and convenience of preparation. But, even in this respect it is neither new nor revolutionary. Many dietary innovations involve juggling of proportions of components of the normal diet, or exclusive dependence on one or two components.

Throughout the past three weeks, I believe that my weight has fluctuated from 5 to 7 pounds since I "cheated" a few times while cruising in the Gulf of Mexico and watching the Cincinnati Reds play a few baseball games.

After blowing two games in as many nights in the late innings to the league-leading Pirates, I was so disgusted I turned to eating peanuts for recreation, not to mention the customary beverage that usually accompanies same. However, I'll solve this problem by not watching the floundering Reds play any more games until I reach 200-pounds.

Woman's Club Workshop
Featured By Questions
Arranged By Mrs. May

Questions featured the Woman's Club workshop which was arranged by Mrs. R. V. May, governor of the Seventh district, Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, at her home here, August 5. The questions were asked by presidents and treasurers of 11 clubs throughout the district. The answers were provided by officers and members of the same clubs who had had previous experience in these two offices.

The meeting opened with a Thought For the Day, "What Is That In Thine Hand?" by Mrs. Burl Spurlock, Prestonsburg. Mrs. J. H. Keenon, Prestonsburg, vice-governor of the Seventh district, gave some tips for treasurers, with reminders for budget-making and reporting dates. Mrs. Arthur Bradbury, of Wheelwright, immediate past governor and a member of the Elections committee, K. F. W. C., Wheelwright, previewed the values to be gained from attendance at Kenlake hotel, Hardin, Sept. 21-23. She also stressed attendance at the district convention meeting at Jenkins, Oct. 8. Junior club special projects were outlined by Mrs. Jimmie Davis, Seventh district junior representative from Pikeville, who spoke particularly to the six representatives of the two Junior Clubs who were present.

Several items of interest were covered by a president's panel, in which second-term presidents took part. Mrs. C. W. Smith, president of Pikeville Woman's Club, spoke on Program Planning and Score Card Requirements. Mrs. J. J. Sherman, a former vice-governor and club president from the Allen-Martin Woman's Club, reviewed ways and means of producing a club year book. Mrs. Lloyd Hall, president of Magoffin County - Salyersville Woman's Club reminded the clubs of the many contests provided for KFWC members, while Mrs. W. L. Reed, president of the Drift Woman's Club, considered the number and types of reports required as presidents.

Midway the program, a buffet luncheon was served by the hostess, Mrs. May, who was assisted by Mrs. Burl Spurlock, Mrs. Olga May Latta, Mrs. Virgil Goble, to the following workshop members and guests: Mesdames Sam Martin, McDowell; W. L. Reed, Drift; Carl Martin, Martin; T. A. Combs, Langley; Marcus Mann and Lloyd Hall, Salyersville; C. E. Wofe and Edgar Wright, Jenkins; Courtland Dahlin and Oliver Marshall, David; Jimmy Davis, Larry Compton, Walter Fletcher, DuRan Phillips, and C. W. Smith, Pikeville; Herbert Gillis, Arthur Bradbury and Ray Schubert, Wheelwright; Harry Burke, Clifford Wright, Mary Jane Harkins, J. H. Keenon, W. W. Wallen, and Miss Elizabeth May, Prestonsburg; Mrs. J. J. Sherman, Martin, and Mrs. Edgar Lambert, Huntington, W. Va.

Mrs. Violet Cooley, 25,
Floyd-Co. Native, Nurse,
Dies At Ohio Hospital

Mrs. Violet Marian Scalf Cooley, 25, died at 12:40 a.m., Friday, at the Fort Hamilton hospital, Hamilton, Ohio. Mrs. Cooley, who was a nurse, had been in falling health five years, seriously ill three weeks.

She was a daughter of John W. and Elizabeth Marie Elliot Scalf, of Beaver. She was graduated from the Good Samaritan School of Nursing in 1957 and was formerly employed at the Prestonsburg General hospital here. At the time of death she was employed at the Hughes Memorial hospital at Hamilton. She was a member of the Missionary Baptist church.

Surviving is her husband, James Wendell Cooley, of Hamilton, and a son, John Michael Cooley, at home. Surviving brothers and sisters are John Douglas Scalf, in the U. S. Air Force in Texas, Mrs. Phyllis J. Griffith, of Hamilton, and Mrs. Mary Helen Williams, of Beaver. Surviving also are the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Scalf, Middletown, Ohio.

Funeral rites were conducted at 2 p.m., Monday, from the Elliott Chapel at Beaver, the Rev. Gene Corbett officiating. Burial was made in the Elliott family cemetery under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. William Kilgore Allen, of Charlotte, N. C., formerly of Betsy Layne, announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara, to the Rev. John Robert Parks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Terry Parks, of Spring Hill, Tennessee.

The wedding will be an event of August 26 at St. John's Methodist Church in Nashville.

The bride-elect was graduated from Charlotte high school and is employed by the Hermitage Music Co., Nashville.

Mr. Parks is a graduate of Middle Tennessee State College and Vanderbilt University Divinity School. He is pastor of St. John's Methodist Church in Nashville.

County Judge Henry Stumbo signs the Social Security Week proclamation he issued for Floyd county this week. He noted that the social security program is in its twenty-fifth year.

PROCLAMATION
SOCIAL SECURITY WEEK

The American social security system, which promotes the well-being of individuals and families, has served the Nation for 25 years.

First becoming law on August 14, 1935, the Social Security Act now provides income and services to individuals and families. It helps to keep families together and to free our people from fear and want.

Many in this community have been helped and are being helped by one or more of the programs established by the Social Security Act. These include Federal old-age, survivors, and disability insurance; unemployment insurance; public assistance for the needy, the old, the blind, the diseased, and children without parental support and maternal-and-child-health, crippled children, and child-welfare services.

Now, therefore, in the 25th year that our national social security has been in existence, I Henry Stumbo, County Judge, of Floyd county, in recognition of the service of social security to the county and to this community, proclaim the week of August 14 through August 20 as SOCIAL SECURITY WEEK IN Floyd county, and I further proclaim August 14 as SOCIAL SECURITY DAY IN Floyd county.

Sizemore-Hann Vows Solemnized, June 19

The Peoria Methodist Church, Peoria, Ill., was the scene June 19, of the marriage of Arie Sue Sizemore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sizemore, of Water Gap, and Mr. Terry Dale Hann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allie Wilson, of Wabash, Ind. The Rev. W. W. Shields was the officiating minister.

Palms, seven-branched candelabra and gladioli formed the setting for the exchange of vows. Dennis and Lester Templin, cousins of the groom, were candlelighters.

Miss Karen Blackman, organist, presented a medley of wedding music which included "I Love You Truly," and the Lord's Prayer.

The bride, given in marriage by her cousin, Charles Clay Warrick, wore a gown of silk organza. The fitted-bodice of lace was made with a rounded neckline and elbow-length sleeves. Her veil of finger-tip illusion was caught to a pearl tiara. She carried a cascade of roses and snapdragons.

Miss Juanita Sizemore, sister of the bride, maid of honor, wore a dress of light blue silk organza. It was designed with a scalloped neckline, cap sleeves and full skirt. She carried a cascade of pink carnations.

George Wilson, brother of the groom was best man. Ushers were Jerry Russell and Fred Behny, of Peru, Indiana.

A reception followed immediately after the ceremony in the church annex. The table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake with a miniature bride and groom.

Assisting Mrs. Wilson were Mrs. Robert Boardman, Miss Amy Wilson, sisters of the groom, and Mrs. Harvey Lindsey, Mrs. Buncie Hayes, of Wabash, registered the guests. Miss Earnestine Prater assisted with the gifts.

The bride is a graduate of Prestonsburg high school and the groom is a graduate of Butler Township high school, of Peoria. They are both employed at Wagner's, at Wabash. They are now at home at 204 N. Wabash Ave., LaFontaine, Ind.

PLAN SIGNS FOR 3 SITES

Of Historical Interest In Floyd, Johnson-Co.; Grave Fence Authorized

Three important historical sites in Eastern Kentucky will be marked this summer and early fall, it was announced recently. They are the site of the Battle of Ivy Mountain, at Ivel, the Garfield Place, at Prestonsburg, and the grave of Mrs. Jenny Wiley, at River, Johnson county.

The Kentucky Historical Highway Markers committee authorized the two Floyd county markers several months ago but final action to erect the markers was not made until last week. The grave of Mrs. Wiley is to be fenced and marked under authority of a recent General Assembly act providing $500 for fence and $1,000 for a memorial.

The erection of the Ivel and Prestonsburg markers will double the number of highway historical markers in this county, it was noted. The other two are markers at the site of the Battle of Middle Creek on Kentucky Highway 114 and the site of the Daniel Boone salt spring at David. The Battle of Middle Creek marker was erected in 1952 and the David marker last year.

A total of 11 new highway markers are scheduled to be erected in the state this year, it was announced by Charles F. Hinds, of Frankfort, secretary of the markers committee.

The markers committee, now in its 11th year, works in cooperation with the Department of Highways, the Kentucky Historical Society and the University of Kentucky. It has approved 180 sites for markers and installed 180. Eugene Stuart, Louisville, is chairman.

Gov. Bert Combs recently appointed Hinds and Henry P. Scaff, Prestonsburg to a committee to design and supervise the marker for the Wiley grave. They will work in cooperation with Paul Jordan, head of the Frankfort Bureau of the Associated Press.

'Chatterawha Tree' Project of Scouts Aids Identification

1960 CAMP PROJECT

One of the projects which commanded unusual interest among the campers at the Sandy Valley Girl Scout Council's Camp Chatterawha during the season just ended was the building of a mural-type decoration on the wall of the lodge, called the Chatterawha Tree.

During a series of nature walks the girls identified nine common trees found in the area. Small branches were cut from them, stripped of leaves (leaving seed-pods, nuts, etc.) and these were arranged on the wall to form a tree. Each branch has an identification tag.

The purpose of the tree was to acquaint the girls with an outline of the various branches so that they may be identified in winter as well as summer.

Names of the campers were printed on small squares of thin wood and hung on the tree with thread.

Another project was the making and painting of identification plaques which were placed on the trees along the nature trail.

Signs made of rope were made by each of the three units for their own use and signs identifying the other trails and buildings were painted.

Second term campers from Floyd county included Paula Banks, Alice Clark and Jami Field, of Wheelwright; Kathy Camicia, Chaddie Salsbury, Florence Hill, Joyce Ann Hall, Donna A. Meade and Harriett Ann Sandige, of Prestonsburg.

Forestry Students Meet In Training Conference

Robinson Forest, Noble, Ky., (Spl.) — Twenty-eight fledgling foresters are spending this week of their valuable summer vacation at this remote forest in the Eastern Kentucky's mountains learning more about trees, their culture, protection and utilization.

Attending from Floyd county are Freer Martin, of Langley, and Glenn Salyers, of Eastern.

This is the week of the Sixth Annual 4-H Forestry Camp sponsored by the forest industries of Kentucky and the University of Kentucky Extension Service to reward last year's county 4-H Forestry Champions for their service in this vital field of conservation of Kentucky's most valuable natural resource.

Comments like "I came to this camp because I think forestry offers the biggest opportunity to Eastern Kentucky boys," can often be heard. Typical of the boys who feel this way is 16-year-old Charles Turner of Morris Fork (Breathitt county). Charles, a five-year veteran in 4-H Club work lives on a farm which has about a hundred acres of native timber and a 1,500-tree plantation which he set in the spring of 1960.

Kentucky Leaders Plan To Attend Roads Meet; Bond Passage Is Urged

Scores of Kentucky business and professional leaders have indicated that they plan to attend the organization meeting of the Kentucky Better Roads Council, Glen F. Weinman, executive vice-president of the council, said this week. "It is evident that many Kentuckians recognize the fact that bond money is seriously needed to match the more than $160 million in Federal Aid due to come to Kentucky during the next three years," Weinman said.

The council has invited over 1,000 Kentuckians to attend the organization meeting in Louisville, August 12. The council's purpose is to disseminate information and to urge passage of the $90 million road and $10 million park bond proposal to be submitted to voters on November 8.

"It is not possible to meet demands for rural roads, state projects and maintenance from current highway revenues and still match federal funds for extending and completing major highways," J. Stephen Watkins, a former Kentucky Highway Commissioner and now president of the council, said.

"We cannot afford to lose this federal money," Watkins pointed out. "Kentuckians pay for federal aid through gasoline and other automotive taxes sent to the National Highway Trust Fund. The allocations are based on road mileage, population and other factors. Federal aid is not a hand-out, but a return to Kentucky of taxes paid by Kentuckians. If we lose this money, the amount will be divided among other states. Thus, our money would go to improve roads elsewhere.

"It is imperative that Kentucky raise the necessary funds to qualify by voting funds. It is my considered opinion that we cannot do otherwise."

Litterbugs Cost State More Than $500,000.00 Yearly To Clean Roads

Clearing the roadsides of trash costs the Commonwealth more than half a million dollars a year.

So says assistant Conservation Commissioner Robert Montgomery, coordinator of Governor Bert Combs' clean-up and beautification program. The figure was based on surveys of the Department of Highways, which clears state rights-of-way of debris dumped on them.

Montgomery says that if the $500,000 could be used for maintenance of existing roads or construction of new ones, the state would realize these benefits.

Under the federal government's 9-1 fund matching program, the sum would give Kentucky $5,000,000 for constructing interstate super-highways.

Under the federal government's 50-50 program for secondary roads, the cost of clearing litter from roadsides would give the Commonwealth $1,000,000.

Mrs. Levisa Roberts Lawrence, 80, of Simon, W. Va., widow of George W. Lawrence and mother of Mrs. L. Lynch, of Martin, died last Thursday at Grace hospital, Welch, W. Va., following an illness of about two months.

She was the daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth Vance Roberts and had been a member of the Church of Christ for 55 years. Survivors are five daughters and four sons: Mrs. Frances Kennedy, Simon, W. Va.; Mrs. Elizabeth Bolen, Crown Point, Ind.; Mrs. Rosa Lynch, of Martin; Mrs. Rule Graham, Crites, W. Va.; Mrs. Garnete Morgan, Guyan, W. Va.; Lige Lawrence, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.; Bernie Lawrence, Guyan, W. Va.; and Estis Lawrence, Dayton, Ohio. She also leaves one sister, Mrs. Frances Belcher, Iager, W. Va., 49 grandchildren, 46 great-grandchildren and 13 great-great-grandchildren.

Funeral rites were conducted Sunday from the Hanover Baptist Church, the Revs. Lloyd Ferguson and Clyde Roberts officiating. Burial was made in the family cemetery on Long Branch, in West Virginia.

Operators of Motor Scooters

Under the laws of Kentucky every operator of a Motor Scooter is required to pass an examination before a State Police Examiner and secure a permit and then a Driver's License before they are eligible to operate a Motor Scooter, and the person securing same must be 16 years of age and all those under 18 years of age, their father is required to sign for them if living and if deceased the mother, and if neither—the person having custody.

These applications are handled the same as regular driver's license. A lot of people do not know that this procedure is required and for that reason this notice is published.

TIMES WANT ADS PAY!

"They can advertise six months, and they'll never get a better bid than Whayne gave them," Harry B. Ranier, Prestonsburg contractor and user of heavy machinery in various construction operations, said Wednesday.

"I bought seven D6's at one time, about $200,000 worth, and these were 1959 model machines," Ranier said. "Whayne sold Floyd county the same machines, only they are 1960 models, for about $600 less on each than I paid for the 1959 models."

The new state program calls for counties to make a small down payment on equipment needed, such as graders, bulldozers and rollers. The state then agrees to pay the counties so much per hour for rental of the equipment, with the rental payments being made directly to the dealers selling the equipment.

Counties are required to assign their entitlements from the rural-secondary-road fund to the dealers until full payment has been made for the equipment through the rental-purchase plan.

An Associated Press story by Paul Beck, of its Frankfort Bureau said last week that many counties were obtaining their equipment through negotiated purchase, contrary to laws which require competitive bids.

Mr. Marcum, commissioner of rural highways, appearing with Combs at a press conference, said any inference that the state had encouraged the counties to bypass the bidding prerequisite was untrue.

He said he had been guided by an opinion of the attorney general, written early in July, that the law made it mandatory for counties to buy equipment through bona fide competitive bidding.

"I have never advised any counties that it was unnecessary to advertise for competitive bids," Marcum said. "It is my understanding that until recently it was not clear that competitive bids were required on equipment purchased by counties under a lease-purchase agreement . . ."

"Since the ruling of the attorney general, I have advised officials of those counties with whom I have talked that competitive bids are required. In the future, of course, I will insist that those counties which participate in the equipment-aid program obtain their equipment by competitive, written, sealed bids."

Combs said his directive to Marcum was issued without prejudice to the equipment program or to the conduct of Marcum in effectuating it. The Governor said:

"The program's objectives are commendable. They are designed to: 1. Help the counties acquire much-needed road equipment and effect savings to their citizens, and 2. Encourage the counties to do a better job of improving and maintaining their highways . . ."

"It is not sufficient, however, that the counties be reminded of their obligation to conform to the law. Inasmuch as funds returned to the counties by the state are to be used in parial payment of the equipment, I feel that the state has an obligation to require that these funds be expended according to the spirit and letter of the law."

Combs said it appeared that counties already participating in the program had attempted to obtain the best possible prices by comparing prices of various dealers.

"In this they were assisted by the Division of Rural Highways," he added. "The division advised them of the companies offering equipment and also advised companies of the counties' needs."

"Commissioner Marcum has assured me that he has not encouraged any county to show preference to any dealer or brand of equipment. And I have found no evidence to the contrary."

"Our citizens must look to their state government to set the example for obedience of the law. In this case, I believe, it is incumbent on the state not only to set the example but to insist upon compliance with it."

Martin U. K. Student At Leadership Camp

Miss Dotty Gay Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Martin, of Martin, is attending a two-week leadership training course at the American Youth Foundation Camp at Camp Minivanca, Stony Lake, Michigan.

Miss Martin was chosen the University of Kentucky delegate to the camp after completing her freshman year. She was selected for the William H. Danforth scholarship, which is providing leadership training for about 750 college girls from throughout North America.

A graduate of Martin high school, she completed a summer term at George Washington University, Washington, D. C. before entering the leadership training camp at Stony Lake. She had special permission to complete her courses and take examinations a week early in order to report at camp by August 1.

At the completion of the camp on August 14, Dotty Gay will spend another week in Michigan and Canada visiting her aunt, Mrs. Hugh Hamilton, and Mr. Hamilton before returning home with them.

Notice To City Taxpayers:

Please come in and pay your city taxes.

You don't want your friends and neighbors to pay their taxes and you not pay yours. I am taking this tax collection in order to help you. If you can't pay all at one time, pay part, and make payments out of it. The city needs the money. Be a good fellow and pay. I will be in the Municipal building from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. To avoid court costs pay your taxes by Sept. 1, or they will be taken over by the City Attorney for collection.

amendments, eliminations, additions and so on continuing through the year, leave a pleasant sort of glow, these days.

Let's try to recall some of the "thou shall nots" of the day. There was the one forbidding any of us to climb a tree to a point higher than our heads. We complied with that one by reasoning that we never got higher than our heads, since we went up, head-first.

There was another which said throwing a buckeye by impaling it on the end of a sharp stick and heaving said buckeye off into the wild, blue yonder would draw for the offender an hour "standing up." Some complied with that rule, some continued to make buckeyes disappear, but the smart boys fashioned a sling and used rocks, a la David. Teacher had said nothing about rocks.

Then there were those regulations which forbade any pupil playing fox-and-dog to lead the chase farther than top of the hill or to be late when "books took up." Still, the fox and some willing hounds always seemed to wander farther and farther away as the time for study drew nearer. And most of these fellows came up with excuses that would have done a politician proud. Some of them even may have gone into politics later.

Branch-wading, especially during "dog days," was a capital offense, and so was splashing water on the girls. Tobacco-chewing was verboten, but they said nothing about cigarettes. Fact is, I do not recall that cigarettes had been introduced in our circle at that time.

Indeed those were good days. Old days, true. But there wasn't a car to dodge, boys and girls could splash dust between their bare toes without ever a fear of being run down on the highway, the air was good and pure, and, most places, you could yell your head off and the only answer would be an echo.

I am an old fogey, you brats of 1960 say? Just you wait till 1980 and come around and tell me—if you can find me—that those school days weren't the most wonderful . . .

Our Historic Heritage

A Pictorial Review of East Kentucky

(No. 104 in a Series)

PICTURE OF PRESTONSBURG RESIDENTS 70 YEARS AGO

Many old pictures of "people, places and things" in Prestonsburg have disappeared with time. Hundreds were claimed by the 1957 flood. This seventy-year-old picture, escaping the attrition of time, was taken near an old First Avenue store building.

The First National Bank presents these pictures of our historic region as a bit of its friendly service with the hope they will contribute to your understanding of our historic heritage.

HERE'S HOW YOU BENEFIT BY DOING ALL YOUR SHOPPING LOCALLY

When you buy from your hometown merchants you get:

1. HONEST VALUES
2. AMPLE SELECTION
3. INSTANT DELIVERY, SERVICE AND ADJUSTMENT
4. MORE PERSONAL AND FRIENDLIER TREATMENT
5. SAVING OF TIME
6. RELIEF FROM COSTLY TRAVEL
7. FREEDOM FROM ROAD HAZARDS
8. ELIMINATION OF COSTLY PARKING PROBLEMS
9. AVOIDANCE OF JOSTLING CROWDS
10. THE CHANCE TO BUILD A BETTER COMMUNITY BY PUTTING YOUR DOLLARS TO WORK HERE

We don't believe you gain anything at all by driving long distances to shop at BIG CITY stores. Our local sources have merchandise that's just as good and costs no more.

But merely for the sake of argument, suppose you do save a few dollars on a time-consuming trip many miles from home. And suppose you don't even count the cost of gasoline and oil, car wear, parking fees, etc. Forget, too, if you like, the hazards of driving in today's heavy highway and city traffic.

But don't overlook these things: What you buy here can be in your home in a few minutes—no waiting several days for delivery. And if the merchandise doesn't give full satisfaction, any needed service or adjustment of the purchase can be made without shipping the items back to the BIG CITY or being forced to make a second trip yourself.

Why drive scores of miles looking for trouble? Shop right around the corner and be safe and satisfied.

AN ORDINANCE ANNEXING CERTAIN TERRITORY IN DWALE TO THE CITY OF ALLEN Be It Ordained By The Board of Trustees Of The Allen City:

1. That pursuant to Kentucky Revised Statutes 81.240, 81.100, 81.110, the Board of Trustees of Allen City, a municipality of the Sixth Class in the Commonwealth of Kentucky, does hereby propose to enact an ordinance annexing certain unincorporated territory to the Town of Allen. Said territory is adjacent to the town of Allen and is more particularly bounded and described as follows:

"Beginning at the C. & O. Pump Station at the Northwest end of the Allen corporation, then up the hill in a western direction to the top of the ridge, thence following the ridge to the gap of the Bull Creek Highway. Thence following the ridge in a northern direction to a point on the south side of the Trestle Hollow, then down this point in an eastern direction to the Big Sandy River, thence up the Big Sandy River (South) to the point of beginning."

GERALD GRIFFIN HONORED . . . Governor Bert T. Combs examines a radio presented to Gerald Griffin, third from left, during a dinner at Pikeville, Thursday, July 28. School Bus Tragedy Area's Most Important Story, Griffin Says As Honors Accorded At Pikeville

Recognition came to Gerald Griffin, veteran Courier-Journal newsman, during the annual Kiwanis Club installation dinner at Green Meadows Country Club, near Pikeville, Thursday night of last week.

Until he was appointed the newspaper's bureau chief at Lexington in May, Griffin had been chief of the Eastern Kentucky Bureau since 1950.

Griffin drew praise Thursday night from civic leaders for his services to this region as a newsman. His stories and features have been instrumental in interpreting Eastern Kentucky to the rest of the state and the nation.

He was presened with a transistor radio by the Pike County Chamber of Commerce.

Although Griffin has written countless news articles about this region and its people, he considers the Prestonsburg school bus disaster of 1958 the most important story he covered while here.

Other stories and features which stand out in his memory are the Muriel Baldrige murder case of Prestonsburg, the 1957 flood, and the United Mine Workers strike of 1959.

"The school-bus disaster was such a tragic and depressing story that I still have nightmares about it," he recalls. The bus driver and 26 children were drowned.

Chance put him at the site of the accident within 30 minutes after it happened. He was driving to Lexington for the week-end.

Pictures he took of the disaster were the first to be flown out for publication. His initial shots were taken to David, and picked up by a Courier-Journal pilot for delivery to Louisville.

Griffin remained at the accident site from Friday morning until Monday, when the bus was found in deep water down-stream. He went hours without sleep and ate sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee donated by the Red Cross.

"When they pulled the bus out of the water, I had to stand there and count those children's bodies as they were removed," he said.

Another story which stands out in his memory dates back to his early career with The Courier-Journal. He joined the paper in 1923 and has been with it continuously except for nine years of service as an Army colonel during World War II.

The story involved a narcotics ring operating in Somerset in the mid-30's. Griffin uncovered the ring and exposed it in a series of exclusive stories.

A native of the mountains (he was born at Somerset), Griffin first was a reporter in Louisville for The Courier-Journal. In 1924, his second year with the paper, he opened its Lexington Bureau and remained there until he went on active duty with the Army in 1941.

During the war he served as commandant at West Virginia University and was overseas with military intelligence in Japan for three years. He returned to the paper in 1949 and the following year opened the Eastern Kentucky Bureau.

Few people have traveled Eastern Kentucky more than Griffin.

"I don't know of any place that I haven't been," he commented.

His wanderings in search of news and features have taken him to the region's main towns and up nearly impassable roads in all sorts of weather.

His favorite stories have been "profiles" like those on Uncle Will M. Smith, of the Pond Creek section of Pike county, and the late Bruce Matthews, a retired Indian fighter who rode with the Seventh Cavalry Regiment, "Custer's Avengers."

Griffin is credited with important roles in bringing to reality the Buckhorn Dam in Perry county and the Breaks-of-Sandy State Park near Elkhorn City.

He wrote any number of stories and features on these projects when they were little more than ideas, then helped promote and popularize them through his writings.

He considers depressed conditions in the coal business the region's most significant development during the 10 years he worked here.

"The fact that the people haven't given up hope, help themselves, and are trying to get industry started is encouraging for the future," he says.

Regional efforts to improve the outlook for forests and small farms, he thinks, will ultimately help Eastern Kentuckians.

"I've enjoyed it up here and made a world of wonderful friends," he says.

Griffin is the father of two children, Robin, a Lexington attorney, and Mrs. Pat Miller, also of Lexington.

"The Lure of the Frontier"

Several years ago a famous ex-Kentuckian and I were discussing the history of his family in Kentucky, especially their migrations. Their earliest home was in the finest Bluegrass area, with wide acres and well-fixed plantation houses. But restless ones had heard of more and farther west in the state and disposed of their farms and moved into an area far less fertile, in many places actually too poor to farm in those days. And that branch still lives there, quaintly telling visitors of the unbelievable trek that the family made earlier from good farms to poor ones. Hamlin Garland, in a SON OF THE MIDDLE BORDER, pictures this persistent lure of the frontier, as typified in the life of his father, who seemed unable to let a new frontier get started without his being there. So long we heard only the success stories that, quite frequently, grew up around the pioneer who went west that we almost refused to believe that any failure or disappointment attended the sturdy people who pointed their covered wagons toward the sunset.

What started this line of thinking in my mind again, for it has long been a theme of mine, was my recent visit to the home of my ancestors, down in the fertile, many-acred Bluegrass Region of Tennessee, in nearly every way similar to our own famous region. There three generations of the Wilsons had lived and farmed and prospered. But my great-grandfather, whose former farm I visited, got dissatisfied, partly with slavery and partly with the older settlement, I suspect, and sold out his possessions and left for Calloway county, Kentucky. And there he spent the rest of his long, active life, a hard-headed Unionist in the Civil War days, though his family were Confederate sympathizers, but living to tell, probably somewhat bluntly, those who differed so violently with him: "I told you so." Financially he certainly stepped down a number of notches by leaving his ancestral plantation for the rather thin soils of Calloway county. As agriculture was practiced in those days, he must have had many a longing for his wide acres in central Tennessee. But he must have been too hard-headed to say any such thing, or the family could have remembered it. The westward trend of the family ended there, so far as I know, though his brother, earlier, had migrated to Texas. Personally, I suppose I ought to be thankful that the old fellow pulled up stakes and moved away from all his folks, for because he lived in Kentucky, his grandson came out to visit, met a neighbor girl, and I am their tenth child. In spite of my own feeling toward this strange background of any of us, I cannot help thinking of the restlessness that even this middle-aged man typified by always seeking an ever-newer west.

Financially, then, it did not always pay to go on, but the spirit of the pioneer did not necessarily count dollars. Maybe the story of the westward movement needs another kind of interpreter, agreeing with neither the booster, such as the earlier writers often were, nor the realist, such as Garland, who had felt too often the hardships of newer frontiers as his restless New England father chased the end of the frontier rainbows. As I have said so many many times in this column, I wish we had more letters and other documents that would recreate

LITTLE LEAGUERS ATTEND BARBECUE

Some 20 boys of the two Garrett Little League baseball teams were given a barbecued chicken supper last Friday night. The supper honored the players of the two Garrett teams, the two Hindman teams, the team managers and coaches and the league officers. John Everage and his Hindman Funeral Home gave the supper for the boys and their leaders. Albert Stamper, county agent of Knott county, barbecued the chickens. Cyrus Engle, athletic director of the Hindman American Legion ball park, and Orben Childers, of the Hindman Funeral Home, helped with the serving.

Boys from Garrett who attended were Jimmie Dale Lawson, Hawley David Scott, Jr., David Sloan, Daniel Scott, Floyd Joe Holbrook, Thomas Scott, Charles Marshall, Jerry Manns, David Case and Anthony Castle, of the Tigers; Arnold M. Fouts, Paul Wallen, Phillip Rowe, John R. Martin, Paul David Francis, Van Delle Shipley, Stanton Lafferty, Randy Moore, Freddie Daniels, John R. Trusty and Jimmy D. Hughes, of the Indians.

Among the adult leaders were Don Hughes, manager of the Tigers; Roy Martin, manager of the Indians; Coet Messer, transportation officer, and Shelby Draughn, secretary-treasurer of the Garrett Little League. Attending from Hindman were Dr. G. B. Smith, manager of the Hindman Reds, Cyrus Engle, Albert Stamper, John Everage, Orben Childers, Ora Simpson, Foster Calhoun, Scott Cornett and the 30 boys of the two Hindman teams.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Francis and son Billy Randall, have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Allen, for a week. Last Sunday they spent the day at the Breaks of Sandy Interstate Park. Also visited Mr. and Mrs. Everett Osborne at West Prestonsburg, Tuesday, and called on friends in Prestonsburg.

SPORTS AFIELD

By TED KESTING

In discussing lures, a strange situation presents itself—a single good lure will catch as many fish of most species as would the largest assortment of lures. But the well-informed fisherman carries a large number along, because he never knows what that unpredictable and temperamental critter, the fish may want at a given moment.

Justifiably, one of our oldest lures, the spinner spoon, should head the list of lure types. Though designed for trolling, this lure can be cast— if you're a skillful enough caster. You must add a dipsey sinker to give proper casting weight for your tackle, of whatever type it may be; merely slip the brass eye of the dipsey onto the snap along with the eye of the spoon.

You'll also need that dipsey when trolling, for without it, casting or trolling, your line would soon twist so badly as to become unmanageable. Most American spinners except the smallest, which do not usually twist a line much, seem to have some provision—usually a lead keel to prevent line twisting.

Then there are the wobbling spoons, or casting spoons, of a completely different type, not revolving. Some of these have a treble hook dangling loosely behind; some, a single larger hook brazed onto the blade. For about all species other than bass, these and spoons of the spinner type are equally effective. But the unpredictable bass may show a strong preference for one or the other, so it's well to have both along to try for him.

With most wobbling spoons, a pork rind has even more advantages than there are with the spinner-type spoon, in that it greatly improves the lure's action, and it will often also prevent the lure from revolving at certain speeds. It's most convenient to replace a treble hook by a fairly large single, because the rind will often tangle with a treble on a cast.

Jason Lucas, Angling Editor of Sports Afield Magazine, is often asked whether spoons or plugs will catch most fish. Lucas says it depends on the species. Generally one can get most pike, pickerel or muskies on a spoon-type lure. But this is the case where it is considered desirable to have just two lures along, the other being some good plug of suitable size.

For bass, nearly all experienced anglers seem to prefer plugs to spoons—but, bass being what they are, will take spoons of both types when they decide that that's what they want. Though a pork rind works excellently with a spoon, it generally does more harm than good with a plug.

Not many years ago the pork rind black eel was devised. It was a complete innovation in lures, and often proved extremely successful for bass—for which it is used almost exclusively—when other lures failed. But don't forget that, bass still being bass, it will quite frequently fail completely when one of the other lures works fine.

The black eel is best fished without a weight. It is fished by short, quick twitches, with long pauses between. Practice this in shallow water where you can watch it, and you'll find that you can make it look more alive than a live eel. Then you're ready to use the same movements in deeper water, where you can't see it.

Latest of all, and closely related to the black eel, is the plastic worm. This usually comes with a weighted head. Nothing could look less promising for bass, especially since live worms are about the poorest bait possible for bass in most places. But, surprisingly enough, these artificials are often very fine producers indeed.

A lure we've taken over recently from sea fishermen, who have used it a long time, is the jig. Jigs are at times among the best producers of bass and some other species. They are usually fished by the bottom-skipping method.

Finally, is it true, as one so often hears, that the newer lures are far more effective than the old ones—so much so that they're responsible for the decline in fishing almost everywhere, which every angler of moderately long experience admits?

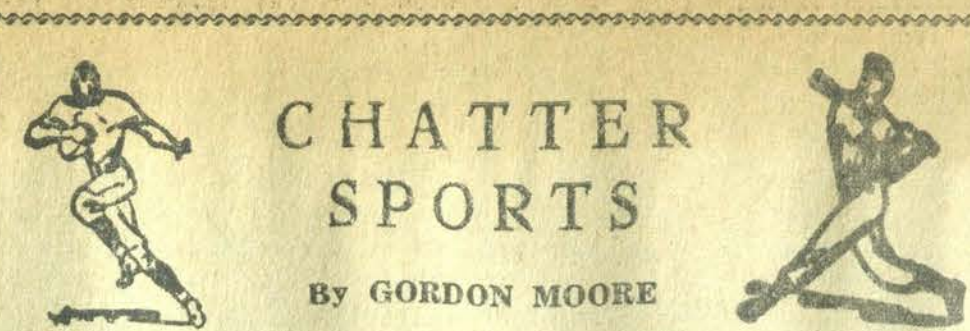

The fact is that the old lures which have been on the market for perhaps two generations or more will, on the average, catch more fish than will new ones on the average. The reason is simple enough when we realize that when those old-timers were devised, hundreds of other plugs came out at the same time. Fishermen found that a small number of them caught a lot more fish than the rest, and those few very productive ones have remained on the market long after the rest have been forgotten. It was a process of "survival of the fittest" and it is still going on.

LOOP WELL-REPRESENTED

The Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference will be well represented in the annual East-West all-star football game on Stoll Field in Lexington, Saturday night.

Hazard high last season E.K.M.C. and region four class "AA" champion, will have fullback Buddy Smyly and end Walter Green on the East team. Whitesburg high has high-scoring halfback Roger Kincer and guard Carter Bradshaw. End Chuck Conley will represent Paintsville. Pikeville's flashy halfback Charles Mims had been invited to play, but did not accept.

This same group of East Kentucky stars also have been invited to play in Williamson, West Virginia Kiwanis all-star bowl game, Saturday, August 20th. Middleboro's fine center, Houston Ball, also will participate in both the Lexington and Williamson affair.

The 15th region will not have a representative in the East-West basketball game, which starts two hours earlier than the football game, since Pikeville's Don Ratliff did not report to practice Monday.

Six others of last season's E.K.M.C. graduates also turned "thumbs down" on invitations to play in the Williamson affair.

Paul "Bunny" Setser, Auxier's gift to the sports world, ranks as one of Kentucky's top-flight catchers with the Pikeville College Bears in the winter-pastime, but major league baseball scouts are hot on his trail after watching him perform in the Kentucky Semi-Pro baseball tournament in Paintsville last week. Three National clubs expressed hope of signing him to a professional contract. However, the agile athlete will finish his final year of college

BUYING DARK COTTONS

For the warm fall days typical of Kentucky weather, those dark cottons now appearing in store windows can be useful additions to your wardrobe. Before you buy, check the label or hang tag for fiber content and care needed, recommends Rachel Rowland, University of Kentucky Extension clothing specialist.

NOTICE

On and after this date I will not be responsible for any debts other than those incurred by myself.

TO RECEIVE DEGREE

Nickey D. Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Allen, of Langley, will receive his B.S. degree in Business Administration, August 13, from the Bowling Green College of Commerce.

Mr. Turner was a member of Rho Omega Alpha fraternity at Bowling Green.

WASH 'N' WEAR COTTONS

When sewing wash-and-wear cottons, use a throat plate with a round hold for straight machine sewing. Mercerized cotton thread can be used, but stitch length should be changed and tension loosened.

NOTICE

The Floyd County Board of Education will accept bids on the following contract carrier runs for handling school children, until 12:00 noon, August 22:

1. Clark Branch to Spears Ford on Buffalo Creek.
 2. Tom's Creek up to forks of creek, approximately one mile.
- The board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

LOGGERS REUNION
Even old loggers hold reunions! Former employees of the W. M. Ritter Lumber Company of the Sandy Basin in Southwest Virginia met July 17, at a Kingsport, Tenn., park to commemorate their activities and reminisce of those rugged days when they were cutting away one of America's greatest hardwood stands. Many of the giant logs found their way to market down the Big Sandy.

Five hundred people attended from six states, ate a picnic lunch and told tall tales of the Breaks section. Many hadn't seen each other for decades.

Ritter operated chiefly in the McClure and Fremont sections of Dickenson county and was the last great logging firm to exploit the area. It had been preceded by the Yellow Poplar Lumber Company for whom many Big Sandians worked.

The loggers will gather again, next third Sunday in July, same place. A distinguished speaker will address the woods veterans if plans mature as formulated by officers named at the first meeting.

AUXIER FAMILY
Sigfus Olafson, 81 Chatsworth Ave., Larchmont, N. Y., head of the West Virginia Archeological Society, Inc., Moundsville, W. Va., writes of the Auxier family of Boone county, W. Va.

"The Boone county, West Virginia, census of 1860 lists the names of the families of Adam Oxer and Simon Oxer. From other sources it was learned that the name was incorrectly spelled and should have been Auxier. Corrected as to spelling, the census record is as follows:

"Adam Auxier, age 40, birthplace, Floyd county, Ky.; Nancy Auxier, 33, Floyd county, Ky.; Lewis M. Auxier, 12, Kanawha county, (W. Va.); Sarah M. Auxier, 9, Kanawha county; Milton J. Auxier, 7, Kanawha county; James M. Auxier, 5, Kanawha county; Harvey S. Auxier, 2, Kanawha county; Arrena A. Auxier, 4½, (months?) Kanawha county.

"Simon Auxier, age not given, born in Kentucky; Libby Auxier, age not given, born in Kentucky; Lorenzo D. Auxier, no age, born in Kanawha county; Almira Ann Auxier, no age, born in Kanawha county; Burwell P. Auxier, no age, born in Kanawha county.

"Unfortunately the ages of the Simon Auxier family were omitted when census records were copied.

"Local records show that the heads of these families, Adam and Simon Auxier, were brothers and sons of James Auxier. Their wives were sisters and daughters of Samuel Estep. From the birthplace of their children it is apparent that they had lived in Kanawha county during all of their married lives, arriving in Boone county just prior to the taking of the census. They do not again, to my knowledge, appear in the records of Boone county.

"In the Floyd County Times, Dec. 11, 1959, it is stated that the Auxiers came to America from the Rhine Valley in 1755. The name is very un-German and very French, so one wonders if the real origin was not Huguenot French, as is the case with many of the early American families, particularly those with French sounding names. Following the revocation of the Edict of Nantes and the massacre of the Protestant Huguenots of Rochelle, France, the survivors fled to various Protestant countries of Europe, England, Northern Ireland, Holland and Germany. A closely-knit religious sect and anxious to maintain their identity, the descendants of these refugees migrated from these countries to America around the early and middle 1700's, their principal settlements being at New Rochelle, N. Y., and in South Carolina. Descendants of the South Carolina Huguenots spread into North Carolina, Virginia, Eastern Kentucky and Southern West Virginia.

"The writer has no proof that the Auxiers were descended from these Huguenots but having found this to be the case with other early families with French names is merely suggesting the possibility."

NOTICE
Notice is hereby given that the Mike Little Gas and Water Company, a proprietorship, with its principal office at Wheelwright, Kentucky, did on the 2nd day of July, 1960, file with the Public Service Commission of Kentucky, at Frankfort, Kentucky, an application for the adjustment of gas rates and the establishment of water rates to be effective upon the orders of the Commission. Said rates proposed are as follows:

GAS
Minimum Charge $2.00
First 1,000 c. f. 2.00 Per M.C.F.
Next 9,000 c. f. .70 Per M.C.F.
Next 15,000 c. f. .60 Per M.C.F.
All over 25,000 c. f. .55 Per M.C.F.

WATER
First 3,000 Gals. (min.) $3.00 Per M
Next 2,000 Gals. .75 Per M
Next 5,000 Gals. .50 Per M
All over 10,000 Gals. .40 Per M

A public hearing upon the above proposed adjustment of gas rates and establishment of water rates has been set for August 23, 1960, at 9:00 o'clock a.m., E.S.T., before the Public Service Commission of Kentucky in the Commission's offices in the Old Capitol Building at Frankfort, Kentucky.

LEVI JACKSON WILDERNESS ROAD STATE PARK
A part of the history and glory of the Cumberland Mountains region of Kentucky has been perpetuated in Levi Jackson Wilderness Road State Park, near London, Ky. The beautiful park is a historical shrine dedicated to the pioneers who wrested from the Indians the Wilderness Road and eventually heaved out a path to the great Pacific Northwest. This woodland wonderland abounds in landmarks depicting the colorful and often bloody history in which the region was so richly steeped during the pioneer era of Daniel Boone.

The park, located directly on the nationally known Wilderness Trail, comprises about 350 acres and lies between the Little Laurel and Big Laurel Rivers, three miles south of London and 11 miles north of Corbin on Highway 25.

On the picturesque banks of the Little Laurel was the scene of one of the most gruesome Indian massacres in the early settlement between Cumberland Gap and the Kentucky River territory. The massacre was known as "McNitt's Defeat" or "Defeated Camp." In 1784 a small party of immigrants, led by Rev. Augustine Eastin of Bourbon county, was traveling through the wilderness of Boone's Trace when they encountered a large party of forty settlers seeking new homes in Kentucky. The party, disregarding Rev. Eastin's advice to camp with him in case of an Indian attack, moved farther into the wilderness before making encampment. That fateful night a band of Indians slipped into the unguarded camp and massacred more than half the settlers, including many women and children, thus entering one of the bloodiest chapters in the history of Kentucky.

One of the most interesting landmarks on the Little Laurel River is McHargue's Mill. The rocks used in the construction of the mill were brought from Tennessee in 1812. The mill was reconstructed on its present site in 1939.

A major feature of the park is the Mountain Life Museum, which contains a complete group of farm buildings depicting the pioneer life of yesteryear. The log buildings contain historical mementos of pioneer days, including farm tools, gun collections, Indian artifacts and various pioneer household furnishings.

Other points of historic interest in or adjacent to the park:

1. The Old State Lick Baptist Church, at which General Joe Wheeler was encamped with a detachment of Confederate troops during the Civil War.

2. The Freeman-Jackson family cemetery, in which soldiers of four wars are buried.

3. Home of Mrs. Ella Jackson, one of the donors of the park. This large hewed-log building was once a famous tavern on the Wilderness Road.

Complete camping and picnicking facilities are available in the shaded woodlands of the park. The dining room is so designed that the camper may be served cafeteria or family style. Bunk houses, complete with sleeping facilities, are provided for the camper.

Book of Job' Now in 3rd year, Showing at Pine Mt. State Park

"The Book of Job," after three years of production, is still going strong as its 125th presentation was given Saturday, July 23 at Pine Mountain State Park's Laurel Cove, Pineville, Ky.

The play's success lies in its universal appeal. Audiences eager for religious inspiration have found the message of "Job" to be edifying. The story of the play depicts man's victory through submission to the Almighty.

The first 28 performances were scattered across 5,000 miles and two continents. The play, which began on the campus of Georgetown College in October, 1957, under the direction of Orin Corey, has appeared at the 1958 World's Fair in Brussels, toured Canada and Britain, and at a special performance for the Southern Governor's Conference in Lexington, Ky.

Wherever the play has appeared, reviews have been described by director Corey as "ecstatic." Corey said that audiences have packed cathedrals and churches all over the world.

Corey said that the play, held in an open glass building in Brussels, caused a traffic jam when motorists tried to see the play while driving.

Corey's wife, Irene, is responsible for the makeup which is in accord with the theme of suffering man and the mid-western cultural setting of "Job," the Bible's oldest book.

The costumes and makeup are patterned after the Byzantine church mosaics. The bizarre pattern of makeup, kaleidoscopes of diamond-like stage positioning, Byzantine masks, gloves, wigs and robes, plus the doleful chanting, singing, and humming of the King James version of "Job" produces an effect in accord to the suffering of Job and his submission to God.

MARTIN

By BETTY PREFLATISH

Mrs. Harlan Bradley and daughter, Maria Janet, are the houseguests of her mother, Mrs. Mary Duci, at her home in Corbin. Mrs. Bradley is recuperating from a major operation she underwent at St. Mary's hospital in Huntington, W. Va., and will have an extended visit with her mother.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Carr, of Birmingham, Ala., are the guests here of his mother, Mrs. Lettie Carr, his grandmother, Mrs. Nora Crum, and his sister, Mrs. Clynard Jones. Mr. Carr is formerly of Martin.

Dr. and Mrs. L. C. McCloud and daughter Sue spent the week-end with his mother. While there they all visited the Breaks Interstate Park.

Mrs. W. D. Crisp underwent treatment at the Beaver Valley hospital this week. She has returned home and is recovering nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Biliter and children are spending a vacation here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Biliter, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Miles Beverly, of Price. The Biliters are from Petersburg, Va., where he teaches school.

Miss Sue Osborne has been treated at the Beaver Valley hospital this week for throat infection.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Robinson, of Munnich, Mich., have been visiting relatives here recently. They are former residents of Martin.

Mrs. Jack Cooper, of LaFollette, Tenn., Mrs. Anthony Vandermark and children, Mark and Fredrick, of Seattle, Wash., have been visiting their sister, Sister Mary Angelo, at Our Lady of the Way hospital. They accompanied another sister, Mrs. Helen Bradley and her daughter, Maria Janet, to Corbin to visit their mother.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to all who were so helpful and kind to us upon the death of our husband, father and brother, Velton Foster. We especially thank the ministers for their comforting words, those who sent flowers and food and the Hall Brothers Funeral Home for its efficient service.

48 YEAR-OLD EVENT RECALLED BY MONITOR

By HENRY P. SCALF

Early in the autumn of 1912, the editor of the Big Sandy Monitor, of Prestonsburg, his name unknown because he neglected to put it in the masthead, hired a horse from Burchett's livery stable and in the company of a Prof. Bengt turned "his face toward Left Beaver." The pair were going to attend a sectional teachers' meeting.

Upon his return to Prestonsburg the editor wrote up the story of the "gathering" for his readers, and because Mrs. J. D. Mayo preserved items from the paper of that issue, posterity reads it. These clips from the Monitor and one complete copy of the newspaper are the only known remnants of the paper.

The editor neglects to tell us where the teacher met with his class except that it was a 22-mile ride. In his enthusiasm engendered by the event he wrote profusely of the program.

"The program was taken up at 10 o'clock and given straight through without recess, closing about 2 o'clock," the editor said. "This was done in order to give us all time to stay it through and then get home."

He mentions that the County Superintendent, E. V. Hall, was "there and in a jolly mood as usual."

"The audience with the exception of two or three were courteous and well-behaved Kentuckians," the Monitor editor continued. "Of course there has to be a black sheep in every flock. If he can get a little liquor it is no trouble to find him either. That was why two or three budding topers were so conspicuous on this occasion. We pay our respects to them in another issue of the Monitor." Anybody seen that issue?

In contrast to the huge outlays of the present for education a news item in the clipping collection reads: "The Courier-Journal had a report from the Department of Education the other day which said that Floyd county would receive a per capita of $4.15 this year. If this is true there will be about $1,000 more to be appropriated for attendance than we first supposed."

That amount for education in this county wouldn't operate a good transportation system now. Who remembers the postoffice of Bob? Bette Stephens was teacher of the school there. It was evidently on Caney fork of Middle Creek. Mrs. Stephens was planning for a box social. Her notice, inserted in the Monitor, read:

"The date set for this box supper is September 6. All the girls are required to bring a box, so now the boys, leave your booze at home and come on and be men."

Under a clipping headed, "A Good Beginning," there is an item reminiscent of the old days when we were proud of attendance at school. Perfect attendance then would get your name in the paper. The newspaper listed all Prestonsburg third and fourth grade pupils who attended every day for the first month of school. They were Lewis Stephens, Paul Coyer, Welman Martin, Gracie Nunnery, Jonathan Vaughan, Josephine Ellis, Essie Salisbury, Lucy Rorer and Josephine Marrs.

Personal items in the 1912 issue of the Monitor recall people, places and things of long ago.

County Attorney W. Lee Roberts was on Middle Creek, Wednesday. Commonwealth's Attorney W. H. May is attending Circuit Court in Magoffin this week.

"Rev. W. D. Reid who was here a few Sundays ago has accepted the call to the pastorate of the First Baptist Church. He will arrive here from London, Ky., within the next ten days."

"Supt. E. V. Hall is out visiting schools this week."

The Allen City correspondent was not reliable, according to the paper but there was news:

"The Prestonsburg and Hindman Telephone Company is making rapid progress with their new line. All the poles between Allen City and Hindman have been placed and the system will soon be in active operation.

"Mr. Tom Allen, a former resident of this place, but now of Oklahoma, is here for a visit to friends and relatives."

"A few days ago Mr. and Mrs. James Webb returned from Florida where they went with the intention of purchasing an orange plantation."

One reason the clippings were preserved by Mrs. Mayo was evidently an obituary, titled, "S. W. Porter, Prominent Young Druggist of Prestonsburg, Dies In Cattleburg." Death stories then were more personal and a far cry from the matter-of-fact ones today.

"Our townsman, Mr. S. W. Porter, and son of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Porter, left last Sunday morning on 7:20 train to visit his sweetheart in Ashland. He was not feeling well but thought nothing of it. By dark Sunday evening he was in bed and very bad off."

"His condition continued to become worse till Monday evening when all hope for his recovery was abandoned. He died Monday night."

"Mr. Porter was a young man of hustle and push. He was at the head of Porter's Pharmacy and was President of the Business Men's Club. He was one of the moving factors in the Fourth of July celebration. He has been an untiring worker for the County Fair that is to come off in October."

"The town has lost one of its leading business men and the parents their only son. The funeral took place Wednesday. He was laid to rest in the cemetery back of town."

"The Monitor extends sympathy to all who feel his loss."

The clippings were evidently from two issues of the Monitor for there are two stories on the death of Taylor Allen. The first one reads:

"The people of Prestonsburg were shocked when the news reached here of the death of Taylor Allen last night (Wed.). At the time of going to press we could not learn the particulars of Mr. Allen's death but it seems to have been sudden as the family had no previous notice of Mr. Allen's illness. The end came to the deceased at Allen. The remains will arrive here tonight (Thursday)."

The next issue of the Monitor carried another story on the death of Mr. Allen, headed simply, "Funeral."

"On last Friday the body of Mr. Taylor Allen arrived here from Hazard where he died on the Wednesday night before. All had been made ready and the funeral took place in the afternoon in the family cemetery. Mr. Allen was one of Floyd county's prominent citizens. He belonged to one of the largest families of this section. He married into the Davidson family which is another strong family. He leaves a wife and four children. We understand he has left his family in good circumstances financially."

"Mr. Allen had been engaged in the lumber business near Hazard, Ky., and had not been home for quite awhile. We extend sympathy."

The clippings were preserved by Mrs. Mayo in an envelope and were made available to The Times by Mrs. Lucille Herndon, of Prestonsburg. The envelope was dated, September 12, 1912.

Pikeville Mayor Resigns After Imposition of Tax; Dr. Hambley, Successor

Former Mayor William Pauley, of Pikeville, declined recently to elaborate on his reasons for resigning other than to comment that a city must have money to pay its debts.

Pauley resigned as Mayor of Pikeville unexpectedly during a special called meeting of the City Council last week.

His resignation came only two days after the Council had approved a 1 per cent payroll tax for Pikeville, with Pauley's vote breaking a 3-3 deadlock.

Financial responsibility apparently entered into his decision to resign. He was succeeded by the mayor pro tem, Dr. W. C. Hambley, a surgeon.

"A city has to have funds to pay its debts," Pauley said Thursday. He was in the third year of a four-year term when he resigned.

Pauley said it is "false economy for the city to borrow from water and gas funds" to meet the obligations of the general fund.

"A group of things brought about my resignation," he said. They were mostly personal, he commented, but "did involve city government to an extent."

An informed source here who declined to be identified said Pauley, a lumber-firm owner, had been under pressure since the tax was passed.

His business firm is outside the city limits. Only persons working within the city will pay the new tax.

For the past 10 years, this same source said, Pikeville had consistently borrowed from the city's municipal gas and water funds for the general fund.

This practice is no longer financially workable for the city, he said, because of a $750,000 bonded obligation on the city's new water plant. Water funds now must be used to meet payments on the plant.

In round figures, Pikeville realizes $40,000 from a 75-cent per $100 property tax, $36,000 from parking meters, and $15,000 from city licenses. Charges for sanitation service, he said do not cover the cost of garbage collection.

Voting with Pauley and Dr. Hambley on the tax were Homer Dalton, an employee of the State Highway Department, and W. T. Huffman, a coal man.

Opposing the tax were J. A. Shockey, service-station operator; Allen Charles, State highway employee, and Harry J. Spears, an employee of a chain grocery.

Shockey called the tax the most unpopular thing ever enacted there, but expressed surprise that Pauley would resign.

All six councilmen were elected last year and took office January 1, when Pikeville changed from city manager government to the council form.

Inspired Famed 'Uncle Tom's Cabin'

Because of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," antique dealers and souvenir hunters carried away so many parts of the Kennedy House near Lancaster, Ky., through the years that only its foundation remains.

Author Harriet Beecher Stowe is said to have gained much of her inspiration for the book from this house. She is reported to have visited here while in Kentucky looking for material for a novel. Her Kentucky trips were made while she was a resident of Cincinnati during 1832-50. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was published first as a serial in The National Era during 1851-52.

Owner of the place was Gen. Thomas Kennedy, who also owned 200 slaves and 15,000 acres of land. His was one of the largest plantations in the South.

General Kennedy's daughter, Nancy Kennedy Letcher, who lived in the house and reared a family of 10 children, is said to have been the inspiration for the Little Eva of the story.

Lewis Clark, a Negro slave owned by General Kennedy, was the George Harper of the story. After the death of Kennedy, Clark, who feared that he would be sold on the New Orleans slave market, fled to Cambridge, Mass., where he lived for many years with the family of Mrs. Stowe's sister.

Clark's descriptions of old slaves are said to have suggested to Mrs. Stowe the character of Uncle Tom.
