This Town-- That World

This is a very damaging rain we've been having. It has ruined the nubbin crop.

A few days ago, they were telling us garden were 'ruining' for lack of rain. This morning, one garden-owner expressed the hope the rain would stop. It was beating the bloom off his beans. Farmers, like everybody else, are never satisfied.

Lloyd Brown has a young son who has all the earmarks of a real fisherman. He told Tommy Rose, the other day, he had caught "a whole string of fish and three or four more, besides."

BRING ON THE ROPE!

I am reminded that I do not dress properly for fishing. I should wear a tie, I am advised. My counselor cites as an example Ernest Turner, who went fishing, the other afternoon, dressed in his business suit, tie and all, and came in with a five-pound bass.

Me wear a tie, fishing? I'd wear a noose if it would help.

IT'S THE LAW

There is a law on the statute books that, if enforced, would make the whole countryside more presentable. A notice published by County Judge J. M. Leer, of Bourbon county, in The Paris Kentuckian reminds us of the law. It reads:

"All brush, weeds, overhanging limbs of trees and all other obstructions along the roads must be removed by the owner or manager of land bordering on the public roads, and they shall keep all hedge fences along the roads so trimmed that they at no time become more than five feet high. Any landowner or manager of any land on Bourbon county roads who does not comply with this notice will be prosecuted." (See Story No. 2, Page 6)

BEER SEIZED NEAR MARTIN

Smallwood was jailed here but gained his release later under bond. Smallwood also was booked on a reckless driving charge. Namon Sammons was jailed Saturday by State Trooper Allen on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicants. Others jailed Saturday:

Orval Tackett and Russell Osborne, both charged with possessing moonshine whiskey; Burgess Kestner, booked for permitting an unlawful operator to drive a motor vehicle, and Estill Crace, Jr., charged with driving without an operator's license.

SCHOOL FUNDS UP IN FLOYD, TURNER SAYS

Total Money Available May Reach $2,065,000; Wider Program Is Seen

Floyd county schools may receive as much as $557,000 in additional funds from the state in the 1960-61 school year, Superintendent V. O. Turner said this week.

In addition, the county's school children will benefit handsomely from the state government's full financing, for the first time, of the free textbook program.

The extra benefits for education in Floyd county, Superintendent Turner explained, are made possible by the state's new revenue program, which includes the sales tax, effective July 1.

Estimates, based on 1959-60 figures of the State Department of Education, indicate that Floyd county could possibly receive $2,065,000 in state funds under the Minimum Foundation Program in the forthcoming school year. This compares with $1,507,879 which the school district received in the 1959-60 school year.

"The new revenue program will provide much needed relief to education in our district," Turner said. He added that the additional funds would enable the school district to provide better transportation for pupils, more free textbooks, more classroom space and better equipment, a broader course of studies and higher instructional salaries.

Wendell P. Butler, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, said in advising local school districts of the funds, "Our legislature has done well in carrying out the will of the people, who demanded better schooling for Kentucky's children."

Because of the legislature's increase in appropriations for free textbooks, every child in grades one through eight in the public schools will be given all the necessary books for the first time. Also, for the first time, free textbooks will be provided to high school students in certain areas.

BUDGET DROPS AIDE SALARY

Mcney Is Transferred To Pay Road Engineer; Debt Service Eliminated

The budget proposed for Floyd county for the fiscal year beginning July 1 does not include a salary for a trial commissioner for the county judge's office, and that means, said County Judge Henry Stumbo, that the county's four magistrates will be required to handle the cases that come before them.

"Without this help I cannot possibly handle as many cases as have been heard in quarterly court while I had a trial commissioner," Judge Stumbo said. "I will be forced to refuse to accept cases transferred to my court by the magistrates, except major cases that really require my attention."

G. C. Burchett, the trial commissioner, had already indicated he would resign the post.

The $3,000 annual salary of the trial commissioner was, in effect, transferred to pay the salary of a road engineer whose services are required by the state in its cooperation with Floyd county in a plan to improve rural highways.

This state-county plan for road work, yet to be completed, resulted in the budgeting of $11,500 for new road machinery. That amount is only a fraction of the total cost of machinery to be purchased, however.

The $2,400 salary of an assistant to the county attorney remains unchanged in the new budget.

Nothing was budgeted for debt service, because the $11,000 budgeted for the year now ending paid the last outstanding bonded indebtedness against the county. For the first time in a quarter-century, or more, Floyd county is free of bonded indebtedness, it was said.

The fund budgeted for road rights-of-way was reduced in the new budget to $12,000. The appropriation for payment of "old debts," which are classified as folating debts, was increased to a record high of $28,753.

The complete budget is published elsewhere in this edition of The Times, and is the first to be published in detail prior to final adoption. Taxpayers are thus given an opportunity to protest any item in advance of final action.

SEVEN-POINT PROGRAM OUTLINED FOR SECTION

A seven-point program for the rural development of the depressed Eastern Kentucky area was outlined Monday at Jackson by True D. Morse, undersecretary of agriculture.

Morse's program was revealed at a daylong meeting of state and federal officials at the University of Kentucky's experimental sub-station at Quicksand. Besides Morse, other speakers were Gov. Bert T. Combs, Lieut.-Gov. Wilson Wyatt, Dr. Frank Welch, head of the University of Kentucky's College of Agriculture, Dr. Frank G. Dickey, president of the University of Kentucky, and B. F. Reed, head of the Eastern Kentucky Planning Commission.

Morse said the emphasis on rural development within the coal-depressed counties of Eastern Kentucky should be upon:

- 1. Forestry and the development of wood-usage industry.
2. Luring more small industries into the area.
3. Vocational education in trade and skill in contrast to vocational agriculture and home economics.
4. Recreation and tourism, particularly with respect to development of the region's scenic beauty and water resources.
5. Retirement homes, which he described as a growing business for the future.
6. Productive small farming to provide the produce and fruits needed by the region.
7. Education and health programs, specifically campaigns to encourage students to complete high school and further their education.

"Above all," Morse commented, "it takes action programs to get results."

Morse commented the University of Kentucky, the Kellogg Foundation, and the state on rural-development projects undertaken within Kentucky.

Monday's meeting was called by the university for a background briefing on the university's "Appalachian Resources Development Project" on Eastern Kentucky.

The project, financed by a grant of $725,000 from the Kellogg Foundation, is to begin in January.

"It is an education and guidance program directing the extension service to assist and counsel local groups in appraising resources to improve agriculture and introduce industry as supplements to farm income in the area," said Dr. Frank G. Dickey, U. K. president.

NEW BREAKS ARE REPORTED

Postoffice, Motor Firm Robbed Tuesday Night; Inez, Hindman Struck

Three new burglaries by "front door artists" were added to the growing list of break-ins in the section in the last few days. Little cash was lost in two of them but a third robbery at Inez Sunday night netted approximately $1,200 in merchandise and cash.

Robbed Tuesday night was the Estill postoffice. The thief or thieves entered by prying open the front door. Taken were only a few pennies and a C.O.D. package. The mail was gone through in search of loot.

The second break-in Tuesday night was an entrance into the Lackey Motor Company, at Lackey, formerly known as Phillips 66 Service Station. There the thief or thieves entered by smashing a window pane and opening the door from the inside. A young man was sleeping upstairs but failed to hear the thieves until a cigarette machine was broken open. They took $30 in cash and escaped. The boy fixed the time at 2:30 a.m. No clues were found.

Robbery of the Richmond-Callahan Hardware and Furniture store at Inez was another front door entrance, typifying the methods of many former breaks in this area. The firm's safe was taken out on the highway outside town and dynamited open and $600 cash taken. Also taken from the store was several hundred dollars worth of television sets, radios and firearms.

A delayed report of the robbery of the Knott county superintendent of school's office at Hindman says that two typewriters and an adding machine were taken. But the biggest haul at Hindman on the same night, it is said, was the loss of a large number of typewriters the Knott County Board of Education had recently bought for a new business class in high school. These were stolen from a warehouse where they had been stored.

TAX PERMITS DISTRIBUTED

Most Counties Receive Quota of Forms; Rural Counties On Priority

The Revenue Department began distributing sales tax permits in Floyd county last week. Floyd county was one of 95 in which delivery of permits by revenue field men was begun.

Revenue Commissioner William E. Scant said this initial delivery would be about 17,000 permits. Sales tax permits for retailers in rural counties were the first to be processed by the Revenue Department.

Each permit is of a permanent type. The Revenue Department has encased the permit card in a plastic lamination. Scant said this would prevent cards, which must be displayed in a prominent spot, from becoming torn, soiled or ragged. Permits to retailers in counties containing first, second or third class cities will be delivered through the mail.

HEREFORDS VISIT HERE

Mr. and Mrs. George Hereford, of Ft. Pierce, Fla., are spending their vacation visiting relatives and friends here and elsewhere in this section. They will visit their daughter in Maryland before returning to Ft. Pierce.

WOMEN WAGE EARNERS RISE

In Floyd, Report Notes; Comparable Trend Found In Other Parts of U.S.

Special to The Times New York, June 21—In ever-growing numbers, women in Floyd county are becoming wage earners.

More and more of them, married women especially, are finding enough time away from their home responsibilities to permit them to take jobs in offices, stores and factories.

With some of them, either the desire for better living or the need to work is the compelling force. With others, it is a flight from boredom or from inactivity that is involved.

The same trend, in varying degrees, has been observed in most other parts of the country. A recent report by the Bureau of Labor Statistics reveals a total of 22,736,000 women in the labor force last year as against 17,795,000 counted nine years previously.

Adapting to Floyd county the results of the recent national and sectional survey conducted by the Commerce and Labor Departments, it appears that 17.5 per cent of all women locally, over the age of 14, are in the labor force.

This represents an increase over the 10.3 per cent of them so-listed in 1950, when the prior census was taken. At that time 1,854 women were employed or seeking employment.

The 17.5 per cent of working women locally compares with the United States average of 35.2 per cent in the state of Kentucky.

An outstanding development (See Story No. 7, Page 4)

Anderson Moore, 70, of McDowell, Victim At Memorial Hospital

Anderson Moore, 70, of McDowell, died at 12:55 June 10, at the McDowell Memorial hospital. Death was attributed to cancer.

Anderson, a native of Price, was the son of Calvin and Rhoda Castle and was a retired miner.

He is survived by his wife, America Johnson Moore, one son, M. C. Moore, of McDowell, three daughters, Mrs. Margie McCoy, Mrs. Orgie Watchman, Napoleon, Ohio, and Mrs. Charlene Karnes, of Ohio. Brothers and sisters surviving are Ellis Moore, Wales, Mrs. Mary Whitson, Baltimore, Md., and Mrs. Susie Johnson, Hi Hat, Tenn. grandchildren and one great-grandchild also survive.

The funeral was held June 13, at 10 a.m., at graveside in the Lucy Hall cemetery with the Revs. Jerry Hall and Charlie Jones officiating. Burial was made under the direction of the Merion & Call Funeral Home.

Repairs To Cause Power Interruption

Electric power service will be suspended next Sunday morning, beginning at 9 o'clock and lasting for a period of about three hours, for all Kentucky Power Company customers served by the Lackey sub-station. The interruption of service will be necessary while line repairs are being made. The area to be affected will include Lackey and vicinity, on to the head of Right Beaver Creek and from Lackey down Right Beaver Creek to the Kentucky Hydrocarbon Company plant, near Maytown.

KCC ENDORSES BOND ISSUE

Directors Oppose TVA Purchase of Coal Land In Southeast Kentucky

The Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, through its directors last week, endorsed the $100,000,000 road bond issue that will be presented to the voters in November, president R. D. Wallace announced. The directors favor issuance by the Commonwealth of Kentucky of $100,000,000 worth of road bonds for the purpose of constructing highways and improving state parks as proposed by the administration.

Speaking further about the road bond issue, president Wallace said, "Perhaps the most recent milestone in Kentucky's progress was the successful sale by the Commonwealth during June of the $30,000,000 remaining unsold bonds for highway construction. This cleared the way for acceleration of the highway construction program and at the same time, leaves unclouded the $100,000,000 bond issue which Kentuckians must decide on in November. It poses the question, are we going to do a complete job and do it right?"

The Chamber will join with other organizations and groups interested in the success of the road bond proposition in furnishing information and support to assure its success.

The Kentucky Chamber's board of directors went on record as opposing the proposed purchase of some 60,000 acres of coal land in Bell, Harlan, Clay and Leslie counties by the Tennessee Valley Authority.

At the meeting of the directors the opinions of coal operators and others were presented. It was pointed out that from its very beginning it has been the policy of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce to stimulate and protect private enterprise and that on coal land owned by TVA it is doubtful that taxes or royalties would be paid.

It was stated that the government should attend to its business only of governing; that any enterprise it competes with private enterprise; that apparently it is the intention of TVA to compete with existing coal industry which is already having difficulty in making appropriate returns on its operations; and that if the TVA enters the coal mining business, this will expand still further the ever-growing bureaucracy of government and would tend to nationalize the coal industry and deal it a blow that would be tenfold as potent as the loss of the market for railroad fuel and the mechanization program of the industry combined.

This position of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce will be made known to members of the Kentucky Congressional delegation, Wallace stated.

PERRY SCHOOL LEADER DIES

At Hazard Hospital; Was G.O.P. Nominee For Congress, Twice

Dr. Elmer E. Gabbard, former president of the Buckhorn School in Perry county who became well-known in this county as a two-time losing Republican candidate for Congress against the late Congressman A. J. May, died Friday night in a Hazard hospital at the age of 69.

Dr. Gabbard had been ill a week with a heart ailment, hospital officials said.

Dr. Gabbard was a 1913 graduate of Berea College and a 1916 graduate of Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary. From 1936 until his retirement in 1956, he was president of Buckhorn School in Perry county. He had been a trustee of Berea College 40 years.

Dr. Gabbard was a Republican candidate for Seventh district representative in 1942 and 1944 but was defeated in both general elections.

The funeral was held Sunday at Darfork, Perry county, where he had been preaching before his illness.

Due to the extra heavy load of campers for this week, it does not seem practical to try to serve a meal for our meetings," he added.

HOUSING PLAN IS ADVANCED

By City Council Vote; May Farm Is Selected As Site For Project

The low-rent public housing program proposed for Prestonsburg was apparently in good standing this week as the City Council at its Monday night meeting voted to continue the state-federal zoning and planning service necessary to such an improvement. Payment of the $269 due for the last six months' service was voted by the Council.

Gayle Godsey, representative of the Planning & Zoning Division, Department of Economic Security, said he was much encouraged by the attitude of the Council toward the program.

As even more concrete evidence of Prestonsburg's hopes of low-rent public housing, Mayor Edward B. Leslie pointed to the selection of the Joe M. May farm at the mouth of May's Branch on the new Prestonsburg-Auxier road as a site for the housing project, and to the fact that appraisers have already placed a value on the property. He added that he is hopeful the property can be purchased by amicable agreement with the owner.

The Council at this week's meeting entered into a final contract with the Bell Engineering Co., Lexington, to do the engineering work on the proposed Prestonsburg sewer system and sewage disposal plant. Engineering costs will run in the neighborhood of $26,000, it was said.

Finances claimed the Council's attention as a dearth of funds was reported. A special effort is expected to be made soon to collect approximately $8,000 in delinquent taxes. City Treasurer James R. Spurlock said $38,000 will be needed by the city to carry on its affairs during the next six months. As of May 31, the city's cash balance was $33,333.

BANK OFFERS SCHOLARSHIPS

If Made Depository; Proposition Is Made By Spurlock To Board

A scholarship plan which would benefit one graduating senior from each of Floyd county's nine high schools was proposed this week by The First National Bank here to the County Superintendent, Superintendent-elect, members of the Floyd County Board of Education and the principals of the several schools.

The scholarship would be extended to each of the nine seniors for only his or her first year in an approved or accredited college or university. Each scholarship would be in the amount of $400, and the scholarship program, as proposed, would be effective for the 1960-61, 1961-62 biennium.

An accompanying letter signed by Durl Spurlock, president, stated the scholarship plan would be put into effect immediately in the event that the Board of Education designates the bank as depository of Floyd Board of Education funds to be effective as of the date of the Board's first regular meeting in July. In addition to the scholarship plan, the letter set out, the bank (See Story No. 5, Page 3)

SCOUT HEADS PLAN MEETING

Lonesome Pine Council Announces Change; Date Is Noted By President

Commissioners and committee-men of the Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America, have scheduled a meeting at Camp Shawnee, Tuesday of next week, it was announced this week by Walter P. Walters, president of the Council.

"Since Monday, June 27, is the regular date for our operating committees and commissioners meeting, we believe that you would be interested in having this meeting at our Camp Shawnee instead of Bethlehem Mines," Walters wrote persons interested in Scouting. "Since this will probably be the only opportunity for a meeting while camp is in session, we hope that you will be there for the meeting at 7:30 p.m."

"Due to the extra heavy load of campers for this week, it does not seem practical to try to serve a meal for our meetings," he added.

Stumbo and Grandson Barely Escape Blaze As Residence Levelled

Lee Stumbo, brother of County Judge Henry Stumbo, and his young grandson barely escaped death by burning, June 9, when the Stumbo home at McDowell was destroyed by an early-morning blaze. The two were asleep in a back bedroom and their only escape route was through the flames that raged in the front portion of the house.

The fire, which was of unknown origin, was discovered shortly before 4 a.m. The five-room home and furniture valued at $4,000 were a total loss. It was said that insurance covered approximately one-third the loss.

LAYNE SHOT BY WARRIX

At Abbott Creek Home; Condition Is Improving From Two Bullet Wounds

Roe Layne, 64, former member of the Prestonsburg City Council and ex-policeman here, was seriously wounded when shot twice Saturday afternoon at the home of his wife on Abbott Creek, and Zeon Warrix, of Bull Creek, was jailed soon thereafter on a charge of shooting and wounding with intent to kill.

Although threatened early this week by pneumonia complications, Layne's condition was improved Tuesday and it is believed he will recover. Bullets fired from a .25-calibre pistol struck Layne, one barely missing his heart and passing through his body, the other entering his jaw and lodging in the back of his neck. This second bullet has not been removed.

Layne in a statement made Monday afternoon told County Attorney R. S. Wellman, County Judge Henry Stumbo and Assistant County Attorney Harold J. Stumbo he made no threats of any kind prior to the shooting. He said he went to the home to see his wife and found her and Warrix, her former husband, on the porch, talking. He said he criticized Mrs. Layne for wearing shorts and admitted he had a stick in his hand at the time. As he walked onto the porch, he added, Warrix went inside the house. Layne said that as he reached the screen door leading inside the shots were fired.

Layne claimed Warrix was drunk, and officers said they smelled whiskey on Warrix when they brought him to jail here.

A statement from Warrix was unavailable, but officers quoted him and Mrs. Layne as saying Layne was advancing on Warrix with a stick in his hand. Warrix said he fired in self-defense when Layne threw the stick at him.

COAL BIT FIRM OWNER SUCCUMBS NEAR HERE

Wilbur Raymond Joy, 57 years old, founder of the Coal Bit Company here, died of a gunshot wound at his home five miles south of here Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Joy, who had been ill for several months, had taken a .22-calibre rifle to the patio of his home and had asked for a cloth with which to clean the weapon, his sister-in-law, Mrs. Powell, said. She added that he asked her to bring him a soft drink and that as she went to do this she heard the shot. He died before Dr. John G. Archer could reach the residence.

A jury empanelled by Coroner James J. Carter considered the possibility of accidental shooting and could not make a definite verdict.

A native of Salisbury, Pa., Mr. Joy had resided here since 1949. That same year, he formed the Coal Bit Company and developed a special coal-bit tipping process which soon was widely marketed in mining areas of the Tri-State region. Later, he applied for a patent on a revolutionary cutting tool and tool-holder for continuous mining machines.

Mr. Joy was a son of the late Joseph and Anna Dyrrod Joy, and was a member of the family whose inventiveness revolutionized mining operations in the United States and other countries. The Joy loader was invented by his brother, J. F. Joy. Before coming here Mr. Joy was associated with two of his brothers in the Joy Brothers Machine Company.

He was a member of the First Methodist Church here and took a leading part in the religious and civic life of the community. His fraternal affiliations included membership in Zebulon Masonic lodge here, Adah Chapter, Order of East-

40 DELEGATES TO REPRESENT FLOYD COUNTY

Democrats Here Laud Combs Administration; Group Uninstructed

Forty delegates to the state Democratic convention in Louisville and 20 alternates were named at the county convention held here Saturday.

The meeting, which was attended by a crowd which filled the circuit courtroom, was harmonious. Dr. Edward B. Leslie, who recently became party chairman in this county upon the resignation of Jerry F. Howell, of Price, acted as temporary chairman, and was named permanent convention chairman. Mrs. Betty Stephens was nominated for the post of temporary secretary but declined the post, and Mrs. Irene McIntosh was elected. She also was named permanent secretary of the convention.

Gov. Combs was named a delegate from this county and also was chosen by unanimous vote to serve as chairman of the Floyd delegation at the state convention. It developed later, however, that the press of convention business will prevent the Governor from heading the Floyd group, and Dr. Leslie as county convention chairman will lead the delegation.

One resolution adopted by the Floyd convention commended Governor Combs for "doing an excellent job in presenting a great and progressive program at the 1960 legislative session and for his aid in securing legislation for the benefit of education, welfare, veterans affairs and the excellent road program for Eastern Kentucky that is now in the planning."

Another resolution specified that the Floyd delegation should go to the state convention, uninstructed.

Edgar Bingham, chairman of the Resolutions committee, moved that the convention express its choice of a Presidential nominee, but after a parley with the other members of the committee, John Allen and Paul C. Combs, the matter was dropped.

Although Governor Combs is an outspoken supporter of Senator Lyndon B. Johnson for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency, he said last week that the Kentucky delegation will not vote as a unit. Elimination of the unit rule was a Combs campaign promise. Johnson, however, is expected to receive the lion's share of the Kentucky delegates' votes at the national convention. (See Story No. 3, Page 3) ern Star, the Scottish Rite and the Shrine. He also was a director of the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad.

Miss Hagewood Becomes Bride Of Mr. Minix in Church Rites

In a candlelight ceremony solemnized the afternoon of June 12, in the Methodist Church here, Miss Elizabeth Gayle Hagewood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hagewood, of Prestonsburg, became the bride of Maurice Minix, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Minix, of Paintsville, Ky.

The Rev. Harold W. Dorsey performed the double-ring ceremony before an altar banked with tall baskets of white gladioli and stephanotis. An archway covered with gladioli and stephanotis was flanked with flower-covered trellises. Cathedral-branched candelabra holding white candles were on each side of the aisles at the altar.

Nuptial music was played by Mrs. Chalmer Frazier, organist, with Mrs. Harold W. Dorsey and Miss Peggy Music presenting vocal solos. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white gown of hand-run, imported chantilly lace and nylon tulle over satin. A band of lace sprinkled with iridescents accented the sheer tulle yoke and molded lace bodice. The long sleeves coming to a point at the waist also had the iridescent trim and the bouffant tiered skirt over tulle and matching taffeta extended into a chapel train. Her French illusion tiered veil was caught by a sequin and pearl embroidered lace shell. She carried a bridal bouquet of stephanotis centered with white orchids with white satin shower streamers.

Miss Mary Alice Allen was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Betty Jean Rowe, Miss Sharon Allen, Miss Jerry Mahan, Miss Denise Hall, all of Prestonsburg, and Miss Brenda Banks, of Wayland, Ky. Miss Kathy Marshall, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. The attendants wore gowns of Nile green silk organza, fashioned with shirred empire bodice, scoop neckline and cap sleeves. The full pleated skirts accented with embroidered floral spray, were ballerina length. Their open-crown hair-braid hats were encircled with flowers, and they carried bouquets of yellow majestic daisies. The flower girl wore a white silk dress with a white net overskirt and carried a bouquet similar to the bride's.

The bride's mother wore an afternoon gown of champagne alecon lace. The bodice had a scoop neckline and the elbow-length sleeves were finished with a scallop edge of lace. The sheath skirt was accented at the waistline with a shirred gray-green chiffon sash. She wore matching accessories and her corsage was a white orchid. Mrs. Minix, mother of the groom, wore a green chiffon dress and matching accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid.

It Could Happen Here

Could Eastern Kentucky become a haven for the retired, and would retirement homes present the area with some hope of relief from the economic doldrums?

A speaker at the conference held Monday at the Quicksand Experiment Station, near Jackson, expressed the belief that the answer is, "Yes."

Certainly the idea has its merit. For one thing, it's new. Indeed this land of mountains and streams could offer the beauty and peace those in their declining years seek.

But, for all the natural beauties and potentialities of the region, much would remain to be done before Eastern Kentucky could hope to draw to it for their last years those who no longer are productive or active.

It is doubtful if the Mountains, for all their natural attraction, will ever attract many until roadsides, streets, streams and the landscape in general are cleared of unsightly accumulations of debris and disorderly effluvia. Also to be considered would be the cost of living, the cost of property, taxes and such mundane matters.

Beyond all this, there is the need for an improved moral and cultural atmosphere. The peace of towering mountains and their three-clad beauty will not offset the sordidness of a roadhouse or a bootleg joint when women and men come looking for a quiet spot in which to live quietly. Churches, schools, libraries, restful recreation, social contacts—these would seem to us to be prime needs if this area is to draw retirement families to it.

Come to think of it, these are prime needs, whether retirement families come looking for a home here or not. Those of us already here need beauty—a beauty that is more than skin-deep—for a fuller enjoyment of a beautiful land.

Directors of Nursing Attend UK Workshop

A total of 35 directors and assistant directors of nursing from hospitals throughout Kentucky attended a nursing service workshop, June 16 and 17, at the University of Kentucky.

Sponsored by the University of Kentucky College of Nursing and Extended Programs, the program marked the first in-service training offered by the newly organized College of Nursing. Faculty members from the College of Education and UK Testing Service assisted with the program.

Representing the McDowell Memorial hospital was Mrs. Ruth S. Whitmer.

Millard Hall, 43, Of Wheelwright, Dies; Was Heart Attack Victim

Millard Hall, 43, of Wheelwright, was claimed by a heart attack at 3:45 a.m., Wednesday, at the McDowell Memorial hospital. He was ill only a few days. Mr. Hall was an ambulance driver for the Wheelwright local of the United Mine Workers for 17 years.

He was a son of Mrs. Dona Little Hall, of Wheelwright, and the late Talt Hall. His wife, Carrie Jackson Hall, survives. One daughter, Miss Joyce Ann Hall, of Prestonsburg, survives. Two step-children surviving are Donald Ray Hall and Betty Joy Hall, both of Detroit, Mich. Two surviving brothers are Belva and Burlin Hall, both of Wheelwright.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m., Saturday, at the Wheelwright First Baptist church of which he was a member, the Rev. Bert Caldwell officiating. Burial will follow in the Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel under the direction of Merion-Call Funeral Home.

throughout the nation, revealed by the survey, is the new attitude of married women toward work outside the home. Nearly one out of three wives over age 35 is in the work force now as against only one in eight in 1940.

An explanation is given by Dr. Henry David, director of the National Manpower Council. He says that women are marrying earlier, having children earlier and are completing their families at an earlier age.

Half the women in the United States, he points out, have their last child when they are 26. They are 32 when the child is ready for school and they are free, after that time, to take outside jobs.

In Floyd county, women constitute a larger proportion of people in jobs than ever before. Since 1950, when the census tabulation revealed that 12.1 per cent of all local jobs were held by women, there have been increases noted in all parts of the country, the average rise being 4.8 per cent.

If you see your doctor promptly and carry health and hospital insurance, you can have better health protection and save on your medical expenses, despite all-time high costs. So writes Albert Q. Maisel in a July Reader's Digest article, "Seven Ways to Cut Your Medical Expenses."

(Continued from Page One) Dr. Dickey emphasized that the program is not a study or research project. He also explained that it will be administered by the university, not by the Kellogg Foundation.

Morse said the project has national significance.

"There is a need for such broad area development as smaller units and counties press forward for new opportunities in rural-development programs," Morse said. "The approaches and methods you prove successful will have broad application in other states which have broad, underdeveloped areas."

Dr. Dickey appraised the situation in Eastern Kentucky as not new, but only newly recognized.

"The fact that it has so long existed tempts one to despair," he said. "But it is a situation that can and must yield to the combined efforts of a public which now recognizes its stake in an ultimate solution."

"Certainly a people with resources to send satellites spinning around the sun or develop weapons capable of exterminating mankind should be able to negotiate successfully the development of a region embracing this relatively small proportion of its total land area and population."

In the Appalachian-resource-development project, Dr. Dickey said, the university will not do any management, manufacturing, or financing. Instead, it will furnish skilled specialists to counsel the region's people who will do the job for themselves.

In this connection, Welch announced that the university will build a $100,000 office building and laboratory at Quicksand which will be the focal point of the project.

Ten regional specialists will be headquartered at Quicksand, Welch said. They will help the people of Eastern Kentucky establish self-help projects to improve their living standards and the economy of the region.

In brief remarks before the group Monday morning, Dr. Welch said: "Kentucky has not been sitting idly by, holding its hands, expecting somebody to bring magic relief to the area. A look at the state's budget proves that."

Combs and Wyatt stressed that federal aid is absolutely necessary for highways, water-resources development, flood control, and airport developments before the problems of Eastern Kentucky can be solved.

The Governor said: "While most of the nation has increased its population significantly, ours has increased by a measly 6,000 people."

He said that while there is as much coal as ever produced in Eastern Kentucky, unemployment has come about because machines replaced men.

"I do not see how the problems of Eastern Kentucky can be solved without federal aid," he said. "We have got to have federal aid not only here, but in other underdeveloped areas of the United States."

Wyatt pointed out that federal formulas for flood control and highway construction prevent economic development in Eastern Kentucky.

Vacation Time May Mean Work For Students

Vacation time for some students may mean "work" time for others. When school lets out, young people all over America begin the exciting adventure of looking for their first job.

You can get started in the right way by having your social security account number card with you when you apply for that job. Your employer should have it before you begin working. He needs it to properly report the amount of your earnings. If you don't show it to him, you may lose some of your future social security protection.

If you have worked before, even part time, you probably had a social security card. In that case, show it to your employer when you get a job.

If you've lost your card, get a duplicate with the identical number that was on your original card. Having more than one number causes confusion and delay when you collect benefits. Remember—one social security number lasts a lifetime.

If you never had a card, or if you need a duplicate card, visit the nearest office of the Social Security Administration. The Pikeville Social Security office is located at Second and Division streets.

TO THE VOTERS IN EDUCATIONAL DIVISIONS

NOS. 3, 4 AND 5

I have personally investigated the John G. Hall and Ray Howard regime, and if they can elect one more Board member they will look a lot different from the old 'possum they are talking about looking out the same old hole.

They could develop into some other animal a lot worse than a 'possum, and it could take several years to clear Floyd county from the political practices they could spread over the county.

Watch The Times next week for the people I am depending on to elect me as Board member in Educational Division No. 5.

GARRETT

BOY SCOUTS ON TRIP

Saturday night, 13 of Garrett's Boy Scouts of Troop No. 144 went on an overnight trip. Accompanied by their Scoutmaster, Eugene Mullins, and Assistant Scoutmaster, Bill Francis, Jr., the Troop left Garrett at 6 p.m. After a mile and half hike the boys pitched camp. After the camp site was readied the boys prepared their late meal and were then ready to engage in some games. Everyone was tired and bedded down by midnight. The boys found the night air chilly so they kept their campfires going all night by taking turns, two boys at a time, at watching. Daybreak found the boys up and preparing a breakfast of bacon and eggs with bread and milk. Soon as breakfast was over, the mess gear cleaned and the campsite cleaned away, the group headed home.

Boys who made the camping trip were: Phillip Rowe, Darrell Johnson, Hubert Draughn, Danny Francis, Paul Francis, Larry Francis, Richard Triplett, Jimmie Potter, Roanie Moore, Jimmie Case, Gary Francis, Tommy Rice, Clarence Hughes, Jr., and Anthony Rowe. The latter three boys are Explorer Scouts.

The Garrett Boy Scout Troop was reorganized in April of this year under sponsorship of the Garrett Baptist church. The Rev. Rush Sloane, pastor, is the institutional representative, Kermit L. Rowe is chairman of the Troop committee; Shelby Draukin is secretary and personnel man; John Calvin Martin is advancement man; Bill Francis, Jr., finance man, and Winchester Francis is outdoorsman. Eugene Mullins is Scoutmaster, Bill Francis, Jr., and John Calvin Martin are assistant Scoutmasters.

Scout meetings are held regularly every Tuesday night at 7:30 in the basement of the Garrett Baptist church. At present 18 boys attend meetings regularly. All boys of the community who are at least 11 years of age and interested in becoming a Boy Scout are invited to attend these meetings and learn how to become a Scout. Parents are urged to take active parts in the scouting program by attending meetings and furnishings work to the Scouts who are earning money for the patrol and their troop. Former Scouts and Scoutmasters are asked to turn in their equipment because it is needed desperately.

Betsy Layne Mother Shares Honors With Ninth Child To Be Graduated

Mrs. Flora Stratton, Betsy Layne high school patron, took honors with a daughter at commencement, June 9. Mrs. Stratton was recognized by the principal, D. W. Howard, and the faculty and presented with flowers. Receiving her diploma on the same night was Mrs. Rosemary Meade, her ninth child to graduate from the Betsy Layne school.

"The nine sons and daughters of Mrs. Stratton who have been graduated from Betsy Layne high school under my principalship here have been outstanding students and Mrs. Stratton has been an outstanding mother," Howard, who has been principal at Betsy Layne for 23 years, said.

The first of the nine children of Mrs. Stratton to be graduated was Henry, who is now serving in the armed forces. Mrs. Stratton, wife of Sparrell Stratton, a retired miner and farmer, are the parents of 12 children. Most of the girl graduates have taken up secretarial work.

Mrs. Stratton, although an advocate of education, had little formal education herself. A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wright, of Dock, she and her husband have resided at Betsy Layne for 45 years.

Although Rosemary is her "baby" child, Mrs. Stratton avows she will continue her interest in education. She points out that she has 16 grandchildren.

Only 28 Pounds To Go; Reporter Has Lost 35 Pounds

By GORDON MOORE
(Reprinted from Huntington Herald-Advertiser)
(Fifth in a series)

Fifty five days ago when I began the arduous task of losing 63 pounds, life insurance expectancy tables showed the probability of my not living to the 50-year mark. However, with 35 pounds now fallen by the wayside and only 28 more pounds to lose before returning to the 200-pound mark, I personally feel that I will make it to 70, if I don't get run over by an automobile.

From time to time several readers have asked the status of my health. As related previously, there was nothing physically wrong except that I had an over-abundance of adipose tissue (in the wrong places). That excess is rapidly disappearing and I always have enough energy to work the usual eight hours and spend several leisure hours enjoying the finer things in life, namely golf, fishing, not to mention bouncing flat of my back water skiing and an occasional gardening undertaking.

During a recent 98-degree day and 304 bales of freshly mown hay stacked around the farm, I became ambitious enough to haul same (by tractor) to the barn loft. This required about six hours and an unusually high number of calories. In the process, I perspired furiously, cursed and wore off seven pounds in six hours, but after consuming what seemed to me several gallons of water, a small steak and a salad, I promptly ended with a net loss of three pounds for the day, which was excellent, but in the future I shall return to the formula of less food, time, balanced diet and lesser amounts of exercise in accomplishing the same feat.

It has been so long since any type of bread, pie, cake, potatoes, fried foods, salad dressing, butter, candy, peanuts, ice cream, spaghetti and other items have gone over my taste buds, they would undoubtedly reject these foods even if I envisioned the thought of eating them.

One lady was so enthusiastic about my success, she even promoted the stock of Southern Bell to some extent by calling to ask what I was eating and how I continued to lose.

Usually in the mornings a glass of orange or pineapple juice is the first item of the day followed by a bowl of cereal with 18 calories of sugar and a glass of skimmed milk for shortening said cereal.

Two or three cups of black coffee throughout the morning with co-workers and loafers tides me over until lunch, which consists merely of an apple, banana, or cottage cheese with a pineapple ring or sugarless peaches.

For dinner, virtually any meat (preferably steak) broiled, baked or charcoaled is the main course along with a garden salad and a glass of skimmed milk. Sometimes, in order to ease my ego, a couple of hard boiled eggs are thrown in for good measure.

Although far from being a noted authority on dieting, I believe that I have a greater knowledge of the subject than some of my female associates, who worry about going over 125 pounds soaking wet.

SUGGESTIONS TO MOTORISTS

Speaking of obstructions, have you noticed the view, or the lack thereof, at certain Prestonsburg street intersections? Once upon a time we suggested that a periscope would help motorists to drive out safely onto the highway at such intersections, but we withdraw the suggestion—you'd only get your periscope knocked off. What's needed is radar. A police escort and a road-block might do, if radar isn't available.

THIS HURTS

There's always something to discourage a-body. Now it's the theory expressed by a neuro-physiologist that the porpoise is the equal, possibly the superior, of man in brain-power.

This comes at a particularly trying time for me. I have a young son who is reading, delightedly, about ancient Egypt, the Pharaohs whose names he rattles off as if the monkeys were plain Tom, Dick or even Harry, and he has the annoying habit of asking me about these oldtimers and if I have read about the archeological finds in that land of antiquity, and so on. He further discourages me with learned discussions of Tyrannus Rex and those nightmarish saurians of long ago. And then, after I am forced to admit that maybe I don't know as much as I should, along comes this guy with this porpoise theory.

I am tempted to remark that some people will make any kind of statement if it will get their names in print, but perhaps I shouldn't be unkind about it, even though I am of the genus homo sapiens and am not supposed to know any better. Instead, I'll ask the gentleman if he has run across any porpoises which (who?) can compose a great piece of music or write a poem or even bandage an injured flipper. (That flipper remark reminds me that I left mine behind, the other morning, when I closed the car door... but I did know enough to tie it up.)

On one point I will make a concession. I will admit that the dumbest porpoise in the school would never be guilty of writing some of the stuff that passes for music, these days. There may be other points of agreement between this scientist and me, but that will come only when he turns to studying man and lets me study porpoises for a while.

The idea for the American flag, which adds two more stars July 4, marking statehood of Alaska and Hawaii, came from a banner of the 16th century Dutch Republic according to the July Reader's Digest.

ANSWERS TO YOUR TAX QUESTIONS

BY WILLIAM E. SCENT
KENTUCKY'S COMMISSIONER OF REVENUE

Revenue Commissioner William E. Scent urged Floyd countians buying now in an effort to avoid the sales tax to be sure to take delivery of anything they purchase.

Scent said the sales tax would not apply on the purchase of tangible personal property delivered before July 1, the day the sales tax is effective, whether the sale is for cash or credit.

He said articles placed on layaway before July 1 would be subject to the tax after July 1. Scent reemphasized that delivery of the merchandise must be made to the customer.

He said the buyer should keep in mind also that the tax applies only to tangible personal property such as furniture and appliances and will not be levied against such things as real estate, stocks and bonds, and professional services such as doctors and accountants services.

Scent noted too that new cars are not to be subject to the sales tax. The 3% motor vehicle usage tax will remain in effect, except this tax will now be levied against only 90% of the factory list price.

Scent also cleared up the question of the sale tax on utilities. He said the sales tax will merely replace the present three per cent utilities gross receipts tax which has been repealed effective June 30, when the three per cent sales tax begins.

He also said that the 1960 Legislature had lowered the states cigarette tax from 3c to 2½ and the application of the sales tax would not necessarily result in an increase in cigarette prices.

This is the second of a series of columns seeking to acquaint the readers of this paper with the tax structure effective July 1 in Kentucky.

Q. Are sales of feed to farmers subject to the sales tax?

A. His purchase of feed is not subject to the tax if it is used for production of food for humans, or if his product is sold in the regular course of business.

Q. How will a feed store merchant determine whether the sale is exempt from the tax?

A. The farmer, when he purchases exempt items, will execute an Agricultural exemption certificate. This gives the merchant a record showing that no tax is due on the sale.

Q. If a farmer buys a tractor and trades in his old one, will he pay the tax on the full purchase price of the new tractor?

A. No. The tax will apply only to the cash difference. For instance, if a farmer buys a $3,000 tractor and receives $1,500 allowance for his old tractor, the tax would apply on the $1,500 difference or would amount to $45.

Q. If a farmer buys farm stock, is the sale subject to the tax?

A. No.

Q. If he buys livestock for breeding, is it subject to the tax?

A. No.

Q. If he buys livestock for dairy purposes, is it subject to the tax?

A. No.

Q. If he buys poultry for breeding or producing eggs, does the tax apply?

A. No.

Q. If a farmer has bad luck with his tobacco plant beds and purchases plants from his neighbor, will the neighbor collect the tax?

A. No. The law specifically exempts occupational sales.

Q. If a farmer purchases feed for his dog, will he pay the tax?

A. Yes.

AROUND FLOYD COUNTY

By Quentin Allen

Pre-fight odds on the Johansson-Patterson fight attest to the futility of picking winners. Such "experts" as Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney and Rocky Marciano, all ex-champions, made predictions that the big Swede would take Patterson.

Patterson, they glibly explained, is a legitimate lightweight parading in the role of a heavyweight fighter. Pugilists, as well as sportswriters, were inclined to stick with winners.

One writer, Arthur Daley, the much-admired sports columnist of the New York Times, picked Patterson to clobber Johansson. The rest of the sport writing clan, with a few exceptions, went along with the seemingly safe prediction that Johansson, now of television fame and as squire of the beautiful Birgit, would knock the New Jersey ex-champion into dreamland muy pronto.

It seemed that Johansson has been credited with proving so much by so little. One lucky sock doesn't make the good-looking Swede a killer. The conservative ex-pugs must have convinced reporters that Patterson, not a beer-parlor rough-neck, doesn't have the finesse or strength to take the 198-pound Scandinavian.

If the clock were rolled backwards a bit, then we'd see again the pages of Sports Illustrated heralding the skills of Floyd Patterson. A lithe, lightning-like panther... combinations that make you blink, they're thrown so fast... those were the words, or close to them. Johansson, the first time, met a cocky, untested Patterson, great potentially, who got his toes curled by that second round right.

Monday night, Patterson made the historic march back to the ring and avenged his pride and took what really belonged to him at the time, the heavyweight championship of the world.

That powerful left-hook must have made believers out of the

SPORTS CHATTER

By GORDON MOORE

High school baseball in Floyd county is improving each season as a result of the various Little League and Pony Leagues in the county.

During the past high school season, virtually every player on the six county teams had played in either a summer Pony or Little League.

This summer, more than 300 youths are involved with the eight leagues and farm teams.

One of the fastest leagues in the area is the five-team Beaver Pony League, which consists of 13 and 14-year-old youths. The five teams come from a good cross-section of the county as Garrett, Maytown, David, Drift and McDowell all have entries. Only the Garrett Braves are newcomers to the loop, the other four were the charter members of the league.

The schedules for the remainder of the month has:

Monday, June 27, Maytown Cubs at Garrett Braves; Drift Cubs at David Redlegs; Thursday, June 30, Drift Cubs at Maytown Indians; McDowell Reds at Garrett Braves.

The league is well organized and has able officials, coaches and managers. Bill Hoffman, Drift, is president; Shelby Draughan, Garrett, vice-president; Alvin Reed, Drift, secretary; and Jones Tallent, Maytown, treasurer.

Charles Blevins, former Betsy Layne cage star who played his college freshman basketball at the University of South Carolina, will enroll at Pikeville College in September.

Up to six semester hours of credit may be earned by a student in each of Pikeville's two five-week summer terms, the second to follow immediately after the first closes July 15.

Hill Migration Studied By UK Rural Sociologist

How does a person from the Kentucky mountains who has migrated to a northern industrial center adjust to his new environment?

The answer to this and a number of other questions concerning a migrant's transition from a simple neighborhood to a complete industrial society will be sought during the next year by a University of Kentucky rural sociologist.

Dr. James S. Brown, for 18 years a student of mountain social structures, will direct the project financed by a one-year, $21,275 National Institutes of Health grant.

A native of Pike county, Brown received his bachelor's degree from Berea and his master's and Ph.D. degrees from Harvard.

Home Of Clay Is Preserved At Lexington

One of the most famous homes in America is the house in which Henry Clay lived at Lexington. Clay christened the home Ashland because of its site in a forest of majestic ash trees, some of which were used in making the finished wood interior of the house.

The visitor to Ashland will find it much like it was in Clay's time. It is operated as a park, museum and historic shrine by the Henry Clay Memorial Foundation, which inherited the premises from Nannette McDowell Bullock, a great-granddaughter of Clay. If the great statesman could return to Ashland today he would feel comfortably at home; many of the original furnishings are in use. He could eat, while seated in his accustomed chair, dinner served on the family dining room table, off the china he purchased in France. After dinner, he could retire with his guests to the parlor and be seated on the same ashwood chairs that graced the room when he resided there.

Later, he could play chess on the chess board given him in France. When he was ready to retire he could put on his old dressing gown and sleep under a quilt made by Whig ladies of Philadelphia when he was a presidential candidate. The window draperies were purchased in France by Clay when he was preparing the War of 1812 peace treaty.

The architect of this noble home was Benjamin Latrobe, who helped George Washington in the planning of the capital. The park or lawn and the walks were laid out by L'Enfant, famous French landscape architect.

One of the most beautiful rooms in the house is the library, paneled in light and dark walnut. The house's fireplaces and mantels were imported from Italy—no two alike. The mantel in the parlor is carved of carrara marble, the delicate figures representing the four seasons. Other furnishings and relics include portraits by Jouett, Frazer and Irwin; marble bust of Clay by Joel T. Hart; one of a pair of French sofas brought from France by Clay; his deer skin trunk; coat worn by Clay when he signed the Treaty of Ghent; his hat box, and a display chest of other Clay articles.

Nicholasville Animal Forest Is Unique Zoo

The best thing that could happen to parents with animal-loving children is the Bird and Animal Forest on US 27 near Nicholasville.

What do you encounter in the big-city zoos? Smelly cages, junior sticking his finger in the rattlesnake cage, elephants blowing their unwanted peanuts in your face and gorillas that haven't had their yearly baths in years. Well, you say, what about the Bird and Animal Forest? Are they using Brand X soap or something to keep their animals clean?

Not exactly, but the zoological playground 18 miles south of Lexington is one of the cleanest, coolest and most pleasant wildlife showcases you can visit. Located on gently rolling shaded hills the forest contains only tame animals that adults and children can feed and play with.

Many blue and gold Macaws from South America roam the forest unopposed all summer. Visitors are provided with animal food so the buffalo, elk, aoudads, guanacos, llamas and kangaroos can be hand fed. Youngsters are delighted by a special Children's Zoo in which they find tame animals to pet and play with. Baby Austrian lambs, German fawns and pigs eagerly feed from bottles held by the children, and completely free birds and animals wander among the young visitors.

Adults are intrigued by the nationally famous collection of rare and beautiful birds from South America, China, Australia and Europe. The Zoo Houses more than 125 different kinds of brightly plumaged birds. Trails lead through 35 acres of untouched woodland to an unsurpassed view from the 300-foot high palisades of the Kentucky River.

The Bird and Animal Forest is open daily during summer months.

Notice

On 10th day, June, 1960, Kentucky Power Company filed with the Public Service Commission of Kentucky, an Application (1) for a Certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity authorizing it to construct a 235,000 KW Generating Plant on the Big Sandy River in Lawrence County and to construct transmission and substation facilities to connect said Generating Plant to the present transmission system of the Company and of Appalachian Power Company, (2) for authorization for the issue of notes and (3) for authorization to modify the forms of fuel clauses.

The Application, which is available for inspection at the office of The Public Service Commission of Kentucky, at Frankfort, Kentucky, contains a description of the Plant and other facilities for which a certificate is desired as set forth in (1) above, together with approximate cost and other appurtenant data.

In connection with (2) above, the Application requests authorization to issue notes to, and borrow up to $400,000,000 from, four banks, the proceeds of which borrowing would be used to cover part of the cost of the construction hereinbefore referred to and partly to repay presently outstanding notes. A copy of the agreement with the banks has been attached as an exhibit to the Application.

In connection with (3) above, the Application contains the proposed revisions in the fuel clauses of the Company, which revisions are requested because of the change in the Company's source of power which will result from the construction of the aforementioned plant. The revised fuel clauses are in two forms, one for Tariffs DS, GS, MW, CL, SP-17 and SP-18, and one for Tariffs LP, CPO, LCP, IP, PSH, CP and GSO. Under the proposed revisions, beginning with the sixth month after the aforementioned plant goes into service, the fuel cost in effect during the fourth month of said plant's full scale operation will be treated as the base for fuel costs and, therefore, any variations in rates will be based on the cost of fuel at said plant instead of on the weighted average cost of fuel of the Company's present supplier of power.

The revisions of the fuel clauses will not of themselves result in a change in any rate. Changes in rates will occur only if the cost of fuel is greater or less by specified amounts than the specified base fuel costs. The precise text of the proposed revisions in addition to being incorporated in Exhibits to the Application is also on file at each of the offices of the Company.

The Public Service Commission of Kentucky has set this matter for public hearing on 7th day, July, 1960, at 9:00 a.m. EST, at the Commission's offices in Frankfort, Kentucky.

HELEN SUE COLLINS

Jack Wicker, Wayland high school senior, was named valedictorian of the graduating class this year. Miss Eva Ring and Miss Helen Sue Collins were named co-salutatorians.

Mr. Wicker has maintained an "A" average through his entire school life, was a Beta Club member for three years and edited "The Waylander." He received the commerce and history awards and a cash award given by the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club. He will attend Morehead State College.

Miss Ring, who delivered the first salutatory speech, was vice-president of the senior class, co-editor of "The Waylander." She received typing and science awards.

Miss Collins has an outstanding record. She was class treasurer, was voted the "most dependable" by the class. She received a science award.

"experts." Now, if our television people would solicit Patterson for advertisements as much as they did Johansson, Floyd could clear up the impression that he cannot say: "Dis razor gibes yood shaves."

The way the "experts" pick winners is much the same method by which baseball winners are picked. The "experts" look at the previous year's winners and generally put the same teams to be repeaters.

One more note about boxing. It is a fascinating, cruel game, much like the gladiators in the Roman arena during the time of Christ. It's the taste for thrills, morbid lust for the cracking of bones and the spill of blood, the sharp tingle of death freelancing about. The fourth century B.C. Romans, as Americans do now, kept statistics on gladiators, chariot drivers; idolized them as we do boxers, baseball players, and others. The saddest thing about the history of the Roman Empire was in their extreme pre-occupation with professional sports. While the "civilized" Romans were engrossed in their "stables" of gladiators and sports excitement, the barbarians, caring only for plunder, swept from Southern Europe and conquered the decadent Roman empire.

Baseball has made its 1960 pony debut in the Buckingham area when the Jack's Creek Cardinals edged the Buckingham Redlegs, 2-0, in a Pony League contest.

Lads taking part in the contest were, on the Jack's Creek team from Bevinville, Raymond Hall, Eulis J. Waddles, Darrell Stone, Johnny R. Rainey, Tommy D. Rainey, Bobby Yates, Ronney Donnil, Ronney Johnson, and Garry Faines.

Representing the Buckingham Redlegs were Verlin Hall, Randall Ward, Homer Ward, Donney Harris, Russ Harris, Hobert L. Hall, Johnny Harris, Jeff Ward and Henry Osborn.

I wonder if you couldn't do this...

Baseball is an expensive game and that constitutes the largest roadblock in the way of playing the game. Why not do this?

Use a sponge or tennis ball? They're inexpensive and the boys who are afraid of the "hard ball" will take part in the "soft" ball version of baseball.

The only things that would be necessary to do would be to shorten the regulation pitching distance. Since the sponge ball or tennis ball would be lighter, it would be harder to throw and the distance would justifiably be shortened.

Then, too, a team wouldn't need the slickly-manicured field. Grounders, while a fielder wouldn't fear being harmed, would be tedious to handle because of the ball's over-tendency to bounce.

Just a suggestion...

Ancient Animals Lived And Died At Big Bone Lick

Sulphur springs and salt formations in a valley near Covington, Ky., attracted herds of mastodons and other gigantic animals thousands of years ago.

Hundreds of these creatures mired in the soft soil and their bones were preserved through millenniums. In our era the spot became known as Big Bone Lick.

The place apparently was a neutral hunting ground for Indians who came from as far north as Lake Erie, not to make war but to kill the deer, buffalo, and other game that habitually visited the salt lick in abundance. Many French explorers, attempting to claim the Ohio Valley for France, stopped here. And here, Mary Ingls, the first white woman to set foot in Kentucky, escaped from her Indian captors in 1756.

Several parties of American explorers visited the salt lick and used the mastodon ribs for tent poles and the vertebrae for seats. They carried away mastodon teeth weighing 10 pounds each, tusks 11 feet long and five-foot thigh bones.

In 1805 Thomas Jefferson, as an official of the American Philosophical Society, had a party gather one of the most complete collections ever taken from the lick, but an ignorant servant had the bones ground into fertilizer. All the bones are now gone.

Just before the Civil War, Big Bone Lick became a fashionable watering place for young ladies who had gone into declines and for men and women who ate and drank too much and exercised too little. A hotel arose to accommodate those who But the spa disappeared as other

NOW THAT VACATION SEASON is in full swing, I think it's appropriate for us to salute one who has done much to help us maintain and preserve some of our finest and most scenic vacation spots. He's Smokey the Bear, the cartoon character who cautions us about carelessness with fire in our forests and woods. Smokey has probably impressed more people with the need for outdoor fire-safety than anyone else. Let's all take his good advice this summer.

Thanks, for being careful!

ONLY YOU CAN PREVENT FOREST FIRES!

P. S. While on the subject of safety, I'd like to remind you to be careful over the long Fourth of July weekend coming up soon. Watch the traffic and don't take chances if you go swimming or boating. Have a happy Fourth but a safe one.

THIS IS STATION C-O-W! I've never seen a talking cow, but recently I heard of one that almost does. It's a "broadcasting" cow used by University of Nebraska scientists to study the digestive processes in cattle. A tiny transistor radio in the cow's stomach transmits information which ultimately will be used to help improve cattle feeding. Transistors, developed by the Bell Laboratories, permitted construction of a radio small enough for the cow to swallow without injury. Research of the kind which produced transistors is continuous in the telephone industry and its benefits always come back to each of us—directly or indirectly.

HEARD A MAN the other day bragging how he made an 800-mile trip in his little economy car for only $15. I agree that's pretty good, but I think this is even better. Tidbits Of Kentucky Folklore

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.

Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

One of the first essays I ever wrote for this column dealt with wild greens and their merits as food and poetry. Recent experiences have brought back many memories of my own boyhood gathering of greens and doing my share—a very big one—of eating them. The long, cold winter of 1959-60 shut off many people from their normal supply of outdoor things. In hundreds of cornfields around Bowling Green turnips have come up as volunteers year after year until they could almost be regarded as actually wild again. Before the hard winter closed down, there were many turnip tops visible just about everywhere I went on my bird walks. I suppose that a deep covering of snow must have been good for these garden wanderers, for, within a week after the snowbanks had gone, I suddenly discovered that few of my wild turnips were to be seen: fresh cuts across the pithy turnips themselves showed what had happened: some family was enjoying turnips greens and hog's jowl. A very short time later the wild greens along my line of march showed similar inroads by hungry people, for wild greens, it seems, long ago took the place of sulphur and molasses for most people when they needed to thin down their blood after it had had a whole winter of thickening. When, and if, I should pass a spring season without seeing signs of the gathering of wild greens, I would feel that sophisticated had overcome natural appetites and good old folk traditions.

There is something very wholesome and appealing about traditional foods. To grow ashamed of these local foods that have been found good through generations of time, my, what a tragedy! Fortunately, certain elements in our culture refuse to give up their folkly foods. Imagine a German, no matter how long he and his ancestors have lived here, who would not know about or care for the foods that were acceptable in pioneer times back in Pennsylvania, for example. And imagine an Italian, no matter of what generation, who did not have a soft spot in his heart for genuine Italian foods! Just who discovered that the miscellaneous herbarium that we call wild greens would be great food nobody knows for sure; probably the custom of gathering these plants had undergone many changes through the years since the vitamin-deficient Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock and needed, above all else, some wild greens or their equivalent.

Just as we have too often delegated our play to the other fellow and have felt that we have done enough when we buy a ticket to see him perform, we have too often given the food canners or bakers or meat packers a huge proportion of our knowledge and skill and have forthwith forgotten how much we used to know. I use "we" to mean several generations of people who have, little by little, surrendered their native skills. Of course, the complexity of modern life is to blame for much of this, and there is no reason why we should sit down and sigh for early days. But with more leisure and with a growing list of strong retired people who sometimes find it hard to twiddle their thumbs, why not resurrect some of the skills and find a means of enjoying yourselves? One old man whom I know built out in his city backyard a small version of a smokehouse and has bought and cured quite a few country hams, enough for the use of his family and a few to sell to epicures, who have told me of the exquisiteness of the old man's work. The tears in his eyes may be of several kinds: acrid smoke, of course causes many tears, but how would you cure meat without this tribute to the gods of plenty? Tears of joy at being able to do something useful are not to be sneezed at, either. "I may not be able to life as much as I used to when I was the strongest boy at log-rollings and barn-raising; I may not be able to take my turn at a cradle and work down the best fellows at wheat harvest; I may not be able to stand up high on the growing log tobacco barn or house and 'carry my corner,' or skillfully make the rafters for the barn or house; but I grannies, I can still cure (pronounced cyore) hams as well as anybody."

More Revenue Is Needed Now For Libraries

Frankfort, Ky., June 21—Libraries will be established in "practically every county" under plans of the State Library Extension Division, Director Margaret Willis said today.

The Division, whose appropriation has been doubled under the state's new revenue program, including the sales tax, expects to expand its library threefold in the next eight years.

The Division and its 30,000-volume library operate from the old Berry mansion in West Frankfort. It has a staff of 18 persons. The library also circulates phonograph records, mostly classical and children's music.

The division also acts as a go-between the Library of Congress in Washington and county libraries.

"For all practical purposes, the Library Extension Division now functions as a State Library," Miss Willis said. She is seeking a larger building and a bigger collection of reference and loan material.

Libraries already have been established in 34 counties by joint effort of the division and the counties. Requests for aid to establish more libraries come in faster than they can be handled.

Libraries are set up after creation of a library region, comprising 100,000 persons or five counties.

Library Extension assists in setting up the library in each county. Of the seven regions now in existence, 34 of the 36 counties in those regions have libraries.

Besides Library Extension books, each county library has a core of books of its own. Library Extension, however, purchases and catalogs most books for the counties.

Bookmobiles, which circulate books in the rural regions around each county library, perhaps are the best known feature of Library Extension service.

The 96 bookmobiles circulated 3,500,000 books last year. Twenty-three new bookmobiles will be purchased in the next two years.

The appropriation to Library Extension for the next two years is $1,393,125, Miss Willis said all the additional money will be spent for the counties.

The Eastern Kentucky regional library is located at Prestonsburg.

TUITION CUT
Tuition fees at three state and 10 area vocational schools will be reduced July 1. Fred A. Martin, supervisor of trade and industrial education in the State Department of Education, said fees will be cut from $30 to $15 a month for full-time students over 21. He said the reduction was made possible by the state's new revenue program, including the sales tax.

As a boy, Ulysses S. Grant attended the Rand and Richardson School at Maysville for one year.

Our Historic Heritage

A Pictorial Review of East Kentucky

(No. 97 in a Series)

MOSES STEPP (1735-1855), REVOLUTIONARY WAR SOLDIER

Moses Stepp, veteran of the South Carolina Revolutionary forces, was probably the oldest man ever to live in the state of Kentucky. The stone erected at his grave at the time of death and still standing near the one pictured above, reads: "In memory of M. Stepp. Died Dec. 15th, 1855. Age 120 years."

Stepp was captured by the Indians during the Revolution and condemned to torture but escaped. He wandered northward about 1806, found his way to the Meadows of Licking where he planned to settle. Finding game depleted in that section he traveled into the Big Sandy, went up Johns Creek and finally located on Wolf Creek in the present Martin county. He is the ancestor of thousands of Eastern Kentuckians, many of them living in Floyd county.
