4. Establishment of a Perry County Chapter Alumni Association.

added to the water bill it will amount to approximately 100 per cent of the present bill, not 90 per cent as figured in 1956. This is due to increased construction costs.

3. There are approximately 1,200 water consumers in the city, Mayor Leslie noted. Distribution of the project cost would amount roughly to $50 a year for each consumer for a 10 to 15 year period. This, he agreed, was not a very reliable figure, since water consumption by each user varies.

4. Mayor Leslie and Councilman Watt Hale objected to putting the cost of the project on the water bill. City Attorney Joe Hobson objected to paying the cost on a front-footage of real estate as this would throw the burden on holders of land.

Councilman W. H. May urged immediate action on the construction of the sewage system.

"This town needs sewers," May said. "We can talk it to death. Let's turn the financing over to people who know financing and let them figure out the easiest way to pay it. . . . Let's not beat our gums for years on this thing."

Dr. George P. Archer also urged immediate action. "There is no way to get sewers for nothing," he added. "I think the question is, does this Council want sewers or not. If you do, turn the matter over for financing."

Lacy said the preparation of final plans for the city would require a year of study and work.

Make This Study, First

The Kellogg Foundation has made available to Kentucky $754,000 to finance a study of conditions in several Eastern Kentucky counties, including Floyd, and, presumably, to find a cure for what ails the area.

Nobody, least of all this newspaper, is tossing any part of that money back into the donor's face. There are good intentions back of that gift, and certainly the study will do no harm.

It may materially help, since it is more than a mere study and proposes a real program of development.

What this newspaper would like to see done without delay is an immediate, thorough survey of Eastern Kentucky's need for higher educational institutions. We are willing to rest our case on what such a study would show. The need for one or more colleges cries too loudly to be mistaken.

Trained minds, educated women and men with a knowledge of and a desire for the finer things of life will get things done. Even now, at Berea College and the University of Kentucky and other higher-level educational institutions of the state young Eastern Kentuckians are moving seriously and thoughtfully toward solutions of the problems and ills which plague, even threaten to throttle, their native area.

These and others see more clearly now what the area needs, and, equally important, they have learned something of how to meet those needs. The death of ambition, of initiative and the will to face up to the ancient enemies of isolation and economic despond, will mean the death of Eastern Kentucky. Only young, educated minds with youthful dreams and ambitions will prevent that tragedy.

As the situation now is, this area sends to college only a small percentage of its high school graduates. The cost of higher education, far away from home, is too great. With no jobs at home, these youngsters forget their dreams and turn to the armed forces or to jobs in other states for a living.

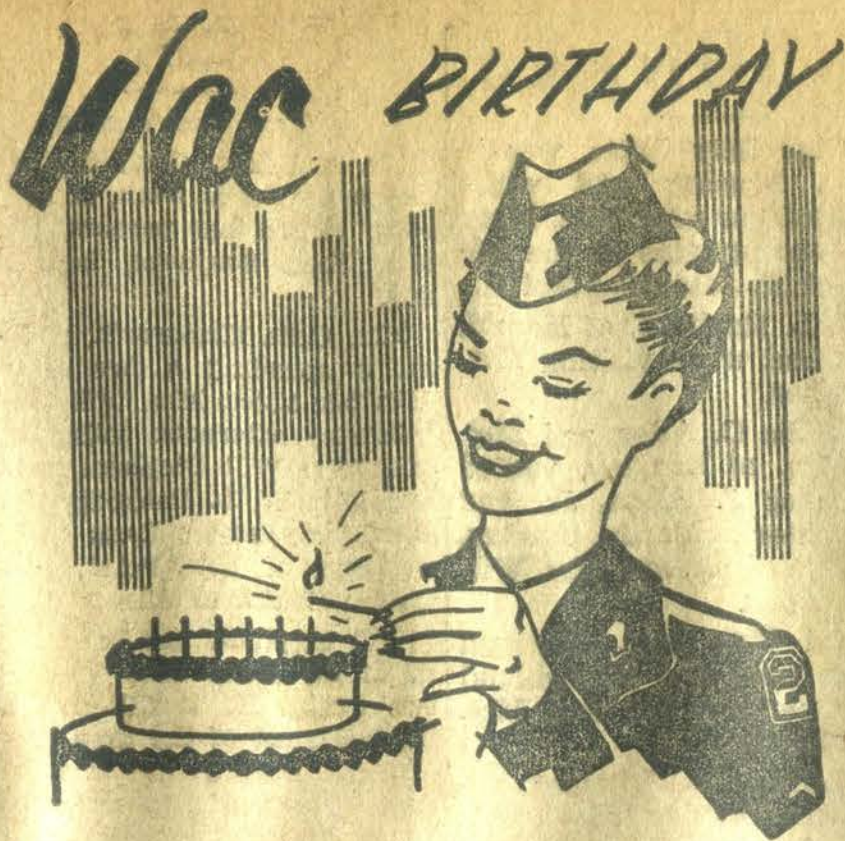

THE LICKING VALLEY COURIER at West Liberty said recently in an editorial:

...What the Mountains need more than any one thing is a four-year academic college with five or six dormitories available at $350 a year. . . at a rate Mountain boys and girls can afford to pay. . . What does it mean to a young boy or girl, however many colleges or universities the state has, if they can't afford to go to them??

THE COURIER is on sound ground. That is a basic need, and till it is filled Kentucky will be failing to do for this depressed area what needs to be done.

THE FLOYD COUNTY TIMES sincerely hopes the very first phase of this new study, or any other already planned, will include a survey of the need for higher education to reach the thousands who under present conditions are destined never to go beyond high school.

A two-year extension of the University of Kentucky has been sought here. That will help, and it is help that should be offered. But the problem is bigger than the stop-gap; it must be met, head-on, some day with a major educational effort such as a full-fledged four-year college.

Members of the United States Army Women's Army Corps stationed at Army installations throughout the world will celebrate the 18th Anniversary of their Corps on 14 May 1960. This select group of American women serve in a variety of important and interesting career fields of their choice.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A GREAT TEACHER EDITOR, The Times: In the March 24 issue of The Times there appeared an article by an influential member of Congress, House Speaker Sam Rayburn. The reason I wanted to mention this article is that it concerns my great-uncle, my grandmother's brother, Prof. William L. Mayo. In many respects Uncle "Bee" was an outstanding educator. Mother used to have a picture showing the remains of his burned college, and she always liked to talk about what a great teacher he was. He was an inspiration to his pupils, imparting to them a zeal to do something great. I was not old enough, or I would have been sent to his school at Commerce, Texas. I am sure, if I had gone, I would not have graduated in alcoholism!

If we could have teachers of his type and caliber in the schoolrooms of today there would be less teenage delinquency and more matured wisdom; less emphasis on how to drive a car correctly, but more concern on how we should steer ourselves in the right conduct along life's highway. What we need today is more Uncle Bees.

GLENN M. CLARKE Prestonsburg, Ky.

(Continued from Page One) even more important in another essential phase of the company's operations: the storage of natural gas. "In the last 12 years, more than 300 depleted wells have been converted into storage wells," he said. "Today, United Fuel and affiliates have a storage capacity of 144 billion cubic feet of gas underground in West Virginia and Kentucky. The entire storage investment amounts to more than $71,000,000."

A large percentage of the stored gas is removed from storage in the winter months to meet heating demands. During summer periods, the storage pools are re-filled with southeast gas.

Seven exploratory wells are included in the 102 total for 1960. These differ from regular production wells in that they are drilled on unproved acreage in areas farther removed from known production.

"With our exploratory wells, we hope to discover new gas reserves in our own backyard," said Mr. Partridge. "We think it would offset the cost of more expensive gas from the southwest and ultimately result in lower gas bills for our customers."

Four of the exploratory wells will be drilled beyond the average 3,700-foot depth. They will penetrate into geological formations located more than 7,000 feet underground.

Mr. Partridge said exploratory wells are much more expensive than production wells. Average cost of a regular production well is about $44,000, while an average exploratory well costs about $167,000.

Exact locations of the wells will be determined at intervals during the year.

It admitted there is varied opinion as to the legality of the fiscal court's annual appropriation of $500 to the Betsy Layne fire department, but pointed out that volunteer firemen attached to the department are not readily available for duty in the event of a fire and urged the fiscal court in approving an appropriation to require fire department personnel to be readily available. "The present system of operation," the report concluded, "is wholly ineffective and a waste of the taxpayers' money, but it could be corrected by the application of good judgment on the part of the fiscal court."

Early portions of the report dealt with the county's crime. The jury quizzed about 100 witnesses and voted 50 indictments. Of the difficulties encountered in procuring information it wrote in the final report to Judge Hill:

"This number of true bills is low for Floyd county with a population of approximately 55,000 persons. This is not prima facie evidence, however, of a low crime rate. Rather, it is evidence of public apathy. To substantiate this, it is only necessary to point out that no witness, with three exceptions of law enforcement officers, appeared before the grand jury to prefer charges unless he was angry at somebody or possessed of some motive other than cooperation in law enforcement. It reminds us of the old adage, 'When thieves fall out honest men prosper.' We might paraphrase this a bit to say that 'When citizens fall out the grand jury can indict law-breakers.'"

"This situation," the report continued, "is in our judgment not only regrettable but possessed of portents of future civic and social evil. We doubt that the mass of people approve of lax law enforcement but we find little evidence that they are much concerned. One Floyd county business man commented in a defensive attitude while being questioned that he had no concern with law enforcement."

of the large mines nearly one-half the miners of Eastern Kentucky were put out of work, making the region a depressed area. If the Federal Bureau of Mines should close down the small mines, it would throw thousands of miners out of work and hurt their families and every business in Eastern Kentucky.

The provisions favoring the small mines were as follows:

1. A provision requiring the Director of the Bureau of Mines to conduct hearings and develop a new code for small mines, leaving out the expensive and unnecessary sections applicable to big mines.
2. A provision that complaints of federal mine inspectors shall be heard in the county in which the mine is situated, instead of in Washington or in other distant cities.
3. A provision that if the mine should be closed by a federal inspector because of imminent danger, the small mine owners can request an inspection by a state inspector, and if there is disagreement by the two inspectors, the conflict is to be resolved by an independent inspector, appointed by the district judge of the federal court.
4. A provision that the small mine owners can appeal directly from a finding by a federal inspector, of unsafe condition other than imminent danger, without waiting until the mine has been closed.

REV. C. O. MONTGOMERY
The Auxier Methodist church will hold a revival beginning May 9 and continuing through May 19, it was announced this week by Rev. M. C. Moyer, pastor, Rev. C. O. Montgomery, pastor of the Maytown Methodist church, is the revivalist scheduled to be in charge. Services begin at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend, Moyer said.

Dr. Melvin V. Wicker, whose medical practice at Wayland and vicinity has extended over 49 years, was honored by his family with a dinner, April 23, marking his 75th birthday.
The veteran, who began his practice riding horseback over country roads in the days before the railroad reached into his section of the county, was born April 25, 1885, the son of William and Mildred Davis Wicker, of Lackey. Next to the eldest of 11 children, he early decided on a medical career. After attending the local schools, he attended boarding school in Prestonsburg and became a teacher. Teaching in his home district, working with drillers exploring for oil, enlarging pictures, doing all sorts of odd jobs, he earned money for his medical training.

Dr. Wicker was graduated from the University of Louisville in 1910, two years after his marriage to Miss Pearl Wicker. They will celebrate their Golden Wedding anniversary, Sept. 22, this year. They have four daughters, Irma Haney, Shirley Laughlin, Christine Stewart and Imalee Spillman, and 16 grandchildren and 7 great-grandchildren.
Devoted as he is to his family, the kindly doctor has always been concerned about the welfare of other relatives and his friends. He has helped many young people to attend school and has contributed to the building of almost every church for miles around his home. He is a member of the Glo Church of Christ, a master Mason, a member of the Scottish Rite and of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. A few years ago, he was named Floyd County's Grandfather of the Year, and later was honored as a member of the Floyd County Hall of Fame. He is a past member of J. W. Alley Masonic lodge at Wayland, a past president of the Floyd County Medical Society, was treasurer of the Masonic lodge at Wayland 28 years, is a former member of the Floyd County Board of Education and is an ex-mayor of Wayland.
As a general practitioner, Dr. Wicker has ridden horseback, by railway gasoline car and later by auto thousands of miles in his nearly 50 years of medical work. During that time he has delivered more than 3,000 babies.
Mrs. Wicker and his four daughters were hostesses at the birthday dinner given in his honor. His guests for the evening were Mr. and Mrs.

Sam M. Holcomb, 18, of Neon, and his brother, a juvenile, were jailed here by state police on a charge of stealing the auto of Keen Robinette at Allen, Tuesday afternoon. The Robinette car was found in Letcher county and a Letcher car which also had been stolen was found on the Bull Creek road leading to Allen.
State Trooper Allen arrested Wiljus Stone at the head of Jack's Creek last week and confiscated 50 cases of beer from his truck.

Surviving the Bowling child are her parents, Elige Bowling, Jr., and Clara Ellen Bowling, two brothers, Oliver and Joe David, and three sisters, Jane Evelyn, Dimple and Debbie Lee. The funeral was held Wednesday morning from Fellowship Baptist Church at Tom's Creek, the Revs. Leven Burchett and Leo Adkins officiating. Burial was made in the Goble cemetery on Calif. Creek.
Rites for both victims were under the direction of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

HELP!
The postal rates climb and climb, and the Postmaster General, the President and almost everybody else take turns telling the dear public why we must pay more. The deficit is something awful, they say, so whack the guy who has letters to write or newspapers to mail, and so on.

Yet a flood of political propaganda is mailed, free as the wind, under Congressional franking privileges; the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, which rarely serves any useful purpose, bulges the mail-sacks under the same gracious privilege, and advertising matter by the ton goes out under cheap postal rates.

While we're at it, we also rise to point to the added expense incurred by the printing of all those special stamps which apparently are issued at the rate of a new one a month. Latest of these is a stamp memorializing Masaryk of Czecho-Slovakia. A great patriot was Masaryk of Czecho-Slovakia. But what about us poor patriots of the U. S. A.?

Gripe, gripe, I do not!

SYMPTOMS AND THE CURE
When you have a fever, your mind wanders. You start from your chair or bed, then as quickly stop. You have a feeling that things are passing you up, that you're missing something that can never be captured again. You would like to have your hands in cool water, to feel the wind whipping across your face. You're in a fix, verily.
And the only cure for this ailment is simply take off and go fishin'...

Farm Work Is Barred To Schoolchildren

Farmers who are hiring workers for spring planting and harvesting were reminded today that Federal law prohibits children under 16 from working on farms during school hours.

"The place for children is in the classroom and not in the fields," said Regional Director Pat Meloan, of the U. S. Labor Department's Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions, the agency which enforces the Federal child-labor law.

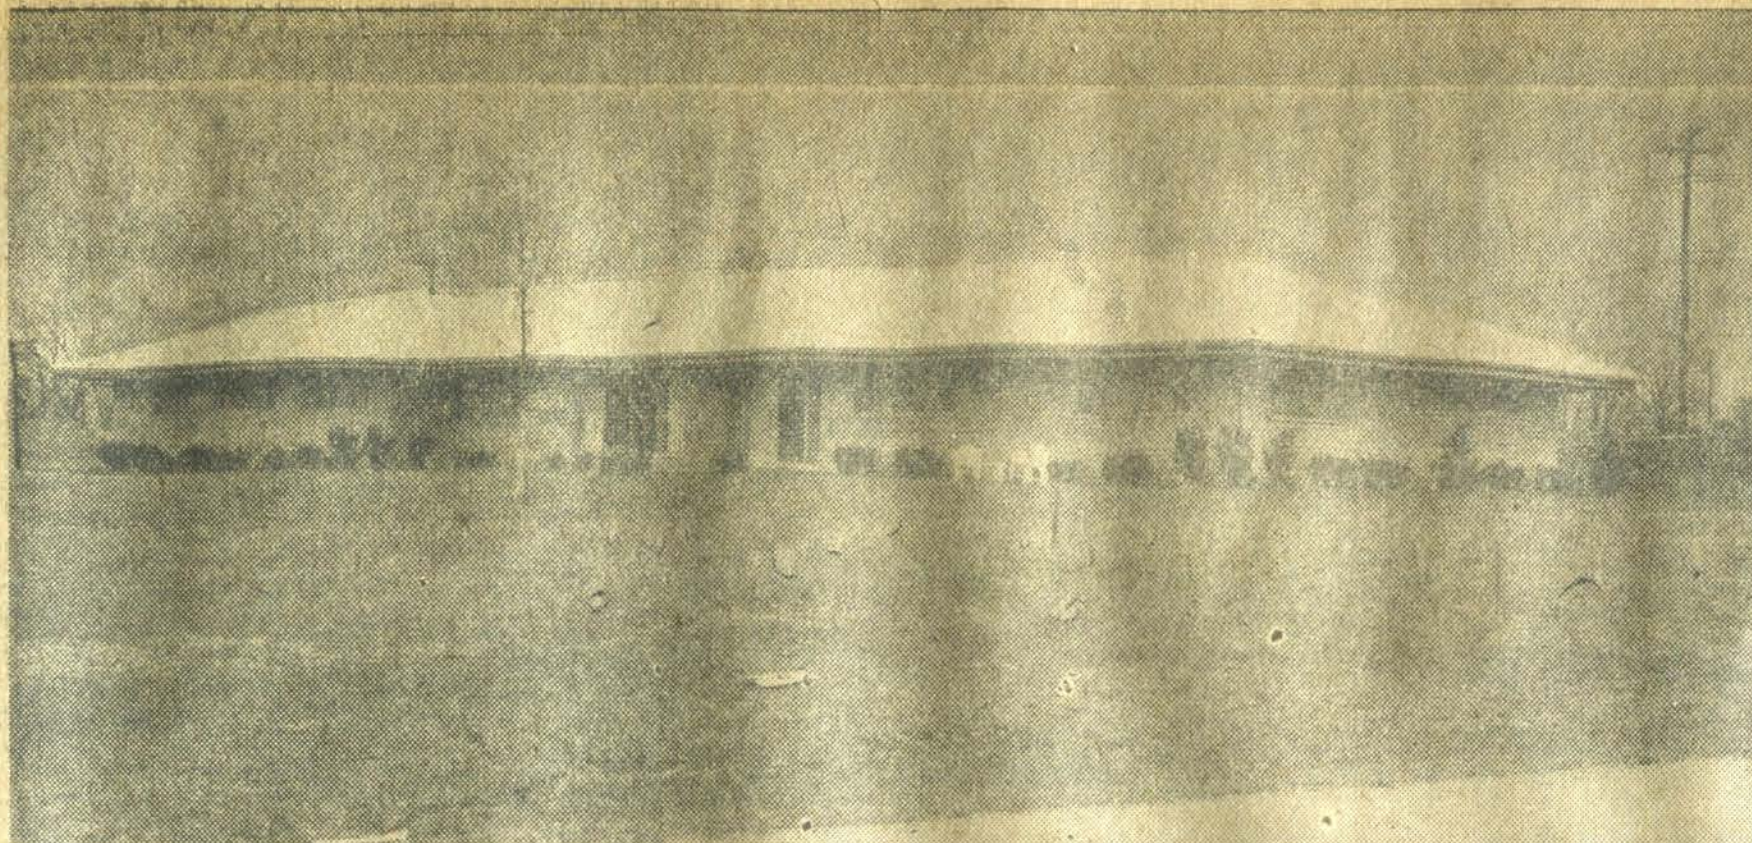

Meloan added that children of any age may do farm work before or after school hours, on week-ends, or on holidays. He stated, too, that farm children working exclusively for their parents or guardians are exempt from the Federal child-labor law.

"I also want to point out that the child-labor provisions apply equally to local children and to migrants," Mr. Meloan said. "However, migrant children under 16 may be employed in the spring if the school they last attended is closed for the summer, even though schools may still be open in the area where they have moved to work."

The Regional Director said that the farmer can best protect himself from unintentional violation of the law by requiring from each young person he employs during school hours, an age certificate showing he is at least 16.

GRIFFITH IN TRAINING

Army Pvt. Arnold Griffith, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Griffith, of Garrett, recently completed eight weeks of advanced individual training with the 2nd Armored Division at Fort Hood, Texas. Griffith entered the Army in November, 1959. He attended Maytown high school.

The Rex Martin home at 742 Brooks Hill Drive in Lexington is low and long—160 feet across the front. It is on a two-acre corner lot, with a road curving past for 490 feet. The creamy-gray stone of the exterior is set off by shutters in a bright coral. The roof is of concrete tile hauled up from Sarasota, Fla. It weighs some 60 tons and took a month to install. Martin's office has a separate entrance.

Rex Martin's Lexington Home
To Be Among Top Attractions
During Open House in Ky. Tour

One of the top attractions in Lexington's coming Open House in Kentucky tour, May 20, 21 and 22, will be the home of former Floyd countian Rex Martin.

Martin, who is a native of the Drift section of the county and who formerly resided in Prestonsburg, has built in Lansdowne Estates, on Brooks Hill Drive, Lexington, a home that is worth seeing. The creamy-gray stone residence is 160 feet across the front, appearing almost to stretch completely across the two-acre corner lot on which it was built. It has five bedrooms and five baths, and excluding the full basement, has 5,000 square feet of floor space.

Martin, himself a builder of Lexington homes for the last nine years, has spent almost two years on this lavishly planned suburban home. He says his own house was designed "to be as modern or contemporary as possible without being too radical for Lexington's type of architecture." Before he went into business he attended Transylvania in Lexington.

This is a big house, in every respect—one of its five bathrooms is bedroom size, luxuriously furnished, and the roof is of concrete tile, bought in Sarasota, Fla., and weighing some 60 tons. The 160 feet of the home's length includes a double garage and Mr. Martin's spacious office with its private entrance.

RIVER CLEAN-UP

Kentucky's contribution to cleaning the Ohio River of sewage and industrial wastes has been praised by the commission director of the eight-state Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Compact. A commission report says since 1952 Kentucky cities and towns along the river have constructed a total of 49 sewage treatment plants at a cost of $52,000,000, including Louisville's 6½ million dollar plant.

DEPUTY BANKING CHIEF NAMED

A veteran state bank examiner will come out of retirement to serve as temporary deputy commissioner of the Department of Banking until August 31. Commissioner H. A. Rogers said Francis E. Bradley, of Scottsville, had agreed to serve while Rogers concentrates his attention on the new small loan act and banking provisions of the new Uniform Commercial Code.

Heart Fund Drive
Raises $1,284.77,
State Chairman Notes

A total of $1,284.77 was contributed to the 1960 Heart Fund drive by Floyd county residents during February, according to State Campaign Chairman William H. Kendall, Louisville, president of the L. & N. Railroad.

Of that amount, Mr. Kendall said, $854.05 was reported by Mrs. Cora S. McHone, of Wheelwright, and the remaining $430.72 by Mrs. Mary Jane Harkins, of Prestonsburg.

Mrs. McHone and Mrs. Harkins were co-chairmen of the county drive. The former has been a leader of the annual drive for six years and the latter for two years.

Although the final results of the statewide campaign will not be definitely known until the end of the fiscal year on June 30, Mr. Kendall said that "this year's grand total will exceed the total for 1959 by a comfortable margin, which is truly remarkable in view of the unfavorable weather conditions which existed throughout most of Kentucky during the drive period."

The 1960 total "will be well above the $335,000 mark," Mr. Kendall reported. The 1959 total was a little over $328,000.

The state chairman said he wanted to express the sincere appreciation of the Kentucky Heart Association to Mrs. McHone and Mrs. Harkins "for their fine leadership," and to the citizens of Floyd county "for their generous response to the appeal for funds to fight our nation's number one killer and crippling, heart disease."

Kentucky was a land of horse breeding farms as far back as 1790, the earliest being Keeneland Stud near Lexington.

McCracken Boy Named 4-H Corn Champion; Yield Was 92.6 Bu.

The state 4-H Club organization said this week that Billy Harper, 15, Paducah, Route 1 (McCracken County) is the 1959 state 4-H Club corn-growing champion.

The title carries with it a trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago next November, and a state medal, says George Corder, state 4-H Club chairman.

Harper was district champion previously in tractor driving and maintenance, dairying, farm labor and electricity, and champion in McCracken county individual demonstration work. He has been in 4-H Club work six years. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Harper.

The youngster grew 50 acres of corn on his parents' farm in 1959, got an average yield of 92.6 bushels an acre and realized a gross of $2,048.47 on the crop; half this figure included Harper's own labor. Three hybrid cobs were used in the crop and three separate fertilizer mixtures. In addition, value of anhydrous ammonia as a side-dressing was checked on two plots. The crop was grown on creek-bottom land, seeded with a two-row planter, cultivated twice and harvested with a one-row mounted picker. The corn will be fed to farm livestock.

WILLIAMSON FAMILY

Joseph W. Alley, Prichard, W. Va., writes for information on the Williamson family of Eastern Kentucky.

"One Alden or Aulden Williamson came from Virginia about 1790 or near that date and settled on Little Palm Creek. I think that creek is near East Point.

"Could I get some one there to search the marriage records for me? I wouldn't be interested in marriages later than 1900. I am especially interested in those of 1800 to 1850. I would want to know the couple's name, where they were born, age at marriage, date of marriage, who their parents were if given in the record, and where they lived at time of marriage.

"I am especially interested in Alden's sons, who were Alden, Jr., James, Hiram, William, Elijah, Alie and Solomon Williamson. Their mother's name was Elizabeth Jackson Williamson."

Floyd Benjamin Layne, 2336 San Marco Drive, Los Angeles 28, Calif., writes on the Layne family in America and especially on the Eastern Kentucky branch. He is the author of "Layne Genealogy," issued a few years ago.

"Joseph Layne, Avondale, Arizona, has sent to us a clipping of The Floyd County Times. Under Historical Notes you mention a William Layne or Layne as being father of James Shannon Layne. In the maker, and Hannah Garvin. William Laines or Laynes appear. We have eighteen photostats of wills, etc. of Amherst county, Va., records. One William Layne is 'William Layne, waterman.' Another is 'William Layne, wagon-maker.' There is also a William Layne who married Hannah Garvin.

"The way we have it now, William Layne married Hannah Garvin. They were parents of William Layne, wagon-maker, who appears many times in Amherst county records. He mentions his grandson, Middleton, in his will. Middleton Layne we have as brother of James Shannon Layne. Also we have William Henry Layne as brother of James Shannon Layne. The William Layne, waterman, we believe to be of a different family.

"Enclosed is a family form showing relationship as we now have it." (The form lists William Layne, born about 1760, died after 1807, as a son of William Layne, wagon-maker, and Hannah Garvin. William Layne married Nancy Shannon.

Sons and daughters listed are John Layne, died 1814; Samuel Layne, married Nancy Laird; Lewis Layne; William Henry Layne; Middleton Layne, who was mentioned in the 1791 will of William Layne as a grandson; James Shannon Layne, born 1791; Mildred Layne, married Tandy Stratton; and Nancy Layne, married Thomas Johns.)

"Any help you can give us will be appreciated for we wish to have our new book as complete as possible. I believe a copy of 'Layne Genealogy,' printed in 1953, was sent you. The new issue will be about twice the size of the 1953 issue.

"The Floyd county, Kentucky, Layne family is the largest group of Laynes in existence with the possible exception of the Sequatchie Valley group around Chattanooga, Tennessee.

"We are hoping to have our new book printed in 90 days. However, it is a tremendous task, checking and proof-reading."

PVT. JONES LETTERS

Copies of the Pvt. William Jones letter columns that appeared in The Times several months ago are being made available for libraries by William B. Haines, Chief of Division, Adjutant General's Department, Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. Haines writes: "Since we have no history of Pvt. Jones' cavalry unit, per se, I plan to paste up the installments in sequence, and then reproduce ten copies or more. I will then place these in a binder and see that our historical society and some other libraries have a copy."

BUELL AND BRAGG AGAIN

In re the old legend that Gen. Carlos Buell, Union commander, and Gen. Braxton Bragg, Confederate, were brother-in-laws and met after the Battle of Perryville to discuss the day's action, is a letter from Joe Layne, 527 East Hill Drive, Avondale, Arizona.

Background of the inquiry seems to be an attempt by Layne to verify the Perryville legend. He wrote the "Here's The Answer" man, Don Lee Broadcasting Company, Hollywood, California.

The Answer Man wrote Layne: "In reference to your question I have consulted all the standard reference sources on the Civil War on the persons concerned and can find no reference to the fact that General Bragg and General Buell were related. If I do find any information on this I will be glad to let you know."

So said the Answer Man. But Dr. Hambleton Tapp, of the University of Kentucky, says he has been trying to kill the legend for years. He says Bragg and Buell were not brother-in-laws and had no post-battle conferences following the famous struggle in Kentucky.

We take Tapp's word that Bragg and Buell were not brother-in-laws and had no meeting. Thanks, however, to Mr. Layne, and The Answer Man. It was a good legend, even if untrue.

WHEELWRIGHT SITE OF TOURNAMENT

The Floyd county high school district baseball tournament will be played at the Wheelwright baseball park, May 10-12, according to an announcement Monday from the Kentucky high school Commissioner's office in Lexington.

The previous drawings, conducted by the Floyd County Coaches' Association, will stand as previously made.

Thus in the first game, Tuesday, May 10, at noon, Martin will meet McDowell, and Prestonsburg will meet the winner at noon on Wednesday. These are upper bracket games.

In the lower round, Wheelwright vies with Auxier at 3 p.m. on May 10, and Betsy Layne clashes with the victor on May 11 at 3 p.m. The finals will be played at 1:30, May 12.

Umpires previously named will officiate. They are coaches John Campbell, Jr., Gene Frasure and Ray Heinrich.

All schools having baseball teams must compete in the tournament or be suspended from the Kentucky High School Athletic Association.

Wheelwright increased its record to 6-0 Monday afternoon by knocking McDowell from the undefeated ranks with a 5-4 victory. Larry Hobbs tripled in the tying run in the sixth inning and then scored the deciding run on Major Hall's sacrifice fly. In other games this week: Betsy Layne won over Auxier, 9-8, in the first game and lost, 6-1, in the second. Martin downed the Hornets a day later by 11-1 and 1-0.

Dan Swartz, former Morehead State College basketball great and husband of Peggy McCarty, of Allen, will join the Cleveland Pipers for the 1960-61 cage season.

Swartz, who has played for the Wichita Vickers in the National Industrial Basketball League for the past six years, became a free agent two weeks ago when the Vickers disbanded.

Last season he was named the most valuable player in the league and averaged 27.5 points per game. He also was a member of the last U.S. Olympic basketball team.

Although horse racing is not our specialty, we make one prediction, come Derby Day, and usually rob the cookie jar for one small investment. However, we suggest that you take our prediction lightly and not go overboard at the mutual window.

Although Tompion is the odds-on favorite and winner of the Blue Grass Stakes last Thursday, we will be on hand to root for Bally Ache, winner of the Florida Derby.

Thus we see the finish. Bally Ache, Tompion and Venetian Way and Hillsborough may finish in the money.

If Bally Ache wins, we won't be an "I told you so"; however, if he loses, never mind the afterthoughts.

Last season, Floyd county had nine summer baseball leagues. Thus far, none has reported any pre-season activity. We wonder what is happening to baseball in the area.

Wheelwright's annual E. R. Price Invitational Golf tournament will be staged June 24-26. Paintsville's open affair is carded for July 8-10.

Speaking of historical relics, there's the story of the antique collector who passed through a Kentucky village and stopped to chat with an old man chopping wood. "Of course," admitted the old man, "it's had two new handles and three new heads."

'BALLAD OF JENNY WILEY' PREMIERE SET FOR FESTIVAL

Pikeville, Ky., May 5 (Spl.)—Seventeen young Floyd countians will have featured parts in the Pikeville College May Festival, Friday of this week.

A "modern folk song," with words by a Pikeville College student and music by another student and a Pikeville faculty member, will have its first public performance at the college's 1960 May Festival, May 6.

"The Ballad of Jenny Wiley," based on an event in the early history of Eastern Kentucky, tells of the adventures of the Big Sandy region's most famous pioneer woman. The composition will be sung by the Pikeville College Chorus, directed by the Rev. William M. Hunter, of the Pikeville music faculty, and enacted in pantomime by groups of college students.

Written by Bruce B. Brown, a Pikeville senior from Zebulon, the lyrics of the ballad were set to music by sophomore John L. Bailey, Johnstown, Ohio, and Mr. Hunter.

The production will form the first part of the May pageant in which Loretta Ball, of Pinsonfork, is to be crowned Pikeville's May queen and Ken Maynard, Myrtle, W. Va., king.

Some 300 students of the college and its affiliated teacher-training grade school will take part in the songs and dances which will make up this year's version of the May Festival, which is annually Pikeville's best-attended function.

The Floyd countians are Deanna Garrett, Lancer, and Paul R. Setser, Auxier, who will be attendants to the king and queen, respectively; Billy Ray Tussey, Water Gap, who will be herald to the court; Toby Ann Bussey, David, and Judith Dixon, West Prestonsburg, who will join in the traditional Maypole dance; Carlos Blankenship, Weeksbury; Webble Blevis, Langley; Nadine Hall, Orkney; Janelle Hall, Allen; and Chester Lafferty, Water Gap, who will appear in the Jenny Wiley scene; and seven members of the College Chorus—Nancy Collins, Wheelwright; Lillian Sue Gardner, Tram; Shirley Hatfield, Water Gap; James W. Lafferty, Jr., Prestonsburg; Richard Roberts, Wheelwright; Phyllis Ann Stewart, Hill Hat; and Ronald Terry, Wheelwright.

FLOYD MEN'S DREAM OF SILICA INDUSTRY BECOMES REALITY AS PLANT WORK BEGUN

A dream of James Vance and Joe Weddington, of Floyd county, was a step nearer reality this week as the Silica Corporation of America began construction of a $1,500,000 plant near Elkhorn City to process the huge deposit of silica which they and others acquired for development about two years ago.

Vance, formerly of Martin and now a resident of Pikeville, is called the "father" of the undertaking. It was he who discovered the great silica deposit along the crest of rugged Pine Mountain, between Kentucky and Virginia. He, Weddington and George Norvel, of Pt. Pleasant, W. Va., Vance's partner in coal mining, formed the Kentucky Silica Products Corporation, and now the new corporation, known in abbreviated form as Silcoa, is ready for construction work leading to operation.

Thomas C. Carson, of Kingsport, Tenn., recognized as one of the country's authorities on the processing and uses of silica, took over Monday as operating head of the Silica Corporation of America (Silcoa), with headquarters in Lexington. Carson is president of the corporation.

The plant will employ about 50 men.

The deposit is termed by the Kentucky Geological Survey as the purest ever found in Kentucky. Some experts believe that it is one of the biggest high-quality deposits in the country.

Discovery of the high-purity deposit a little more than two years ago in a rugged, almost inaccessible area, and the subsequent development of the property eventually could lure a large number of industries into economically depressed Eastern Kentucky and the bordering area, says Carson. It also will contribute to the further development of the growing ceramics industry in the Ohio valley, he added.

Silica is a mineral that occurs most commonly in sand. In crystalline form, it occurs as quartz and some other rock formations. In its purest form, it is valuable for making glass and other ceramic products such as porcelain and fine pottery. It also is useful in making steel and casting iron products; as an abrasive in cleaning products; as a filtering medium; in the washing of coal; as traction sand for steel rails; for cosmetics, and for such more-common usage as a filler for asphalt and aggregate for concrete.

Because of the purity of the Pine Mountain deposit, Carson said, Silcoa will offer most of its product to the ceramics, metallurgical and abrasive markets. Tests made in laboratories at the University of

A sheer escarpment of almost-pure silica forms part of the holdings of Silica Corporation of America near Elkhorn City, where the company is building a plant to process the mineral for sale to the ceramics, metallurgical and abrasive industries. Note the dwarfing of the big bulldozers on the platform being built on the side of the mountain. The silica's off-white.

Kentucky show the silica in the Silcoa deposit to be 98.3 per cent pure as it occurs naturally. This is just short of being pure enough for optical glass, with just a trace more iron oxide than the manufacture of the highly critical glass for lenses allows.

The high quality of the deposit will make processing relatively simple. This, along with the nearness to a number of possible markets, makes the operation financially appealing, Carson said.

The Pine Mountain deposit actually is not a new discovery. Geological Survey maps have shown it for 80 or 90 years, Carson said. But the inaccessibility of the area delayed realization of just how valuable the deposit is.

The deposit itself is a part of the Pine Mountain Fault, brought about thousands of years ago by a landslide and the upheaval of the earth's crust which shoved the rock formations to the crest of Pine Mountain, running from the Breaks of Sandy southwest as far as Alabama.

Something over two years ago, James E. Vance, Pikeville, Ky., and George Norvel, Point Pleasant, W. Va., partners for years in coal operations, were looking around Pike county for limestone deposits. They came upon the silica, standing out in a series of steep escarpments along the crest of Pine Mountain. One of the outcroppings forms a sheer cliff more than 200 feet high and four or five times that much in width. This outcropping will be the site of the Silcoa operations now and in the immediate future.

Vance and Norvel, with Weddington, formed the Kentucky Silica Products Corporation and began to buy some land in the area and lease other land for mineral rights. They were joined by Ralph Campbell and Charles Bingham, Lexington, and the late Jack Dalton, Pikeville, and numerous smaller stockholders.

In a business reorganization last fall, the Silica Corporation of America was formed to finance and operate the venture. The Kentucky Silica Products Corporation holds the largest block of stock in Silcoa.

Meanwhile, the lease and purchase holdings of Silcoa have grown to 35,000 acres, extending some 15 miles along the crest of Pine Mountain.

Carson figures there's no danger the corporation will run out of material. A "very conservative" estimate is that the workable deposit of silica under Silcoa control averages about 60 feet deep by 250 yards wide extending the 15 miles. This comes out to about 350,000,000 tons, at least. At the rate at which Silcoa expects to process the silica—2,000 tons a day—the deposit could hold out 500 years. The plant will have a capacity of 10,000 tons a day.

The processing operation for the silica will be quite spread out. Stone blasted from the escarpment will travel 2,700 feet on a conveyor belt as it drops nearly 1,000 feet to the beginning of the plant. Thence it will move through the plant on another 2,700 feet of belt, going through three crushing operations, washing separation into sizes ranging from 1 to 1½-inch pebbles down to fine sand, and then drying. The drop within the plant itself will be 175 feet.

While the new president of Silcoa is noted for his contributions to the flotation method of separating silica (he holds several patents), none of his developments will play a part in the operation. The simplicity of processing the Pine Mountain deposit makes them unnecessary.

At 45, Carson has had more than 20 years' experience in the minerals field. A graduate of East Tennessee State College, Johnson City, Tenn., he started out as a chemist.

"If I had liked washing test tubes, I probably would still be a chemist," the amiable Carson said.

Instead, he became associated with the International Mineral and Chemical Corporation, where, in 17 years, he rose to corporation director of research and production manager for a plant in North Carolina. Seven years ago, he joined the Blue Ridge Glass Division of the American Saint-Gobain Corporation at Kingsport as director of research.

Jack Hamilton is works manager for Silcoa.

The local optometrist has volunteered to use his office as a center for free literature for prospective optometry students and school guidance officials. Complete information is available there regarding opportunities in this professional career.

Optometry requires five or more years of college training as preparation for licensing in all states. Aptitudes include an affinity for mathematics, an ability to use delicate, precision instruments, and a desire to be of service to the public in caring for their vision problems.

Current enrollments in the ten U. S. colleges of optometry are below the current losses of optometrists due to deaths and retirements. Demand for eye care services is increasing, and more than 8,000 new optometrists must be graduated and licensed during the next ten years to meet the impending shortage, according to Dr. DeVere.
