A residency clause, requiring veterans to be in Kentucky last November 3 when voters approved the bonds, presumably will keep many out-of-state veterans from receiving the payments.

Lloyd said his staff will conduct regional meetings to acquaint service officers of veterans organizations with the bonus applications. The officers from perhaps six counties at a time will gather at a central location for the briefing sessions, he said.

They, in turn, can better inform veterans in their particular area how they should fill out the forms. Lloyd said there will be two application forms—one for the veteran and one for his beneficiary or survivor—consisting of four pages and covering the past four wars.

A discharge or other authentic proof must accompany applications, the bulk of which, Lloyd said, should come in during the first six months.

EVENING CLASSES PLANNED AT MAYO SCHOOL

A 10-week course in evening classes will start May 17 at Mayo State Vocational School, with the classes covering typing, shorthand, and bookkeeping. Hours will be from 7 to 10.

William Rowe, Mrs. H. B. Ranier, Mrs. Jack Wells and Mrs. Bobby Ray White. Corsages were donated by the First National Bank and favors were donated by a number of local business houses.

Delegates chosen to attend the state convention in Lexington were Mrs. Burl Spurlock, Mrs. J. H. Keenon and Mrs. Lon Hill. Also attending from Prestonsburg will be Mrs. R. V. May, district governor, Mrs. Olga M. Latta and Mrs. James Donohoe. Mrs. Donohoe was the third place winner in the district sewing contest and will be presented at the Style Show luncheon at the Phoenix hotel, Lexington.

SUPERLATIVE PERFORMANCE

An acquaintance of ours and his frau are dieting. The other day, he entered the house, faced the missus across a plate filled with cookies. "Eat any of 'em?" "One," she confessed. "Ha! That shows how superior I am to you." "You didn't eat any, darling?" "Two—I'm twice as superior!" he told her.

HOW THOUGHTLESS!

Then there is the one told about the noted "Flying General" who during World War II was flying with the pilot of a hydroplane in the Pacific theatre of war. The general took over the controls, zoomed around a bit, and came in for a landing. He circled over a landing field and was coming down when the pilot finally spoke. "Begging your pardon, General, but this is a hydroplane." "How thoughtless of me! Thank you, thank you very much," the general acknowledged, gained altitude, left the field and made a perfect landing on the water.

Church, School Sales Tax Rules Are Announced

The Revenue Department has filed sales tax regulations relating to educational institutions, charitable institutions and religious societies. The regulations apply alike to public, private and denominational educational and charitable institutions.

The Sales and Use Tax Law goes into effect July 1.

The regulation dealing with educational institutions provides that gross receipts from sales by them are exempt if the sales are made within their function as an educational institution. This includes school lunch rooms and cafeterias. The tax will apply to sales made by student industries and cafeterias or grills open to the general public.

Revenue Commissioner William E. Scent emphasized that the tax will apply to general public admission charges to school plays, athletic events, lecture series, concerts and exhibits.

If student admissions are prepaid in the tuition fee, the tax will not apply.

Events that are attended only by students and teachers are not taxable if the event is within the educational function.

Book stores directly operated by the schools and not open to the general public will be exempt, except for sales of drugs, cosmetics, jewelry, wearing apparel and like items.

Schools will be required to execute resale certificates when making purchases of such items as books, school supplies, and food for resale. Such certificates are available upon request from the Revenue Department.

KY. VACATION SPOT FEATURES PAINTINGS OF JAMES AUDUBON

Frankfort, May 9—One of John James Audubon's favorite haunts as he roamed through Kentucky during 1808-26 was Wolf Hill, now in a Kentucky State Park named for the French bird artist and naturalist.

Here he hunted, studied birds and sometimes cut his name on trees as he gained inspiration for pen and brush. Here, too, though the exact spot is unknown, is the grave of Lucy Anderson Audubon, his little daughter.

Although the state park near Henderson is a complete vacation spot, with modern tourist cottages, swimming, boating and fishing facilities, picnic shelters and nature trails, it is noted mostly for the Audubon Memorial Museum, a fire-proof repository for many Audubon's paintings and those of his two sons.

The museum is constructed in the French Provincial style because of Audubon's French ancestry. A reproduction of a French Norman inn with cobbled courtyard serves as a gatehouse to the park on U.S. 41. The seven galleries of the museum house the largest collection of Audubon's paintings in the world, some of the prints still belonging to Audubon's descendants.

In the French Garden are two bird baths formed from the old millstones found on the site of Audubon's "infernill" on the Ohio River at Henderson. These stones, called French burr, were brought from France.

In the park stand massive virgin trees as part of a giant forest of beeches "40 miles long and three miles wide" on the Green River, as described by Audubon in his "Account of a Wild Pigeon Roost."

Foot trails, some of them probably Audubon's own, lead through the thick cover of trees, ferns, wildness, and woodland plants, such as fox grape, dogwood, red bud, ironwood, wild plum. Here flowers bloom almost continuously.

The park lies upon a major migration route for birds.

The 11th Annual Kentucky East-West All-Star basketball classic will be held at Wheelwright, June 9 and 11, respectively, at Jackson, Wheelwright and Pikeville.

Games featuring the stars of Kentucky basketball for the past year will be played on June 7, 9 and 11, respectively, at Jackson, Wheelwright and Pikeville. Coaching the East will be John Bill Trivette, Pikeville Panther tutor, who will bring the following players into the annual contest: Don Ratliff, Pikeville; Jeff Mullins, Lafayette; Don Frye, Monticello; Bobby Vickers, Wheelwright; Cecil Clair, Breathitt County; Bill Smothers, Dunbar; Chuck Hall, Maysboro; Paul Setser, Meade Memorial, and Tom Harper, Clark County.

A former University of Kentucky basketball star, Bobby Watson, will lead the West ensemble.

They are: Everett Stallworth, Louisville Male; Ted Deeken, Louisville Flaget; Tom Finnegan, Louisville Flaget; Darel Carrier, Bristow; Ronnie Phelps, Louisville Male; Jan Adelman, Owensboro Senior; Bill Alkridge, Butler; Doug Walsh, Madisonville; Charles Marshall, Henderson Douglas, and Walter Gee, Hopkinsville.

Cliff Aders, tub-thumper for the classic, said that this year's game is bringing some of the brightest stars to be found in Kentucky for a period of years.

Sponsoring the Wheelwright game with the Beaver Valley Kiwanis Club is Boy Scout Explorer Post No. 1.

Baseball is a public trust. It had its beginnings under the public and has evolved under the public. There is a mutual bond of trust between baseball and the public. That bond is broken when a player or coach does not give his best effort. Second-best efforts cheapen the game and turns the public away. Without the public support, the game withers and dies.

The best way for a coach to teach dishonesty is to urge second-best efforts, either as a coach of baseball or any other sport.

Therefore, we believe that a coach who does not spur a team to its finest effort has no place in baseball, or, for that matter, in any other sport. That coach sincerely devoted to exploiting the strength of his team and the weaknesses of the opposition is rightly placed in that profession.

Unfortunately, we have coaches who make less than a first-rate effort. When a coach makes the purpose of baseball or any other game a mockery, it is disillusioning to impressionable teen-agers. Often they follow the coaches example in second-best efforts in scholastic efforts as well as other phases of their lives.

Any game deserves the best efforts of the performers participating in it. A community deserves the best from its citizens. The small but significant relationship of an athlete giving his best on the field has, we think, an application to the field of life.

It is unfortunate that the habit of giving second-best efforts in high school, even if in athletics, often have a hang-over effect in life.

Wheelwright spent last year in creating a basketball reputation as a "Dangerous Dan" type and next year will contest some of the state's leading teams.

High on the list of outstanding teams to be placed on the Trojan schedule will be Pikeville, Lexington Lafayette, Lexington Dunbar, Maysville, Carr Creek, Meade Memorial, Paintsville, Camargo and Hindman, plus another trip back to the rough Ashland Invitational tournament.

Now established as the "top gun" in basketball in these parts, Wheelwright is after other teams of its caliber.

The practice of playing talented teams as those mentioned is certainly commendable. Coach Don Wallen's crew will go into next year's district tournament all the stronger for the experience of playing such teams.

Boyhood Dream Comes True For Historian

A boyhood dream to own all the printed histories of Kentucky has come true for J. Winston Coleman, Jr., Lexington historian.

And in acquiring these books, Coleman has also accumulated the largest private collection of Kentucky historical literature in the world.

Coleman's interest in Kentucky history began when, as a boy, Collins' History of Kentucky was his favorite book. "I'd take it up to bed and read those accounts of hair-breadth escapes from the Indians," he recalls. "I made up my mind then to collect all the histories of Kentucky."

When Coleman retired as a building contractor 25 years ago, he began his famed collection that now includes 3,500 books and pamphlets, over 2,000 negatives of Kentucky scenes he photographed himself, 40 of Henry Clay's letters, nearly all of the Currier and Ives prints of Kentucky scenes, and a mass of miscellaneous material.

Coleman, whose "Bibliography of Kentucky History" has been hailed as a major contribution to American letters, is a prolific writer, usually on subjects which other historians have neglected. His most recent book is "Steamboats on the Kentucky River."

The collection will go to Coleman's death to the University of Kentucky library. But while the collection is housed in his home, the historian shares his wealth of reference material with other students and writers.

Coleman sometimes invites writers to work among them for weeks. "I turn 'em loose, and many a Ph.D. thesis has been written on my breakfast-room table," Coleman said.

In 1940 Coleman began photographing facets of life in Kentucky which seemed to be disappearing, such as covered bridges, taverns, sorghum mills, and iron furnaces. Several summers ago he photographed stream threshers, which are now rapidly dwindling in use.

REGIONAL TRACK MEET FRIDAY

The annual Eastern Kentucky regional high school track meet will be held at Elkhorn City at 10 a.m., Friday, with 17 schools participating.

Beiry, Buckhorn, Jenkins Dunham, Elkhorn City, Flat Gap, Fleming-Neon, Hazard, Jenkins, Martin, M. C. Napier, Paintsville, Pikeville, Virgie, Prestonsburg, Wayland, Cumberland, Dilce Combs and Whitesburg will battle for the crown currently held by the Whitesburg Yellowjackets.

The regional run-offs will also serve as the official meet of the four-sport Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference. The school with the highest number of points at the end of the meet will be declared the official 1960 champion.

First and second place winners in the regional will qualify for entrance to the state track meet, which will be held on Stoll Field in Lexington, May 20-21.

Oddly enough, only three records have stood since the first meet in 1954 and all three of them are held by members of Prestonsburg's '54 team that won the regional. Although Prestonsburg high has entered the regional meet five times, only twice has the school really had an organized track team.

Glenn Dixon holds the record in the 100-yard dash with a 10.4 effort and the record in the broad jump with a leap of 19 feet, 8 1/2 inches. Bobby Daniels' six-year mark of 53.3 in the 440-yard run still stands.

Betsy Layne high school won Floyd county's first high school golf tournament at the Beaver Valley Country Club, Allen, Monday afternoon. Prestonsburg finished second, and Martin third.

NOTICE

The Floyd County Board of Education will receive bids up to 1 o'clock, June 7, 1960, on the remodeling of various science rooms in the county. These rooms include Wayland, Wheelwright, Betsy Layne and McDowell.

The bidder should place a separate bid upon each individual class room and also an over-all bid for repair for all four rooms.

Plans and specifications may be secured at the Superintendent's office. The Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

HOSPITALS EXEMPT

Non-profit hospitals are exempt from paying Kentucky's 3 per cent sales and use tax on medicines and food and drugs purchased and resold to patients. Patients are also exempt from the tax on these items. The exemptions are the result of new regulations filed by the Department of Revenue. Commissioner William E. Scent said the tax, effective July 1, will apply to a hospital's sales of prescriptions to outpatients, on lunchroom and gift shop sales and on all sales that compete with other businesses.

SCALF FAMILY

Forty-nine years ago many Eastern Kentuckians were migrating westward to free, virgin lands in Washington state. One of these families was that of John W. (Cooge) Scalf, of Buffalo Creek, Floyd county. Joining him in the westward trek were several neighbors and others. Several families had preceded Cooge and were sending back glowing reports of the wonderful new state.

Cooge, as he was nick-named, was a brother of Willie Scalf, and both were expert hunters. Oldsters recall yet the exploits of these two, particularly of Cooge. It was said he could call squirrels so like the animals themselves that they would come out of their holes on the sides of the trees to be shot. One reason Cooge and Willie migrated to Washington was to indulge in hunting.

The Scalfs went west in 1911 and little was heard from them. Only an occasional letter came back. People may migrate to other lands but the nostalgia for their home land ever remains. Recently, Feb. 9, to be exact, and on March 5, two letters came to relatives in this county. They review the story of the migrating Scalfs.

We excerpt the last letter fully as it is in more detail. It was from Mrs. May Scalf Kirkpatrick, Box 276, Elbe, Wash., and written to Wayne Scalf, Endicott resident.

"I live about 35 or 40 miles from Dad (John W. Scalf). I am his third daughter. You may remember the ones born in Kentucky. The oldest son's name is Roland. Two are Brian and General. My two sisters' names are Elizabeth and Nelly. There was Quilven and Vatie. Vatie was born about three weeks before the family started out here. The two oldest boys and the two oldest girls died. We all got the measles on the train coming out here and the two oldest boys and the two oldest girls died. General, Quilven, Vatie and I got over the disease but the loss nearly killed mother and dad. Mother lived two years after that and had another baby girl in 1912 but she died at childbirth. The baby was named Nora and the five of us from the first family are living close to dad's place.

"After mother died Dad married Marian Music's oldest daughter, Emma, and they had 11 children. She died two years ago at the age of 67 years and the son next to the youngest by Emma was killed in a car accident last August.

"Dad has had so much grief in his life that I am amazed at the way he holds up. He is 87 years old and has been in a wheel chair for seven years this month. He had a stroke shortly after I lost my son. I guess the shock was too much for him.

"I've only been married once and I had only the one son. He had a plane of his own that he used for pleasure and in business. He went to get Quilven to go with him to look over a stand of timber. Quilven was sick that day and couldn't go. He started out alone. He got the plane up well but the motor died and he fell within 500 feet of Quilven. He left a wife and two children, a boy and girl.

"Dad's stroke was on his right side so he can't use his right hand. He can't walk alone or even stand alone. He can walk a little with one of us on each side of him to hold up part of his weight. He only weighs 110 pounds. He can't write but he reads nearly all the time when he isn't watching television. He reads nearly all the time without glasses. His mind is as sharp as ever.

"I can remember Uncle Burris (Clark) and Uncle Tom (Clark) and Aunt Kanny Goble and June. (Burris, Tom and Kanny, all residents of the Buffalo section are now dead HPS.) I would love to hear from June. She will probably not remember me as I was only five years old when I left there.

"General, Quilven and I have talked a lot about coming back to Kentucky to see the folks but never got started. Quilven is married and has an 18-year-old son. Quilven's only child is 26 years old now and Vatie had only one, a boy now 23 years old. Nora is married and has a son and daughter and two grandchildren. Vatie is a grandfather, too.

"I can't remember Aunt Bird Harville but I would sure like to hear from her. I trust she is in good health. Aunt Mary Granville died in 1932 and Uncle Granville (Thompson) died three years ago last month. John Thompson died awhile before that and his wife, Mary, still lives. She has lived next door to me for five years. At present she is in the hospital. She is 79 years old.

"Uncle Willie Scalf has been dead several years. He was killed in a car wreck and his wife Martha has been dead for several years. Their oldest daughter, Melvina, died 10 or 12 years ago. The rest of his children are living, mostly in Lewis county. All but Ras have a family, many of them grandchildren.

"Uncle Granville's daughter, Lena, made two or three trips back to West Virginia where her husband's people live. His name was Jess Horn. She is living here where her three children live.

"Vashti Music Scruggs is still living although she has been blind for 10 years. Her husband, Andy Scruggs, and a son, Andy, have been dead several years. Her daughter, Lizzie, is about 58 years old and is living at Randle, Wash., about five miles from Dad's place.

"Dad lives on the old homestead he 'took up' right after he came here from Kentucky in 1911. Dad has 27 grandchildren and 7 great-grandchildren."

The other letter was from John Scalf, Sr., Rt. 4, Randle, Wash., and gave items of information on the family, much of it a repeat of the first letter excerpted. It was addressed to Irvin Scalf, who died a few years ago.

LEEDY PARTICIPATES

Yakima Firing Center, Wash., — Army Pfc. Harmon Leedy, 19, son of Henry Leedy, of Lancer, Ky., is scheduled to participate with other personnel from the 35th Engineer Battalion in Exercise Elk Horn, a Strategic Army Corps (STRAC) field maneuver, at the Yakima Firing Center, May 9-23.

Elk Horn, one of the year's largest Army maneuvers, will provide nearly 18,000 participating troops with training in all phases of modern warfare under simulated combat conditions. For greater realism, some 2,500 troops will play the part of an aggressor force which is assumed to be attacking the U. S. from the north.

Leedy is a jeep driver in the battalion's Company C at Fort Lewis, Wash. His wife, Betty, lives in Tacoma, Wash.

Homage Is Paid To Kentuckians Of USS Arizona

The state has paid homage to 25 Kentuckians, including one Floyd countyman, who were aboard the U.S.S. Arizona, Dec. 7, 1941, when it was sent to the bottom by Japanese bombs. Only three of the 25 survived.

Brig. Gen. William E. Buster, assistant adjutant general, presented a flag of Kentucky to the U.S.S. Arizona Memorial foundation which is building a permanent memorial to the 1,102 crewmen who went down with their ship.

The memorial was authorized in a law passed by the 85th Congress in 1957.

In presenting the flag, General Buster said "We in Kentucky do not intend to have the men we lost in World War II forgotten." At the same time, C. Thomas Gooding, a director of the foundation, presented a replica of the Arizona to General Buster in behalf of Kentucky.

The flag of Kentucky will fly on the "Avenue of Flags" at the memorial in Hawaii along with the flags of the other 49 states.

Kentuckians who died aboard the Arizona were: Ensign Robert L. Leopold, Louisville; F/1c Purdy R. Bedford, Cynthiana; F/2c Walter K. Belling, West Prestonsburg; S/1c William M. YOUNG ARTIST DOES PAINTING OF AN OLD COURTHOUSE

Floyd county's first courthouse, a hewn log structure, burned down April 18, 1808, and the second building was completed by Henry B. Mayo in 1815.

The third courthouse, pictured here as drawn by Bill Fraley, young Prestonsburg artist, was authorized Nov. 17, 1818. The order specified the building was to be completed by April, 1820. Samuel May and Thomas Evans were the contractors.

The building, of brick, manufactured at the site, was 30 feet square. It had seven windows with 24 panes each on the lower floor and four windows of 15 panes on the upper. The Venetian shutters were painted green, the roof red and the outside doors, mahogany. "Yellow ochre" and white paint were used liberally on the structure.

The building was completed Sept., 1821 and Peter Amyx and Thomas Johns accepted it for the court. The courthouse served for 70 years. The present courthouse was completed in 1890.
