PARK THEATRE CONSTRUCTION SET BY STATE

Lexington Architects Employed To Supervise Theatre Construction

Further planning for the construction at Jenny Wiley State Park of an amphitheatre for the presentation of an outdoor drama to be written around the capture and escape of the frontier heroine, Jenny Wiley, from the Indians was done here Tuesday as architects and planners employed by the state conferred with Paul Green, famed dramatist who will write the play, and officials of the Jenny Wiley Drama Association.

Present plans call for completion of the amphitheatre in time for presentation of the drama during the 1962 season. The firm of Scruggs & Hammond, Lexington architects, has been employed by the state to design and supervise the outdoor theatre construction.

Representing the architects were John C. Lawrence, James B. Evans, D. Lyle Ates and Harry E. Homan. Others attending, in addition to Mr. Green, were Marvin Music, secretary of the Kentucky Parks Board, W. A. Toney, of the Department of Parks; Keith Ashby, of the engineering staff, Department of Finance; Richard E. Martin, Prestonsburg engineer; Chalmers H. Frazier and Edward Music, president and secretary, respectively, of the Jenny Wiley Drama Association.

COUNCIL SETS ANNUAL DRIVE

Francis Named Chairman For Girl Scout Funds; Campaign Ends Dec. 16

The annual fund drive by the Sandy Valley Girl Scout Council will begin December 4, it was announced this week by Fred Francis, Prestonsburg, finance chairman.

"Your generous contribution to this campaign will enable more girls to participate in activities designed to help them develop self-reliance, integrity, dependability, concern for others, initiative and the native talents they possess," Francis said.

The Girl Scouts offer a constructive program for girls between seven and 17 years of age and is a worthy cause for contributions. The Council serves the nine counties of Floyd, Pike, Martin, Johnson, Magoffin, Knott, Perry and Letcher in Kentucky and Mingo in West Virginia.

Francis, in the appeal for funds this week, explains that Girl Scouts express themselves through creative channels and they gain experience in working and playing as members of a group.

"Through Scouting they discover that home-making, budgeting, marketing and planning can be fun and that playing the role of an active citizen of the community can be stimulating," he concluded. "The drive will continue through December 16.

APPELLATE COURT HITS ABSENTEE POLL COUNT

The detailed ruling of the Court of Appeals declaring Lawrence Hale, the Democratic nominee for Jailer in this county was made last Friday, 10 days after Hale had been elected to the office.

The court entered a brief order voiding the nomination of Dan Goble and giving it to Hale, only four days before the November 7 balloting.

In substance, the detailed opinion, written by Appellate Judge Squire N. Williams, Jr., declared the Floyd election commissioners ignored practically all of the provisions of the absentee ballot law in the May primary race.

In the primary voting Hale received a majority of 82 over Goble, excluding the absentee ballots, but after they were counted Goble held a winning margin of two votes. Special Judge Sidney B. Neal, who presided in the lower court trial of the contest case, held that Goble was the winner of the election. But the Court of Appeals, reversing that judgment, said, in part:

"The various issues which arose in circuit court have been narrowed on this appeal to a determination of whether the Floyd County Board of Election Commissioners substantially complied with the absentee voting law.

"The polls closed at 5 p.m., on Tuesday. No attempt was made by the Board to count the absentee

EKEA NAMES ALLEN VEEP

Delegates Hear Butler Note Control Concern; Carl Perkins Is Speaker

Delegates to the Eastern Kentucky Education Association at a meeting at Ashland last week elected Woodrow Allen, principal of the Prestonsburg high school as vice-president and Walton Jones, superintendent of Morgan county schools was named president-elect.

Election of officers Friday climaxed a two-day meeting that heard prominent educators discuss the program's problems.

Wendell Butler, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, told the 1,500 delegates that control of education will be the basic issue before the next General Assembly.

"Any bill designed to weaken the leadership of education in Kentucky is bad," he said. He noted that there is a trend throughout the nation and "worst in Kentucky" to take control of public education out of the hands of educators and place it under state agencies.

Butler said that the coming battle for control of education in Kentucky will revolve around whether:

- 1. Members of state and local Boards of Education should be elected at large or from districts.
2. Auditing of local school boards should be done by private commercial firms, the state auditor's office, or by the State Department of Education.
3. The state attorney general should have the power to prosecute (See Story No. 3, Page 6)

SCHOLARSHIPS ARE OFFERED

Frasure Announces Plan Of GM; Only Top Seniors May Make Application

Senior students in Floyd county high schools are eligible to compete for the 100 four-year scholarships offered by General Motors under its national scholarship plan, according to Walter Frasure, assistant county superintendent of schools.

"Only the top ranking students in each of our high schools need apply, however," Frasure added, "as these scholarships are awarded on a highly competitive basis."

The competition is open to young men and women who are high school seniors and United States citizens. Interested students must make application for both the GM National Scholarship and the Scholastic Aptitude Test of College Boards. They may take the S. A. T. either December 2, 1961, or January 13, 1962.

At least one GM award is offered in each state, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. High school seniors awarded scholarships under the GM National Scholarship Plan may pursue any course of study and attend any accredited college or university.

Selection of award winners in the GM National Plan is made by a group of leading educators representing various parts of the country. This is the eighth year the National Scholarships have been offered by GM.

General Motors offers other scholarship opportunities also, Frasure said. Under its college plan, 305 four-year college scholarships are awarded annually by 182 colleges and universities located in 50 states and the District of Columbia. A list of the participating colleges may be obtained from his office. Selection of award winners under the college plan is made by the respective colleges and universities. Students wishing to be considered under this plan should apply directly to the college of their choice. Awards under both plans range from $200 to $2,000, one year depending on the student's needs.

This fall 1,630 students will be sponsored by GM in 219 colleges and universities under the College and National Plans.

GREGORY ASKS EGG PROJECTS

For Eastern Kentucky; Mills Representative Notes Potential Market

"Eastern Kentucky could be a great egg basket for a wide area," Forrest Gregory, representative of Ralston-Purina Company, told the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club, Thursday evening of last week.

Gregory, a Prestonsburg resident who works out of his company's Louisville office, urges commercial poultry projects, told the Kiwanians of successful efforts in Indiana to promote the business. He pointed out the vast potential market of the region, said that 60 per cent of the population of the United States lives within 400 miles of the area.

The poultry ventures in Indiana are almost wholly financed by local community leaders. These are merchants, farmers, attorneys and other professional men who are pooling their resources to furnish the money as wise investments, the feed company representative said.

The project in Eastern Kentucky or several projects would be able to dispose of eggs to the Cincinnati market, Gregory said. Chain stores in the area are always in need of quality eggs, he added.

Gregory, in promoting the idea of commercial poultry groups, has spoken to community leaders at Sandy Hook, West Liberty, Pikeville and Salsersville. (See Story No. 4, Page 2)

CONLEY SUES BLACKBURN, TWO SURETIES

McDowell Hospital Sued By Stephens Fuel Miner; $9,850 Damages Asked

Bennie Blackburn who a few years ago became the first Floyd countian whose peace bond was forfeited and collected, has again been sued for the collection of another.

Commonwealth's Attorney Hollie Conley this week sued Blackburn and his sureties, Tom Manns and Edd Hicks, on behalf of the Commonwealth of Kentucky to collect a $5,000 peace bond Blackburn posted on Nov. 16, 1959. Of the $5,000, Blackburn posted $1,500 cash with County Judge Henry Stumbo; Manns and Hicks are sureties for the remaining $3,500.

The suit alleges that on May 12, 1960, while the peace bond was in full force and effect, Blackburn shot and wounded James Stone and that he was indicted for the shooting at the September, 1960 term of the grand jury.

Blackburn recently began serving a 21-year pen term for the slaying of Bill Buck Baker.

In a suit filed Tuesday Raymond Lafferty seeks to recover from the Miners Memorial hospital of McDowell a total of $9,850.80, alleging that failure of the hospital to admit him as a patient after he had been injured while working for the Stephens Elkhorn Fuel Corporation, cost him $750 charge at another hospital, $1,600.80 loss of wages and $7,500 in physical and mental suffering.

Lafferty alleged that he reported immediately to the hospital for treatment, presented his hospital card and offered to pay cash but was denied admittance. He claimed he was unable to get treatment for five or six hours and then was required to go to another hospital.

SUSPECTED MINISTER-SPY EVADES IRON RING OF FEDERAL TROOPS

BY HENRY P. SCALF

The day following the Battle of Ivy Mountain, November 10, 1861, a Kentucky Christian Church minister, finding himself unable to escape through the Union lines to his native Georgia, sat down, at Somerset, and described his troubles in detail in a letter to a Union friend, Major George Williams, of Paris.

Under strong suspicion of being a pro-Southern spy who was carrying news from Prestonsburg, he was seeking vainly at the time of the letter to find an opening in the Federal forces that ringed him in the mountains.

Elder LaFayette Pyron was graduated from Bethany College in West Virginia in 1856 and the next year, while residing at Marion, Georgia, was honored by a visit from Alexander Campbell, founder of the Christian Church movement. Pyron went back to earn a master of arts degree at the college, which was conferred July 4, 1861. Equipped with his learning and possessed of the zeal that fired the early Christian Church ministers, he came to Paris, Kentucky, where he was a supply preacher for awhile. Moving about over the state, he was attracted to the Eastern section where the Restoration movement was taking hold.

Throughout the state there were dread harbingers of civil war. Men were choosing sides, camps were being built and hundreds were marching toward Prestonsburg to enlist under Confederate Captain Andrew Jackson May.

We deduce from Pyron's letter and the meager information on his sojourn in Kentucky that he must have decided to go South while at Prestonsburg. The advance of Gen. W. O. Nelson from Maysville toward West Liberty was a pointed reminder that this was no place for a well-known Georgia minister with strong Confederate sympathies.

When Capt. May started his ill-armed, ill-trained and undisciplined recruits from Prestonsburg toward Morgan county to meet "Bull" Nelson, Pyron followed. He reached Mt. Sterling safely, having left May's forces back in the Licking River area.

He had business in Mt. Sterling but what it was we do not know. In his letter extant to Major Williams, he had said: "I did not write from Mt. Sterling because the object of my visit there could not be accomplished."

There is another mysterious inference in his letter to Wilson.

"I determined to postpone doing so (writing) until I could write to you with certainty. I write today not because I feel so much certainty but that I might give you some account of my proceedings since I last saw you and to 'post you up' as far as I can with all the present lights before me as to my future prospects of success in my contemplated journey to that bourne from where &?'

He noted that he had reached Mt. Sterling on Wednesday after talking to the major.

"I determined in everything to comply with the advice which you had given me," and in following this he had called upon Col. Apperson but found him not at home. He saw Apperson's father, who was a commissioner of some kind for Governor Beriah Magoffin.

Wilson had written a letter to expedite Pyron's departure from the state and it was read with sympathy for the minister's difficulties.

The commissioner, however, detailed the military disposition of the Union forces, said that Col. Harris with an Ohio regiment was in the neighborhood of West Liberty and expected to fight May's forces soon. Gen. Nelson was only a short distance to the north and pressing to effect a junction with Harris.

The most positive orders had been issued to permit no one to pass the Union lines in the direction of Confederate forces, he told Pyron.

The minister knew this without being told, for he had met several persons on the road who had been turned back. Many had told him of others who were being held for being within the Union lines.

He stayed in Mt. Sterling two days, asking questions and probing for a road south.

"I became satisfied that it would be useless for me to attempt to go through—the whole country off the military road was filled with scouts, as they had enlisted a great many throughout that county and one or two adjoining for thirty days service," he wrote his friend. "I was convinced that if I attempted to pass through the country in that direction along the less frequented roads I would be subject to arbitrary arrest and so I despaired of getting through the lines into Tennessee in that direction."

Going to Lexington from Mt. Sterling, he had no better success in finding a way out of the state and went on to Nicholasville.

"My plan was to get Bro. King to go with me past Camp Dick Robinson (he is known there—he has charge of Antioch church there in a short distance of the encampment) as far as Bro. Jarrott's and then to get Bro. J. to go part of the way with me in this direction."

His plan, however, explained to Williams, had not succeeded. When he reached Nicholasville, King was not at home and he had to stay there for a week awaiting his arrival.

King gave him disappointing news. He and Jarrott had an appointment to preach in Lincoln county and must go there but Pyron could accompany them and perhaps something would transpire to his benefit.

Going to Lincoln county, he preached a couple of times, but feeling the urgency to make a new effort to get into Tennessee and from there to Georgia, he left there November 8 and journeyed to Somerset. It was from there he wrote Wilson at Paris.

Meeting with no interference, he began to feel secure for he was among friends, having preached a week in the area with King the preceding summer.

The whole area was in a high state of excitement for three or four regiments of Union soldiers were camped on the Cumberland River within a few miles of Somerset.

From his friends he heard the story of recent events.

Approximately 400 Tennessee troops had marched into Monticello the preceding week as an escort for a Mr. Christman who was a resident there and wanted to take his family south. The soldiers camped about a mile from the town. The report spread that they intended to march on Somerset.

The next morning the rebels again marched into Monticello, stayed a couple of hours and then withdrew back to Fentress county, Tennessee, from whence they had come. They had deported themselves well and interfered with no one.

However, the Union command in the region had been alerted and there was much marching and counter-marching. Ten of the Tennessee troopers returned on a reconnaissance and its size was magnified in the minds of the civilians. Another panic was set off and only subsided when Col. Frank Wolford and other contingents of the Union army occupied the town.

Pyron went to see Col. Wolford's brother who was an acquaintance and asked if there was a chance to get into Monticello. He was told there wasn't now but in a few days he could when the troops had moved out.

"I shall go to Sharer valley and perhaps preach there a day or so which is within 12 miles of the Tennessee line," he wrote Major Williams. "I hope to be so fortunate as to get through. For if I can ever get into Tennessee I think I can get home without further interruption."

Finding a way out of Kentucky was not the whole of Pyron's troubles, however. He had received a letter from his friend, Wilson Ingles, at Paris and a member of the church board there. Ingles had written: "My advice to you is not to come to Paris any more as it is rumored here that you have been carrying the mail to and from Prestonsburg. They say they will take you if they see you."

He knew what "taking" would mean—arbitrary incarceration in a prison somewhere charged with spying and if exonerated at all it would be only after tedious weeks or months.

He defended himself in the letter to Mayor Williams.

"I suppose that it is hardly worth while in writing you to contradict such a rumor for I do not suppose that you did believe it. That after you had given me the endorsement which you did (of which I do not feel worthy) it would have been a despicable thing to me to take advantage of it to play the base part of either a spy or informer. I do not know which was the stronger feeling when I read of the rumor, whether of indignation at my false accusers or of mortification to think that I had not so have lived to have placed my conduct and character beyond the reach of such a suspicion.

"I do not affect to entertain a higher sense of honor than is common perhaps to a majority of men but there are some things which I cannot do and whether I should ever get home or not it matters not what I may be called upon to suffer and endure (for in these perilous times we know not what may happen unto us) but be assured I shall in no wise be guilty of anything which will forfeit your respect by taking advantage of that confidence which you have reposed in me."

He explained what he considered foundations of the rumor, told how friends had asked him to carry letters to the South but that he had refused. He had made one exception, he said. A lady in the North, and of the strongest Union sympathizers, had induced him to deliver a letter to her betrothed in the South.

"I have such implicit confidence in her, knowing she would say nothing to compromise me in carrying it and at the same time the gratitude and delight which my friend would have in receiving it rot's and then to get Bro. J. to

McDOWELL DAREDEVILS ATTRACTING INTEREST

Twenty of the 15th region's 32 basketball teams have opened their season thus far, and the McDowell Daredevils are attracting considerable interest.

Pete Grigsby's unit has copped five successive games in downing Auxier 82-41, Martin 52-44, Maytown 71-66, Letcher County 56-53 and Betsy Layne 68-64.

Although the caliber of opposition met by the Floyd County school may be questioned, the Daredevils were supposed to be a "powerhouse" next season with four juniors and a sophomore on the starting team.

Football-playing schools, Pikeville, Paintsville, Elkhorn City, and Belfry, do not open their season until December 1. Morgan County, however, will visit Meade Memorial Saturday night.

Wednesday night, the Prestonsburg Blackcats will open against winless Auxier in the spacious Prestonsburg gym. Incoming and former Blackcat coach Jack F. Wells will go with holdovers, Payne Blanton, 6-2 center; forwards Dixon Nunberry, 5-11 senior, and Wayne DeBoard, 6-foot junior, and veteran guards, Ronnie Robinson and Billy Blackburn, 5-10 seniors.

The diminutive Hornets have lost nine in succession, however, the region's smallest school has only 17 boys enrolled.

Wheelwright's Trojans nipped Wayland, 67-66, in an overtime fray, Saturday night, as returning forward James Rose flipped in 27 points and guard Bob Sword 24. Tommy Boyd's Wasps had lost, 67-54, a night earlier to Virgie.

Wayland and Wheelwright will meet again next week on the neutral Prestonsburg floor in the first round of the Floyd County Pre-season tournament. Don Wallen's defending regional champions are now 3-0 and Wayland is 2-2.

Blaine, paced by six-foot, seven-inch junior center Bill Lewis, whipped Grayson, 65-49, and Salyersville, 65-64, on consecutive nights for its fifth and sixth wins. Lewis racked up 25 points over Grayson and 18 in the Salyersville win.

Meade Memorial, expected to be the power in the 59th district, opened with an 80-73 conquest of Van Lear.

Butcher Tells Decision
On Professional Play;
Enters Negotiations

Pikeville, Ky., Nov. 21 (Spl.)—Donnis Butcher, Pikeville College's Little-All-America basketball player of last year, announced Monday his decision to sign a professional contract with the New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Association. He left Tuesday for New York to close negotiations, which have been going on ever since the Knicks chose him in last spring's player draft, his brother and coach for the last two years, Paul Butcher, said today.

A 25-year-old senior, Donnis was eligible for the draft while still a college player because he had worked in Ohio for two years before enrolling for his freshman year at Pikeville. He was a National Cash Register employee at Dayton, where he had played on NCR's team in an AAU league.

A six-foot-two, 200-pound guard, called "the most versatile player Pikeville College has had in many years," he was shifted regularly to forward and used occasionally in the pivot. In addition to his NAIA All-America ranking, he was named to the all-conference team of the Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Conference for each of the three seasons he played for the Pikeville Bears. He totaled 2,073 points in 88 games for Pikeville for a 23.6 average, on 490 field shooting with 720 baskets on 1,470 tries, and hit 633 of 870 free throws for a .728 figure in that department.

With better than 350 rebounds each year, he totaled 1,086 in the three campaigns, and gave off over 750 assists, including 393 in his sophomore year.

He was a high school star, also under his brother Paul's coaching, at Meade Memorial high school in his native Williamsport, Ky., where he was captain of the team that won 32 successive games in 1954-55. He was named all-state once, all-regional twice, and all-district three times.

NATURE TRAILS

By RUFUS M. REED

THE REPTILES,
MOST INTERESTING AND USEFUL ANIMALS

Perhaps we owe a greater debt to the reptiles than we think. They are among the oldest animals on earth.

Take the common box turtle, incorrectly called "terrapin." It has preserved its life, unchanged, for over 150 million years! No doubt it gave to man the idea for inventing the door hinge. On its bottom, it has a hinged plastron, which it can open and close at will, to protect itself against enemies. Its top shell is the "carapace," and when the box turtle works the hinge on the bottom, it shuts itself up tight and very few enemies have power to burst its shell and devour it. Some turtles have learned to carry it several hundred feet high and let it drop on a rock, to burst the shell!

The box turtle is a most interesting animal. The male has eyes, bright Chinese red. When the box turtle gets excited during a heavy thunderstorm, it will stick its head up high and give vent to a series of shrill whistles, like that of a policeman's blast. This animal has four toes on its hind feet, and while it often does eat garden vegetables, it also devours snails, slugs, grasshoppers and other insects. Box turtles have been known to live 90 years and longer!

The reptiles of the world are divided into four great groups. While there are many similarities, there are also marked differences in these groups.

NO. 1. TURTLES. All these have leathery or horny shells, four legs and short tails. From their shells frames for eyeglasses are made. Most all turtles can draw their heads inside their shells, to escape attack. Turtles lack teeth but most have hooked bills, and some have jaws strong enough to burst a broomstick or crush an arm! These are the Snappers, which grow to weigh 150 pounds. The soft-shelled turtles often weigh as much as 35 pounds and are said to be delicious eating.

NO. 2. LIZARDS. These are much older in history than the snakes. Lizards have marked differences to distinguish them from snakes; they have ears, snakes do not. Snakes seem to hear or catch vibrations by licking out their forked tongues. Lizards have legs with five-clawed toes, and they have rough scales. Snakes do not have legs, and there is a sharp difference between the scales of snakes and lizards. The scales of a snake's belly go all the way across horizontally, in row after row, while

In Overtime Contest
With Betsy Layne Five

McDowell stretched its winning streak to five this week by defeating Betsy Layne, 68-64, in an overtime. The lead changed hands several times, and the score was tied when the gun sounded. This was a fine team victory because all of the starting five from McDowell scored in double figures. McDowell's leading scorer was Dean Stewart with 16 points. High scorer for the evening was Betsy Layne's Newsome with 18 points.

The undefeated McDowell Daredevils won their fourth straight game last Thursday night by edging Letcher County, 56-53. Letcher County led through the entire game, but in the final two minutes the Daredevils rallied to win. McDowell was paced by David Turner, Dean Stewart and Wendell McCoy with 17, 14 and 14 points, respectively. Taking scoring honors for Letcher County was C. Isom with 15 points.

Osborne with Syracuse, Plays in All-Star Tilt

Charles Osborne, who starred with Ed Diddle's Hilltoppers of Western Kentucky State College until his graduation last year, has signed a contract with the Syracuse Nationals of the National Basketball Association and is with the team this season.

Osborne, son of Bill Osborne, of Prestonsburg, was one of 10 former collegians named to play recently in the college all-star basketball game at Madison Square Garden, New York City.

a lizard's scales are arranged in groups and irregular rows. Lizards are swift on foot. The colored lizard of the southwest runs on its two hind legs like a kangaroo and can make fifteen miles an hour. It chases and catches the little horned toads and devours them. It is a huge, green lizard with a brownish head and a black collar.

NO. 3. SNAKES. The word "snake" makes us feel sort of creepy, since we have an instinctive fear of snakes. But most of them are harmless and highly beneficial. Without their help, the vermin would soon overwhelm us and destroy all living things!

Snakes have loose, movable jaws, which enable them to swallow prey much bigger than their heads. Snakes do not have eyelids and cannot close their eyes. Lizards have eyelids and can shut their eyes. Lizards are also valuable as insect destroyers; they devour grasshoppers, flies, beetles and worms of all kinds. We have 90 species of lizards in North America.

Who Wants Control—And Why?

If members of the Kentucky General Assembly show by their votes at the 1962 session that they are willing to swallow everything State Superintendent Butler and the presidents of the State University and the several state colleges are serving up these days, further study of education in the Commonwealth should either be halted or it should be placed entirely in the hands of the aforesaid Mr. Butler and the college presidents.

This should be done, just to make certain the revered status quo is protected against any sort of change whatsoever.

Mr. Butler at the Eastern Kentucky Education Association meeting in Ashland last week predicted that the next session of the General Assembly will witness a battle for the control of education. Who wants control, other than those now in control, he did not make clear.

The taxpayer who is paying more for education than ever before perhaps would like a little more control. The parent who sacrifices that his child may have an education might like a little "say" in the control of this matter which is of supreme importance to his son or daughter. Yet nobody wants control, per se, beyond a tightening of the reins at certain points of danger, changes made where the need for change appears to be obvious—all to the end that education will educate and that educators will attend more strictly to that sort of business.

Superintendent Butler, if we read aright the report of his speech before the teachers at Ashland last week, is concerned about a move to elect county board members at large rather than by districts; to have school board audits made by private firms or the State Auditor's office instead of by the State Department of Education; of giving the Attorney General the power to prosecute local school boards and superintendents in the Franklin circuit court instead on in local circuit courts.

This newspaper does not believe in change for the mere sake of change. Whatever is done should be in a constructive spirit and for a constructive purpose. But we contend that election of boards of education should be by countywide vote (though board members elected should, we concede, be designated as representing specific divisions in order to prevent a large center of population in any county from controlling the entire school system of the county). We also contend that audits by private auditors or by the State Auditor's office certainly will harm nobody whose hands are clean, and we rather proudly point to the fact that the Floyd County Board of Education and Superintendent Clark not long ago agreed on a private audit for the Floyd school system.

As for the need for the Attorney General to prosecute cases in the Franklin circuit court, away from home and home influences, the Carter county case is a strong argument for this change. This is not to go hauling a board or a superintendent away for trial by a jury that is not of their peers; it is simply a quick, efficient method of getting on with the job that needs to be done and of getting it done right.

Now, if no change is needed, if all the studies and reports made are useless and only those in power are capable of thinking, and if only they are right, then the college presidents, the superintendents and those others in authority have the perfect closed shop situation, and the rest of us may as well close up shop. In that case ours would be the sad duty of paying the fare and leaving the driving up to them.

It is true that the layman has little ground on which to argue with his doctor and his specialized knowledge, imperfect as it may be. But the layman—the patient or the patient's next-of-kin—does have the right to go to another doctor.

The average Kentuckian is not that fortunate. If we are to educate our children in state-owned institutions of learning, we are in the unfortunate position of a patient who disagrees with his doctor but who does not have the choice of going to another.

In that case, all we do is—shut our eyes and pay the bill.

FIRST SALE of 1961 Christmas seals in Kentucky was made by these two young salesmen to Gov. Bert Combs. The youngsters are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tester, Lexington. Timothy (left), 5, and Michael, 3, climbed on the Governor's lap to show off their wares and tell how they both have made successful recoveries from tuberculosis. Their pictures appear on the letters accompanying the 1961 seals which are being sent to thousands of Kentuckians.

LETTERS

TO THE EDITOR

HAS AN UNDIPLOMATIC LID FLIPPED?

Editor, The Times:

Has Amry Vandenberg, head of U. K.'s Patterson School of Diplomacy, flipped his undiplomatic lid—or, did I misinterpret his October 27th remarks made before the Governor's Commission on Education? These remarks were: "The study of national history is useless if it is not taught within the context of world history" . . . And, "teaching of Kentucky history could not be justified because history is a universal matter—not local."

If he is typical of the type teachers in our schools of diplomacy, God help us! No wonder our billions given to underdeveloped countries made us no friends; and, no wonder paganistic Communism has in the last four decades spread, as a state power, thru 40% of the world's peoples and over 25% of the earth's surface.

To assert that history is universal, not local, is nonsense. History is even more local than geography, for universal geography is the sum-total of all local geography—while universal history represents only a fraction of numerous local histories.

To say that teaching of national or state history is useless is an indictment of our republican form of government and the powers vested in its people. It is a slur at our liberties and our Bill of Rights. The members of the Governor's Commission on Education should not only reject such nonsensical advice, they should recommend that Dr. Vandenberg resign—or be discharged from—his position as head of the Patterson School of Diplomacy. He has voluntarily given himself a public test of qualification for his position—and failed it miserably, beyond any shadow of doubt.

What manner of logic is it that "history is useless" . . . "should not be taught", when history is the bridge that allows us to progress from generation to generation? History is the mirror into which we look to avoid the mistakes and to build on the progress of the generations past. Without history each generation would have to start from scratch; man would be little more than the tumbledweed that moves helplessly in whichever direction the winds blow.

We can strive for universal brotherhood only if we are strongly rooted in these beliefs: Faith in our Creator; pride in our state and country; respect for elders, rights of others, and law and order; love for liberty, freedom and our fellowmen; awareness of, and willingness to fulfill, our obligations; a believer in justice and equal rights—and the courage to defend these beliefs.

A major part of these are ours thru history; and any One-World or Universal-Brotherhood-of-Man built by sacrificing these, can be no more lasting than a castle of clay built on shifting sand.

Billion In Spending By Federal Government Means $106,000 Here

What does an additional $1 billion in spending on the part of the Federal government mean to the average Floyd county family? How much money does that sum take out of local pocketbooks?

On the basis of some figuring done by the Tax Foundation, a non-profit organization, the cost locally is $106,800 for each billion spent.

That is the estimated amount that must be met sooner or later by the county's 8,900 families. The government may get this money through direct or indirect taxation, or by going into debt, which means reducing the value of the dollar, or by a combination of these methods.

The statisticians at the Tax Foundation find that each billion dollars of increase in Federal spending represents $19 to the average American family of four. It ranges above and below that amount in individual communities, in relation to their income levels.

In other words, notes the report, a $1 billion spending increase takes money that each family could have used to buy an electric toaster or five LP records.

A $2 billion increase would take the amount that they might have used to purchase clock radios or power tool sets.

Others, already mindful of their service careers, will come from the enlisted ranks of the armed services.

What it Takes

To be eligible for a nomination to the Academy, young men must be between 17 and 22, American citizens, unmarried, of good moral character. Those who enter need a compelling desire to succeed through the adjustment from casual civilian life to that of a cadet.

Required Nomination

All of the 800 cadets will be chosen from official nominees. Approximately 700 of them will be nominated for congressional appointments by United States Senators and Representatives from their respective states and congressional districts. Other nominations are open to: members of the regular and reserve components of the Air Force and Army; sons of deceased veterans; sons of members of regular components of the armed forces; sons of Medal of Honor winners; and honor graduates of honor military schools.

Entrance Examinations

The College Entrance Examination Board Tests, a Physical Aptitude Examination, and the Academy Medical Examination determine which young men are best qualified. To prepare for College Board Tests, candidates should obtain a thorough background in English and mathematics. To qualify physically, a young man must be in good condition and demonstrate coordination.

Their Next Four Years

The four undergraduate years at the Air Force Academy lead to a Bachelor of Science degree, a commission as a second lieutenant in the Regular Air Force, and a promising start on an unlimited career. A cadet with special ability may take elective courses and major in a subject area of his choice. Graduates who are physically qualified may enter Air Force pilot training. Some may go to navigator training. Those who do not elect flying training may go on to professional technical training for a role in the expanding field of missile development. Virtually all cadets will set their sights on graduate study, for they live by the idea that "Man's flight through life is sustained by the power of his knowledge."

that I have somewhat reluctantly and with much hesitation consented to carry it. Now this is the truth and the whole truth about my carrying letters."

He regretted that he couldn't go back to Paris and confront his accusers and suddenly, near the end of his letter, he exhibited an eloquence that must have made him a peer among ministers.

"But I hate tyranny with a perfect hatred if it is to be so constitutionally organized as not to be able to look upon all forms and all kinds of oppression, it matters not what may be the pretext or the assigned cause, without the least degree of allowance. If to despise a despotism which for cool villainy, low cunning, shameless intrigue and infamous corruption has never had an equal and not a parallel for the past two hundred years, if to look with contempt and disdain upon the minions of the Usurper whose mod is more powerful than the united voice of millions in humble and earnest protest that seeks to destroy the liberties of our common country and to subjugate a race of freemen, the noblest, the best, the most magnanimous people on the face of the globe, with fire and sword—if that be a crime, then I am guilty.

"I have no desire to make myself a martyr but if my well known opposition to these things shall make me an object of suspicion to the powers that be and a fit subject of arrest I am willing and ready to suffer, yea, to die, uttering my earnest protest and inexorable scorn and defiance for all the penalties which their petty meanness can inflict."

With that burst of eloquence to his friend, Byron closed his letter abruptly and but for the meager records of the Confederacy in Georgia, he would have disappeared to history.

He did get through the lines to his beloved South, how and where we do not know. The records of the Georgia Department of Archives and History exhibit that he enlisted for three years in Spalding county, May 12, 1862, in Capt. Obediah Gibson's Company, Griffin's Light Artillery, Georgia Volunteers. He was enrolled May 23 at Camp Stephen Griffin.

He died March 31, 1863, at Chattanooga, Tennessee, while in service, whether from wounds or illness, we do not know. The dead are but statistics to a recording military clerk and he wrote with brevity.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this means of expressing our appreciation for all the kindness and assistance given us upon the occasion of the death and funeral of William (Dutch) Bailey. To those who brought flowers, to the ministers for their words of sympathy and consolation we are deeply appreciative. Last but not least we are grateful for the fine and efficient service of the Turner-Ryan Funeral Home.

NO. 4. ALLIGATORS AND CROCODILES. These resemble huge lizards with long snouts, and are adapted to living in swamps and rivers of warm regions. They have been hunted so ruthlessly in the past, they are now protected by law. Their skins are valuable in making handbags and other useful articles.

Do not confuse reptiles with amphibians. It is sometimes easy to confuse amphibians with the reptiles, for they are alike in some respects. The amphibians are divided into great groups: 1. Frogs and Toads; 2. Salamanders.

Salamanders look much like certain lizards, but there are marked differences: Salamanders have four toes on their front feet and five on their hind feet. Their toes never have claws like those of lizards. Salamanders spend part of their lives in or near water and they lay eggs much like toads and frogs. Their larvae have gills and live in water like tadpoles. Toads also have four toes on their front feet and five on their hind feet.

More on reptiles later.

NEW TRACTOR TIRES

Lexington, Ky.—There is a popular (but erroneous) idea that size and power go hand-in-hand. So, says Joe Bunn, UK Agricultural Experiment Station engineer, many farmers will "oversize" their tractor tires. This means putting on tires which are larger than called for on a particular tractor.

BURLEY PRICES

Lexington, Ky.—Burley tobacco market/prices this season probably will equal or exceed the 64.2 cents per pound average received for the 1960 crop. That was the statement this week from the UK Agricultural Experiment Station economics department in its bi-weekly business outlook letter.

Coal Furnishes Energy For Most Generators

Coal furnished the energy for 66 per cent of the electricity produced by steam-powered generating plants in the continental United States in 1960, the National Coal Association said this week.

Gas was the fuel for 26 per cent of the nation's steam-electric power, and oil supplied the remaining eight per cent. NCA reported in "Steam-Electric Plant Factors, 1960," its annual survey of electric utility industry. In 38 coal-consuming states, coal supplied 84 per cent of the energy for steam turbines, gas 11 per cent and oil five per cent.

(Continued from Page 1) shaken in order to distribute the ballots which were all taken out again and classified according to magisterial districts. They were then counted and tabulated by magisterial districts.

"Challengers for the candidates were present at each of the meetings of the Board. Demand was made by various challengers for permission to inspect the envelopes and the affidavits, but inspection was denied by the Board. One Board member announced that each challenge would be referred to a special grand jury and that each challenge would be recognized to appear before the special grand jury (under what authority that action was taken we have not been apprised)."

The Appellate Court opinion noted that it is the policy of the law to sustain elections where the proof is doubtful and to uphold the validity of an election if it can reasonably be done. A case was cited in which the Board of Election Commissioners in another Kentucky county began the count of absentees in the absence of the contesting candidates. But, it was pointed out, as soon as the presence of each candidate was determined he was admitted to the room where the tabulation was being made, that no one with a right to be present was excluded and that there was no evidence of fraud or deliberate wrong-doing. The court upheld the validity of the election in that case.

But, the high court opinion in the Floyd contest case pointed out "the facts in that case differ considerably from the facts in this case. There the Board substantially complied with the law. Here there was virtually no compliance with the law."

Continuing its discussion of the Floyd county case, the opinion said:

"The Board is specifically directed to meet at 6 p.m. on election day and count the absentee ballots . . . This it did not do. It is provided by KRS 126.270 that the envelopes shall be removed one at a time from the ballot box. As each envelope is removed it shall be examined and, if found satisfactory, opened, and the inner envelope removed and examined. If the inner envelope is found to be satisfactory, the clerk shall read aloud the name of the absent voter and challenge may be made at that time. If the vote is not rejected on challenge the clerk shall open the inner envelope, remove the ballot and write his name on the back. A member of the Board shall then write his name on the back, detach the secondary stub and place the ballot in a regular ballot box. That procedure was not followed. Rather, all of the outer envelopes were removed from the ballot box and opened, the inner envelopes were taken out, classified and placed in various stacks. Then they were all opened, the ballots taken out and signed. The secondary stubs were removed and the ballots were replaced in the ballot box. After having been shaken up, they were all removed again, classified by magisterial district and counted.

The Court of Appeals, it was noted, "is always reluctant to disfranchise voters due to irregularities on the part of officers charged with the duty of conducting the election. "But," the opinion continued, "where the measures resorted to involve the almost total disregard of all the requisites of a particular statute, we cannot dismiss such irregularities as minor or technical in character . . . To say the least, the absentee voting law is difficult to administer. However, it confers a privilege and not an absolute right, and failure of election officials to carry out the provisions of the law may result in disfranchisement of voters taking advantage of it.

"Here there has been virtually a total noncompliance with the procedure prescribed for counting absentee ballots, tabulating returns and considering challenges concerning the absentee voters. We are left with no alternative but to declare that all of the voters who cast the absentee ballots in the race for Democratic nomination for Jaller of Floyd county are disfranchised (Warren vs. Rayburn, Ky. 267 S. W. 2d 720)."

The opinion observed that "of necessity an appeal could not be taken to this court until shortly before the regular election day and, under difficult conditions, was ably practiced by the attorneys for each of the parties."

Udall Is Speaker To Conservation Group

U. S. Secretary of Interior Stewart L. Udall, one of the principal speakers at the recent first annual Kentucky Conservation Congress, discussed the federal government's role in conservation measures and praised Kentucky as one of the six leading states in conservation programs. He said that perhaps the future of the country in the long run rests with how we deal with the resources that we have.

4. The state superintendent of public instruction shall continue to exercise the power of recommendation.

Butler said this last issue involves the questions of whether the State Board of Education should have the power to revoke the certificates of local superintendents and to remove local boards of education without the recommendation of the state superintendent of public instruction.

Butler said that so long as the office of state superintendent remains an elective office, he would be against seeing the power of recommendation pass to the State Board of Education.

Butler was one of several speakers for the two-day meeting, which closed here Friday afternoon.

Representative Carl Perkins from the Seventh Congressional District expressed doubt that a general federal aid-to-education bill will be passed by the next Congress. Perkins noted opponents of the measure are too well organized.

Dr. Phillip Lovejoy, educational administrator and international figure, in the principal address Thursday night urged teachers not to overlook the human factors in education.

Dr. Lovejoy, of Evanston, Illinois, said cooperation of parents at home is needed to teach students how to read.

He described the role of laymen on boards of education as one absolutely desired in a democracy.

In a talk before the Friday general assembly, Harper L. Gatton, retiring executive vice-president and secretary of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, said businessmen are concerned because 50 per cent of the high school graduates are not aware that wage increases result from increased productivity.

Verne P. Horne, director of public relations for the Kentucky Education Association, said quality education can result only from higher standards within the teaching profession.

Waveland Museum Wants Utilitarian Furnishings,

Waveland Museum, the fine old mansion house which is the University of Kentucky's project to show how Kentuckians of the last century, or even earlier, lived and worked, seeks additional items.

Dr. Hambleton Tapp, museum director, said the "wanted list" ranges from a simple birch broom up through a valuable Aubusson rug.

Another item is a huge "granddaddy chair"—just like a "big, old, fat granddaddy would have used."

Idea is to furnish the two-story brick residence—built about five miles south of Lexington by a relative of Daniel Boone—in items representative and typical of Kentucky's history. Hundreds of items already have been received and the museum is now open to the public.

But other rooms need furnishing, Dr. Tapp says, and items are also needed for the slave quarters outside the house.

(Continued from Page One) These are loin-girding days, and they are days, too, when we would do well to think back to days when a few grains of parched corn was the only food between hungry human beings and utter starvation.

Easy chairs and shiny cars, groaning tables and all the luxuriant do-dads mean little till we look back on crude benches, sleds and jolt-wagons, and feel long-forgotten pangs of hunger and the cold when log fires burned low. Freedom is a wonderful thing, but till we know that we were not always free, that others this day endure oppression and that our freedom can be lost, is even now threatened—not till we know these hard facts can we be truly thankful for freedom.

We say we are thankful that we live in a land where we can worship God according to the dictates of our own consciences—how, indeed, can one truly worship God except as conscience dictates?—and yet till we can see the danger of being denied that precious right can we really be appreciative.

We are all-equipped for being thankful. But let us, each one, thank God as best we may for all we are, for all we have and for all our dreams.

Right now I am particularly thankful for His patience with me.

To Give Viewpoint Of State's Educators

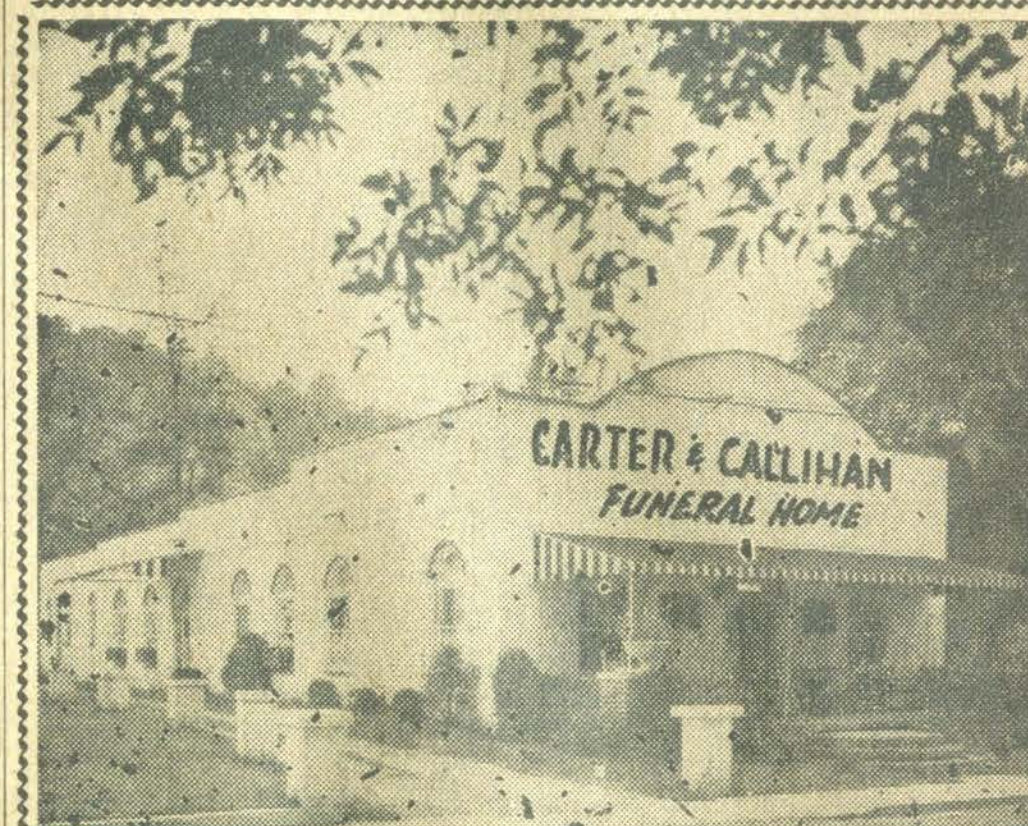

Leaders in the Kentucky Education Association have decided to give the Governor's Commission on Public Education the profession's viewpoint on the recommendations for improving the schools of the state, made to them by their study groups. Writing in the current issue of the official KEA magazine, Dr. J. Marvin Dodson, their executive secretary, explained the present status of the reports, and said: "We are moving slowly and carefully to make certain that, to the best of our ability, the appraisals we make will be to the advantage of the school children of Kentucky."

In viewing the reports, Dr. Dodson said the one made by the curriculum committee represented "an exhaustive study," and pointed out that it contained a "very comprehensive set of recommendations."

VANDERPOOL SERVES

Fort Bliss, Texas — Army Pvt. Raymond Vanderpool, whose wife, Cleora, lives at Melvin, Kentucky, completed the 21-week Hawk missile and launcher maintenance course at The Air Defense School, Fort Bliss, Texas, November 7.

Vanderpool was trained to assemble, test, adjust and perform organizational maintenance on the Hawk missile system and launcher.

He entered the Army last March and completed basic training at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

The 22-year-old soldier, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Vanderpool, Garrett, is a 1958 graduate of Garrett high school.

Grade A turkey is your best buy for the Thanksgiving table. Two other grades for which official standards also exist are B and C. While turkeys of these grades are just as nutritious as the Grade A bird, they lack the "meatiness" and fine appearance the top grade turkey has, according to USDA.

Supermarkets are making it easier for you to shop. Taking a cue from USDA research, many stores are now making produce aisles wider, keeping them clear of carts and island displays, and putting more "bounce" in your shopping. (When you "bounce" from side to side of the aisle—that is, shop in a zig-zag fashion—you can look at all the items without having to backtrack.)

When buying shrimp, compare prices between shrimp in the shell and shelled shrimp. Two pounds raw shrimp in the shell makes one pound cooked, shelled shrimp.

What's Going On in FISH & WILDLIFE by MINOR CLARK, Commissioner
Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources

Q. I am writing on behalf of the 400 members of the Teletype Gun Club. We would like some information about gun laws in your state. How should we carry handguns, rifles and shotguns while going to and from target shooting areas by foot, automobile, or public transportation? Are there any different requirements when transporting firearms within cities (for repair, sale, etc.) or when hunting in your state? Nick Poolos, Skokie, Ill.

A. A shotgun or rifle can be carried in automobiles, or in case, or out of case, assembled, or broken down at any time. All revolvers of any type can be carried at any time in car, or in person as long as they are not concealed. For further information write the Attorney General's Office, Capitol Building, Frankfort, Kentucky.

Q. I am thinking of hunting ducks and geese late in the season. After New Year's Day will a 1962 license be required for this? C. L. Van Zee, Renville, Minn.

A. Kentucky hunting licenses run with the calendar year and it is necessary to purchase a 1962 license to hunt in 1962. However, our duck season ends on December 30, while the end of the goose season is January 8.

Q. There has been a question raised in this community about the game law. It is: Can a landowner and/or a land renter hunt on the property (he is owner or renter of) in season without a hunting license? W. E. Brinkley, Hanson, Ky.

A. According to Kentucky Revised Statute 150.170 a resident landowner or a resident tenant residing on the land and making his living from the land may hunt on such property in season without a license. What's your question about the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources? Send it to Minor Clark, commissioner, Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Frankfort, Kentucky, and it will be answered in this column. All questions must be signed but only the initials will be used in this column, if requested.

State Directs Sheriffs To File Liens On Cars If Taxes Remain Unpaid

Frankfort, Nov. 21 (Spl.)—The Kentucky Department of Revenue, by a regulation filed Oct. 29, 1961, has directed each county sheriff to file liens on all motor vehicles on which property taxes have not been paid by Dec. 1, 1961.

A law enacted by the 1960 General Assembly requires proof of payment of personal property taxes on motor vehicles before the vehicles may be registered for 1962. As part of the enforcement of this law, the Department has issued the regulation, effective Nov. 29, directing the sheriff of each county to file notices of liens with the county clerks on all motor vehicles which were assessed in their county and on which the property taxes have not been paid. The delinquency date on these bills is Dec. 1.

Should the owner of a motor vehicle fail to pay the taxes prior to the filing of liens, he will be subject to payment of the taxes plus penalty of 6 per cent and filing and release fees of $1.50 before licensing the vehicles for 1962.

AMERICA IS STILL GROWING! There are many reasons for us to have confidence in our country, and not the least of these is the remarkable record our industries have achieved. Since 1900, our gross national product has increased at the average rate of 3% per year, from $79 billion at the turn of the century, to $503 billion in 1960. This gross national product will be rapidly approaching the $1 trillion mark by 1975—another good reason for confidence in a growing America.

Educators Are Startled By Secretary Ribicoff Speech At Washington

Secretary Ribicoff startled 1,000 college presidents and deans recently by telling them: "I don't think you really care about education, or are going to do anything about it."

And, he told the annual meeting of the American Council on Education, "there are very, very few newspapers across the country which have a deep interest in education, and support it."

The head of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare discarded most of a prepared text and launched into a blistering attack on those who, he said, profess an interest in education but do not accept their share of the burdens.

He described the Administration's unsuccessful fight to get a program of general federal aid to education through Congress last summer, and asked:

"Where were you educators? Each of you were looking for your own particular part, and were not interested in doing something for education as a whole. And education was done in."

Ribicoff was roundly applauded at the end of his talk even though he questioned the value of the very meeting he was addressing.

"You aren't going to solve the problems of education by meeting in conferences like this," he said.

"If you believe education is important, the best thing you can do is to make your speeches back in your own home town."

At another point Ribicoff asked: "How many of you have sat down with your congressman to explain the importance of education? I won't embarrass you by asking for a show of hands. But I would wager it is less than five per cent."

The Cabinet member also suggested that college officials should do missionary work.

THE JUDGE DECIDES

During his lifetime, the late Joseph D. Harkins, Sr., of Prestonsburg, was certified to try many cases in Harlan County Circuit Court. One case, Turner vs. Turner, the names of the litigants omitted here, "should never have been in court," according to Judge Harkins.

It was a land case, had been in court for years. Harkins spent many hours pondering the most involved litigation he had ever encountered and then wrote an opinion that flayed the litigants.

"The Court has given much time and thought, both in the day time and the night time, even awakening in the middle of the night thinking of this case and endeavoring to reconcile the testimony and to arrive at a proper decision of the issues herein. The record is such that it is difficult to give credence to any of the testimony of the claimants herein or other material witnesses."

The judicial temper exploded into an opinion that may some day become a classic to be recalled by legal historians.

"These consolidated cases are headaches, involve a family dispute, and should never have been in court. At one time or another one or more phases of the cases have been before Judge Gilbert, Special Judges H. Clay Kaufman and J. B. Hannah, and in all branches are now before the present special judge for final determination and judgement."

"At the outset, I have no hesitancy in saying that covering a law practice of thirty-five years I have never come in contact, in all the cases with which I have been connected, either directly or indirectly, with such conditions as are shown in this record; there is admitted fraud; there is admitted alteration of deeds executed by the Master Commissioner of this Court; there is admitted theft; there is apparent forgery and alteration of a further deed; there is a deed on record in the Harlan County Court Clerk's office as to which both the grantors and the grantee disclaim any knowledge, and un-

SPENDING RISES

Federal spending for domestic nondefense purposes has risen 110 per cent in the last eight years, from $12.7 billion to $16.5 billion but defense spending increased only 9 per cent, from 0.46.9 billion to an estimated $51.1 billion in the current fiscal year. The average annual cost of defense spending from 1854 and including the 1962 estimate is $44.9 billion.

DeRossett Is Thankful

I am deeply grateful to the voters of Magisterial District No. 1 for the confidence you expressed in me at the recent election. I sincerely trust that I will be able at all times to so conduct the office that you will feel your confidence was not misplaced.

As I pledged you in the campaign, I will serve with dedication and purpose and will be available at all times to offer you the facilities of the office.

Again, to all of you, I repeat my appreciation. My opponent fought a clean race and the voters expressed themselves without rancor or ill feeling.

We can now all work together for the good of Floyd county.

Basketball Magazine Picks Morehead Team One of Top in Nation

Morehead, Ky., Nov. 20 (Spl.)—The latest basketball magazine to hit the newsstands has picked Morehead State College as the No. 12 basketball team in the nation. And observers who know their basketball are saying that the 1961-1962 Eagles may even be better than that.

At any rate, the Eagles, who open at home next Friday, December 1, should have one of their finest seasons in history and will undoubtedly be one of the most colorful Morehead contingents to ever appear on the 5,000-seat fieldhouse floor.

Interest is great because Bob Laughlin has assembled a talent-packed squad of 14 basketballers who give him fine depth, great speed, towering size and tremendous shooting.

Returning from last year's Ohio Valley Conference championship team which defeated Xavier in the NCAA tournament before losing a nip-and-tuck affair to the University of Kentucky in the last minute of play are four starters. Add to this group four of last season's reserves, three outstanding sophomores and two transfers and you have the ingredients for a great team.

Leading the Eagles are three seniors—5-11 Granville Williams, 6-8 1/2 Ed Noe and 6-6 Tom Hamilton.

Williams, a leading All-American candidate, is an uncanny shot who averaged 22.7 points a game last year while Noe is the best big man in the OVC and is considered a fine professional prospect. Hamilton returns to the squad after missing last year because of illness, and adds good depth under the boards.

Add to this trio six outstanding juniors led by 6-9 rebounding ace Norman Pokley and you see why Laughlin smiles. The other juniors are: John Gibson, a 6-6 scrapper from Prestonsburg who started at the forward opposite Pokley last year; William Thompson, a 5-11 guard, who will probably get the starting nod opposite Williams; Bob Rice, a 6-5 junior college transfer who is a great shot; Tom Ellis, a surprising 6-5 forward, who could get the starting call at one of the forwards and Bert Greene, a phenomenal shooter who is a former all-stater from Olive Hill.

The sophomores include: Cecil Clair, a 6-4 all-stater from Breathitt County; Bob Hoover, a real scrapper who stands 6-4; Roy Ware, a 6-1 guard who right now has a hold on the number three guard spot and Mickey Wells, a jumping jack transfer from Miami University.

The 1961-1962 schedule:
Dec. 1, Anderson College, home; Dec. 4, Miami, Fla., home; Dec. 5, Berea, home; Dec. 7, Ohio University, home; Dec. 9, Tennessee Tech, home; Dec. 11, Jacksonville University, home; Jan. 6, Villa Madonna, home; Jan. 9, East Tennessee, home; Jan. 13, Tennessee Tech, away; Jan. 18, Western, home; Jan. 20, Murray, home; Jan. 27, Middle Tennessee, away; Jan. 30, Union, home; Feb. 1, Eastern, away; Feb. 3, East Tennessee, away; Feb. 7, Ohio University, away; Feb. 10, Middle Tennessee, home; Feb. 12, Murray, away; Feb. 19, Western, away; Feb. 22, Marshall, away; Feb. 24, Loyola, New Orleans; Feb. 26, Marshall, home; March 5, Eastern, home.

Planning Studies Grant Of $10,286 is Awarded To Ashland, Announced

Frankfort, Nov. 23 (Spl.)—A federal grant of $10,286 has been allocated to Ashland through the Kentucky Department of Economic Development to help pay the cost of two planning studies.

Walter Shouse, director of the state agency's Planning and Zoning Division, said the two projects will involve preparation of a land-use plan for the city's future development and drafting of a program for public improvements.

The federal grant, plus $3,429 provided by Ashland, will pay salaries of the Ashland planning staff for the one-year project period.

TO APPEAR AT LAKE LANES

A resident of Yardley, Pennsylvania, Lening divides his time between managing Fairlanes Bowling in Fairless Hills and topling the trophies with regularity in the Delaware Valley's top circuits.

Lening already has built up a long list of bowling honors. Probably his greatest thrill was his most recent when he captained the Fair-lanes team which placed ninth in the 1958 American Bowling Congress championships in Syracuse, New York. It marked the first time a Delaware Valley squad ever cracked the "Top Ten" in ABC tourney play.

In addition to captaining the Fairlanes contingent, Lening teamed up with Vince Lucci, Sr., of Trenton, to place 11th in the ABC doubles.

During the 1951-1952 season, Lening teamed with Mike Quiso, of Trenton, to win the New Jersey State Doubles title. He repeated in 1956-1957 with Lucci.

He has bowled seven 300 games and has had a high invitational series of 827. He is participating this week in the world bowling tournament at McCormick Place, Chicago.

Lening will appear here, December 2-3, for the grand opening of the six new lanes at Lake Lanes.

STOVEWOOD

All I seem to do these days is to explain my vocabulary, for I must have lived beyond the usefulness of what I knew as a boy. A few days ago a young man and I were comparing scars that we had acquired and wondering how any boy ever grows up. I showed him a big scar on one of my fingers and explained that I cut that finger while I was splitting stovewood. He gave me such a vacant look that I knew that he did not understand anything about stovewood and even the term itself. Then I acted out, to my satisfaction, how I had put a big sliver of a "cut" of yellow poplar, on end, on the chopping block and was holding it while I still further reduced it to small sticks for our cookstove. I held a little too well when I was splitting the last stick, for I jammed the sharp ax right through the better part of the finger and have the scar to attest my lack of skill. Many men whom I knew had similar scars, for not to have cut your finger while splitting stovewood was almost admitting that you did not split stovewood.

With that as a start, I gave a lengthy discussion of stovewood and its various uses besides furnishing fuel for the stove. Pens, barns, houses, fences, chimneys, what can't you make with stovewood sticks? When I see expensive bundles of logs already notched for little fellows to build houses with, I still wonder whether they can get as much fun out of their kit of logs as we got out of less symmetrical but none-the-less woody sticks that we used in our building.

Little fellows had chores to do, except that we did not know that word. We just were expected to bring in chips and stovewood and, when we were a little larger, firewood for the fireplace itself. Even a little tiny boy can carry a small number of stovewood sticks and, by proper encouragement from his mother or sister, imagine that he is thereby growing up fast, just as later he will be told that turning a grindstone somehow conduces to one's growing up and becoming a great man. Of course, with a wagon to haul the sticks in, whether it is a red one that Santa Claus brought or a home-made one, every little boy can prolong the chore of working.

All older houses had a stovewood box, usually a big wooden crate that had protected some article of furniture or just a rough home-made one that was the product of such skill or lack of it on the farm itself. My job, very far back in my little boyhood, was to keep that box filled. Mother made me feel that the family might die of starvation if there were no stovewood at hand, that an empty stovewood box was a sign of shiftlessness and being just plain white trash.

Our nearest neighbor's house was distinguished in our neighborhood by having what has been called all sorts of names: an open passage between the kitchen-dining room and the rest of the house, or a breezeway, or a dog-trot; you may choose what you like, but our community called it a passage. The little girl who lived there was my constant playmate. We built every conceivable sort of structure with the big yellow-poplar stovewood sticks. If the weather was too bad to be actually out in the yard, we could still, like the child in Robert Louis Stevenson's CHILD'S GARDEN OF VERSES, "happy and building at home," by playing in the passage.

One day we grew tired of making endless fences and towering pens and decided that we should play something else. I suggested

Working, relaxed, with a bare handful of 138,000 volts

.....another new way AEP keeps your electric costs low

Linemens' tenseness while working on "live" high-voltage electric lines is practically eliminated by a new maintenance method...barehanded. The men work relaxed, high above the ground from specially designed insulated equipment. Barehanded high-line repair work is done much faster, more safely, while the electric power continues to flow.

Doing things in new ways to improve service and efficiency is one big reason why the average unit price of electricity, for customers of Kentucky Power Company, has not gone up during twenty years of inflation.

Your service is better, your rates are lower because Kentucky Power Company is a part of the American Electric Power System. Supplying more electricity than any other investor-owned utility, AEP aids the economic growth of 2,350 communities in seven states. Through integrated operations, progressive engineering, research and coordinated management, the six member companies of AEP bring you low-cost power with greatest dependability.

that I play-like I was a snake and that she would kill me. I got down on my tummy, inched my way toward the little five-year-old, hissing and made an ugly face. The play-like was so real that she stuck a hard smack with one of the biggest stovewood sticks and temporarily put the snake out of the running.

I still wonder who was more surprised, she when I screamed or I when she actually hit the snake. Yes, stovewood had its uses, actual and play-like; I like to remember both uses.
