This Town-- That World

HE TOOK A LICKING
The "likeliest" story you've heard is the one ascribed to the fellow who showed up with his face looking as if two pro football teams had scrimmaged thereon. "I'll tell you the truth fellows," he is quoted as saying, "I used bay rum on my face after shaving, and I'm here to tell you that drunk I met has a mighty rough tongue."

WORTHWHILE TIP: The bass will strike at Dewey Lake this week. I will not be fishing.

WHY WORRY?

This is Newspaper Week. So the perpetrator of this column is taking a rest from this particular labor. He fills the space on out with this contribution which started God-knows-where.

There are only two reasons for worry. Either you're successful or you're not successful.

And if you're successful there's nothing to worry about. If you're not successful, there are only two things to worry about—your health is either good or you're sick.

And if your health is good, there's nothing to worry about. If you're sick, there are only two things to worry about. You're either going to get well or you are going to die.

If you're going to get well, there is nothing to worry about; if you are not going to get well, there are only two things to worry about. You're either going to heaven, or you're not.

If you are going to heaven, there is nothing to worry about; and if you are going to the other place, you'll be so doggone busy shaking hands with old friends you won't have time to worry.

INJUNCTION CASE HEARD

By Judge Eldred Adams; Judge Neal Is Studying Hale-Goble Litigation

Hearings were being held here Wednesday by special judges on two cases which have attracted wide attention.

One of these was being conducted by Special Judge Eldred E. Adams, of Louisa, to determine if the temporary injunction granted small mine operators to restrain actions of a group of miners and a field worker of the United Mine Workers of America should be terminated or made permanent.

In the other, Special Judge Neal, of Owensboro, was working toward a decision in the contest case of Lawrence Hale against Dan Goble, who was declared the Democratic nominee for Jaller.

Plaintiffs in the mine case were heard last Thursday. The defendants had their inning Wednesday. The petitioner seeking the injunction accused the workers of picketing and threatening employees of five small-mine operations. Although production from small mines was brought to a near-standstill, no actual violence was reported.

Considerable evidence in the election contest case has been ruled out during two day-long sessions conducted by Judge Neal. The record as a whole is voluminous, and its perusal, the consideration of testimony and arguments of counsel may require most or all of this week, it was said Tuesday.

WALKOUT OF STUDENTS HITS CANEY COLLEGE

3 TEACHERS QUIT STAFF, RIFT RESULT

Caney Director Thinks Work Not Basic Issue; Walkout Held 'Partial'

A partial walkout of students took place Tuesday at Caney Junior College for the second time since the nationally famous Caney Creek Community Center began its work at Pippa Passes, Knott county, 45 years ago.

William Hayes, director of the college, described the situation there as "a partial walkout," pointing out that approximately half of the 170 students were either on campus or had asked permission to go home during "the upset." He expressed the belief that from 80% to 90% of the student-body will be back in school next Monday.

Obviously, he said, the situation grew out of a demand by students that the week-end work schedule be changed. "But," Hayes added, "the real issue is something not yet probed to the bottom. We think the objections come more from some faculty-members than from the students."

Trouble within the faculty culminated at a joint faculty-trustee meeting at which two instructors were given an opportunity to resign and did so. These were George Lozier, Jr., teacher of chemistry and biology, and Raymond Packard, art instructor. Later, Raymond Fuller, teacher of music, resigned.

Mr. Hayes said the week-end work issue was considered but the demands made were rejected because they were accompanied by threats if these demands were not met.

Mr. Hayes said the week-end work issue was considered but the demands made were rejected because they were accompanied by threats if these demands were not met. "Everything is fairly orderly" was the description given of the student protest and subsequent action.

CITIZENS STATE VIEWS ON NEED OF SHELTERS

To build or not to build a family fall-out shelter is a much debated question with many Prestonsburg residents. To a large group of family heads the question is slightly different: Can I afford it? To others it is: Can I afford not to build?

Many advocate community shelters, several think the construction of family-size shelters is a useless venture unless everybody builds them.

To learn what people think and plan The Times has quizzed a cross-section of residents here on the subject.

Here's who they are and what they say:

BILL POTTER, chief of police: "I am in favor of community shelters for two reasons. First, I live in a rented house and I don't know where I'll be if a war comes. Second, in a community shelter there would be medical attention for the doctors would be in there with you."

MRS. CLAUDIA LEETE, florist: "Every family ought to have a fall-out shelter. We are going to build one in our store basement."

DR. RUSSELL HALL, health officer: "They are as necessary as the blockhouses our ancestors built for protection against the Indians. I'm in favor of some type around our homes. However, there should be shelters for those caught away from home in time of need."

MRS. PRISCILLA SAMMONS, housewife: "I think we ought to have community shelters. Too many persons are unable to build family shelters."

TOM G. DINGUS, insurance agent: "I'm not going to build a family fall-out shelter for the simple reason it would be invaded

Copperhead Bite Fatal To Bevinsville Child; Succumbs At Hospital

Besides the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mullins, Sr., he is survived by a brother and two sisters.

Funeral rites were conducted at 10 a.m., Sunday, from the home of Doy Isaac, at Bevinsville, the Revs. Jerry Hall and Johnny Bates officiating. Burial was made in the family cemetery on Jack's Creek under the direction of Hall Bros. Funeral Home.

GROUND BROKEN FOR MUD CREEK SCHOOL

Ground was broken Saturday for the projected one-third-million-dollar Big Mud Creek elementary school building, with County Superintendent Charles F. Clark and others shoveling earth with much ceremony and music.

D. W. Howard, Betsy Layne high school principal, presided at the festivity, the school band played, teachers and patrons spoke enthusiastically of the successful consummation of an effort begun years ago to provide modern educational advantages to an area containing approximately one-fifth of the population of the county.

"We, of Eastern Kentucky, are too prone to be sectionalistic in our thinking," Clark told the crowd. "I have brought a Right Beaver Creek shovel here as symbolic of the welding together of all the parts of our educational program. Because of geography, this area was almost a part of Pike county, economically. I hope the spirit manifested in the planning of this structure will be translated

103-Year-Old John W. Elliott Succumbs At Daughter's Home; Remembered Seeing Abe Lincoln

John Wesley Elliott, possibly the oldest living Eastern Kentuckian, died last Wednesday morning at the Whitesburg home of his daughter, Mrs. Annie Stumbo, widow of Dr. W. L. Stumbo, of this county. He was 103 years old.

Mr. Elliott's last illness was of a few months' duration. One of the outstanding memories of his long life was that of seeing President Lincoln.

Son of a Methodist circuit rider, the Rev. Robert S. Elliott, and of Mrs. Loraine Hamilton Elliott, he was born at Beaver, this county. He taught school for 14 years, later was a merchant for 56 years, remaining in that business at Nashville until he reached the age of 85. Except for seven years spent in Wyoming, winters spent in Florida and the recent years with his daughter in Letcher county, Mr. Elliott spent all his life in Floyd county. He was a charter member into a unity of thinking and action for all of Floyd county."

The school, which will be open sometime in the next school year, will serve 500 to 600 pupils from 12 rural schools of the Big Mud Creek area. It will be the second largest structure of its kind in the county, erected only by the Prestonsburg high school plant.

Clark pointed out that there was not a single modern school building in Big Mud Creek and that the new structure has long been needed.

"I wasn't superintendent when the building was conceived," he said, "but I've got the same interest in the project as if I had conceived it. John M. Stumbo, your board member for this district, has always had a keen interest in this building and very properly should be called the father of the school."

The building will be constructed by the partnership firm of Astor Meade, W. R. Kendrick and Romney C. Dyer. Cost of the structure will be approximately $316,000.

GOVERNOR WILL BRING STATE FUNCTIONS HERE

Prestonsburg will become the seat of state government for a day next Thursday as Bert T. Combs will perform his duties as Governor from an office in his hometown.

Governor Combs and his staff will set up an office in the Department of Economic Security building on North Lake Drive here. It will be the 14th in the series of the Governor's appearances in his program of taking state government to the people. The first such appearance was at Mayfield, August 22, 1960. Since then he has visited 12 other county-seats—among them, Pikeville and Hazard in this section.

Announced purpose of the Governor's temporary administration of his office outside of Frankfort is to give the people of the entire area an opportunity to go to his office, without prior appointment, and discuss state government with him.

"I think these projects have given us a better insight into how the people want their government conducted," Governor Combs said recently. "They also have given us ideas on how better state government can serve the needs of Kentuckians in the future."

The Governor's office here will open at 8:30 next Thursday morning and will close at 4 p.m. His staff will include representatives of at least six state departments, including Economic Security, Economic Development, Highways, Parks, Personnel and Public Information.

Alcoholism Is Disease, Layne Says; Committee To Combat Is Organized

Alcoholism is the nation's third greatest public health problem, heart disease and cancer being number one and two.

This was pointed out this week by Frank Layne, Prestonsburg, area representative of the Division of Alcoholism, Kentucky Department of Health.

Layne urges support to the Floyd County Committee on Alcoholism now being formed. He believes committees of this kind offer the best way to combat the disease.

The Division has sent about 30 men and women to the Yale School of Alcoholic Studies this year and several of these have been stationed in Eastern Kentucky, Layne said.

HILL DECIDES BALLOT SUITS

Martin Candidates Lose Place on Ballot; Collins Case Dismissed by Hill

Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill last Thursday held that paper ballots shall be printed for city elections which are contested at the November polls, and at the same time ruled that failure to file a petition bearing the required number of unchallenged petitioners' names had lost a slate of candidates at Martin a place on the ballot.

The printing of paper ballots for these races had earlier been directed by order of the Floyd district court, but authority of the court had been questioned.

The rulings directly affect the Martin city election. A suit had been filed earlier in the week, enjoining County Clerk DuRoi Moore from placing the names of W. G. Goff and his running mates on the city ballot there. The plaintiffs, Goff and C. Spencer and others, contended that candidates had also signed the petition filed by Spencer, et al. Disqualification of the 11 left the opposing ticket only a bonafide petitioner, it was contended.

Both rulings were argued Tuesday in the Court of Appeals, and a high court decision was expected immediately.

Candidates for office at Wheelwright and Wayland were threatened with loss of a place on the ballot in their towns because they had filed more than 60 days prior to the November election but Judge Hill held that the maximum of 60 days set for filing is permissive, not mandatory.

The suit of Gorman Collins, Republican candidate for County Judge, against his Democratic opponent, County Judge Henry Stumbo, and the four Magistrates, asking division of the county into more precincts, additional voting machines and the printing of paper ballots was dismissed Monday afternoon by Judge Hill, who held that the plaintiff did not state a cause of action. He directed that the defendants be adjudged their costs.

A motion was filed the next day by Collins, however, asking that the judgment and order of dismissal be set aside.

REVENUE LOSS, BUDGET TROUBLE HITS BOARD

The Floyd County Board of Education, facing an unanticipated loss in revenue after having added instructional and other services at heavy expense, is having budget trouble.

Touching off the financial worries of the administrative personnel was the loss of $15,000 in revenue when the State Tax Commission lowered the franchise assessments of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company and the United Fuel Gas Company by approximately $1,000,000.

This would not in itself have been serious, but the Kentucky Department of Education has initiated a new policy of refusing to allow any school system to exceed its budget. The Board ordinarily would have shifted expenditures equal to the revenue loss to the deficit end, but the new policy precludes this maneuver.

This $15,000 loss didn't do irreparable damage to the budget but the Board has since January 3 slowly added services to the program that will cost an estimated $46,376.

Superintendent Charles Clark and Assistant County Superintendent Wayne Ratliff, in charge of finance, are attempting to cut and

RECEIVERSHIP TO BE ENDED NOVEMBER 15

Court Affirms System Hopelessly Insolvent; Appeal Indication Made

Application of bondholders of the Floyd County Water & Gas System for a 23% increase in gas rates was denied in U. S. district court at Pikeville, Tuesday of last week, by Federal Judge Mac Swinford.

The decision affects approximately 850 users of natural gas supplied by the system. The judge also rendered judgment removing the system from receivership, effective November 15.

In his oral opinion Judge Swinford remarked that previous action of the court had been as a result of agreement and without substantial representation for the consumers. He termed the water and gas system "hopelessly insolvent," and expressed the belief that the bonds are not worth "10 cents to the dollar" and that the federal court's integrity is involved. He added that he does not propose to charge customers of the system for something they are not getting. Line leakage in the system amounts to approximately 25%, it was said.

The bondholders' legal counsel, the Louisville firm of Skaggs, Hays & Fahey, indicated that an appeal may be taken from the judgment. County Attorney Robert S. Wellman argued the case on behalf of the consumers. The increase in rates had been protested by the Floyd fiscal court, Harold J. Stumbo, former assistant county attorney and present trial Commissioner in the County Judge's office, said he appeared in court on behalf of the consumers.

Mrs. Minnie M. Friend, Age 78, Prestonsburg, Dies At Hospital Here

Mrs. Minnie Morell Friend, 78, of Prestonsburg was claimed Friday of last week at the Prestonsburg General hospital after a long illness. She was the widow of Charles E. Friend, who preceded her in death in 1954.

Mrs. Friend was the daughter of the late Frank H. and Isabel Hatcher Morell and was a native of Harold.

Surviving are two sons, Frank S. Friend and Charles E. Friend, at home, and one brother, William F. Morrell, Hickory, North Carolina.

Funeral rites were conducted at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Carter & Callihan Funeral Home chapel, the Rev. Orin M. Simmerman officiating. Burial was made in the family cemetery under the direction of the Carter & Callihan Funeral Home.

pare in order to meet the budgetary challenge.

"We are paring here and there on functions not directly related to the instructional program," Clark said. "In other words, we are cutting out what seems to us to be not so essential."

He points out that there was actually more school money allocated by the state through the Minimum Foundation Law than last year but it is earmarked money and can't be used for any purpose other than what the state designates.

He said definitely that no cuts would be made in salaries of teachers. The budget calls for approximately $2,900,000, of which an estimated $1,900,000 is for teachers' salaries.

The $46,376 needed to implement the extra services the Board has voted must come from local school revenue.

The loss in franchise taxes results from a determination of the state Tax Commission that the two firms had less earnings than last year.

Clark details the services added by the Board that will consume the $46,376 if the money can be found. These are:

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

IN DEFENSE OF SMALL MINES
EDITOR, The Times:

We continue to hear criticism of the small mines because they do not pay the same fixed daily wage as the large, mechanized mines pay. The small hand-loading mine really pays far higher wages per ton of coal. It is true that the wages are spread among more people. This is because a man with a hand shovel can't load as much coal as a loading machine that costs in the neighborhood of $75,000.00.

In a large mechanized mine, the fixed rate of pay averages $24.00 per day. If a man works 200 days in a year, he earns $4,800.00. A mine that employs 600 such men will pay them in wages in a year about $2.8 million dollar.

To produce the same amount of coal, the small mines will employ about 1,200 men and if their average earnings are $17.00 a day, these men will earn $3,400.00 a year and the total wages paid to the 1,200 men in a year, will be just over 4 million dollars as compared to the $2.8 million dollars paid in wages by the mechanized mines for the same tonnage of coal.

Is it not better to have 1,200 men earning 4 million dollars in a year rather than to have half that many earning 2.8 million dollars and the other half of the men on state aid. The men who earn $3,400.00 a year, are earning more than the average Floyd county schoolteacher. They earn more than the average garage mechanic and substantially more than state highway maintenance employees. Floyd county would have prosperity if it had full employment on this basis.

Coal mined by the small mines is sold in the same market as that mined in the mechanized operations. The people who buy it will pay no more for one type of coal than they will for another, except because of quality. Neither will the buyer pay more for our coal than he is required to pay for coal that is loaded in Hazard or Manchester or Pikeville. The wages paid per ton of coal produced in those areas is about half the wages paid in Floyd county small mines.

The small mine in Floyd county puts more money into circulation per ton of coal mined and provides jobs for people, many of whom could not hold a job in a mechanized operation.

PRIVATE CITIZEN SURVIVAL OWN RESPONSIBILITY, SAID

Frankfort, Oct. 16 (Spl.)—The national plan for civil defense quite clearly places the vital responsibility for survival with the private citizen, Maj. Gen. Arthur Y. Lloyd, Kentucky adjutant general and head of the state civil defense organization points out.

"Individuals and families should be prepared to exist on personal stocks of survival items in their homes and shelter areas for two weeks following nuclear attack," Lloyd warned.

Each individual is charged with looking out for himself and his family, Lloyd emphasized, by planning to survive a complete disruption of normal life and a lengthy period without electricity, gas and running water.

Every family should build up a two-week supply of food and water in the home or fallout shelter, the civil defense administrator repeated.

Some specific instructions for stocking the fallout shelter were given by Everett Hall, training, plans and information officer of the state civil defense organization.

Refrigeration must be discontinued, he pointed out, so all the perishable foods must be canned or preserved. Pure water should be stored in tightly-closed containers. After about six months on the shelf a canned item should be removed and consumed in the family's regular menu, being replaced with a fresh can in the stockpile.

The more perishable items such as powdered milk, flour, sugar, cocoa, etc., should be replaced more often, Hall said.

The family's customary food preferences should be generally followed, he explained, since familiar foods are more acceptable during a crisis. An absolute minimum of cooking should be contemplated, however, since the cooking arrangements will be makeshift and unsuited for preparing full meals. The larder should be stocked for the most part with ready-to-eat foods and items such as bouillon and gelatin which are high-efficiency foods, needing no preservative measures and an insignificant space for storage.

An excellent example of the typical basement fallout shelter is in the Lexington home of Dr. Frank Dickey, president of the University of Kentucky. Built with Federal funds in April, 1960, it has long served as a training and instruction point for Lexington and U. K. civil defense training. Thousands of people, according to Dr. Dickey, have inspected the shelter since it was opened.

The accompanying photographs show the interior of the shelter and some of the food and other items which should be stocked in the family fallout shelter.

The shelter will accommodate six persons. Bunk beds are three-quarter size. With a few minutes of emergency warning the canned food and water supply can be increased to adequate two-week provision status. Last minute stockup, Dr. Dickey says, would also include books and writing materials, table games and other diversions.

The Dickey shelter has been used many times overnight, just to get some idea of the effects of confinement on different personality types.

Dr. Dickey said that a comprehensive study is being made at the University of Kentucky to determine the best locations for the assembly of people on the campus in the event of a nuclear emergency. Rather than keeping permanent stocks of food in these locations, he said, University authorities are working out a safe method of moving vital supplies from their central storage locations to the various assembly centers. The same methods, he added, should prove valuable to large-scale urban planning.

Items needed for the family fallout shelter:

Food and food equipment: Seven gallons of water per person, food to last two weeks, eating utensils and napkins. (Remember water may be too scarce to wash dishes. If paper or plastic plates, etc., are used provide enough for two weeks.) Openers for cans and bottles, pocket knife, camp stove or canned heat, necessary pots and pans, seasonings and matches.

Sanitation equipment: Garbage can with lid, 20 gallon size, covered pail for toilet purposes and covered can (10 gallon size) to empty it into, toilet paper, paper towels, sanitary napkins, plain soap and waterless soap, grocery bags and newspapers for wrapping refuse, household chlorine and an insecticide, one quart of each, rubber gloves.

General shelter equipment: Battery radio with two-week supply of batteries, flashlights and electric lantern with extra batteries, emergency first aid kit with an emergency medical manual, clothing and bedding, reading matter and writing materials, games, cards and other diversionary provisions, simple tools, pliers, screwdriver, hammer, etc., home-use radiation meter if available, a hand-winding clock and a calendar.

Special shelter provisions: Babies and invalids frequently require separate foods, rubber sheets, etc.; personal medicine needs—insulin, digitalis, etc.

IT'S NOT ALL BAD, NOT ALL GOOD

The Floyd County Times earnestly seeks to avoid the role of carping critic as public education in Kentucky is under scrutiny. It would remind those who read this newspaper that the studies being made reveal strong points as well as the weak, virtues as well as faults.

Any comment on education or any other phase of public affairs must include these ingredients of justice if they are to merit the respect of honest, respectable citizens.

It is a pity that the reports which have been made, and some of which are yet to be released, by the Commission on Public Education, Booz, Allen & Hamilton, the Chicago firm of consultants, Associated Consultants in Education and others are so voluminous that they cannot be printed, in full text, in every newspaper, great and small, in Kentucky. The people need to study the views of those who express views not simply because they are disgruntled or disappointed personally.

There are many factors to be considered. The Times has editorially considered a few of these, none of which may be of greatest importance but all of which seem basic to us as we still hope for practicality and to be rid of the millstone of politics in its shoddy aspects.

We have regarded as necessary for good teaching the education of teachers in what to teach rather than how to teach; in substance rather than form; in practice rather than theory. At the same time we have argued that county board members should be elected on a county-wide basis and every four years, not by divisions and not throwing education into a biennial dogfight with demoralizing regularity.

This matter of board-member election, among other things, will in all probability be tossed into the laps of members of the State Legislature, next January. We are encouraged to learn that both Booz, Allen & Hamilton and State Auditor Schneider have recommended that countywide election of school board members is desirable. If there is a valid reason for opposition to this change, we would like to hear it and be permitted to offer this reason to the people for their consideration along with other matters of transcending interest.

Mrs. Dora B. Cole, 79, Of Drift, Is Claimed; Funeral Held Wednesday

Mrs. Dora B. Cole, 79, of Drift, was claimed by a long illness, Sunday, at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Jane Mullins, at Drift. She suffered a hip injury two years ago and had been in ill health since then.

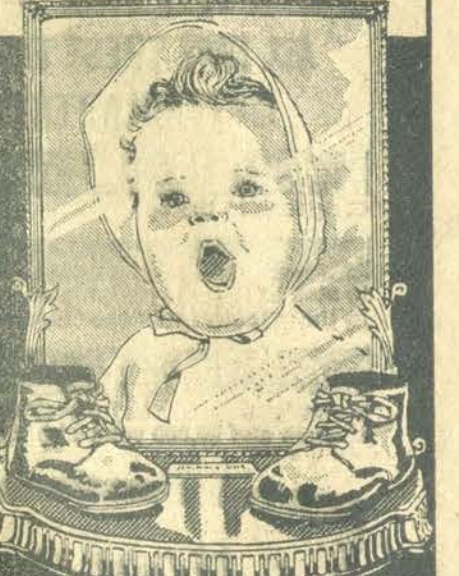

Mrs. Cole was a daughter of John and Margaret Elliott Jones and the widow of Willie Cole, who died in 1950. She was a member of the Regular Baptist church. Surviving sons and daughters, besides Mrs. Mullins, are Johnny Cole, also of Drift, Mrs. Melvina Raloff, Olympia, Wash., Mrs. Draxie Mullins, Jackson, O., Mrs. Claude Halstead, Charleston, W. Va., Mrs. Mabel Ratliff, of Hunter, and Mrs. Lizzie Colvin, Louisville.

Funeral rites were conducted at 10 a.m. Wednesday, from the Old Beaver Regular Baptist church at Minnie, the Revs. Charley Jones, Johnny Jones and Perry Sexton officiating. Burial was made in the Drift cemetery under the direction of Hall Bros. Funeral Home.

In captivity a few bucks reach 20 years. In the wild both good and bad die young. In an eight-year period, Michigan biologists examined over 60,000 bucks and found very few over 10 1/2 years old. Even in lightly hunted areas only one out of 40 to 50 bucks is still around for its fifth hunting season. —Sports Afraid.

SPORTS AFIELD

By TED KESTING

Only the veteran angler realizes that it's the retrieve that causes a fish to strike so you can land him—not the lure — insists Jason Lucas, Angling Editor, Sports Afield Magazine. A poor lure retrieved well can do better than a good one retrieved badly.

In pike fishing, for instance, there's an excellent topwater retrieve. When the lure hits the water, give it a very hard splash, then bring it toward you so fast that it makes a slight gurgling sound and leaves a wake of bubbles. Pause just a second or two and keep repeating until the lure is right up to the boat. The pike may even grab the lure as you're lifting it from the water.

The pike's bigger brother, the muskellunge, will follow in close even more often than the pike; but muskies are not generally hooked so close to the boat.

For bass, let the lure rest where it falls for about ten seconds—on dull days, even longer. Then quite gently twitch the lure forward a few inches; keep repeating including pauses and twitches. Try to stay on your mental toes, so to speak, for when a bass takes this almost stationary lure you have to strike like a flash or you probably won't hook him.

When bass are hitting moderately well, you'll often get most by a retrieve of moderate speed, since it lets you show the lure to more bass than does the very slow one. But this moderate speed retrieve should also be erratic, with short pauses and twitches.

The steady surface retrieve can bring plenty of strikes but is poor for landing bass. In using little surface lures for bluegills and crappies, a still slower retrieve is practically necessary if you're to catch more than a rare one. Just give the thing gentle little twitches of half an inch or so, with pauses of at least two or three seconds, sometimes considerably longer, between twitches.

HONOR STILL AT MOREHEAD

Library Room Dedicated To Instructor-Author; Mrs. Arnow Is Speaker

Morehead, Ky., Oct. 19 (Spl.)—James Still, one of Kentucky's greatest writers, was honored last Thursday at Morehead State College.

The occasion—the dedication of the James Still Room in the Johnson Camden Library—brought nationally-known Harriette Arnow to the campus to deliver the dedicatory address to over 2,000 persons gathered for the occasion.

Mrs. Arnow praised Still for his courage to write as he pleases and for being a man of intense human dignity. "In a world apparently intent on its own destruction, it is good to take part in this tribute to James Still," she said.

Mrs. Arnow, a native Kentuckian, is the author of the best-selling novel, "The Dollmaker" and others.

One of the foremost interpreters of Appalachian mountain life, Still has given his manuscripts, published works, snapshots, photographs and a desk from his two-room log cabin in Knott county to the college to place in the room which bears his name.

Mr. Still is no stranger to the Morehead campus, having served as a member of the outstanding summer Writers' Workshop staff for the past nine years. Last spring, he spent a semester on the Morehead campus as a writer in residence, inspiring eager students with the great talent which he possesses.

Still, who lives alone in a 150-year-old, two-room log house near Hindman on Dead Mare Branch, is a rare author who has short stories and poems which he has never submitted for publication, even though there is always a waiting market for anything he writes.

He says, "I have no particular urge to publish—my urge simply is to write. There was a time when it seemed important to me to be constantly publishing, but not any more. This is not the spur nowadays. There are some things a man does just for himself and nobody else."

The great Kentucky author-poet has written three widely-acclaimed books, numerous short stories and poems which have been published in America's leading magazines and has received numerous awards.

His novel, "River of Earth," received the Southern Author's award as the best novel of the year and his books—"Hounds on the Mountain," a collection of poems, and "On Troublesome Creek," a collection of short stories—are classics.

Still has been a regular contributor to The Atlantic since 1936 and his short stories and poems have appeared in The Saturday Evening Post, Yale Review, Nation, New Republic, Poetry, Story, Virginia Quarterly Review and numerous other publications.

His short stories have appeared in many anthologies, including the Pocket Atlantic Anthology, The Yale Review Anthology, The American Accent Anthology and the American Tradition Anthology.

"Mrs. Razor," a short story made into a television play, is one of three Still works to be selected to appear in Best American Short Stories. In 1937, 1939, and 1941 his short stories won O. Henry Memorial prizes with "Bat Flight" named second only to a William Faulkner story in 1939.

NATURE TRAILS

THOUGHT IN VERSE: ONE WITH ALL
My atoms sing in unison
With the atoms of the tree,
I feel within my very blood
The rhythm of the sea;
My atoms keep their orbits
Like planets about their sun,
Endowed with cosmic wisdom,
With all they feel at one. —R.M.R.

THE STORK
The stork, long hailed as the bringer of the babies, and as an emblem of good fortune, is yet one of the most melancholy and philosophical birds known. It is often found standing in a solemn and dignified manner, perched on the top of the wall of the ruins of some great ancient city, like Ephesus, as if speculating upon the deeper mysteries of life and death. Many travelers have often noticed the stork on the top of the walls of ruined cities that once knew splendor and magnificence, and they often speak of this solemn and dignified bird as "an undertaker in black and white, brooding over departed grandeur."

When seen standing in solemn mien on the top of a wall that once formed maybe a great temple to the ancient gods of Greece or Rome, this bird seems to have the gravity of an aged philosopher musing upon the foibles of man and desiring that all earthly things come to an ending in decay and death.

The stork, a member of the order, Herodiones, belongs to the same family as spoonbills and wood ibises. It is a bird of Europe and Asia Minor, and has never been naturalized in America. In Holland and Germany, storks are regarded as symbols of good luck, and they are almost worshipped in Holland, because they destroy the worms and crawfish that endanger the dikes.

Storks are long-legged wading birds, and they build their nests on the walls of buildings. This bird adds to its nest each year, until the nest becomes so high, the stork has to stand astride it when incubating the eggs, and gives the impression of standing instead of sitting on its nest. Storks are always pictured as bearing the new baby in a napkin dangling from the beak. They cannot sing but they make popping noises with their bills. They are tender and solicitous of their young, which no doubt gave them the ancient role as "the bringer of the babies."

These birds lay from three to five white eggs in the nest. Among

IMPROVED KENTUCKY COAL USE RESEARCH IS URGED

An accelerated program of research aimed at uncovering new and improved uses for Kentucky's coal and other natural resources has been recommended by the state's new Resources, Research and Development Advisory Committee.

Meeting for the first time, the committee also reviewed current research progress at state, federal and industry levels which applies to Kentucky's major resources.

Committee members stressed the economic importance to Kentucky of the geological mapping of the entire state, now in progress, and the need for correlation of deep geological data on oil and gas.

The committee was established under the J. D. Smith Coal Research Act adopted by the 1960 General Assembly for the purpose of setting up a research and development program for coal and other important natural resources. State Representative J. D. Smith, of Dwarf, sponsor of the act, is a member of the committee, which is headed by Fred B. Bullard, Lexington, president of the Kentucky Coal Association.

Under the Smith Act, the Department of Economic Development is authorized to formulate and carry out an extensive research program designed to develop new and more effective uses for Kentucky's natural resources and to expand existing uses. The committee is advising the Department on the most effective means of carrying out the program.

Other members of the committee, named by Gov. Bert Combs, are Harry Lavers, Paintsville; Speed

This amended complaint asked a temporary mandatory injunction to require the County Clerk to print a sufficient number of ballots to provide that all qualified voters will have an opportunity to vote. The ballots were asked for these precincts: Prestonsburg No. 1, Prestonsburg No. 2, Prestonsburg No. 3, Richmond, Cliff, Porter, Middle Creek, Cow Creek, Mouth of Beaver, Jim Banks, Rough and Tough, Maytown, Bosco, Garrett, Wayland, Martin, Halbert, Drift, John Art, Jack's Creek, Lee Hall, Melvin, Antioch, Tickey, Mouth of Mud, Little Mud, Ivel and Betsy Layne.

The amended petition alleges that the defendants have failed to provide adequate voting machines so that all who are qualified may vote at the November election. It points out that this situation existed at the primary election and that the same situation will exist in November unless paper ballots are provided in the 28 precincts listed.

Do you have the freedom that "money-wisdom" can provide?

Does their money travel further than yours?

Some people get left out of living. Others get a lift out of living. So often it's not that they are making more money, but that they've discovered how to make it go further. They probably make the most of a full-service commercial bank.

By law, a full-service commercial bank can do more for you. Unlike other financial institutions, it is not just limited to savings and a few kinds of loans. Only at a full-service bank is everything possible from a checking account and savings account to all types of loans—as well as the most thorough counseling.

It's often been said that it's not just the money, but what it can do that counts.

Our full-service bank will gladly see to it that your money makes that little extra effort.

WIFE PINCH HITS RECRUITING WHEN CRAFT IS HOSPITALIZED

"Like-minded" are the words in a newspaper story used to describe M/Sgt. Marvin E. Craft, former U. S. Army recruiting station commander here, and his wife Norma, who now reside at Ft. Jackson, South Carolina.

M/Sgt. Craft, a veteran of 20 years' Army service and holder of the Combat Infantry Badge, the Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster, travelled extensively throughout Europe and the Far East during his career before being assigned to the Army recruiting main station at Ashland with duty station here.

The "like-mindedness" of M/Sgt. and Mrs. Craft paid off for the Sergeant during the time he was ill while here. Sgt. Craft was compelled to enter Ireland Army hospital, Ft. Knox, on March 6, 1961, where he was confined through March 18.

During this time Mrs. Craft stepped into her husband's shoes without hesitation when she took over his duties of recruiter for the Prestonsburg area and enlisted 10 young men for the Army during this period, making 143% of M/Sgt. Craft's quota—an accomplishment envied by many of the "old-time" regular recruiters.

Many and varied were Mrs. Craft's duties in her voluntary role of "Recruiting Station Commander" at the Prestonsburg station which she operated daily from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. They included interviewing, counselling and advising interested applicants about their opportunities under the Army's "choice, not chance" program, a administration tests, preparing the necessary paper work and files prior to shipping applicants. This included obtaining both certificates, parents' consent, police and school clearances. Mrs. Craft also prepared and issued hotel, meal and transportation for those young men who were found acceptable for shipment to the Ashland recruiting main station for enlistment.

Aside from these "part-time duties" Mrs. Craft performed her usual occupation of housewife and mother to her two children, Margaret, 11, and Patricia, 9.

Mrs. Craft was later awarded a Certificate of Appreciation by the Second U. S. Army Recruiting District for her efforts in behalf of the recruiting service.

Howard-Carter Wedding Solemnized In Indiana; Rev. Davis Officiates

Hamlet, Ind.—The marriage of Glenna Faye Howard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Howard, Hamlet, and Frank Carter, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carter, Sr., Downers Grove, Ill., was solemnized at the Trinity Lutheran church in Terre Haute at 2 p.m. Saturday. The Rev. Robert Davis presided at the double ring ceremony.

The altar was adorned with white gladioli. Satin bows were on each pew and a white bridal runner carpeted the main aisle.

Rick Baugher sang "I Love Thee" and "O Perfect Love" preceding the service. Mrs. Anna Laura Hurt, Louisville, Ky., was the organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose to wear a white floor length gown of hand clipped lace and nylon tulle. The bodice of tulle was fashioned with a scalloped sabra neckline and was framed with re-embroidered lace. The tulle skirt was highlighted with two rows of lace encircling it. The gown featured long, tapered sleeves. She wore a fingertip length veil with a crown-type headpiece trimmed with seed pearls. Her bouquet was of white roses.

Miss Carleen Howard, Hamlet, attended her sister as maid of honor, wearing a dress of pale green taffeta and lace. The ball shaped skirt was styled with a taffeta cummerbund adorned with a fabric rose. The lace bodice featured a square neckline and white carnations.

Bridesmaids Mrs. Sue Ballinger, and Miss Anita Haga, both of Terre Haute, wore outfits identical to that of the maid of honor.

Little Miss Wanda Jean Welch, LaPorte, served as flower girl. She was dressed in pale yellow silk organza with white accessories. The ring bearer was Stephen Archer, Fort Worth, Tex., a nephew of the bridegroom.

Jerry Ballinger, Terre Haute, was the best man. Ushers were Jerry Frano and James Laswell, also of Terre Haute.

Following the ceremony a reception for 150 guests was held in the Blue room of Terre Haute House hotel. Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Gwen Mast, Miss Nancy Ruby and Mrs. Dolores Carbon, all of Terre Haute.

After a wedding trip through Wisconsin, the couple will be at home at 659 Swan street, Apartment 3, Terre Haute.

The bride, a graduate of Indiana State College, once taught in the LaPorte county school system. The bridegroom is a Purdue university graduate and is employed as manager trainee for the Western Express company of Terre Haute.

Cadillac

The word for it is... "Masterful!"

"Superb" . . . "luxurious" . . . "beautiful" . . . "brilliant"—there are many words that might be used to describe the new 1962 Cadillac car.

But if we were to select from the Cadillac vocabulary the one word that most completely captures the essence of this latest "car of cars"—we would choose "masterful".

For here is a motor car that has already established its mastery in everything that makes an automobile good and fine and desirable.

In appearance, it is clearly a Cadillac masterpiece—graceful, clean-lined and elegant.

In performance, it is a revelation. Its power plant is a reservoir of silken power—and the car rides and handles with an instinctive ease and sureness. In safety, it is in a class of its own—with a host of exclusive features, including remarkable new side cornering lights.

In craftsmanship, it is simply without rival. Every 1962 Cadillac will undergo more than 1400 inspections to assure its quality and goodness.

On and on the list could go. But however lengthy, that list could never replace the experience of inspecting the car and driving it.

Your dealer will happily let you do both.

Once you have, you'll understand why the word has gone out so quickly that this is the finest motor car ever to bear the Cadillac name.

What's Going On in FISH & WILDLIFE

by MINOR CLARK, Commissioner
Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources

Q. I am interested in hunting deer with a gun this year and would like to have answers to the following questions: How many counties are open; when is the season; what license is necessary; the cost of the license and where it can be purchased.

A. The gun deer hunting season in 38 of the 41 counties opens on Oct. 15, Perry, Knott and Breathitt, November 8 and continues through November 11 while in three counties a two-day season, November 10 and 11 has been set. In addition to a valid Kentucky hunting license all deer hunters must have a deer permit, cost of which is $10.50. Deer permits can be purchased from county clerks in any Kentucky county.

Q. I understand the Department has recently published a booklet or text book on conservation education. How can I obtain a copy?

A. The booklet to which you refer was published for use as a teacher's guide and is not for general distribution. It is a supplement, which teachers will use in conjunction with their regular science classes. The one already printed and distributed to teachers throughout the state is at the sixth grade level. Now being printed are supplements for seventh and eighth grades and they should be off the press and in the teachers' hands within a very short time.

Q. Recently I noticed a small lake with brownish color water. Somebody told me it was caused by a fall turnover. Is there such a thing in Kentucky and exactly what is it?

A. Yes, it's a natural phenomenon that happens in every lake when the colder weather in the fall cools the surface water. Cool water is heavier than warm water therefore the surface water will drop to bottom, forcing up the warmer bottom water. Thus, the lake actually does invert or "turn over." Many times this bottom water, brownish colored, is evident when forced to the top.

Nature Trails BY RUFUS M. REED

(The following poem is dedicated to National Poetry Day, October 15.)

The tender love of earth and sky
Is like the love of mother;
The leaf and the tree and I
Are close akin as brother;
The passing of a pretty thing—
Destruction of its life—
Something killed, never to sing—
This stabs me like a knife;
He shot a shy, wildwood dove,
He crushed a butterfly,
And there was death instead of love—
Creation groaned . . . and I . . .

THE SKUNK . . . BAD ODOR, GOOD FRIEND . . .

The skunk, which wears two stripes down its back and a broad stripe on its tail, has the most repelling and offensive odor known in the animal kingdom. It is the most effective defense against enemies, and when dogs pick up enough nerve to attack the skunk, they pay dear for this, as it makes them heartsick. I've often seen dogs roll on the ground and vomit after tangling with a skunk!

The bad odor refuses to leave hair or clothes, and it is often necessary to soak clothing in running water for seven days to remove the odor. No deodorant made by man has the power to kill the scent, which comes from amber-colored liquid stored up in two glands at the base of the tail. The skunk can throw this liquid a distance of some fifteen feet, using his tail, and it always gives fair warning, by stamping the feet, hissing or whistling.

Despite its bad odor, the skunk is the farmer's best friend. It destroys all kinds of rodents—rats, mice and ground squirrels, and it digs out and devours grub worms, snake eggs, the larvae of yellow jackets; it eats grasshoppers, crickets, snakes—most anything it can catch on the ground. You may often see hundreds of little holes dug in the ground, where the skunk has excavated and feasted upon the harmful grubs and burrowing insects.

Skunks may be domesticated by the removal of the glands when they are young, and they are said to make fine household pets. People who have them as pets become deeply attached to them. They can purr like a kitten, twitter, whistle, growl and screech.

The baby skunks are born in the spring, and there are often as many as eight in one litter. They nurse the mother for about eight weeks, then they are large enough to follow her around on nightly foraging expeditions. They are always seen marching single file. Skunks are often caught for their fine fur, which becomes thick and heavy through the winter season.

The skunk, the farmer's best friend, has the foulest odor of them all!

GOVERNOR URGES RESTRAINT IN EDUCATIONAL CRITICISM

Frankfort, Oct. 16 (Spl.)—Gov. Bert Combs in a speech before Kentucky educators said that "we should keep our powder dry" and "be judicious in our comments" until the commission on Public Education completes its study of the Kentucky school system.

The Governor, speaking to the Kentucky Association of Pupil Personnel Workers at Louisville, added that, "in fairness to the Commission and to ourselves," the public should wait until all the evidence is in.

MULLINS IN TRAINING

Fort Knox, Ky. — Pvt. Edward Mullins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Mullins, of Hueysville, Ky., is currently undergoing Basic Combat Training with A Company, 15th Battalion, 5th Training Regiment here at the United States Army Training Center.

During this eight week course, which he will complete on November 3, Private Mullins will be developed into a "basic soldier." Instruction in the use of the M-1 rifle, manual of arms, physical fitness, personal hygiene, methods of survival under battlefield conditions, and numerous other allied basic subjects will be administered.

The 17-year-old soldier attended Garrett high school, Garrett, Ky.

He pointed out that the results of research, now being reported to the Commission, would be carefully appraised by the Commission before it submits its own report and recommendations to the Governor.

The Commission was created by the 1960 General Assembly to provide information which the Legislature can use in preparing and considering legislation for improvement of Kentucky's public schools.

The Commission has received two reports—one on a curriculum study and the other on school administration—and will receive a third on the school foundation program before beginning public hearings. Its report to Governor Combs is expected in December.

The Governor declared that legislation alone would not provide all the improvements needed in the public school system. "All of us—parents, public officials, school administrators and teachers," he said, "must lend a hand."

FLEMING-NEON HOLDS EDGE IN HIGH SCHOOL GRID RACE

Fleming-Neon has taken a one-half game lead in the Eastern Kentucky Mountain high school football league by virtue of its 7-6 triumph over neighboring Whitesburg.

Jack Hall's surprising Pirates are now tied with Hazard (idle last week) in the Division II, Class AA Region Four standings with a 5-0 regional mark.

The Belfry Pirates are in third place with a 4-1 record and now face tough Jenkins, Saturday night.

Thus the first four places won't definitely be determined until the October 27 meeting between Hazard and Fleming-Neon on the Letcher county field.

Jenkins capped its fourth consecutive game in downing Everts, 12-7, on a third quarter score by senior halfback Johnny LeQuire, who plunged over from the one-yard stripe.

Everts held a 7-6 third period command before LeQuire countered. Halfback Homer Goins had given Everts the lead with a 54-yard sprint and extra point early in the period.

In other week-end games, Belfry mauled Prestonsburg, 46-6; Pikeville downed Paintsville, 21-12; McKell sped past Elkhorn City, 21-0; Wheelwright shut out Leslie County, 38-0, and Mt. Sterling Dubois nipped Morgan County, 25-21.

Fullback Keith Pack went eight yards to knot the score at 6-6 in the second quarter, then ran for the extra point after to give Fleming-Neon its close win over arch-rival Whitesburg.

The Yellowjackets hit pay dirt first in the second quarter when quarterback Kenneth Frazier tossed eight yards to end Willis Sturgill, but the kick for the all-important extra point was blocked. Both teams battled relentlessly in the last half, but failed to muster a score.

All-state end Rickey Kestner and junior quarterback Floyd Hatfield paced Belfry to an easy win over Prestonsburg. Kestner grabbed three passes from Hatfield that were good for 10, 23 and 35-yard touchdowns.

Sophomore Walt Catron returned the opening kick-off for a 85-yard six-pointer and added another 23-yarder in the third period. Halfback Jim Hunt registered twice on short runs.

Quarterback Kelly Moore tied the count at 6-6 for the Black Cats with a six-yard run around end after fullback Dixon Nuzery spearheaded a 14-play, 73-yard march. The Pirates scored on the next series and were not to be denied as the smaller Black Cats failed to contain Kestner and Hatfield.

Pikeville and Paintsville twice traded touchdowns until the final period when two passes gave the Panthers their second win of the season.

SPORTS CHATTER

PLAY NOV. 15

The Harlem Hobos will meet the Indianapolis Royals in the Prestonsburg high school gymnasium, Wednesday, November 15, at 8 p. m. in their annual basketball barnstorming series. In addition, a big pre-game and halftime jazz and rock-and-roll concert featuring Epic recording stars Bill Walton and his Organ Combo is also on.

On Monday, November 27, donkey basketball will make its appearance in the high school gym when the high school faculty will play the local businessmen, headed by Clarence "Ollie" Robinson.

If Hazard and Corbin tangle for the Class AA, Region 4 championship, Hazard assistant coach Walt Green will be matching wits against the kids he tutored last season, as head coach at Corbin high. Green gave up the Corbin reins last season, entered the selling business, didn't like it, then moved to assistant, with the head job to be his after Paul Wright moved to the principalship of the new Hazard elementary school.

Both Hazard and Corbin now lead their respective divisions with 5-0 records.

Meade Memorial and Flat Gap high have dominated the cross-country sport thus far this season.

The Shaker community at Pleasant Hill, Ky., was the largest in the United States, with the exception of the group's main headquarters at New Lebanon, New York.

One of the better high school football games of the season should be in Jenkins, Saturday night, when the Cavaliers battle Belfry. In comparison, Hazard stopped Jenkins, 26-0, early in the season; then Hazard belted Belfry, 51-7. Jenkins whipped Wheelwright, 34-0, while Belfry walloped Wheelwright, 66-0. Both downed Prestonsburg — Jenkins by 26-0 and Belfry by 46-6.

ACCIDENTS CLAIMED 20 LIVES DURING LAST HUNTING SEASON

Frankfort, Ky., (Special)—During the 1960-61 game seasons 20 sportsmen lost their lives and 14 were injured in hunting accidents, according to records of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Minor E. Clark, commissioner of the Department, points out that in the majority of these cases, carelessness was the contributing factor and in an urgent message to sportsmen he asked that all hunters observe the cardinal rules of safety and sportsmanship.

Commissioner Clark was quick to add, however, that some fatalities in the field are caused by heart attacks and strokes suffered by hunters who are not in good physical condition and recommended a complete physical check-up for all persons intending to hunt.

It was pointed out that in some cases hunters remain behind a desk for about 50 weeks without proper physical conditioning, then, as soon as the season opens, these same persons go into the fields and hunt from daylight until dark. It is under this strain that many heart attacks or strokes occur.

1. Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun. This is the first rule of gun safety.
As a reminder, the 10 Commandments of Gun Safety follow: Read them and observe them, the Commissioner urged.

2. Guns carried into camp or home, or when otherwise not in use, must always be unloaded, and taken down or have actions open; guns always should be carried in cases to the shooting area.
3. Always be sure barrel and action are clear of obstructions, and that you have only ammunition of the proper size for the gun you are carrying. Remove oil and grease from chamber before firing.
4. Always carry your gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle even if you stumble; keep the safety on until you are ready to shoot.
5. Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger; know the identifying features of the game you intend to hunt.
6. Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot; avoid all horseplay while handling a gun.
7. Unattended guns should be unloaded; guns and ammunition should be stored separately beyond reach of children and careless adults.
8. Never climb a tree or fence or jump a ditch with a loaded gun. Never pull a gun toward you by the muzzle.
9. Never shoot a bullet at a flat, hard surface or at the surface of water; when at target practice, be sure your backstop is adequate.
10. Avoid alcoholic drinks before or during shooting.

MARTIN JOHNSON

Comes an inquiry from Clabe Richards, address lost when the envelope was misplaced, about Martin Johnson, who "passed away in Logan last year at the age of 100 years."

The letter does not specify whether it is Logan, West Virginia, or not but it could be Logan county, Kentucky, to which the writer refers. He notes that his mother's name was Evelyn Johnson. Both were natives of Floyd county.

Mr. Richards' inquiry is relative to the estate left by Mrs. Johnson. If any, if anyone has any information and knows the address of Mr. Richards, would they write him?

The letter comes to this column by way of Mrs. Charlotte Martin, of Martin, who received the letter from Mrs. Kathleen Moore, of the Floyd County Clerk's office.

An afterthought: The letter indicates that Richards was an orphan, evidently when his bother died for the father was living last year, according to the letter.

He closes: "I have never been able to find out what happened to my mother's estate."

The pictures are a fine contribution to any study of the history of our region. Many teachers and others have cut them out, pasted them in scrapbooks for preservation.

Let's count the scrapbooks! Write me and if you have missed any copies and I can help, please ask.

Anyway, let this column know if you have preserved the pictures. A postal card will do.

HE WANTED LAND—MUCH LAND

Seventy years ago, April 19, 1891, to be exact, a Boston lawyer wrote a Prestonsburg attorney, soliciting assistance on the purchase of Eastern Kentucky coal and timber lands. Alfred Hill, whose letterhead noted "Real Estate and Mortgages," and "Loans Negotiated," wrote Attorney Walter S. Harkins he wanted to acquire the lands for an English syndicate. There is no evidence that the Prestonsburg attorney replied to this brazen effort to "rob" the area.

The letter follows:

"I have had no reply to my last letter to you. I want to get up from 180 to 300,000 acres of cheap lands, coal and timber, running from $1.50 to $2.50 per acre. I want them for an English syndicate, should like to have the titles clear but do not hardly expect in all instances where we get them cheap but if we can get a good fighting title where the property is very valuable and we can get it for a song, put it in.

"Cannot you from your position do this? If you can there is money in it for you as well as us. There is more money in it than you are aware and it will pay you to put your shoulder to the wheel.

"I would not object to even 500,000 acres.

"Must have full description of the properties, with abstracts and all necessary documents to get up a prospectus on. I only want 90 days in which to float it.

"Please let me hear from you at the very earliest moment. My party is here and will sail for London in a few weeks and wants to take it with him. It is what he came here for."

Combs' Executive Order Bars Former Officials From Holding Office

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 16 (Spl.)—Executive orders by Gov. Bert Combs bar two former Newport officials from holding public office in Kentucky in the next four years.

Combs had begun ouster proceedings against the two—George Gugel and LeRoy Fredericks—last summer on charges of neglect of duty. Meantime, Gugel's term as police chief expired and Fredericks resigned as detective chief.

Along with two Campbell county officials, they were accused of by the Newport Ministerial Association of failure to enforce anti-vice laws in the Northern Kentucky area.

Special Commissioner John L. Davis, Lexington, who presided at ouster proceedings, recommended the ouster of Gugel and Fredericks, despite their plea they no longer hold office.

Their lawyer, J. D. Buckman, said he will file an appeal with the Court of Appeals.

KENTUCKY CORNBREAD WEEK IS SET BY GOVERNOR COMBS

Yes, honey chile, cornpone has a week all its own.
 Cornbread, long a favorite food of country folks in the South, especially in Kentucky, now has an entire week dedicated in its honor.

Kentucky Cornbread Week has been officially proclaimed by Gov. Bert Combs for Oct. 8-14 to emphasize the fact that "cornbread has played an important and satisfying part in the diet and enjoyment of all who appreciate traditionally good Kentucky food."

Initiated four years ago, Cornbread Week in Kentucky is designed to make people more "cornbread conscious" and to promote the use of cornmeal in the making of cornbread in the home. One of the basic components in the diet of Kentuckians since pioneer days, cornmeal is made from white corn. As one of Kentucky's top cash crops, white corn is grown primarily in the Ohio River basin in the western part of the state.

The second week of October was chosen for Cornbread Week because the new crop of white corn has just been harvested and its special flavor produces excellent cornmeal, the main ingredient for mouth-watering Kentucky cornbread.

True old-fashioned cornbread with its traditional home-spun flavor is hard to find nowadays, because corn meal is seldom made now like it was in the old days—stone-ground in mills run by huge water-wheels.

The process went something like this:

Fresh cool water tumbling down from a hillside spring filled buckets or compartments on the wheel, making it turn. The wheel was connected by a shaft to two large grindstones inside the mill, and its movement caused the millstones to turn and thus grind the corn.

Somehow the magical ingredients of fresh spring water, a peaceful country atmosphere, and the slow revolutions of the massive wheel and rustic grindstones mingled in the fresh sweet corn and produced a finely-ground meal so delectable that it was used with delight in the preparation of practically every bite of bread, cakes and puddings the country cook could whip up.

Few old water mills are still in operation. Nearly all corn meal is now the object of mass production by modern machinery. Millers, nevertheless, still attempt to capture and retain the original flavor of good corn meal by using the finest corn and taking great pains with the purchase, maintenance and operation of their elaborate equipment.

Despite service from all the modern mills which produce tons of fine corn meal daily, Kentuckians often wish to go back to the past and relish in one more bite of that old-fashioned cornbread made from water-ground corn meal.

This wish may come true.

The Monticello Women's Club is planning to lease and restore an old water mill at Mill Springs, Ky., where they will grind, package, and sell corn meal to tourists and visitors in the area. The picturesque mill, built in 1840, contains one of the second largest water wheels of its kind in the United States, and no doubt produced quite a quantity of meal in its day.

But whether corn meal is water-ground or mass produced by modern milling methods, it is still the prime ingredient for scores of delicious bread and desserts, as well as cornbread.

All types of corn meal products are still staple foods in many homes and are served in restaurants throughout the country. As a matter of fact, some diners in rural areas of Eastern Kentucky have been known even in fairly recent times to feature on their menus "cornbread and chicken fixin's" or "cornbread and plain doin's."

"Plain doin's" was often served with what was known as "plain cornbread," sometimes called "hoe cake" or "dog bread" (dogs liked it too). This was the true cornbread which has made up the basic part of the diet of country folks since corn was discovered in America. But you never heard them complain, because "plain corn bread" minus the "fancy fixin's" was just "plain good."

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky

By JOE JORDAN
 (Kentucky Civil War Commission)

Brig. Gen. Robert Anderson, U. S. Army, a Kentuckian who in April as a major had become famous as the commanding officer of Fort Sumter, and who in September had assumed command of all Federal troops in Kentucky, relinquished that command 100 years ago this week, having held it only 24 days. Ill health was given as the reason; it was said unofficially that he had "brain fever." He was relieved by Brig. Gen. William T. Sherman.

Anderson, 56 at that time, was a Regular Army officer, a graduate of West Point. His birthplace was near Louisville. In 1832, when serving in the Black Hawk War, he had administered the oath to Abraham Lincoln.

One of Anderson's last orders as commanding general in Kentucky was designed to put a stop to the arresting of citizens for no reason except that they were known or thought to be Southern sympathizers. With the abandonment of neutrality, this had become a favorite activity of the Home Guards, the pro-Union militiamen who had been armed with "Lincoln guns" in the days of neutrality. They had enlisted under a provision exempting them from being sent to war; they stayed safely at home and harassed their neighbors. Anderson's Order No. 5 demanded a "discontinuance of these ill-timed and unlawful arrests." It specifically named the Home Guards and charged they had "arrested and carried off parties remaining quietly at home."

He desired the civil authorities and ordered the military "not to make any arrests—except when the parties are attempting to join the rebels, or are engaged in giving aid or information to them; and in all cases the evidence must be such as will convict them before a court of justice."

Federal troops sent to arrest S. C. Hutchinson, who lived in Barren County about 10 miles from Glasgow, were ambushed by 10 Confederates and routed with loss of 11 killed and wounded. They also lost 30 horses, captured by the rebels.

Gov. Beriah Magoffin appointed John W. Finnell adjutant general of Kentucky, to take the place of

A "CORN HOEING" OR "WORKING" ON COW CREEK IN 1905

The custom of having a "working" to assist neighbors on some project requiring a large number of workmen has now died out but half a century ago it was a regular feature of rural life. The custom came down from pioneer days when house "raisings" and corn "shuckings" were common occurrences.

Shown here is a "corn hoeing" in a "new ground" field on the farm of "Chicky" Jim Burchett, of Cow Creek, in 1905. Mr. Burchett, who lived in the farm home inset in the picture, was ill and neighbors pitched in to cultivate the corn.

Only one person is unidentified in this picture taken by the late Dick Burchett. The others are Charley Jarrell, James Crager, Elige Goble, Sam Crager, Ance Goble, George Crager, Cleveland Kendrick, John Jarrell, Pete Burchett, Tom Birchfield, Linzie Jarrell and Bill Riddle. Identified in the inset picture are Oak Burchett, Perry Burchett, Celia Burchett, Roland Burchett and Mrs. Mary Goble Burchett, wife of "Chicky" Jim.

The First National Bank presents these pictures of our past in recognition of our historic heritage.

PROTECTION FROM FALLOUT

Protection against radioactive fallout is on the minds of most of the people in the county. Yet very few people have made any real preparation against protecting their families against fallout. One possible reason for this is that they don't have the necessary information on what is needed for protection. Recently several magazine articles have been published on fallout shelters and other action needed for protection. The U.S.D.A. and the Extension Service have published booklets that provide information on protection from fallout. Some of this information has already reached this office and is available for the asking.

While we of the Extension Service don't profess to be expert in radioactive fallout, we do have enough information to hold a meeting in any community that would request one.

APPLE SHOW

Johnson county apple growers had a wonderful apple show, sponsored by one of the banks last week. There were ten local commercial growers entering apples in the show. Seven different varieties were entered, and there were 52 entries.

The apple project in Johnson county is expanding. Growers are producing high-yielding crops and they are marketing practically all their crops at the orchard.

These growers demonstrate that it can be done successfully. What more proof is needed. The big question is, why doesn't someone from Floyd county start an orchard? True, we don't have as many farms suited for apple production but there are several farms with enough suitable land to start an orchard large enough to be profitable.

GOOD HEALTH, GOOD LOOKS

Milk is a bargain in nutrition. When you buy a quart of milk, you're getting over 100 nutrients—minerals, vitamins, sugars, protein elements, etc.—needed for good health. If you buy the same amount of some of these nutrients in other foods, you'll pay about twice as much as they would cost you in milk.

Milk is especially important as a source of calcium and riboflavin, and both these nutrients are necessary to good looks and to give pep and energy. Lack of enough calcium and riboflavin in the diet can cause poor conditions of skin, hair, eyes and teeth; muscle flabbiness; digestive disturbance; nervous depression and low vitality.

Milk is an important food for weight-watchers too. In cutting down calories, dieters may fail to get all the nutrients needed for health; milk provides many of the necessary nutrients with only a moderate number of calories. Milk digests slowly, too—another advantage for dieters. The slower food digests, the less quickly you get hungry.

If you're trying to lose weight, you may want to use skim milk or buttermilk in your diet. From either one, you'll get all the nutrients of whole milk except fat and fat soluble vitamins.

So include milk and milk products in your menu plans every day. It's a bargain in good health and good looks for you and your family.

DWARF TREES

Dwarf apple trees are gaining popularity. Several commercial orchards using dwarf trees have been started. For the small home orchard, the dwarf seems to be the answer. They have the advantage of reaching bearing age in three to four years and are small enough so that the outlay for spraying equipment isn't very costly. In ordering trees, designate what you want by number and variety.

APPLE DWARFING ROOTSTOCKS

Most commonly in use are known by Malling stocks. Malling IX make the smallest trees and Malling VII make a tree about twelve feet tall.

APPLESAUCE

Cook some of the apples that are so plentiful now and make some applesauce. For canning, reheat the sauce to simmering (185-215 degrees), stirring constantly to prevent sticking. Then pack hot into sterilized jars to within one-fourth to one half inch of the top; adjust lids and process in boiling water for 10 minutes. As soon as jars are removed from canner, complete seal if closures are not self-sealing. For freezing, reheating is not necessary after straining the sauce; just pack into containers leaving one-half inch headspace; seal and freeze.

SAFE STORAGE OF SUMMER CLOTHES

It's time to store summer clothes and in storage it's the little things that mean safe-keeping when you put away summer garments.

If your family's summer clothes are stored properly, they are not likely to be damaged by insects, chemicals, heat, light or moisture. The rules for proper storage are simple, but they should be followed carefully for good results.

First, be sure that each garment is perfectly clean and free of spots and stains. If you use chemicals to protect garments from insect damage, follow carefully the directions on the container label.

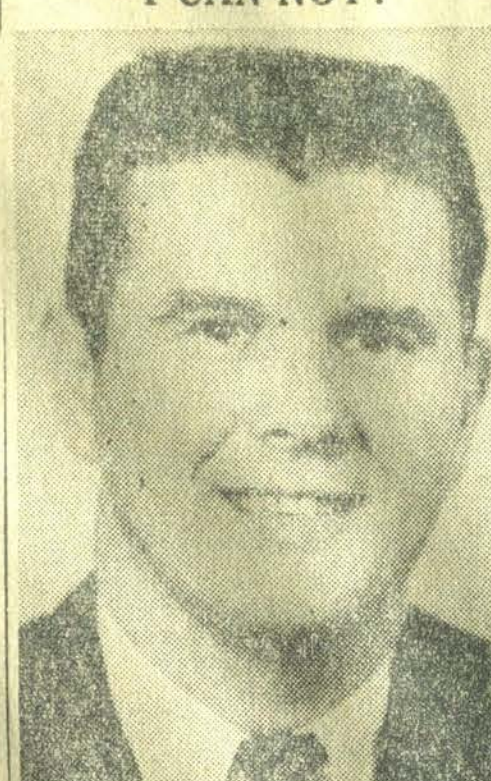

Remove plastic buttons, buckles and other plastic ornaments before storing and avoid using plastic hangers. The plastic may cause a stain or melt into the fabric. Damage from plastic is more likely when garments are stored in a warm, damp place—such as an attic or when paradichlorobenzene crystals or naphthalene flakes or crystals are put in with the clothes. However, these "anti-moth" chemicals may be used safely when plastic does not come in contact with the clothes.

Finally, store the clean garments in a tightly-built container, such as a cedar chest with a tight-fitting lid; seal them in a cardboard box or plastic bag; or wrap them carefully in paper. Store the clothing in a cool, dry place to protect against fading, mildew and insect damage. Clothes moths cause the most damage when infested clothes are stored in a warm, damp place.
