This Town-- That World

Meet your friends at the Fair this week!

These are dog days. At least this dog of mine thinks they are. Well, every dog has his day, and one of these mornings I may get up enough nerve to declare it's mine and make his highness walk home.

I like the insomnia cure I heard recently: "Why count sheep when you can talk to the Shepherd?"

This one has been on TV and has been batted around by word of mouth, and otherwise, so it should be ready for this column. It has to do with the golfer who was trimming the boys to a fare-thee-well but who got taken in by a golf-playing gorilla one of his victims had seen perform. The hot-shot pasture pool artist went as high as $5 a hole. Came the day when the two squared off or teed off, and the man-golfer on the 450-yard No. 1 hole banged out a good drive, hit his second to within a few yards of the green, then chipped on near the cup. The gorilla and his keeper waited till all this was done, then the hairy one waddled up to the ball and smacked it the full 450 yards onto the green. The man held out for his par, then the gorilla was handed a putter—and he knocked the ball 450 yards from the green into a copse of trees.

The twist to this yarn, as I recall it, is, Jungle Jim then took an 8-iron and whammed the pill back to the green and into the cup for his birdie-3. . . . Oh, well. . . . The weather being what it is, that will have to do for a tall tale of the week unless a fisherman prances in pretty soon.

Speaking of fishing, did you see the newspaper item, the other day, which told of an angler yanking a fish out of the water via the old— (See Story No. 1, Page 6)

LOUISA ANTICIPATES EXPANSION WITH RUMORED ALUMINUM PLANT

Louisa, in the flush of enthusiasm engendered by accession of Kentucky Power Company's Sporn plant and talk of an industrial complex in the area, is seeking to grab the initiative on providing homes for scores of personnel who will man the new plants.

General Manager F. M. Baker, of the power firm told Louisa leaders, Wednesday of last week at a luncheon meeting that the community could expect "many new plants" in the area within a reasonable length of time.

Baker did not elaborate but there is persistent talk that an aluminum reduction plant by either Alcoa or Reynolds is in the immediate offing. Cost of the plant, slated to be built between the present Sporn power plant and Ashland, will be $27,000,000, and will take several months to build with a labor force of 1,500 men, it is

VOTE LAW VIOLATORS AWARDED ACQUITTALS

JURORS CLEAR CHULLUN, MAY AND MAGGARD

Were Charged by Jury Empanelled by Hill; Six Are Reindicted

All three defendants given trial Tuesday on charges made by a special grand jury in its probe of the May primary election won acquittals at the hands of Floyd circuit court juries.

Ella Chullen, Democratic candidate for Representative in Legislative district 97, and John May, Democratic candidate for Magistrate in District No. 2, were two of those cleared. They were accused of promising money for votes. The third defendant was Arnold Maggard, administrator of the Kentucky veterans' bonus, who was accused of making a false statement in applying for an absentee ballot.

Thirteen of the indictments voted by the special grand jury were quashed last week, to be re-submitted to the current grand jury. The jury voted to re-indict six of the 13.

Both Mrs. Chullen and Mr. May denied having offered a voter mon— (See Story No. 5, Page 6)

HILLTOP PORT SITE STUDIED

Dewey Lake Location Envisioned by Group Promoting Air Field

An acceptable mountaintop site which would afford 4,000 feet of runway was visited by Ed LaFontaine, director of airport development, and Thomas Gabbard, aeronautics division engineer, near here Monday in response to an invitation from Prestonsburg and Paintsville leaders in the move to develop a community airport to serve Floyd and Johnson counties.

The site inspected follows the ridge from the head of Spradlin Branch to the top of the hill overlooking the branch which flows into Dewey Lake at the swimming area, near Stratton Branch. Access to the airport would be from either the new U. S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Auxier or from the Stratton Branch area.

U. S. approval of the venture and the estimated cost of the project remain to be learned.

The hilltop landing strip would have approximately 1,200 feet greater length than that available at Blockhouse Bottom, across the Big Sandy from East Point, it was said.

Conferring with LaFontaine and Gabbard were Marvin Music, C. B. Latta, Burl Spurlock and Barkley Sturgill.

Mobile X-Ray Unit Gives 1,360 Tests; Hall Is Disappointed

The mobile X-ray unit, sponsored by the Floyd County Health Department and contributed by the Elks fraternity, gave 1,360 free chest X-rays while it was stationed in the county August 31 through September 8.

The technicians in charge voiced approval of the age groups seeking X-rays but the Health Department was disappointed at the number.

"It was surprising to note the number of teachers and food handlers who did not take advantage of this service even though they are required by law to be X-rayed either every year or every other year," Dr. Russell Hall, Floyd county health officer said.

GLENN VICTIM OF INJURIES

Red Cross Field Man Had Lain Unconscious 5 Months After Mishap

Robert J. Glenn, 35, former Paintsville Red Cross representative, who never regained consciousness after being injured in an auto accident April 5, last year at Allen, died Sunday, August 27, at Veterans hospital, Leach Farm, Pittsburg.

He was the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Glenn, of Tarentum, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Glenn never saw the youngest of his four children, a son, Robert J., who was born seven months after his father's accident.

At the time of the accident he headed the Red Cross in the 20-county East Kentucky district.

At the time of the accident, he was traveling on duty when his car swerved into a cliff. He was thrown from the vehicle and received serious head injuries.

He was in hospitals in Kentucky and West Virginia before being transferred to the VA hospital at Leach Farm, August 31, 1960. (See Story No. 6, Page 6)

FUNDS FOR RESERVOIRS VOTED BY COMMITTEE

The highest appropriation approved for Kentucky river projects by the House Appropriations committee in history was made last week, and it includes funds to start construction of Fishtrap reservoir and continue construction of the Pound reservoir.

Both are primary impoundments in the overall plan to control Big Sandy river floods and to supply the stream a constant flow of water in dry weather.

The committee voted $73,829,900 for river-improvement projects in Kentucky, and for Fishtrap $1,780,000. The new funds mean that Fishtrap will move out of the advanced planning stage. For the Pound reservoir, which is farther advanced, $4,200,000 was appropriated.

SPEAKER ASKS CD SHELTERS

Civil Defense Chairman Tells Kiwanians Urgency Of Fallout Protection

James T. Newman, of Paintsville, director of Johnson County Civil Defense, stressed to the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club Thursday evening of last week the urgency of fallout shelter construction to meet the exigencies of nuclear warfare.

Newman, who has made an outstanding contribution to the Civil Defense program in this area, said that there were 168 target areas in America, including Cincinnati, Louisville, Paducah and Ashland-Huntington. Newman said one nuclear missile would wipe out the Ashland-Huntington area.

The Paintsville man, who spoke to the Prestonsburg Woman's Club afterward, said that the enemy could destroy millions of people in a few hours. Only the wholesale construction of private and community fallout shelters could alleviate the horrors of nuclear war and insure America's survival, he added.

Hern Burke, who recently was appointed director of Civil Defense in Floyd county, is formulating (See Story No. 4, Page 6)

HALL, NEPHEW ARE VICTIMS

In Separate Accidents Within 48 Hours; Two Other Persons Injured

His young nephew died at 4:45 p.m., August 24, of a broken neck sustained when an auto in which he was riding overturned about four miles east of New Haven, Indiana.

Revis Jon Hall's death was witnessed by his brother Gary, with whom he had planned to go boating. Injured in the wreck which claimed the child's life were Kathleen K. Copenhaver, 18, driver of the car, and his brother, Richard. (See Story No. 3, Page 6)

FARMERS SET ANNUAL VOTE

Floyd county farmers participating in the conservation program with the U. S. government will vote September 26 for community committeemen to conduct the program for the next year, it was announced this week by Elder Goble, office manager of the Agricultural Stabilization Conservation committee.

For purposes of polling and administration, the county is divided into five communities and one committeeman will be named from each. The election is scheduled at 10 a.m.

The communities, and polling places, as named by Goble, follow: Community A—Right Beaver Creek, near mouth of Brush Creek at the home of William Hicks; Community B, Left Beaver Creek, at John Spurlock's store, at Printer; Community C, Mud Creek, at Daniel Akers' store, at Amba.

Three days following the community committeemen elections they will meet in the office of the ASC here in county convention, at which time they will effect the county committeemen and alternates. They in turn will name the administrative personnel for next year.

PREVENTION IS STRESSED

Mine Accident Study Made At Four Towns; Mandt Is Encouraged

Mine accident prevention is being stressed in classes conducted at four Eastern Kentucky mining centers, and the effect is highly encouraging, A. H. Mandt, chief of the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, said here last week.

"We are acting on the theory that if a man is taught properly, he will take care of himself," Mandt said.

The business of teaching is headed by Willard Stanley, district mine inspector. Classes have been, or are being, held at Wayland, Manchester, Whitesburg and Lookout.

The district mine inspector's office has been located in Prestonsburg, on the second floor of the Strand Theatre building, the last 14 months. Eight work out of the office.

Mr. Stanley said last week that his office has a wide variety of rescue equipment in storage here, and that this is available in emergencies.

The Prestonsburg district is composed of 16 counties. Mr. Mandt, chief of the department, is a former Floyd county coal operator.

SEVEN PRISONERS FLEE IN SEPARATE BREAKS

Intoxicants Seized By Prestonsburg Police; Holbrook Fines Lafferty

Prestonsburg city police, tipped by two small boys, confiscated 26 half-pints of intoxicants Tuesday that were found in the bushes approximately 100 feet back of Tommy Lafferty's taxicab stand on Lake Drive. The cache consisted of gin, vodka and whiskey.

The intoxicants were turned over to Police Judge Henry P. Scalf. No warrant in connection with the case had been issued as of Wednesday.

State Troopers Elmo Allen and Donald Goble seized 48 half-pints of whiskey from Lafferty August 9 for which he paid a fine of $50 plus costs in Magistrate Grover C. Holbrook's court for possessing whiskey for purposes of sale. A 30-day jail sentence, imposed by Holbrook, was suspended. The whiskey was placed in custody of Sheriff Hershel Warrens.

Mrs. Benny Blackburn paid a fine of $100 and costs in Magistrate Holbrook's court September 22 for possession of whiskey for sale. The case had been transferred to the magistrate's court by Trial Commissioner Harold Stumbo.

HEART GROUP HOLDS CLINIC

UK Med School Doctors Assist In Examination Of Medically Indigent

The Kentucky Heart Association, in cooperation with the state and county health departments, held its annual heart clinic at the Floyd County Health Center, August 22.

Edmond D. Pelligrino, Madison J. Cawain, J. Hunter Black, Alberto Mazzoleni, Emma J. Lappat, Jack Rezes, doctors at the new University of Kentucky Medical School, were the examining physicians.

The doctors saw 52 patients from Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin and Pike counties. Each patient was given a thorough examination, including an X-ray and an electrocardiogram.

The clinic was for those patients who are medically indigent and referred by their family physicians.

The clinic had the unpleasant task of refusing the service to three or four because they were not medically indigent. If a patient can pay for the service, he not only embarrasses his family doctor by asking for a referral but he also might be depriving some patient of the service who could not possibly pay for it.

The examining physicians were pleased with the cooperation of the area doctors in that each patient referred to them had a definite heart condition.

"DEATH CELL" COURTHOUSE ESCAPE ROUTE

Sunday Break Features Fisticuffs with Jailer; Three Are Recaptured

Two breaks at the county jail here within three days last week-end saw seven prisoners make successful dashes for freedom. Three of the fugitives have been either recaptured or have surrendered.

First of the breaks, made last Thursday night, was effected by three prisoners—Bob Blanton, Sammie Foley and Columbus Quillen—who had hidden in the never-used "death cell" at the time prisoners were being locked up for the night by Morgan Gearheart, turnkey at the jail. During the night they opened a hole beside a window facing the rear of the courthouse, reach the iron grating enclosing the walkway connecting the second floors of the jail and courthouse. They clambered over the grating, contrived to squeeze through and then walked through the unlocked rear door of the courthouse, on through the circuit courtroom and downstairs to freedom.

Blanton was arrested Sunday by State Detective Chester D. Potter and State Trooper W. Williamson. Foley, who is under four-year sentence after violation of probation, and Quillen, who faced cold check charges, have not been captured.

The second break, late Sunday afternoon, was of a more sensational nature as fists flew when Jailer Proke Hayes was attacked by (See Story No. 2, Page 2)

FIRMS BUY SCHOOL BONDS

$275,000 Bond Issue To Finance Construction Of Big Mud Creek School

The joint bid of a three-firm combine for the $275,000 school building revenue bond issue offered by the Floyd fiscal court to finance the Mud Creek school construction was accepted Tuesday by the court.

The successful bidders—Magnus & Co., Fox, Reusch & Co., and Pohl & Co.—offered $275,027.50 for the bonds, with interest at 4.75% for the years 1962-1966; 4%, 1967-1970; 4½%, 1971-1977; 4½%, 1978 through 1981.

The court voted a salary of $100 a month to County Treasurer W. J. May, and authorized County Judge Henry Stumbo to execute a blanket deed on behalf of the county to the State Department of Highways of right-of-way on the section of the Salt Lick road to be blacktopped.

Forty-one new employees of county health departments in Kentucky—health officers, nurses, sanitarians, clerks and nutritionists—are attending a two-week orientation course in public health work, given quarterly by the State Department of Health in Frankfort. prisoners who had gathered at the first-floor landing, just inside entrance to the jail. As the jailer opened the door to go upstairs to lock the prisoners in for the night, one man whom he did not identify jerked the door farther open and held it. Others piled downstairs. In the next few moments the doughty, gray-haired Hayes broke his left fist as he connected with an assailant's head. Meanwhile, he took two blows on the top of his head from the fists of prisoners.

Those who escaped were Tivis Colley, Robert Workman, Ordean Meade and Edmond Hall. During the melee Mrs. Hayes in attempting to help her husband was knocked to the floor. Three of the fugitives fled from the back door of the jail, running through the kitchen; the fourth left by the front.

Hall, accompanied by his parents, and Meade were returned to jail Monday night by County Patrolman Oak Mullins. Hall's mother had promised the Jailer that she would bring him back. The search for Colley and Workman continues.

Sound of filing or sawing Tuesday afternoon in the prisoners' quarters resulted in a search of the jail and each prisoner by Hayes and Deputy Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis. Nothing was found.

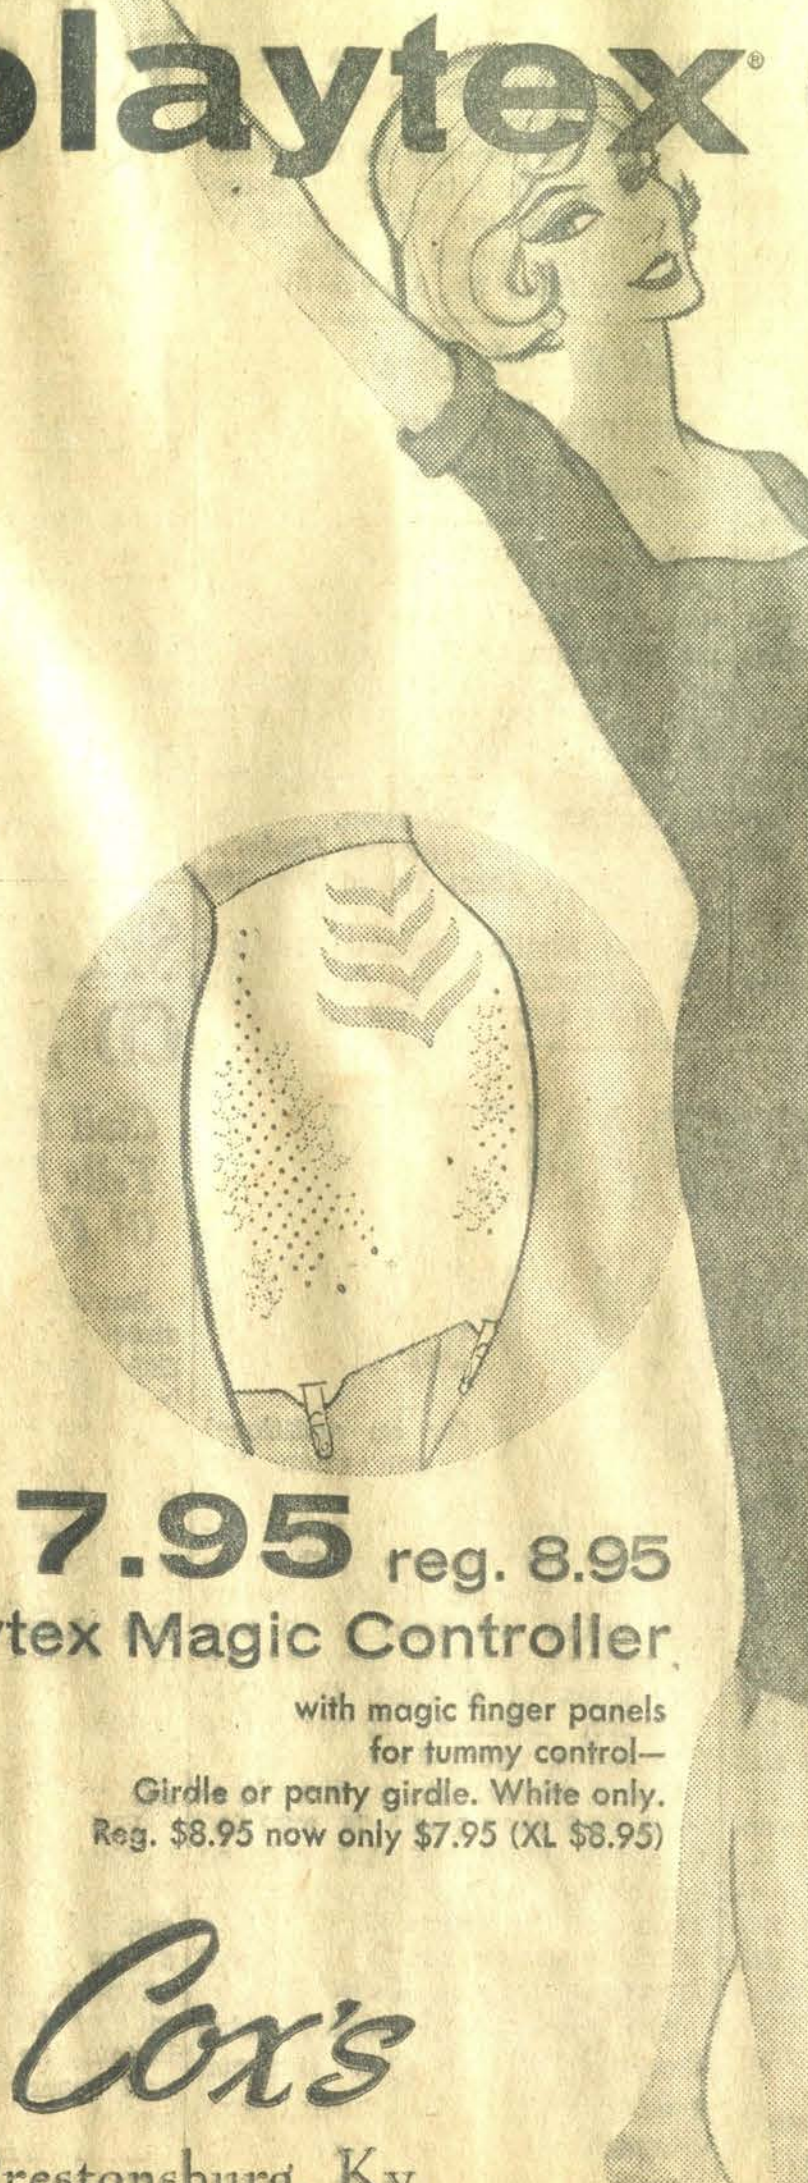

"You'd better watch those fellows up there," Jailer Hayes was advised after the second break.

"Those fellows had better watch me," he grimly replied.

Most of the fugitives were held on charges of breaking and entering or grand larceny. Meade was jailed by Deputy Sheriff J. Hall accused of auto theft and had been only three days before he escaped.

Twenty-six prisoners were in the jail this week. Bennie Blackburn, who is appealing a 21-year pen term, made no attempt to escape. Charlie Miller, who awaits a murder trial, was in a locked cell.

Life - and Death - Become More Real

Civil Defense and practical, commonsense defense measures on the part of the civilian population are becoming more important with each bomb tested by the Russians and with each threat hurled by Khrushchev to test our nerves.

Castles, blockhouses, trenches, bomb shelters—all these have been used in the past as man retained the will to live despite the strongest and most terrible efforts of his own kind to destroy him. The fallout shelter, which has had no more importance to most of us than the Ark had to the people who heard Noah predict a flood, is the modern counterpart of these, and it is even more necessary than any of its predecessors to the survival of the race.

In some quarters it is argued that to escape death from radioactive fallout would be to face a torn, barren world, utter desolation and the possibility of slow death by starvation. Such thinking will deter many from taking the protective measures that are being urged. And therein lies another of our great weaknesses. If Russia is given enough time to get even a sizeable portion of its population under shelter while this country waits, "What's the use?"—then Russia indeed will be ready to drop the bomb in the certain knowledge of victory.

Indeed, adequate shelters and protection of civilians may become this country's greatest weapon for the prevention of a war which this country will never start.

As Dr. Russell L. Hall said in a recent discussion here of the need for fallout shelters: "You may never need it, but if you should need one and don't have it, you will never need anything again on this earth!"

Arrow In Body Or Woods Freedom Awaits Pet Deer—It All Depends

Salvation from death by arrow or gunshot awaits the pet deer which roams the Dewey Lake refuge—if the deer will cooperate.

Two weeks ago, this modern Bambi was frequenting campsites around the lake and making such friendly overtures that he was in danger of making a nuisance of himself. Still later, the deer is reported to have attempted to crawl into a car parked near the boat dock. But now, since he is wanted and sought for protection during the coming hunting season, the deer is mysteriously elusive—perhaps lying deep in the shady woods during the daylight hours and foraging only at night or in the early morning.

The search for the deer began with the publication in this newspaper's "This Town—That World" column last week of an appeal to hunters to spare the deer. One who read the appeal was the Rev. Bob Martin, of Martin, and he carried the appeal to three radio stations. Still later, the Associated Press got wind of the deer-story, and next Sunday's daily newspapers may feature the deer and human attempts to save its life.

Conservation Officer Raymond Copley said Tuesday his department will keep the deer "in protective custody" till the hunting season shooting's over, if it can be found. Jack Hodge, district Scout executive, has offered Boy Scout help, offering to build a stockade for the deer and to care for it till the woods are safe for it again.

Folks are concerned for the animal, fearing it will trustingly approach some hunter and, because the hunter does not recognize it as a pet or because he does not care, will shoot the pet without giving it a chance for its life.

The only identifying mark about the pet is a broken antler-tip. One of twin fawns born at Camp Earl Wallace, on Cumberland Lake, the deer was taken from there to Magoffin county, raised as a pet and finally released in the Dewey Lake refuge. Its mother also was a pet.

Numerous campers along the lakeside this summer have seen the animal, at dusk and in the early mornings, as the young buck rubbed his antlers on tent ropes, ventured up for a friendly pat or on occasion attempted to enter tents. Arnold Workman tells how the deer swam the lake, following his boat as it moved out at trolling speed, and how he shook the pursuer only through the animals' interest in a new campsite.

"He thinks he's people, too," one camper said in a discussion of the antics of the pet.

Newspaper and radio appeals have been made to hunters. If one could be made to the deer, it would be:

"Take friendly shelter. Man, the destroyer, is coming to your peaceful woods."

Red Cross Headquarters In West Liberty Closed; $46,970.46 Is Expanded

Red Cross disaster headquarters which was set up in West Liberty the day after the July 29-30 flash floods, to offer aid to flood victims, closed on Tuesday, Sept. 5.

Selma M. Bernstein, worker in charge, announced that a total of 160 families in Morgan county received emergency and long-term assistance from the Red Cross following the flood.

Local expenditures for Red Cross disaster relief in this county totaled $46,970.59. Miss Bernstein emphasized that all Red Cross help was given as an outright gift—none of it was made on the basis of loans and no repayment of any kind from families is expected.

A building advisor will be available to supervise incomplete building or repair work on homes the Red Cross is helping to repair or build.

Both national and chapter Red local volunteers in conducting Red Cross staff members joined with Cross disaster relief operations here.

Morgan families were assisted in the following amounts—$20,755.64 to families and $26,214.95 in long-term rehabilitation assistance to 31 families.

Rehabilitation assistance involved $3,356.94 for food, clothing and maintenance, $7,938.36 for the repair of homes; $12,551.86 for the replacement of basic household furnishings; $57.00 for medical and nursing care and $2,310.80 for repair or replacement of occupational supplies or equipment.

TO THE VOTERS OF FLOYD COUNTY:

Throughout my political career I have never resorted to mud-slinging or attempted to degrade my opponent. I feel that such a campaign is not proper and neither is it beneficial to any candidate. However, I must answer my opponents letter in last week's issue of The Times.

My opponent states that our courts need honor and respect, and that if elected he intends to give the courts this so called dignity of his. I am wondering if this is the same type of dignity and honor he gave you when he was your former Sheriff. My opponent has never yet referred to himself as your FORMER SHERIFF. I believe that he would rather have you to forget the dignity and honor which he gave to you the four years when he was Sheriff of Floyd county.

My opponent states that myself and the Fiscal Court failed to provide enough voting machines in the last primary election. I would like to point out that the last primary election was the first primary election which voting machines were ever used in this county. How could I or the other members of the court anticipate the number of machines needed? Since the primary election the Fiscal Court has purchased four new voting machines to be placed in the larger precincts for the November election. I intend to obtain more voting machines and create more voting precincts for the next primary election.

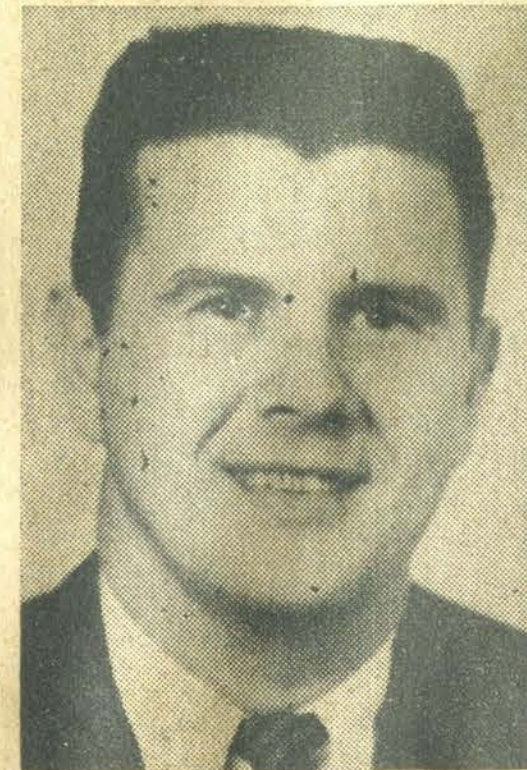

I would like to point out that Floyd county was not the only county that had problems with the voting machines. Practically all of the surrounding counties had the same problem in the last primary election.

I would like to remind the voters of this county that I beat my opponent approximately 4,200 votes four years ago for the same office. The people of this county had confidence in me four years ago, and I believe that the people feel the same as they did four years ago.

Historical Group Plans Speech by Noted Author; Mrs. James On Program

Dr. Hamilton Tapp, noted historian and author, of Lexington, will address the Johnson County Historical Society, Monday evening, September 25, at 8:00, at the Paintsville high school auditorium. The subject of Dr. Tapp's address will be, "The Civil War in Kentucky."

Dr. Tapp is chairman of the Kentucky Civil War Centennial committee. He has been a member of the faculty of the University of Kentucky and is the author of an excellent history of Kentucky.

Featuring the program will be a presentation of songs popular in the Civil War by a chorus directed by Mrs. Edith F. James, folk song authority, of Prestonsburg. The chorus will be colorfully dressed in Civil War period clothes.

"Students who study Kentucky history in the junior high schools, high school and college students, and the general public are urged to attend this program and hear one of the nation's outstanding historians discuss an important part of Kentucky's history," said Edwin R. Hazelett, Society president.

"The overall purpose of the centennial is to commemorate Civil War events and to remember, study, learn about and honor the men and women, and their deeds, who had a part in that conflict, the greatest single tragedy in American history," he added. "The approach is in a spirit of reverence, with hopes of avoiding celebration and commercialism. It is believed that the present generation can learn a great deal that is helpful and strengthening from the noble examples of those who fought and served during these momentous years."

Coal Research Group Awards Koppers Rights To Technological Device

Bituminous Coal Research, Inc., has entered into an agreement giving Koppers Co., Inc., exclusive rights to a device and related techniques to be applied to metallurgical furnaces for controlled introduction of solids into a stream of air against substantial pressures. BCR president Stephen F. Dunn announced.

Mr. Dunn, who is also president of BCR's affiliate, the National Coal Association, said Koppers, a leading builder of blast furnaces for the steel industry, plans to apply this method first to the injection of coal into blast furnaces. He estimated it can save a market for five to 10 million tons of coal a year.

The method includes a device called a "coal pump" which was developed by the Locomotive Development Program of BCR in work on coal fired gas turbines. The pump moves coal in an air stream at normal or elevated pressures.

BCR, with headquarters in Pittsburgh, will make available to Koppers the findings of about 12 years of intensive research on this application. In addition, the two organizations are conducting additional development programs on specific applications to enable Koppers to present to industry a highly perfected installation for immediate full-scale application.

The injection of coal into blast furnaces to replace a substantial part of the normal coke fuel will be of great economic benefit to this metallurgical process in many areas. In some cases, this injected coal will replace natural gas or fuel oil, both of which have been used commercially.

3 kids in college... how can they afford it?

You probably know people who are sending children to college... people who make about the same money you do. Their answer is "money-wisdom." They found it at a full-service commercial bank... such as ours.

By law a full-service bank can do more with money than other financial institutions. It is not restricted just to savings and a few kinds of loans. Only a full-service bank offers all this: checking accounts, savings accounts, all kinds of loans, and counsel that is much more extensive. There are no "blind spots" in its operations.

More and more parents appreciate the benefits of full-service banking. Once their money "gets an education," their children get one, too!

"Let's Keep the Record Clear and Clean"

These points we would like to make crystal clear to each and every Floyd countian:

1. A citizen who offers himself as a candidate for public office should consider his selection to the office a sacred trust to do his duty to all the public in every way.

2. Henry C. Hale for Sheriff on the Democratic ticket during the Primary stated a platform of strict law enforcement, of courteous treatment of taxpayers, and of fairness in the Sheriff's duties relating to elections. These solemn obligations made to the public before the Primary became stronger and bind more firmly upon Henry C. Hale as his election approaches.

3. Henry C. Hale has 4 sons—Ben, age 4, George, 7, Tommy, 10, and Jim, 13. When Hale leaves the Sheriff's office four years from now, his oldest son will be 17 years of age. Hale, like all of us, will want those boys to go thru their most trying years in a legally clean, a morally straight and better and greater Floyd county.

4. Contrary to scandalous political smears, Henry C. Hale for Sheriff is:

- (a) honest and sincere—he is morally and legally clean.
- (b) bossed by no one—and never has been.
- (c) a plain, accommodating Floyd county citizen who wants to be your Sheriff.

Truly a man is known by the friends he keeps—he is also known by the party he keeps. We are proud that Henry Hale has always been a Democrat—straight and true! Likewise, his opponent should be proud that he is a Republican—INSTEAD OF BEING ASHAMED OF IT!

Tidbits Of Kentucky Folklore

WADING IN DEEP WATER

In these years of remembering the Civil War a century later I have often wondered at the strange familiarity of many otherwise ignorant people with the great events of that tragic struggle. In Fidelity not a dozen people could be regarded as having more than a bare eighth-grade education; by far the largest number of the mature people were not much above what would today be called the fourth grade. And there was a big group of men and women that could not read and write. Looked at statistically, Fidelity would have appeared to be a very pathetic area. But you must remember that originally all learning had been traditional, oral, rather than written. Talking was still an art at Fidelity; what any boy knew he somehow got told. Every time we met in social gatherings, we demanded, we youngsters, that the older ones tell us of their experiences. And the older ones were always ready to relieve their earlier lives, to take us back to pioneer days in the Jackson Purchase or the uncertain but thrilling days of the 1860's. A few reputable histories were in our remote area, and they were read and reread, their small maps studied until they were mastered by many of us. Our teachers sometimes brought to school other textbooks in history, which we forthwith read and compared with our old stand-bys. At our dinners and picnics and candidate speakings we aired out knowledge of what we had read and sometimes got into great arguments about the merits of our particular texts, just like the religionists who sat and whittled around the country stores. But for many of us this very arguing clarified some of the events that we had heard and read about, so that, years later, when we could visit some of the historic places, it was not difficult to find the things we had read about.

Woman's League Slates First Annual Horse Show At Paintsville, Sept. 16

The Paintsville Woman's League announces the first annual horse show to be held at the Paintsville football field for two performances Saturday, September 16, at 1:00 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Over $1,000 in prize money will be awarded in addition to trophies and ribbons. The afternoon performance will have seven different classes, including pleasure class, most original horse-drawn rig, mule race and costume race (any horse). The evening performance will consist of ten different classes, including lead-line pony (rider not over 7 years old), pleasure horses, open parade horse, amateur walking horse, and roadster to bike.

Advance registration can be made by contacting Mrs. Harman Wheeler or Mrs. Cy Cooper, Paintsville.

Proceeds from the horse show will be used to further development of the Paintsville park and playground.

Because there was no effort to grade one's reading then and be sure that a book or story or poem was adapted to his age, some of us who were avid readers got into deep water in some of our reading but were so enthralled with it that we went on reading and loving some great books that were far above our heads. For example, when I, a boy with no high school education, felt that I must own Thoreau's WALDEN, I read and reread it until I could almost tell you where any sentence had appeared in the book. Thoreau had graduated from Harvard, not with any special honors, but his severely classical course there and his incessant reading had brought into his life treasures of ancient and medieval learning that I had never suspected existed. After my own classical education, some years later, I went back to WALDEN and discovered how some of the puzzling things had been clarified by my Latin studies.

Whatever was bound as a book was sure of a reception in Fidelity. If somebody owned it, it went to the voters of Floyd County:

I have been a law enforcement officer in Floyd county for many years and ran for Sheriff in the last primary on the platform of strict law enforcement which would minimize the illicit liquor traffic in Floyd county, and insure the safety of our homes, schools and highways.

I want to thank those who supported me on such a platform in my race for Sheriff. While I will not be your Sheriff during the next four years, I assure you that I continue with the good people of Floyd county in selecting a Sheriff this fall who will demand the strictest type of law enforcement. I have confidence that Henry C. Hale can give us leadership in the Sheriff's office.

It is my firm opinion that law enforcement in this county will be best served by a Democratic Sheriff. Past experience indicates that law enforcement is done better under Democratic Sheriffs than Republican Sheriffs. The people should think about this.

I am a lifelong Democrat, I have and always will support the Democratic ticket and ask my friends to support Henry C. Hale for Sheriff, and vote the Democratic ticket on November 7, 1961.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky

By JOE JORDAN
(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week, while Kentucky officially maintained her policy of armed neutrality and Governor Magoffin's May 20 proclamation warning both North and South to keep their troops off Kentucky soil was still in effect, or at least had not been withdrawn, a clash between armed and uniformed military units was narrowly averted at Lexington.

Another shipment of "Lincoln guns" from the North arrived at Lexington by rail, consigned to Gen. William Nelson, who was training recruits for the Union Army at Camp Dick Robinson in Garrard county. It was reported that the pro-Confederacy Lexington Rifles, a state guard company commanded by Capt. John Hunt Morgan, planned to seize the weapons.

H. K. Milward, of Lexington, destined eventually to be a lieutenant colonel in the Union Army, rode 26 miles through the night to warn Nelson. That "former naval person"—if one may anticipate Winston Churchill's coining the expression—when awakened at 3 a.m. to hear Milward's report, dispatched to Lexington a regiment of cavalry commanded by Col. Thomas E. Bramlette.

Main street in Lexington was crowded as Bramlette's troopers rode past the Phoenix hotel. A civilian called out a remark which provoked a soldier into pointing his rifle at the crowd and starting something between a panic and a riot. "Henry Saxton's boy" from the roof of the armory blew a bugle call which was the signal for Morgan's men to rally in that building. An instant later the "ourthouse bell" rang out a similar call for the pro-Union home guards to assemble. They got out the old

Telephone Talk

By BYRON SIMPSON
Your Telephone Manager

SEPTEMBER SONG—School bells are ringing again and they remind me of the unusual way students at the Glen Ridge, N. J. High School use telephones. Members of the Senior Class interview leaders in government, business, labor and finance by phone as part of a course in American Economic History! The telephone interviews are conducted in the class by an extension from the school's switchboard with an amplifier to allow students to hear the conversation!

TALK, TALK, TALK—A survey has brought out the startling information that the average man, in his lifetime, spends 8,760 hours telephoning—the equivalent of one full year! It didn't mention how much time was spent in getting to the phone when it rings. If it did, we're sure the figures would persuade everyone to have phones in convenient locations—at home and at work!

SPEAKING OF EXTENSIONS—isn't now a good time to go ahead and install that Princess Phone in the bedroom? Besides saving time and steps, a bedroom extension gives you a wonderful sense of security on nights when you're alone. Just give us a call, and we'll install a Princess—in the color of your choice—right away.

SO MUCH FOR SO LITTLE. What is it that works for you 24 hours a day, every day of the year, and never costs you a penny extra? Your telephone! Talk about a bargain! You can make as many local calls as you like—use your phone for all it's worth—at no extra cost. Maintenance is never a problem, either. Your telephone company is ready around-the-clock, around-the-year to keep your service trouble-free.

ey, and the complaining witness against the former, Mrs. Gracie Jones, was a confused witness. She fainted during questioning. Others who testified they were present when Mrs. Chullen talked with Mrs. Jones said no offer of money was made. Anna Fay Hicks testified John May, a former Floyd magistrate, offered her $10 for her accomplice vote. May admitted he accompanied "Red" Martin, who notarized Mrs. Hicks' application, to her home but said he did not enter the house. His testimony was corroborated by Martin's. Mrs. Hicks returned her ballot, unvoted.

Maggard testified that he campaigned in the county for his nephew, Barkley Sturgill, last April and decided he would not be further needed. It was because of that belief, he added, that he applied for an absentee ballot, since he had moved from Largley to Lexington. He returned to the county, Maggard said, only upon the insistence of his sister.
Maggard insisted on trial when the case was called.

Trial of Mrs. Douglas May, now of Lexington, on a charge of making a false statement to procure a ballot, was scheduled Wednesday.
The Harold Fish Company was fined $500 last Wednesday for stream pollution. It was the second coal company conviction on this charge in recent months.

Fifteen individuals drew fines and jail or pen terms last week, with most of them entering pleas of guilty. Those convicted, the offenses with which they were charged and the penalties follow:

James Stone, shooting and wounding Deputy Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis, $200 fine and costs; Sadie Click, two indictments alleging the sale of liquor, $100 fine and 60-day jail term in each case; Ezra Adkins, seduction, two years; John Franklin Shepherd, breaking and entering, plea of guilty, one year; Billy Ray Howell and Raymond Little, each accused of child desertion, pleas of guilty, two years each; Edmond Hall, breaking and entering, plea of guilty, two years; Hillard Hamilton, uttering a forgery, plea of guilty, one year; Robert Workman, Claude Robinson and Doc Blanton, grand larceny, pleas of guilty, two years; William Hall, Jr., grand larceny, plea of guilty, one year; Franklin Smallwood, Nick Tuttle and Freeman Little, breach of peace, law and facts, $1 and costs each.

The jury failed to agree in the trials of Ezra Marsillett, charged with knowingly receiving stolen property, and Ray Williams, who was named for deserting a pregnant wife. Acquittals were won by Silver Jones, charged with shooting on a public highway; Henry Mace, accused of issuing a cold check, and Tommy Burke, who was given trial on a child desertion indictment.

Bonds in the amount of $1,000 each were forfeited in the following cases: Teddy Amburgy, accused of breaking and entering; Leroy Johnson, rape, and Shannon Stone, grand larceny.

Cases dismissed and reasons noted on the order book for each dismissal:

Okie Thompson and Curtis Carroll, child desertion; Thomas Riley, cold check; Burnis Fields, assault and battery with an auto; Betty Harvey Tackett, selling mortgaged property—each dismissal upon recommendation of the prosecuting witness; Jay Johnson and Dallas Bates, grand larceny, insufficient evidence, "wrong parties before the court"; Buck Bates, Johnny and Jay Newsome, grand larceny, defendants in army; James Wright and Jack Shepherd, grand larceny, filed away subject to being re-docketed; Ned Gillespie, shooting into dwelling, "parties in same family"; Ed Gillespie, shooting into dwelling, "family fight"; Gerald McGuire, assault and battery; Orville Ousley, knowingly receiving stolen property, prosecuting witness in prison.

The grand jury voted a wilful murder indictment against Charlie Miller for the slaying here recently of Deputy Sheriff Wesley Fannin, and Miller's trial has been scheduled to begin next Thursday. He will be represented by court-appointed counsel and will remain in jail while awaiting trial.

The grand jury recessed last Thursday and returned Wednesday to work an additional three days. Only the Miller murder bill and revised indictments against six of the 13 whose indictments in the vote cases had been quashed were reported by the jury before it recessed.

MOST GENERAL HOSPITALS HAVE NO DOCTOR ON DUTY

The medical manpower shortage has reached the point that more than half of the nation's general hospitals are unable to keep a doctor on 24-hour duty in the building, but in most cases have to call one when they need him, says the September Reader's Digest in an article titled, "Is There a Doctor in the House?"

Medical schools in this country graduate some 7,000 young doctors a year; but the American Medical Association has approved internship openings for more than 13,000. A shortage is inevitable; in Indiana, 52 per cent of the available internships were filled in 1959-1960; in Nebraska, 51 per cent; in New Mexico, 42 per cent.

The situation is even worse, Lois R. Chevalier writes, in small hospitals not accredited for training interns or residents. A survey by the American College of Surgeons indicated that more than half the general hospitals in this country do not keep any doctor regularly present in the building.

One solution has been the employment of foreign-trained doctors. There were 2,072 here in 1959, 9,457 in 1960. However, many do not meet American standards; 1,600 flunked a qualifying test last year. Another solution practiced by some small hospitals has been to hire young doctors who have completed their internship elsewhere but have not yet begun practice on their own. Other hospitals get medical students or men from the Army or Navy medical corps with specialized training as aides. Others simply delegate more functions to nurses.

However, such delegation of functions can be dangerous. Miss Chevalier writes: "In our Topsy-turvy division of responsibilities, a nurse may be working alone in the emergency room while a surgeon with ten years' training is down the street lancing a boil."

Letcher Board Moves To Prevent Scandals Similar To Carter-Co.

The Letcher County Board of Education is taking steps to see that scandals like those in the Carter county school system do not occur there.

The board voted at its September meeting, Saturday to require monthly statements of income and expenditures from every lunchroom, activity account or other school fund in the county school system.

The board approved a motion made by Dr. B. F. Wright, who commented that while he did "not think any of us are on that line," he did feel the board should keep a close eye on all school funds. Heretofore the board has not delved into individual school accounts unless some question arose.

The board also voted to hire an independent auditing firm to make an audit of the school system's accounts. Superintendent Sanford Adams recommended the firm of Rouse, Rankin, which he said is the only local accounting firm approved for making the audits by the State Department of Education, but the board decided to delay action on actually hiring an accountant. Independent audits of all school systems in Kentucky have been requested by Supt. of Public Instruction Wendell Butler as a result of the case now being tried against the Carter county school system.

MARTIN

WOMAN'S CLUB MEETS

The Allen-Martin Woman's Club held the September meeting in the private dining room of Terry's Restaurant here. The club president, Mrs. T. A. Combs, presided at the business session. Plans were discussed on how to raise money to help support the Martin public library. Also needed are volunteer workers to help in the library, since some of the scheduled opening hours are not taken. The year books are expected to be ready for the October meeting.

The fall call meeting of Kentucky Woman's Clubs will be held at the Sheraton Hotel, Louisville, Oct. 26, 27 and 28.

Refreshments were served to the following members: Mrs. T. A. Combs, Mrs. Carl Martin, Mrs. David Marrs, Mrs. C. R. Marshall, Mrs. William Martin, Mrs. Beecher Scutchfield.

ing organizational plans for an all-out Civil Defense program, it was learned this week. Several veterans groups and other organizations have pledged their cooperation.

Fred Cottrell, who is constructing a fallout shelter at his residence on First avenue, pointed out this week the adequacy of old rain-water cisterns in Prestonsburg for shelters if they are modified for use. There are scores of old, unused cisterns in town, Cottrell said.

Many interested in Civil Defense are talking about the feasibility of preparing abandoned nearby mines as a project for a community shelter. It is pointed out that the mined-out area of the Colonial Coal Company would in all probability be adapted to this use.

HAZARD DEFEATS BLACK CATS IN FOURTH-QUARTER DRIVE

Hazard and Belfry, co-favorites to finish one-two in this season's Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference high school football race, both grabbed easy wins in their second games last week-end.

The Elkhorn City Cougars won their first conference game in two seasons by nipping Wheelwright, 6-0.

Outside the circuit, Jenkins edged Bardstown St. Joe, 7-0; Hall fell before Whitesburg, 25-7; Shelbyville mauled Paintsville, 33-3; and powerful Lynch shut out M. C. Napier, 35-0.

Hazard scored three touchdowns in the final quarter after leading by only 14-6, to blast Prestonsburg 35-6. Belfry tallied four t.d.'s in the last half after being held to a 21-7 halftime margin by the Pikeville Panthers who finished behind, 48-7, for their worst loss ever to their Pike county neighbors.

Hazard took the kick-off and marched 64 yards in 11 plays, with sophomore Butch Green going in from the five-yard line. Richard McGee, a sophomore place-kicking specialist, booted his first of five successful extra points.

Prestonsburg retallied in the second period when center Ashland Joseph bounced on a Bull Dog fumble on the 12-yard line. Fullback Dixon Nunney crashed over from the two after two five-yard carries.

Midway the second period, Green tallied again on a 54-yard jaunt and the score remained 14-6 until the final period when Hazard sent Junior Davidson in for scoring thrusts of six and two yards, respectively. A. J. Davis picked up the last one in the final seconds. Quarterback Floyd Hatfield whipped four touchdown passes, scored one himself and led Belfry to a rousing win over Pikeville.

Two of Hatfield's touchdown flings went to all-state end Rickey Kestner, both in the neighborhood of 20 yards. Sonny Phillips was on the receiving end of a 40-yard pass play that scored a touchdown and Walter Catron took the fourth touchdown pass from Hatfield in one covering 60 yards.

Hatfield opened the scoring in the first five minutes when he sped 89 yards.

Belfry's two other t.d.'s came on a 44-yard run by Catron and a six-yard plunge by Josh Hunter.

Hatfield had a perfect night with 5-for-5 for a total of 174 yards while his mates netted 300 yards on the ground.

Not a midway in the land would be considered complete without two traditional rides, the ferris wheel and the merry-go-round. The ferris wheel dates back to 1893 when the promoters of the Columbian Exposition, otherwise known as the Chicago World's Fair, were looking for a really outstanding attraction-getter.

George Washington Ferris, an engineer, designed a vertical merry-go-round so huge it could carry 36 persons in each car, as large as a street car, for a total of 2,160 persons on one trip.

The ride was an instant success. Later it was dismantled and was taken to the World's Fair in St. Louis celebrating the anniversary of the Louisiana Purchase. Later it was sold for junk since there were no more large fairs in the immediate future.

A bridge building concern later developed a way to make the wheel portable. Today's model, like the one coming to Prestonsburg with the Gooding Amusement Company that will entertain the patrons of the Floyd County Fair can be erected or dismantled in less than three hours.

Progress In Removing Junked Autos Is Made; Lee County Ships 200

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 14 — Real progress in removing junked and abandoned cars from roadsides and auto "graveyards" has been reported by the Lake Buckhorn Area Council. The nine-county clean-up group, which is showing the way to other clean-up organizations in the state, is made up of representatives of Estill, Breathitt, Wolfe, Leslie, Lee, Clay, Owsley, Jackson and Perry counties.

In Lee county, 200 junked cars have been moved to a Louisville and Nashville Railroad siding at St. Helens which was leased rent-free for a year by the railroad to the City of Beattyville. The junk autos will be crushed and shipped to a scrap dealer in Louisville. About 500 more are expected to be moved shortly, according to Robert Montgomery, assistant commissioner of conservation and director of the statewide "Make Kentucky a Cleaner, Greener Land" program.

Woodmen Hold Fish Fry At Dewey Lake, Saturday

The Woodmen of the World held its annual fish fry for members and families of the fraternity at Stratton Branch on Dewey Lake, Saturday. Approximately 800 attended. It is said by Ernest Turner, field representative.

The fish fry is an annual event sponsored at Jenny Wiley State Park.

Half the total cost of our meals goes to getting the food ready to eat and serve—grading, packaging, processing, storage, etc. These costs have nearly doubled since 1940. We're paying for more freedom from kitchen chores—food with less waste that needs less trimming, sorting and washing.

LITTLE LEAGUE OPENS TUESDAY

Little League football will begin its second season in Prestonsburg next Tuesday night when the first game will be played on the high school athletic field.

Complete rosters for the four teams in the city are published elsewhere on the sports page. The status of David entering the league is yet to be determined.

Games will be played on Tuesday and Thursday nights at 7:30.

The Francis Stores in Prestonsburg are again selecting the Black Cat Player of the Week. This is the ninth consecutive year that a five-man committee selects the outstanding player of the week. The winning recipient receives an award from the store, and his picture is displayed throughout the week in the store windows.

In the first game, senior guard Dickie Fitzpatrick was chosen as the first winner this season and in the second game senior fullback Dixon Nunney was selected for his outstanding play against Hazard. Watch each week for the successful candidate.

The status of the new Prestonsburg football field is still in doubt as to when the first game will be played, since the lighting system is now the hold up. The Black Cats may meet Elkhorn City on Saturday night, if the lights are not completed in time for Friday's game.

The first statewide high school football ratings list these Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference teams thusly: Hazard 13th, Belfry 14th, Jenkins 47th, Fleming-Neon 53rd, Whitesburg 89, Prestonsburg 90th, M. C. Napier, Paintsville and Pikeville all tied for 95th place, Wheelwright 106th, and Elkhorn City 112th, although Elkhorn City whipped Wheelwright, 6-0 last Friday.

Belfry's senior quarterback Floyd Hatfield has now hurled six touchdown passes in leading Belfry to top-sided victories in their first two games. The agile youth has excellent receivers in all-state end Rickey Kester, halfback Walt Catron and Jim Hunt.

State Topographic Map Aid To State Nimrods; Archery Season Slated

Frankfort, Ky.—The modern topographic map is giving Kentucky nimrods an assist with the ancient sport of hunting deer with bow and arrow.

The maps, each covering about 59 square miles, show features of special interest to hunters. These features include footpaths, little-used roads, wooded areas, farm buildings, ponds and lakes, and by special contour lines, the "lay of the land."

The deer archery hunt opens in 41 counties on October 1 and closes October 31. The deer gun season opens November 8 and closes November 11.

What's Going On in FISH & WILDLIFE
by MINOR CLARK, Commissioner
Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources

Q. If the state stocks my pond, must it be opened to public fishing? H. J. G., Golden Pond, Ky.

A. A similarly worded question has been answered previously in this column, but for those who missed the answer it is repeated. No. The status of the farm pond remains the same as it was before stocking. The owner determines who fishes or who does not fish in his farm pond. The Department believes that if it stocks all ponds, without discrimination there will be more of them open to the public by the owners free consent than there would be if the Department tried to make opening to the public a requirement for stocking.

Q. I am not a grouse hunter, but I have read that this bird is more hardy than others and that fewer of them than other species die during hard winters. Why is this? If food is available for one species why wouldn't it be available for all? G. M. H., Bowling Green.

A. The food supply of the ruffed grouse is not as readily affected by cold, freezing weather as is the food for many other species, because grouse can subsist almost entirely on buds, of which there is an almost unlimited supply and which are not very often frozen over or snowed under as is food for other birds.

Q. Who is responsible for the hunting seasons in Kentucky? R. H. N., Cumberland, Ky.

A. All hunting seasons in Kentucky, with the exception of seasons for migratory birds (doves, ducks, geese, etc.) are set by regulations of the Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission upon recommendations of the Fish and Wildlife Resources Commissioner and the Department. Migratory bird seasons are also set by the Commission within a framework furnished by the federal government.

Boy Scout Leaders Complete Train Course

Five Prestonsburg men completed an advanced Scoutmaster's Training course the past week-end at Boy Scout Camp Shawnee on Dewey Lake. The Scout leaders, Andrew Goble, Earl Flower, Arthur Leach, Clifford Wright and Bill Booth received training in camping, cooking, hiking, compass work, axmanship, rope work and program planning during the overnight session. This overnight camp out was the climax of Scoutmaster advanced training which has been in progress each Thursday night for four weeks.

This group represented Troop 21, sponsored by the First Methodist Church, Troop 20, Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church, Troop 27, Community Methodist Church.

Instructors participating in the event were Claybourn Stephens, chairman of the Leadership Training committee, E. B. May, Jr., Scoutmaster of Troop 27, Don Martin, Scoutmaster of Troop 56, of Allen, Scouts Wayne Walters and John Reed, also of Troop 56, and Jack Hodge, district Scout executive.

You probably will use your new refrigerator or range about 16 years, USDA home economists estimate on the basis of recent surveys. Families that buy new refrigerators and electric or gas ranges will keep each of them an average of 16 years; a used electric refrigerator or range, about eight years; and a used gas range about nine years.

KEA Official Urges Drastic Innovation in Professional Life

The executive secretary of the Kentucky Education Association last week called for a "drastic innovation" in the professional life of Kentucky teachers. The changes necessary to accomplish this, Dr. J. M. Dodson said, were started by the local leaders of the KEA at their annual conference this summer.

In an editorial in the association's official monthly publication, the Kentucky School Journal, Dodson pointed out the "absolute necessity" on the part of the teaching profession to accept "full responsibility" for its own actions and those of its individual members. This could, he continued, mean as much of a change in teachers' professional lives as the development of space travel would in their personal lives.

The KEA has for many years campaigned for adequate financial support for public education, especially teachers' salaries. This new effort, influenced at least partially by current investigations of alleged misconduct in school affairs, represents a departure from previous attitudes on the part of the politically powerful, 26,000-member organization.

Effects of the parks expansion program are being felt throughout the state. About half of the bond issue money has been earmarked for specific projects with the major portion going for new roads.

BORROW PITS

Know what a borrow pit is? This columnist didn't until after long asking. Finally, I was enlightened by a man familiar with railroad construction.

My interest in borrow pits began when I found an old lawsuit filed by the late T. J. Allen, of Allen, against the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company. Seems that when the railroad was being built near Allen the railway firm bought a parcel of land from Allen for a borrow pit. In the contract of sale the C. & O. stipulated it would protect some nearby fruit trees. They didn't, Allen alleged in the suit filed in the Floyd Circuit Court in 1903.

The suit used the term, "barrow pits," leading to further confusion in an attempt to determine what it was. Finally I turned to W. N. Martin, of Allen, who is full of railroad lore. Martin knew the answer and the litigation between Allen and the railway firm.

A borrow pit is a parcel of land from which the railway company excavated earth to make a "fill" at another location. In building the approaches to the present Allen railway bridge it was found a great quantity of earth would be needed to build up the road bed. The railway company bought a parcel of land from Allen to use as a borrow pit. Thus the origin of the name, the borrow pit. You simply "borrow" earth.

Martin says that railway construction workers used a simplification of the term, calling the pits, "bar pits." He noted that not only Allen but Arthur Boose Webb had a suit against the C. & O. relative to a borrow pit.

LOCK AND DAM NO. 1

Catlettsburg "went all out" half a century ago in dedicating Lock and Dam No. 1 at the mouth of the Big Sandy River, according to an article in the Ashland (Ky.) Daily Independent, August 20, this year. The Independent was quoting the Boyd County Democrat, of November 24, 1904. The Democrat story was reprinted in the Independent in the column, "River Roundup," by Bob Kennedy.

The newstory in the Democrat opened: "Lock and Dam No. 1 at the Mouth of the Big Sandy River Opened to Public Last Evening Amid Oratory, Booming of Cannon and the Blowing of Steam Whistles."

We reprint the article from the Democrat:

"Thursday was one of the greatest days in the history of Catlettsburg and for that matter in the history of the Big Sandy valley. It was a day that will linger long in the memory of the youngest child present as one of the most eventful of their lives, when their memories are faded away and lost in the mists of the far distant past. The occasion referred to was the celebration of the opening of Lock and Dam No. 1 at the mouth of the Big Sandy River at this city.

"A crowd estimated at between 2,500 and 5,000 people lined the Kentucky bank of the river when the Ohio Valley Improvement Association, which is holding its annual meeting at Huntington, came down in a body to take part in the ceremonies attending the delivery of the dam to the public.

"The program at the dam consisted of a speech by W. A. Patton of this city, who in a few brief sentences, stated the purpose of the assembling of so great a crowd from the states bordering on the Ohio and Big Sandy rivers.

"Rev. Boggs of the Presbyterian Church of this city followed with an eloquent prayer for the blessing of God upon the work that is being done and which will be done in the future in our beautiful valley.

"Owing to the unavoidable absence of Col. E. H. Rufner, engineer in charge of the work on the Big Sandy, Assistant Engineer Scholze made the address delivering the lock and dam to the public.

"Hon. Frank A. Hopkins, of Prestonsburg, responded on the part of

Former Floyd Girl Weds At Covington, Kentucky

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Mae Adkins and Mr. Lester Ruff was solemnized on August 12 at the home of her mother, Mrs. P. O. Adkins, in Covington, Kentucky. The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jesse L. Murrell, former pastor of the First Methodist Church in Covington. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. P. O. Adkins, Covington, and the late Rev. P. O. Adkins, former residents of Auxier and Prestonsburg.

The bride wore a street-length, princess-style, blue shantung dress with matching jacket. She carried a white Bible and wore a corsage of white roses. Her attendant was her sister, Mrs. Virgie Berry, who wore an orchid dress with a full skirt. Her corsage was of red roses. Charles Martin, Cherry Grove, Ohio, a nephew of the bridegroom, served as best man. Misses Donna Ruth and Darlene Adkins, nieces of the bride, were the flower girls.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home. Assisting with the reception were Mesdames Charlotte and Betty Adkins, Margaret Rundell, George Allen, Edna Moore and Miss Althia New. Following the honeymoon, which is being spent in the New England states, the couple will reside in Atlanta, Georgia. Mr. and Mrs. Ruff are employees of the Southern railroad. Mrs. Ruff is a graduate of Auxier high school.

SALES TAX, BONDS MAKE CONSTRUCTION POSSIBLE

Kentucky voters, by making the sales tax possible and by approving special bond issues, have made possible the current massive construction program. The parks expansion program, for example, is being financed by a $10 million bond issue approved by voters last fall. The resulting increased tourist travel in Kentucky is expected to return handsome dividends to Kentucky in future years.

Scalf-Franchini Vows Taken At Hamilton, Ohio

Grace Methodist Church, Hamilton, Ohio, was the setting for the wedding of Miss Mary Alice Scalf to Bruce Allen Franchini on Saturday evening, August 5, with the Rev. Paul Steel officiating. Miss Scalf is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Scalf, formerly of Prestonsburg but now of Hamilton, and Mr. Franchini is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Franchini, also of Hamilton.

A white arch, garlanded with gladioli, roses and satin bows, graced the candlelit altar, flanked by twin sunburst arrangement of similar flowers, and family pews were designated by white satin bows. An interesting musical prelude was presented by Mrs. Erma Braun, organist, and Robert Hacker, vocalist.

Nick Hardy was best man, and the ushers were Bob Scalf, brother of the bride, Gene Franchini, brother of the groom, Paul Maden and John Lewis. Danny Reed was junior usher.

The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her father. Her chapel-length gown of nylon sheer over taffeta was fashioned with a princess bodice having short cap sleeves and a scoop neckline edged with medallions in a daisy pattern. The daisy motif was repeated on the tiers of ruffled nylon sheer which formed the sides and back of the very full skirt. Her three-tiered shoulder-length veil of French illusion was held by a coronet of tiny seed pearls and iridescent sequins, and her flowers were a cascade arrangement of white butterfly roses and tulles.

Miss Donna Reed was maid of honor, and the bride's other attendants were Misses Joan Brantly and Micky Hiller, bridesmaids. They were attractive in identical ballerina-length gowns of aqua tissue taffeta. The shirred bodices had scoop necklines and short sleeves, and the bell-shaped skirts were enhanced with butterfly bows. They wore open-crowned picture hats of straw lace with tiny flower trim, and carried nosegays of variegated pink rubrum lilies.

Donna Scalf, sister of the bride, was flower girl in a short blue nylon frock with matching bonnet. She carried a basket of rose petals which she strewed in the path of the bride.

The bride's mother chose for the occasion a pink lace sheath dress over taffeta, and the mother of the groom wore a white lace sheath dress over blue taffeta. Each had a lavender orchid corsage.

A wedding reception was held in the Eagles Temple, S. Second St., where a pyramid cake graced the bridal table. Mrs. Barbara Baker, Mrs. Jenny McDonald and Mrs. Joyce Franchini assisted as hostesses.

The couple will reside in a new home at 5568 Tallawanda Drive, Fairfield, following a honeymoon. The bride's selection for travel wear was a chestnut brown cotton sheath dress with a bolero jacket and white accessories.

She is a graduate of Fairfield, Ohio, high school, and the groom, of Hamilton high school.

New Jersey Woman Bequeaths Estate To Caney Cr. Center

Pippa Passes, Ky., Sept. 12 (Spl.)—Caney Creek Community Center, Inc., received notice Saturday for the second time in two months of an estate to be granted in support of its educational work at Pippa Passes.

The bequest of $31,800 will soon arrive from the estate of the late Miss Emily G. Myrick, of Princeton, New Jersey, long a friend and supporter of Alice Lloyd and Caney Junior College. Other bequests in her will go to the Princeton Small Animal Rescue League and the Humane Society of U.S.A. in Washington, D. C.

Miss June Buchanan, president of the Caney Creek Community Center, announces the gift comes without restrictions, and will be used wholly in the current expansion of Caney Junior College. A large portion of the bequest will go to improved faculty salaries, previously scheduled, according to Director William Hayes, of the college.

Checks were received in July totalling $3,900 from the estate of Sara L. Sherman, formerly of Pasadena, California. Part of this bequest was made directly to Alice Lloyd by Miss Sherman, who was a personal friend from their early days in New England. Mrs. Lloyd's portion has been deposited directly to the Caney Creek Community Center account in the bank for operating expenses of Caney Junior College.

Miss Sara and her sisters, Miss Marion Sherman, were well known figures in San Francisco and Pasadena cultural developments, being the subject of news accounts on their 88th and 93rd birthdays five years ago.

They were charter members of the Altadena Citizens Association.

supported civic, hospital, Play House, Art Museum, Symphony Orchestra and other activities. The sisters boasted of strong suffragist sentiments and of voting in every election since 1916 without ever missing an election.

These bequests help the 1961 income from contributions to be the largest in history for Caney Creek, and this is also a necessity in order to support the largest expenditures for Caney Junior College that the Center has ever had. A strong effort is being made to increase this gift support of all kinds for the expansion of Caney Junior College opportunity to mountain high school graduates.

Salads can add sparkle to meal with contrasts. For instance, if the main course is a tender and creamy fricasse, a sharp, tangy, crisp green salad can supply the needed zest. With a hot, spicy curry or chili, a bland, delicate, jellied salad will taste just right.

GORMON COLLINS, FORMER FLOYD COUNTY SHERIFF

Dear Friends and Fellow Citizens:

I am directing this letter to you and your family, as God fearing people are the ones that are interested in good law enforcement. A better place to live and raise your children. Floyd county is not that kind of place at the present. Political favoritism and the desire to perpetuate the politician in office has, and will be, the by-word until our people demand that our county officials abide by their oath—and conduct the offices of this county for the PEOPLE instead of for themselves; to spend your tax dollar for the people, restore dignity and truth to our courts and to deserve the honor and respect that should go with a public trust—to be servants of the people instead of masters.

We all know that the primary election was a disgrace, and to call it a fair election would be a gross exaggeration of the truth. Had all the people been allowed to vote, the results would have been much different. Our politicians saw to that. They bought and paid for absentee ballots, and the county judge and the fiscal court neglected to provide enough machines or ballots for the voters. Voters were paid to stand in line all day to discourage good citizens from going to the polls. The slates bought and paid for and set up to buy, barter, or steal every possible vote, to beat your son or your neighbor's son, to elect the politician's choice, not your choice. With this kind of democracy, how long will we be able to enjoy the great freedoms that our forefathers fought and died for?

I know there is much to be done. The vote is a precious thing. It is the protector of these freedoms, the safeguard of democracy. The vote is a right to be cherished and guarded with your life, if necessary. The politicians cannot enforce our election laws! How can you prosecute yourself? They are the perpetrators of all these election schemes, the schemes that make your vote valueless.

My friends, help me to this opportunity to serve you and your people. Our elections need to be cleaned up and the violators of our freedoms punished. I will restore dignity and respect to your court. Your tax dollars will be spent for the people instead of the politician and their stooges. Your road equipment will be working on the roads that need to be built, not on private driveways, house seats and drift mouths for private individuals. Remember, when you help me you are helping yourself. I will work for the people and not discriminate against any one. I will see that justice is done, and no one will suffer because of his or her political or religious faith. I will restore your voting precincts and provide enough equipment for every one to vote.

GOOD GOVERNMENT DOESN'T JUST HAPPEN . . . PEOPLE VOTE FOR IT.

BECKLEY PRESENTS DRAMA TO DISSIPATE DOLDRUMS

This news story, titled "Not On The Rocks," by Milton Esterow, in the New York Times, August 6, shows how a small town attacked successfully the problem of presenting a historical drama.

Mr. Esterow's article follows:

Beckley, W. Va.—In an idyllic woodland setting 2,500 feet high in the Allegheny Mountains—some 500 miles off Broadway—outdoor historical drama has carved itself another home. It is one of a number of arenas, mainly below the Mason-Dixon line, that will entertain about 450,000 persons from the United States and many foreign countries this summer.

Here in the hills of West Virginia, in the coal country packed with deserted miners' shanties, a 1,000-seat amphitheatre has been built on a gently sloping mountain side to re-create the glories of the American heritage and, hopefully, to attract tourists and revitalize a lagging economy.

In 900-acre Grandview State Park, the amphitheatre, which opened June 27 with Kermit Hunter's "Honey in the Rock," an impressive play on how western Virginia became West Virginia, is 14 miles outside of Beckley. The seat of Raleigh county, Beckley is a neat, gracious town of 19,000 that has been relatively unaffected by the area depression.

The launching of "Honey in the Rock" culminated a seven-year $240,000 community and state project that was born in Beckley and is the personal triumph of a soft-spoken, self-effacing, 72-year-old man named Charles Hodel. Mr. Hodel who suffered the loss of his right leg when he was nine, publishes Beckley's two daily newspapers, the morning Beckley Post-Herald and the afternoon Raleigh Register.

The idea for an outdoor drama was first suggested in 1954. The following year, after a public meeting in Beckley, the West Virginia Historical Drama Association was chartered. This is a nonprofit producing group comprising farmers, teachers, housewives, bankers and merchants. Mr. Hunter, a native of Welch, West Virginia, drama professor at Hollins College in Roanoke, Virginia, and one of the more prominent writers of outdoor historical drama in the country, was commissioned to write a play.

A fund-raising drive got under way. The dream founded in the next couple of years as unemployment mounted in West Virginia and business men had to back out of money pledges. The association, led by Mr. Hodel, its current president, kept plugging. Mr. Hodel conducted what was virtually a door-to-door campaign.

Money started to come in. The Chamber of Commerce estimated that if the theatre played only at 50 per cent of capacity, it would bring $200,000 to $400,000 into the community in the summer, increasing retail sales by $2,500,000.

Mr. Hunter's "Unto These Hills," now in its twelfth season in Cherokee, North Carolina, has attracted 1,500,000 persons and millions of dollars. Mr. Hunter also wrote "Bound for Kentucky!" which opened in Louisville last month. Among the other outdoor dramas are Paul Green's "The Lost Colony," now in its twenty-first season in Manteo, North Carolina; Mr. Green's "The Common Glory" in Williamsburg, Virginia; and "The Stephen Foster Story" in Bardonia, Ky.

As the Beckley campaign continued, a business man who had made a pledge which he later could not fulfill, offered a half-ton truck instead. Cash gifts ranged from 50 cents from school students to $3,000. Contractors gave material. Men from the sheriff's office volunteered to park cars and patrol the theatre area. Radio and television stations gave free time for announcements publicizing the venture. An insurance man underwrote the insurance. Altogether, Beckley raised more than $70,000 to cover production costs.

The state, nudged on by Mr. Hodel and looking toward 1963 when it celebrates its centennial, allocated $157,000 for the construction of the theatre. The theatre was completed weeks before the opening, which was attended by an audience of 1,020 and highlighted by a pre-show ox roast.

The theatre is a handsome one, with stereophonic sound equipment and a lovely open sky for its roof. There are twenty-foot high stained pine wings shaped like louvres down the sides of the amphitheatre leading into the wide and deep concrete stage. A grassy plot between the stage and the audience is used in several scenes. The air is cool and business at the blanket concession is brisk. With the help of the weather man, "Honey in the Rock" will give sixty performances through September 3 at prices of up to $2.50.

Already, Beckley is finding honey in "Honey in the Rock." Thus far, attendance has averaged about 400 a night. Many of the rapt expressions seen at a recent performance are of people who have never before seen a play on stage. More than 14,000 persons from 44 states and nine foreign countries, have paid their way in. Motels are adding units. Restaurants and hotels are remodeling. Gift shops are filling their shelves. Roads leading into the park are being improved. Railroads and bus lines are promoting tours.

The title of the play refers to the state's natural resources—coal, oil, gas. If the play has rough spots and if the technique of writing for a mass audience is not altogether subtle, Mr. Hunter has endowed his play with a sense of moral integrity. With taste and imagination he has integrated song, dance and drama into the tumultuous days of secession, the birth of a state, the Civil War.

The cast of 60 is made up mostly of college and university students from the area. Some of the acting is excellent. The direction, the choral singing, the settings, the costumes, the lighting, the special music, the dancing, contribute effectively. (See Story 1, Page 5)

Construction Projects Increase In Kentucky; Takes Eighth Position

Kentucky rose to eighth position nationally in highway construction projects for the first half of 1961, Commissioner of Highways Henry Ward announced Monday.

A report of the U. S. Department of Commerce Bureau of Public Roads shows that Kentucky will improve a grand total of 901 miles of roads through contracts totaling $63,939,000.

In climbing to this rating, Kentucky also ranked third among the states for projects financed with federal funds. There were 421 non federal-aid contracts out of a total of 471, amounting to a total expenditure of $27,584,000 for 808 miles of roads.

The 50 federal-aid projects will cost $36,354,000 for 93 miles of roads. Of this amount, Kentucky had to put up over $8,000,000. Under the 9-to-1 matching agreement with the federal government, the state received $22,139,000 for its interstate system. During this period, $14,653,000 worth of contracts were awarded towards construction of the East Kentucky Turnpike with revenue bond money.

The seven states which outranked Kentucky were California, Illinois, Michigan, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Texas—states which have more people and more dollars than Kentucky.

"By using all our funds to the fullest—federal funds available for interstate roads, turnpike construction money from bond issues and the regular budget money which the Highway Department receives—Kentucky can have a modern system of highways stretching from one end of the state to the other—with our interstate and turnpike systems being among the best in the nation," Ward said.

Some of the good burghers of Virginia have indicated distress because the difference of opinion with western Virginia emerges as less than a friendly, brotherly affair. Mr. Hunter maintains that, historically, things just weren't too peaceful. And there will be those who may quibble over minor anachronisms. A local historian noted that the telegram received in the New River country until 1862.

In any case, "Honey in the Rock" is a reality. Mr. Hunter's message is not only for West Virginia but also for the rest of the country. The honey is being drained from the rock, he is saying. The rivers are blackened and polluted. Forests are gone. Have we not sold our birthright for the making of money?

But Mr. Hunter is not discouraged. The honey is still in the rock, he says. There are men and women of vision and courage and the future lies in their hands.

In a time when America is busy reliving its past and looking toward the future, "Honey in the Rock," as a community and state project and as a play in a setting of breath-taking grandeur, perpetuates the magic of the theatre and the majesty of the land.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky

By JOE JORDAN
(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week, Kentucky's official policy of neutrality, which had been adopted by the legislature and proclaimed by the chief executive with the endorsement of both political parties and a majority of the people, finally proved not to be enough to keep out the troops which Governor Beriah Magoffin had warned both sides they must not send across the borders of the Commonwealth.

Major General Leonidas Polk (in civilian life the Episcopal Bishop of Louisiana), commanding Confederate forces in western Tennessee, marched across the state line on September 3 and occupied the Kentucky towns of Hickman and Columbus, the latter a strategically important point on high bluffs commanding the Mississippi River. He was aware that strong Union Army forces at Cairo, Illinois, and on the Illinois side of the Ohio River opposite Paducah, could gain a big advantage over him if they moved first. Besides, by that time the Confederate States despaired of Kentucky's seceding, for at the August election Unionist candidates had captured control of both houses of the Kentucky legislature.

Two days later, on September 5, U. S. Grant crossed the Ohio River and occupied Paducah. Then Confederate Brigadier General Felix K. Zollicoffer moved from East Tennessee into the mountains of southeastern Kentucky. All along the 700-mile Ohio River border between Kentucky and the Northern states of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, U. S. Army units at various points crossed over, and Kentucky had become what her citizens had foreseen — a battleground for two strong belligerent powers.

Although there is no doubt about which army first marched openly across the border, arguments have been made both ways in the in-

CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM IS UNDER WAY

A vast construction program, designed to meet the pressing needs of Kentucky's three million citizens for improved job opportunities, better educational facilities and expanded health care, is under way by the state in an all-out effort to put Kentucky in its rightful place in the sun. Almost $87 million is being invested in new facilities which will serve present and future citizens of the Commonwealth. It all adds up to the biggest state building program in Kentucky's history, with the major portion of the total expenditure earmarked for projects to expand educational facilities and to lure additional tourist dollars into the state.

NEWEST EMULSIONS MAKE HOUSE PAINTING EASIER

"Emulsion" paints, new on the market this year, are easier to apply than oil paint, and also look better and last longer, outdoors as well as in, the September Reader's Digest reports. Many conservative paint manufacturers now predict that within ten years virtually all paints for the home will be emulsions.

The new paints are descended from the "latex" or "water-thinned" paints which first appeared during World War II, Jackson Hand writes; but they are vastly improved. Their binding material is a tough plastic. Three types are common: butadiene styrene, synthetic rubber; polyvinyl acetate, the plastic used in floor tile; and methyl methacrylate, the plastic better known as Lucite or Plexiglas. In the can, particles of these plastics are suspended in water. When the paint is applied and the water dries, the particles link to form a plastic film.

The emulsion paint resists wear from 1-1/2 to several times better than oil paint. It can be applied to damp surfaces, ending the house-painter's worry about weather. A second coat can be applied as soon as the first is dry to the touch—in half an hour or less. Best of all, although the paint is water-proof, its molecules let water vapor pass through — which means that properly applied, the emulsion paints will never blister.

COMBS HITS ROAD CRITICS

In Recent Hazard Talk; Defends Newport Action; Deplores McGuire Case

Governor Bert Combs lashed out at his critics in a speech at Hazard Thursday of last week which aides considered the most vigorous defense Combs has yet made of his administration.

Combs defended the Eastern Kentucky toll road and his stands in the Newport gambling probe and the Carter county school situation in addressing a Hazard civic club.

His address largely constituted a reply to a speech made in Covington Wednesday night by former governor A. B. Chandler.

Chandler lambasted the turnpike as a road that goes nowhere, chided Combs for sending the State Police into Newport to serve subpoenas, and assailed the state sales tax.

"They say the toll road goes nowhere," Combs remarked. "It serves Clark, Powell, Wolfe, Breathitt, Perry and Letcher counties, and the rest of Eastern Kentucky. And that is somewhere."

Combs said he ordered state police into Newport after the sheriff, a defendant in ouster proceedings, had served only two of 136 subpoenas for witnesses sought in a grand jury investigation of gambling and vice.

"I knew some people would say we were trying to interfere in local affairs," Combs said, "but when the underworld controls the affairs of a community to the extent it becomes a matter not only of state but national concern, it is time to let the people of Kentucky and the United States know that we're on the side of decency, morality, honesty and law and order."

Combs described the Carter county school situation as an isolated one which must be weeded out to convince the legislature school funds are not being wasted.

"Our school people are doing a good job, but they have a few rotten apples like in any other profession," Combs remarked.

"We must convince the people of Kentucky we're not going to squander their money or let a bunch of crooks steal it," he said.

Combs said that while he hardly knows Superintendent Heman McGuire, Carter county has become a symbol of something wrong in Kentucky education. McGuire is one of the defendants in a $100,000 civil suit.

Combs' remarks about Carter county and Newport drew repeated applause from the audience.

He got a roaring ovation when he defended the state's decision to spend $27,000 on repaving a street in Hazard which ends at La Citadelle, a luxury tourist resort here.

"I make no apology for this road," Combs said. "If anyone wants to build a facility like La Citadelle to bring tourists into Kentucky, then so long as I'm Governor they can be doggone sure there will be a road built to it."

He told an enthusiastic audience of 200 that he hopes the state can soon let contracts for construction of sections of the southern freeway of the Eastern Kentucky turnpike.

The southern arm extends from Campton to Whitesburg, Combs said the Highway Department is working on plans for a section from Jackson to Campton, and a section from Ky. 80 to Hazard.

Combs and a state staff of 20 were in Hazard to take in the three-day Hazard Coal Carnival and for the 13th in his series of grass-roots government.

A delegation from the Open Door Children's Home at Leatherwood got immediate results from their request for help. Combs ordered a one-mile road to the orphanage set up for state maintenance under the rural-highway program.

Other requests were for roads, jobs and public assistance.

PINEY CREEK DAM

Also near Dawson Springs is the Piney Creek Dam project which will impound an 800-acre lake under the direction of the Small Lakes Committee of Governor Combs. Approximately $54,000 in state money is invested in land acquisition, engineering and geological surveys. The lake, located in Christian and Caldwell counties and mostly within the boundary of the 18,000-acre Pennyrite Forest State Park, will provide additional recreation facilities, but water conservation is the primary function.

McComas Retires

Arthur Ray McComas, of Eastern, a veteran employee of United Fuel Gas Company, retired September 1. He was an oiler at Beaver Creek compressor station and upon retirement had 20 years of service with the gas company.

He was first employed by the gas company in 1941 as a laborer. In 1942 he became a utility man and in 1946 an oiler. Previous to working for United Fuel, Mr. McComas was a general field worker for Hamilton Gas Company.

During World War I he served with the U. S. Navy. His hobbies are gardening and hunting. Mrs. McComas is the former Maude Warrents, of Eastern. They are the parents of three children.

LISTEN!
 this pole has a story to tell

Ever put your ear against a power pole and listen to the rumble, hum and roar? It's a favorite occupation for small boys. But this particular pole has a special story... it's about rural electricity.

"As power poles go I'm pretty old... nearly 25 years. I helped to bring the first rural power lines to this county and I've seen a lot of changes since then. I've watched this Jones farm here get better and more efficient every year. Farmer Jones has added to his dairy herd, bought some beef cattle and now grows more crops. But he doesn't work nearly as hard as he once did... not with low cost rural electricity to help him.

"And now, pretty soon, I'm going to be replaced. As more electricity is used, new lines and new transformers have to go up and old poles like myself just aren't big and strong enough anymore."

Kentucky's farmers originally built their rural cooperatives for one purpose only... to get the electric power they could not buy elsewhere! Out of their cooperation has grown a force powerful enough to keep Kentucky's prosperity growing.
