

FLOYD COUNTY WAITED 160 YEARS For A Governor And...

the improvement of an area long neglected by state administrations dedicated to the interests of other sections of Kentucky. Today, Floyd county stands on the threshold of progress, the pattern of a new day envisioned and executed by an administration headed by a friend, Gov. Bert T. Combs.

WE, THE FRIENDS OF GOVERNOR BERT COMBS, ARE THANKFUL FOR HIS GREAT INVESTMENT IN FLOYD COUNTY'S PROGRESS.

DREAM OF EAST KENTUCKY TURNPIKE NOW A REALITY

Through the use of the $68,000,000 realized from bond sales and invested in Eastern Kentucky largely by out-of-state purchasers, construction of the Eastern Kentucky Turnpike from Winchester to Campton is expected to be completed by November of this year, with the two freeway legs—one to Hazard, and one through Prestonsburg to Pikeville — to be completed by November of 1963.

This road will open Eastern Kentucky and Floyd county to new and expanded industry and tourist travel.

COMBS DEVELOPING JENNY WILEY PARK TO BE STATE'S SECOND LARGEST

The Combs Administration is spending in excess of $1,980,000 to make Floyd county's Jenny Wiley State Park the state's finest—second only to Kentucky Dam Village.

Construction completed, or in process of being completed, includes:

36-Room Lodge and Dining Room • Swimming Pool • Nine-hole Golf Course • Semi-Permanent Camping Area • Renovated Boat Dock • New Picnic Areas • Playground Equipment Installed • Drive Encircling Dewey Lake Completed by Department of Highways • Amphitheatre for Jenny Wiley Pageant • Tent Camping and Trailer Area with Central Service Building and Picnic Shelter • Bathhouses • Ten New Vacation Cottages.

COMBS ADMINISTRATION ADDS TO WELFARE PAYMENTS

During its first two years in office, 1960-1962, the Combs Administration provided $1,961,638 to Floyd county's Aged, Dependent Children, Needy Blind and the Permanently and Totally Disabled. This was $224,464 more than was provided for this county's welfare program during the last two years of the previous administration.

This additional money gave average increases in welfare checks in Floyd county:

To the Aged by 15%; to the Needy Blind by 23%; to Dependent Children by 13%; to the Permanently and Totally Disabled by 32%.

Furthermore, Combs in the 1960 and 1962 General Assemblies recommended and got:

For the Unemployed Worker: $4.00 average increase in unemployment compensation benefits.

For the Injured Worker: $6.00 per week increase in all Workmen's Compensation benefits.

THE COMBS ADMINISTRATION HAS HELPED TO HAVE FLOYD COUNTY PLACED IN THE FOOD STAMP PROGRAM AND HAS PARTIALLY FINANCED ADMINISTRATION. THIS PROGRAM BRINGS $100,000 PER MONTH, OVER $1,000,000 PER YEAR, TO FLOYD COUNTY'S POOR AND NEEDY.

COMBS EXPANDS EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES FROM KINDERGARTEN THROUGH TO COLLEGE

ADDED STATE MONEY GIVES HIGHEST SALARIES,
GREATEST BUILDING PROGRAM IN HISTORY

When Governor Combs took office the total state allotment to Floyd county education was $1,507,879.87 ('59-'60 fiscal). During his first fiscal year in office ('60-'61 fiscal) Combs increased this allotment by $641,511.73 to a grand total of $2,149,391.60. With additional increases in 1961-'62 here are the results of Combs' efforts for Floyd county:

Average Annual	Before Combs	After Combs	Increase
Teacher Salaries	$2,567.00	$3,644.00	$1,077.00
Annual Capital Outlay
Per Classroom Unit (school construction)	400.00	600.00	200.00
Annual Current Expenses
Per Classroom Unit	600.00	900.00	300.00
Teacher Retirement
Per Credit Year	25.00	40.00	15.00

IT IS NOW A CERTAINTY THAT FLOYD COUNTY WILL HAVE A TWO-YEAR-LEVEL COMMUNITY COLLEGE ACCOMMODATING 525 FULL-TIME AND 225 PART-TIME STUDENTS AT A COST TO THE STATE OF WELL OVER $1,000,000.

COMBS SPENDING MILLIONS ON FLOYD ROADS -- AND MORE WORK IS BEING PLANNED

These facts show Governor Combs' interest in Floyd county roads and highways:

Since Governor Combs took office the Highway Department has spent $3,833,500 for improvement and maintenance of roads in Floyd county.

This, Too, Would Be Interesting

The Courier-Journal, and possibly other daily newspapers of the state, published recently the names of all Kentucky individuals and firms who have bought federal gambling stamps.

Names make news, especially when the names are connected with certain businesses; so we're ready to concede that publication was justified. But we wonder why the federal government does not make other information, which is equally as interesting and, we think, more important, available to the press. Specifically, why not let the newspapers and their readers have the list of all who buy federal stamps so that they may sell intoxicants without fear of prosecution in U. S. courts?

The Times once published such a list. It included the names of all persons in this "dry" county who had bought federal stamps so that they could not be accused of selling untaxed liquor. As we recall, the story did not create any great amount of interest, but it did let all and sundry, including the enforcement officers, know—if they did not already know—who was bootlegging.

We would like the names not only of the "small fry" in the business but, more particularly, we would like those of the big distributors, names of those in the money who are seldom, if ever, touched by state law or by those charged with the duty of enforcing that law.

And another thing: We would like to see enacted a state law which would make the purchase of a federal stamp by a resident of a dry county prima facie evidence of bootlegging—evidence from which there would be no squirming free.

It seems so asinine and ridiculous for the United States of America to license anybody to bootleg in a county where one of its states forbid liquor sales that we feel the state will have to enact some law such as this in order to keep Uncle Sam out of the bootlegging business himself.

4-H Forestry Work Wins Trips for 4 Floyd Boys; Each Is County Champion

Their work in 4-H Club forestry has won four Floyd youths a trip to the 8th annual Kentucky 4-H Forestry Camp near Noble, Kentucky.

The fledgling foresters have gathered at the University of Kentucky's Robinson Forest as guests of the Kentucky Forest Industries Committee and its friends.

Their achievement and interest in organized forestry projects during 1961-1962 won this recognition for them. Each is a county champion in 4-H forestry and has a background in working with natural resources.

The Floyd boy-foresters are Joe Ed Ousley, 14, son of Taylor Ousley, of Risner; Gaylord Martin, 16, son of G. S. Martin, Langley; Bob Conway, 14, son of Paul Blake Conway, Wheelwright; Tyrone Martin, 17, son of G. G. Martin, Langley.

The facilities of Robinson Forest are used in teaching conservation and nature study to students of the University. This 14,000-acre forest is at work producing timber for a sawmill, protecting the soil, storing clean water, providing wildlife habitat, and providing recreation opportunities.

The 4-H forestry camp will offer a concentrated course of instruction in technical forestry, including studies in tree planting, identification, protection from fire, disease and insects, and management for continuous crops and harvesting.

State Extension Forester James A. Newman, of Lexington, is camp director. He is assisted by a staff drawn from the University, the Kentucky Department of Conservation, the U. S. Forest Service, and private wood-using and wood-growing industries.

Three of the Floyd boys are at camp on scholarships given by the J. Walter Wright Lumber Company, Bristol, Virginia; the fourth on scholarship from the Wood-Mosaic Corp., Louisville.

TWO MORMON MISSIONARIES WORKING IN FLOYD COUNTY

ELDER LARRY PEARCE

ELDER ALLEN ADAMSON

Two elders of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints (commonly termed Mormon) are working in Floyd county to assist the local members and to explain the teachings of the church to those who are interested. They are living at the L. D. S. Chapel in Martin.

These missionaries leave their homes for two years on their own time and at their own expense. Elder Larry Pearce is from Sparks, Nevada, and Elder Allen Adamson is from Pleasant Grove, Utah. The church does not require young men to go on missions, but at the present time there are about 12,000 young men from the church laboring in all parts of the world.

Kentucky, Tennessee and West Virginia are included in the East-Central States Mission, and the headquarters is in Louisville. About 240 missionaries are working in this area under the leadership of President and Mrs. Frank H. Brown. As honorary parents of the missionaries, they reside in Louisville.

The missionaries have a systematic way of presenting the gospel to those who are interested. Six brief discussions are presented on a flannel board at the family's home and at their convenience.

FCC Approves Television
Channels for Education Program In State Schools

Frankfort, August 6 (Spl.)—Nine ultra-high-frequency channels for educational television have been approved for Kentucky by the Federal Communications Commission, the State's Educational Television Authority was told at its first meeting recently in Frankfort.

The nine channels will form Kentucky's educational TV network and will be located in Hazard (channel 19), Ashland (78), Bowling Green (17), Covington (34), Madisonville (26), Morehead (36), Murray (33), Pikeville (14) and Somerset (29). The state has already acquired sites for transmitting stations in the nine cities.

Plans also call for use of existing educational TV facilities in Louisville (channel 15).

Central production and transmitter facilities will be located at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, where professional staffing will be available from the Department of Radio, Television and Films, headed by O. Leonard Press.

Gov. Bert Combs spoke briefly at the meeting and committed $1 million in state capital improvement funds for the TV program. He said that Kentucky is also eligible for federal funds totaling from $600,000 to $1 million.

Roy H. Owsley, special consultant to Governor Combs and former Louisville city consultant, was elected chairman of the Authority. O. Leonard Press was elected vice-chairman and Don C. Bale, director of the Bureau of Instruction, Kentucky Department of Education, was chosen secretary-treasurer. These three officers, together with Dr. Robert R. Martin, president of Eastern State College, and Dr. Lyman V. Ginger, University of Kentucky, form the Authority's executive committee.

Other members of the Authority are Wendell P. Butler, state superintendent of public instruction; Dr. David M. Greeley of Harlan Memorial hospital, member of the 1960-62 Legislative Research Commission's Committee on Educational Television; Alvis H. Temple, Bowling Green radio station manager and past president of the Kentucky Broadcasters Association; and Pete Mathews, South Fort Mitchell, a Cincinnati TV program director.

David Baptist Revival
To Begin August 12th

Revival services will begin at the David Baptist Church on August 12 and continue through August 18. Services will be held at 7:30 p.m. daily.

The Rev. Cohen Campbell of Allen, will be the evangelist. The Rev. Bron Forrester, pastor of the church, will be in charge of the music.

Our Historic Heritage

A Pictorial Review of East Kentucky

(No. 202 in a Series)

RAILROAD CONSTRUCTION AT COLONIAL

Railway construction up the Big Sandy Valley in the first decade of the present century was accomplished, not with power-driven, but with horse-drawn machinery or vehicles. Hundreds of farmers in the valley were employed with their teams to haul earth on the track site of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company.

Shown here is the construction of the road bed at Colonial Hollow near Prestonsburg just a few years after the turn of the century. The late H. C. Herald, foreground, stands near his one-horse wagon.

The First National Bank presents these pictures in recognition of our historic heritage.

HISLE NOTES SATELLITE PROVIDES SCIENCE AID; TELSTAR CONDITION GOOD

In addition to relaying live television and other forms of communications across the Atlantic, the Telstar satellite has been providing valuable scientific information since it was launched July 10, Guy Hisle, local Southern Bell Telephone Company manager, said.

Most encouraging is the Bell System satellite's report on itself—that it is in excellent condition in space and that it is performing normally in its hostile surroundings.

With an apogee of 3,454 and perigee of 578 statute miles, air drag is having little effect on Telstar's orbit. The pressure of sunlight and "earthshine" also have only a small effect, therefore, a time in orbit of at least 200 years is predicted, by Bell scientists, Hisle said.

During launch, Telstar was set spinning at a speed of 177 revolutions per minute. The spin stabilizes the satellite gyroscopically and keeps its antenna pointed in the proper direction. This spin is slowing at the rate of only 35 per cent per day, a deadline adequate to maintain Telstar's axial direction for at least two years.

Telstar's 3,600 solar cells, which convert the sun's energy to electricity needed to power the satellite's equipment, survived the launch without damage. Results so far show that the cells, shielded from radiation damage by synthetic sapphires, are operating in accordance with earlier Bell Telephone Laboratories calibrations.

The pressure inside the canister containing Telstar's electronic equipment also is being maintained. This indicates that the canister has not been punctured by meteorites and that the gas, sealed under pressure inside, is not leaking out.

Temperatures inside the satellite are averaging 75 degrees, within five degrees of what was expected. Temperatures on the outer skin

TURNPIKES ARE FOLLOWED BY INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION

By JAMES NUTTER
Commissioner,
Kentucky Department of Commerce

Across the nation, wherever turnpikes have been constructed, the areas served have experienced industrial expansion.

When New Jersey built its Garden State Parkway, there was an industrial expansion across the length of that state. Florida officials report the same experience along the Sunshine State Parkway. Similar reports are commonplace along certain stretches of the Pennsylvania Turnpike, especially in the vicinity of Bedford where truck terminals were constructed.

Here, in Kentucky, the growth of the area along the Kentucky Turnpike between Louisville and Elizabethtown is a case in point. Hardin, Bullitt, Nelson, and LaRue counties adjoin that four-lane highway.

In the period between 1950 and 1960, those counties enjoyed considerable growth. Hardin county increased in population 34.7 per cent; Bullitt went up 26.6 per cent; Nelson grew 13.6 per cent; and LaRue, at the southern end of the turnpike, picked up 3.9 per cent. All this must be considered against the background of Kentucky statewide growth in the same period, a 3.2 per cent increase in population.

Construction of the Louisville-Elizabethtown Turnpike was not responsible for all the increase, but the highway did play a major role in the development of the area.

How can loose threads be repaired? Here's a suggestion from USDA housing specialists. Draw the loose end of cloth or yarn to the back side of the rug with a coarse crochet hook. Then, from the right side, pull short loops through the old holes until you have the space filled. Finish by drawing the loose end clear through to the right side and snipping off the end even with the loops. This method works on looped bedspreads and tufted bathrobes, too.

Skin Itch Don't Scratch It!

Scratching spreads infection, causing MORE pain. Apply quick-drying ITCH-ME-NOT instead. Itching quiets down in minutes and antiseptic action helps speed healing. Fine for eczema, insect bites, foot itch, other surface rashes. If not pleased, your 48¢ back at any drug store. TODAY at Rose Drug Store.

Even though the Eastern Kentucky Turnpike is still under construction, recent developments point to benefits to come. President Kennedy in recent weeks approved financing for the Kentucky Wood Use Demonstration Center in Breathitt county, another in the growing list of projects engineered by the Eastern Kentucky Developmental Association, the real driving force behind the Eastern Kentucky Turnpike from the first.

This grant of $642,000, plus another million dollars to be expended by the state of Kentucky, will make a permanent facility out of the center—a center operated by the University of Kentucky to provide product development services to timber industries throughout the country.

The products will, of course, find their way to market over the Eastern Kentucky Turnpike. This one facility, in a few years, will double the present manufacturing payroll in the 19-county area to be served by the Turnpike. At present, there are 192 plants with an annual payroll of $7,500,000, a strong nucleus upon which to build.

In West-Central Kentucky, which will be served by the Western Kentucky Turnpike, there already is a well-established industry. Available figures, with a great deal of expansion since they were released, showed 317 manufacturing plants with a payroll of $20 million. This will be accelerated as the Western Kentucky Turnpike nears completion and major markets are brought closer to home.

One business factor generally is overlooked in considering industrial expansion. The coming of a new major road stimulates real estate sales, both industrial and residential. Washington State, in a recent survey along an interstate system, reported some 200 per cent increase in property values.

There are, of course, some dislocations, but the over-all picture is one of progress. Bank clearings, construction and payrolls point to real, solid development in the advent of the turnpike.

Turnpikes, the Interstate System, and building and improving of other major roads is leading to a repetition of history when development of rivers and harbors led to the growth of major American cities.

Ottman Promoted

Irvin R. Ottman, a native of Louisville, has recently been promoted to service foreman for the Paintsville - Prestonsburg-Louisia area, according to Guy Hisle, local telephone manager.

A graduate of Manual high school and the University of Kentucky, Mr. Ottman has been with Southern Bell since July, 1961. His first location was in Louisville, where he held various assignments in the company's management training program. In September of last year, Mr. Ottman was transferred to Winchester district, a position he has held until this present assignment.

Mr. and Mrs. Ottman and son have moved to Paintsville and are residing at 1152 Madison Avenue.

Hawaiian Dip is tasty, calorie-conscious party fare. Here's the recipe from USDA. Cut a fresh pineapple in half crosswise; remove the pulp carefully and cut it into bite-size chunks. Add a little sugar and let marinate an hour in the refrigerator. Pour the juice into a cup of cottage cheese, along with some sour cream. Add honey and a little lemon juice if you like. Serve the cheese with pineapple shell "bowls" surrounded by pieces of pineapple and whole strawberries. Offer wooden picks for easy dunking.

Last year, the United States exported 41 million long tons of agriculture products—about four times the combined weight of every man, woman and child in

WHAT MAKES A GOOD HOME MAKER?

What makes a good home maker? Here are the most essential abilities for a successful homemaker, as rated by homemakers themselves in a recent survey. Good management of time topped the list, with good management of money second. Positive attitudes toward homemaking was ranked third and "ability to gain cooperation of others in the family" was rated fourth. Housekeeping skills, food preparation and sewing were far down on the list.

WYOMING DENTIST, THE MAN THEY WOULDN'T LET DIE

Dr. Charles Welsh, of Cheyenne, Wyoming, a dentist whose heart stopped beating several times last February, is now well enough to play golf. Since recovering from his ordeal he has played as many as 27 holes in one day at the Cheyenne Country Club.

The story of how medical attention at DePaul Hospital dramatically brought Dr. Welsh back to life after his heart stopped or nearly stopped beating seven times is recounted in detail by Joseph Blank in an August Reader's Digest article, "The Man Who Wasn't Allowed to Die." It is the "Drama in Real Life" of the issue.

Dr. Welsh, a 59-year-old bachelor, was taken to the hospital last February 16 with a racing heart-beat and given oxygen and drugs. At 3:35 p.m. a priest gave him the last rites.

A few minutes later, Dr. Welsh's heart suddenly stopped beating. While he was given mouth-to-mouth resuscitation with an airway, Dr. Ben M. Leeper cut into the patient's chest with a pair of scissors and massaged his heart.

Six similar crises followed within two days and at one time the patient said, "Doc, let me die." But Dr. Leeper, a 39-year-old graduate of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, and the hospital staff successfully continued their efforts, employing drugs, heart massage and an electric defibrillator.

Dr. Welsh is deeply grateful to all involved. "People should be thankful for the knowledge doctors have today," he says. "Twenty years ago I doubt any doctor would have been able to pull me through."

He is a member of a pioneer Wyoming family and has a 1930 degree in dental surgery from the University of Denver. He has golfed since 1917, first playing as a caddy; has a nine handicap, shoots in the low 80's, sometimes in the 70's.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky

By JOE JORDAN
(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week, Confederate Col. John Hunt Morgan and 875 of his officers and men were back in Kentucky, operating behind enemy lines and causing immense excitement and alarm among Unionists, especially in Louisville and Cincinnati.

The first enemy force encountered, at Tompkinsville in Monroe county, was the Ninth Pennsylvania, which was defeated in ten minutes and its commander captured. The Confederates seized a Federal train of twenty wagons, filled with supplies. They then marched to Glasgow, the home town of a majority of the members of the Second Kentucky Cavalry's Company C, which had been recruited there. Ladies of the friendly community served breakfast to the troops.

At Bear Wallow, Morgan's expert telegrapher, "Lightning" Ellsworth, tapped the line, obtained information on the movement of Union troops, and added to the enemy's confusion by transmitting false dispatches.

Six miles from Lebanon, Col. Morgan led a small party that charged under fire through a covered bridge, drove off the defenders, and thus enabled the whole command to cross the Rolling Fork River safely and march on the town. Morgan's hat was shot off, but neither he nor anyone else of the group that seized the bridgehead was hurt.

The Union commander at Lebanon surrendered after brief resistance. Two hundred of his soldiers were taken prisoners. The Federal forces had huge stores of weapons, ammunition and provisions in warehouses at Lebanon. Small arms were found in numbers which permitted equipping all of Morgan's troopers with excellent weapons. They also obtained a great plenty of fresh ammunition. After replenishing their provisions, the Confederates let the citizens help themselves to meat, flour, coffee, sugar and other foodstuffs, and then burnt what was left. Gunpowder was removed from a stone magazine and dumped into a stream.

The raiders passed through Springfield without halting and encamped near Harrodsburg. The next morning, a Sunday, they rode into the Mercer county seat about 9 a.m. The ladies had prepared fried chicken, beaten biscuits and other delicacies in great quantities. All day the cavalrymen feasted, rested and visited in hospitable homes. It was about dark when the column moved out. At 1 a.m. the Confederates halted at Lawrenceburg, twenty miles away.

The Rebels had now marched some 300 miles in eight days, had suffered only slight losses and had won all their fights easily. As Basil Duke was to write later, "The men . . . were comparatively fresh, and in the most exultant spirits. So far, everything had gone well. Although encompassed by superior forces, celerity of movement and skillful selection of route had enabled us to elude them." Morgan's now-famous "first Kentucky raid," the first of five such expeditions he would lead, was rolling smoothly.

Kentucky Schools Aided By Federal Lunch Funds; State Receives $277,000

Frankfort, Aug. 6 (Spl.)—Kentucky public and private schools will receive over $277,000 in federal funds as partial reimbursement for 6,624,000 school lunches served during May and June, Wendell P. Butler, State superintendent of public instruction, has announced.

This is a 4.19-cent per-lunch reimbursement rate for the two-month period as compared with a 2-cent rate for March and April. According to Butler, the increase of the reimbursement rate was due to lower student participation in the school lunch program than expected.

Appointment of the federal funds among the states is based on the ratio of students who eat school lunches to the total number of students attending schools and the assistance need rate for the state. Reimbursement rates are determined each month in Kentucky according to student participation, number of free lunches, cost of lunch to the child, the size of the school and the economic index of the local school district.

Reimbursements were paid on more than 60 million lunches during the 1961-62 school term.

SPORTS AFIELD

BY TED KESTING

What is the best bass lure? According to Jason Lucas, Angling Editor of Sports Afield Magazine, many people never do well on bass because they keep hoping to find a lure that will always make good catches—without their bothering to learn how to fish for bass.

A far greater number catch perhaps a fourth as many bass as they should, because they keep on using a lure that had got them some fine catches—after the bass have changed their minds and decided that it's just exactly what they won't hit.

Bass are the most temperamental of fish about what they'll take, and the only way the best angler can discover what they want at any given time is to keep trying different things until he hits on the right one. Try lures of different types, not merely different ones of the same type.

Yes, bass can distinguish colors, and probably about as well as we do—the time is past when there was argument about that. And they can also, and sometimes quite rapidly change their notions as to what colors they want. Which means that there can't possibly be a "best" bass lure except for a given time and place. But—to simplify this trying-out problem—when you find that one does well, the chances are very strong that it will do well for at least a few successive days, especially at roughly around the same hours that it made that good catch for you.

A few of the errors comparative beginners make at present: Many with spincast or spinning tackle stick entirely to metal lures. Many anglers use only newer lures. Those that have been on the market a generation or more will on the average do. This is because, of the great number that came out at about the same time, they are the tiny percentage that have survived—purely because they catch fish. So, of the great number now brought out, in 20 years you'll find only a few left on the market—the best ones. Under testing conditions, a bass can learn to remember and avoid a certain lure. But under actual fishing conditions they do that so little that we can forget about it.

THE FEMININE SIDE OF BOWLING NEWS

By IMA BOWLER

This week, perhaps, it would be well to discuss several things which have come to our attention.

First, the secretary of each league is responsible for handling the money. I realize that there are times when the secretary is absent, but she is still responsible and should appoint someone to handle the weekly fees nights when she is off. There are many reasons why you shouldn't turn over the envelopes to the desk, but the major one is that it is your money; and, although the managers will usually take it, it simply isn't fair to them to ask them to keep up with it. It is irresponsible to do this and it places them in a bad situation. They simply don't have time to keep up with each team's fees or shortages. So, if you can't find the secretary, give your funds to another league officer, and let's stop aggravating the desk about things for which we are responsible.

There are so many things which we need to give more attention to that I don't know what to mention. Actually, we have gone along this past year pretty much on our own merry way, but the time is at hand when we need to get in there, and follow these rules. Take very serious interest when you elect officers for your leagues. These gals can make or break a successful league, and even though a girl might be a good pal she might easily not be a worker who will spend hours at this job. So give serious thought to the new officers.

It is vitally important that those of us who aren't WIBC members to join before we bowl in the league. It is the responsibility of all the WIBC members to see whether or not all team members are members, and whether each league you bowl in is a sanctioned league.

There is no such thing as a "house" league or house tournament—that isn't sanctioned. If one is a WIBC member, she must not bowl in anything that isn't WIBC sanctioned. There are two leagues bowling at this time in our area which are so called house leagues, but they aren't.

Lake Lanes' high bowler of the week was Jeanette Bowles with a 203. There are three professional bowlers coming to Lake Lanes Saturday, August 25, each with a ten-year average of over 195. There will be a school for youngsters at 11 a. m. and a school for ladies at 3 p. m., and at 8 p. m. Exhibitions on the lanes and instruction on the lanes; free refreshments all day.

Crown Lanes' Amateurs will bowl in Owensboro, August 11 and 12. These men are doing fine, so watch them. The Coffee and Do-Nut league still bowls Tuesday mornings at 10 o'clock. The high bowler last Tuesday morning was Venice Reynolds with a 189. Venice was also high bowler of the week.

Threadfin Experiment Makes News In Kentucky; Bass Up At Cumberland

Special to The Times

Frankfort, Ky., July 17—Mention a threadfin shad to 99 out of 100 fishermen and you'll probably draw a blank stare. They'll not know what you're talking about, yet this little food fish is on his way to making history in Kentucky in that, as a result of its presence, more bass, white bass, crappie and walleye reach maturity in Lake Cumberland at a faster rate.

The threadfin experiment, started five years ago, has proven successful in that the lake is carrying a greater number of faster growing game fish than ever before. So says Minor Clark, commissioner of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

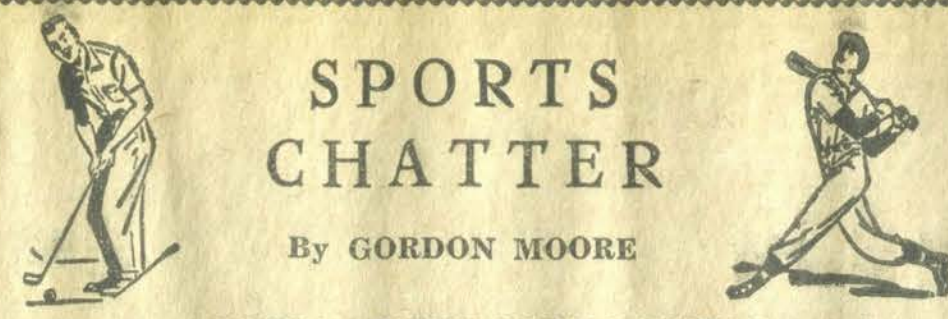

(A limited number of threadfin shad has been released this season in Dewey Lake.)

The threadfin is making history in Lake Cumberland where he was stocked in small numbers a few years ago. And he is making history through his ability to act as cannon fodder (or food) for the crappie, white bass and black bass in Lake Cumberland. This spring the spawn of the threadfin in this lake was excellent. As a result of this available food, a good spawn of crappie and black bass and an adequate number of white bass for the past two years, the young game fish this year are fat and sassy and are enjoying a very rapid growth.

More about the threadfin later, but right now, the Department has excellent news for the fishermen at Cumberland. Contrary to reports that there was little or no spawn of black bass the past spring, biologists are finding, in chemically treated sections of the lake, as many as 100 young black bass per acre of water. In anybody's fisheries book that is excellent. Also, shown through these treatments is the fact that the rate of growth is greater than during the past, emphasizing that there is plenty of food for them. And also these tests reveal that the population of crappie, from 7 to 10 inches in length, is excellent, and that they are in better shape, physically, than at any other time in the lake's history.

All these glowing reports, according to Bernie Carter, director of Fisheries, stem from the fact that there have been good spawns of fish in the lake for the past two years and that they are getting ample nourishment as result of the heavy spawn of the threadfin. This presages better fishing in the lake next year, not that it hasn't been good this spring.

Fisherman of the lake, right now at least, are having difficulty with the black bass, as is common during hot weather, although the white bass catch and the crappie is good. The crappie

By GORDON MOORE

COUNTRY BOY AT THE FAIR

Seattle, Wash.—Five of the more than 300 exhibits at the World's Fair held my attention for the second successive ten-hour day.

Not being a scientist nor having one with me, I was left agast at the United States Science Exhibit, World of Century 21, Ford Motor Company exhibit, the Bell System and General Electric exhibits.

The theme of the fair is World of Tomorrow and it's rather difficult for the average person to grasp the scientific ideas for living in the next century.

Impressions retained and understood by me in relation to what is to come in the home, telephone and automobile of the future are pointed out in the following paragraphs.

The Home. The interior of the home of tomorrow, as viewed here, will have a one-unit utility core which supplies heating, plumbing, wiring and automatic climate control. The house will be free of dust by using a built-in vacuum system.

The furnishings are expected to be lightweight foam plastics, foam cement and glass and combinations of plastics, paper and light metals. Windows can transform day into night or night into day at the flick of a switch and when it rains the windows close automatically.

The kitchen is a wonder of built-in efficiency, with solar ovens, cordless appliances and thermoelectric refrigerators. The entire color scheme can be changed by merely flipping a switch.

The Telephone. Pushbutton dialing is on exhibit here and should be in public use long before the 21st Century. Virtually all of the public telephones on the fairgrounds have push-button dialing and, unlike the standard coin phone, are push mounted on the wall. Box telephones are expected to become more popular than the receiver-type phone.

Viewing the person with whom are feeding on shad right now, dissections show, and fishermen are missing a bet by not using them. Those who are using shad and fishing at night are having excellent success with the crappie, while the minnow fishermen, in daylight hours, are having their troubles. But there is no scarcity of fish in the lake, Carter says, and points to the surveys to prove his point.

There is an oddity in the lake this summer that's befuddling to the bass fishermen. The water is crystal clear for the first 25 feet down, but then there appears muddy water that remains from the heavy siltation that occurred in the early spring and last winter. The water is habitable by fish, but due to the muddy condition, fish are unable to see the lure. Therefore, where fishermen were harvesting fish by trolling deeper than 25 feet in past years, they are harvesting nothing this year. That, of course, is because of the muddy water. So, trawlers are urged to troll more shallow this summer and their catch will improve. Also, due to the heavy spawn of threadfin this spring, bass are not hovering around the shores so much, since they can obtain their food in almost any waters, and therefore, bank fishing is down.

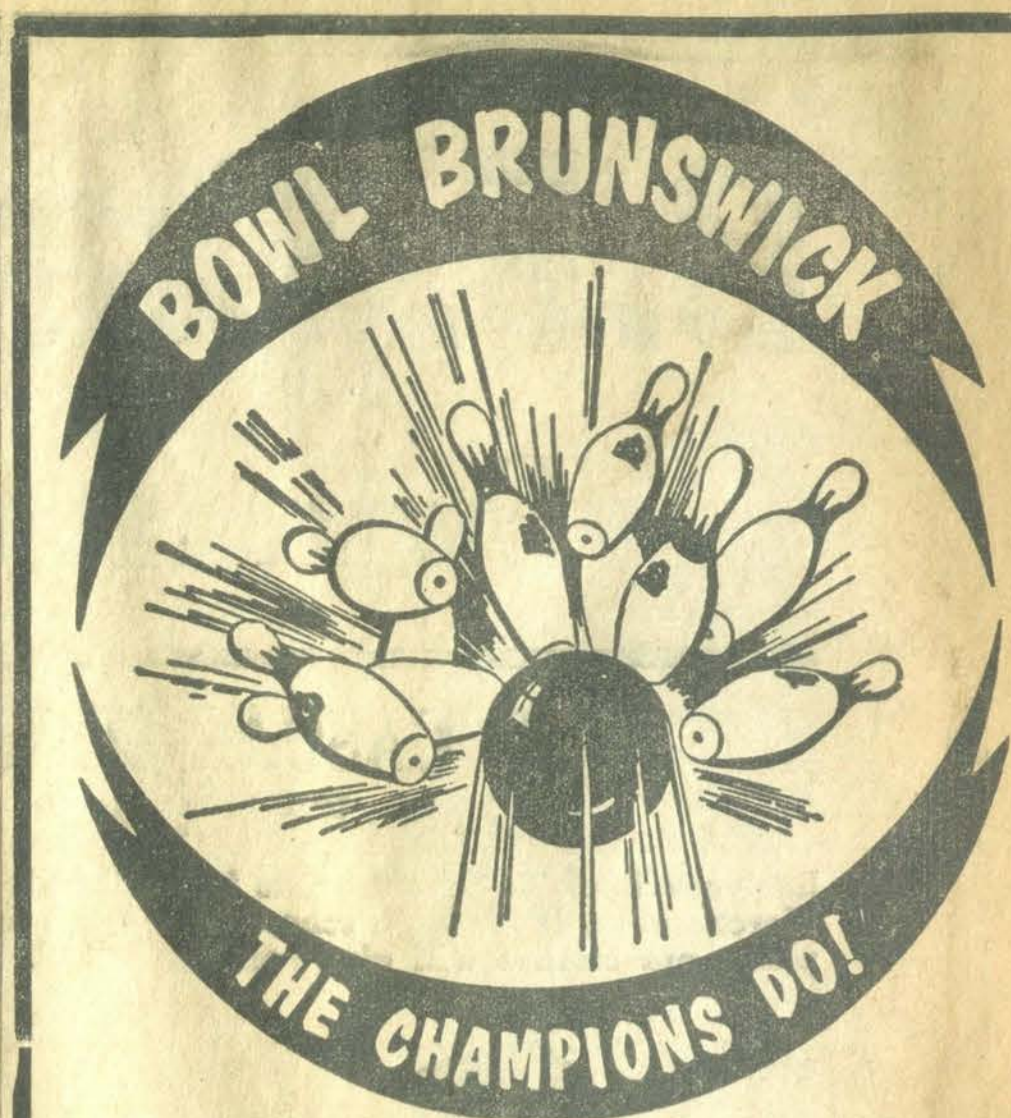

Since that threadfin has been mentioned again it is high time an explanation of his habits is given.

The threadfin, unlike the gizzard shad, which has pestered fishermen and fish management for many years, is a dwarf. After a couple of years, if he's so lucky that a fish hasn't gobbled him up, he'll be only about four inches long. Even then he is a delicacy for the larger bass. In other words, he grows slower and does not outgrow those which he feeds. This spring, with the heavy spawn of threadfin, the smaller fish have had excellent food at their asking. They'll have that food all this summer and throughout the winter, for that matter. Whereas the gizzard shad would have been too large for the smaller fish after a few weeks, the slower growing threadfin is a source of food throughout his life.

Then, too, the threadfin is more susceptible to winter kill than the gizzard and the danger of the threadfin "taking over" a lake is remote, whereas the gizzard is apt to do just that unless he is controlled by chemical treatments as was the case in making Herrington Lake more fishable.

The threadfin was stocked in Cumberland Lake in 1957. Early reproduction was slow, but for the past two years the population has grown with the excellent spawns.

Since in the past two years there have been excellent spawns of the most sought after fish and the threadfin is in excellent numbers, there is little wonder that the fishery boys are highly optimistic about the future of this lake.
