after going through prolonged os-culatory exercises with the Barney Stone. He wanted to know what "your people" are thinking . . . you keep your finger on the pulse of the people, blah, blah. I felt like telling him that, the last I felt, the pulse wasn't beating, but I was afraid he might remind me that it was I, not the people, who was dead.

IS THIS TREASON?

I am a hillbilly from 'way back, and proud of it. I will do battle (at a safe distance, with words) for our region, its people, their customs, and so on. But I must confess, I am so tired of some of this music that fills the air and my craw—this hillbilly and rock-and-roll tripe—that the screeching of a prima dona trilling foreign words to music my ear cannot comprehend would be blessed relief.

Some joker has submitted a couple of headlines:
"Man Bites Dog"
"Allen Catches Fish"

ONLY ONE COMPLICATION

Blame this one on Ardian Conn, not me:

A young colored boy was talking to a neighbor, and the neighbor said, "I hear you got a new papa over at your house. How do you like him?"

"Oh," said the boy, "he's awful nice to me. He takes me out in the boat, out to the middle of the lake every Saturday mornin' and throws me out and I get to swim back to shore."

"But it seems to me that would be pretty hard on you to swim that far."

"Oh, I enjoy the swim," said the boy. "The hardest part of the whole thing is gittin' out of that sack every time."

Emily Post on How to Handle a Foot-Long Without Help:

Rest your left elbow on left knee,
your left hand. Place right foot on dashboard and support middle of sandwich with right knee. Let right hand take care of remaining portion. Ask waitress to remove your glasses, then, with right knee as axis, move left hand forward and to the right, bringing right end of foot-long within reach of mouth. Then bite, gulp. And do not use ungentlemanly remarks.
The sauce-stains on your shirt will wash.

TOUR SMOKIES

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ramey and Junella, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Ramey recently toured the Smokey Mountains and saw the outdoor drama,
"Unto These Hills." On the way home they saw "The Book of Job" at Pineville.

PROFESSIONAL BOWLERS COMING TO LAKE LANES, AUGUST 25

On Saturday, August 25, the Don Smith Bowling School will be coming to LAKE LANES for an all-day instruction session. The school will begin at 11 a.m. for the youngsters; at 3 p.m. for the ladies, and at 8 p.m. there will be an exhibition followed by on-the-lane instructions.

All this is FREE—Besides, we furnish free refreshments!

Don Smith has bowled five 300 games and will have with him two other young professional bowlers — Archie Fuller and Sonny Hughes. These two, only 20 years old, carry a 193-plus average. Don Smith has averaged over 196 for the past 10 years.

HERE'S AN ITEM OF INTEREST to any one who is having trouble with his or her bowling—Sonny Hughes bowls off the wrong foot, and averages 193 doing it!

Be sure to attend this exhibition on Saturday, August 25.

The six bowlers who will compete with the visiting pros are Barney
Walker, C. J. McNally, David Joe Willis, Bill Goebel, Jr., Arnold Clark and David Wyatt.

High bowlers this week—

JIM SWORD and JIM McDONALD (tie) (236)

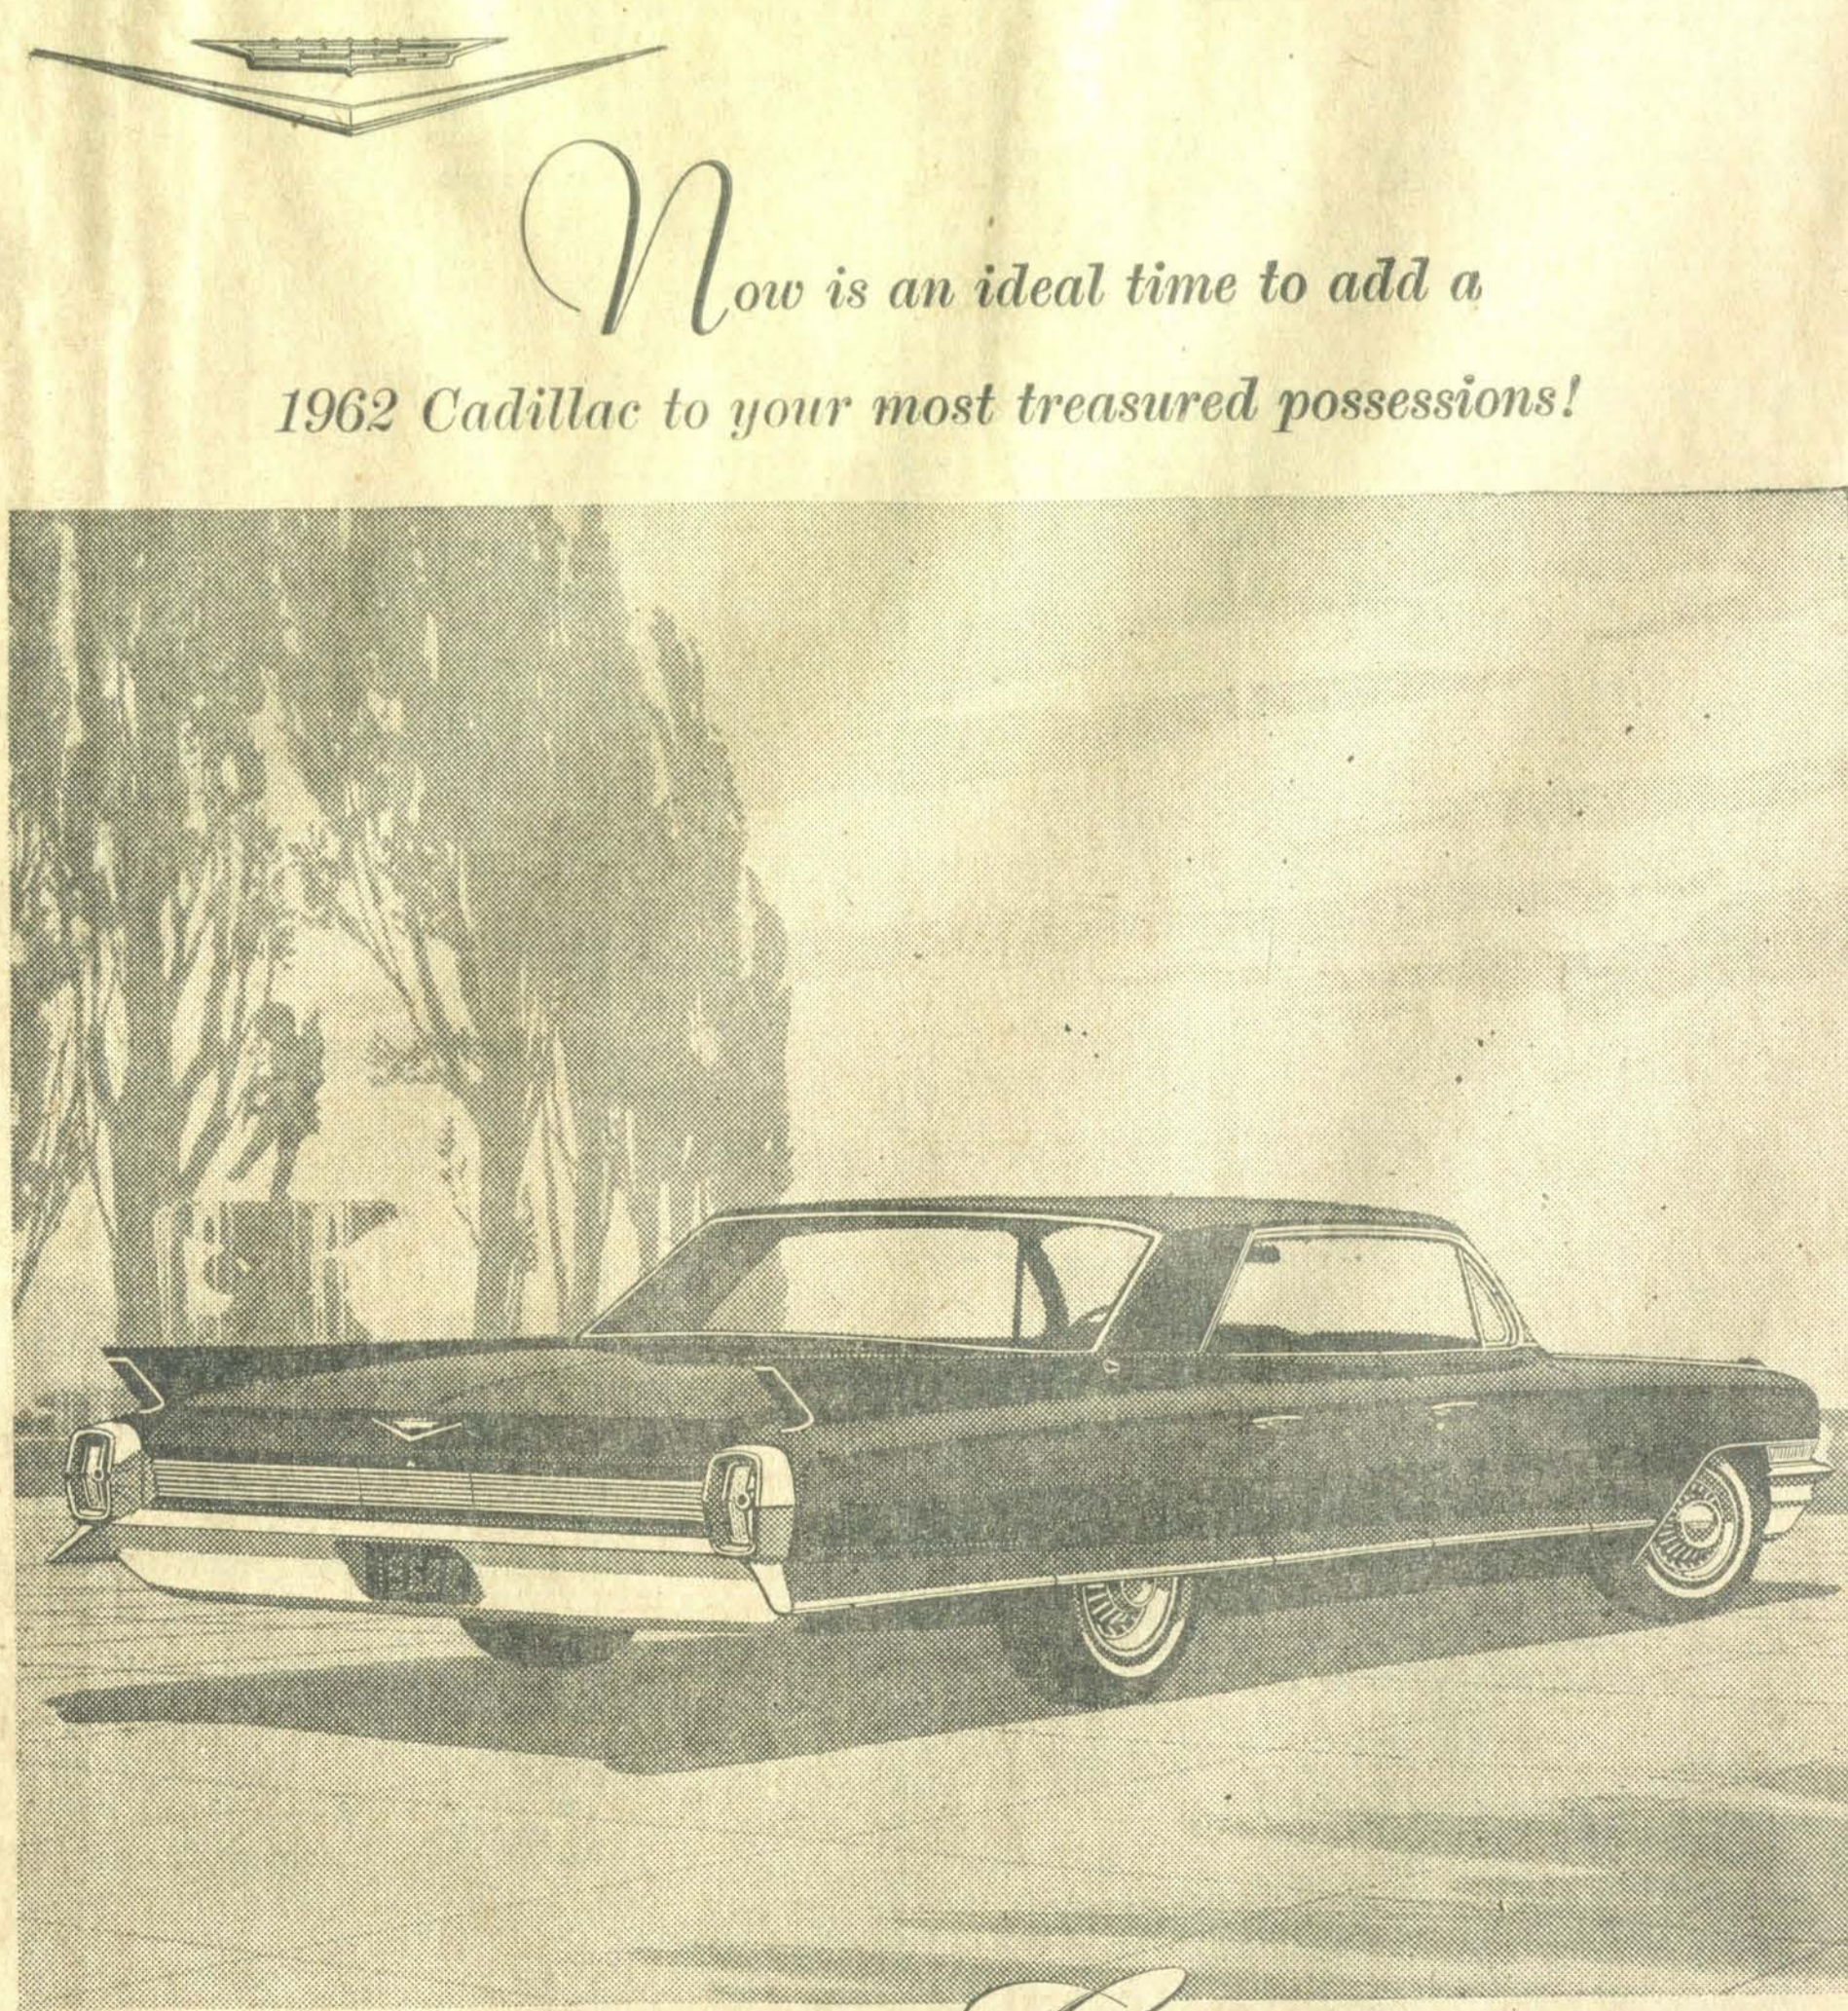

PHYLLIS HAMMONDS (266)

MARRIAGE SOLEMNIZED

Miss Sharon Lynn Hayes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rondal Edwin Hayes, Hueysville, Kentucky, and Mr. James Chester Claypool, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cecil Claypool, of South Ft. Mitchell, Kentucky, were united in marriage on Saturday, August 11.

The ceremony took place at 3 p.m. at the Macedonia Christian Church, midway between Lexington and Winchester, Kentucky. Mr. William E. Stark, pastor of the church, performed the double-ring ceremony.

NEWSPAPER POLL SHOWS SENATOR RACE A TOSSUP; CHANDLER AHEAD NOW, 2-1

Special to The Times Middlesboro, Ky.—When Republican Sen. Thruston Morton and Democrat challenger Lt. Gov. Wilson Wyatt square off in the November 6 U. S. Senate election, Kentucky's newspaper editors have predicted it will be a toss-up.

That's the results of an extensive poll the Middlesboro Daily News conducted among Kentucky's 169 newspapers on the race outcome. Forty-four editors predicted Morton would win and 44 predicted Wyatt the victor.

A total of 95 newspapers—56 per cent—answered the poll. Seven were undecided. Rural areas, as evidenced by weekly newspaper replies, gave Wyatt the edge, 35-33. Municipal areas with daily newspapers predicted Morton the winner, 11-9. Morton appeared strongest in the central section of the state, 18-11; Wyatt appeared toughest in the normally Democratic western area, 18-11. The replies from Eastern Kentucky newspapers were a toss up, 15-15. (The Floyd County Times did not participate in the poll.)

Editors were asked, "Who do you think will be Kentucky's next U. S. Senator?" Editors were also asked to comment on their selections, but there appeared to be no central thread of reasoning for either candidate. Morton's backers generally believed his experience as a statesman and Democrat gubernatorial factionalism would aid him.

State Troopers Ride Pony Express Style To Deliver Packages

The Kentucky State Police rode, Pony Express style, one day last week. Making a practice run for times of emergency, two state troopers picked up supplies from the State Department of Health in Frankfort Wednesday morning. Through a relay system, planned by the Department of Public Safety and the Health Department's Division of Health Mobilization, these supplies were rushed to outlying Kentucky communities.

One trooper headed out for Bardston where he handed his load over to another state police car headed for Bowling Green. There other troopers took packages earmarked for county health departments at Morgantown in Butler county, Franklin in Simpson county, and Tompkinsville in Monroe county.

The other trooper left Frankfort for Salyersville. From that point his supplies were relayed to health departments at Louisa in Lawrence county, Inez in Martin county and Hindman in Knott. All supplies reached their destination by 4:30 in the afternoon.

Supplies chosen for the trial run, which would demonstrate and give practice in handling emergency supplies in the future, were cartons of frozen Sabin oral vaccine. This vaccine had been ordered by the county health department for future use.

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 23—Some 120 historic sites in Kentucky will be marked during the coming months, members of the Administrative Committee of the Kentucky Historical Society's historic markers program were told at their recent meeting.

When hot or sweating dishes cause deep white spots on wooden table tops, rub the stains with salad oil and salt, recommends Kathryn Sebree, University of Kentucky Extension home furnishing specialist. Dip your finger in the oil, then in the salt, and rub the spots. Quite a bit of rubbing may be needed to remove these stains.

A ten per cent increase in International Farm Youth Exchange participation was recorded in 1961. Last year, 108 U. S. delegates from 40 states went to 41 countries, while 109 exchanges visited the United States. These IFYE's stayed in rural homes, learning the way of life in another country by actually living as members of families there.

TROJANS HAVE 17 LETTERMEN

Wheelwright Gridders May Be School's Best

Wheelwright, more noted for its fine coal and basketball teams, may see its high school football team on the upsurge this season.

The last member to join the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference has won only two games within the loop in the past three seasons. But, after winning three of eleven starts overall last year, southern Floyd county fans are expecting this edition to be the school's best team.

Seventeen returning lettermen and a big, senior line are Coach Ray Brackett's strong points. Lack of overall speed is the biggest headache.

Wheelwright's first test will come this Saturday night at Jenkins when they meet the Cavaliers in the first game of the 1962 season in Eastern Kentucky.

Mindful of last season's humiliating 34-0 shellacking, Brackett is hopeful that eight regular holdovers can atone for that defeat.

Brackett, an Eastern State College product in his fifth season at the school, and Assistant Coach Don Daniels (Morehead State) will open with this line-up Saturday night.

Seniors Larry Adkins and Glenn Keaton get the nod at the flank positions. Both are holdovers. Adkins is a 6-2, 190-pounder and Keaton a 6-1, 160-pounder.

Tackles John Vanosdol and Lawrence Thornberry tip the scales at 220 and 215 pounds, respectively, and are six-foot-two-inch seniors. Each has won two previous letters.

Gary Wyskiver is the only sophomore on the starting eleven and he will be at guard along with Ernie Moore, a 220-pound junior.

Center Bill Skiles is a three-year veteran and is a 190-pound senior.

This line will average very near the 200-pound mark, as compared with 170 pounds in the backfield which will have two seniors and two juniors.

Quarterback Vernon Hall, senior, halfback Charles Ed Hall and fullback Douglas Hall, played in every game last season. Junior Robert Jackson is the only inexperienced candidate in the opening eleven. Douglas, a 185-pound junior, is the heaviest back.

Wheelwright will play eleven games, with seven of the opponents league foes.

THE FEMININE SIDE OF BOWLING NEWS

By IMA BOWLER

There is much of interest this week, but first and foremost, I feel, was the 266 scratch game bowled by Phyllis Hammonds in the Suzar Bowlers League at Lake Lanes last Thursday night. I had the privilege of watching this beautiful game. Later, we learned that this is the highest score bowled by a woman the the entire Big Sandy valley area since bowling began here. So congratulations, Phyllis.

The first open meeting of the 1962-1963 bowling season of the Association was held at Starlite dining room at Pikeville, Sunday afternoon, and we would like to apologize for scheduling this at the same time as the pageant, but it was not realized until too late to change the 700-odd letters, which were mailed, and we are sorry that many of you missed one of these events, as we felt both were very important. The meeting had excellent attendance, and many important things were discussed. I will cover some of these a little later, since there is much of note this week to tell you about.

Summer leagues are bowling their last series this week, and most of you will be electing league officers within the next ten days. The Lakettes League elected officers this week. Those elected were: Mabel Allen, president; Mary Catherine Mitchell, vice-president; Mary Zemo, secretary; Wanda Colvin, treasurer; Evelyn Salisbury, sergeant-at-arms. These officers are all interested in their leagues, and I'm sure they will all try to do a fine job.

We are making plans for a school workshop to help these officers get started smoothly. The first workshop will be held on Wednesday night the 29th at Lake Lanes' Teen Room, and the second workshop will be the next night, Thursday, August 30, at Starlite Lanes League Room. It is vitally important that you attend these meetings if you are elected an officer, because you will not have the necessary supplies unless you do attend. It is compulsory for all league officers to attend this meeting. If you cannot possibly make the one in Prestonsburg you must attend the one in Pikeville.

This coming Saturday is the day the professional bowlers will be at Lake Lanes for free instructions to all, the entire day, and this is an opportunity you cannot afford to miss. Free refreshments, too. The Coffee and Donut League begins at Lake Lanes, August 29. This is much fun and you will love the relaxed atmosphere and the peaceful time of day to bowl.

At Crown Lanes, Venice Reynolds was high with a 208. Crown Lanes is forming a Good Neighbor League for charity. This league for women begins September 3, and they need 65 women. Funds in "kitty" will be given for underprivileged children and to buy milk for school children here.

OPENERS SATURDAY

Two football games this Saturday night will mark the opening of the 1962 Eastern Kentucky high school football season.

Wheelwright, expecting the best team in the school's history, travels to Jenkins in a league test, and Wallins invades Fleming-Neon.

Next Monday night, Whitesburg will be host to Loyall of the Cumberland valley loop.

Prestonsburg and M. C. Napier were originally scheduled to open in Hazard Friday night, but Perry county delayed opening school one week, and, according to Kentucky High School Athletic Association by-laws, a game may not be played before the opening of school, and so the game was cancelled.

Thus, Prestonsburg will open against Wheelwright, Saturday, September 1, when they vie for the Floyd county championship on the local gridiron. A trophy emblematic of the championship will be presented to the winner each year. The losing coach will present it to the winner at the game's end.

Ray Brackett has a veteran squad at Wheelwright with 17 lettermen returning. His line will average 192 pounds, making it one of the heaviest in the state.

The Black Cats have only four regulars returning, will be a "green" team but may be helped considerably by transfer Paul Fuester, a senior halfback who has fine speed for his 185 pounds.

Don Wallen, Wheelwright cage mentor, was elected president of the Floyd County Coaches Association, Monday afternoon, and Pete Grigsby, McDowell basketball coach, was named secretary-treasurer. The coaching group convened to map plans for the annual pre-season basketball tournament, November 28 to December 1.

Goebel Ritter (Whitesburg) and Nelson Allen (Russell) were named to officiate the eight-team affair. Frank Heinze and Johnny Ellis, Prestonsburg, were named timer and scorer, respectively.

Paul Phillip Hughes, former Black Cat standout athlete, has joined the basketball officiating ranks and will operate from Prestonsburg this winter . . . The pro League for charity. This league for women begins September 3, and they need 65 women. Funds in "kitty" will be given for underprivileged children and to buy milk for school children here.

The managers of all Eastern Kentucky lanes met at Goody, at PIMingo Lanes, and formed the Eastern Kentucky Bowling Proprietors Association of America. They are sponsoring a traveling league each Sunday, with two men and two women on each team. The officers elected at this meeting are: president, Mickey Williams; first vice-president, Estill Lee Carter; second vice-president, Hansel Cooley; secretary-treasurer, Hugh Hall, who is also state secretary for the Kentucky BPAA.

The new state Committee for School District Audits has directed immediate annual audits of some 25 local school districts in Kentucky which have their accounts checked yearly and are impatient for an audit.

What's Going On in FISH & WILDLIFE by MINOR CLARK, Commissioner
Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources

A few years ago memo came to the desk of Bernie Carter, director of Fisheries, from Biologist William Turner. It read something like this: "Pre-impoundment Survey — A section of Rough River was sampled and a standing crop of 320 fish per acre and 62 pounds per acre was found. This test and previous ones have failed to turn up a single largemouth bass."

Had this report been publicized, it would have created but passing interest. To the Department personnel it was vital information. It was important due to the fact that Rough River Reservoir was to be impounded in a few months. The absence of largemouth bass in a Kentucky lake is almost unheard of, but Rough River Reservoir would have been barren of this species had not the tests been made.

For some reason the largemouth did not thrive in Rough River itself. True, there were some small-mouth which would have produced in the impoundment, but there could have been no largemouth.

Turner's report had its effect. If there were no largemouth in the stream to be impounded then there would be none in the lake. Quickly Carter and his staff started making arrangements to provide the largemouth for the reservoir which was to be impounded that fall. Hurried calls were made to the hatcheries, state and federal, asking that as many as 20,000 largemouth fry be put aside during that spring for use in Rough River Reservoir in the fall.

The fry were nurtured along and by fall had reached the stage of fingerlings. As the water was impounded the fingerlings were released, and under the watchful eyes of the biologists, were progressing as scheduled. But adversity hit. Heavy rains flooded areas of the lake on which stood heavy vegetation. A reaction from this eliminated the oxygen from the water and the fingerling died. Biologists were on the job and a count revealed that most of those stocked had been eliminated. Another series of hurried calls and another batch of 20,000 fingerlings. They were placed in the lake.

Ask any fisherman today about the bass that have been taken from that lake in its first year of fishing. They range from 12 to 16 inches in size and are fat and sassy.

Had not Turner's report on his pre-impoundment study been made, Rough River Reservoir today would be producing some fishing, but the largemouth would not be among the fish caught.

This story only proves that what may be viewed by an outsider as an inconsequential survey or project of the Department may determine whether a lake will be a good producer of desirable fish.

"I see that in writing you a couple of weeks ago about my book, PIONEERS ON THE BULLSKIN, I neglected to say it is the saga of the Stephenson family and the part they played in the settlement of the country, its wars and its development-interesting people who lived in an interesting time.

"By the way the name Bullskin was carried by them from Virginia to Pennsylvania and on to Kentucky. The Crawford men, stepsons of Richard Stephenson (Col. William and his brother Valentine) also played an active role in the history of their time.

"I personally researched the book in the three states and wrote most of it in Virginia, finishing it up after I came home to Eureka Springs."

GARFIELD'S PROCLAMATION

Col. James A. Garfield's proclamation issued January 16, 1862, at Paintsville, following the Battle of Biddle Creek, and read in the pageant, THE PROUD HERITAGE, Sunday by Dr. Herbert Salisbury, Jr., portraying Capt. John C. Collins, is published because of its interest to people of this area. It was quoted often in its entirety by Thomas Jefferson Sizemore, an old Union veteran, in the post war years. Incidentally, the part of Pvt. Jeff Sizemore in the play was played by DeGarmo DeRossett, a grandson of Sizemore.

The proclamation follows: "Headquarters Eighteenth Brigade, Paintsville, Kentucky, January 16, 1862.

"Citizens of the Sandy Valley: I have come among you to restore the honor of the Union, and to bring back the Old Banner, which you all once loved, but which, by the machinations of evil men, and by mutual misunderstanding, has been dishonored among you. To those who are in arms against the Federal Government I offer only the alternative of battle or unconditional surrender; but to those who have taken no part in the war, who are in no way abetting the enemies of the Union, even to those who hold sentiments adverse to the Union, but yet give no aid and comfort to its enemies, I offer the full protection of the Government, both in their persons and property. "Let those who have been seduced away from the love of their

COAL INDUSTRY SPOKESMAN URGES FOREIGN PETROLEUM IMPORTATIONS BE STOPPED

Washington, August 1 (Sp.) — A spokesman for the American coal industry urged Congress today to limit imports of foreign petroleum, including residual oil, "to a representative and reasonable base period level."

"The coal industry is sympathetic to the underlying principles which form the basis for trade expansion legislation," Stephen P. Dunn, president of the National Coal Association, said in a statement filed with the Senate Finance Committee which is holding hearings on the Trade Expansion Act of 1962.

But Mr. Dunn reminded the committee that "the areas in which coal is the predominant industrial activity are among the most depressed in our nation."

"Improvement in the coal industry is absolutely essential to our continued economic welfare," he said, pointing out that "because of comparable depressed economic conditions in the domestic petroleum industry, it is our contention that special consideration must be given to domestic energy sources in the construction of any long-range trade policy."

Such consideration is not unusual in today's world, since "protection of domestic industry is one of the tenets of the philosophy of the Common Market," Mr. Dunn said.

He referred to a recent statement by Jean Couture, chairman of the West European Coal Producers Association, who assured American coal producers that Europe would continue to cover some of its energy needs by imports of American coal.

But Mr. Couture had pointedly stated that "the only problem is to keep imports within such limits as not to endanger the very existence of basic home resources."

The same problem exists in the United States, Mr. Dunn said, because of "the increasing volume of foreign petroleum imports which are causing degradation of the coal and petroleum industries of this country."

He said domestic energy sources are capable of supplying the demand by the American economy both in normal times and in an emergency, yet "an ever increasing share of the energy market has been taken over by foreign fuel imports."

The mandatory oil import control program, in existence since 1959, which was supposed to provide limitations to oil imports, has not been effective, Mr. Dunn said.

"As a matter of fact, on the theory that domestic demand required additional supplies, the governmental department responsible for the Oil Import Control Program in April of 1961, authorized an over-all increase of ten percent in permissible imports into the United States," he said.

In addition to objecting to imports which are not required by American industry, Mr. Dunn said the coal industry also objected strongly to the pricing policy of residual oil importers.

"Residual oil is sold at whatever price is necessary to undersell the competition, then losses are made up from the prices assessed the consuming public for those petroleum products on which the petroleum industry enjoys a more or less "captive market," he said. As a result, "residual oil is the invisible and uninvited hitchhiker in the back seat of every American automobile."

ADOPTION STATUTE REVEALS ILLEGAL INFANT TRAFFIC

Frankfort, Aug. 6 (Spl.)—Six weeks' experience in administration of Kentucky's revised law on child adoptions has revealed that a more extensive traffic in babies than ever before suspected has existed for years, according to Richard J. Clendenen, commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Child Welfare.

Another development, the commissioner said, has been a policy of speeding work on applications to adopt children. This is to avoid the delays that too often have discouraged adopting parents, and driven them to ignore responsible agencies and risk the dangers of taking children where they find them he explained.

The long-standing prevalence of private baby traffic has shown up, Clendenen said, in the number of inquiries from attorneys and physicians as to provisions of the new law, which became effective June 14 to end unregulated "independent" adoptions. This is the practice of giving children for adoption by private arrangement without supervision by the Department of Child Welfare or by an agency licensed for child-placing. Of 1,310 petitions to Kentucky courts for adoption of children in 1961, 933 followed these independent adoptions, he said.

When the amendment became effective in June all attorneys and physicians in Kentucky were notified. The heart of the new law lies in the provision that the child sought to be adopted must have been "placed for adoption by a licensed child-placing institution or agency or by the Department or . . . with the written approval of the Commissioner."

"In a way," said the commissioner, "the practice of adoptions without supervision particularly as to Kentucky children given to couples living outside the state, was a natural result of problems of unmarried mothers and unwanted babies and on the other hand the eagerness of couples who want to adopt children and want to do so quietly and without delay."

"It has been the traditional way, not only in Kentucky but in all other states whose adoption laws do not call for complete safeguards. Arrangements frequently have been made before a child's birth, and our files hold the record of many cases where the child was never seen by the natural mother."

"Sympathetic doctors who attend the birth of children to unmarried mothers, and attorneys who represent couples asking for children to adopt, now generally are anxious to conform to the law, as the flood of inquiring letters and calls testify. At the same time they are subjected to pressures of haste and seek to transfer the pressures to the Department of Child Welfare. Some of the calls are fearful, some petulant and hostile, some imploring."

The new law and the department's regulations say that the commission must act within 60 days on these independent applications for permission to adopt, and we are trying to help them out by completing investigations before that time."

At a department staff discussion of policy under the law, Clendenen pointed out that even before the Legislature's amendments, the adoption process was speeded and broadened.

One result, reported by Miss Margie Friend, director of the Division of Adoptions and Foster Care, was an increase in approved adoptions through the Department of Child Welfare in the second year of its existence. Total adoptions rose from 180 in the fiscal year 1960-61 to 315 in the fiscal year 1961-62. This is nearly twice as many as were placed in the department's first year, exclusive of children placed by department-licensed agencies and through the undesirable "independent" process.

Miss Friend reported an increase from 30 in the first year to 62 children this year in the department's placement of children classed as hard to adopt. These include older children,

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky By JOE JORDAN (Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week a "sudden and extraordinary change in state policy" occurred in Kentucky. The quoted descriptive phrase is from Collins' "History of Kentucky" and refers to the resignation of Gov. Beriah Magoffin and his being succeeded by James F. Robinson.

Magoffin, a Southern sympathizer, had been elected in 1859 and thus was in office when the Civil War started. It was he who in response to a Washington call for troops from Kentucky telegraphed the famous reply: "I say emphatically, Kentucky will furnish no troops for the wicked purpose of subduing her sister Southern states." A few days later a committee representing both political parties issued a statement in which it said of Kentucky and the federal government's demand for troops: "She has refused to comply with it. And in that refusal she has acted as becomes her. We approve the response of the Executive of the Commonwealth." Thus Gov. Magoffin at first had widespread popular support. The people later gave approval to his proclamation of neutrality, in which he warned both sides to keep their troops off Kentucky's soil. However, by August of 1862 the Union forces had a firm grip on the state, the military was controlling elections, the governor was helpless in the hands of a hostile legislature and was under pressure to get out.

Magoffin, whom even his enemies respected for his high principles, for some time had wished to be relieved of his empty title, but he resolved not to quit unless he could choose a moderate and fair Union man as his successor. The lieutenant governor had died. Under the Constitution then in force, the speaker of the state senate would fill a vacancy in the governor's office if one occurred. John F. Fisk, who was speaker, was not acceptable to Magoffin.

The legislature had been called into special session by the governor. In accord with a plan that had been agreed upon, Fisk resigned as speaker. The senate chose as his successor James F. Robinson, a highly respected Union man who was acceptable to the governor. Magoffin then resigned; Robinson automatically became acting governor. Fisk was then re-elected to the speaker's post.

The new governor lived at Cardome, his plantation near Georgetown. He had been born in Scott county, son of a Revolutionary War officer, was a graduate of Transylvania University and a successful lawyer. Since he was to serve only the remainder of Magoffin's unexpired term, which would end in September of 1863, his administration would last only a little more than a year.

Adjutant General John W. Finnell reported that 41,703 Kentuckians had volunteered for service in the Union Army since the beginning of the war. No official figures on the number of Kentuckians in Confederate States service were available.

NOTICE

Every year the mushrooming electric utility industry designs new plants and begins new construction contracts. If coal is to be considered as a primary fuel in these new plants of the future, utility management must include it in initial plans.

"Delays in developing this new, cheaper fuel process (coal slurry) means that these plants will be designed for other fuels, and coal will be shut out for the life of these plants."

Pointing out that transportation costs have risen by 10.7 per cent in the past decade while the price of coal at the mine has decreased, Mr. Underwood said that coal companies have no choice but to search for a cheaper way to deliver their product. The situation explains, improved water transportation, coal by pipeline, and "any other transportation technique that will reduce the freight bill."

Mr. Underwood said that today the United States is "laced with a network" of more than 450,000 miles of pipelines, most of which are carrying fuels in competition with coal. He said that pipelines will generate new employment for construction workers, steelworkers and operating and maintenance personnel as well as for miners and in coal equipment and supply companies.

Observing that coal reserves are spread over 34 states, Mr. Underwood said that the absence of economical transportation has left many deposits untapped but that pipelines offer a "new potential" to move western coal into the rapidly expanding Pacific Coast utilities. He predicted that improvements of the pipelining process will soon make coal by slurry available to such large-volume users as the steel and cement industries.

Henrickson Sues To Get On Ballot

Dr. Rex Henrickson, of Morehead, filed suit last week against Secretary of State Henry Carter to get his name on the ballot as an independent candidate in the Seventh district Congressional race.

Henrickson claimed his petition, declared defective by the attorney general's office, was valid. Carter had refused to put Henrickson's name on the ballot after Assistant Attorney General Walter Herdman said his petition did not list the office for which he was running.

Henrickson, an economics professor at Morehead State College, said Carter's action was taken "for the purpose of political expediency."

STORE SHEETS FLAT

Store sheets flat, with as few folds as possible and without a lot of weight on top. Cotton is less flexible than some other fibers and tends to wear along creases. For this reason, try not to fold sheets exactly the same way every time. Also, ironing in the folds is not wise. Extra pressure and strain at the fold can cause the fiber to weaken.

Incomes of Residents Of Kentucky Increase;

Personal incomes of residents of Kentucky increased an average of 6% in 1961, according to Robert M. Luckey, manager of the Cincinnati Field Office, U. S. Department of Commerce.

"This rate of increase is second only to the 8% experienced in Arkansas," said Mr. Luckey. He added, however, that although incomes in Kentucky are growing, the average for this state is $1,625, substantially below the $2,263 national average.

These figures are from an estimate made by the Commerce Department's Office of Business Economics, which shows that total personal incomes in Kentucky amounted to almost five billion dollars.

Per capita incomes in 1961 ranged from Mississippi's $1,226 to $3,124 for the District of Columbia.

The report appears in the August issue of "Survey of Current Business," copies of which are available from Mr. Luckey's office located at 36 East Fourth Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Lexington, Ky. — "Of the two crises which face American education, one is a foreign threat and is recognized, the other is internal and is not clearly seen," Dr. Frank Dickey, University of Kentucky president, told the National Home Demonstration Council delegates who met here August 12-15.

Minimum Age Is Set On School Hour Work By Federal Statute

Approach of the fall school term brought a reminder to employers this week that the Fair Labor Standards Act sets a minimum age of 16 years for any employment during school hours.

In issuing the reminder, Regional Director Pat Meloan, of the U. S. Department of Labor's Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions, pointed out that the act applies to employment in interstate commerce or the production of goods for interstate commerce and in certain large enterprises engaging in such commerce.

Youths, 14 and 15, who have been working this summer and who plan to continue in their jobs, must work out an arrangement with their employers so that the hours of employment do not interfere with their schooling. Meloan added that children, 14 and 15 years of age, are limited to three hours of employment on a school day and 18 hours during a school week. No employment is permitted after 7 p.m. or before 7 a.m.

The Labor Department official suggested that employers can protect themselves against unintentional violations of the minimum age provisions by obtaining and keeping on file an age or employment certificate for each minor employed, showing the minor to have reached the age established for the occupation in which he is employed. Age certificates, also known as employment certificates or work permits, have the added purpose of protecting minors from harmful employment, Meloan said.

Information about the child-labor provisions of the act and on the procedure for obtaining age certificates can be procured at the office of the Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions, located at Room 402, Cowden Building, 121 Walnut St., Lexington, Kentucky.

Meloan expressed hope that employers will encourage young people to return to the classrooms this fall, "because of the rising importance of education in an era when a high school diploma has, in effect, become a minimum requirement of society."

World War I veterans 65 or older holding USGLI term insurance policies may now convert to a lower-cost form of insurance as the result of a bill signed into law by President Kennedy on July 25.

A Detroit, Michigan, grocer and his wife were disqualified this week from further participation in the U. S. Department of Agriculture's pilot food stamp program.

WORKS BILL IS DELAYED

Congressman Perkins Defines Importance To Seventh District

Action by the House Rules Committee to clear a $900,000,000 Representatives is still being awaited, days after a favorable committee vote had been expected.

"This represents the first step in clearing for the floor major pieces of legislation of importance to the 7th Congressional District which have been pending before the Rules Committee for some time," said Congressman Carl D. Perkins. Perkins expressed the hope that favorable action by the Rules Committee on the Public Works bill would be followed by clearance of his Youth Conservation Corps and Adult Basic Education bills which have been pending there since spring, having already been approved by the House Education and Labor Committee.

The Public Works legislation is similar to a bill sponsored by Perkins, which together with Administration proposals, were the subject of hearings conducted recently by the House Public Works Committee. Upon passage a large program would be authorized to construct road streets, sewer facilities, water works, public buildings, parks and other such public projects to provide employment in areas where unemployment is excessively high. For the current fiscal year the bill would authorize appropriations of $900,000,000 to match state and local funds on these types of projects. During the Congressional hearings, Perkins emphasized the widespread need throughout the Seventh district for public works improvements, particularly roads. On this point Perkins told the Committee, "Let me say and emphasize the seventh Congressional district of Kentucky has a crying need, especially for roads and highways. . . . Until a large scale public works program with emphasis on roads and streets is initiated in many communities of the seventh district, many of the commendable projects envisioned in the Area Redevelopment Program and the Manpower Resources Retaining legislation will be less effective and will produce economic betterment at a pace only too slow for our own national good."

Under the terms of the bill, all areas of the Seventh Congressional district would be eligible for projects. The bill provides in general that the project must meet several conditions including: (1) that it can be initiated or accelerated within a reasonably short period of time; (2) must meet an essential public need; (3) a substantial portion of the project can be completed within twelve months after initiation; (4) will contribute significantly toward reduction of local unemployment; (5) project must not be inconsistent with locally approved comprehensive plans whenever such plans exist.

Perkins pointed out that public works to be constructed under the new legislation would fill a gap not now being provided by the Area Redevelopment Act. "Public facilities constructed with AREA assistance," said Perkins, must tie in with specific newly established or expanded industrial or commercial installations and therefore some areas are unable to obtain construction of basic public works even though they are extremely important to the ability of the community to expand."

Upon clearance by the Rules Committee, the legislation still faces a major test on the floor where there is organized opposition to it. Perkins expressed, belief, however, that the legislation will pass.

COUNTRY BOY AT THE FAIR

BY GORDON MOORE

Seattle, Wash. — Two ten-hour days are all that are recommended for viewing the World's Fair by the local Chamber of Commerce but I did them one better and spent three days and in that period walked about 35 miles. I observed every major exhibit, ate in the space needle restaurant and filled my brain with a lifetime of memories.

Now for the auto trip through the Dakotas, a fishing trip in Wyoming and a view of Yellowstone National Park before heading home, adequately relieved of a heavy feeling in my hip-pocket.

One of my chief interests at the fair was the financial aspect and I learned this from asking many questions:

Thirteen of the domestic exhibitors have their own buildings, while all of the rest are rented or leased. To give you an idea of the expenditure in staging this mammoth show, Congress appropriated $9.5 million for the U. S. Science Exhibit alone; the National Aeronautics and Space Administration invested over $2 million in its exhibit, only a small portion of the $85 million underwriting the Fair.

The Washington State Coliseum, a 130,000 square foot structure of concrete and steel, was built at a cost of $4.5 million by the state of Washington and at the fair's end will be sold to the city of Seattle, which will convert it to an 18,500 seat sports and convention facility. This coliseum houses the "World of Century 21" exhibit, one of the three most popular exhibits at the fair.

All of the buildings built to house the fair, in addition to those that were already in Seattle's civic park, will remain to give this city one of the most attractive centers in the world. Even the space needle will remain.

Turning to the lesser side of the gala attractions, hundreds of restaurants dot the grounds, serving anything from Mexican hot tamales to Danish waffles, all at enormous prices. Clip joints of various sizes and descriptions, featuring a wide range of girlie shows, are numerous. Come-on games are pitted in one of the fair's areas, as are the 20 modern rides that range in price from 35 cents to $1.

Prices for lodging, food and other necessities of life in the downtown area have increased from 15 to 25% since the inception of the fair, April 21. A double room in one of the better hotels will run in the neighborhood of $18 daily and the average meal is about $2.

The fair itself costs a family of five about $80 per day, according to James M. Wells, Kentucky director of Probation and Parole, from Morehead, who is combining business and pleasure with his wife and three boys. They are the only known Kentuckians I have bumped into in scrambling and pushing along with some 200,000 persons in the past three days.

Washington, Aug. 15 — Secretary of State Dean Rusk flew to New York Wednesday for talks with United Nations Secretary-General U Thant and U. S. Representative Adlai Stevenson on issues coming up in the United Nations this fall.
