

This Town-- That World

INTRODUCING... This week we are getting around to something we have long considered but about which nothing till now has been done.

IT STUCK Saw a television play, the other night, one of those science fiction things which I finally walked out on, but it had one line which sticks.

TROUBLE AHEAD I am not optimistic, these days. Any nation which can stomach some of this cacophony that passes for modern music and call go maddly nuts over The Twist is in danger.

Speaking of The Twist, did you see that mother of five--and the oldest only six--who cracked up both knees doing that so-called dance?

BOARD VOTES ADDITION OF CLASSROOMS HERE

ACCREDITING TO BE AIDED, CLARK SAYS

Vocational School Plans Win Tentative Approval; Teacher Changes Voted

The Floyd County Board of Education at its regular meeting here Saturday evening voted to build four additional classrooms to the Prestonsburg high school.

The board, concerned that overcrowding may endanger Prestonsburg high school's prospects of reaccreditation with the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, decided to construct the new classrooms.

Clark, in announcing the new construction, noted that this projected work was in line with the board's policy to add new classrooms to the county's several high schools as soon as possible after the need arises.

MARTIN ASKS REMOVAL LAW

Superintendent Clark Critical of Proposal; Constable Fee Act Sought

Senator Burnis T. Martin's bill, introduced in the State Senate Tuesday and proposing removal of county superintendents of schools by the vote of three board members instead of the four now required, drew immediate opposition from school officials over the state.

County Superintendent Charles F. Clark commented here, the following afternoon:

"Even with the highest type of local board, no professional person would be willing to accept the position of Superintendent if he could have his contract cancelled without cause or reason by vote of three board members."

Clark added that he had received several telephone calls from other county superintendents about the proposed legislation.

Senator Martin has also introduced a bill to permit constables to charge and collect for their services the same fees allowed sheriffs for similar services.

FOUR PERSONS FACE CHARGES

Two Parolees, Two Women Nabbed In Pennsylvania; Dwale Sisters Are Named

Two men and two women were returned here Tuesday night to face charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency after they allegedly had taken from Dwale to Pennsylvania two teen-age girls.

The men, Eddie Earl Stone and Ellis McCoy, also face possible return to state prison through revocation of the paroles. Both had been paroled from LaGrange Reformatory after serving a part of their sentences for breaking into the Thomas Hereford Company here.

The women named with them in the warrants are Phyllis and Anna Sue Nelson, Dwale sisters. The father of one of the girls taken to Pennsylvania told County Judge Henry Stumbo that one of the Nelson girls had threatened to take his daughter where he would never hear from her again.

The party of six drove from this county last week to Morrisville, Pa., where they were finally located. The two men had found employment there. Sheriff Henry Hale and Deputy Sheriff Joe W. Horn returned all six to jail here early Wednesday morning.

Parents of the two younger girls have discussed the possibility of prosecution under federal law but have taken no action in that direction.

SO CONSIDERATE

Accused Man Rides Mule, Hitches Ride To Answer Warrant Held by Deputy

Sixty-seven-year-old Tom Hibbins, of the Pitts Fork of Middle Creek, is a very cooperative citizen, says the officer who wanted him.

A warrant accusing Hibbins of knowingly receiving stolen property was sworn out for him after he had allegedly bought a stolen saddle. The warrant was handed to Deputy Sheriff Lonnie Herald.

Now you don't drive an automobile into the headwaters of Pitts Fork, particularly at this time of year, and Herald knew it. So he sent Hibbins word that he had the warrant and asked that the accused come to Prestonsburg and "fill" bond.

Next day, Tuesday, the elderly man rode a mule more than three miles out of Pitts Fork to the highway, there hitched a ride, came to Prestonsburg, excused $500 bond, turned and went back to Pitts Fork.

And Deputy Sheriff Lonnie Herald maintains that was downright considerate of the man.

COLLEGE PROPONENTS STIRRED BY SITUATION

The operation of motor scooters in the county will be discussed at a meeting at the courthouse Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock, County Judge Henry Stumbo said Tuesday.

ASK $10,000 IN FD DRIVE

Burchett Named Head Of New Organization; To Serve County-Wide

The proposed Community Fire Department at Allen will serve not only the towns of Allen and Dwale but will be available in time of need to go to a fire anywhere in Floyd county, it was said this week by Graham Burchett, recently elected president of the organization.

Burchett, who is in Frankfort this week to explore means of procuring federal aid for the fire fighting group, pointed out that the impression that the organization would fight fires only in Allen or nearby was erroneous.

A drive for funds to purchase equipment is now on, the president said. Total amount needed is $10,000. The organizing group contributed $300 at Allen last week to start the drive.

The fire truck proposed to be purchased will hold 1,000 gallons of water, Burchett said. Most communities to which the truck would be called would not have water outlets for its use but the large capacity of water carried would enable the firemen to handle many fires. The truck will also be able to pull water from creeks or pools.

Duncan Parole Revoked Following Estill Break; Had Served Eight Months

Parole Agent Arville Duff said here last week that the parole of Amos Lee Duncan, Floyd man who recently was implicated in an Estill service station break, has been revoked and that he has been returned to the state reformatory. Duncan was convicted in the Perry circuit court on a robbery count and given a two-year pen term. He served eight months of his sentence before being paroled and will have 10 more months to serve.

BILL'S FATE IS CLOUDED BY POLITICS

House Bill Recommended, To Eliminate Priorities; Trout Notes Pessimism

As the Kentucky General Assembly became a political battleground this week, with Speaker of the House Harry King Lowman an avowed candidate for U. S. Senator, — in all probability, against Lieut. Gov. Wilson Wyatt, — proponents here of the junior college legislation pending in both Senate and House expressed anxiety about the fate of the companion college measures.

Senate Bill 234, the junior college legislation introduced by Senator Ware, has not been reported out of committee. It is facing opposition there. The Times learned. The companion House bill, introduced by Representative Maloney, did win committee approval but was sent back to committee Wednesday for revision.

The substitute bill expected to emerge from the House committee will eliminate the priority provision. The Times learned. Prestonsburg originally was given No. 1 priority, but the legislation, as finally approved, if it is approved, will give none of the four localities mentioned — Prestonsburg, Hopkinsville, Somerset, Hazard-Blackey — specified preference.

What will the candidacy of House Speaker Lowman, with Chandler-Clements backing, have on the college legislation and other Administration measures? Nobody had a sure answer to that question.

Lowman himself said Wednesday that his candidacy will not affect his attitude toward any measures before the House. But veteran Capitol correspondent Allen M. Trout earlier Wednesday said the situation doesn't look favorable to harmony.

STUMBO NAMED PRINCIPAL

Lloyd Stumbo, assistant principal of the Wheelwright high school, has been named principal of the Prestonsburg grade school, effective Wednesday. Mr. Stumbo, who succeeds John C. Wells here, was replaced at Wheelwright by Wilbur Jamerson.

FISHING ON INCREASE AT DEWEY, ANNOUNCED

Although fishermen have contended that boating and water skiing mount by the year at Dewey Lake, figures released by Celsus G. Meek, chief dam operator there, point out that actually last year it was fishing which increased while these other two water sports showed a drop from totals of the preceding year.

Visitation figures released this week by Mr. Meek for the four-year period, 1958 through 1961, show that the total number of visitors at the impoundment was slightly less last year than in 1960. The 1961 total was placed at 365,445, as compared with 380,690 the preceding year.

Campers were almost 7,000 fewer, and sightseers dropped by more than 9,000.

Fishing was up, however, from 25,625 in 1960 to 31,630 last year, and the number of swimmers jumped from 23,450 to 34,340. Improvements at the Stratton Branch beach accounted for some of the increase in the number of swimmers.

Boating was down from 40,000 in 1960 to 35,625 last year, and the number of picnickers slumped from 23,820 to 16,310. Elimination of permanent camps may have accounted for the drop in camping from 17,770 in 1961 to 19,815.

JOHNSON SHOT BY DAVE HOLT

At Bypro Residence; Four Jail Escapees Retaken by Officers

Dave Holt, 45, who shot and seriously wounded Frank Johnson at Bypro last Friday night, told authorities here that he fired on Johnson when he and two others broke into the Holt residence.

Johnson is at the McDowell Memorial hospital with a .22-caliber rifle bullet wound in his stomach. He is expected to recover.

The two men who, according to Holt, were inside his home with Johnson were not identified. He said the three had gathered up his mother's iron, a bedspread and a suit of his clothing when he fired. The clothing was found on the porch of a nearby home.

Holt was booked at the jail here by Deputy Sheriff Frank Crum and was later released under $1,000 bond.

Four of the five men who escaped jail here, several months ago, have been accounted for within the last 10 days, officers reported. Guy Bates was arrested in Letcher county. Willie "Jap" Harris and Darrell Stratton in the vicinity of Banner, and Bub Ray Hamilton was taken last week to the LaGrange Reformatory. Only Travis Colley remains at large.

A man who was jailed Monday on a warrant accusing him of breaking into the W. M. Sexton store, near Hueysville, was released when it was determined he was innocent. Warrants for two others were issued.

John A. Collins, who was jailed Monday on a warrant sworn out by Willie Hall, of Mud Creek, accusing him of breaking and entering and grand larceny, told Judge (See Story No. 2, Page 6)

Dognapping Suspicion Grows With Floyd-Co. Canine Owners Pikeville Market Is Inspected

The dog market, established recently at Pikeville to the concern of many dog-owners whose pets have been missing, is booming.

Jack Hyden, of Prestonsburg, visited the market last Thursday in search of his young son's dog, which had been missing several days. He reported that 142 dogs and four cats were bought there by a man who gave his name as Fred Brown and his address as Boyerton, Pennsylvania.

The market price at that time, Hyden said, was 10 cents a pound for dogs, with a minimum weight of 20 pounds set, and $1 a head for cats weighing at least five pounds. He added that sellers of dogs gave Brown light or 10 dogs which did not scale up to the 20-pound minimum.

The Prestonsburg man said at least 10 other persons were at Pikeville last Thursday looking for stolen dogs. The buyer comes to Pikeville every other Thursday, and that, he said, is his only Kentucky stop. He told Hyden he sells the dogs to Ierolf Farms, Inc., Boyerton, Pa. A telephone call to that firm elicited the information that no phone is listed there in its name. Whether the animals purchased by Brown are used for laboratory purposes or for byproducts manufacture has not been clearly established.

Concerned about weaknesses of the welfare program, particularly that phase pertaining to dependent children and unwed mothers, Floyd county's Social Welfare Advisory Committee recently went to Frankfort to urge more strict legislation. The committee found that an Administration bill, embodying salient features of the effective law enacted in Florida, already had been introduced in the General Assembly. Interest shown by the Floyd group drew the praise of Earle V. Powell, commissioner of the Department of Economic Security.

Air Command Schedules Bombers
At Low Level Over Prestonsburg

Special to The Times
Offutt AFB, Neb.—Jet bomber crews of the Strategic Air Command will begin flying missions on February 16 against simulated targets near Berea, Ky., and en route to the target will fly over the Prestonsburg vicinity.

Radar bomb scoring equipment mounted on an Air Force train parked near the target will score the accuracy of simulated bomb drops by means of radio and radar signals.

The bombers will enter the route at high altitude, beginning over Lexington, Ky. When the bombers arrive at a low level entry point in the vicinity of Prestonsburg, Ky., they will descend to an altitude between 1,000 and 1,500 feet and fly over a route 10 miles wide into the target. Upon approach to the target the bombers will climb to 5,000 feet for a simulated bomb run. The planes will then climb to high altitude over Louisville, Ky.

SAC planes making the simulated bomb runs will be B-47 and B-52 bombers.

All target and route selections have been coordinated with the Federal Aviation Agency. Populated areas and areas of heaviest air traffic will be avoided.

The RBS Express, designation for the mobile radar bomb scoring site, will inject more realism into SAC's training program, providing crews with a wider range of unfamiliar targets and unfamiliar routes.

This will be done by moving the RBS site to a new geographical location every 45 days to simulate new and different target areas. With each relocation, a new route, terminating near the RBS Express will be implemented.

Low level bombing and navigation training has been conducted against fixed sites under the code name "Oil Burner" since November 1959, and these will continue in use in addition to the mobile sites, to provide SAC aircrews all-weather operational training.

The RBS train will carry about 65 Air Force personnel. These will be radar and electronic technicians and personnel needed to operate the train and furnish other support. Civilian train crews will move the train between target complexes.

Each train has 10 cars carrying radar and communications equipment, fuel and supplies.

Electronics equipment aboard the train will be used to jam the aircraft's radar during the bomb runs against the targets. Bomber crews will use electronic countermeasures to overcome the jamming while attempting to pinpoint targets.

The trains consist of existing U. S. Army stock from the Ogden General Depot in Utah.

Future Farmers Chapter
Observes National Week;
Two Leaders Recognized

The Prestonsburg Chapter of Future Farmers of America is joining Future Farmers across the nation in observing National FFA Week, February 18-25, according to Johnny Ousley, president of the local organization.

Other officers of the chapter are Charles Hackworth, vice-president; Dennis Ousley, secretary; Ralph Slone, treasurer; Eugene Blackburn, reporter; and Lonnie Prater, sentinel. Lloyd Wells is the chapter adviser.

Supervised farming records show that 93 local FFA members have approximately $50,000 invested in farming. Major enterprises in the boys' supervised farming programs are strawberries, corn, sow and litter, and sweet corn.

The chapter's program of activities provides many opportunities for members to participate in shows, sales, parliamentary procedure, public speaking, and other events that develop in them qualities of leadership and citizenship.

Members who have been recognized during the past year for their accomplishments in vocational agriculture and the FFA are: Mearle Music who received an award for outstanding leadership at the F. F. A. Leadership Training Camp this past summer and Eugene Blackburn who was presented the state farmer award.

Attack on Alcoholism
Set In East Kentucky;
Layne Organizes Move

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 7 (Spl.) — Alcoholism—which ranks with cancer, mental illness and heart disease as a major health threat—is under attack in Eastern Kentucky.

Frank Layne, Prestonsburg area representative of the State Health Department's Division of Alcoholism, is organizing a committee to combat the problem there. Committee members from Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin, Lawrence, Knott and Letcher counties will work to formulate an alcoholism program embracing education, treatment and rehabilitation.

The committee membership will represent community leaders from five categories: educators, city and county administrators, industrial leaders, physicians and health and welfare workers and ministers.

Layne has already begun recruiting leaders in some of the counties, but pointed out that "anyone who wishes to participate in the activities of the program need not wait for me to contact them. Instead these people should write, call or come to my office in the Floyd County Health Department building at Prestonsburg."

Established last fall, the office was the third alcoholism information office in the state. Others are at Louisville and Lexington.

The Division of Alcoholism in the State Department of Health was created by a December, 1960, executive order of Gov. Bert Combs. Research has indicated that some 70,000 Kentuckians are afflicted with the illness.

JENNY WILEY GRAVE MARKER ERECTED

A memorial, honoring Mrs. Jenny Wiley (1760-1831), pioneer Indian captive, has been erected by the state at her grave in the old Wiley cemetery at River, Johnson county. The grave site is being made into a shrine by the Division of Parks.

Mrs. Wiley, a daughter of the Southwest Virginia pioneer, Hezekiah Sellards, and wife of Thomas Wiley, was captured by the Indians, Oct. 1, 1789, on Walker's Creek, Virginia. Three of her children and a brother were massacred by the savages when she was captured and two other children were later killed. She escaped to Harman's Station, at the mouth of Johns Creek, in either February or March, 1790. Later reunited with her husband in Virginia, they pioneered the Big Sandy Valley.

A play, based on the life of Mrs. Wiley and to be written by Paul Green, will be presented at an amphitheatre scheduled for construction in Jenny Wiley State Park.

The First National Bank presents these pictures in recognition of our historic heritage.

KENTUCKY CIVIL WAR MAP READY FOR DISTRIBUTION

Kentucky's strategic role in the Civil War is now on the map. A new Civil War map, locating and describing 69 battles, skirmishes and other historic events taking place in Kentucky during the War Between the States, is now ready for distribution, Paul Brannon, Kentucky Civil War Commission executive co-ordinator, announced this week.

The 17" x 35" pictorial map is printed in four colors and is suitable as a wall decoration as well as an educational guide. Each battle or event shown is described in detail on the back of the map.

"This map will be of unlimited value in answering the public's questions about Kentucky's role in the Civil War, and in helping to publicize the Civil War Centennial," Brannon said.

Sites of 69 battles, raids, skirmishes, birthplaces and other historic sites all over Kentucky—from the Ohio River to the Tennessee border; from the Mississippi to the Big Sandy—are depicted on the map.

Among the major Civil War sites pictured and described are Perryville, scene of the bloodiest battle in Kentucky during the war; Cumberland Gap, an important position occupied by the Confederates; and the birthplaces of Abraham Lincoln, President of the Union, and Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederacy, who were born only one year and a hundred miles apart in Kentucky.

Joe Creason, Louisville Courier-Journal staff writer, who furnished the text for the descriptive side of the map, notes that no state occupied a more unusual position during the Civil War than did Kentucky, a true border state split down the middle in sentiment between the North and South.

Brother fought against brother in many of the over 400 battles and skirmishes waged on Kentucky soil, and battlefields, birthplaces, markers and museums all over Kentucky dramatize the state's role in the war.

All of the more important sites are located and described on the map.

The Kentucky Civil War map may be obtained free of charge by writing the Kentucky Division of Tourist and Travel Promotion, Capitol Annex, Frankfort, Kentucky, or to the Kentucky Civil War Commission, Room 610, First National Bank building, Lexington, Kentucky.

EDUCATORS ARE ASKED TO INSPECT ACADEMY

BY CHARLES CLARK

The Air Force Academy, the youngest of the Armed Forces schools, conceived the idea of inviting, over a period of months, representative groups of educators from all parts of the United States to visit the academy and learn first-hand about the Air Force training program. On January 8 the group of educators from South Eastern Kentucky and Southern West Virginia had their turn at the tour of the academy. Lloyd Stumbo, assistant principal and acting guidance counselor, at Wheelwright, and I were the Floyd county representatives in the group of educators. We were flown out and back by career air personnel in regular air force planes at the expense of the United States Air Force. An Air Force bus met our planes at the Colorado Springs Army Air Force base and transported us to the 22,000-acre academy reservation which is located at the foot of the rugged mountain range which includes Pike's Peak. We were quartered in the visiting officers' quarters and fed in the officers' club during our visit. On Tuesday, January 9, the group was transported to Harmon Hall, and there were officially welcomed by General Stone, superintendent of the Academy. During the next two hours we were given a complete briefing by Colonel V. J. O'Connor, cadet registrar; Major Benard M. Smith, cadet counselor, Major J. W. McFarland, chemistry professor, Captain John P. Reilly, plans and scheduling officer, and an athletic briefing by Captain Koer-nig. Two of the officers, Major Smith and Major McFarland, are both native Kentuckians. It was one of the Kentucky officers who made the point that too many cadets from Kentucky and West Virginia were not successful in enduring the rigorous academy program offered by the Academy. I was proud of Floyd county, however, because I discovered Captain Richard (Dick) Prater, son of Burnice Prater and grandson of Doc and Flora Prater, of Lackey.

is the physics instructor on the Academy faculty. I had a very nice visit with Captain Prater and his family in their quarters.

The cadet training, both mental and physical, takes place in and around a quadrangle of buildings clustered on a knoll near the foot of Pike's Peak. The buildings are very modern in design, and in comparison to our public school buildings, are the last word in modern structures. The cadets are restricted to the training area all during the first year or fourth classman period, and the physical and mental courses are so strenuous that about 30% of the men fall courses and resign during the fourth classmen period. The training is so designed that only the very strongest and able survive to be the officers of the Air Force of the future.

In our tour of the facilities, and we were privileged to visit all the buildings, I was struck by the seriousness of purpose among the cadets and of their activities, considering the fact that they all looked so very young in years. By sponsoring the trip the Air Force, it seems to me, was saying to us, the school people, "This is a rough, rugged world we live in, and there is a real need for strong young men to lead in our efforts to preserve our American way of life. Inspire your young men to dedicate themselves to developing their fullest ability, then send them to the Academy for the finishing course. Then no task, no matter how momentous will not be too much for them."

I am just reminded of one of the weaknesses of a set-up wherein you're your own boss. I, for instance, have nobody to tell me what to write, how to write, nobody to correct or edit what I pound out on this typewriter . . . For this I am thankful; I am not "mad" at anybody, and if I were, I would not use my uncensored typewriter to beat a tattoo on anybody's hide.

What would you do? Skin somebody alive and leave their peit on the barn door. No—please!

Monday was not as "blue" as it's traditionally supposed to be. I opened an envelope, expecting a bill, and pulled out a check, instead. And another envelope contained a real "pepper-upper," a nice letter from a nice guy—Nevyle Shackelford.

Scouts Announce Plans For District Activities; Anderson Named Chairman

At a meeting of the Jenny Wiley District, Boy Scouts of America, held Tuesday in Prestonsburg, plans were made for the coming year's activities. Woodrow Allen, chairman of the district committee, appointed the following to serve with him as members of the Jenny Wiley District:

Glenn Anderson, of Prestonsburg, chairman of the advancement committee; Allen Reed, of Prestonsburg, chairman of the organization committee; James Cecil, Jr., of Emma, chairman of the camping committee; Claybourne Stephens, of Prestonsburg, chairman of the leadership training committee and Roy May, of Langley, was named district commissioner.

Allen Reed outlined plans for new unit organization in the district and set as his goal an increase of at least 10 per cent in membership for the coming year. Working with Mr. Reed, Claybourne Stephens announced plans for the training of new leaders. Stephens reported that the first of the planned training courses would take place at Boy Scout Camp Shawnee on Dewey Lake the first of April. James Cecil announced plans for the coming Council Camporee to be held at the Breaks Interstate Park, May 11-13. He told the group that last year about 800 boys and leaders attended the council Camporee.

Roy May, of Langley, gave the Scoutmasters of the district training for their February program. He also discussed the events to take place at the coming Camporee in May.

Others attending the meeting were Earl Flower, of Pack 6, sponsored by the Prestonsburg Presbyterian church; Arthur Haywood, Margaret Archer, Nancy Hodge, Pluma Stumbo and Chalmer Frazier, of Pack 21, sponsored by the First Methodist Church, of Prestonsburg; Al Hedges, of Pack 23, sponsored by the Paintsville P.T.A.; Bill Booth, of Troop 21, sponsored by the First Methodist Church, of Prestonsburg; Lloyd Edwards, of Troop 27, sponsored by the Prestonsburg Community Methodist Church; Tom Hewlett, of Troop 24, sponsored by the Maytown Woman's Club; Bob Hanger, of Troop 146, sponsored by the Wheelwright Kiwanis Club; Paul Ross, of Troop 58, sponsored by the Inland Foreman's Club. Also attending the meeting as members of the district committee were Allen DeMurry and Tom DeMurry, of Weeksbury; Tom Planery and James Allen, of Maytown; N. M. White and Dr. C. L. Hutsiniller, of Prestonsburg.

AREA TELEPHONE LINE PIONEERED BY ELLIOTT

BY PAUL GEARHEART

A community meeting was scheduled for 2 p.m. on the first Saturday in March, 1960 at the old Dock Reynolds Store at Beaver, in this county. The Reynolds store was located near the mouth of Tackett Fork, approximately two miles downstream from the upper limits of Big Mud Creek.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss ways and means of constructing a telephone line from the Hatcher store at the mouth of Mud to the Beaver post office, near the mouth of the Jack Caudill Branch. The proposed construction would cover a distance of approximately 16 miles and connect with a long-distance circuit which had recently been built by the Dimick Oil Company from Huntington, W. Va., to Pikeville, via the Big Sandy Valley.

The coming of the railroad, with its telegraph system, the appearance of a few horseless carriages on the local scene, and talk of improved public roads whetted the appetites of the leaders of this isolated community for still more improvements. Such a communication facility would provide immediate contact with the new railway depot at Harold, the courthouse in Prestonsburg and the timber market at Catlettsburg, to mention a few of its primary objectives.

Among those present at the historic meeting were George Elliott, justice of peace of Magisterial District 4, Spider John Hall, Emitt Hamilton and Mr. Reynolds. They unanimously agreed that there was a necessity for such an undertaking and proceeded to formulate a crude design.

There would be a one-wire line running the entire distance, and it would be supported, for the most part, by trees. Native poles would be placed where there was no timber. The plan called for ten boxes (telephones) to be installed in homes at convenient intervals along the way. Although a formal commitment was not made, it was generally understood that the sum of $1,800 should be offered to anyone who would furnish the material and perform the labor on the pioneering venture.

The leaders planned a second conference to be held in the following month. At that time details of the rough framework would be ironed out. As far as is known, the second meeting was never held.

During the week following the first community gathering, George Elliott's recently widowed son, Barzell Frances, came home for a short visit. The younger Elliott was then employed by N. & W. Railway Company, on Tug Fork, two miles below Matewan, West Virginia.

His job at the time was night watchman at the Hatfield tunnel, a 983-foot underground passage through which the railway ran. Because of a sharp northern turn at this point in the Tug Fork, the tunnel was actually in Pike county, Kentucky.

Unsettled, bewildered by his recent tragedy, and no doubt anxious for an opportunity to return home, B. F. Elliott, became interested when he heard of the proposition being offered to construct the community phone line.

The son urged his father to contact the other interested parties and inform them of his interest. B. F. offered to construct the wire line as planned, and sell it to the community for $1,000 dollars, a price considerably less than the purported offer. Ten years earlier, the young adventurer had served 23 months as a private in the U. S. Army during the Philippine Insurrection. He had seen telephones and talked on them. This was an experience reserved to a limited number of that day. He owned a nice farm at Genoa, West Virginia, which was located approximately five miles up Twelve Pole Creek from Wayne. B. F. was then engaged in a transaction to sell the property. This, he hoped, would furnish the necessary capital for the construction project. Seven years earlier he had learned the art of land surveying. This would be a great asset in selecting a route for the line to follow. With the informal understanding that he would build the communication facility and sell it to the community, the young veteran prepared his plan, which proved to be far more fruitful than that of those who inspired him.

On April 1, 1909, B. F. Elliott, then 30 years old, put two five-man crews to work. One group was cutting trees from which telephone poles could be made and the other was digging and blasting holes into which the poles were set.

A few days later, an order was placed with the Swedish American Telephone Company of Chicago for ten phones at $10.00 each. Wire and associated equipment were also placed on order, and the first Mud Creek Telephone project was under way.

Only two landowners objected to having the phone line constructed across their property. Reluctant to avail himself of the power of eminent domain, Elliott resorted to patient persuasion and a small fee to gain approval from one of the uncooperative landowners. The remaining gap was a quarter-mile section near the Alliance (now Grethel) post office.

When Elliott learned that the obstinate landholder had planned a three-day trip, he fell on a scheme which resulted in the successful completion of the project. Well before dawn of the day on which the journey was to begin, the construction crew arose and rode to the scene of the unfinished portion of the line. A sentinel was sent ahead to verify the departure of the stubborn property owner. Within minutes the watchman returned with the welcome news that the coast was clear.

Immediately Elliott and his crew began digging holes, setting poles and placing the wire which completed the first voice transmitting circuit in the Big Mud area.

Approximately 90 days after the beginning of construction, the line was ready for phones to be attached. The first home in which a set was installed was Squire Elliott's. A second phone box was placed at the Andy Hamilton store, near the mouth of Tinker Fork. A twist of the crank at the Elliott place jingled the bells at the Hamilton store. Andy yanked down the receiver and barked, "Hello, Barzell," a salutation which would become a familiar greeting for the next two decades.

Upon hearing a voice for his first time on a phone, a local minister declared, "That thing is the work of the Devil, and no good will come of it." Another belief was that the telephone wire was hollow and that voice waves traveled through it, much the same way as talking into the end of a long metal pipe. Many others believed that the talking box was witchcraft or trickery. Regardless of the various beliefs and attitudes, the entire community was alive with a carnival atmosphere. Almost everyone was eagerly anticipating his opportunity to hear a voice from the magic box.

When it was determined that the new line and the ten phones were in good working condition, Elliott set out to sell the system to the group who had first envisioned it. Since there had been no formal contract, it became most difficult to establish who was responsible to whom. After several unsuccessful attempts to negotiate a mutually satisfactory agreement, B. F. decided to retain the system and operate it as a private enterprise. Thus the Elliott Telephone Company came into being.

The new company offered service to its original ten subscribers at $2.00 per month, and set out to solicit additional customers, and made plans to expand into other territory.

During the summer of 1909, Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company bought the Dimick Oil Company telephone line (See Story No. 1, Page 6)

FIRM BUDGET $21 MILLION

Kentucky Power Sets Construction Total; Plant Completion Seen

Kentucky Power Company's construction budget for 1962 is over $21 million—a new record.

F. M. Baker, vice-president and general manager of Kentucky Power, said Wednesday that almost $17 million will be spent this year for the continuing construction of the Big Sandy Plant near Louisa. The 265,000-kilowatt plant upon completion this fall will cost a total of $39 million.

Other major items pointed out in this year's budget are: transmission lines, $1,424,000; distribution substations, $579,000; distribution lines, $1,750,000; distribution substations, $200,000; and equipment replacement, $250,000.

Construction is progressing on the 28 miles of 138,000-volt transmission line from Big Sandy Plant to Bellefonte substation. Sixteen miles of this line will be installed on steel towers, and the remaining 12 miles will be on the new V-shaped aluminum towers. Mr. Baker explained that these V-towers are being assembled in a marshalling yard preparatory to them being flown by helicopter to tower locations where they will be lowered onto bases and guy wires attached to hold them in place. He said that the design of the new towers and their installation offered added economies in transmission line construction.

The Big Sandy Plant—Bellefonte line will cost almost $1 million. Completion of the line, along with the related work underway at the Bellefonte substation, will double the power available in the Ashland area. Over $500,000 will be spent on transmission facilities at Bellefonte station this year.

In the Pikeville district, about $120,000 is budgeted for construction of a tie-line connecting Beaver Creek substation at Hi Hat by way of Lackey station with McKinney station at Drift. Completion of the tie-line and rebuilding some existing 46,000-volt line will increase transmission capacity and provide another source of power in the Left and Right Beaver Creek areas.

Construction of a transmission line in the Hazard District between Leslie and Cloverfork substations, a distance of almost 12 miles, will cost about $140,000. This line will provide an alternate feed for additional reliability of service.

Two other major transmission lines are slated for completion in the Ashland District in 1962. Each is a 69,000-volt line about four miles in length. One line from South Portsmouth to Si-loom, involving a river-crossing span to Portsmouth, Ohio, will be constructed for an estimated cost of $100,000. The other, from Raceland, Ky., to Haverhill, Ohio, will cost $70,000 and will provide another interconnection between Kentucky Power and Ohio Power, two of the six operating companies in the American Electric Power System.

In connection with distribution work, a new 69,000/12,000-volt station will be completed at Si-loom for an estimated cost of $80,000, half of which will be spent this year. In addition to the transmission work underway at Bellefonte, $56,000 of new distribution equipment will be added to the station. Distribution circuit improvements costing about $40,000 will be completed in the city of Ashland this year.

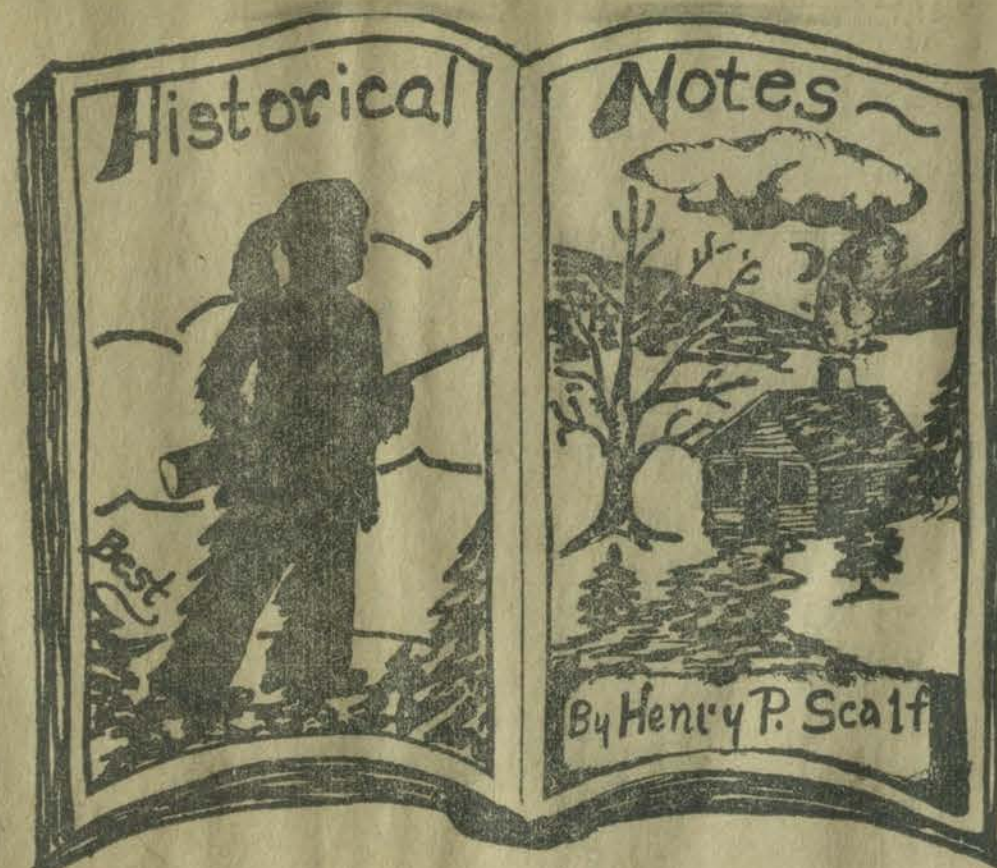

In the Hazard district, a new 34,000/12,000-volt station at Smoot Creek is estimated to cost $50,000. It will almost double this station's capacity.

Relocation of lines for road construction necessary for construction of Fishtrap Dam in the Pikeville District is estimated to cost $25,000 this year. In the Hazard district, about $50,000 will be spent to complete the relocation of facilities in the Buckhorn Dam area to construct the necessary facilities to serve the proposed Kentucky State Park.

Mr. Baker said about $1,750,000 would be spent during 1962 on distribution line work, which includes some 120 miles of line to serve 1,350 new homes anticipated to be built this year in Kentucky Power's service area. Also expected in the program is the installation of 1,800 new street lighting units for both urban and rural use. Additional highway construction throughout the company's service area will require relocation of some transmission and distribution lines.

HALL FAMILY

Millford Hall, Sr., of McDowell, writes an interesting letter in regard to the progenitors of the Hall family of Eastern Kentucky. He is currently doing a bit of research on the family's history and invites information from those who can help.

Mr. Hall's letter follows: "I would like to know more about the Cyrus Hall and Una Smith Hall family of Wise county, Virginia. To them 14 children: Squire, Jarvey, Elijah, Jessie, William, Owen, Richard, Cyrus, Nancy, Betsy, Phena, Franky, Auza and Lydia.

"Four of these sons, I understand, came to Pike and Floyd counties, Kentucky, around 1800-1811. Squire, a minister, married a Sturgill, and was the father of Wilson, Miligan and Polly. Jarvey married Betty Elliott and was the father of these children: Ode, Johnny, Wilson, Wilburn, Bill, Una, Ollie, Mahalia, Sarah and Jenny.

"Richard married a Tackett and lived on the Long Fork of Shelby Creek, Pike county. Elijah married a Sturgill and lived on Big Mud Creek in Floyd county. I think that Judge Malone Hall, who lived at Allen, was one of their children.

"I have no record of Cyrus Hall's forefathers but Hall is an English name. There was a Dr. John Hall who married a daughter of William Shakespeare in the 1600's. There were three Hall preachers in England by the names of Joseph Hall (1574-1656), Robert Hall (1764-1831), and Thomas Hall (1659-?)."

There has come to this column from time to time inquiries on the Floyd county Hall family, all of which could not be answered with information. It would facilitate research on the family if those with knowledge of the various branches will write Mr. Hall at McDowell. He would be glad to exchange information.

In passing, it is noted that the Hall family of Johnson county, Kentucky, is adequately outlined in Mitchell Hall's History of Johnson county, Kentucky. There does not seem to be a close connection between the Johnson county Hall family and the Halls of Floyd county although there was probably an early relationship.

MOUNTAIN FARMER STARTS TREE NURSERY BUSINESS

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD

Quicksand, Ky.—"Where there's a will, there's a way," is a well-worn expression but according to FRDRP Horticulturist Bob Shepherd, it is nonetheless apt when applied to Dave Hubbard of Clay county.

A part-time, self-trained auto mechanic, a sometime coal miner, and the father of seven small children, Hubbard lives on a tiny mountain farm of about 35 acres near the Bright Shade community on Goose Creek.

Hubbard loves his little place and wants to stay on it, but he also wants to give his children an education. Being a man of good common sense, he knows this is going to take some doing and he has embarked upon a project which he hopes will help do it. He has started a fruit-tree nursery.

When he began this work a little more than a year ago, he was told by some much older than he that it wouldn't work. Fortunately, he wasn't easily discouraged and went ahead anyway. Later upon attracting the attention of his county agent and University of Kentucky horticulturists, he was informed his project had every chance of succeeding.

The evidence right now is that the latter advice was correct. This year he will have nearly 1,000 peach and apple trees for sale and what is better, he already has them sold. "Every tree," he said, "has already been spoken for."

In starting this nursery, Hubbard literally "started from a scratch." Much after the fashion of the legendary orchardman, Johnny Appleseed, he collected all the apple and peach seed he could find from stray trees around his home and from the sparse orchards of his few neighbors. He planted these seeds last year in a small enclosure near his log home and produced a sturdy growth of seedlings now shoulder high.

Knowing that apple seeds rarely, if ever, produce fruit that is true to type, Hubbard intends to use these seedlings only for root stocks. Into each of these seedlings he will graft scions of superior varieties desired by those who have already placed orders for his trees. Under his circumstances, he can custom graft whatever variety a purchaser may desire.

Before starting on this project, Hubbard wrote the U. S. Department of Agriculture and secured every available bulletin on budding and grafting. He studied these bulletins and with tools fashioned himself in his neighbor's blacksmith shop, became proficient in this ancient art. An old abandoned mine is being used to store grafting wood and soon as the time is right, he will start grafting his first crop of trees.

For next year's supply of rootstocks, Hubbard has a large bed of apple seeds in one corner of his garden. With any luck at all, this will give him another and still bigger crop of seedlings for next year's grafting.

Besides his own knowledge of nurserying, Hubbard now has something else to his advantage which he did not have before. From now on out he has been promised and will get technical advice and assistance from experts in the field of horticulture and orcharding. He has also been promised aid in finding more markets and with all this, his chances for a modest success appear excellent. One thing for sure, he's serious about his undertaking; and his evident determination inspires a belief he will certainly find the way both to stay on his farm and to give his children an education.

Extension Teacher Declines Offer of 2-year World Trip

Dr. C. Nelson Grote, head of the Division of Applied Arts, Morehead State College and instructor in psychology at the institution's extension center here has been offered a two-year expense paid trip around the world for himself and family.

The offer was made by the International Cooperative Administration but the Prestonsburg extension center instructor has turned it down. He doesn't want to leave the challenge of his job at Morehead.

The United States believes India is a stronghold in the Far East and is giving her assistance. The ICA has been working with India to bring in officials on the advisory level.

A contract with Ohio State University has just been completed to bring together a team to send to India as an advance planning party. Dr. Grote has been asked to join the party as a consultant in the area of Industrial Arts Technique in the Teacher Education Program.

The group is to study the need for development and plan the construction and development of the teacher education program in the fields of practical arts. It will also prepare for other working groups to be sent later.

New Delhi will be the headquarters for the two-year project. Sixteen additional specialists will be sent after this period.

Dr. Grote would have gone from Morehead to Hawaii and Japan, then to China, the Philippines, Thailand and India if he had accepted.

The new size Dodge Dart has the most powerful standard six engine in the business. It develops 145 horsepower from 225 cubic inches. It takes a VS in other cars priced near Dart to keep up with it. Even then most of them can't. Dead weight and useless overhang have been all but eliminated in the '62 Dart. What results is an astonishing power-to-weight ratio that makes a Dart-6 act like an eight. And remember, this is the same six that got better than 23 miles to the gallon in last year's Mobilgas Economy Run. Frankly, we don't think anybody but a pro can get this kind of mileage. But it does give you an idea of the engine's potential. Repeated tests in the new size Dart prove that it will deliver at least 5% better gas economy than last year. See your Dodge Dealer now and drive the new size Dodge Dart. There's no better value on the market today.

Floyd Cattle Farmers Issued Identification Cards

Cattle farmers in Floyd county are now being issued Herd Identification cards, Agriculture Commissioner Emerson Beauchamp announced in Frankfort last week.

According to Beauchamp, these cards are being provided for every herd in Kentucky and will have the effect of assigning a permanent number to the herd. This innovation is a part of the Kentucky Department of Agriculture's electronic system of date processing and will be utilized for the immediate location and identity of a herd in the event of disease outbreak or other livestock sanitation matters.

When he receives his herd card, the owner should retain it as a permanent record because it will be needed when his veterinarian or livestock sanitary officials have occasion to visit his farm, Beauchamp said.

Beauchamp stressed the following points in connection with the herd numbers:

1. Every herd that is maintained separately, regardless of ownership, has a separate herd number. In cases of the same ownership of more than one herd these herds are further identified as Herd No. 1, Herd No. 2, etc.
2. If ownership does not change but herd location changes within the same county, the herd number is retained.
3. If the herd is moved to another county, the number is changed.
4. If the herd is jointly owned but is dissolved by one of the partners moving his part of the cattle off the farm, then the herd number is retired and new ones may be assigned.
5. In no cases will a herd number be taken from one ownership and assigned to another.
6. Any changes in herd ownership (dispersal sales, dissolution of partnership) should be reported to the Kentucky Division of Livestock Sanitation.

Beauchamp revealed that 1,638 herds with approximately 3,721 cattle have been assigned numbers in Floyd county.

He expressed appreciation to the many individuals and farm groups in Floyd county that had assisted in identifying the county's dairy and beef cattle by ownership, type, and herd location.

State Veterinarian, Dr. R. W. Hammermeister, reports that calfhood vaccination records are already being issued to farmers for each calf officially vaccinated for brucellosis between the ages of 4 through 8 months. The rapid data system is also being utilized, Hammermeister added, to notify dairymen of milk ring test results.

SANE PERSONS RAILROADED TO INSTITUTIONS, CHARGED

Thousands of normal men and women are railroaded into mental hospitals yearly under faulty laws passed to "improve" commitment procedures, says an article in the February Reader's Digest, citing information made available by the American Bar Foundation.

The laws, passed at the urging of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, psychiatrists and mental-hospital superintendents, are supposed to make it easier for the mentally-ill to obtain treatment. Instead, Albert Q. Maisel writes, they have helped divorce-seeking spouses, estate-hungry relatives and busybodies to "put away" sane men and women. The article is titled "The Tragedy of Sane People Who Get 'Put Away.'"

Governor Michael DiSalle of Ohio told a Senate subcommittee that a survey in his state found 4,500 elderly men and women forced into mental hospitals because relatives or their communities didn't want to care for them. An Illinois man rushed his wife into a mental hospital while she was bedridden with injuries from an auto accident. Similar injustices were reported in California, North Carolina, and Mississippi. One Detroit woman lost 16 years of freedom as the result of an unjust commitment; another, 19 years. An Indiana man unjustly committed in 1897 was freed just three years ago.

The American Bar Association and such senators as Sam J. Ervin of North Carolina and Kenneth Keating of New York are moving to reform the "reform" measures. In only 13 states is there any provision for a jury in a sanity hearing—and not in all cases. In many states, the person whose liberty is at stake need not even be notified that his case is coming up. Fourteen states make no provision for the person to be represented by counsel. In ten states, there is no court procedure at all: the allegedly mentally ill can be locked up on the certification by two physicians; and in most states the examining physicians need not even have had any psychiatric training.
