

THURSDAY

This Town-- That World

Let me write this next paragraph now, for I will grow more unpleasant, farther down in the column.

THE PLEASANT

A number of pleasant things have happened to me this week, and one of the most pleasant was a chance meeting on the street here with the Rev. Isaac Stratton, of Banner, on Monday, which was his 88th birthday. It did a poor sinner good to hear this man tell how "the Lord took hold of me and has never let me go." And to know how real that experience has been for him all these years while he walked muddy country roads to the sick and the dying, to homes where death had come, answering every demand on his strength of body and spirit.

"He has given me some pretty tough jobs, but I've been happy with them, every one. He has never let me go and He has never let me down." So Faith spoke as we stood on a Prestonsburg sidewalk Monday.

The years have been kind to this preacher. He ages little. He simply says, "God has been good to me." His voice is a little weaker, a few more crow's-feet are about the eyes, but his face is almost unlined.

And the few lines there—not one of them was written by a frown.

THE RIDICULOUS

Now the Grippe Department speaks.

I do not propose to go, in detail, into this postal bill which has passed the House and is to go to the Senate, except to say that it means a five-cent stamp for mailing a letter and one cent extra postage on every newspaper mailed. We will not harangue the reader with the woes of the weekly newspaper, with postal costs, materials and everything else in orbit. Permit us, instead, to point out just how ridiculous lawmakers, the Post Office Department, etcetera, can get.

MISHAP FATAL TO CALLAHAM

Auto Accident Claims Inez Funeral Director; Hagewood Survives Crash

C. Cecil (Kelly) Callaham, 52, co-owner of the Richmond-Callaham Funeral Home, died in a St. Petersburg, Florida, hospital at 1 p.m. Tuesday, approximately 14 hours after he and Jesse B. Hagewood, 32, formerly of Prestonsburg, had figured in an automobile wreck at St. Petersburg.

Hagewood, who is an assistant bank cashier and motel operator at St. Petersburg, suffered only minor injuries and Wednesday was en route to Kentucky to attend the Callaham funeral. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hagewood, of Prestonsburg.

The auto in which Callaham and Hagewood were driving went out of control and plunged into a creek, just outside the corporate limits of the city, about 11 o'clock Monday night. The two men were pulled from the swamped car, and at 8 o'clock the next morning attendants at the hospital expressed the opinion that Callaham's condition was good and that relatives could visit him at 2 that afternoon. At 1 p.m. he was dead.

Hospital attendants said the funeral director suffered internal injuries and from inhalation of water, but the exact cause of death was not determined.

A native of Hinton, West Virginia, Callaham and Jack Richmond founded the funeral home at (See Story No. 4, Page 6)

Auto Bowls Into Seven Others, Including Commissioner Stumbo's; Damage May Be As High As $8,000

A West Prestonsburg man whose auto ripped into seven other cars outside the Crown Bowling Lanes here Monday night and caused damage estimated at $7,000 to $8,000 was later jailed on a drunk driving charge.

Only one person, five-year-old Carl Day, Jr., was injured, despite the heavy property damage, and he suffered only a black eye and bruises on his face.

The jailed driver is Reuben Earl Montgomery, 20. It was alleged that he first of all swerved across the center line of U. S. 33 to sidewise an approaching station wagon driven by Mrs. Carl Day. Then the Montgomery car,

HOUSING COMMISSION ADVERTISES FOR BIDS

40-UNIT JOB SET TO START THIS SPRING

Architects Estimate Cost At Half-Million; Landscaping Is Planned

Work on Prestonsburg's half-million-dollar low-rent public housing project will be started this spring, it became virtually certain this week.

The certainty that work will be under way by late April or early May grew as the Prestonsburg Municipal Housing Commission asked for contractors' bids, with the opening of bids set for 2 p.m., March 20. (The advertisement is published elsewhere in this edition of The Times.)

Work to be done by the successful bidder will be the construction of 40 dwelling units and an administration-maintenance building, plus the preparation of lawns and planting of shrubbery. Architects have estimated the construction cost of the project, including the site, architect's plans, a range and a refrigerator for each unit, and other expenses, at $584,481.

The housing units will be built on a 6.1-acre tract acquired by the Municipal Housing Commission from Joe M. May, in the vicinity of May Branch here.

Joe Hobson, executive director of the Housing Commission here, said plans and specifications are on file at the Commission's office here and at the office of McLeney, Tune and Clark, architects, 628 East Main St., Lexington.

The Montgomery, Day and Stumbo cars were most seriously damaged. Owners of others cars damaged were listed as Carl Scutthoff, of Bull Creek, Henry Hamilton, of Allen, Tom Cox and John Chandler, of Paintsville.

Montgomery was arrested by Policemen Frank Blackburn and Ray Click.

Food Stamp Office Issues $97,503 Worth In January, Horn Says

The pilot food stamp program office here issued $97,503 worth of stamps in January, it was announced this week by Carl Horn, supervisor of the issuance office here. The amount went to 8,659 persons in 1,635 families, he noted.

Horn also announced that the Martin branch office of the food stamp program is expected to open February 16.

POSTAGE COST RISE IS SEEN

Prestonsburg Postoffice Revenue To Be $43,680 If Proposed Law Passed

Special to The Times
New York, Feb. 5.—For business firms and individuals in Prestonsburg, the use of the mails will cost an estimated $43,680 in the next fiscal year.

The amount is based on an increase in rates asked for by President Kennedy and already approved by the House. Similar action, with possible minor adjustments, is also expected to be taken shortly by the Senate.

It calls for increases in first, second and third class mails totaling $701 million a year. The $6,968 share of this hike that local residents will have to assume represents an increase of some 19 percent over their expenditures last year.

In fiscal 1961, according to the official Post Office Department figures, mail costs locally amounted to $36,712. They will rise to an estimated $43,680 under the new bill. This assumes average, normal conditions in the city.

The principal change, as far as most individuals are concerned, is that it will cost a nickel instead of four cents to mail a letter. Post cards and air mail will also go up one cent.

The total increase in these first class categories comes to $455 million.

Newspapers, magazines and other business enterprises that use the mails are also vitally concerned. The increase of over $53 million in second class rates that is scheduled will add a heavy burden to many of them.

Third class mail, which covers bulk mailings, is in for a $161 million boost, much more than the administration asked for. There will be no rise in fourth class.

In urging the revision in mail rates, the government held that the postal service is a business and should be operated as such, with revenues sufficient to cover expenses. (See Story No. 5, Page 6)

RECC PLANS CONSTRUCTION

New Distribution Lines, Substation In Johnson Scheduled by Utility

The Rural Electric Administration has awarded $250,000 to the Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation, Paintsville, as a loan for additional development. Approval of the loan was announced this week by Congressman Carl D. Perkins in a telegram to The Times.

The money will finance construction of 21 miles of new distribution lines to serve 350 customers, Perkins said. In addition to new distribution lines the RECC will construct new facilities including a new substation and the conversion of 30 miles of existing line.

Oran Hinkle, manager of RECC, at Paintsville, says the projected new substation will be located at Keaton, Johnson County.

RECC serves mainly five counties in this region and parts of two other counties.

HALFWAY POINT MADE BY WEDNESDAY'S VOTE

Three Homes Destroyed By Fire in County

Three Floyd homes were destroyed by fire last week, and from all three only a few belongings were saved.

The home of Barte Allen on Salt Lick, near Hueysville, burned Tuesday afternoon. Wednesday morning, the home of Willie Holbrook at Brainard was leveled, and Thursday morning a Princess Elkhorn Coal Company residence occupied by Herschell Waugh and family at David was destroyed.

FLOYD LOSES 2,435 PUPILS

Last Decennial Census Shows Population Drop In School Age Children

Floyd county lost 2,435 children of school age in the 1950-1960 decade, and this represented a loss of 15.6 percent of the population between the ages of six and 17 years.

Only two counties in the state lost more school children. Harlan, with 20,274 school-age children in 1950, dropped to 15,626 in 1960, for a loss of 4,648. Bell county lost 2,834. Percentage-wise, the loss in Harlan was 22.9 percent; in Bell, 21.5 percent.

The number of Floyd county children of school age is still declining, it was noted by the office of the county superintendent here. There were 13,168 school age children in 1960 in Floyd county but the number dropped in January, this year, to 12,432, or a further loss of 736. An average of 12,128 children are in daily attendance in this county.

This slow decline in the school population in Floyd county is a matter of prime concern to the administration.

Wayne Ratliff, assistant county superintendent of schools, pointed out this week that there must be either an increased schoolage population or a loss in classroom units.

"Up to now this slow decline has relieved over-crowding and helped the system to begin operating under the provisions of the Minimum Foundation Law," Ratliff said. "Since we are now on the program, decline can only mean we lose classroom units."

He noted that a classroom unit is 27 pupils, that it was a few years ago as high as 36 or 38 pupils. He surmised that the county is now at the apex in the number of classroom units.

Consolidation may lead to a loss of classroom units in the Prestonsburg vicinity, Ratliff noted, but it will not in the Big Mud Creek area.

Ratliff thinks that it may be necessary to close three or four one-room schools next year.

Many Eastern Kentucky counties have a higher percent of loss than Floyd's 15.6 percent. Of 30 mountain counties checked, it is (See Story No. 6, Page 6)

EARLY SENATE ACTION SEEN WITHIN WEEK

Administration Support Lessens Open Opposition To Creation of Colleges

The junior college bill made it halfway home, early Wednesday afternoon.

The Kentucky House of Representatives gave the legislation its approval in resounding fashion—86 yeas, 3 noes.

Solidly backed by the Combs administration, and with no open opposition, the bill to establish four two-year community colleges, at Prestonsburg, Somerset, Hopkinsville and the Blackey-Hazard area, passed the House with only three Louisville Representatives opposing it.

Now, the House bill, which was introduced by Rep. R. P. Maloney and co-sponsored by Reps. Allen Stone and Ben Martin, will go to the Senate.

The companion Senate bill, introduced by Senator Ware and co-sponsored by Senators Burns T. Martin, O. O. Duncan and Archie Craft, is bottled up in the Higher Education committee. Higher Education committee may be bypassed.

A vote in the Senate may come by week's end, it was said.

Eleven House members were not present or did not vote in the roll-call on the junior college bill. The Louisville Representatives voting (See Story No. 3, Page 6)

POLICE JAIL 4 JUVENILES

On Breaking Charges; Gas Station, Laundromats Hit by First Offenders

Four Paintsville juveniles were jailed Saturday night by Policemen Ray Click and Frank Blackburn, soon after the four had broken into two laundromats and a soft-drink vending machine here.

They first rifled a soft-drink machine at Palmer Patton's Service Station, then broke into the Quick Coin Operated Laundry and Jim's Laundromat. First-time offenders, they were released when owners of the properties agreed not to prosecute on condition that the boys' parents would be responsible for all damage they had done and to replace all money taken.

Others jailed within the week and charges lodged against them: George Moore, Donald, Willie and Kermit Tackett and Mick Johnson, each accused of possessing moonshine whiskey, arrested by Deputy Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis; James Earl Rice, breaking jail at Wayland, booked by Deputy Sheriff Marion Martin; Willie Bear Little, of Abner Fork, selling intoxicants, arrested by Sheriff Henry Hale and Deputy Sheriff Joe W. Horn on a warrant sworn to by two men who claimed they had bought from Little (the search of Little's premises failed to uncover any liquor); A. W. Stanley and Russell Johnson, obtaining goods under false pretense, booked by Deputy Sheriffs Enoch Hatfield and Curtis Hall; Johnnie D. Davis, driving while intoxicated, jailed by State Trooper W. Williamson; Zeer Chaffins, carrying a concealed deadly weapon, possessing moonshine and resisting arrest, and Madison Patrick, false swearing—all jailed Wednesday of last week by Deputy Sheriffs Martin and Horn.

Reported to the Sheriff's office and being investigated were a break into the magazine of the Sandy Valley Explosive Company at Allen and the theft of a television set from the home of Parsie Stricklett at Melvin.

FORMER P'BURG MAYOR VICTIM IN AUTO WRECK

Arthur C. Carter, 73, former mayor of Prestonsburg, was fatally injured Wednesday afternoon when his auto left the lake road, between Hager Gap and Dewey Dam, and plunged approximately 250 feet down the mountainside. He was dead on arrival at the Prestonsburg General Hospital.

The accident occurred about 2:30 p.m. at a wide area off the pavement, less than a mile from Hager Gap. James Cecil, Jr., of Emma, a state highway department employee, said he saw the auto at about the time it dropped over the sharp edge of the area which is used as a turning point by motorists. He said the driver was hurled from the car after it had turned over possibly twice and had gone about 75 feet downhill. The car continued rolling, turning over in all eight or nine times, he said.

It stopped in a flat area, on its top.

The victim suffered a skull fracture and other injuries.

A native of Virginia, Mr. Carter had resided here about 45 years. He and his father, the late Jack Carter, engaged in the coal mining business during the World War I era, and he was Prestonsburg's first automobile dealer. At the time of his death he was associated with his sons in the operation of the Carter Elkhorn Coal Company. He was a member of the First Methodist Church here.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Edith Carter, and three sons, Leo Carter, of Lexington, Coroner James J. Carter and Jack Carter, both of Prestonsburg.

The body is at the Carter & Callahan Funeral Home. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Basketball Game Set To Benefit Gymnasium At McDowell, Announced

One of a series of events planned as benefits for the McDowell gymnasium fund is a basketball doubleheader scheduled at McDowell, Wednesday evening, Feb. 21.

Flat Gap will meet Martin in the first game at 7 o'clock, and in the nightcap McDowell will play Maytown at 8:30.

All proceeds will go to the gym fund. The officials, Sid Meade and Nelson Allen, will donate their services.

Other events, all sponsored by the McDowell Boosters Club, are planned to raise funds needed to pay architects for plans of the proposed gymnasium. These benefits will serve as a prelude to the main finance drive to raise a total of $20,000 as the community's contribution toward the gym.

Mountain Youth Are Cheated

Earl W. Kinner, publisher of The Licking Valley Courier at West Liberty, and one of the staunchest supporters of a junior college program for Kentucky, said editorially in a recent edition of his newspaper:

"Our Mountain youth are getting a big cheating in higher education. No freshman entering college should be required to pay the same tuition and rates as a junior or senior in that college, because a freshman has a strike of from 20 to 40 per cent against him when he enters. This is because our Kentucky four-year colleges and the University are burdened with bulging freshman classes—and must weed them out at year's end to fit the space, the faculty and facilities that are available for them in the next year's class."

This weeding-out process, he quotes the University of Kentucky's Dr. Thomas D. Clark as saying in a recent address before a group of Eastern Kentucky alumni of U.K., is "c-o-l-d-b-l-o-o-d-e-d." And the emphasis given the word, "cold-blooded," was Dr. Clark's.

This "weeding-out process," of course, hits freshmen from every part of Kentucky, blights young lives, robs them of opportunity, their parents of money and wastes the state's money. But those who go from areas such as this suffer most, for the simple reason that their resources and those of their parents are more limited than those of most other parts of Kentucky.

As long as Kentucky continues with its present system of public higher education—centering education on five campuses, building more and greater dormitories and classroom facilities yet never keeping pace with the mushrooming student population, increasing dormitory fees in order to pay off bonds issued to finance their construction—that long will these institutions be forced to weed out the poor freshmen and weed them out "coldbloodedly." That long will time, which is precious in the lives of young people, be wasted; ambition and self-confidence, prime necessities for their development and success, be thwarted, frustrated and ruined; that long will Kentucky waste its tax monies which go into higher education and at the same time waste its human resources.

The crisis will arrive at Frankfort, this week or next, when the State Senate will vote to determine if Kentucky shall institute a program looking toward taking education to the people instead of continuing education as "big business" without full regard to the needs of the people.

If the General Assembly fails to adopt the current plan for four junior colleges, the time will come when the people of Kentucky will know the full story of this heartless waste of time, money and opportunity. And when that time comes we would not like for the people to find our name among those who voted against these colleges.

Matthew Etzig, 73, Dies At Home, Near Pikeville

Matthew Etzig, 73, World War I veteran, was found dead at his residence late Saturday afternoon. He lived on Cedar Creek, near Pikeville.

A funeral home attendant said Etzig, who resided alone, apparently died of cerebral hemorrhage about 9 p.m., Friday. The attendant said a friend of Etzig, Oliver Sisco, found the body when calling at Etzig's home.

Etzig, a retired electrician, resided in Pikeville about 30 years. His wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Clark Etzig, died in August, 1961.

Survivors include a son, Matthew Etzig, Jr., address not listed; two daughters, Mrs. Lavonne Elliott, of Harold, and Mrs. Edna Welch, of Norfolk, Va.; a brother, Peter Etzig, of Iowa, and six grandchildren.

Funeral services for Etzig were held at 1 p.m. Wednesday of last week at the Call Chapel. Rev. Clark Elkins officiated. Burial was in the Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel under direction of the J. W. Call & Son Funeral Home.

Lexington, Ky.—A publication listing prices of various forest products will be available about March 1 from two state sources, says James Newman, Extension Service forester.

Hazard Bulldogs Defeat Wheelwright Basketeers

Wheelwright, Ky.—Hazard high's highly ranked Bull Dogs inflicted the first home loss in four seasons on Wheelwright high's basketeers here tonight in a spine-tingling 70-68 contest. The victory enabled Hazard to win the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference championship. Wheelwright had won 43 straight at home.

Except for a cold second quarter, in which Hazard outscored the Trojans 24-11, Wheelwright outscored the visitors.

But that second stanza proved the difference. Mickey Gibson, Hazard's leading scorer, tallied five fielders in the big second quarter to lead the parade.

Wheelwright held an 18-16 lead at the end of the first quarter, but Hazard zoomed to a 40-29 advantage at halftime. The Trojans outscored the Bull Dogs by 25-17 in the third quarter and when the horn sounded, Hazard was leading by 57-54.

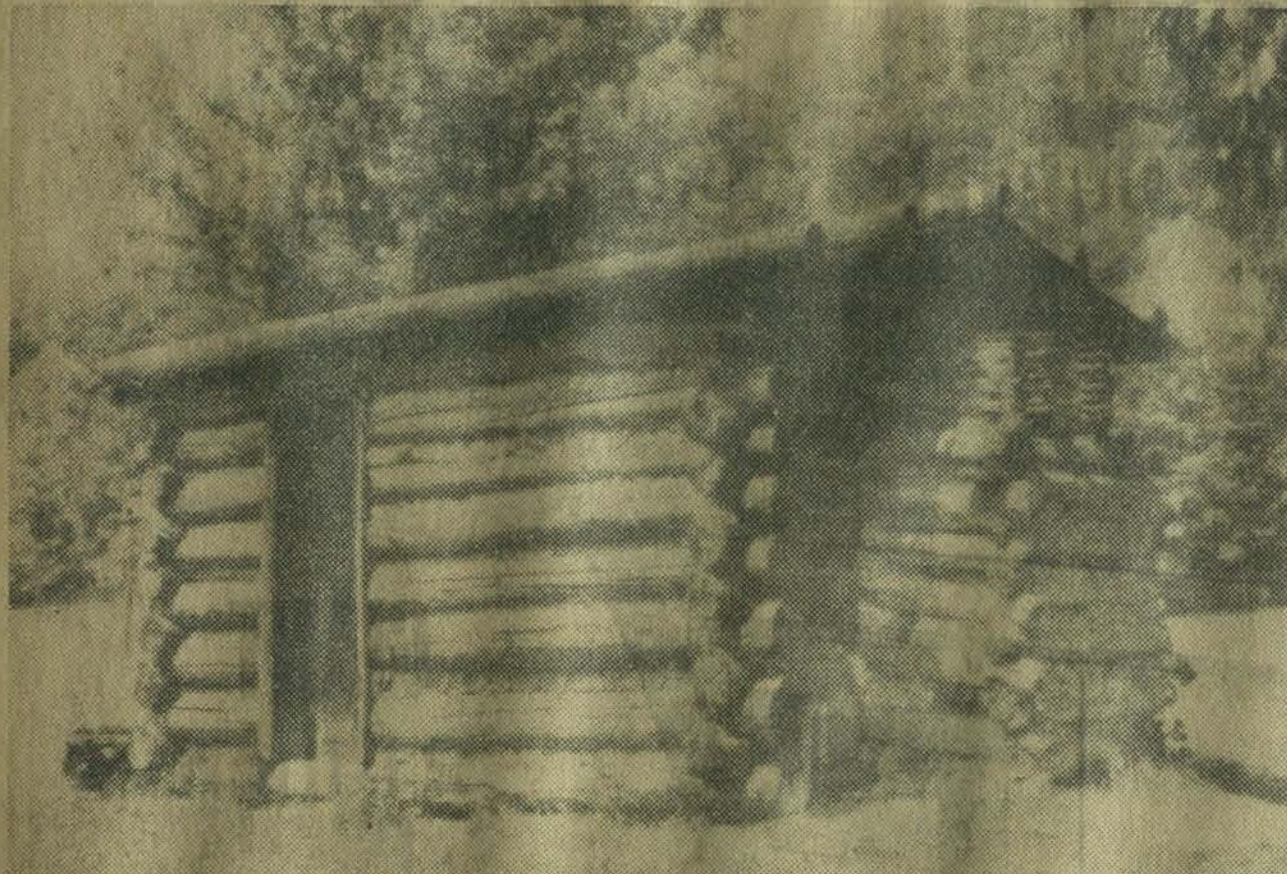

Wheelwright's Jim Rose, who was averaging 24.8 points a game prior to tonight's tilt, led all scorers with 29 points.

Sam Smith set Hazard's pace with 20. Rudy Akemon was next with 18 and Gibson finished with 17 before fouling out with two minutes left in the game. Wheelwright lost Charlie Hall in the third quarter. He had four fouls at halftime.

THE FIRST CABIN BUILT IN KENTUCKY

Dr. Thomas Walker and his exploring party, after entering Kentucky through Cumberland Gap, stopped near the present Barbourville, Knox county, and erected the first cabin in the state. The date was April, 1750. Shown here is a replica of the building now standing near the exact spot of the original cabin.

The second cabin built in the state was constructed by Mathias Harman at the mouth of Johns Creek on the Big Sandy River in 1755. It was burned down by the Indians the next year.

The First National Bank salutes the pioneers who wrested Eastern Kentucky from the wilderness. It salutes also the many sturdy descendants of those early families and the contributions they made and are making to our region.

AUTO DEALER ASKS OPINION

Of Product, Services; Bert Colvin Presides At Dinner Here Tuesday

Chevrolet owners were invited to state their frank opinions of the motor company's cars and trucks and the dealer's service at an owner relations meeting jointly sponsored here Tuesday evening at the Wise Restaurant by the Music-Colvin Motor Company and the Chevrolet Division of General Motors.

Criticism was called for, and a tape-recorder was put into action to preserve the car-owners' statements, so that comments on the product and service will be available for the benefit of the dealers' employees here. But there was no criticism. Instead, every owner expressed his satisfaction with the product and with the courtesy and efficiency marking the work of the Music-Colvin sales and service departments.

Bert Colvin, co-owner with Ed Music of the dealership here, presided and was host at the dinner meeting. "We're not allergic to flowers, neither are we allergic to criticism," he explained in inviting frank comments. He pointed out that the tape recording would be used only for employees' information. Mr. Colvin told of the efforts of his company to improve its services, of the expensive purchases of equipment, the training of personnel and of a recent addition of 4,800 square feet of floor space to the garage for more adequate accommodation of customer needs.

Joe Hawkins, assistant Chevrolet zone manager, and Jim Calvert, district manager, spoke briefly. Mr. Hawkins conducted the interview of Chevrolet owners.

"Owner relations," Mr. Hawkins explained, "mean customer-getting and also customer-keeping."

Chevrolet owners interviewed included Coet Messer, Martin Merchants; Irvin Akers, Dana contractor; Ray Fannin, of the United Fuel Gas Company; Oak Mullins, of David, Hern Burke, J. R. Camelia and David Stephens, Jr., all of Prestonsburg.

School age population in the state as a whole is on the increase, most of the rise going to the better-off counties. Meade county had a rise of 113.3 percent. Jefferson's rose 67.8 percent. Other industrial counties registered massive gains. The state average gain is 11.6 percent.

(Continued from Page One) At this very time when the Postmaster General and President Kennedy are busy convincing the Congress that the poor P.O.D. must balance the budget and show a profit — even if every other department of the national government shows a deficit; at this hour, when newspapers and other publications, large and small, are being afflicted with extra postal charges and the ordinary citizen is taking another beating, this same Post Office Department permits recordings, all kinds of recordings, to be mailed as "educational material."

What's so ridiculous about that? Don't be ridiculous!

Can you imagine an Elvis Presley record being educational material? Rock-and-roll, the blues, the howlings and mowlings — all are lumped, along with classics, as "educational material," and carted off, hither and yon — storm and sleet, the mails must go through, notwithstanding — to those poor dealers who need to sell those records to an uneducated public, at the usual profit.

Amos, I've registered . . . ?

THE ZANY

The temperature outside got into the 70's and the fishing fever inside some of us who don't know any better went still higher Tuesday. Who can explain what fascination the sport holds for some people? Bernard Venable, an Englishman, puts it this way:

"When you start to fish it is simple enough. The sense of wonder that never entirely dies in all but the dullest of men, is seized and transfixed. That sense of wonder that holds the small boy in a dream on the bank of a small pond, staring into the water, guessing at the mystery of it, seizes the grown man with an intensity that is the stronger for long keeping.

"There he is, rod in hand, a boy again, staring at the water that is utter mystery, in an intense delight of fascination. He knows almost nothing of the glinting, shadowed, weed-fretted life that lies below the water's surface.

"The casting of a line, the watching of a float is something of deep significance, a probe into the mystery. If that still bright float top should dip, actually dip, dip from the pull of something unseen below — well, that has the nature of a miracle.

"And if that should be followed by the pulsing pull, the vibrance of unseen life at the other end of the line, it is perhaps the most wonderful and strangely stirring experience that life has given."

Placed in the orders of the day when the House convened Wednesday afternoon, the bill received supporting speeches from Representatives Allen Stone, of Blue River, John Young Brown, of Lexington, and Fred Morgan, of Paducah. The roll-call followed.

The legislation provides that the junior college system will be administered by the University of Kentucky's board of trustees, with an unsalaried seven-member local advisory board to be appointed by the Governor for each college. Each of these local boards would advise the U. K. board and the head of the community college on the operation of the institution established in its community.

Approximately $100,000 has been subscribed or pledged for the purchase here of a 40-acre site for the Prestonsburg Community College.

Lexington, Ky.—A Fulton county 4-H Club member, Harry M. Watts, Hickman, has received a $25 cash presentation for his part in a state weed-control essay contest.

"Last month I had 30 absentees," she told Dopsen. "This month, I don't believe I have had an absent pupil."

Mrs. Hicks noted that an average of 18 pupils eat daily, and only three are fed free. Nearly all drink extra milk.

In speaking of the program, she said:

"I think it is wonderful. The food is nourishing. I was hesitant of the program at first but not any longer. We are well-organized and that lessens the work."

The next day the group visited the Dwale school, which feeds approximately 75 pupils daily.

At Dwale the Parent-Teacher Association has taken over the job. Women are rotated daily in groups of four. Presiding over the food preparation Friday were Mrs. Ralph Elkins, wife of the P-T.A. president, Mrs. James Webb, Mrs. Sabra Akers and Mrs. Ida Stone.

The Dwale P-T.A. bought a refrigerator and a patron donated an electric stove. The group installed a curtain on the school stage and converted it into a kitchen.

The program worked like the proverbial clock at Dwale. At the first sound of the buzzer, the grades under Mrs. Elizabeth Thomas filed to the washrooms, followed in order by the students from the room of Mrs. Nora J. Sealf, the principal. Succeeding them were the pupils of John Estep.

The four volunteer cooks were now putting the food on the table and the primary grades began to file by to get their plates filled. They received liberal portions of canned green beans, peaches, pork, bread, butter and a pint of milk. Without a hitch they were followed by the students from the other rooms. They sat smiling until grace was said and then ate heartily. The visitors ate, too.

Superintendent Clark asked questions about attendance and was told absenteeism was fast becoming a thing of the past.

He noted the cost of the milk and bread which the county system bears and calculated that if attendance continues to increase under the program, the cost of the county's contribution will be erased by the added revenue due the state under the Minimum Foundation Law.

"You can't beat that for a dime," he added.

(Continued from Page One) Opponents to the increase argue that it is a public service and that any additional funds needed for its operation should come from general revenues, just as do the expenses of other government agencies.

Those who are protesting the increase in letter mail to five cents point out that the Post Office Department is at least breaking even in this category right now and that the proposed rise would yield a 25 percent profit for first class.

What's Going On FISH & WILDLIFE

by MINOR CLARK, Commissioner
Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources

Carter Explains Lure Of Fishing In State Streams

What sport, other than fishing, could send a man scurrying from the comforts of his home to trudge around in a winter-rain soaked pasture seeking the elusive night-crawler?

Neither the chilling rain nor the bundlesome equipment he must carry can dampen the spirit of the jig fisherman while searching for the favorite food of lunger bass but this bait catching can be justified since more bass are caught by the jigging method than all other methods combined, the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources believes.

Why big bass are caught and what brings them so near the surface during the late winter and early spring months is a much discussed topic. Several good fishermen were contacted and asked for their theory. Some of the answers made good sense; others were far fetched, but none of the theories was the same.

We settled for a scientific answer from Bernard Carter, director of the Fisheries Division for the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. Here in brief is his theory.

In the big lakes there is what is known as a thermocline. This is a zone of water below the surface where the temperature drops one degree centigrade for each meter of depth. Below this zone is another zone called hypolimnion. Here the oxygen decreases but will permit some fish life in the upper section of the zone. These conditions exist only during the summer months. Consequently, bass are found from 20 to 40 feet where the temperature is most suitable to them. The greater number of fish stay in the zone above the thermocline which is known as the epilimnion. When winter sets in and the surface waters cool it starts a downward movement. When the cold water hits the thermocline there occurs what is known as the fall turnover. After this the water is in a homothermous condition which simply means temperature, oxygen and all related factors are the same throughout the lake. Bass are likely to be anywhere during this condition.

Carter said, contrary to what the average fisherman believes, the warmer water is nearer the surface during the winter months and jig fishing season. When bass seek this warmer water, near the surface, they make themselves vulnerable to the jig fisherman's lure.

When asked why more big fish were caught jigging, Carter gave this explanation: There exists, and it applies to all living beings, what is called a law of chunkiness. All fish, animals and humans that live in extremely cold climates are stockily built and can survive more cold weather than less built creatures. He cited as an example the Eskimos and the Swedes and in animals the Polar bear. All these are stockily built and live in cold climates. The big bass are also chunky and can readily stand more cold water than smaller fish. Being condition it is the big fellow that more active because of this chunky bites the lure first although the less active smaller fish are present in the same waters.

Nightcrawlers inhabit all the Blue Grass section of Kentucky. Warm winter rains cause the elusive worm to emerge from the earth in search of a mate. On some occasions they will leave their holes completely and are easily caught. However, most of the time they keep one end in their burrow and can disappear from sight in an instant.

STATE BUDGET PASSAGE COMPLETED BY ASSEMBLY

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 29 (Spl.) — The 1962 Kentucky General Assembly has completed passage of the state budget for 1962-64. The Assembly is now in its fifth week.

Approval of the House bill appropriates $540,793,071 to operate the state government during the 1962-63 fiscal year and $563,248,642 for the following year. The senators voted 33 to 4 for the appropriations as prepared by the Budget Division and recommended by Gov. Bert Combs. The bill, previously approved by the House 91-6, was sent to the Governor for his signature.

A system of two-year community colleges under the jurisdiction of the University of Kentucky would be founded under a bill offered by Senate Majority Leader James Ware, Covington Democrat. The colleges would be established at Prestonsburg, Hopkinsville, Somerset, the Hazard-Blackey area and Elizabethtown, in order of greatest need. The measure would also convert U. K. extension centers at Ashland, Covington, Henderson and Cumberland to community colleges.

Rep. Brooks Hinkle, Paris Democrat and chairman of the House Education Committee, handed the lower chamber two major education bills which have the support of the Combs administration. One measure would remove the state superintendent of public instruction from membership on the State Board of Education, effective January 1, 1964, and would specify powers of the state board and state superintendent in suspending local superintendents and board for wrong-doing. The other measure would set up a commission to establish standards of professional performance by teachers.

Before the House are measures to establish an educational television network for Kentucky. A $50,000 appropriation for planning the network is included in Governor Combs' 1962-64 budget recommendation. One of the bills, offered by Majority Leader R. P. Moloney, Lexington, would authorize the State Property and Buildings Commission to issue revenue bonds to buy telecasting facilities.

The House was asked to consider a measure designed to prevent Kentucky from becoming attractive to dealers in stolen automobiles. The bill, submitted by Moloney, would require motorists to keep a copy of their registration in the auto at all times and require out-of-state motorists moving to Kentucky to prove registration elsewhere before registration papers could be issued in this state.

State police would be required to make annual inspections of all school buses and to record bus serial numbers under a measure proposed in the House. The author of this bill, Lexington Democrat John Y. Brown, also offered a measure providing for annual audits by the state auditor of two of every seven school districts.

Promotion of a statewide system of nursing homes for the elderly was proposed in a bill introduced by Mrs. Frances Jones Mills, Democratic House member from Gray. The bill would provide for informing persons of financial help available to nursing homes and would set up a loan fund for constructing, equipping and remodeling such homes. The fund would be administered by the state commissioners of economic security, health, finance and mental health.

A proposed Senate bill would amend the state's financial responsibility law for motorists. At present, motorists involved in accidents are required to show they have liability insurance of $5,000 per person and $10,000 per accident, plus $1,000 property-damage coverage—or else, they must post a cash bond. The new proposal would raise insurance limits to $10,000 per person, $20,000 per accident and $5,000 property-damage coverage.

Pinball machines would be branded as gambling devices and outlawed under a House bill offered by Rep. Albert Dempsey, Inez Republican. His measure would repeal the part of present law that exempts pinball machines from the definition of gambling devices.

Another House measure would transfer operation of the state's school transportation system to the Department of Public Safety. Local school districts now operate their own transportation systems with part of the funds allotted under the State's Minimum Foundation Program. Under the bill offered by Rep. Russell Oelsner, Covington Democrat, these funds would be transferred to the Public Safety Department.

If you're buying upholstered furniture, look for fabric that is rugged as well as attractive. Knowing how to judge quality will help you find it at a rather reasonable price. Remember that rough weave usually is not for rough use. Avoid fabrics with long, floating threads if the furniture is to get rough treatment; these threads tend to break and snag.

The people would be asked to advise the Legislature on whether Kentucky should retain capital punishment by the terms of a bill submitted by Rep. V. O. Cottengim, Covington Democrat. His measure proposes a referendum to guide the Legislature in making any changes in capital punishment laws.

The House approved and sent to the Senate a proposal to admit as evidence in court the results of truth-serum and other scientific tests upon request of the accused. The bill provides the accused cannot request the test results be removed from evidence if they are unfavorable to him.

The Senate voted in favor of a bill designed to prevent incorporation of smaller places surrounding a city and thus smothering the city's growth. The bill specifies that no new city can be incorporated within three miles of the boundary of another city. The bill awaits House action.

The Senate is studying a bill to make it easier for the state to build access roads to industrial plants. The bill proposes that the state may pay for the rights-of-way of such roads, including those giving access to state parks. Present law prohibits the state from paying for rights-of-way for secondary roads.

Majority Leader Ware introduced a bill to close certain loopholes in a 1960 act covering industrial loan companies. He said his measure would bring under supervision of the state banking commissioner those firms not covered now and would raise their capital requirements.

Men as well as women would have a minimum wage in Kentucky if a bill introduced by Representative Cottengim becomes law. His measure would require a minimum wage of not less than 75 cents an hour for the first 40 hours in a week. The overtime rate would be $1.12½ an hour. There is no Kentucky state law setting a minimum wage for men. Women, except in the hotel and restaurant business, are guaranteed at least 75 cents an hour in cities of the first class.

There should be a "full house" February 1 in the lower chamber if everyone invited to a tax hearing makes the scene. The House of Representatives will resolve itself into a committee of a whole to hear Rep. John Y. Brown explain his tax bill. He said the measure was designed to expand the sales tax base to raise more money so that the state income tax could be finally eliminated.

In a bit of by-play on the House floor last week, invitations to attend the hearing were issued to Governor Combs, all "self-avowed gubernatorial candidates," a National Guard contingent "to keep order," and a group of Bryan Station (Fayette county) high school students, who were Brown's guests in the gallery when the invitations were issued. February 1 is Brown's birthday.

Potato Suggestions

For a change, you may want to glaze sweet potatoes, carrots or other vegetables. A sirup for glazing vegetables may be made of 2 parts of brown sugar or half brown and half white sugar to 1 part water. A richer sirup may be made of 2 parts sugar to 1 part fat and a very little water. Put partly cooked vegetables or canned ones in a heavy, flat pan; pour the sirup over them; and bake in oven or cook on top of stove until tender. Baste and turn as needed.

Bowling News

BY EMA BOWLER

We welcome the six women's leagues from Pikeville into our city association. Believe it or not, this gives us an organization over 700 strong.

CROPS AND LIVESTOCK COURSE

The third class of the Crops-Livestock Short Course will be held Tuesday, February 6, beginning at 7 p.m. in the Prestonsburg high school. The attendance at the first two classes has been very good. Forty-nine attended the first meeting and 53 the second. Not all of these were from Floyd county. Johnson, Magoffin and Pike counties have been represented at each class. Floyd county people have made up half of the class.

The next class will be on fertilizing feed crops and swine production. Every farmer that would like to improve his farming program should attend. Anyone that did not attend the first two classes, can still receive the last two.

FEED-GRAIN PROGRAM

Sign-up time for participation in the Department of Agriculture Feed-Grain program is here again. The dates are February 5 to March 30. During this time growers of corn must register their intentions at the county A.S.C. office to cooperate in the program. Each farmer must decide whether or not to sign all or part of his corn land in the program. Some items to take into consideration are farm machinery available, family labor, kind of livestock on the farm, health of grower and personal likes of the individual.

CORN YIELDS

Last year, the average yield of corn per acre for the state was 55 bushels, the highest on record. A few years ago the average yield was 24 bushels per acre. What has made the increase? The weather last year was favorable, but this did not do it by itself. Farmers are using more fertilizer. With ideal weather conditions corn would not yield if there was not enough plant food in the soil. New hybrids have been developed that are outyielding old hybrids. Farmers are also planting corn thicker. It will require 12,000 to 16,000 stalks per acre to obtain a high yield. Other factors affecting yields are cover crops, chemical weed control and earlier planting. Anyone that would like to increase their yield of corn, are welcome to come by the Extension office and discuss it with us.

QUICK POTATO SOUP

Cold days and hot soups go well together. Steaming soup can be either the mainstay of a meal or an introduction to the lunch or dinner menu. This menu for quick potato soup allows you to serve tasty home-made soup even when you're in a hurry.

Add two cups thinly-sliced raw potatoes and 1/4 cup finely-chopped onion to 1 1/2 cups of boiling water. Cover and cook for 15 to 20 minutes or until the potatoes are tender. Mash the potatoes slightly with a fork to thicken the soup a little. Add 1 1/2 cups milk, one tablespoon butter or margarine, 1/4 teaspoon worcestershire sauce, one teaspoon salt, and pepper to taste. Then heat and serve. For a touch of color, garnish each serving with chopped parsley, grated cheese, croutons, diced crisp bacon or finely cut chives.

STYLE REVUE MEDALS

HERE ARE MAIN POINTS IN SCHOOL LEGISLATION

Frankfort, Jan. 29 (Spl.)—The Combs Administration's major public-school legislation has gone into the Legislative hopper. Introduced Jan. 25 in the House of Representatives (HB 207), it proposes two major basic changes in the statutes governing the operation of Kentucky's public schools:

1. The State Board of Education would be given authority to suspend local superintendents as well as local board members. Under the present law, the board may do so only on recommendation of the superintendent of public instruction. Thus either a majority of the board or the superintendent of public instruction could suspend local officials.

2. The accounts of each school district board would be audited at least every two years in an independent audit. At present, the state auditor may make an audit of any board's accounts but is not required to do so, nor are local boards required to do so.

The strengthening of the State Board of Education's power in suspension and removal and the provision for independent audits are the major proposals in the Administration's bill.

Gov. Bert Combs said that in his opinion the bill "is a long step forward" in efforts to improve Kentucky's public schools.

For example, the Commission recommended tighter control and supervision over the spending of school funds. The Governor said that the independent audits proposed by the bill would serve as a great deterrent to improper use of school funds.

Wendell Butler, state superintendent of public instruction, said, "There are certain things in the bill that I question or dislike," but he added that over-all "it is a good bill and I will support it."

The bill assigns responsibility for supervision of the biennial independent audits to a state committee composed of the Governor (or a person designated by him), the attorney general and the superintendent of public instruction. This committee would choose certified public accountants to make the audits. Audit expenses would be borne equally by the State and the local board.

Other provisions of the omnibus education bill:
1. Local school boards are authorized to establish price-contract agreements for school purchases. In addition, the bill reenacts the provision that school boards must advertise for bids on purchases of $250 or more ($2,000 or more in counties containing first class cities), except in the case of price-contract purchases.

2. Effective in January 1964, when the next-elected superintendent of public instruction takes office, the superintendent of public instruction would be removed from the State Board of Education. The board would select its own chairman, but the superintendent would remain the chief executive officer. Board members would be appointed from Court of Appeals districts in numerical order.

3. Modeled after recommendations of the Commission on Public Education, political-activity provisions of the bill prohibit political coercion of teachers but do not prohibit their normal-citizen political activities. Transfer of teachers for political reasons would be prohibited.

4. Teachers are encouraged to better their professional standing through changes in calculating Foundation Program state funds. The bill provides that effective July 1, 1964, no teacher with fewer than 32 hours of college credit could be included in calculating the amount due the local district under the Foundation Program. Effective July 1, 1965, no teacher in the bracket of 32 to 63 hours of college credit could be included in calculating Foundation funds. In effect, the provision would penalize districts which retain poorly-qualified teachers and thus would encourage them to insist on better professional qualifications of their teachers.

5. Scholarships are proposed for teachers who do not have at least a college minor (18 semester hours in most subjects) in certain subjects they may be teaching. The scholarships would be provided for those teaching science, mathematics or foreign languages or who are school librarians.

6. The bill, in line with the Commission's aim to give pupils more education per dollar spent, would tighten requirements for attendance. No pupil could be excused from class except for medical reasons. Those excused for other reasons could not be counted as present that day for average daily attendance credit under the Foundation Program. There would be exceptions for field trips—no more than four days in a school term. The minimum school term could be used for holidays, no more than three days for in-service training and professional work, and no more than three days for state and district education meetings.

A companion bill also introduced in the House of Representatives (HB 208), drawn up for the Kentucky Education Association, call for self-discipline within the ranks of professional educators. It provides for the appointment by the Governor of a Professional Practices Commission of eight members nominated by the teaching profession. The commission would oversee ethics in education. It would have authority to reprimand or warn professional educators in cases of misconduct and could recommend to the State Board of Education suspension or revocation of certificates.

The Governor said he will support the companion bill.

Invitation To Bid

The Floyd County Board of Education will accept the highest and best bid for its 1/2 interest in the grounds (not the building) of the Old Beaver Church property, located at the Mouth of Simpson Branch near Drift, Kentucky. The Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Bad Kissingen, Germany—Army Specialist Four John T. Dunnagan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Effort H. Dunnagan, of Auxier, Ky., recently participated with other personnel from the 28th Artillery in a month-long field exercise in Vilsack, Germany.

Designed to test individual and unit combat efficiency, the exercise included tactical maneuvers under simulated combat conditions.

Specialist Dunnagan is a mechanic in the 28th's Service Battery, which is regularly located in Bad Kissingen. The 28th furnishes artillery support for units along the border between East and West Germany.

He entered the Army in November 1958, completed basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., arrived overseas in June 1960. The 24-year-old soldier attended Auxier high school.

"Yes, Christ Gave Us The CATHOLIC MASS"

Perhaps you don't think so, or perhaps you never gave it a thought. And possibly you regard this age-old Catholic worship as mere pomp and ceremony.

But if our Lord did institute the Mass, is it not vitally important to you to find out? If He did intend it to be a continuing sacrifice... expressing Christian adoration, praise, contrition and petition... is it not too great a truth to be ignored?

"Bosh!" some will say. "Christ offered Himself on the cross once and for all. Nothing more is necessary." But wait! Jesus clearly indicated at the Last Supper that more is changing bread and wine into His Own body and blood... signifying the coming surrender of His life on the cross... Christ commanded the Apostles: "Do this in remembrance of me."

He was, obviously, instituting a continuing sacrifice in which Christians of every generation might join with Him in the most pleasing act of worship that can be offered to God. In this, as in other ways, the Apostles were to act as Christ's earthly ministers... as priests in the external offering of the sacrifice. And when they followed Christ's instructions, Our Lord would offer Himself in sacrifice—the victim would be present as He promised.

This is the heart and core of the Mass, which has been the central act of worship in every Catholic Church on the face of the earth since the time of the Apostles. As successors to the Apostles, the bishops and priests at the Mass recite the very words Christ used at the Last Supper. And when this is done, Christ is present on the altar—offering Himself as He had promised, "for the remission of sins." If this were not true, "Do this in remembrance of me" would be empty and meaningless words, which is inconceivable.

If you would like to know more about the Mass... why it attracts thousands upon thousands of people into Catholic churches everywhere on earth, every day... write today for an interesting, easy-to-understand pamphlet. We will gladly send it free and without obligation... in a plain wrapper. And nobody will call on you. Write today, ask for Pamphlet No. KC-6.

Wash-And-Wear Fabric Sewing Is Discussed; Homemaker Gives Advice

By FRANCES H. PITTS

When you start sewing for spring, remember that sewing wash-and-wear fabrics is quite different from sewing the cottons, linens, rayons and wools of a few years ago.

Man-made or treated fabrics usually are harder, smoother and less pliable than an untreated cloth of natural fibers. These are the qualities that give crease-resistance and quick-drying benefits; but these qualities also make easy-care or wash-and-wear fabrics more resistant to pins, needles and scissors and more difficult to ease in fullness. Suggestions for sewing on such fabrics:

First, choose the fabric with care. Buy labeled fabric from a reliable store and read every statement on the label. Check the fiber content and instructions for care. When you elect a patterned fabric, be sure it has been printed straight and on grain for you probably can't straighten it.

Choose a pattern appropriate for wash-and-wear fabrics. Since seam puckering and difficulty of washing in fullness are common in these fabrics, select a pattern with as few seams as possible. Especially avoid those where seams form a design or trim. Because straight seams are more likely to pucker than those on the bias, choose a pattern with few straight seams. A sleeve cut in one with the garment is better than a set-in sleeve, since it is hard to ease in fullness. Avoid outside stitching.

Be sure interfacings and linings have the same easy-care properties as the wash-and-wear fabric used for the rest of the garment. Don't use seam tape unless the fabric is heavy; use nylon tape if tape is needed. Mercerized thread may be used for wash-and-wear cotton and for blends of cotton and man-made fibers. A new, textured nylon thread is available for use on man-made fibers and wool, rayon or silk fibers. Use caution in sewing on cottons or linens with this thread, since these fabrics are ironed at higher temperatures than man-made fibers.

When cutting wash-wear fabrics, use sharp scissors and pins. Use any marking device with care. If you use a marking chalk, use a clay type and mark lightly; wax chalk or crayon may be impossible to remove from these fabrics. If you use a tracing wheel and carbon, avoid using carbons of colors that contrast very much with the fabric color. On many of these fabrics, you'll need only the tracing wheel without the carbon.

If you have an automatic machine, use the throat plate with the round hole. Use the smallest size needle that can be used for the thread. Wash-and-wear fabrics usually need looser tension and a slightly longer stitch (about 12 stitches to the inch). Use a scrap of the material to test the tension. Make a lengthwise seam at least 10 inches long; if it puckers, loosen both the top and bottom tension. Use a steady, even rate of stitching. Don't sew too fast; let the feed dog do the work.

Don't press down seams until you are sure the stitching is right, creases in wash-and-wear fabrics are hard to remove. Test the iron temperature on a scrap of the fabric, too. Did you ever try to count the array of products on your supermarket shelves? The average modern food market has 5,000 or more items in stock, says the USDA Economic Research Service.

When making a garment from wash-and-wear fabric, make the shoulder pads easily removable for laundering ease. Or make shoulder pads of the dress fabric and stuff them with Dacron or nylon batting; these can be left in and washed with the garment.

Meat defrosted in the refrigerator takes about 20 to 50 hours, depending on the size and shape of the cut. Meat defrosted at room temperature takes about three to 12 hours. The same amount of cooking time is needed for defrosted meat as for meat which has never been frozen. If you defrost meat during cooking, add an extra 15 to 25 minutes to the normal cooking time.

NATURE TRAILS

By RUFUS M. REED

To stimulate study and research in the great field of insect life (entomology), I present the quiz below. Here is a rich field, one that presents a challenge to young men and women with ambitions in the field of biology. It is believed there are many species of insects as yet unknown to man. The life histories of many species are surely not well known. Their ways and means of communication are little understood even by the scientists. Many insects use radar to "talk" and to track down their prey. The ants talk and shake hands just like people do. They are called "people" by the writer in the 30th Chapter of Proverbs. They have nurseries for their sick, and they keep dairies and pasture out their cows—the plant aphids. The subject of ants alone would merit years of research. Many insects are active in winter and may be seen hopping about on the snow. These are called "snow fleas."

QUIZ: 1. What group of insects is called "The Brain Trust"? A. These are the ants, bees and wasps, the Hymenoptera. They are the most highly intelligent of all insects. They have elaborate systems of society and an efficient organization comprising queens, workers, soldiers, nurses and so on.

2. What are the differences between moths and butterflies? A. Moths and butterflies belong to the Lepidoptera. They both possess minute scales on their wings, which rub off like dust when they are handled. A butterfly may have one million of these scales arranged like a thatched roof. Difference: Moths are nocturnal, butterflies are active during the day. Butterflies have rod-like antennae ending in tiny knobs. Moths have feathery female antennae. Moth larvae spin silk to form a cocoon in which to develop. They produce the world's supply of commercial silk. Butterflies do not spin a cocoon but the larvae encase themselves in a naked chrysalis, often seen attached to a tree or wood by a slender thread, hanging in a leaning position.

3. Do insects have eyelids? A. No. They always sleep with their eyes open. The eyes of some moths shine in the dark like a cat's eyes.

4. Do insects have their skeletons inside their bodies or on the outside? A. Insects have no bones, no internal skeletons. They wear their skeletons on the outside of their body. Their skeletons consist of a shell called Chitin. Every insect is encased in this substance, Chitin. The beetles have thick plates of armor.

5. How much silk does one large caterpillar use to spin its cocoon? A. It often uses as much as 2,600 feet of silk to make its cocoon.

6. What insects have their ears located near their knees? A. These are the crickets and katydids. Their ears are on their front legs, just below the knees. Bees, ants and dragonflies do not have ears visible to man. It is believed they can hear by radar—sound vibrations in the atmosphere.

7. What causes the little ticking sounds one often hears inside the wood of deserted log houses, or other old buildings? A. Some call this, "the tick of the death watch," and many believe a house is "haunted" when the death watch ticks. The sounds are made by the tiny "death-watch beetle," by bumping its horns against the wood. It is said to be this insect's mating call.

8. What insect wears bi-focal lenses in its eyes? A. This is the familiar whirling beetle often seen whirling in a crazy manner about the surface of water. Its eyes have two sets of lenses—one for seeing above the water, the other for seeing under water.

9. What insect's larvae travel by jet propulsion? A. Insects invented the principle of jet propulsion long before man came on this planet. The nymphs of the dragonfly eject a stream of water from their tails which causes them to shoot forward in the water. They travel by sudden spurts, by jet propulsion.

10. Do insects have lungs? A. No. They never breathe through their mouth. They have spiracles on the side of their bodies for taking in air.

Monthly Food Guide Issued As Service To Floyd-Co. Grocers

Potatoes, along with several other foods, will be wise buys for food stamp coupon users during February, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture's food guide for Floyd county grocers.

The monthly food guide is a special service for food distributors in food stamp project areas. The foods which are listed in the guide are recommended for food stamp coupon recipients to help them stretch their buying power.

Otherwise, buys for February, in addition to potatoes, are apples, grapefruit, eggs, turkeys, honey and canned sour cherries. Other foods which are bargain buys in Floyd county foodstores are nonfat dry milk, wheat products and broiler-fryers.

Along with this month's food guide is a handy poster for grocers which lists the wise buys in February for food stamp coupon shoppers.

The list of foods recommended in the monthly food guide contains the best buys within the four basic food groups—meats, milk and dairy products, fruits and vegetables and breads and cereals. Servings from each of these four food groups daily will insure more adequate nutrition.

FEDERAL FUNDS SPENT IN KENTUCKY CLIMB

Kentuckians got back about $102,675,688 from the federal government in 1961 through federal funds spent in the state to advance health, improve education, and broaden economic security.

This was announced yesterday by Edmund Baxter, director of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare's Region III office in Charlottesville, Va.

Baxter cited these statistics for Kentucky:

Welfare—During the year 56,155 men and women over age 65 received public-assistance payment amounting to $34,573,000. Under the aid-to-dependent children program, 77,258 children and their mothers or caretakers received $22,374,000.

$5,545,000 was paid to 8,304 permanently disabled persons and $1,627,000 to 2,246 blind persons. $103,000 went to 873 aged men and women under provisions of the medical-assistance-for-the-aged program.

Social Security—A monthly total of $11,778,000 in Social Security benefits went to 210,000 retired workers and their dependents, and 70,800 widows and children of deceased workers received a monthly total of $3,675,000. Disability benefits totaling $1,659,000 a month were made to 32,100 men and women and their dependents.

Education—The federal government provides direct aid to school districts in which enrollment has increased because of federal activity. Eligible school districts in Kentucky in 1961 received grants of $3,454,128 for operation of the schools, including teacher salaries, and $1,725,172 for school construction.

During the year 3,718 students in Kentucky attended college with the help of money borrowed under the student-loan provisions of the National Defense Education Act. Altogether, $1,386,750 was granted to institutions of higher learning for the N.D.E.A. program.

Health—Under the Hill-Burton program hospitals, health centers, and other medical facilities in Kentucky were awarded $2,245,000 in federal funds for construction. Their total cost is $4,561,000.

Grants totaling $823,486 were awarded in Kentucky for the construction of 13 waste-treatment works under provision of the Federal Water Pollution Control Amendments of 1961. Their estimated cost is $2,893,780.

During 1961 grants amounting to $2,238,809 were made to Kentucky to strengthen health programs, including general health, mental health, cancer, heart disease, tuberculosis control, maternal and child-health services, crippled children's services, child-welfare services, and for the training of professional nurses.

The National Institutes of Health, principal research arm of the Public Health Service, awarded $1,417,178 for 105 research projects in Kentucky. Fellowships totaling $163,975 were awarded to 29 fellows in three institutions, and grants of $734,375 were made to three institutions for training projects.

Vocational Rehabilitation—The federal government granted $713,316 for basic support of Kentucky's rehabilitation program and 1,554 handicapped men and women were successfully rehabilitated and returned to productive employment.

Surplus Property—Federal personal property with an acquisition value of $4,946,497 and real property valued at $1,493,002 were made available to the state for health or educational purposes.

Rheumatic Fever Threat Serious For Teenagers; Heart May Be Damaged

Repeated attacks of rheumatic fever, usually considered a disease of small children or teenagers, is a serious life-long threat to those who are most likely to get it. This is shown in a new Heart Association booklet just off the press as a special educational reminder that February is Heart Fund month.

It points out that rheumatic fever most often strikes a child who gets a strep infection, such as a strep sore throat. There is one great difference between rheumatic fever and most childhood infections, however; the child who has an attack of rheumatic fever may have others. In fact, this is likely to happen and each such attack increases the danger or risk of heart damage. Thus, the effects of childhood rheumatic fever may last a lifetime.

When rheumatic fever damages the heart, one of several of the heart valves may be left roughened or deformed. Deformed valves, unable to open and close properly, interfere with the normal flow of blood through the heart.

Because rheumatic fever is likely to strike the same child more than once, it is important to protect both grownups and children against new strep infections which may bring on new attacks.

"Rheumatic fever can be prevented," the booklet says, "by medication which protects against strep infections" and adds that "your doctor will tell you if he thinks this medication is advisable for you."

There are two ways of preventing rheumatic fever from striking again. One is a monthly injection of long-lasting penicillin; the other is a small dose of penicillin or a sulfa drug which the patient swallows.

It is very important to take the pills or injections regularly because strep infections can happen at any time. Even a mild infection can bring on rheumatic fever, and these mild infections can be spotted easily and treated promptly.

The booklet also points out that rheumatic heart disease patients need special protection while they are having certain kinds of dental work done, or various kinds of operations. Infections that wouldn't harm a normal heart can enter the bloodstream and be carried to the heart and do harm to it when a tooth is pulled, when tonsils are taken out, during other operations, and even during childbirth.

On the hopeful side, the booklet states that operations on damaged heart valves are greatly improving the chances of better health for many heart patients who are very sick and would not be helped by medicines or other treatments.

Adults who have rheumatic heart disease should see their doctors at regular periods. If the patient is short of breath, gets tired easily, or has swollen ankles, it could mean he is suffering from heart strain. If so, he can be helped medically. On the other hand, if the doctor doesn't find any of those symptoms it could easily mean that the heart has so improved that the patient can lead a much more normal life.

This booklet is called "Rheumatic Fever and Rheumatic Heart Disease in Adults." For a free copy write to the: Kentucky Heart Association, 311 Speed Building, Louisville 2, Kentucky.

The grapefruit was once known as the "forbidden fruit." It was described this way in a 1750 book on the natural history of Barbados, a West Indies island.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky

By JOE JORDAN (Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week the Louisville Journal printed Col. Speed Smith Fry's own account of his firing upon Confederate Brig. Gen. Felix K. Zollicoffer, who had been killed January 19 during the Battle of Mill Springs. The Union colonel, commander of the Fourth Kentucky, had written the details in a letter to his wife.

Fry said he was about to lead his regiment in a charge upon a Mississippi regiment when an officer whose uniform was covered by a coat rode up to him and said: "You are not going to fight your friends, are you? These men (indicating the Mississippians) are all your friends."

About that time, Fry said, he was fired at by Gen. Zollicoffer's side, the bullet striking Fry's horse and killing it. Col. Fry said he then fired at the officer in the coat, not knowing who he was or that he was a general, since the raincoat covered all insignia of his rank.

Elsewhere in the paper was a story about an examination of Zollicoffer's body by Union medical officers before the body was sent through the lines under a flag of truce. It said that the Confederate general had been killed by a musket ball that had pierced the heart, and that the only pistol bullet found had struck him in the side.

HOPSON AT FT. KNOX

Fort Knox, Kentucky—Army Pvt. James D. Hopson, 23, husband of the former Miss Bonita Jo Hall, whose home is at Langley, Ky., is currently receiving Basic Combat Training with Company A of the 4th Battalion, 5th Training Regiment here at the US Army Training Center.

During this eight week course, which he will complete March 17, Pvt. Hopson will be developed into a basic soldier. Instruction in the use of the M-1 rifle, manual of arms, physical fitness, personal hygiene, methods of survival under battlefield conditions, and numerous other allied basic subjects will be administered.

Since Fry had used a pistol, and about the same time several of Fry's soldiers had fired muskets at Zollicoffer, it appeared that some unknown enlisted man of the Fourth Kentucky actually had killed the Confederate general. To this day, however, most accounts of the Battle of Mill Springs say that Col. Fry killed Zollicoffer.

Dr. Robert J. Breckinridge, of Lexington, a noted Presbyterian minister, who had used his great influence to help keep Kentucky in the Union, was being spoken of as a possible candidate for United States Senator from Kentucky. The Journal published a letter he had written in response to an inquiry about his intentions.

The letter scarcely settled the question of whether the minister should be considered a senatorial possibility. Dr. Breckinridge wrote in part: "I ought not to desire, and I think I do not desire, any office under the sun... Still more decisively, I ought not and I cannot do the least thing that would bear even the appearance of seeking any office in the gift of man. On the other hand, if it is the will of God, made plain to me in a lawful call, there is no service that I would not feel bound to undertake for my country..."

The Parish Visitor was quoted as saying the Battle of Mill Springs was another example of a battle fought on Sunday in which the attacking force had been defeated. It gave a list of battles lost by those who precipitated Sunday engagements, including Bull Run, Waterloo, Perry's victory on Lake Erie, Macdonough's victory on Lake Champlain and the Battle of New Orleans.
