

THURSDAY

This Town-- That World

A VITAL QUESTION

Have you put up—or do you prefer to shut up?

The deadline for raising the $100,000 sought as the "local" contribution toward a junior college to serve Floyd and surrounding counties is January 20. That's only 10 days away. And there's much more money needed, if we are to show the Kentucky Legislature that we really want the college and are willing to do something on our own part to get it.

There is no need to belabor the point—we all know we should "put up"—to the full extent of our financial ability. If we fail, we should be forced to keep our peace forever hereafter—and for most of us that would be a fate worse than death.

BLUES SINGERS

Anybody can gripe. For instance:

When somebody reported, a few days ago, that Lexington had four inches of snow while we had none, another quipped: "Lexington gets everything." And yet another added: "But wait till the fallout starts coming down, and see who'll get that!"

WHAT THE RAIDERS FOUND

Out in San Jose, California, somebody must have become suspicious of some of the girls whose children were on state aid. The law there provides that the children of a home aren't eligible to receive aid if a man, any man, able to work, is around the house. So officers dropped in on 23 homes between the hours of 2 and 6 o'clock one recent morning.

And in 19 of those homes men were found—17 of them in bed. One of the two not in bed was hiding in an attic and the other was on the back porch, plucking chickens.

As a result of all this, the 21 women who occupied those homes and drew welfare benefits landed in jail on charges of welfare fraud.

GOVERNOR HAS HIS QUALMS

When Governor Combs rose to speak at the Paintsville County Club, the other night, the big crowd also arose. Remarkable Combs:

"I've been Governor two years now, and I still am not used to people getting up when I do. I'm always afraid they'll go home and leave me to sweep up."

Two Floyd Women Seek Recovery for Injuries In Auto-Truck Mishap

Damages totaling $100,000 were asked last Wednesday in a suit filed in the Pike circuit court by Barbara Jones Hutchins, of Betsy Layne, against her brother-in-law and her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Stumbo, formerly of Allen, now of Detroit, and the Huntington Publishing Company and its driver, Homer Welch, of Chesapeake, Ohio. Mrs. Hutchins and her sister, Mrs. Stumbo, were both critically injured the night of August 26, last, when the Stumbo auto and the publishing company truck collided on U. S. 23 near the bridge which spans the Big Sandy River, leading to the airport, near Pikeville. The defendant alleges negligence on the part of both drivers, her attorney, Cassie J. Allen, of Prestonsburg, said.

Listed among the plaintiff's injuries were a skull fracture, paralysis of the left side of her face, 14 broken ribs and deep lacerations.

CRANE BLAST REWARD OFFER MADE BY FIRM

F.B.I. SEEKS INFORMATION FOR ARRESTS

Cold Weather Hampers Initial Construction On Bridge and Highway

A blast which last Friday night damaged a crane being used in the construction near here of the Middle Creek sector of the highway from Central Kentucky brought from the Mattingly Bridge Company, contractors on the road, an offer of a reward of $1,000 for information leading to the arrest of those connected with the act.

A charge of dynamite is believed to have exploded beneath or on the crane, which was being used in culvert work where Katy Friend Branch enters Middle Creek. An official of the company said factory representatives are now making an estimate of the damage which may run into several thousand dollars.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation entered the early phase of the investigation, since this part of the highway is being financed by matching state and federal funds. State Police Detective Chester D. Potter and other State Police personnel are heading the probe.

The explosion occurred between 9:45 and 10 o'clock Friday night. Authorities would not disclose information as to clues uncovered to date.

Cold weather has hampered contractors' operations because they are in the early stages, but work on the highway is continuing. Damage to the crane did not materially affect operations, since Mattingly has five cranes in the immediate area.

P.O. BUILDING BIDS SOUGHT

Successful Bidder Will Build and Lease Office For a Ten-Year Period

Postmaster General J. Edward Day announced last week that the Post Office Department is seeking competitive bids to build and lease the new post office at Martin.

Under the Department's lease construction program, the site selected on the east side of Main street (Kentucky Route 80) between N. Elm and S. Elm streets, will be assigned to the successful bidder, who will purchase the property, construct the building according to departmental specifications and lease it to the Post Office Department for a basic period of ten years, with options to renew the lease for an additional twenty years.

The Department's capital investment will be limited substantially to postal equipment. The building will remain under private ownership with the owner paying local real estate taxes.

Bidding documents became available January 5, and may be obtained from Regional Real Estate Officer, R. D. Dyson, Post Office Box 60, Room 325 Federal Building, Lexington, Kentucky. The real estate officer will supply bidding forms, building specifications, lease provisions and other information. Bids must be submitted to the Real Estate Officer by 2:00 p.m. prevailing local time, February 9, 1962.

Education Council Meet Deferred At Allen; New Date To Be Scheduled

The meeting of the Floyd County Citizens Educational Council scheduled at Allen, January 2, was not held for several reasons, it is noted. Chief reason for deferring the meet was the illness of several officers and committeemen.

Object of the meeting was to name officers of the Council for the ensuing year and to name some one particularly to succeed President Harry O. Zimmerman, of Wheelwright, who has retired and moved to Ashland. Due to inclement weather the nominating committee, composed of Joe Perraino, W. J. Reynolds, Jr., and Mrs. Regina Mayo, was unable to attend. Raymond Bradbury, secretary-treasurer, of David, failed to attend because of a mine fatality at the David mines. Henry P. Scalf, vice-president, was ill.

The vice-president will reschedule the meeting in the near future, it was said.

FISH DERBY WINNERS ANNOUNCED BY CLUB

The 1961 fishing contest sponsored by the Floyd County Fish & Game Club is now history, the prizes have all been awarded, and a new contest is on or is ready to begin when the ice thaws.

Strangely enough, there were no entries in the 1961 contest in two fish divisions which can always be counted upon to deliver numerous catches. Nobody entered a bluegill or a catfish. As a result somebody missed out on at least $10 worth of fishing equipment in each division.

The winners: Largemouth bass—First prize, William J. Dingus, Prestonsburg, 22½-inch seven-pounder caught May 31 on Dewey Lake with a nightcrawler manipulated by fly-rod; second prize, Raymond Copley, Prestonsburg, 21-inch weighing six pounds, also caught at Dewey Lake, casting a Doll Fly, October 27.

Smallmouth bass—First prize, Patrick H. Clarke, of Auxier, 19½-inch fish weighing 3 pounds, 12 ounces, caught on Lazy Ike June 3 in the Big Sandy River; second, Beverage Reffett, Langley, 18-inch bass weighing 2 pounds, 4 ounces, caught on Lazy Ike in Beaver Creek, April 29.

Walleye pike—First prize, Henry Gray, Prestonsburg, 27 inches, weighing 6 pounds, caught on Hell-diver in the Big Sandy River, August 20; Emma Jean Peiphrey, Prestonsburg, 24½ inches, 4 pounds, 12 ounces, landed on Shiner Minnow, October 29, at Patrick Swirl in the Big Sandy River.

Crappie—R. A. Burke, Prestonsburg, first prize, 16 inches, 2

Herbert V. Mosley, 65, of Garrett, was killed in an auto accident Sunday at Deane, Letcher county, as he was returning from his father's funeral at Neon.

MAY PROBE RANEY CLAIM

Assembly, Grand Jury Interested in Report Bribery Was Attempted

Both the Kentucky General Assembly and the Pike circuit court grand jury were reported this week to be considering an investigation of the claim made by State Senator Tom Raney of Pike county, that he was offered a bribe of $5,000 to vote with supporters of Ex-Governor A. B. Chandler in organization of the State Senate.

Raney reported, more than a week ago, that the offer was made by a mutual friend of his and Chandler's. Chandler denied knowing of such an offer.

Circuit Judge James Stephenson recessed the Pike grand jury till Friday, indicating he will await proposed legislative action in the matter before instructing the grand jurors as to a possible probe in Raney's home county.

Governor Combs and Lieutenant Governor Wilson W. Wyatt announced plans to ask the Legislature to set up a joint Senate-House committee to investigate various governmental matters.

Wyatt said the bribery charge might be the first matter taken up by the committee.

The special Pike jury has finished investigating various matters assigned to it, Judge Stephenson was told.

AREA REDEVELOPMENT CONFERENCE IS HELD

The Area Redevelopment Program, what it offers, its shortcomings and what new legislation will mean to it—these topics were discussed in detail at an area development conference held last Thursday evening at the Paintsville Country Club.

Speakers included Gov. Bert T. Combs, Congressman Carl D. Perkins, William Batt, area redevelopment administrator, U. S. Department of Commerce; Ivan Nestingen, under-secretary of Health, Education and Welfare; Samuel Merrick, assistant to the Secretary of Labor; James L. Patton, special consultant to the U. S. Office of Education on Area Redevelopment; and John D. Whisman, administrator of the Kentucky Area Redevelopment Program. Mayor Ralph Preston, of Paintsville, welcomed the gathering which taxed the dining room facilities of the country club, and George L. Raney, director of the Mayo State Vocational School, served as toastmaster.

Speakers admitted the present redevelopment program is underfunded, with a third of the counties in the United States eligible for consideration under the provisions of the act.

Technical and vocational training and the retraining of adults are among the broad aims of a new program, if pending legislation is enacted, and the Mayo Vocational School will figure prominently in this phase, Fred A. Martin, director of the Trade, Industrial and Distributive Education Division, State Bureau of Vocational Education, in reply to a question said a study is now being made with the view to establishing 16 additional extension centers in this area, in an effort to reach all with vocational training.

Pending legislation includes: 1. The Manpower Training bill, to cover training for any type of job and to offer unemployed men with families training for a period of 52 weeks and a guarantee of compensation equal to their unemployment compensation; 2. The Perkins Youth Employment Opportunity Bill, which would include not only vocational training for young men and women but would also establish a Youth Conservation Corps not unlike the C.C.C. of the 1930's.

SHANNON GETS SURVEY WORK

Prestonsburg Architect To Make a Seven-County Fallow Shelter Survey

George Lee Shannon, Prestonsburg architect-engineer, last Friday signed a contract with the U. S. Corps of Engineers to conduct a fall-out shelter study in seven Eastern Kentucky counties. It was the sixth of 11 area studies to be let to contract in Kentucky.

Four two-man teams will begin work Monday—first, in Floyd, Boyd, Pike and Johnson counties. Later, the same study will be done in Martin, Magoffin and Lawrence counties. The survey is scheduled for completion within 60 days from date of signing of the contract.

The four survey teams will be headed by Thomas and T. A. Combs, of Langley, Ike Fitzpatrick, and Earl Martin, of Prestonsburg. T. A. Combs is at Ft. Belvoir, Virginia, this week, receiving training for the survey. Other team leaders were being trained here by Mr. Shannon.

During the 60-day survey the four teams will locate buildings and mines which will afford a protection factor of 20 or more (a minimum of 50 persons each. A protection factor of 20 means that an individual inside such a structure would have 20 times the protection from radiation that one in the open would have).

Team members will have in their possession a letter of introduction to property owners from the U. S. Corps of Engineers and the Civil Defense director of the county where they are working. No private residence will be considered for a shelter.

This survey is the first phase of the overall plan for U. S. defense against radiation in the event of a nuclear war. The second phase, to follow immediately on conclusion of the first, will be a survey to determine what work will be required on selected structures and underground shelters to make them adequate in the matter of protection and habitation over a period as long as two weeks. In the event that an area is later calculated to receive a heavier fallout than at first anticipated, the protection factor would be raised above 20, and that would require additional work on buildings to render them safe.

BOARD PLANS OFFICE MOVE

School System Space Transferred To Court; Officials Pick Aides

The Floyd fiscal court last Friday received from the Floyd County Board of Education permission to use as the court may require the first-floor offices which the Board now occupies in the courthouse but which it will shortly vacate for offices in the old Prestonsburg high school building.

Use of the courthouse space by officials whom the court will designate would be on a temporary basis, the board of education retaining the right to re-occupy the courthouse offices upon 30 days' notice.

Work on the old high school building, providing for storage and supplies on the first floor and for offices on the second floor, is nearing completion. The transfer of offices from the courthouse to the school structure is expected to be made next month.

The court accepted the $251 bid of Dewey Sammons on the 1950 model GMC truck which it had advertised for sale. Orpha Akers was employed as clerk for Tax Commissioner Clive Akers, and Mrs. Gwendolyn Dingus as Clerk for County Attorney Barkley J. Sturgill. Pay of each was set at $200 a month.

Friday's meeting was the first attended by Magistrate Bryant Derossset, only new member of the fiscal court.

BOARD NAMES DEPOSITORY

Martin Land Acquisition Rejected by 3-2 Action; Vandalism Reward Up

The Floyd County Board of Education by unanimous vote Saturday evening designated the First National Bank as depository for the funds of the school system, effective July 1. Motion to make the transfer from The Bank Josephine was made by John Hall and seconded by Ross Cooley.

Another order of the board directed the removal of the school system's office from the courthouse to the new administrative offices in the old Prestonsburg high school building on Arnold avenue. The equity of the board in the offices at the courthouse, acquired when the board aided in the construction several years ago, was transferred to the Fiscal Court "until and if the Floyd County Board of Education should of necessity need to reoccupy." It is thought that the removal to the new offices can be made by February 15.

Other orders of the board were: 1. The McDowell Boosters Club appeared and asked the cooperation of the board on the construction of a gym. The board went on record to support the McDowell proposal on a basis similar to the aid extended to the Prestonsburg Parent-Teacher Association in the

2 PEN TERMS ARE PROBATED

Alleged Election Fraud Cases Gain Continuances; Only 9 Indictments Filed

The January term of circuit court, which began with one of the smallest of modern-day dockets for this county and which has dragged the few days of its session to date, may quit and go home by the week-end, Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill indicated this week.

As of Tuesday noon, two pen terms, each for a year, had resulted from trials, and both these had been probated. At the same time, only nine indictments had been reported by the grand jury, though it was reported several more were in the making.

The 14 cases in which Floyd countians were accused by a special grand jury of election fraud were continued till the April term, State Senator Burnis Martin.

RADIOTHON ARE SLATED FOR 2 DAYS

Climactic Appeal Set As Deadline Nears; Telephone Pledges Asked

A large gathering of supporters of the move toward the establishing of a junior college to serve Floyd and surrounding counties heard at noon Wednesday the encouraging news that approximately half the $100,000 sought toward purchase of a site has already been contributed or pledged.

The total stood at that time at $48,977. At the same time they heard discussed plans for two radiothons to be staged over the two local stations in a climactic appeal for funds. WPRF will stage an all-day program Sunday, January 14 beginning at 9 a.m. and continuing till 5:30 p.m., and WDOC will present a similar program the following week-end.

Civic clubs and other groups are being contacted to supply features of the radio programs at specified times. Music, talks and appeals for the college site fund will be parts of the programs. Pledges of contributions will be received by telephone from listeners.

Despite snow-covered roads, the Drift Woman's Club was represented at Wednesday's meeting. One or more banks have reported receiving pledges by telephone some as low as $2, and it was phrased that no contribution too small. An effort will be made to enlist school children with dimes and quarters and dollars. Many individuals as possible, regardless of the amount, will be asked to help.

National Loan Program Approves Half-Million In Aid At University

By next June the University of Kentucky Student Loan Office will have approved well above half a million dollars in loans to students over a four-year period. The funds have been made available primarily through the National Defense Student Loan Program set up in 1953.

Under the program, the University puts up one dollar for every nine dollars made available by the federal government through the U. S. Office of Education. In addition, UK pays all administrative costs of the program, which is directed by Dr. Elbert W. Ockerman.

Although a student may borrow a maximum of $500 per semester, Dr. Ockerman says the average loan per semester at UK is $250. Approximately 450 students can be accommodated with funds now available.

Last year's borrowers included 108 seniors, 115 juniors, 92 sophomores and 100 freshmen.

Each student may borrow a maximum of $5,000 during his or her educational career. No interest accrues nor is repayment required until one year after the borrower has ceased to be a full-time student. The borrower then has 10 years in which to repay the loan, plus three per cent interest.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

FOUND HIS OWN TREATMENT EDITOR, The Times:

Some 20 million Americans are said to be chronically "sick" alcoholics. Many and varied plans are being adopted to treat this sickness such as alcoholic wards, psychiatry, physical therapy, and the AA. In the clinics the "patients" are administered vitamin injections, given nourishing food, psycho-analyzed, and, after a three-month period, sent back home, "cured." In the AA the patient associates with and is entertained by other sick patients. Here he plays rook, sips soft drinks or coffee, and watches TV. Occasionally, he is lectured on the evils of alcohol, and often reminded that even though he is "cured" he will always remain a "sick" alcoholic.

I have had experience in alcohol in all its categories. All the preceding remedies were of no avail. I found out there was only one person who could help me, and that person was ME-myself. There was only one remedy—I just didn't take the first drink. Now I never think of alcohol unless someone mentions it—Ethyl is never on my mind.

It was I myself, and I alone.

What's Going On
FISH & WILDLIFE
 by MINOR CLARK, Commissioner
 Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources

Since a report has been released through the press of a move to incorporate the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources with three other departments under a single agency head, perhaps, it is time to conjecture on what effects such a coalition would have on this Department. We have seen the recommendations for such reorganization but are unaware as to how these proposals would be spelled out in bills that may be submitted to the Legislature and, therefore, have little knowledge as to how the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources would finally be affected. We can understand the basic purpose of the reorganization measure—to offer a more streamlined government in the hope of improving efficiency and thereby to operate the government at a reduced cost to taxpayers. This is a noble gesture and there is no argument with that phase of it.

But, it would be well for sportsmen of Kentucky to probe into this plan, to ferret out its possible effect on their department.

It is pointed out again that the writer is not sufficiently acquainted with the plan and its proposals to graphically describe features which would be detrimental to this department and, therefore, this column will deal with "ifs". If the Department were placed under the single agency head, what would happen to between five and seven million dollars invested in capital property by the sportsmen from money their purchase of hunting and fishing licenses?

What would be the power of the Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission? By whom would this Commission be selected? Would this body operate as in the past? Would it have powers over the fish and wildlife resources commissioner or would that commissioner be responsible to the agency head?

What would be the status of the scientific research in fish and wildlife management? Would decisions on that research be dictated by the commissioner or the commission, or would the agency head have jurisdiction over those projects?

Where would money derived from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses be funneled? Would it go into a general fund and then the money on which to operate the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources be appropriated?

You Can Do It, and Earn $45 Per Mo. To Start Plus Liberal Bonus

Hundreds of young men have found this job interesting and rewarding. You start right off at $455.00 per mo. plus bonus. Excellent opportunities for fast advancement of high-paying management positions. Fast-growing, highly successful company with assets over $20,000,000. No need to transfer or relocate. Travel limited to 5 days a week. Home on week-ends. You may qualify if you are age 21 to 43, own a car in good condition, have high school education and available for immediate employment. tioned back to the Department and, if so, by whom? Should this money go into the general fund, what would be the status of the Federal Dingell-Johnson, Pittman-Robertson programs in Kentucky? The Department receives its portion of federal funds from an excise tax on guns and ammunition and on fishing tackle for carrying on scientific projects. Unless the state devotes its own receipts from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses to fish and wildlife management programs, then these federal funds are withheld. Would Kentucky sportsmen be denied this fund, usually around $300,000 yearly, handed to the state on a silver platter?

The League of Kentucky sportsmen cooperates with the Department in many ways. Would this cooperation be eliminated? What would happen to the Happy Hunting Ground magazine which is published in cooperation with the sportsmen? Would it be eliminated?

These are some of the questions with which the sportsmen of Kentucky should become acquainted. They should know the answers and if the answers indicate that their Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, that their Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission and their League of Kentucky Sportsmen would be shackled, then they should do their utmost to preserve, undisturbed, their present fish and wildlife program in Kentucky.

Caney Groups Sing At Churches, Schools

The mixed chorus of Caney Junior College gave eight performances in Floyd and Knott counties on Sunday, December 17, and the following Tuesday when they presented a program of Christmas music in three churches and five schools.

On Sunday evening they sang at the Free Will Baptist Church at Martin, the First Baptist Church at Martin and at the Baptist Church at Mousie. Tuesday's tour included high schools at Wayland, Garrett and Maytown in the morning. Lunch was furnished by the Martin high school, with an afternoon program there at 12:30 and also at McDowell at 1:30.

Guitarists were James Back and Doug Thornberry. Girls quintet were Jeanette Ferrell, Connie Tuttle, Edith Hampton, Diana Martin, and Sharon Patton. Doug Frazier, William Patton, Leonard Gibson, and Danny Ramey are the members of the boys quartet. Miss Esther Smith was encore soloist. Other members of the mixed chorus are: Barbara Jones, Darla Miller, Ella Mae Shaped, Bobby Jo Turner, Judy Hayes, Phyllis Osborne, Juanita Feltner, Ralph Campbell, Henry Combs, Herbert Crase, Shelby Martin, Jerry Burkett, Coy Badley and Mark Dingus.

The Caney College Mixed Chorus sang on Sunday evening, December 31, at the First Baptist Church in Hindman and the Ivis Bible Church. This week the chorus hopes to go to Knott, Perry and Letcher counties.

If you want to get the largest possible number of servings from the meat you buy, don't hurry the cooking. Research studies indicate that the higher the cooking temperature, the greater the cooking loss. An oven temperature of 300 to 325 degrees is recommended for roasting or baking; if meat is to be cooked in a liquid, keep the liquid at the simmering stage.

Tidbits Of Kentucky Folklore

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.

Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

Recently there has been a great hubbub about some small community that adopted the old McGuffey's Readers for use in its schools. All the pros and cons must have been written about many times, but it will not hurt to put in my dime's worth, especially since I was raised on those readers, and so were many of you who would admit to being sixty or more. Just suppose we tell the younger generation what those books were like.

In the first place, the series ran through the whole public school as it was then known. You knew where you were in school by the reader, not by any such nonsense as a grade. Just as in the Blue-back Speller, being as far over as baker told the listener more than a whole page of writing can, so being in the Third Reader was a milestone that everybody understood the meaning of. Books were handed down, sometimes pretty badly soiled and dogeared, from older to younger children. As the sixth in our household to attend Fidelity School, most of my readers and other books were hand-me-downs. But there was sometimes a blessing in disguise when a reader or other text had had such hard use that it had to be replaced with a brand-new, nice-smelling book, just for me, the last of the clan.

Next, it would take a small booklet to tell of the nature of the reading matter in these old stand-by texts. It had not yet been worked out just how many words a pupil ought to know when he was eight, let us say; therefore, all sorts of big words, even high-sounding ones, might appear all at once. No wonder we sometimes worked out some strange pronunciations before we went up front to "say our lessons." Fortunately, there was usually a list of the new words after each lesson, properly marked diacritically and defined. Say what you please, lots of us learned lots of new words in that way, even though we knew a pretty stiff definition; but we knew some definition and proudly could give it, loudly enough to drown out all the other school-room noises.

Some of the people who object to the old-fashioned readers dislike the obvious morals attached to many of the lessons. Those selections were rather moral I must admit, but, in general, the moral was a good, everyday one, sensible and simple enough for country boys and girl to understand and remember. Other values of a poem, for instance, were subordinated to this open search for a moral. But, if we would only study what was in the book, there were fine things about the meter of the poems, about the figures of speech, about the poetic, high-flown language. In that old one-roomed school at Fidelity we were taught to scan poetry, so that we could detect a mile away when some faulty scanning went on. We may have been a little too sing-songy in our poetry reading, but we certainly did not make ordinary prose of it, as some later elocutionist had a way of doing and spoiling the rhythm that was a part of the poem itself. In our time there are people who are always afraid that the younger generation will become indoctrinated with some false philosophy; those same objectors often are doing their utmost to win over the younger generation to some outgrown, or cranky doctrine that is far more dangerous than any open moralizing on the part of Mr. McGuffey and the other makers of old-time readers.

Others object to the fervent patriotism of the selections. Eagle feathers fairly flew when we read some of the soaring oratory, America seemed what Francis Scott Key said it was, "the land of the free and the home of the brave." Snooty, self-styled intellectuals of our time sneer at anything that smacks of patriotism; no wonder there are so many shady groups preaching strange doctrines that run right across the main stream of our American thinking. Remember, McGuffey got started on his publishing of readers in the days before the Great Unpleasantness, or the Civil War, when our traditions were still all-American and not divided into North and South. Bunker Hill, and Yorktown, and Washington, and Adams, and Patrick Henry—they belonged to everybody; to recall their significance did not require any apology; they belonged to America!

Annual Old Christmas Party Presents Legends And Songs

The traditional greeting of "Christmas gift," and the singing of the ancient "Wassail Song" opened the "Old Christmas" party held at the Wise Restaurant dining room Saturday evening. It is an annual event sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Tom James.

"I am a teacher and singer but it is not in that capacity that Mr. James and I like to bring our friends together at this season of the year," Mrs. James told the group, "but it is because we are of the folk and like to remember the traditions brought to the southern hills by the early settlers. One of the finest of the old customs is the keeping of Old Christmas on the sixth of January. In many countries this is known as Epiphany—the days of the Three Kings and the end of the 12 days it took the Three Wise Men to come to the stable in Bethlehem."

A group sang an old English song, "The Twelve Days of Christmas," followed by the entire party singing a Southern lullaby, "Mary

Had a Baby." The Jenny Wiley Chanters, organized as a folk song group several months ago by Mrs. James, sang "The Seven Joys of Mary."

A reader declaimed quotations from a Christmas story, "The Cattle Low At Midnight: "There was the story of Old Christmas when the cattle knelt in the barn and lowed and prayed for that was when the Christ-child was born." The reader stooped, the group began to sing: "Winds Were Blowing Cows Were Lowing, Stars Were Glowing, Glowing, Glowing." The reader continued, "Down in the valley in the pine trees the moonlight had yielded to darkness. The singers picked up again. This time with "And The Trees Do Moan."

The quotes from the old legend, written by Henry P. Scalf, and the interludes of song, wove a unique presentation of harmony.

Following the group singing of "Silent Night," and the presentation of a descendant by the Jenny Wiley Chanters, those in attendance matched numbers for their partners in the march to the wassail bowl.

QUALITY CONTROL

How much can lumber value be increased by improved logging and milling practices? The answer is $10.40 per 1,000 feet according to a study at five circular sawmills, reports W. W. King, of the Tennessee Valley Authority. Red oak, black oak, and scarlet oak were the species studied. Trees were followed from the stump to the green chain.

The mimosa webworm can be effectively controlled by systemic insecticides, according to research results by J. G. Rodriguez, University of Kentucky entomologist. The insecticide can be broadcast on top of the ground and watered in or worked directly into the soil. The mimosa webworm attacks ornamental plantings of moraine locust and mimosa and occasionally native honey locust.

TO MARK A CENTENNIAL

The Battle of Middle Creek was not a great event of the Civil War, although it was sectionally decisive, and its 100th anniversary, Wednesday of this week, passed almost unnoted.

The last of the old veterans of that and every other Civil War engagement has passed on, and this Civil War Centennial period is being observed by Americans to whom the War Between the States is not a memory but history. Men sloshed through the mud, that cold January day, 1862, when the Union forces of General (later President) James A. Garfield and those of the South led by General Humphrey Marshall collided on what is now the Middle Creek road, three miles outside Prestonsburg. Bitter hatred ate into men's souls, those days, even as today. But time has effaced the physical scars, and most of the wounds of the spirit have healed.

A marker has been erected at the battlefield. Once in a great while, a minie ball is unearthed by the plowman or by boys digging at play. All else is gone. Soon a modern highway will cross the old field. The imagination of motorists driving past will be taxed if they again see the thin lines of Americans—kinsmen, onetime friends—wearing different uniforms and fighting under different flags.

A special postmark, in use at the postoffice here, has commemorated this centennial of the Battle of Middle Creek. Little else has been done. Perhaps it is as well that the dead past remain undisturbed.

Although time has changed the landscape at the battle scene itself, Garfield Place here, the home of Mrs. C. P. Stephens, stands, little changed from that day 100 years ago when General Garfield and his staff occupied it after winning the Battle of Middle Creek, the day before.

counsel in several of the cases, was unable to be present for the court trials because of the General Assembly session.

Deputy Sheriff Joe Horn was convicted of child desertion, January 3, the third day of his work as deputy at the courthouse, and was given a one-year term. The sentence later was probated for a period of five years on several conditions, one of which provides he is to pay $50 a month for the support of his family till July 1, after which a re-determination of the amount he shall pay will be made. The one-year term of James Burke for child desertion also was probated. His monthly payments were set at $75.

Results of other court trials:

Ambers Roop, assault and battery, 60 days in jail and $50 fine; William Osborne, hunting without license, not guilty; Isaac Stumbo, drunk driving, $100 fine; Jimmie Johnson, cutting and wounding, $100 fine; Edna Blackburn, possessing intoxicants for the purpose of sale, 30-day jail term and $50 fine; Ezra Marsillett, knowingly receiving stolen property, not guilty.

The $1,000 bond of Sterling Hamilton, twice indicted on cold check charges, was forfeited when he failed to appear for trial.

The docket was further lightened by the filing away of 22 child desertion cases, subject to being re-rocketed. Defendants in these were Raymond Phillips, George Yumars, Sam Ealey, Elmer Elswick, Lawrence Cole, David Mosley, John Lloyd Sturgill, Gene Osborne, Jack Ticks, Ceberl Hash, Ernest Little, Jay Calhoun, Elmer Damron, Clyde Hamilton, Alvis Johnson, James Clayton Conley, Ed Hall, Wesley Donovan Jewell, Hubert Johnson, Effraim Negron, J. Szabo, Jr., and Edgar Gibson. Another case dismissed on the same terms alleged chicken stealing against Walter Moore, Bill Gearheart and Otis Newsome.

Other cases dismissed and reasons given for dismissal follow:

Tom Ed Music, Garry Matney and Charles T. Harris, assault and battery; Amos Lee Duncan, shooting and wounding, dismissed on recommendation of parole officer; Willie Martin, carrying a concealed deadly weapon, insufficient evidence; Johnny R. Leedy, cold check, insufficient evidence; James Akers, grand larceny, lack of prosecution; Bennie Music, obtaining goods under false pretense, insufficient evidence.

RABE DIES

Karen Rene Hall, one-day-old daughter of Claude and Saundra Fleck Hall, of Wheelwright, died Wednesday of last week at the McDowell Memorial hospital. Besides the parents, he is survived by the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Troy Hall, of Wheelwright, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Fleck, Carrollton Heights, West Virginia. Graveside rites were conducted Friday at the Osborne cemetery at Byro under the direction of Merion Funeral Chapel.

In all this broadened area of vocational training and in the re-training of adults the Mayo School would figure. If the Manpower Bill is enacted, the school would receive federal funds to finance all needed instruction, equipment and buildings.

Area Redevelopment funds, as the law now stands, it was pointed out, are to be made available only to those projects which will create new jobs without pirating labor from existing enterprises.

Governor Combs pointed out that the Mayo Vocational School "is a model for Kentucky and the nation as a whole." Commenting on this area, he added: "We do have problems here—a desperate situation—and it is one of the tragedies of my administration that we have not solved these problems."

He pointed out that the Legislature is considering more money for more vocational schools and that he hopes the funds will be made available.

Congressman Perkins spoke of the needs for more reservoir construction to provide flood control and an adequate water supply and to encourage tourism. He pointed out that the present Watershed Act fails the entire Appalachian region because of the cost-benefit ratio formula attached to it.

The Congressman said President Kennedy's wishes for this area "are far ahead" of the plans of the U. S. Corps of Engineers. "No accounting is required on appropriations to foreign countries—they do as they please with what we give or loan them—but on appropriations for reservoirs in our own country they look down your shirt-collar."

Community initiative and cooperation are "musts," the representatives of federal agencies pointed out, if the area redevelopment plan is to achieve its purpose.

Mr. Batt spoke of the unemployment of the 1930's as "mass unemployment;" of that of the 1960's as "class unemployment." Vocational education is being stressed, he added, to relieve class unemployment—to train the young, the adult unemployed, the handicapped and others. "But," he noted, "one thing impresses: Approximately 50% of the youngsters who are trained must leave Kentucky to find jobs, and most of these youngsters don't want to leave."

The job of economic development, Mr. Batt said, is to help create jobs in such areas as this so that the youngsters can stay home. "It makes a darned sight more sense," he said, "to make people self-supporting than it does to subsidize them in idleness."

Mr. Whisman pointed out that the area development organization work for Kentucky is complete, that all area programs have been prepared and are on their way to Washington. He added that, although the program is a good first step toward meeting Eastern Kentucky needs, it is not as it now stands "the last word" on what we need. It does not reach roads, watersheds and other requirements. "But we must take it as it is and make it do all that is possible while other legislation is being worked on," he added.

What's Going On
FISH & WILDLIFE
 by MINOR CLARK, Commissioner
 Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources

Frequently I, and other members of the Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources, are asked if we are fighting a losing battle in trying to preserve animals and birds and fishes for future generations. They reason, apparently, what with all the inroads being made on the wildlife habitat that there is nothing that can be done to perpetuate their being. They'll point out that new highways and subdivisions and the trend toward rural living have taken up so much country space that wildlife will eventually be the loser.

They also declare that clean farming methods, year by year, eat into habitat not ruined by the encroachment of civilization and they say that bulldozers, which are being used to convert land once considered wastelands into productive areas are further inroads on the domain of wildlife. They'll say: "How can a fish and wildlife department expect to compete?" And, finally wind up by asking again: "Aren't you fighting a losing battle?"

The very points that are made by these interested people emphasize that a good fishing and wildlife department is more vital today than ever before and to those questions concerning a losing battle, we challengingly reply that definitely the battle is not a losing one.

These trying problems are the very reasons for having improved conservation agencies and while they do pose a grim challenge to all conservationists it is my belief that with proper management and cooperation from sportsmen and farmers, game will be available for many, many years. We also point out that without such an agency and without complete cooperation the fate of wildlife in this and other states is sealed.

It is more important to have skilled men in the field today than ever before. It is necessary that new scientific approaches to game management be instituted and they can only be instituted through biologists who have made a life study of birds and animals and their requirements.

It is as simple as this: The future of wildlife depends on whether game and fish department can squeeze more wildlife on smaller areas and we believe that can be done.

Not many years ago a person would have said that the deer herd of Kentucky was a thing of the past and they would have been right. But wise biologists studied the terrain of Kentucky counties and they found that browse was available for many deer in many areas. A stocking program was started and the people of given counties joined in wholeheartedly in protecting those deer that were stocked. It took only about 10 years to produce a huntable herd in 26 counties. The progress in this project has been continued until today Kentucky has as good deer hunting as many other states and better than most. Last season 41 counties were opened to hunting. This fall others will be opened. I believe this answers the question: Is the battle to preserve, protect and perpetuate wildlife a losing one? To this question I reply emphatically "NO", and that also is the opinion of biologists and others in the Department.

Q. I would like information concerning the 1962 deer season. I have to plan my vacation in advance so any information that you can give me would be helpful. (S. W. Pairborn, Ohio)

A. Deer seasons are usually set by the Fish & Wildlife Resources Commission at the June meeting. This is necessary so that biologists will have ample time to analyze the previous year's kill and to complete browse surveys to determine a suitable shooting season for the current year. If you will contact this department in July further information will be available.

Q. I notice where the Department of Fish & Wildlife requests that bands found on quail be returned to that office. Why are the quail banded and why should bands be returned? (A. C. Ludlow, Ky.)

A. Sportsmen's clubs which rear quail are furnished bands and are asked to band all pen-raised birds released. This is to identify the birds killed and the bands should be returned to the Department so that the survival rate of the stocked birds may be determined. The future of quail stocking may depend on the survival rate and, therefore, it is important that each band be returned by the hunter.

Q. Why is it that in the middle of the hunting season the hunter must purchase a new license? Why can't a license be sold that is good for the duration of the season? (J. H. H., Louisville, Ky.)

A. The county clerks operate on a calendar year and, therefore, since the clerks are the designated agents for the Department in the sale of hunting and fishing licenses, the same method of operation must be followed. It all boils down to the same thing, however, since the hunter gets a year's hunting out of his license, which is all he could obtain under a fiscal year basis. Besides, the law requires the sale of these licenses on a calendar year basis. Licenses for 1962 have been sent to all county clerks and are now on sale.

What's your question about the Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources? Send it to Minor Clark, commissioner, Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources, Frankfort, Kentucky, and it will be answered in this column in the near future. All questions must be signed by the sender but only initials will be used in this column if requested.

After this date I will not be responsible for any debts contracted by any one other than myself.

POWER FIRMS FILE SUITS

To Recover Overcharges On Equipment Purchased; Local Company, Plaintiff

The six operating electric companies of the American Electric Power System recently filed a total of 12 suits involving 22 electrical equipment manufacturers convicted of anti-trust violations last year.

Kentucky Power Company, one of the six AEP System utilities, is a plaintiff in 11 of the 12 suits.

The suits were filed in the U. S. district court, Southern district of New York. They ask the court to determine the amount of damages sustained by the manufacturers' alleged overpricing through a price-fixing conspiracy, and to award this amount trebled, plus the costs of litigation.

The utilities have estimated that their total purchases during the period 1948-1960 of equipment covered in all 12 suits averaged approximately $20-million per year. Each of the 12 suits covers a particular type of equipment: turbine-generators, steam condensers, power transformers, large outdoor circuit-breakers, power switchgear assemblies, distribution transformers, isolated phase buses, network transformers, instrument transformers.

The six plaintiff companies, all subsidiaries of American Electric Power Company, New York, provide electric service to about 5.4 million people in seven East-Central states.

The suits cover alleged overpricing during the 1948-1960 period. In this connection, they include a charge of fraudulent concealment under which the companies contend that the statute of limitations did not begin to run until the price-fixing conspiracy became known, through the institution of the government suits.

The electrical manufacturers named in the various suits are:

Allis Chalmers Manufacturing Company, A. B. Chance Company, Carrier Corporation, Federal-Pacific Electric Company, Foster-Wheeler Corporation, Ingersoll-Rand Company, General Electric Company, Hubbard and Company, I-T-E Circuit Breaker Company, Joslyn Manufacturing & Supply Co., Kuhlman Electric Company, Lapp Insulator Company, Inc., McGraw-Edison Company, Moloney Electric Company, Ohio Brass Company, The Force Company, Inc., Sangame Electric Company, Wagner Electric Corporation, Westinghouse Electric Corp., C. H. Wheeler Manufacturing Co., Worthington Corporation.

Notice To Taxpayers

The tax books are now in my possession and I am ready to proceed with the collection of taxes. I respectfully request that taxpayers bring their tax notices with them when coming to the Sheriff's office.

McDowell Dare Devils Defeat Purple Flash On Martin Floor, 65-57

McDowell won its 14th game of the season by defeating its arch-rival, Martin, 65-57, at Martin. McDowell is now 14-3. This is the first time in several seasons that a McDowell team has beaten Martin on its home court.

Martin jumped off to a 17-16 first quarter lead. They increased this to 35-26 at halftime. But in the second half, Pete Grigsby's Dare Devils roared back. They trailed by only one at the end of three quarters, 44-43.

In the fourth quarter, paced by the fine shooting of Dean Stewart and David Turner, McDowell rolled to a 65-57 victory. Stewart collected 12 of his 18 points in that fourth quarter outburst. David Turner tossed in 15 for the evening. Jimmy Hammonds took scoring honors for the losers with 16 points.

This will be the fourth tournament engagement for Denzil Halbert's Purple Flash as they have played in the Floyd County, Prestonsburg and Pikeville affairs. Wayland, winner of the Floyd county event, will be in its second tournament try.

In next Wednesday's opening game, host Paintsville will vie with Flat Gap and in the second game of the night at 8:30 Oil Springs clashes with Warfield.

Thursday's opening game at 7 p. m. has Inez set to battle Wayland, and in the final game of the first round Martin is matched against Meade Memorial.

The bottom bracket semi-finals will be played at 7 p. m. next Friday, and the top bracket at 8:30, with the final game slated for Saturday night at 8. No consolation game will be played.

Officials will be Foster Meade, South Portsmouth, and Bob Stanfill, Louisa. Meade Memorial is the defending champion.

"Money-wisdom" is the key to making money travel further.

Do they get more mileage from money than you do?

This is not a matter of more miles per gallon, but of more living per dollar.

Enjoying life fully is a question of attitude—and aptitude. People who make the most of their lives also make the most of their money. And so often behind this money-wisdom stands a full-service commercial bank.

You see, a full-service bank—such as ours—can help you in more ways than others. Only a full-service bank offers you all this: a checking account, a savings account, all kinds of loans, and financial counselling that has depth and thoroughness.

One thing more. As you work with our full-service bank you build a solid reputation. And that, too, is "money in the bank."

THIS TIME of year you're probably busy with all sorts of new projects, for this is the time we start living up to all our New Year's resolutions! One resolution that's a pleasure to keep is one that I made this year — to keep in touch with old friends! There's really nothing like a Long Distance telephone call to make you "feel good all over" . . . and spread happiness at both ends of the line.

MAKE SOMEONE HAPPY . . .
CALL LONG DISTANCE

SHOPPING TO BE DONE? And you can't leave home? Just pick up your phone! Today, more and more busy homemakers are shopping by phone. In fact, latest Bell System studies show that four out of five women purchase goods or services by phone at one time or another! So next time bad weather . . . housework . . . whatever keeps you at home . . . just pick up your phone and go shopping!

DID-YOU-KNOW-DEPARTMENT: About 40 per cent of overseas telephone calls are with Pan-American countries; about 30 per cent with Pacific, and 25 per cent with European countries.

MR. BUSINESSMAN: Are you forgetting one of your most important Public Relations tools? It's your telephone! For example, the entire sales staff of a Midwestern tire distributor periodically calls customers to see if they have any complaints or suggestions on how service may be improved.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE is a Southern nurseryman who phones his customers after every delivery to make sure they are completely satisfied with their purchases.

NUCLEAR WAR QUESTIONS ANSWERED BY AUTHORITY

By Brig. Gen. William E. Buster
Many people appear desperately fearful of a nuclear attack. Some declare openly that they will make no planned effort to survive, that if the dread thing happens they will accept it without any question, resigned apparently, to what they believe would be certain death.

The human race would have been extinct a million years ago had our forebears responded in this manner on any appreciable scale. It would be stupid to pooh-pooh the enormity, the overwhelming frightfulness of a nuclear war. But it is equally foolish to refuse to face the possibility and to try to appraise our chances of survival.

What defeats many people is something that has always plagued mankind—our inordinate fear of the unknown. We can plan to overcome the adversary we can see and understand. But how can one cope with an unknown menace?

Without trying to minimize the gruesome possibilities, we need to examine them intelligently and try to understand their workings. And we need not aspire to be atomic scientists. One doesn't have to be an electrical engineer to screw in a fuse or turn off a switch. It is the duty of every American, then, to learn the nature of the thing that threatens us, to bring it out of the dark unknown and see what is to be done.

Here are some questions and answers designed to help the average citizen to dispel the dread of the unknown.

Q. Can any living thing survive an atomic explosion?

A. Certainly! The farther away you are from the point of explosion the greater are your chances of surviving the blast, just as with a charge of dynamite.

Q. Wouldn't it be certain death if one were, say 20 miles away?

A. Not necessarily. Much depends on the size of the bomb. Much depends on where you happen to be. American soldiers stayed unharmed in shelters less than a mile from a test explosion in Nevada. Even if an explosion were to kill everyone within a radius of 100 miles, people beyond the lethal radius can and will survive.

Q. How can you know if a distant explosion is atomic and what can you do if you should see one?

A. Nuclear explosions are characterized by a flash of unearthly brilliance, brighter than the sun. Such a flash will be unmistakable. It can blind you and you should look away instantly. Their seek cover—any cover is better than none. Even the small shelter afforded by a curbstone could have saved many lives had Hiroshima been forewarned.

Q. I am a farmer. How will farmers be warned of a nuclear attack?

A. Principally by radio. Details are being worked out to place a warning device in every building served by public utility electricity. NEAR (National Emergency Alarm Repeater) will enable the warning to be flashed simultaneously into every home, apartment and business establishment in the nation serviced by public power lines. (It wouldn't work on a private generator like those used in camps and lodges remote from power lines.)

Q. Can anything be done to protect livestock from fallout?

A. Yes. Once the family's protection is provided for, the livestock should be rounded up and the most valuable driven into barns, sheds or any other shelters. Regardless of how flimsy a shelter might seem, it is better than none if it keeps the dust off the cattle.

Q. Could I use the milk produced during fallout?

A. Yes, as long as the fallout dust didn't actually get into the milk. Cows should be milked when you bring them in. It would be good to put calves in with the cows; it may be a day or two before you can milk again. And once the cow has eaten contaminated food the milk will have to be checked with a Geiger counter for radioactivity.

Q. Can fallout dust set dry fields on fire?

A. No.

Q. Won't fallout dust ruin all crops in the fields?

Not necessarily. A heavy rain will wash much of the dust off the plants and into the ground. Later there will be another problem, that of radioactive materials having been absorbed by growing plants from the soil and thus making the crop dangerous as food. But you will have plenty of advice on coping with that when the time comes.

Q. How about water for livestock?

A. The problem and the solution are the same as with humans. Open sources will remain dangerous for some time after fallout. Running streams will clean up fairly rapidly.

Drinking water should be stored in barrels or drums in the barn. Even a loose-fitting cover offers considerable protection from drifting fallout dust. A cistern should not be used for drinking purposes if fallout dust has been washed into it.

Suppose all the feed gets contaminated by fallout. Will the cattle have to be destroyed?

A. Certainly not. Let them eat the contaminated feed. It will probably have had effects on them but it will not impair their food value for some time. The same is true of contaminated water. You may need the animals for food. Keep them alive as long as possible.

Q. Can fallout dust be removed from an animal's hide?

A. Certainly. Washing with running water is the best way, either in a stream or with a hose. If a hose is available it should be used to wash fallout off barn roofs, sheds and every other place it may have settled where it can harm people or animals.

Q. Does fallout have any effect on farm machinery or vehicles?

A. None whatever.

Castro-Type "Explosion" Predicted In Nicaragua

Nicaragua, 275 miles from the Panama Canal, is building up to a "big explosion" like the one which put Fidel Castro into power in Cuba, Lester Velle warns in the January Reader's Digest.

There have been 22 uprisings against the iron dictatorship of Luis Somoza and his brother Anastasio in the past 2½ years, Velle writes, in the article "New Time Bomb in the Caribbean." Once, Castro offered planes and pilots to the rebels. The offer was rejected, but one Nicaraguan told Velle, "Sometime we may have to accept help wherever we can."

One nation not offering any help, Velle says, is the United States. Although tortures, shootings and jailings are part of everyday life, we remain friendly with the dictator, just as we were with Cuba's pre-Castro ruler, Fulgencio Batista. The Nicaraguans resent it similarly. Our former ambassador, Thomas Whelan, was one of the most detested men in the country; Nicaraguans who have been beaten by steel-helmeted national guardsmen remember that 3,500 of the 5,000 guardsmen received their training from U. S. Fort Gulick, in the Panama Canal Zone.

More dangerous, Velle writes is the Somozas' collaboration with the communists. They supplied the campaign money with which Reds won top offices in the nation's labor confederation, the CGT. At the same time, the communists pretend to be split. Half, known as black communists, work with the regime. The other half, called red communists, oppose him, so they can emerge in some future revolution as "fighters for freedom."

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky

By JOE JORDAN
(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week, Brig. Gen. George H. Thomas of the Union Army, who had been giving intensive training to recruits at his camp near Lebanon, and by much hard drilling and frequent inspections and reviews had whipped them into a reasonable facsimile of a military organization, marched south out of Lebanon on the turnpike to Columbia, to give them their first test under fire.

From Lebanon to Columbia, the road was excellent, but Columbia was not the destination. Thomas was on his way to attack a Confederate force under Brig. Gen. Felix K. Zollicoffer, who to meet a rumored advance had left Cumberland Gap and marched to Mill Springs, on the south bank of the Cumberland River, about 12 miles southwest of Somerset. Zollicoffer then had crossed over to the north side of the river and prepared an entrenched position.

At Columbia, the Federals left the highway, turned east, and plunged into a mud road which was kept soupy by a constant downpour of rain. Artillery carriages and the wagons of the vital supply train promptly sank to their axles. It took the Union column eight days to traverse the next 40 miles. For the remainder of the week under review, then, we leave Thomas and his troops struggling in Adair County mud.

Union Col. James A. Garfield's 18th Brigade, which since the day before Christmas Eve had been making painfully slow progress from Louisa in the direction of a Confederate camp at Paintsville which Garfield intended to attack, was creeping south over rough mountain trails when the New Year came in, and by January 6 it was still seven miles short of its goal. Meantime a Confederate patrol had intercepted a letter from Garfield to Col. Jonathan Cranor, who with his 40th Ohio Infantry regiment and about 400 cavalry troopers had taken a different route in order to flank the left end of the Confederate position. The Rebel commander, Brig. Gen. Humphrey Marshall, had intended to offer battle at Hagar's farm, near Paintsville, but when the letter fell into his hands and he learned the enemy's plans, he decided to fall back to the forks of Middle Creek. Thus Garfield and Cranor, when their forces made a junction near Paintsville, had more rough terrain to negotiate before they could come to grips with Marshall.

At Louisville, General Don Carlos Buell, under whose orders Thomas and Garfield were making their respective moves against the Confederates, issued an order placing completely under U. S. government supervision all boat movements on the Ohio River between that city and the Ohio's confluence with the Mississippi. Boats could stop only at specified points, passengers had to have passes, and permits were required for all freight shipments.

At Lexington, a Unionist ticket of city officers won election without opposition.

Slip inside a Jet-smooth Chevrolet, relax and just notice how good you feel. Ready for action? Just flick the key and let'er purr (your choice of two standard engines—a 135-hp 6 or 170-hp V8—or optional-at-extra-cost V8's way up to a 409-hp mile-shrinker). That gentle cradling motion you enjoy is Jet-smooth ride at work. And the rich interior and neat craftsmanship are Body by Fisher at work. Have your dealer give you the whole story. That's the work he loves best.

NATURE TRAILS

By RUFUS M. REED

NATURE'S WEATHER VANES

One of these "weather vanes" is called The Devil's Snuffbox, Lycoperdon perlatum. The puffballs are mostly small globe-shaped fungi found growing on old logs or decaying humus in open woods and around old clearings. When young and tender, the flesh is snow-white and good to eat. When they mature, the whole inside flesh turns to a mass of yellowish-brown spores, which spout out through an opening at the top, at the slightest touch, forming a dense cloud of golden yellow "dust."

These fungi belong to the genus, Lycoperdon, of which there are several species. One is a giant that grows to weigh as much as twenty pounds. But most all are small plants.

If you are walking through the woods on a quiet day, touch one of these little puffballs with your finger and it will spout out a cloud of yellow dust. This will drift away in the wind and tell you which direction it is moving. I have used them often for "weather vanes."

The spores puff out in clouds of millions, to drift away and begin a new colony of puffballs. The one called "The Devil's Snuffbox" grows about three inches high and has a starlike base. It is grayish-white when young and turns brownish with age.

NATURE'S GHOST

Dead-Man's Fingers, Xylaria polymorpha, have often made my hair stand up when I found them in the dark night woods, glowing with a weird, blue-green light, like the soft light one sees in a room where there's a corpse.

These strange fungi illustrate better than words their purpose of creation—to eat the dead things of the forest. They are found reaching up out of the earth like crooked, ghostly fingers charred black from decay and death, and yet coming alive, as if the buried corpse was groping upward for light and life. They are drab-looking in the daytime but when black night settles down over the woods, these fungi begin to glow with a weird light that makes them conspicuous in the darkest corners of the forest. Their flesh is pallid like the flesh of a corpse. The crooked fingers extend about six inches above the ground. Their luminescence is produced without heat—a subject of much investigation among scientists. Its mystery has never been fully solved. The same goes for the firefly. The smartest scientist cannot tell you how the little firefly makes his light without heat.

COMPOUND EYES OF INSECTS

The compound eyes of most insects are among the most remarkable mechanisms of nature. The eyes of the robber fly have over 4,000 separate lens, of hexagonal shape. This is a large, predaceous fly that captures its prey on the wing. The compound eyes of the dragonfly are ten times more wonderful! It has over 30,000 separate lens in its pair of bulging eyes. These large, compound eyes enable the insect to see in all directions at the same time—up, down, forward and back, a feat that humans are unable to without turning the head.

Some people are afraid of dragonflies and call them "snake feeders" and "devil's darned needles." There was once a strong belief in some sections that dragonflies sewed up the ears of naughty schoolboys who played "hookey" from school. This belief is still held in some sections of the south. But the dragonfly is one of our most valuable predators, and is an expert flier. He captures his prey on the wing, which consists of mosquitoes, midges, sweat bees, hornets and all sorts of water insects. Some dragonflies have ten spots on their wings, and some have beautiful, gauzy transparent wings, with long, green bodies.

THE WHANGDOODLE

The Whangdoodle bird inhabits the inland rivers and lakes of the south. Some people also call it, "the water turkey," "snake bird," and "American darter." This bird is almost solid black. Its tail is tipped with white and its wings have a broad, silvery-gray band. It has a long, coiled neck, which it holds above the water while swimming with its body submerged, and this gives it the appearance of a snake rearing up out of the water. It has webbed feet with claws on the toes, enabling it to climb the hanging branches of a tree. It builds its nest in trees along the swamps or bays, and lays about four greenish-white eggs. Down south people say that when its nest is robbed, or its young destroyed by an enemy, this bird will haunt the nest site for days, uttering a strange, eerie cry that haunts all ears. When people hear this heart-rending cry, they say, "That's the old whangdoodle mournin' for her firstborn." It is truly a bird of haunting mystery.

Pike Mine Firms Told To Desist Violations Of Labor Standards Act

Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg, through Solicitor of Labor Charles Donahue, has obtained a court order in the United States District Court at Pikeville, permanently prohibiting Allburn Coal Company, Inc., of McCarr, Pike county; Allburn Coal Company, Mine No. 1, Inc., and Allburn Coal Company, Mine No. 2, Inc., both of Matewan, Mingo county, West Virginia; J. C. Chambers, of Matewan; John Cline, of Lovely, Martin county, and Herbert Cline, Jr., of McCarr, Pike county, from violating the minimum wage, overtime, record keeping, discrimination and shipping provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

The order, approved by Federal District Judge Mac Swinford, was based upon an investigation made by the Wage Hour Division of the United States Department of Labor. That agency found minimum wage, overtime, record keeping, discrimination and shipping violations affecting many of the employees of these corporations who are engaged in the mining and distributing of bituminous coal.

Chambers, John Cline and Herbert Cline are officers in the enjoined corporations.

Commissioner Marcum Announces Assessment Of Vehicles Set March 1

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 8 (Spl.) — State Revenue Commissioner James V. Marcum has announced that the Department of Revenue will recommend to the 1962 General Assembly emergency legislation providing for the assessment of motor vehicle property taxes on January 1 of each taxable year instead of March 1. The assessment date for other personal property is now January 1.

The 1960 General Assembly passed legislation which required the separate assessment and collection of motor vehicle property taxes. The 1960 legislation also contained a provision, recently held invalid by the Court of Appeals, which required the taxpayer to prove that such taxes were paid before licensing his motor vehicle with the county clerk each year.

Marcum said that if the 1962 General Assembly enacts the proposed legislation, the statutes would conform with the law in existence prior to the changes made in 1960.

Changing the assessment date to January 1 for motor vehicles will eliminate the necessity of the county clerks preparing and the county sheriffs collecting over a million separate motor vehicle tax bills, Marcum said. This change, he stated, would save the county and state governments approximately $250,000 per year.

Reclassification Sought For Hindman by Martin; Asks Anti-Communist Law

Senator Burnis T. Martin, of Prestonsburg, has introduced a bill in the General Assembly to reclassify Hindman, Krotz county seat, from a city of the sixth class to the fifth class.

He has explained that both local and federal funds are required for use in the construction of a water and sewerage system at Hindman but that the town is not eligible for federal aid as long as it remains a city of the sixth class.

Senator Martin also has co-sponsored a bill which would deprive persons adjudged to be Communists of any rights, privileges, or immunities of citizenship or residence in Kentucky, and would require the Attorney General to institute proceedings against such persons believed to be Communists.

Jenkins Public Library Wins Award for Service; Presentation Set April 8

The Jenkins public library, cultural center of a small Letcher county coal-mining town of 3,000 population, has won the 1962 Dorothy Canfield Fisher Library Award as the outstanding small library in the nation.

The award, which consists of a $5,000 grant for the purchase of books, will be presented at Jenkins on April 8, the first Sunday of National Library Week. Author, critic and lecturer John Mason Brown, a native Kentuckian, will be the guest speaker.

In selecting the Jenkins library as the principal award winner from the more than 50 libraries which applied, the award committee cited the great efforts of the librarian, Mrs. William Ray Mullins, and her staff "to serve the total population of the community." The enthusiastic support of the community and the efforts of the library board were also contributing factors, the committee said.

Sponsored by the Book-of-the-Month Club, the award was established in 1959 in recognition of the critical need of funds for the purchase of books by small libraries throughout the country. The late novelist Dorothy Canfield Fisher, for whom the award was named, was a long-time member of the Club's editorial board and an avid supporter of small libraries.

To be considered for the award, a library must serve a population of fewer than 25,000, have active community support and participation, serve all people in the community free of charge and be open to the public five days a week, including some evening hours.

In addition to the principal award of $5,000, nine supplementary awards of $1,000 each are made in nine other communities throughout the country.

THE CLIFF COAL COMPANY IN 1905

One of the first Floyd county coal operations following the entrance of the railroad into the county was the Cliff Coal Company, founded by Ohio capitalists. It had its general offices in Portsmouth, Ohio, and its mine offices at West Prestonsburg. P. F. Vincent, of Portsmouth, was president of the firm.

Shown here in this 1905 photograph are the mine tipples, power house and board-house.

The First National Bank presents these pictures of our past in recognition of our historic heritage and salutes the pioneer industrial leaders who contributed to the development of our region.
