"YET," HE ASKS

Carl Horn sank me last week with the question, "Have you caught a fish yet?"

IS IT LITERATURE?

It's passing strange that this nation of ours went almost 200 years before its Supreme Court got around to deciding the Bible and the Lord's Prayer must quit the public school-rooms.

Some of the world's most outspoken unbelievers have proclaimed the Bible to be literature in its sublimest form.

FDR, JR. LEADS TALKS AT STATE PARK TODAY

TASK FORCE GROUP TALKS ILLS OF AREA

Roosevelt Tells Combs Meeting No Mere Study; To Visit Other States

A U. S. "task force" of 24 persons headed by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., undersecretary of commerce and chairman of President Kennedy's newly created Appalachian Regional Commission, arrived Wednesday night at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, to confer today (Thursday) with Governor Bert T. Combs and other state officials on programs which would be helpful to the area.

They were joined at the lodge by as many state officials and department heads, Wednesday night and this morning.

In the party from Washington are, besides Mr. Roosevelt, his assistant, Gordon Record, assistant to the ARA administrator, Richard Kraft, of ARA, and top representatives from each department of federal government involved with problems of the area.

John Whisman, special assistant to Governor Combs, arranged the meeting and will accompany Roosevelt as he visits seven other Appalachian states.

Whisman said, although no specific recommendations will be made immediately.

Roosevelt and other federal and state officials will discuss regional problems with leaders of the area at this afternoon's conference.

In a recent letter to Governor Combs, Roosevelt stated, "There is no question in my mind as to why the President established our Commission. He does not want from us another detailed and exhaustive study of the reasons why Appalachia lags in the dust of the national economic movement. He

Jones Resumes Duties As Floyd County Agent; Attends Michigan State

County Agent Robert Jones resumed his duties this week upon his return here from East Lansing, Michigan, where he recently received his Master of Science degree from Michigan State University.

Mr. Jones did post-graduate work at Michigan State under a scholarship from the University of Kentucky. His family has been at East Lansing with him.

Shortly before the date set for their departure from East Lansing, Mrs. Jones was notified of the sudden death in Harrison county of her father, Willard Shadd, 57.

AREA HOSPITAL HELP ASKED BY GOV. COMBS

Hearings began Tuesday before a joint General Assembly committee at Frankfort on the proposal for the state to assume a $700,000 share of operation of the regional United Mine Workers hospitals being purchased by the Presbyterian church and slated to be operated by the Appalachian Hospital Authority.

Governor Combs called the special session of the legislature to meet Monday to provide a "stop-gap" measure to assist in the operation of the five hospitals at McDowell, Harlan, Whitesburg, Hazard and Middlesboro.

Combs, in his speech to the lawmakers, reviewed the history of the medical institutions, said that they had offered modern medical facilities in an area traditionally short of such services.

Even with these hospitals, the Governor said, only about 60 percent of the medical needs of the area could be met. None of the communities in which the hospitals are located are able to assume the financial burden, he added.

"Without them the situation would be desperate," Combs continued, "for since the coming of the miners hospitals many of the small medical facilities that formerly helped the region have closed."

The bill urged by the Governor authorizes fiscal courts and

JAIL WOMAN IN SHOOTING

Shotgun Pellets Strike Three In Auto At Tram; Son Says Mother Guilty

Mrs. Victoria Collins, mother of four, was jailed here Tuesday night by Sheriff Henry C. Hale on a charge of shooting with intent to kill after an auto in the roadway outside her home at Tram had been fired into and three men had been slightly wounded by shotgun pellets.

Hit by scattered shot were James Adams, Phillip and Tom Hall.

Wednesday morning, three young men, two of whom were Thomas Stewart and Lowell Darnon, said they witnessed the shooting. They said Mrs. Collins' 14-year-old son fired the shot. The boy said his mother did the shooting.

Examination of the boy's shoulder by Sheriff Hale showed that his shoulder was not bruised by the recoil of the 12-gauge shotgun.

Witnesses said the shot was fired into the rear window of the auto after it had turned in the roadway at the woman's home and as it was leaving. The boy said the party in the car had been ordered to leave when they picked up clubs in the road and threatened Mrs. Collins. He said they left but returned soon afterward, and that his mother then fired one shot.

Others jailed within the week and charges on which they were booked: Bob Byrd, charged with parole violation, jailed by Deputy Sheriff Harold Johnson; J. T. Reffitt, reckless driving, arrested by Sheriff Hale; Otis Seseo and David Blackburn, reckless driving, booked by Sheriff Hale and Deputy Sheriff Lonnie Herald; Carmel Osborne, accused of destroying property; Don Hoover, possessing moonshine, arrested by Deputy Sheriff Marion Martin; James Prater, resisting arrest, jailed by Constable Kenneth Roberts.

Scout Council Slates Two Important Meetings

The executive board of Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America, will hold its mid-year business meeting in the office of Bethlehem mines at Jenkins, at 7:00 p.m., June 24. David A. Zeiger, of Jenkins, president of the Council, is urging all board members to be present.

B. F. Reed, of Drift, chairman of the Council's finance committee, has announced a meeting of Council representatives for the purpose of planning the Council's budget for 1964, which is also to be held in the office of Bethlehem Mines at 4 p.m., June 24, preceding the executive board meeting.

SEEK NAME OF ASSAILANT

Wounded Man Claims He Doesn't Know Who Fired Shots Into Auto

While authorities were trying to learn the identity of the person who shot him in the chest Monday night with a .22-caliber rifle bullet, Robert Nichols, 21, of the vicinity of Allen, was in jail here after he had insisted he didn't know who fired the shot.

Young Nichols was taken to Our Lady of the Way hospital at Martin, shortly after he was wounded, but he left the hospital, then was jailed at Martin, Tuesday, he was brought here by Sheriff Henry Hale, questioned closely to no avail, then remained to the county jail.

The bullet struck Nichols in the right side of his chest and ranged around his body, inflicting only a flesh wound. He says he was alone, driving his father's car along the old hillside road between Allen and Banner, when he was shot.

Sheriff Hale said at least three shots were fired, one bullet penetrating the door of the car, another shattering the windshield and the third wounding Nichols and passing through the seat of the auto.

A .22-caliber, single-shot rifle, which Sheriff Hale said had been recently fired, was found in the rear seat of the car. None of the bullets were found in the car. Empty .22-caliber cartridge cases were recovered at the scene of the shooting.

The Sheriff and other officials also failed to learn from Nichols any reason for the shooting.

RED CROSS TO CLOSE OFFICE FLOYD CHAPTER OFFICIAL SAYS IF FUND QUOTA NOT REACHED

If Floyd county doesn't care enough for the services of the American Red Cross through its Floyd County Chapter to subscribe the county's quota of $6,000—then the Chapter will close its office doors and offer that service no longer.

That, in substance, was the decision reached here this week. Only half of the quota set for the county in the current fund-raising drive has been met. June 30 will mark the end of the drive. Before that date, a radio subscription drive will be staged. Other appeals are being made to residents to mail their contributions to Floyd Chapter, American Red Cross, here. Burl Spurlock, president of The First National Bank, has accepted responsibility for the crucial work of raising the necessary $6,000.

CALHOUN DIES OF INJURIES

Auto Mishap Near Here Claims West Prestonsburg Construction Employee

Raymond Calhoun, 43-year-old West Prestonsburg construction worker, was fatally injured at 3:30 p.m. Friday when his auto struck a guard rail on the Prestonsburg-Auxier road at Spradlin Branch. He died about two hours later at the Prestonsburg General hospital of a crushed pelvis and internal injuries.

Kermit Joseph, of Prestonsburg, a passenger in the car driven by Calhoun, escaped with minor hurts.

State Trooper Don Goble said Calhoun was driving toward Prestonsburg when his car crossed the highway and rammed into the railing at his left side of the road. Cause of the wreck was not defined.

The victim was employed by the Winston Ford Construction Company here, and was an Army veteran of World War I. He was a son of Elzie and Donnie Wallen Calhoun, of Middle Creek. Surviving, besides his parents, are three children, Viola, Lola and Larry Dean; two brothers, Graham and Arlan Calhoun, both of West Prestonsburg, and four sisters, Mrs. Blanche Younce, of East Point, Mrs. Opal Younce, Mrs. Lomie Hatfield and Mrs. eAster Belle Stone, all of West Prestonsburg.

Funeral rites were conducted Monday at 10:30 a.m. from the United Baptist Church on Bull Creek, the Revs. Wallace Calhoun and Alex Stephens officiating. Burial in the Lee Fitzpatrick cemetery on the Middle Creek road was directed by the Carter & Callihan Funeral Home.

MACHINERY PRICES GIVEN

To Floyd Fiscal Court; Inspection of Equipment Scheduled At Louisville

The Floyd fiscal court Monday received a variety of offers of road machinery on which prices had been asked, but will not decide on the best offer till members of the court inspect the machinery at Louisville, Friday.

The Wayne Supply Company priced a new Caterpillar 955 tractor-cavator (a type of loader) at $20,686 and a new Caterpillar motor grader at $22,906, and offered $7,800 trade-in allowance on the county's old loader.

Brandis Machinery & Supply Corporation asked $21,613 for a new 175 International loader and $20,640 for a Gallon model 118 grader. If only the loader is purchased by the county, Brandis would allow $9,500 on the county's old loader; if both pieces of machinery are bought, the company will allow $11,500 trade-in.

Kentucky Machinery Co., Inc., priced two Allis-Chalmers tractor loaders—one at $19,800 and a larger (See Story No. 6, Page 6)

Sheriff Says Order Fixing Closing Hours Needs Clarification

Sheriff Henry C. Hale said Wednesday that he will ask County Judge Henry Stumbo to revoke a county court order adopted five years ago which provided that pinball or music machines may be played after 12 noon on Sundays in places of entertainment "so long as they do not create a public nuisance or disturb the public."

"This part of the closing-hour order just makes the enforcement of the order as a whole more difficult, if not nearly impossible," Hale said.

Except for that provision, which was added August 8, 1958, to the original court order, the closing-hour regulations are good, the Sheriff said. The original order provided that Grade A restaurants may remain open at all times but that all other restaurants and places of entertainment shall close at midnight (See Story No. 7, Page 6)

MUSIC DEATH UNRESOLVED BY OFFICERS

Report of Pathologist At Ashland Is Awaited; Say Rumors Unfounded

The body of 18-year-old Hillard Gene Music, missing since Sunday, June 9, was removed last Sunday morning from Dewey Lake, approximately 250 yards from Terry's Boat Dock where he was last seen alive.

But recovery of the body did not clear the circumstances surrounding his death. The body, recovered by members of the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad, was immediately taken to the Kilgore-Collier Funeral Home, Catlettsburg, where an autopsy was performed by Dr. Stewart, Ashland pathologist.

Until the pathologist's report is made authorities will be without conclusive evidence as to the manner of the youth's death. Officials said rumors heard locally are without foundation, that condition of the body prevented their determining any of the circumstances of his death by physical examination.

The autopsy report is not expected until later in the week.

The body floated to the surface of the lake at 10:30 a.m. Sunday while Emergency & Rescue Squad divers were searching the lake bottom, a short distance from where recovery was made. The squad had dragged the lake two days without result.

Music had been missing since about 5 p.m., June 9, when he leaped from a car driven by Fred McCoy, 19, near Hager Gap. He was last seen after he had waded across the shallow waters in the lake inlet between Terry's dock and the shore, and had started walking down-lake, along the shore.

McCoy and Phillip Dean Ray, 22, of Prestonsburg, were recognized for their grand jury appearance in September after they and Miss Dora Skeens, 17, of West Prestonsburg, had been quizzed at a hearing conducted here last Tuesday by County Judge Henry Stumbo.

ALL-OUT WAR WAGED ON TB

In Martin County Area; Floyd Health Department Gets $18,000 Laboratory

If the all-out war begun this month on tuberculosis in Martin county is waged successfully, there is a strong possibility that the next 1.5 billion dollars worth of free medical services to residents of that county.

This, Dr. Russell L. Hall, who doubles as head of the Floyd and Martin County Health Departments and who is taking a leading part in the Martin county effort to kill off the disease, said Tuesday in a discussion of the pilot project there.

He said that as a result of the work undertaken in Martin county an $18,000 laboratory has been established in the Floyd County Health Department here.

The Martin county demonstration project is the first of its kind to be initiated in the United States, and it will run without interruption from two to five years. Dr. Hall estimates it will provide more than a million dollars worth of free medical services to residents of that county.

Earl Compton, health educator for Floyd and Martin counties, and Roy Penix, area supervisor for the Division of Health Education, Kentucky State Health Department, reported that 92 per cent of all the student bodies in Martin county schools has been skin tested in the initial phase of the project.

They pointed out that, of those tested, 12 per cent were found to have positive cases of TB—compared to the national average of five per cent. Any figure over five per cent is considered high for an area.

The aim eventually is to have all school children, their parents and other residents of Martin county skin tested and blood samples taken. During the summer months, three physicians from the University of Kentucky Medical School will be stationed in the county along with other personnel from the university.

This program is under the direction of the U. K. Medical School in cooperation with the state and national Tuberculosis Association and the State Department of Health, and sponsored by the Martin County Department of Health.

TEACHERS ARE PLACED IN FLOYD-CO. SCHOOLS

For the first time in 20 years or more, Floyd county has a surplus of certified teachers.

This became evident Saturday when the Floyd County Board of Education employed teachers, recommended by Superintendent Charles F. Clark from applications on file.

"At this time," Superintendent Clark said Monday, "it appears that there will not be room for a single emergency teacher in the county."

More than 40 certified applicants were not placed for the simple reason that there was no room for them, he said. The only shortages are in the music and library departments. Two music instructors and two librarians are needed. The school system has an over-supply of home economics and English instructors, it was said.

Teacher tenure was observed in all instances. No changes were made in top school positions, nor was any coaching change effected.

In his recommendation of teachers to the board Clark pointed out that the recommendation for employment was conditioned upon their securing certificates to teach in the particular position for which they were recommended and upon their compliance with all regulations of the State Department of Education. The right to transfer any and all personnel employed from one position to another, for the proper operation of the schools, was reserved. Names of the several schools and teachers employed for them follow:

COURT FIGHT CONTINUES

Two-City Airport Board, Block House Landowners Litigation Heard by Winn

The Prestonsburg-Pointsville Airport Board was given a right of entry on land in controversy at Block House Bottom Wednesday. The hearing was held at Pointsville by Special Judge John J. Winn, of Mt. Sterling.

The "Battle of Block House Bottom" entered one of its many legal phases Wednesday when Special Judge John J. Winn, of Montgomery county heard landowners at Pointsville on appeal from the Johnson County Court. Final adjudication, subject to appeal, of legal angles incident to condemnation was envisioned.

Efforts of the landowners at Block House Bottom to successfully resist condemnation of their properties by the Prestonsburg-Pointsville Airport Board began two years ago when the two-city group sought condemnation for an airport site.

Monday of last week, attorneys for the airport board, acting under a court order issued by Johnson county Judge Joe Radcliffe, entered on the land with the intention of opening the disputed tracts up for road construction. A wrangle resulted involving State Police, the Johnson county sheriff and deputies, a deputy U. S. Marshal, landowners and attorneys.

The landowners became incensed at W. A. Johnson, Pointsville attorney, and they indulged in argument. All of the law enforcement officers refused to enter upon the land with the legal processes at hand. Wednesday of last week, Attorney B. E. Mullins of the airport board and Department of Highway (See Story No. 5, Page 6)

NORMAN ALLEN Editor

Subscription Rates Per Year: In Floyd County, $3.50 • Elsewhere in Kentucky, $4.00 Outside Kentucky, $5.00

Entered as second class matter June 18, 1927, at the postoffice at Prestonsburg, Kentucky, under the act of March 3, 1879.

Questions Which Demand Answers

Have the bootlegging interests organized in Floyd county?

Do some clubs and private businesses sell intoxicants by the drink, with little or no attempt to hide their contempt for the law?

Are some sources of supply favored above others?

Are whiskey and beer kept in one or more spots in Prestonsburg, in plain view of passersby, in plain view of the police if they pass by?

Do law enforcement officers find it easier to climb a 2,000-foot mountain to cut a still than to walk or drive a hundred yards over surfaced highways to raid illegal purveyors of "red likker"?

Are the courts too timid, or too weak, in their treatment of bootleggers, once they are arrested and brought to trial?

Mind you, we are asking questions. We know some of the answers. Some we do not know. All these questions are based on what is heard on street-corners, in homes or stores—wherever people gather and discuss such matters.

The answers to each of these questions is, "Yes," unless many people are telling many malicious, deliberate lies.

It would be to Floyd county's benefit and honor to learn the truth about these several matters, then to get down to doing the things honor demands of citizens and officials alike.

How To The Line

The basic legal concept of separation of church and state has lent itself with telling effect to the cause of atheism, which would have no church, and to some other forces which have little or no interest in the state.

Yet the Supreme Court decision banning the Bible and the Lord's Prayer from the schools is legally correct.

Since the highest court in the land is hewing to the line in the matter, wonder if it would agree that nuns in the garb of their church should be banned as teachers in the schoolrooms of Kentucky and other states?

A SHADOW OVER CHILDREN

EDITOR'S NOTE: We respectfully suggest that the following story be carefully read by expectant mothers and mothers of infants. Test material will soon be sent to thousands of Kentucky mothers along with their new baby's birth notification. This story tells how a lifetime of tragedy can be averted through a simple test.

A young mother is deeply worried about her two sick babies. Doctors are not able to help and their condition is getting worse.

She spends long hours at their sides, hoping that her devoted, motherly care will make them well.

Why are they so ill? Why cannot someone tell her what is wrong?

Could this have something to do with their sickness?

Her efforts to get help for her children and to learn the cause of this odor leads her from doctor to doctor over a period of years.

Finally, she interests a physician and biochemist, Dr. Ashborn Folling.

The blood of these babies had an excess of a substance known as amino acid.

This scene was in Norway. The time was the early 1930's. And this mother's persistence and Doctor Folling's seemingly endless research led to the solution of what up to then appeared a hopeless medical mystery.

Now hundreds of infants, once doomed to mental deterioration, are being saved.

WHAT'S IT ALL ABOUT?

There are 22 amino acids in the body. One of them has been named phenylalanine. When this particular amino acid "gets out of balance" and is not used up properly by the body, it attacks the baby's brain development. This disease is known as phenylketonuria, usually called PKU.

If it is not discovered and treated soon after a child's birth, PKU causes severe mental retardation. The retardation often is accompanied by hyperactive, irritable and destructive personalities. And in some 25 percent of the cases, epileptic seizures occur.

Why does phenylalanine acid build up in babies? Food can be digested and absorbed properly only when acted upon by enzymes. Hundreds of enzymes are manufactured in the body. One is necessary to change the phenylalanine in food to a form the body can use. The PKU baby lacks the one necessary enzyme.

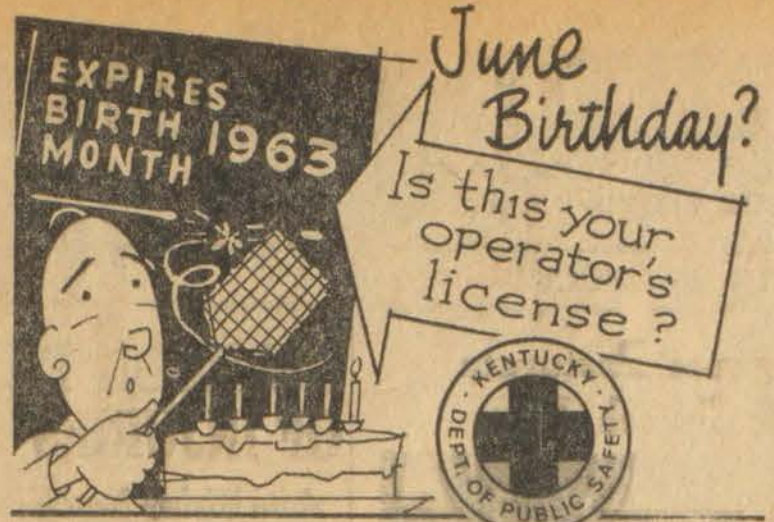

THE TREATMENT OF PKU

The ideal treatment would be to supply the missing enzyme. But no one has been able to create it in a laboratory. The alternative is to remove the extra phenylalanine from the infant's diet through the use of specially produced foods. The problem of PKU can be corrected using this treatment if it is discovered before the child is six months old.

The national average for PKU diseased children is about one in 20,000. But Kentucky's average is running about one in every 5,500 births. Recently, through the efforts of the State Health Department and funds from the WHAS Crusade for Children, 25,000 infants were tested for PKU. Four of the tests were positive. But these children can now have normal, healthy lives instead of a life of permanent mental retardation. A simple urine test and special diet make possible this new expectancy for normal life.

Because the disease is rare, it is all the more dangerous. It appears so infrequently that some doctors tend to forget to administer the test or not bother with it. It receives little attention from newspapers, magazines, radio and television stations. So the general public is, for the most part, unaware of its very existence. In the test campaign mentioned earlier, less than one in three mothers in Louisville and Jefferson county bothered to take advantage of the free testing offered by the Louisville Children's hospital.

Though the chances are razor thin of a child having PKU, it's a chance no mother can afford to take, or even has a right to take with her newborn.

An indefinite delay in construction of the county high school building here was faced by the Floyd County Board of Education Wednesday as bids on the $445,000 bond issue offered by the fiscal court were unacceptable to the State Department of Education. With the filing deadline only hours away, a total of 145 Floyd countians—119 Democrats and 26 Republicans—had registered as candidates at the August primary. County taxes collected by Sheriff A. B. Meade for the year 1952, totalled $815,047.45. Negotiating with gas companies having holdings in the Dewey reservoir area for damage releases as a step toward addition of five feet of water to Dewey Lake will begin next week. E. R. 100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky By JOE JORDAN (Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week Col. Peter Everett's Confederate cavalry, which had been giving Union Army troops, Federal Home Guard militia and some prominent Union sympathizers among Northern Kentucky civilians a hard time, was defeated at Triplett's Creek Bridge near Morehead, in Rowan county. Lt. Col. R. R. Maltby, with two battalions of the Tenth Kentucky (Union) Cavalry, had overtaken Everett and his men and, after a brisk skirmish, was driving them back. During the engagement, Col. DeCoursey's Eighth Michigan (Union) Cavalry regiment, 1,000 strong, came up and joined in the fight—but on the wrong side. The Michigan troopers, who were on the other side of the creek, opened up with Spencer rifles and artillery and poured a heavy fire across the stream at the Kentucky Union soldiers. It was largely ineffective, because the Michigan men were deceived by the terrain and the bullets and shells were passing over the heads of the Kentucky Unionists, but at that it stopped their drive against the Confederates. In the confusion, Everett's men were mistakenly identified as Federal Home Guards and were permitted to ride away, having lost only 38 men, of whom one had been killed, three wounded and the others captured.

Col. Everett and his Confederates had been overtaken when withdrawing into the hills after capturing Maysville two days earlier. At the Mason county seat the Rebels had spiked a six-pounder cannon and destroyed all the Home Guards' small arms. They had captured Col. Peter Everett and a number of horses and had relieved Union sympathizing merchants of several thousand dollars' worth of merchandise. They searched in vain for Col. W. H. Wadsworth and other prominent citizens whom they intended to carry off as hostages for Confederate soldiers who were being held by the Union Army as spies. On the day before the Triplett's Creek engagement, Everett's men had ambushed 30 men of the 14th Kentucky (Union) Cavalry regiment, led by Major R. T. Williams, two miles from Olympian Springs in Bath county. Of the 30 Union men killed and five were reported who rode into the ambush, 11 were wounded and missing.

Everett's men had defeated Home Guards who attacked them near Plummer's Mills in Fleming county. Col. Everett had only about 300 men in his command at that time. During the week under review, Capt. Thomas Hines, of Morgan's Ninth Kentucky (Confederate) Cavalry regiment with a small body of troopers—Duke says 30 or 40; Collier says 65—made an unauthorized but not exactly forbidden invasion of the North. He had orders to scout "north of the Cumberland." He kept riding farther and farther north until he reached the Ohio River. He reasoned that Indiana certainly was "north of the Cumberland," so he crossed over and penetrated the Hoosier state to the vicinity of Seymour. When he was recrossing the Ohio, he was attacked vigorously by two companies of Home Guards. Hines escaped, but some of his men were captured.

Historical Notes

By Henry P. Scaiff

ANDREW J. HATCHER The following biographies were copied from Kniffen, Perrin and Battle's History of Kentucky, published in 1887.

Andrew J. Hatcher is a native of Floyd county, Kentucky, and was born December 22, 1831. His parents were James G. and Christina Perry (Peery) Hatcher, natives of Cabell county, West Virginia, and Tazewell county, Virginia. "John Hatcher, grandfather of Andrew J., located at the mouth of Big Mud Creek, twelve miles above Prestonsburg, Kentucky, about 1820. James G. Hatcher was a farmer and merchant at the mouth of Mud Creek. He was born in 1804 and died in 1851. His widow died November 28, 1836, at the age of seventy-six years, the mother of nine children, eight of whom are living.

"In 1854 Andrew J. Hatcher married Miss Mary Layne, daughter of John Layne, of Floyd county. Of the children born to this union the following are living: John, in mercantile trade with John A. Dillas (Dills); James, partner with R. M. Ferrell, and also the owner of a store at the mouth of Mud Creek, and an interest in another at the mouth of Elkhorn Creek; Richard, wharfmaster at Pikeville; Lizzie, married to James Trimble of Catlettsburg."

"Mr. Hatcher was reared to farming, received a good education at the common schools and began his business life by selling goods at the mouth of Beaver Creek in Floyd county. In 1868 he removed to Pike county, sold goods until 1882; in the meantime, however, when he first located in Pike county, he established the Hatcher Hotel, which he still conducts to the satisfaction of all comers. In addition to his hotel business he owns and manages 100 acres of farm land, has a half interest in 4,000 acres, and owns a farm of 350 acres at the mouth of Mud Creek in Floyd county. He is a Free mason and a Democrat, and one of the most popular hotel-keepers in the Sandy Valley."

JOHN T. HAZELRIGG "John T. Hazelrigg was born in Sharrpsburgh, Bath county, Kentucky, July 7, 1831, and was educated in the common schools of the county. He is a lineal descendant of Sir Arthur Hazelrigg, who was governor of Tynemouth Castle on the Tyne, under the Protectorate; came to this country after the death of Cromwell and settled in Pennsylvania. John T. Hazelrigg read law in the office of John B. Houston, a distinguished Kentucky politician and jurist, and was admitted to the bar in 1857. He located at West Liberty, Morgan county, Kentucky, and at once took front rank in his profession. He has held the office of county and circuit court clerk, as well as county attorney of Morgan county. He is a Democrat in politics and takes an active part in all political affairs.

"In 1877, in connection with his son, C. S. Hazelrigg, he founded the Lacking Valley Scourcher, a red-hot Democratic newspaper and a popular journal in Eastern Kentucky. In 1887, Mr. Hazelrigg was a candidate for lieutenant-governor of Kentucky, subject to the action of the Democratic party, and was defeated by Hon. J. W. Bryan, at Louisville, by a small majority; in his contest, Mr. Hazelrigg carried every county in Eastern Kentucky."

JAMES H. HEREFORD, JR. "James H. Hereford, Jr., was born in Pike county, Kentucky, May 22, 1841, and is a son of James H. and Meriba Ratliff Hereford, natives of Virginia and Pike county, Kentucky, respectively. His paternal grandfather, John Hereford, was adjutant of the Loudon county (Va.) Militia and served through the whole of the Revolutionary War. The maternal grandfather of our subject was William Ratliff, a native of Virginia, but on coming to Kentucky became high sheriff of Pike county and died worth considerable property. He married Betty Ford, of German descent. His paternal grandmother was Betty Patterson, a native of Ireland, and a cousin of Mrs. Patterson Bonaparte, of Baltimore. The name Hereford is of English origin, while the Ratliff's are of Scotch-Irish descent.

"James H. Hereford, the father of our subject, was born in 1796 in Loudon county, Virginia, was a physician, served as surgeon of the Thirty-Ninth Kentucky Volunteer Infantry, Union forces. He settled in Prestonsburg in 1825, was an ardent Whig and admirer of Clay and Prentice and for many years was a correspondent of the Louisville Journal. His death took place in February, 1865. Our subject, James H. Hereford, received his early education at Covington and at the age of fifteen graduated from the high school. In 1861, at the first call for troops, he joined the Fifth Kentucky Volunteers, commanded by Col. J. S. Williams, was captured November 8, the same year, by Gen. Nelson's men at Ivy Mountain, Floyd county, Kentucky, was paroled but never exchanged.

"He read law with O'Hara & Moore at Covington, was admitted to the bar in 1862 but did not begin to practice until 1870, when he located at Prestonsburg, where he has since resided, engaged in his profession and at farming. In June, 1868, he married Miss Mary E. May, daughter of Samuel May, a minister and one of the leading farmers of Floyd county. To this union have been born five children, viz: James H., Meriba J., Samuel May, Thomas Marshall and George P. (No. 242 in a Series)

Typical Area Church In Log Cabin Development Days

The first churches of Eastern Kentucky were built of logs, as were the homes. Most of the churches also served as schools. Many of these early structures served area congregations until the turn of the century when they were replaced by frame construction.

Shown here is a church built at the end of the Civil War near Oil Springs, Johnson county, Kentucky. For decades it was a center for religious and community events.

The First National Bank salutes the dedicated men and women who founded our early churches and contributed so heavily to the religious development of the region.

PERKINS ASKS CONTROL JOBS

At hearings Wednesday before the Public Works Appropriation subcommittee, Carl D. Perkins (D-Ky.) made a plea for the appropriations of sizeable sums for the construction and planning of flood control and related water resource projects for Eastern Kentucky.

Perkins requested a total of $18,650,000 in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1963, to hasten construction and complete the planning of reservoirs throughout the district. Included in Perkins' plea was the Flahtrap Reservoir, the John W. Flanagan Reservoir, North Fork of Pound Reservoir in the Upper Big Sandy, the Cave Run Reservoir on the Upper Licking River, the Grayson Reservoir on the Little Sandy, the Booneville Reservoir, Carr Fork Reservoir and Red River Reservoir in the Upper Kentucky River basin.

Perkins also urged the planning of additional flood control measures for the Big Sandy, Kentucky River and Tributaries, Kinniconic Creek, the Upper Licking River, the Little Sandy and Tygart's Creek.

Perkins emphasized that appropriations made now to construct reservoirs would return a substantial investment in terms of property losses and damages which would be averted by the flood control program.

The Congressman told The Times Wednesday, he is certain a local flood protection project will be approved for the town of Martin and that dredging and other stream improvement work will be done on Beaver Creek.

No charge was filed against either of Music's three companions.

Except for minor discrepancies, their versions of Music's disappearance coincided. It was agreed they had bought some whiskey here and beer on the Auxier road, that a disagreement arose while they were driving in the vicinity of Hager Gap and that Music leaped from the car while it was yet moving and ran down the rock-studded bank toward the arm of the lake in which the boat dock is located.

Ray said he got out of the car and begged Music to return so that they could all go home. He said he did not follow Music beyond a path where he could see him. Later, they went to Auxier, bought some gasoline and made a search of the highways in the vicinity.

After they had returned home Ray and Oliver Music, father of the victim, went to the Hager Gap area by taxicab and toured lake roads in a vain search for the youth.

The victim is survived by his parents, Oliver and Oeda Lafferty Music, of Water Gap, and the following brothers and sisters: Floyd Oliver, Malcolm Samuel, William Albert, Homer Lindsay, James Fred, Margie Dale and Barbara Ellen Music.

The body was returned to the Carter & Callihan Funeral Home here, Sunday night, and funeral rites were conducted from the chapel of the funeral home Monday afternoon by the Revs. Moses Kitchen, Henry Crider, Phil Fraley and Ted Nelson. Burial was made in the Harris cemetery on Brandy Keg.

The dispute involved the property of Polk Auxier, C. H. Burke, John B. Auxier and the undivided farm of the late Milt Auxier, owned by his widow, Anna Auxier, Eugene Auxier, Sam Auxier, Mrs. Douglas Galbraith and Mrs. Fanny Hall.

MODERN AIRPORT NETWORK SCHEDULED IN KENTUCKY

Frankfort, Ky., May 6 (Spl.)—Kentucky is rushing toward completion of a modern network of airports offering today's mobile, expanding industrial community an added incentive to locate or expand in the Blue Grass state.

In the past three years, more than $6.8 million in state, federal and local funds has gone into the construction of 17 new airports and expansion of 14 more in Kentucky.

Of the total cost, 20 per cent—or $1,250,000—was provided by the state. Local communities contributed $2,945,000 in money and donated services and equipment for their own projects. The remaining $3,266,000 was provided by the federal government.

A total of 53 airports now serve Kentucky communities. Of this number, seven offer scheduled airline service, 32 are paved, and 24 provide lights for night operation.

In commenting on Kentucky's airport boom of the past three years, Aeronautics Commissioner Philip L. Swift said, "Airports today mean to a progressive community what rivers did in the early 1800's or the railroad in the 1850's. You just can't expect to interest new business without modern transportation facilities."

"Not only will these airports facilitate industrial development in their own areas," Swift said, "but the tourist potential of Kentucky's vacationland is bound to grow with the possibility of air travel available."

Some of the vacation spots in Kentucky served by airports are Kentucky Lake, Kentucky Dam Village, General Butler, Lake Cumberland and Rough River State Parks, and Cumberland Gap National Park.

Other Kentucky tourist areas served by airports are Lexington, Louisville, Dae Hollow Reservoir, the State Capitol at Frankfort, and the scenic mountain area around Harlan.

In the past three years, new airports have been built at Campbellsville, General Butler State Park, Cynthiana, Elizabethtown, Elkton, Fulton, Glasgow, Greenville-Central City, Harlan, Hopkinsville, Murray, Olive Hill, Princeton, Rough River State Park, Whitesburg, Cumberland Falls State Park, and Morehead.

Among those which have been improved or modernized since 1960 are Bowling Green, Greater Cincinnati (Covington), Danville, Frankfort, Harrodsburg, Hazard, Henderson, Kentucky Dam Village State Park, Kentucky Lake State Park, Lexington, Louisville, Madisonville, Pikeville and Stanton.

New airports which have been improved or expanded since their completion are Campbellsville, Cynthiana, Glasgow, Greenville-Central City, Hopkinsville and Murray.

Besides building new airports and improving existing ones, the State Department of Aeronautics has spearheaded a successful campaign to have every municipal airport in Kentucky zone to conform with Federal Aviation Agency requirements.

Swift explained that zoning of an airport involves the designation of an area above and adjacent to the runway as protected air space and banning erection of structures above a certain height which would penetrate into the air space.

According to Dr. Hall, a school child who has a positive reaction in all probability has been infected either in the school, or, much more likely, at home. Although the test may be positive, he added, it does not necessarily mean that the child has tuberculosis but indicates further tests are necessary.

Those who are found to be positive will be visited at home and a team of health workers and a complete series of tests, including new tests, will be conducted to determine if TB is present.

"Tuberculosis is treatable, it's preventable, and eradicable, but it requires complete cooperation from all," Dr. Hall emphasized. "Permitting the medical team to visit your home will make it easier for your family to live a richer and fuller life and help in the eradication of tuberculosis in Martin county."

Dr. Kurt W. Deuschle, chairman of the steering committee which laid plans for the project, has previously stated that it is likely the case finding, treatment, prevention and surveillance methods which it is hoped to establish in Martin county, can be applied to other rural population groups in Kentucky and similar areas of the Appalachian region.

Those involved in the project are stressing the home treatment feature. All persons found with the active disease will receive prophylactic treatment managed by a clinical team based at the Ashland Tuberculosis hospital. Active cases requiring hospitalization will be admitted to the hospital, it was stated. BOG vaccination will be given only to those individuals where home prophylactic drugs are not advisable, Dr. Deuschle said.

He said it is recognized that a certain number of families will be uncooperative, therefore, social scientists will be responsible for studying the problem and attempting to make recommendations to the medical team to enable them to obtain maximum cooperation in case finding and treatment.

It was revealed that patients being treated at the six state TB hospitals in Kentucky as of March 7, 1963, totaled 813. Patients with histoplasmosis or other pulmonary fungus diseases are now eligible for treatment in Kentucky's TB hospitals if facilities are not fully utilized in the treatment of TB patients.

During the past year, Dr. Hall pointed out, the Martin County Health Department has had one of 24 "field" outpatient clinics, viewed as one of the most significant recent developments in the fight against TB in Kentucky. Among the various advantages of such a system, he said, is the fact that medicinally indigent outpatients are issued drugs at the clinics instead of having to make a long trip to the tuberculosis hospital.

What's Going On in FISH & WILDLIFE
by MINOR CLARK, Commissioner
Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources

A day may not be far away when all free hunting will be on public hunting grounds—that is, land owned by the state or federal government.

Game can be crowded only so far and then hunting in such areas loses any resemblance of recreation. True, private hunting areas will always be with us and will undoubtedly grow in number, and while they serve a good purpose their stocked birds and other game cannot compare with a day in the field seeking wild quail or rabbits. It's just not the same to knock down a bob white that has been placed in a particular area for that purpose as to hunt up and fire into a covey that has had no other aid than Mother Nature. That's the type hunting that is fast disappearing and, actually, has disappeared in some sections of the nation.

That's why it is so important that Kentucky acquire title to all hunting lands it can right now. There'll be a day, and in the not too distant future, when such lands cannot be purchased or leased due to exorbitant prices. That's why it is so important that the lands sought in the Henderson area for waterfowl hunting grounds be acquired as quickly as possible. Waiting a few years would undoubtedly see that land ruined, for years to come, as a resting and feeding place for waterfowl even though that land was purchased in the future, its worth would be greatly depreciated.

And that's why Kentucky is fortunate in acquiring land around the shores of Lake Cumberland and Dale Hollow and Kentucky Lake from federal agencies which is being placed under game management practices. That's why it is so important that additional land be sought as public hunting grounds, managed by a wildlife agency. At some future date those areas may be the only ones on which the wild quail, grouse or rabbit may be found.

To be sure there can never be take care of hunting by a rapidly expanding population, but this land can soften the blow and delay, perhaps, for a few years the encroachment of civilization on the hunters' domain.

The May primary has produced concrete and ample evidence that there is a powerful political machine now in operation in Floyd county which can easily thwart the free will and exercise of the good people. The primary was carried to such an extent, illegally, as though the people, or at least some of the younger ones, had been brain-washed as Khrushchev does in Russia.

It would and does seem to me the good people are now a small minority and those who are interested in good government hesitate to stand up and take their part, but, instead, stand idly by and permit the crooked deals to go by with little or no thought. And, since many people care little or nothing about honesty or how the elections are conducted and held, and many of the best people when selected as election officers, decline to serve for some reason or other, the others take charge and when the two judges are for the same candidates, and as many people do not know how to vote on these voting machines, or maybe can't read or write, their votes are cast for choices of the two judges, which to a large extent has already been agreed upon before the voting begins.

On Right Beaver Creek there are two small girls, one about five years of age and the other eight, the older one being in school, and the other too young to attend. These girls are associates and playmates, and one day while these two girls were playing together, the older one began a conversation to find out who the little girl was for Governor—of course in an effort to find out how her mother and father were lined up in the race for Governor. The older one said to the little one, "If you are for Chandler, we will cease to be playmates and I will have nothing more to do with you." Evidently the older girl had heard something in school that brought about this condition. If this isn't brain-washing, then what would you call it? Such conditions should never be permitted, and such tactics should be condemned and at least never tolerated in the school-room.

Several months ago, a state employee visited me here in the Clerk's office, who must have been sent by someone higher up, and gave me a message that I should be and was the proper person to make the race for Circuit Judge. However, I advised him, since my wife lacked four years having her retirement service, that I had decided to make the race for Circuit Clerk, and this conversation ended at this point.

About the time I announced for Circuit Clerk, there was another person who was strongly thinking of making the race for this office which I was seeking and who had aligned me as anti-labor and against the union, notwithstanding I had mined coal and been also a small operator at one time. In order to dispel any anti-position of which I had been accused, a certain man approached me late one evening and advised me about this situation, and I got into his car and we went up Middle Creek and down Brush Creek and on to Garrett where a meeting of the pickets was being held, and I assume there were a thousand people there or perhaps more.

While I was there at this meeting I was called upon the floor by one Odel Cavins to state my position about certain temporary injunctions that had been issued and signed by me, which was my duty as Clerk to issue in the absence of the judge, Edward P. Hill, or upon his refusal to issue the same or upon his disqualification to hear, try and determine the case; however, I explained the matter as fully as I could. Thereafter some of the attorneys representing some operators sent out several hundred notices, which were signed by the attorneys, but these pickets were accusing me of issuing them, which I had nothing to do with in any manner. I heard one of them say, that if he was a Clerk he would resign his office before he would comply with the law or issue such an order in which statement I had little or no faith.

CHARLES CLARK
Superintendent 6-6-31

At the Garrett meeting I gave a check, as I recall, to Odel Cavins for $500.00 in an effort to get these pickets off my back, but instead they landed on my back and the small operators as well; so you can readily see I did myself no good and also lost my $500.00, and had two loads on my back instead of one. As anyone would know, this didn't help my cause as a candidate.

Lee Howell seemed to be the ring-leader of the pickets to whom I gave some money in addition to the $500.00 and later I found out that he had been away for a long time, perhaps somewhere in Ohio. I have heard since the May primary he has now left McDowell and is now away. Mr. Howell carried my sticker for a while and was telling me all the mighty schemes he was carrying out in my behalf, but as luck would have it, I caught up with the old boy, early one morning before he left his home on Frasure's Creek. It seemed that another candidate had been to see Lee and Lee had taken my bumper sticker off and placed one of another candidate on and I noticed while I was talking to him about his peculiar activities that he got very fidgety and nervous. Lee seemed to be a strong supporter of Breathitt but I am informed that he appeared in Martin on the primary day and was backing Chandler.

The night I attended this meeting at Garrett, three small operators came to my home in Prestonsburg, around eleven o'clock or perhaps a little later, and these men were Orville Adkins, Alto Lovely and another man by the name of Martin, and they seemed to be very hostile about the $500.00 I had given the pickets, but I told them the truth about the matter. Lovely did most of the talking as usual, and he then and there told me that he would do to me what he had done to Hollie Conley, but I do not know what he had done to Mr. Conley. Anyway, he said, "I fixed him one time."

I am very much like an elephant. I never forget anything that has happened to me during my life-time. I have been blessed with a wonderful memory, which I hope to retain as long as I live or until the end. God giving me knowledge and wisdom, I will continue to let you hear from me and I may get a little critical sometimes but I do not mean to offend anyone but to tell the truth only, which is something many people do not desire to hear. Some soon began to let off a little steam about what I have said or been writing.

I have often wondered if I had the flow of language that Professor A. C. Harlow said, I would turn to writing books and bring to your mind and thought some of the realizations that would stun you from top to bottom and give the people of this county an awakening they never had before. I think the people are entitled to know all the facts and not just a few smothered and covered up ones. There will be more to come. Since I have been writing about the May primary, many people have told me they are now reading the Floyd County Times who have not read it heretofore. People are starving and craving to hear the truth. It costs quite a bit of money to have these articles published in The Times, and a little help will be appreciated but if you do not wish to help the cause of truth along, I will carry the load myself, however expensive it may be.

Until we meet again on the battlefield, I remain your humble and faithful servant, "The Man On the Job," who fell in the Bull Rushes with a bang but is much less of confidence in many people than he had heretofore. Next issue I will turn on and off the light. In darkness, your desire is LIGHT. SO MOTE IT BE.

Domestic Peace Corps Viewed by Con. Perkins As Depressed Area Aid

Washington, June 18 (Spl.).—Congressman Carl D. Perkins said today the proposed "Domestic Peace Corps" offers a means by which Kentucky talent now directed to foreign lands could be brought to bear on Kentucky's own development.

Testifying before a special House subcommittee considering legislation to set up a National Service Corps, Mr. Perkins said that it would not be "simply a welfare program."

"Rather," he said, "it is a basic effort to help people to help themselves in such areas as Eastern Kentucky, where limited education and unemployment have spawned classic deprivation, health deficiencies, sub-standard housing, inadequate educational opportunities and demoralization."

Service Corps members, Mr. Perkins explained, would live and work with the people of the areas where they were serving. In this connection, he named Jim Fisher, Ashland, Kentucky, a member of the Peace Corps now serving in Central Asia, as an example of the type of person who should be encouraged to work on developing Eastern Kentucky.

Young Fisher, writing in the Peace Corps Volunteer, said in an article quoted by Mr. Perkins: "The Nepalis do the best they can with what they have, and with that kind of spirit there is no limit to what they can accomplish."

Mr. Perkins, commenting on Fisher's report, declared "This is a spirit of partnership!—It is a program which fits in naturally with Kentucky's tradition."

IRANIAN STUDENTS ENROLL AT EASTERN FOR STUDIES

Dorland Coates, associate dean of instruction for teacher education; a coffee in Walnut Hall, where the students met departmental heads; a tour of Model Laboratory School, Brockton, married student housing and other parts of the Eastern campus.

On Saturday they visited Berea and Lexington, Sunday morning various student hosts and hostesses accompanied the students to worship services in the local churches. During the afternoon the group visited

Former Pike Official Acquitted of Charges

Woodrow W. Runyon, former school bus supervisor for the Pike county school board, was acquitted Monday of charges he embezzled about $19,000 over a 10-year period.

No evidence was presented in the Pike circuit court trial, which was held over the objections of Commonwealth's Attorney K. E. Friend, who refused to prosecute.

The jury heard the indictment read, received routine instructions and returned a verdict of innocent in five minutes.

Runyon was indicted in January on charges he embezzled the money beginning in 1950 through irregularities in buying school bus equipment. He also was charged with submitting a false claim in connection with the alleged taking of the funds. No trial date has been set on those charges.

Friend filed a motion at the opening of court asking that the embezzlement count be dismissed or filed away on grounds that the charge was improper.

Judge F. P. Keesee overruled the motion and Friend refused to prosecute, saying he was not prepared. Keesee said he was fining Friend $30 for contempt of court, but later withdrew the fine.

COMMISSIONER DOUBTS HIGHWAY FEASIBILITY

Henry Ward, Kentucky commissioner of highways, gave members of the U. S. 23-119 Highway Association Wednesday no assurance that their dream of an Ashland-to-Middlesboro highway will soon be realized.

"If you try for it as an extension of the interstate system, you're in for an argument," he told the group at its meeting at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park. As for the possibility of the route becoming a toll-road, he said the Highway Department has not yet made a study "in depth" of the project.

He suggested that leaders decide which plan they want to adopt, then fight for it. Feasibility of a toll-road to cover the 200-250 miles of the route is doubtful.

At this time, Mr. Ward pointed out, all but 30 miles of the 41,000 miles of interstate highway provided in existing legislation have been contracted or committed to contract. Upwards of 5,000 miles elsewhere have high priority if the Congress votes an extension of the system. He pointed out these facts to explain his statement that "you're in for an argument if the projected route is sought as a part of the interstate system."

He added that he would be perfectly happy to see the highway built as a part of that system—mainly, because the state would be required to supply only $1 for every $9 spent by the federal government on its construction.

The sector of U. S. 23 expected to be most heavily travelled by 1980 is the 10 miles from Prestonsburg to Allen, the commissioner said, quoting engineers' projected figures. The daily average for that part of the road by that year is seen as 9,000 vehicles. This average use of other parts of the highway are projected: Allen to Pikeville, 4,200 vehicles; Prestonsburg to Paintsville, 3,600; Louisa to Ashland, 3,600.

Mr. Ward, a plain-spoken veteran in state service, expressed his interest in road-building but pointed out that his interest goes beyond "trying to make this or any other administration the greatest."

"I am interested," he explained, "in continuous progress. In terms of building a highway system, you've got to look ahead so that when you spend any of the public's money you get the best possible return."

Asked by Lon B. Rogers, Pikeville, how the Big Sandy arm of the Mountain Parkway would be extended to Pikeville from Prestonsburg in accordance with the promise made by Edward T. Breathitt, Democratic nominee for Governor, Ward said his idea would be to improve existing U. S. 23. He also said that an engineers' report indicated improvement of the route from Catlettsburg to Prestonsburg would make it adequate.

Marvin Music, president of the Association, said the group at its last meeting went on record as favoring improvement of the highway rather than a toll-road or construction in a new location.

Ward gave this current report on highway projects in the area:

Contract to be awarded on remainder of the Parkway arm, Prestonsburg to Salyersville, during the fiscal year beginning July 1; completion of Parkway extension, Campton to Salyersville, set this winter; some sections of Parkway extension built in the Jackson area; next fiscal year to see grade and drain, Campton to Jackson; new section of Parkway extension let to contract at Hazard, rights-of-way work being done west of Whitesburg.

He predicted that final surfacing of the Prestonsburg-to-Salyersville section of the Mountain Parkway extension will not be completed before the summer of 1965, although grade and drain construction completion is seen next summer.

THIS WILL CHILL YOU . . .

Here's a chilling thought for a hot summer day. Refrigerated warehouse space is now over the one billion cubic-foot mark, according to USDA's Statistical Reporting Service. That's about half a home-size refrigerator for each man, woman and child in the United States. The space is used to store meat and poultry, dairy products, eggs, fruits, vegetables and juices.

STATE ROAD CONTRACTOR SETS PAVING RECORD

Frankfort, Ky., June 13—A paving contractor on the Western Kentucky Parkway has set a new world's record for laying concrete. Arcole-Midwest Corp., of Evanston, Ill., in one work day in early June completed 9,132 linear feet (or almost two miles) of 24-foot wide, 9-inch-thick pavement in Hopkins county.

W'wright Club Hears Stapleton, Dr. Wilson

The Beaver Valley Kiwanis Club held its regular meeting Monday evening, June 10, at the Inland clubhouse with 28 members and two guests in attendance.

Of the two guests, one was William Stapleton, of Paintsville, lieutenant-governor of Division 8, Kentucky-Tennessee District of Kiwanis International. Mr. Stapleton addressed the club briefly concerning the forthcoming Kiwanis convention in Atlantic City, New Jersey.

The second guest, Dr. Charles Wilson, of Pikeville, delivered an interesting talk on his experiences in Haiti as one of the participants in FOCUS, a private philanthropic organization dedicated to the care of indigent people suffering from eye diseases. Dr. Wilson, who served with FOCUS for two seasons in Haiti, presented color slides which illustrated the need and usefulness of such an organization. Among other details, the appalling misuse of American aid funds by the Haitian government was disclosed.

A question-and-answer period followed Dr. Wilson's presentation.
