Letter To A Schoolboy

DEAR JOHNNY,

You are wrong when you tell me that you have lost respect for high offices and some of those who seek them. You must not fall into the same error so many of your elders have fallen into; you have been listening too much and reading too much of what men have been saying about each other, rather than considering what these men have actually done and are capable of doing for Kentucky.

I know it is hard for one of your years to forget the names they have given each other. But it is on such as you that this state and this country of ours must depend for their future, and you must try hard to peer behind the smokescreen of calumny and invective and see things and personalities as they really are.

You have seen the real issues obscured by much talk which includes speeches, handbills, newspaper advertisements and statements via other media. You have seen those older than you, those who should be far wiser, listen to such diatribes and permit their emotions rather than reason to rule.

Don't you, Johnny, lose your sense of values and imitate those who have stopped speaking to their neighbors because they didn't agree on the election. You, I hope, have a long life ahead of you; and I hope, too, that you will learn, early, that there is much more to living than ruling the minds and curtailing the liberties of others.

This is not to say that you should not take an interest in politics. It is a part of our system of government. But you will have to take an active part, and you will have to play a decent part and lead others to decent participation, if that is to come to pass.

You know, Johnny, I once asked a man why he and others spent money to buy votes at election-time, and he replied, "We don't want to spend money for vote-buying, but we have to, in self-defense. The other fellow will, and if we don't we would be at his mercy."

The same thing might be said of low blows struck during political campaigns. Scurrilous attacks, character assassination, filthy rumor—these have become deadly weapons. Countries make a bigger bomb for attack or defense. Men use this other deadly weapon.

You ask me if a law could be enacted to control such a thing, I wish there could be. Perhaps there may be. But you and I will have to join in demanding something better. Our Constitution guarantees freedom of speech and freedom of the press, you will recall, and that may make control by legislation difficult. But, surely, government will impose on those who enjoy these liberties the responsibilities which go with liberty.

Perhaps it would be better if you and the thousands of other youngsters of the state would begin now to assert your convictions, demand decency in political campaigns as well as decency from those whom we elect, and let them all know that you will retaliate against these violations of ethical conduct by fighting, with your vote and your influence, the violator.

But I ramble. Perhaps I should have made this shorter and simply referred you to a statement made by a man named Paul in a letter which he wrote, long ago, to Christians at a place called Philippi. It's advice as good for our times as it was for the day when it was written. Read it for yourself, as I did today. You will find it in the Bible, in the eighth verse of the fourth chapter of Philippians.

1 Order librarian Mrs. Genevieve Livingston does all book selecting, usually bases her decisions on newspaper and magazine reviews. Business manager Robert H. Ritchie handles actual purchasing of more than 83,000 volumes selected each year for Bookmobiles and regional libraries in all parts of the state.

2 Mrs. Josephine Slucher unpacks 100 copies of Around the Globe in 20 Years, chosen for Bookmobiles. Book written by Irena Wiley tells the story of an artist at large in the diplomatic world. After processing by the Berry Hill staff, the book will be ready for immediate circulation aboard Kentucky's 100 Bookmobiles.

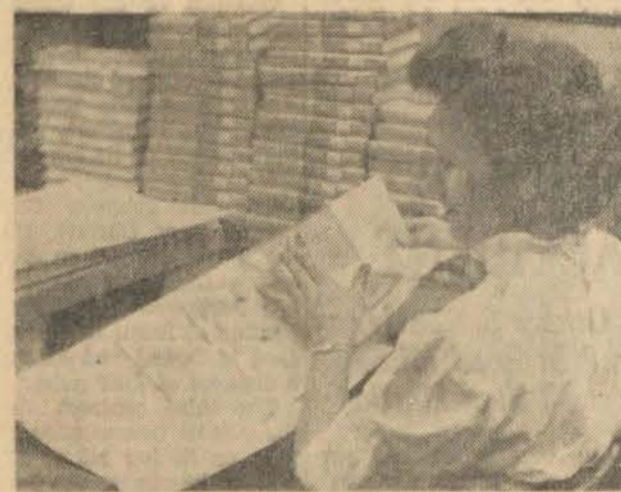

3 Tabs bearing the title's Dewey decimal number are attached first. The same number appears in the card catalog and on the book's inside pocket. Books for circulation in Kentucky's 12 library regions comprising 60 counties are also processed before leaving Frankfort.

Library Week—April 21-27

From Berry Hill to Bookmobile

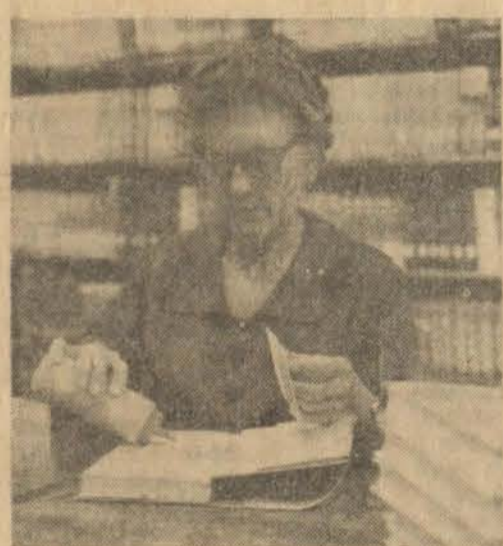

State Libraries Department Frankfort Headquarters Processes Books for Bookmobiles, Regional Libraries

4 P. O. Box 87 refers to the Department of Libraries' offices at Berry Hill Mansion in Frankfort. These pictures were made in the old mansion's former kitchen, dining room, master bedroom and entrance hall where 1,200 books can be processed in one day.

5 Plastic covers applied by Mrs. Slucher prolong the book's life and add eye appeal. Borrowers choose many books by impulse.

6 Book pockets added by Mrs. Thelma Sermons contain a complete set of catalog and check-out cards. Multiples of the cards are run off by the processing staff.

7 The new title awaits shipment by mail with other Bookmobile books. Sherwood Kirk (right) head of the Department's cataloging and processing section, checks the book with Larry Goins.

8 (Right) On a Bookmobile, a borrower reaches for the new book. Larger Bookmobiles hold about 2,000 volumes. Communities and schools in 100 counties are visited twice monthly.

TIDBITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D. Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

YARBS

Not long ago I was asking one of my helpers about remedies for various diseases. He was full of information, especially about various plants or fruits or seeds or barks or leaves used in old-fashioned teas or poultices or plasters or pills. When I asked about remedies for diarrhea, he grinned and gave me a new one: boil seeds from sour dock in sweet milk and drink this goo. His grin came because he was right at that moment off duty because of a bad attack of diarrhea but had never thought to rely on the family remedy. He had actually gone to his family doctor, had got a prescription and had it filled, and unashamedly had the bottle in his pocket and occasionally took a sip of what looked—as he said—like NASTY STUFF.

Nearly all the herbs that used to be grown around houses or in the orchard or in the garden had passed out of use before I could remember; I do remember having tasted some home-made horehound candy, and I did see catnip tea in certain cases. We would gather some Jerusalem oak leaves, bruise them, and put them into the chicken trough, for we had heard that the bitter juice would cure worms in our chickens.

But people who are not half as old as I am can remember having seen or taken or used all sorts of other herbs; wild jimson leaves bound to a swelling or wound, peachtree-leaf tea for just about anything that is wrong with you, tansy tea for coughs and any bronchial troubles, yellow puccoon for sore mouth, slippery-elm bark cooked in an ooze and used for everything. Some of these have genuine medicinal value but probably are not strong enough in their original state. Botanists have told me that there is a bit of sense in nearly all herb remedies and seldom any harm. If they do not produce a marvelous cure, they will probably not hurt the patient.

A magical or semi-magical use of herbs and plants generally goes a step farther away from modern medicine. Plants gathered at midnight or when the moon is full or in a graveyard sound pretty funny, even to some of the present-day herbalists. Or gathering three weeds of any three kinds (that is, either three or nine) and rubbing them on a wart or mole or swelling somehow is hardly convincing to many folkish people. Tying up branches of plants to cure one's child of chills and fevers is another magic remedy; just go into the woods, take the limbs of adjoining bushes, and tie three or seven or nine of them in a knot, using only the limbs themselves. Don't tell anybody about it, and your child will get well and soon be able to eat his victuals properly or run and play as he should.

A version of this was told me by a very excellent woman many years ago; she cured her daughter of chills and fever (ague) by taking nine samples of different weeds, tying them up in a small bag, and hanging up the bag in the fireplace where it would not be disturbed until it dried up and came to pieces. Sure enough, the chills and fevers vanished!

Magic and plants play their part in what is the most fascinating folk remedy of them all, according to my notion—the cure (pronounced cyore) or prevention of asthma (otherwise phthisic). Stand the patient against a tree, preferably an oak of some sort; bore an auger hole into the trunk of the tree at the exact height of the person; cut off a lock of his hair and put it into the hole; drive in a peg. When the bark grows over the peg, goodbye TISSICK! I had a good old man tell me that he did this for every one of his five children, and not one ever developed the disease. Just as he finished his yarn, he took a bad coughing spell and had to use some patent medicine to stop his own attack of asthma; I wondered why the physician did not heal himself, but, since I was young, I did not say anything.

OREGON WOMAN IMAGINES VACATION IN KENTUCKY

Mrs. Nellie R. Smith, Portland, Oregon, took an imaginary vacation in Kentucky and reported it to The Grayson County News. The words in capitals are the names of Kentucky cities, towns and villages.

There's a SPIDER! and the PIGEON has a THOUSANDSTICKS under his PIGEON ROOST, evidently from the WOODS, to make his new home in the HOLLY BUSH, so it must be a SYMBOL of SUMMER SHADE ahead and we better get out our SASSAFRAS tea and GINSENG.

The MAGNOLIA is a BLAZE OF BEAUTY and we notice a BEE SPRING from one BIG BRANCH to another. The CRAB ORCHARD is in bloom and GEE! the FROZEN CREEK is no more, so we can see the BEAVER DAM.

So, we'll be leaving the old STAMPING GROUND and better plan our vacation route if we can EVER get the CHEVROLET ready to CHANCE such a long trip as to YOSEMITE, SAMARIA and LEBANON.

It would be a MIRACLE but we would be so HAPPY to see that HALO around the MOON from MOUNT OLIVET when the clouds drift past. The main BARRIER would be crossing the FIELD at BOWLING GREEN.

Have wondered if we could get a horse at HORSE BRANCH that could really GALLUP, but keeping them in HORSE CAVE, we have our doubts, and where they HANDSHOE them we have still to learn but probably on HI-way TWENTY SIX near the FOUR MILE BANKS.

We may just DRIFT along and not CARRY much baggage as Aunt EETSY has written: "DEWDROP by and we'll fill your BASKET with a PARTREDGE, CONCORD and MALAGA grapes and even STURGEON."

and WINDSOR castle. They have heard that their cousin PEARL is a HARDSHELL BAPTIST and want to meet her and see her place at BETHLEHEM.

SARAH says we should take THREE FORKS but I figured if we take an OVEN FORK and a FLAT FORK that would be enough. She would take TALCUM and maybe even a TURKEY to be ready for TRAVELERS REST when we reached ROCK HAVEN, but with my WRIGLEY gum and even SALT GUM, am sure I'd do a better job with as LITTLE as possible. Perhaps I could LYNCH a BUFFALO or WILD CAT, if necessary, although it might not show WISDOM to do so.

With GLEANINGS we have about our state, why spend a HOLIDAY anywhere else! We can visit MEXICO, LONDON and SWEDEN right here and even climb to the TOP-MOST SUMMIT OF MOUNT HERMON, where the CARDINAL and even GRAHAM can be heard, which gives one NEW HOPE, even to our MARROW BONE.

Perhaps we should INDEX these places or if we don't LOOKOUT we'll ORAB the wrong map and wind up on the SWAMP BRANCH where the CROPPER SLAUGHTERS cattle and sells BEEF HIDE to CAINS STORE, or our OETH-SEMANE could be at OLIVE HILL where PAW PAW used to STAB a WOLF when he was a SADLER.

We may shake DICE to decide whether to go to MARCUM or NORTHFIELD first or to stop HALFWAY at GOOSEROCK.

We will not have time for SCIENCE HILL or the SEMINARY this summer but must SETTLE, with a SMILE for what we can cover, not STAY too long or STEELE a DAY from another's vacation, but by all MEANS be a SHARER of good times, so we'll sign OFFUTT on plans and get BUSY on the BUNCH of things to do, deciding if I should WARE my old VEST, and if a PENNY or NICKEL will do for parking, so our trip will not be a JINKS.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK The Civil War in Kentucky By JOE JORDAN (Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week, Union and Confederate soldiers in Southeastern Kentucky continued to eye each other warily across the Cumberland River. Both forces occasionally sent small raiding and scouting parties across the stream at night in attempts to capture enemy pickets and horses. The troops on both sides were cavalry or mounted infantry, plus a few artillery batteries, also dependent upon horses; in that kind of warfare, horses were almost as important as men.

The Third Confederate Cavalry Division, commanded by Brig. Gen. John Hunt Morgan, held all of Wayne, Clinton and Cumberland counties south of the Cumberland. The Union troops north of the river were commanded by Morgan's friendly enemy, Col. Frank Wolford, who had not only his own famous regiment, the First Kentucky (Union) Cavalry, but also some Ohio and Tennessee cavalry and mounted infantry, he being the senior Union colonel in the area.

During the week under review, Lt. Col. Silas Adams, Wolford's second in command in the First Kentucky, took 50 of his troopers across the river in canoes one night and, operating on foot, captured 33 Confederates, their horses and weapons. Adams got back to the north side of the river safely with all but one of his men; that one died after shooting himself accidentally.

A regimental history of Wolford's First Kentucky, titled "The Wild Riders of the First Kentucky Cavalry," by Sgt. Eastham Tarrant, a headquarters clerk, was published in 1894, after Tarrant had interviewed as many of his old comrades as he could find, collecting anecdotes to round out his own knowledge of the regiment's activities. It is one of the better of the many Civil War regimental histories.

Of the time when the First Kentucky was across the Cumberland from Morgan's men, Tarrant wrote: "The pickets of the two forces, now in full view of each other, became very sociable and frequently held friendly chats. . . . One party or the other would occasionally cross over, and they would exchange articles of convenience." At one place, a big Newfoundland dog swam back and forth across the deep river on errands. The Rebels, for example, might send tobacco and whiskey in exchange for coffee, which was by that time in very short supply throughout the South.

On May 28, 1863, Tarrant said, about 150 Rebels "came charging up the hill, yelling and shooting," and captured John R. Conner, "the wild Irishman of Company A," who "then being on a temporary visit to his company, was asleep under a blanket."

Allen reported on the district meetings held in Paintsville recently. Mrs. Dorton presented an interesting program. Illustrating the topic, "The Lifted Christ," was a cross and a globe, with attached gold ribbons pointing to places on the globe where missions were carrying out Christian work of which this church has a part.

On the billboard were pictures of Cuban refugees and various Missions in Cuba. Speakers at the meeting were Mrs. Burl Spurlock, who represented W. S. C. S., Mrs. Harry Ranier, overseas work, and Mrs. Carl Horn, Christian and social relations.

This portrait will cost $1,000, and funds for this gift will be solicited by the Chapters.

The treasurer asked that all per capita taxes be paid before July 1. The microfilming project still needs funds to complete the work begun. The Jefferson Davis Scholarship Fund has been paid to Transylvania College for the student tuition from Oak Ridge, Tennessee.

Later, I will give you more details as to just what happened. I know the names of most of those who participated in the BIG DEAL, and I will give you the names in a later issue of the Floyd County Times.

There was approximately $80,000 that went out on Monday after I had already organized each precinct as far as I was concerned.

There is no doubt in my mind that DeRosset and Hereford participated in the large sum spent, each thinking they were being carried, and no doubt the fact was kept secret from each other that each contributed to this large fund. I thought I was being carried by both candidates for Governor, but as it developed I received very little assistance from either. So it goes.

If I am ever a candidate again, it will be for either County Judge or County Attorney. In closing I want to state that I have no ill-will toward either of my opponents and hope for their future success.

Sincerely yours,
HENRY STEPHENS

Southern Bell Observes
Telephone Milestone

Pretty Linda Dye, of Louisville, looks up a number before using Southern Bell's 600,000th telephone in Kentucky. It's a coin telephone located in front of Louisville's City Hall in a special "golden" booth. A plaque on the phone also commemorates the event.

"Southern Bell in Kentucky reached another milestone in May with the installation of its 600,000th telephone in the state," it was announced this week by A. Guy Hisle, local manager.

A coin telephone located in front of Louisville's City Hall, the honored phone is in a special gold anodized booth. It bears a small plaque commemorating the installation.

"We feel this phone reflects the continuing growth and progress in our state," said C. Hunter Green, the company's vice president and general manager.

Southern Bell has added 100,000 phones in just a little over four years, Green pointed out. The 600,000th phone was installed in the kitchen of an Owensboro home in April of 1959.

"The installation also means that we have almost doubled our number of phones in the state since 1950," Green said.

At the end of 1950, the company had 310,610 phones and in 1940, it had 137,719.

In addition to the Southern Bell phones, some 212,000 telephones are operated by 28 other telephone companies in Kentucky.

SOIL CONSERVATION
By L. R. JOHNSON
Soil Conservationist

Last week, May 19 to May 26, was observed across the nation as Soil Stewardship Week. It was a time to reflect on daily blessings we enjoy from the good earth and the water that helps to make it productive.

"We Turn Our Eyes to the Future" was the theme for this year's observance.

Today we are demanding more and more from our soil and water resources.

To assure that they will continue to meet our needs, 2900 soil and water conservation districts are carrying forward active programs in proper land use.

To learn more about what they do and how you can help, contact your local soil conservation district office.

State-Federal Study May Boost Eastern Ky. Wood Products Industry

Frankfort, Ky., May 27 (Spl.) — A boost to the wood products industry in Eastern Kentucky is expected to result from a joint federal-state study approved by the U. S. Area Redevelopment Administration.

A consulting firm will be employed to inform businessmen of the 33-county area of the types of wood-processing plants that could be profitable in the area and to give advice on setting up and financing such plants. The $24,000 cost of the project will be shared by the state and the federal government.

An earlier survey made by A.R.A. showed that wood-processing industries in Eastern Kentucky could be profitable. Most of the area's timber is now shipped out unprocessed. The consulting firm to be chosen for the new project will work closely with A.R.A. and with a forestry-and-timber task force set up by Gov. Bert Combs as a result of the earlier study.

WE DELIVER

What's Going On in FISH & WILDLIFE by MINOR CLARK, Commissioner

Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources

Kentucky fishermen continue to have one of the best seasons in a number of years and one of the reasons for this is the prolific white bass in the various major lakes. Right now fishermen, night fishermen that is, are having a wonderful time on at least three of the large impoundments by fishing with minnows for these tough little fighters. They are being taken on given nights in large numbers from Herrington, Cumberland and Dale Hollow lakes and the season has just started for this type fishing.

After the spawning run of the white bass is over this fish will move back into deep waters in droves and the location of these droves is the only requisite for harvesting great numbers of them. Some nights they'll be found off muddy shores at depths of 15 to 30 feet deep. The next night they may be found off the deep rocky cliffs at depths ranging up to 35 or 40 feet and on the third night they'll likely be found in the channels of the lake or its tributaries and will be anxious and ready for a fight.

Until a few years ago this night fishing for white bass in Kentucky was limited to but a few localities. But that was at a time when it was more difficult to obtain the necessary equipment for night fishing. Now it is possible to fish at night in comfort and the lighting facilities are more readily obtainable.

So, with these comforts more night white bass fishermen were born. This night fishing, which, of course, is at its best with large minnows, will continue for a few weeks in full force, but will then slacken off. However, throughout the summer they will be caught in the "right" places and it's up to the fisherman to find that "right" place.

So the white bass has offered to Kentuckians a new method of fishing and has added variety to his favorite past time. The white bass has a very definite place with Kentucky fishermen and adds immeasurably to the all-around fishing that Kentuckians may enjoy.

BURNED COURTHOUSES

The Kentucky Historical Highway Marker Program committee has compiled a list of Kentucky courthouses burned during the Civil War. W. A. Wentworth, chairman, thinks the list may be incomplete and writes for any further information that may be had by historians and others.

Only those courthouses burned during the Civil War are listed. Floyd county's courthouse burned at Prestonsburg April 18, 1863.

The Wentworth list, with county, county seat and date of fire, follows:

Crittenden, Marlon, January 25, 1865; Trigg, Cadiz, December, 1864; Caldwell, Princeton, December, 1864; Christian, Hopkinsville, December 18, 1864; Daviess, Owensboro, January 4, 1865; Hopkins, Madisonville, December 20, 1864; Ohio, Hartford, December, 1864; Breckinridge, Hardinsburg, December 28, 1864; Grayson, Leitchfield, December 24, 1864; Harlan, Elizabethtown, December 23, 1864.

Larue, Hodgenville, February 21, 1865; Taylor, Campbellsville, December 23, 1864; Clinton, Albany, January 25, 1865; Spencer, Taylorsville, January 25, 1865; Montgomery, Mt. Sterling, January 3, 1864; Bath, Owingsville, March 21-December 4, 1864; Rowan, Morehead, March 21, 1864; Powell, Stanton, March 21, 1864; Harlan, Mt. Pleasant, date not stated.

There may be errors in the list. The Wentworth list has Burkesville as the county seat of Montgomery instead of Mt. Sterling. This is corrected above. The courthouse of Cumberland, at Burkesville, may have been burned. No date is given for the burning of the Harlan county courthouse and it may be that this structure actually burned later. The name Mt. Pleasant was the predecessor name for Harlan.

HONAKER FAMILY

A letter from Dewey R. Honaker, Box 327, Pikeville, contains an inquiry relative to the Honaker family. It is passed on to the readers who may be able to help Mr. Honaker.

"A friend gave me a copy of your column in the Floyd County Times of last month, containing a brief biographical sketch of James Honaker. I have been trying for about a year to trace my great-grandfather, Jonathan Honaker, who came to Kentucky from Russell county, Virginia, with his wife and eight children, about 1867.

The James Honaker, Sr., who you wrote about and who was the first sheriff and later county court clerk of Pike county, also came from Russell county, Virginia. His relatives and I are good friends and we know our great-grandparents must have been related back in Virginia but so far we have been unable to establish the family connection."

JOHN JACOB PINSON

Readers may remember the feature story in The Times a few years ago on Jake Pinson, Pike county native, who shot it out with federal soldiers during the Civil War on the Kanawha River, West Virginia. Mrs. Marie Pinson Erickson, 1519 Longview Dr., Salt Lake City, Utah, a granddaughter writes about her grandfather.

"John Jacob Pinson was born in Pike county, Kentucky, about 1813 —his father John Pinson was a son of Thomas and Mary (Demmy) Pinson, who moved from Grayson county, Virginia, to Kentucky before 1800 with their family and settled on Johns Creek, formerly in Floyd county, now in Pike. His mother Mary Honaker Pinson was a daughter of Jacob Honaker of Virginia also.

"Mr. Pinson was known by Jacob or 'Jake' and is recorded as Jacob Pinson in the census and property records. He married Mary Belcher who also was born in Pike county about 1813. She was a daughter of John and Mary Elswick Belcher. Her father John was a son of George Belcher, and the Elswicks and Belchers were also early pioneers of Kentucky from Virginia.

"Jacob Pinson with his family pioneered to West Virginia with a company of five families about 1838, including John Belcher and the rest of his family. These families first settled on Campbell's Creek, near Malden in Kanawha county, West Virginia, but Jacob and his family later moved to Blue Creek, which is a short distance from Campbell's Creek and also in Kanawha county. Here Jacob bought a farm, built a nice farm home, and made his own furniture. In doing this, he showed unusual skill and a love for the finer things of life, as the furniture he made was greatly admired and treasured by his descendants. He lived on Blue Creek the rest of his life and was the father of 11 children.

"Mr. Pinson was known as a cattle raiser as the selling of beef cattle brought his principle source of income. He also did farming and raised an independent living. Jacob was a student of the scriptures and was outstanding in his teachings, as a result he was often called upon to conduct and speak at funerals for the consolation of his country neighbors and friends. Being a family man, he loved his children, made a good living for them and was respected by all who knew him.

"During the Civil War, Federal soldiers from Ohio were sent to the region where the Belcher and Pinson families lived. The soldiers were a mean lot who harassed the residents, burned and plundered many of the homes, brutally injuring and killing some of them. The people there probably did not know the real issues of the Civil War, although they were classed as pro-Confederates. While the soldiers held the farmers in contempt, the farmers thought of the soldiers as being in a class with the thieves, murderous Indians which their fathers had to fight, and of course took up arms against them, in defense of their homes, their families and their freedom. It is doubtful that they knew they were fighting against the U. S. government—as they thought of these soldiers as a menace they would have to eliminate. Some of the farmers later submitted, but Pinson would not and therefore was accused of treason.

"On September 1, 1861, Mr. Pinson's home was invaded by a group of Federal soldiers, who shot through the house in all directions —Jacob put up a fight, but being outnumbered, he and his son Philip were killed. A daughter, Tibetha, was shot in the head, receiving a brain injury which left her an invalid the rest of her life. During the turmoil the two youngest children, Daniel and his sister Laura hid under a bed behind a tool box, where they quietly stayed while the soldiers rammmed their bayonets under the bed, striking the tool box which saved their lives. The soldiers ransacked the house, took their food and left the stricken family without mercy. After the shooting the two younger children could not be found and Mrs. Pinson fled to the woods in search of them where she wandered for two days before she was found. It is said that some neighbors came to the rescue of the family, giving aid to the injured and buried Mr. Pinson and his son on his own farm. Jacob Pinson was 48 years of age at the time of his death, his son Philip was 18. Another son Harvey lost his life in the Battle of Gettysburg; he was a Union soldier.

"During the time of the Civil War, it was a custom for people to hide their money, and Mr. Pinson being thrifty, is said to have had a large sum of money hidden in a pot and buried in the ground. This has never been found by any of the family. One relative says a neighbor knew where it was and took it to Ohio and bought a farm. However some of the cousins have spent considerable time digging in search of a pot of gold."

Notice of Sale of Electric Franchise

On the 6 day of May, 1963, the City Council of Martin, Kentucky, adopted a resolution directing the sale at public outcry of a city electric power franchise. This resolution is in words and figures as follows:

WHEREAS, the existing franchise held by the Kentucky Power Company for the distribution of electric power in the City of Martin, Kentucky, will expire on October 5, 1963, and,

WHEREAS, there is a continuing public necessity for adequate service of electric power and energy to the citizens of the City of Martin, and,

WHEREAS, it appears that it is to the interest of the public that a franchise be advertised and sold granting and entitling the grantee to use the public streets, thoroughfares and other public places for the erection and maintenance of lines for the transmission and distribution of electric power.

NOW, THEREFORE, be it resolved by the City Council of the City of Martin, Kentucky,

I. SECTION 1. That there be sold at public auction to the highest and best bidder, the right, privilege and authority to acquire, maintain, construct and operate in, above, under, across and along the streets, thoroughfares, alleys, bridges and public places (as the same now exist or may hereafter be laid out) of the City of Martin, Floyd County, Kentucky, lines, poles and equipment for the distribution of electric energy, either by means of overhead or underground conductors, with all the necessary or desirable appurtenances for the purpose of supplying electric energy to said city and the inhabitants thereof and persons and corporations beyond the limits thereof for light, heat, power and any other purpose or purposes for which electric energy is now or may hereafter be used, and for the transmission of the same within, through or across said city.

SECTION 2. Said lines and appurtenances shall be constructed so as to interfere as little as possible with the traveling public in its use of the streets, thoroughfares, alleys, bridges and public places. The location of all poles or conduits shall be made under the supervision of the proper board or committee of the city government.

SECTION 3. The right, privilege and franchise shall be in full force and effect for a period of twenty (20) years from the date of the passage of the ordinance granting it.

SECTION 4. The grantee of this franchise shall save the city harmless from any and all liability arising in any way from negligence in the erection, maintenance or operation of said lines and appurtenances.

SECTION 5. Whenever the grantee of this franchise shall begin the erection of any lines or other equipment, it shall promptly and diligently prosecute the work to completion and leave the streets, thoroughfares, alleys, bridges and public places where such work is done in as good condition of repair as before such work was commenced.

SECTION 6. Wherever in this franchise, either the City of Martin, or the grantee thereof is referred to, it shall be deemed to include the respective successors and assigns of either, and all rights, privileges and obligations contained in this franchise shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the respective successors and assigns of said city, and said grantee, whether so expressed or not.

SECTION 7. The grantee of this franchise may make such rules and regulations covering the furnishing of said electric energy as may be fair and reasonable and consistent with the standard practice of the grantee. Said grantee may charge such rates for electric service as shall be fair and reasonable. The said grantee shall render service under said franchise of like quality, that is, adequate, efficient and reasonable, to that now being rendered to said city.

SECTION 8. The consideration paid by the successful bidder for the franchise privilege and right provided for herein shall be complete compensation and consideration for said franchise, privilege and right and for the use and occupancy of the streets, avenues, alleys, bridges and public ways of the City in lieu of any street or alley rental or to the charge for the use or occupancy of said streets, avenues, alleys, bridges, thoroughfares or public places of said City and in lieu of any pole tax or meter tax.

SECTION 9. Each bidder for said franchise, privilege and right shall file as a part of his bid a certified copy of a certificate of convenience and necessity from the Public Service Commission of Kentucky, issued under the authority of KRS 278.020 (3).

SECTION 10. The ordinance granting this franchise shall be accepted by the grantee thereof within sixty (60) days from the date of its passage.

II. The City reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

III. The Clerk of the City of Martin is hereby directed after having advertised the time, place and terms of sale and the rights to be sold by posting written or printed notices in six (6) public places in the city of Martin, including the door of the city hall and in five (5) other conspicuous places in the city for at least 15 days before the time for sale and by causing the publication of such notice in the Floyd County Times for not less than three (3) consecutive issues next before the date of sale, to offer for sale at public outcry to the highest and best bidder at the front door of the city hall in the city of Martin, between the hours of 10:00 o'clock in the morning and 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon on some convenient date to be named in such notice and advertisements and upon other conditions herein stated; and receive bids for franchise and authority herein directed to be sold.

No person, however, other than the owner of a plant and equipment sufficient to render the service required by this resolution shall be entitled to bid on such franchise unless the prospective bidder shall deposit with the Clerk before the commencement of the bidding a certified check for the sum of $1-275.00, representing five per cent of the fair estimated cost of the plant required to render the service, pursuant to KRS 96.020. Said franchise shall be sold for cash in hand and the deposit above referred to may be forfeited upon failure of the successful bidder to meet the other requirements of said statute.

Nature Trails

We are going to have to reforest our mountains with leaf-bearing trees, deciduous trees that drop a heavy crop of leaves every fall, to form a leaf mold. In addition to the pines, we need to transplant multiplied thousands of yellow poplars, which will grow in old fields or just about anywhere, and will soon produce a heavy crop of leaves; we also need to transplant trees like wild cherry, birch, lynn, black walnut, black locust, and other trees that will bear leaves and also help to hold the soil and build it up.

As for evergreens, the eastern hemlock is much more desirable for flood control. Its dense, spreading crown of smaller needles breaks up the raindrops into fine droplets and prevents a swift run-off of the rain. The hemlocks will also grow just about anywhere the pines will.

FUTURE PREVENTION OF DISASTROUS FLOODS

It is going to cost us millions of dollars and years of hard labor to undo the damage that has been done—but it can be done and it must be done! Or our beautiful mountains are going to be destroyed by erosion, and our valleys are going to become a ghostland, with people moving out of them as fast as they can go.

To prevent floods in the future, there should be recruited at once a vast working force of the unemployed, of all able-bodied men from 21 to 65, and they should be put to work on PROJECT FLOOD PREVENTION AND CONTROL, under competent supervisors, and they should do the following:

1. Clean out all the creeks and smaller streams from head to mouth. The sand and gravel from these stream beds can be trucked and put on all rural dirt roads as a permanent roadbed.
2. All gullies, trenches, mountain logging roads and all runways for water should be filled with stones, cemented to stay.
3. All gullies in old, abandoned fields and clearings should be filled permanently with stones and brush.
4. All the old fields should be cleared out of briars and thistles and then there should be transplanted in them trees such as yellow poplar, wild cherry, black walnut, birch, lynn and many others. Farmers owning these old fields, and who have forests near them, should be required to let these workmen remove small trees from their forests to transplant in all the old fields.
5. All the cleared hillsides or heavily timbered mountainsides should be terraced.
6. Cheap and inexpensive dams can and should be built by these men, with two or three of these on every large creek, with open runways which can be closed when floods threaten. These dams can be built cheaply of stones and cement, or earth and logs that would serve the smaller streams until we can get the trees back on these mountainsides.
7. The rivers must be cleaned out and dredged several feet deep from head to mouth; the material removed should be used to build levees along the river banks, where the banks need more protection.
8. All forest lands recently logged over should at once be reforested; thousands of eastern hemlocks should be transplanted on hillsides, to help check the rainfall. Many of these smaller hemlocks could be obtained from farmers or land companies which have large groves of them.
9. All logging and removal of timber from the steep mountain lands should be regulated by law, in the manner of our game laws. There should be a "closed season" on cutting timber on mountainsides, and only in cases of necessity should timbering be permitted for the next twenty years. Men should be required to have a permit before cutting and removing timber from steep mountain land, and they should also be required to reforest all lands they timber over.
10. All strip-mining should be banned on mountain land.

WITNESS, Myrtle H. Dings, City Clerk, this 6th day of May, 1963.

Following his graduation he became elementary principal at Sardis high school, later becoming principal at Orangeburg. While at Orangeburg he joined the Army and served 41 months.

Upon his return to civilian life, Dr. Martin entered the Department of Education at Frankfort and at the same time earned a Master's degree from the University of Kentucky. Afterwards he was awarded a doctorate at Columbia University.

DISASTROUS FLOODS: THEIR CAUSES AND FUTURE PREVENTION

Nature's laws are inexorable and when we violate them we have to pay the penalty in suffering, and the bad part is, the innocent have to suffer for the mistakes of the guilty.

The root causes of the disastrous floods of our day began something like 80 years ago. Prior to that time, all the mountains of Eastern Kentucky and West Virginia were covered with dense stands of virgin timber, from valley to hilltop—oak, walnut, beech, yellow poplar, birch, wild cherry, lynn, ash and others. These are all deciduous trees—those that drop their leaves every fall to form a leaf mold on the forest floor. In those days, before any of the great trees were removed, there was a thick leaf mold, about eight inches deep, in all the coves and on the mountainsides. This thick leaf mold was like a sponge that soaked up the rainfall and prevented a swift run-off of water; it kept the forest floor moist at all times and conserved the moisture. This thick leaf mold could absorb and hold over an inch of rain without any serious run-off of water.

Our forefathers were often in dire need and so they sought markets for this virgin timber, and found eager markets at Catlettsburg, Frankfort and other cities. They went to work then and built large splash dams across the larger creeks and smaller dams on all their tributaries; then they began to cut down the virgin yellow poplars, the oaks, the walnuts, any timber that would float; with ox teams they hauled these great logs to the dams and filled them up. You can still find old ox shoes lying along some of the old logging trails, and can also still see dim signs where some of the big splash dams stood, which often held over a thousand logs at one time. The splash dams were opened as soon as filled with logs, and these were floated down the creeks to the rivers; there they were caught and held by heavy chains called a "boom." Men came to the boom and placed the logs together in large rafts of fifty to a hundred, and then floated them down the rivers to the lumber markets. This method of logging the virgin timber went on from about the year of 1880 to the year of 1905, after which other methods of timbering came around. This was after the railroads had penetrated into the region and the settlers could ship out their lumber or logs by rail. So sawmills and big bandmills were moved into the region, to accelerate the devastation of the forests. These big bandmills would establish a location nearby a large boundary of timber and they would remain there in the same place, sawing day after day, for as long as twenty-five years before they finally finished up. The big bandmills could saw into lumber the heavy timber that wouldn't float down in the rafts, such as chestnut oak, sugar maple and others.

By the time the bandmills had finished their work and moved out, there was little timber left on these mountains, except small, inferior grades of trees. The small timber soon matured a second and a third crop, and other methods of logging came into use; even the small six-inch trees were cut and sawed into props to be sold to the mining companies. Soon, instead of using mule and ox teams to haul the timber out of the mountains, tractors and bulldozers were moved in. These made roads all up and down and all around the mountainsides; they snaked the timber out by long wire cables. To speed up these more modern timber operations, there appeared the power, or chain saws; the old way of cutting the timber by crosscut and double-bit-axe was too slow and laborious, but the gasoline chain saws could slaughter the trees in a hurry, without any mercy or waste of time. Then the big log trucks moved in to help supply the sawmills; they made roads to the heads of all the creeks and branches; they bulldozed out the valleys, formed deep trenches along the hills, and, loaded down with big logs, they wore out deep ruts in the earth and left tens of thousands of runways down which the water shoots with great force during heavy rains.

The sawmills, the power saws, the tractors and the big log trucks have been moving ever farther and farther back into the heads of the creeks and branches—there is scarcely any boundary of timber anywhere today in Eastern Kentucky that has escaped. The hillsides have been scarred and ditched and filled with ruts and trenches from top to bottom, and the rainfall has thousands of runways to pour down into the streams.

Today all the virgin timber is gone, and the second, third and even the fourth growth of timber have been removed from these hills—and what have we? No leaf mold to hold and absorb the rainfall, mountainsides full of ditches and roads, and trenches and runways for water to rush pellmell out of the mountain in torrents as they race madly to the creeks and rivers.

To add to our flood woes, strip-mining came into the hills of Pike, Mingo, Buchanan and many other counties, as a quick way to get out the coal. The bulldozers loosened multiplied millions of tons of earth and rock and left these heaped upon the slopes, calling them by the dignified name of "spoil banks." The loose earth and rocks washed down into the rivers and clogged up the river beds, filling them up several feet deep in places. This added seriously to the flood menace; on top of this, the hundreds of coal mines throughout the mountains of Kentucky and West Virginia have let loose millions of tons of bone, gob, slate and lumps of coal—all kinds of refuse which has gradually found its way into the river beds and helped to clog the channels and fill them up. There is so much waste coal today in the bed of Tug River, I know of one outfit that makes big money by getting the loose coal out of the river bed and selling it on the market.

Our river beds have become clogged up and filled with the waste materials of our modern industrial progress; we have used our rivers as dumping grounds for refuse and trash, until today the streams are so clogged they soon spread out over their banks when heavy rains come. We have no system of flood control whatsoever; we have danced to the music of the piper of modern industry and now we have to pay the piper!

Our farmers have also helped to add to our flood woes by clearing away the forests from thousands of acres of mountain lands, then tending this land in corn and beans a few years. The good soil soon washed down into the creeks, and was carried away to the rivers, to help fill up the river beds; deep gullies have formed in all these old fields, and they get deeper every year—every time a heavy rain comes.

While farmers of today have almost stopped clearing up the mountain lands to grow crops, the harm has been done in the past, and the old gullies are still there unfilled, leaving runways for water to rush down headlong into the creeks.

We have so sadly neglected soil conservation in our region, our hills are now threatened with total destruction by erosion.

We started a reforestation program a few years ago, but it has proved wholly inadequate to cope with the dire situation. It is proceeding in the wrong direction, by sticking to setting out pines only—loblolly and white pines, good trees insofar as they go, but they do not go far enough. Pines bear no leaves, only needles, and they put no leaf mold on the forest floor. While they do prevent soil washing, they are not effective in flood control and prevention.

ALLEN

Mrs. G. L. Gray was hostess to the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church in her home, Tuesday night. The president, Mrs. Palmer Crisp, presided over the meeting which was opened with prayer by Mrs. Janice Thomas. A candlelight pledge service was presented by Mrs. Euna Laven, who was in charge of the worship service. Taking part were Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Gray and Mrs. Crisp.

The Society is now having a study course, the fourth of the year. The first one, RIM OF EAST ASIA, was presented recently, and the Society received recognition from the southeastern jurisdiction of the Methodist Church. Lexington, Ky.—It's a waste of time for gardeners to attempt to grow tomatoes unless chemicals are used to control early blight and other leaf diseases, says E. M. Johnson, U. K. Ag Experiment Station pathologist.

William Hicks (1882-1963)

William Hicks, agricultural and conservation leader, was born in 1882, a son of James Hicks and Alice Ousley Hicks. His wife, Mary Ann Coburn Hicks, like his parents, was a member of a pioneer Floyd county family.

Hicks, who is shown here on the farm in 1900, contributed much to the development of the Agricultural Stabilization Conservation program in Floyd county, serving as county committeeman with one leave of absence from 1945 to March 1963, when he retired. He became interested in the development of the rural electric power program and for many years served as director of the Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation.

The First National Bank salutes the memory of the late William Hicks and all of the many dedicated persons of our area who have contributed so much to the conservation of our soil.
