This Town... That World

For the record: The first snow of the new snowin' season fell here, Wednesday morning, well after daylight—which is how I know.

IT HELPS

It may be a bit late in the year to get around to these remarks, but we still insist that everybody needs to get out, every once in a while, where the katydids and the frogs can be heard. Out where sounds such as have been since the world first began can be heard, with telephones, radios, TV's, automobiles, so-called gospel singers, rock-and-rollers and all the kit and caboodle of them left to pester other more unfortunate ears.

The worries about the Bomb and such matters do a fade-out in the silence broken only by a bit of peeping or chirping and in the presence of Something Greater.

ONE MAN'S GRIPE

For all that they see and hear these days, our youngsters have a yen for Rebel and Yankee caps and flags have missed a lot. We oldsters realize that when they come to us and ask, "Have you ever talked to a real, live Civil War veteran?"

And then is when you feel a bit luckier than usual, and you assume that man-and-boy attitude and draw on your recollection of the old Johnny Rebs and Yanks you knew. The one I remember best is the first I ever knew—an old Confederate veteran who invariably began cursing, any time you mentioned the name of General Humphrey Marshall. Between oaths he would declare, "We had them Yankees whupped at Middle Creek, but nothin' would do that blankety-blank Marshall but pull out for Ole Virginny."

NEW BOND ISSUE SALE SAVES CITY $104,601

OLD REVENUE, WATER BONDS ARE RETIRED

New Issue Bears Interest At Low Rate; Additional Housing Units Are Asked

Sale of bonds to refinance $538,000 worth of old water and revenue bonds was effected Friday night at a net saving to the City of Prestonsburg of $104,601, it was announced.

The new bond issue in the amount of $623,000 was purchased by Barcus-Kindred & Co., of Chicago, for $611,522.78 at an interest rate averaging 3.948% over a redemption period of 25 years.

The old water and revenue bonds totalling $569,000 bore interest of 4% and 5% and were dated from 1941. As of November 1, this year, $22,000 of the principal had been paid, leaving $538,000 due. Last of the old bond issue would have matured in 1991.

Refunding of the bond issue was decided upon by the City Council recently, and F. L. Dupree & Co., of Lexington and Harlan, was designated fiscal agent when the firm guaranteed the city that it would save the city a net of "not less than $25,000." Sale of the bonds on a favorable market brought the net saving past the $100,000 mark.

This $104,601 saving includes the fiscal agent's fee of 1% and also the interest which must be paid on the old $538,000 bond balance until these bonds are callable in 1957.

The Prestonsburg Municipal Housing Commission has applied to the Housing & Home Finance Agency of the Community Facilities Administration for additional low-rent public housing unit construction here. The request followed completion and occupancy of 40 units here. No action on the request is expected until after January 1, it was said.

VOTE RECHECK IS COMPLETED

Nunn Gains Six Votes In Floyd-Co. Re-Check; Cow Precinct In Error

Recheck by the Floyd County Election Commission of the voting machines used November 5 in the general election in this county showed that Louie B. Nunn had not been credited with six votes cast for him. The discrepancy occurred in the John Possum (Martin) voting machine.

But the canvass of the machines disclosed two heavier mistakes favoring Republican candidates for lesser state offices. In Cow Creek precinct Robert Matthews, Democratic candidate for Attorney General, gained 177 votes. The vote there had originally been reported as 127 for Matthews, 140 for Jean L. Auxier, Republican. The commissioners found the vote on the machine giving Matthews 304.

In the same precinct Henry Carter, Democratic candidate for Auditor of Public Accounts, gained 95 votes. His vote was originally tabulated as 217 to 127 for James D. Nickell, Republican. The recheck showed Carter's vote total there to be 312.

After the recheck was completed, the official tabulation for Floyd county gave Governor-elect Breathitt 9,473 votes to 3,673 for Nunn, a majority of 5,800 for Breathitt—the largest polled for him by any county in the state.

Both Mr. Nunn and A. B. Chandler, whom Mr. Breathitt defeated in the May primary, had mentioned Floyd county by name as a hunting ground for reported irregularities.

Floyd was the only county in Kentucky to give the victorious Breathitt a final election majority that was greater than his primary edge over Chandler. As the No. 1 county in the Breathitt column it will lead the inaugural Day parade.

Garret precinct's vote of 249 for Breathitt to 35 for Nunn was the heaviest, percentage-wise, in the county, with Breathitt polling 87% plus of the entire vote cast there. On the other hand, Tickey was the only precinct of the county's 38 to poll a majority for the Republican nominee. The vote there was: Nunn, 260; Breathitt, 247.

In the 92 counties which had been canvassed at the end of the day Monday, Nunn had a net gain of 150 votes. (Louisville tabulators had Nunn's gain 159 votes, but these figures had the Floyd county recheck adding seven votes to the Republican leader's column. County Clerk C. Ollie Robinson said he could not understand how the newspapers got that figure, emphasizing the point that only six votes were added to Nunn's total from the Floyd recheck.)

COMBS CALLS LEGISLATURE

Higher Pay for Judges, Non-Partisan Balloting, Inspection Law Wanted

Higher pay for judges, a nonpartisan judicial ballot and a compulsory automobile inspection law were designated by Governor Bert T. Combs for consideration at the special session of the Legislature which he called Monday.

The General Assembly will convene at 1 p.m. Monday, and the Governor hopes it will complete its work in time to adjourn for Thanksgiving, 10 days later.

So it is that three Floyd legislators who had not expected further legislative work before their terms expire this year will be returning to Frankfort for a General Assembly session. These are State Senator Burnis Martin and Representatives Allen Stone and Ben Martin.

The question of higher judicial salaries, Combs said, is still open. But, he added, the Kentucky State Bar Association has recommended to him this scale:

For judges of the court of Appeals, $22,500 a year, up from $12,000.

For commissioners of the Court of Appeals, $20,000 a year, up from $11,500.

For Circuit Judges, $17,500 a year, up from $8,400, plus $2,400 for added duties as special commissioners of the Court of Appeals.

By nonpartisan ballot Combs meant an entirely new concept of judicial elections in Kentucky. Under the system, in use in some other states, a candidate for judge would run without reference to party, and no party emblems would mark the ballot. (See Story No. 1, Page 8)

STATE POLICE LEAD SEARCH FOR ROBBERS

Two Held at Gunpoint, Bound, Robbed of $235 By Unidentified Men

An area-wide alert was sounded by Kentucky State Police Tuesday afternoon after two men had held up at gunpoint the wife of a Little Paint merchant and a customer and had robbed the two of approximately $235.

Mrs. W. A. Baldrige, 61, who was operating the family store on Little Paint, across Abbott Mountain from here, during her husband's illness, and a neighbor, Virgil Combs, 50, were confronted at 3 p.m. by two young men, one of whom leveled a revolver at them while the other trussed them up with heavy staling and forced them to lie on the floor.

Approximately $200 in bills and coins was taken from the store. Combs' pocketbook containing $35 was taken.

The gunman continued to hold the revolver on the two while his companion ran to their car and backed it up to the store door. They fled in the direction of Paintsville.

Mrs. Baldrige then managed to reach a pair of scissors with which she was able to cut away the cord holding Combs. He in turn cut her bonds, and she telephoned her son, Harold Baldrige, manager of the Dollar Store here, notifying him of the holdup. A State Police cruiser was parked at the time near the store here, and as a consequence, Baldrige said, the State Police alert went out perhaps no more than 20 minutes after the robbery had been committed.

Little shaken by her experience, Mrs. Baldrige detailed to officers circumstances of the holdup. She described the two bandits as "looking like identical twins." Both have black hair, wore black trousers and grey, leather jackets. She said she had never seen either before but expressed the opinion that they are not strangers to the area. This she concluded by their speech.

She described their car as having a bluish-gray body with tan top. Mrs. Baldrige did not get the license number, could only say that the plate appeared to be either yellow or orange in color.

Officers were seeking the identity of the occupants of a station wagon which had stopped at the roadside, above the Baldrige store, about an hour before the robbery. A man left that car and went to the Baldrige residence to make a telephone call, but it was not learned who was called.

REYNOLDS BODY FIRM TO OPEN BUSINESS

The Reynolds Body Company, a brand-new Floyd county business, will open Friday in its new building which was recently completed near Allen by Marcum Reynolds, owner of the firm.

The company will employ from 20 to 25 men, it was said this week. It will specialize in the manufacture of truck beds but will also do various types of steel fabrication.

The new building erected to house the business is 60 by 270 feet, and is located north of Allen on U. S. 23. The block structure involved an expenditure of $35,000, it was said, and equipment for the plant has raised that figure to around $100,000.

Reynolds, who is a native of Beaver, this county, first organized the Reynolds Body Company and built his first plant at Hazard, about three years ago. At the Perry county plant he has employed, on the average, 28 men. He expects his Allen plant eventually to be larger than the Hazard installation.

Before going into the business for himself, Reynolds was employed in the steel fabrication business as a plant superintendent.

"We expect to make anything that can be made from steel," he said recently in a discussion of plans for the Allen plant.

CHURCH GROUP HEARS ROGERS ON HOSPITALS

Lon B. Rogers, Pikeville civic leader and member of the executive board of Appalachian Regional Hospitals, Inc., told the Presbyterian Men's Fellowship group here Tuesday evening of the challenge offered the National Board of Missions of the Presbyterian Church by the opportunity to save the United Mine Workers' five area hospitals for Eastern Kentucky.

Rogers detailed factually the intricate and involved negotiations, the necessary foundation planning and the capital outlay the acquisition of the hospitals at Harlan, Middleboro, McDowell, Pikeville and Hazard demanded. It was a delicate operation that had to be guarded against too much newspaper publicity for fear the drawn-out process would be stymied.

The Pikeville board member played a prominent part in the acquisition of the hospitals and the setting up of the non-sectarian and non-profit corporation that received the institutions from the hands of the church board, state and federal governments.

"The Board of National Missions acted figuratively as a midwife in the operation," Rogers said, "or, you might say, the board was a man with a plan."

Beginning of the struggle to save the hospitals threatened by closure by the United Mine Workers was made when a Harlan minister wrote a letter inquiring if the church could do something. Robert Barrie, chairman of the Health and Welfare Division of the board, was dispatched to Kentucky to survey the situation. In February, Dr. E. M. Rosenfeld and Associates were employed to make a report and a preliminary one was made in April to a conference of churchmen of various faiths, hospital administrators, state and federal representatives and many others. The report, revised and expanded, was presented to the annual meeting of the church board in late April.

The report noted the widespread need for the continued operation of the hospitals.

"To permit them to close," the report said, "would precipitate a catastrophe in the reduction of available modern medical care in a 11-county area with a population of 278,000 persons."

The Area Redevelopment Administration indicated it would give immediate attention to an application for aid on the purchase, and Gov. Bert Combs flew to New York and told the Board of Missions that if the hospitals could be transferred to a non-sectarian and non-profit corporation he would ask the Legislature to underwrite funds of $700,000.

The board debated for two days but finally adopted, at the suggestion of the union owners, a statement of intent. The union gave the church board only four days to agree to the purchase or the order to close would go out. The statement of intent covered a number of things the board would undertake to do at once. One of these was to provide an annual grant of $75,000 which the board didn't have.

"The plan called for many things to be done simultaneously or concurrently, by many agencies of both federal and state governments and the church board," Rogers said. "It was rapidly implemented."

The purchase deadline was extended to July 1, the ARA and the hospital fund trustees negotiated a price of $3.9 million, the Appalachian Regional Hospitals, Inc., was formed. Gov. Combs asked the Kentucky legislature to vote $700,000 for a new class of medically indigents, and provision was made for a board of trustees. Of the 11 appointed to date, five are Presbyterians, two are Disciples of Christ, one a Baptist, one Episcopalian, one Methodist and one Southern Presbyterian. Nine additional trustees are to be named soon.

The Board of Trustees, meeting in Harlan, September 26, employed Dr. Karl S. Klicka, Chicago, as executive director. He has a distinguished record in hospital planning and administration. He will not give the job full time until December 1 but has already had several meetings with regional doctors, civic leaders and representatives of the public. Lexington was made headquarters of the ARHI.

The Daniel Boone Medical Clinic, which operates at each of the hospitals, was recognized by the hospital trustees and the Kentucky State Medical Association approved the operation of the clinic. Under this plan, which is a sort of partnership for group practice on a regional basis with fees for service, there is a free choice of physicians and at the suggestion of KSMA doctors employed by the union will move their offices out of the hospitals.

The five hospitals were officially transferred to ARHI on September 30 at Washington and the purchase price paid. It is envisioned that the remaining five hospitals of the system will be transferred next year.

"Today, the five Appalachian Regional hospitals are open and doing business," Rogers said. "For how long it is entirely up to the people of the region they serve."

"We, the trustees of ARHI, earnestly solicit your help and cooperation in this great undertaking of faith, to the end that the people of Eastern Kentucky will be served by the finest medical institutions with the finest medical care available anywhere."

TAKES OVER

Wayland, Garrett Fives
Attracting Attention
With Early Showing

This week will see the majority of non-playing football schools in the Eastern Kentucky area open their 1963-64 basketball seasons. Several saw action over the past week-end for the first time.

The Wayland Wasps and the Garrett Black Devils, two 50th district teams, are drawing considerable early season attention.

Wayland has romped over four opponents. The latest were week-end triumphs over Betsy Layne, 94-88, and Hindman, 83-54, with all-around forward Brealey Williams pumping in 36 and 25 points in the two games. Senior guard Jack Stanford hit for 23 as the Wasps broke a 25-25 half-time deadlock to go ahead, 55-37, at the three-quarter mark. In four games, Wayland has averaged 93 points a game.

John Campbell's Garrett Black Devils trounced highly regarded Carr Creek, 72-83. Senior guards Keith Lawson and Jimmy Cox staged an amazing shooting display, with Lawson dropping in 33 and Cox 23. The Floyd county school stomped Hindman, 88-49, in its first win of the season.

Meade Memorial's Red Devils opened the first pre-season invitational tournament by downing Oil Springs, 82-89, in the Saturday finale. Van Lear won third place with an 83-69 conquest of Flat Gap. In the opening round games Oil Springs topped Van Lear, 81-62, and Meade Memorial whipped Flat Gap, 75-57.

Junior center Alvin Ratliff paced the scoring in the championship game with 23 points, followed by junior Ira Butler with 20. T. Blair was tops for the Springers with 19. Meade Memorial led 29-16, 40-24 and 60-38 at the quarter stops.

Martin's Purple Flash led Breathitt County until the final two minutes and then ran into foul trouble as they suffered a 59-54 setback. Larry Hall and David Mayo were forced to the sidelines, and James Turner took over to tie the victory for Farcie Woods' Bob Cats. Martin led, 15-13, in the first period. Breathitt moved ahead, 27-25, at halftime, and 43-41 as the final period began. E. Turner and J. Turner collected 25 and 19 points, while David Mayo hit 17 and Larry Hall 14 for the losers.

Rob Tallent, Maytown's ace scorer, scorched the nets for 39 points in pacing the Wildcats over Hellier, 79-70, and McDowell won two games on a road trip, beating Letcher County, 75-52, and Cordia, 93-82. Wheelwright successfully opened the season with an 80-79 decision over Warfield.

BIG FREEZE

Effects of last winter's freeze is still showing up on the citrus market. The 1963-64 crop of early, mid-season and navel oranges for the United States is forecast at 44.4 million boxes, down 25 percent from last year and 32 percent below the 1957-'61 average.

Cawood Calls Football

Cawood Ledford, WHAS sports director

"You ain't seen nothin' yet," that phrase was a trademark of Al Jolson when talking about his own act to his audience. But he could have been talking to the Kentucky Wildcats this week.

A disappointing Kentucky team will travel to Waco, Texas this week-end for a football engagement with the Baylor Bears. Among the college quarterbacks this year, Baylor has the best in Don Trull. Kentucky has already faced some of the best: George Mira, of Miami, Auburn's Jimmy Sidle, Georgia's Larry Rakestraw and Virginia Tech's Bob Schweikert, but the Cats "ain't seen nothin' yet."

Baylor's "Dandy" Don leads the nation in passing and in total offense. He led the nation in passing last year and won the Sammy Baugh Award for his flinging. Here's what some opposing coaches have said about Don Trull. TCU Coach Abe Martin says, "Trull is the best I've seen since I became head coach." Texas Coach Frank Broyles... "Having Trull is like having a coach on the field." Oregon State Coach Tommy Frothro... "I'm voting for Trull for All-American... He's the best in the country." Walter Robertson, sports editor for the Dallas News, wrote: "If there is a better quarterback in the country than Trull, there will have to be something bigger than All-American to include him."

Don Trull passes often and effectively. Last season he completed over 54 percent of his passes, and this year he's running ahead of that tremendous feat. Trull is unique among college quarterbacks in that he frequently changes the play at the line of scrimmage. Against Oregon State he changed his call over the ball 22 times, and picked State's defenses apart.

It's been a long season for the sophomore-dominated Wildcats. Week after week they've had to face the best in the business. But they "ain't seen nothin' yet." This week they face Baylor's "Dandy" Don Trull, the best of the best.

What's Going On in FISH & WILDLIFE by MINOR CLARK, Commissioner Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources

The severe drought that has ravaged Kentucky this year has furnished much speculation as to the effect such arid conditions may have had on game populations this hunting season.

Many persons believe that the exceedingly dry weather may have caused severe damage to the quail and rabbit crop. This is based on speculation that insufficient water may have caused the bunnies and the bobwhites to die. This speculation is not valid in the opinion of biologists and game management personnel. They believe that, while the drought was one of the most severe ever encountered at this time of the year, it had little or no effect on wildlife from the standpoint of mortality.

They reason that quail are able to obtain enough water on which to survive from the heavy dews; that although some streams and ponds dried up, these quail still were able to obtain sufficient water for the early morning drink from the blades of grasses or weeds. In like manner they reason that the great majority of the rabbits were of sufficient size when the drought began to be able to fend for themselves from the standpoint of water; that they were able to travel great distances and will travel many miles to obtain a drink of water.

From the standpoint of food it is reasoned that most of the weed and hay seed on which birds feed had matured before the advent of the drought and therefore there should be no shortage of food. The same holds true for nuts and mast material on which the squirrels feed, so that Mr. Bushyhead, too, will have enough food in his larder to last him through the winter.

There is one serious wildlife factor resulting from the drought and that is the forest and field fires which may have, in given areas, destroyed habitat of both the birds and animals. Of course, a burned-over field or woodlot would offer very little surcease to the famine and thirst of both birds and beasts. So, the damage of the drought to wildlife may very well be measured in the amount of habitat destroyed outright by the fires, and we hope that is not too great.

SBA Manager Announces
Business Start Program;
Conferences Scheduled

Prospective business owners will have an opportunity to learn the advantages and disadvantages in starting their own business through a new program announced by R. B. Blankenship, manager of the Louisville branch office of the Small Business Administration.

Mr. Blankenship said the program, the first of its kind in Kentucky, calls for one-day conferences for men and women considering starting a business of their own or planning to buy an established one. The conferences will be conducted entirely by SBA and will be available without charge.

"These conferences are open to individuals from all walks of life," Mr. Blankenship said. "They will cover subjects concerning the launching of a business, including organization, location of a firm, financing, business regulations, insurance, taxes, personal factors, management and administrative problems, and the need for advice and assistance from other sources, such as government agencies, attorneys, accountants and bankers."

Mr. Blankenship said that in 1962 there were about 430,000 new business starts. During the same period, some 370,000 businesses were discontinued. "A large percentage of these business failures can be directly attributed to lack of management experience and know-how," he explained. "The need for management knowledge is essential for business success, and it is SBA's aim to inform potential business owners of the advantages and disadvantages of going into business for themselves."

Registrations for the conference, are being accepted by SBA's branch office, located at 1950 Commonwealth Building, Fourth and Broadway, Louisville, Kentucky. Although the agency is limiting each conference to 30 participants, those not included in the first 30 registering may be included in conferences to be conducted at a later date.

HUNTERS ARE ASSURED
FULL HUNTING SEASON

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 7 (Sp.) — Hunting seasons interrupted by the recent fire hazards in Kentucky have been permitted to enjoy the full number of days originally designated. Minor Clark, commissioner of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, reported today following a poll of members of the Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission.

The archery deer hunting season which was due to close on November 15 but in which the hunters lost 15 days, has been extended from November 15 through November 21 with a later season opening on December 6 and extending through December 15. Hunting is permitted in the 48 open counties which have been previously designated.

The first phases of the squirrel season was due to close on October 31 but hunters lost 13 days. These days have been added to the end of the second phase of the season which opens in both the eastern and western zones on November 21. The new ending date for the western area is December 15 while for the eastern zone the season will end on December 31.

Twelve days were lost to the archery deer and turkey hunters on Kentucky woodlands and this was compensated for by the addition of split seasons to open on December 2 and continue through December 7; reopen on December 9 and continue through December 14.

New dates for the archery deer hunt on Bluegrass Ordinance area near Richmond are as follows: November 16-17; November 21-21; and November 23-December 1, while the gun deer season on that area will be on December 7 and 8. The Ft. Campbell gun deer season has been reset for November 23 and 21 with either sex deer harvestable while the archery season on this area will coincide with the statewide season. Shooting preserves, which were due to close on March 31, will get an extension ending on April 14. A primitive weapons season, on a designated area in Bath and Menifee counties, has been changed with the archery season extending from November 2 through November 29. The gun season for deer is unchanged, November 27, 28, 29 and December 1. The squirrel season has been set for November 21 through December 31, while the grouse season, December 1 through January 29, is unchanged. Only muzzle loading rifles and muzzle loading shotguns and long bows and crossbows may be used in this designated area. Two days lost in the dove season will be added to the second phase of the season if approved and signed by Stewart Udall, Secretary of the Interior.

COOKING HINT To prepare a Pork-and-Potato Scallop, using some of this month's plentiful foods, blend sliced, uncooked potatoes and an onion-flavored white sauce in an oven-to-table casserole dish. Top with inch-thick pork chops. Cover and bake about 45 minutes at 375 degrees. Remove the cover and continue baking until the chops are brown. Garnish with sliced tomato and serve.

BABE DIES

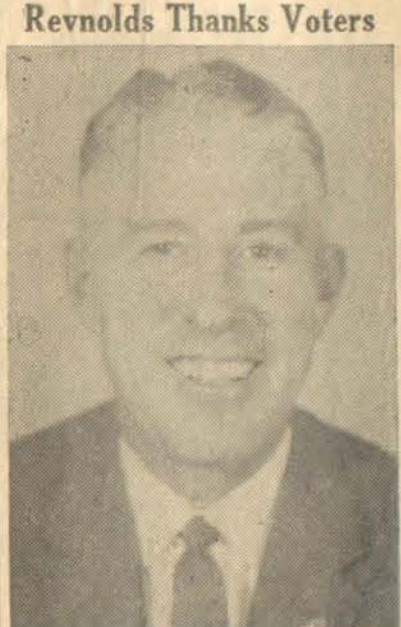

Shelia Faye Shepherd, 20-month-old daughter of Woodrow and Glendene Case Shepherd, of Printer, died November 7 at the Pikeville Appalachian Regional hospital following a short illness.

Junior need no longer hide under the bed when castor oil is mentioned.

Nowadays, only one percent of castor oil used goes for medicinal purposes. Three-fifths of the 127 million pounds used last year went into paints and varnishes, according to USDA.

I wish to take this means to thank all my friends, relatives and voters for the majority given me in the recent election for Representative.

During the campaign I explained my program for Kentucky and Floyd county and I am sure most of you are acquainted with it. I will do my best to carry it out. I have but one interest and that is your interest and I shall always be glad to hear your views on proposed legislation and programs.

Two roads in western North Carolina, one running south to Atlanta, the other west into Tennessee. If approved by President John F. Kennedy and Congress, the roads would be built under supervision of the Bureau of Public Roads and an Appalachian development corporation on an 80-20 percent cost-sharing basis. The corporation would be a regional body directed by state governors and federal officials. The roads, called development highways, would be a departure from the generally accepted theory that highways are built for anticipated traffic. These roads would be designed to attract traffic, stimulating industrial growth and tourism. The highways would connect isolated sections with population centers or good established highways such as the "backbone" interstate system scheduled for completion in 1972. U. S. agricultural assets ($214 billion) are more than two-thirds the value of current assets of all U. S. corporations.

VOTE COUNT IS RESTRICTED

To 115 State Counties; Other 5 Counties Used Paper Ballot Method

Larry Layne, state campaign chairman for the nine G.O.P. candidates for state office who asked for the recount, said Monday that it would be confined to the 115 counties having voting machines. In those counties election commissioners check machine totals against the reported figures.

Kentucky's five other counties use paper ballots, and a recount of them would require circuit court action.

Breathitt won last Tuesday by about 13,000 votes. The canvassing was sought because G.O.P. campaign workers reported wide-spread voting irregularities.

Democratic headquarters at Frankfort, the only place where a running total of the recount is being kept, said the canvassing had brought these changes:

Ballard, a gain of 12 for Nunn and 23 for Breathitt; Breckinridge, a loss of nine for Breathitt; Campbell, a pickup of eight for Nunn; Floyd, an extra seven for Nunn; Grayson, a gain of one for Nunn; Greenup, a loss of 30 for Breathitt; Metcalfe, an additional nine for Breathitt; Ohio, a drop of five for Breathitt; Scott, a pickup of 50 for Nunn, and Warren, a loss of three for Breathitt.

The official Jefferson county tabulation, which shows a gain of 66 for Nunn, has been completed in seven city wards. The count is incomplete in the five other wards and the three districts in the county.

FORD GROUP EXTENDS AID

Quarter-Million Dollars Given To Assist Section; Floyd-Co. Sees Benefits

Berea, Ky., November 9—Seldom does the giving of a large sum of money reach as far into the life of the people as will the grant of the Ford Foundation to the Council of the Southern Mountains, announced on November 7. By the express terms of the grant, Floyd county can co-operate in the enterprise and reap great gain over the next few years.

The Ford Foundation is furnishing a quarter of a million dollars in the expectation that this sum, used under the direction of The Council of the Southern Mountains, will provide the people of each county with a better understanding of their hope as well as their difficulties; that it will result in new approaches to education to prepare for work and citizenship in a shifting world; that pilot projects in education and community planning will become the standard for related accomplishment all through the Appalachian South.

This program is not merely a plan to "help the helpless" but a straightforward attempt to develop people's abilities to act on their own behalf. It is based on the fact that most people in the mountains are unemployable chiefly because they are unskilled for the work that is needed today, increasing their poverty and further limiting their usefulness.

The plan made possible by the Ford grant suggests no quick or easy remedy but offers a strong hope for people who tend to think their plight is hopeless. State by state, county by county, every resident of the uplands will have the chance to gain by this daring and thorough departure from previous methods.

The Council leaders believe that no area can be really developed unless the abilities of the people are developed to the maximum. Pilot projects to do just this and to show how it can be done on a mass basis will be the first step undertaken by the Council under this grant.

The education project will hold conferences for educators and encourage pilot programs designed to improve and enrich public education in the Appalachian South. Stay-in-school campaigns, cultural enrichment and adult education programs will be started.

The Council will offer matching grants to schools interested in starting such programs. Funds will also be available for hiring emeritus status and "Peace Corps" type workers, in special areas.

Outstanding consultants will be brought to the Appalachian South to staff conferences and seminars involving administrators, teachers and school board members.

The research project will set up a clearinghouse service on Appalachian research. It will collect and systematize all known research, seek to correlate research plans and techniques in order to have total coverage, and will do research or encourage it in areas where knowledge is needed.

The publication project will publish research data and other significant literature. These materials will be made available to mountain leaders and other students of the region.

The executive committee of the board of directors will meet in Berea, November 26, the Committee on Education will meet in Atlanta on December 5, and Floyd county will be invited to take part in this next step toward its own development by its own initiative and under its own leadership.

Combs said he would seek a moderate automobile-inspection law—stressing moderate. Asked why the stress, he replied:

"We don't want to go overboard, but at the same time I think we ought to make a start. Too many people are getting killed, and we are opening more and more miles of high-speed roads."

State Police reported Monday that the 1963 traffic toll was 700 dead so far, compared with 689 in the same period last year.

A compulsory-inspection bill passed the Senate in 1962, but was killed in the House.

Nineteen states and the District of Columbia require inspections. Statistics show that these states have a fatality rate nearly 20 percent lower than the rest of the nation.

Kentucky Now Leading In Using Federal Funds For Highway Building

Frankfort, Ky. — Kentucky has vaulted to the front in its regular federal aid highway building program.

Statistics just released by the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads in Washington, D. C. show Kentucky as the only state in the nation now obligating 1965 fiscal year federal funds for its so-called ABC or regular federal aid program. This is the program under which the state matches on a dollar for dollar basis the money apportioned by the federal government.

"This unique position of leadership means that Kentucky will get modern highways under this program at least a year sooner than it ordinarily would," according to Highway Commissioner Henry Ward. "It further means," Ward said, "that taxpayers of this state are getting immediate results from their tax dollars in the form of new, modern highways. Regardless of whether the funds are federal or state, it is the taxpayers who are paying into the various funds and they deserve to have those dollars spent as rapidly as possible for the purposes they were intended."

By obligating now federal funds which become available next year, the Highway Department can move ahead with preliminary engineering and other planning necessary for bringing projects to the construction stage. Immediately then, as funds become available, projects can be advertised and let to contract. Forty states are still obligating 1964 federal funds and others are still trying to match 1963 and 1962 federal funds, according to the statistics released in Washington.

Solomon W. McGuire and Thomas J. Ritchie

Two distinguished citizens of Johns Creek section a few decades ago were Solomon McGuire, landowner and banker, and Thomas J. Ritchie, Union veteran and farmer. They were brothers-in-law. McGuire was a native of Floyd county but Ritchie was born in Russell county, Va.

McGuire, born in 1850, married first Sarah Burchett and after her death, Callie Wells. He died in 1934, was buried on the family farm, but after Dewey Lake was impounded his remains were reinterred in a new family cemetery in Lawrence county. He was the father of 11 sons and daughters.

Ritchie, born in 1842, served 17 months in the Union army in the 45th Kentucky Mounted Infantry and was mustered out on account of a wound. He married Elizabeth Esther McGuire in 1869. They were the parents of four children; one daughter, Mrs. Florence McCarrell, survives.

The First National Bank salutes these two distinguished sons of our yesterdays and recognizes their worth and contribution to the area.

Growth Of Town Of Allen Told In Increasing Number Of Its Telephone Patrons

"The growth of Allen, Kentucky over the past 40 years can be significantly shown by comparing the number of telephones in service in 1920, (25), to those presently in operation today (527)," A. Guy Hisle, local manager of Southern Bell Telephone Company, told the Allen Lions Club at its regular Monday evening dinner meeting.

"Floyd county as a whole has also been part of this same spiraling growth trend, jumping from 224 telephones in 1920 to 1,874 in 1950, and finally rising to the present total of 4,496 telephones in operation in the Southern Bell system alone as of this month," Hisle added.

In constructing the new telephone plant facilities that made possible this year's portion of this growth and improvement, Mr. Hisle informed the club that more than $215,000 had been spent in 1963 in the Prestonsburg-Pointsville area alone, and that over $220,000 is in the new construction budget for 1964.

Hisle said that in the future the people can look forward to greatly improved "electronic" central offices, "TV" picture phones, Masers (light beam transmission of messages) and a commercial communication satellite system. All of these items, he informed the club, are presently either in the trial-stage stages or under initial development at the Bell Telephone Laboratories in New Jersey.

Club vice-president Harry Snodgrass presided at the meeting, and the speaker was introduced by Randall Allen, program chairman.

Mrs. Whitmer Named Nursing Services Head At McDowell Hospital

McDowell, Ky. — Mrs. Ruth S. Whitmer, B.N., a graduate of Prestonsburg high school, was recently promoted to the position of director of nursing services at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, according to J. Fred Bingham, administrator.

The daughter of J. E. Stanley, of Prestonsburg, Mrs. Whitmer received her diploma in nursing from the Louisville General Hospital School of Nursing. She is a member of the Kentucky State Association of Registered Nurses, the Kentucky League of Nursing, the American Nurses' Association, and the Louisville General Hospital School of Nursing Alumnae.

Mrs. Whitmer has been associated with the hospital at McDowell since October, 1956, first as an assistant head nurse, then as assistant director of nursing services. Her recent promotion to director of nursing services was effected soon after the McDowell hospital was transferred to the ownership and management of Appalachian Regional Hospitals, Inc.

OLDEST STATE LODGE TO OBSERVE BIRTHDAY

Lexington Lodge No. 1, F. & A. M., the oldest and largest lodge in Kentucky, will celebrate its 175th anniversary on November 21, with a banquet at the Phoenix Hotel at 7 p.m., in Lexington.

In 1788—four years before Kentucky became a state—this lodge was chartered as Lexington Lodge No. 25, by the Grand Lodge of Virginia; the charter was dated November 17, 1783, and issued to "Richard C. Anderson, John Fowler, Clay Green and others to hold a regular lodge of Free Masons at the town of Lexington, in the District of Kentucky. The charter was signed by Edmund Randolph, Grand Master of Virginia, and Governor of the Commonwealth in 1788-87. Colonel Richard C. Anderson, a Revolutionary War veteran was the first Master of Lexington Lodge No. 25.

When the Grand Lodge of Kentucky was formed in Lexington, October 16, 1830, Lexington Lodge No. 25, by virtue of it being the oldest lodge in the Western Country took the name and title—Lexington Lodge No. 1, F. & A. M.

The first "Masons' Hall" was a small log building at the corner of Walnut and Short streets; this was replaced by a substantial brick building in 1796; it was destroyed by fire in 1819. Henry Clay, noted statesman and Master of Ashland, was Master of Lexington Lodge No. 1, in 1820, and was Grand Master in the same year. Other famous Masons of this lodge include John Bradford, founder of the Kentucky Gazette, Colonel Joseph Hamilton Daviess, Robert S. Todd (father of Mrs. Abraham Lincoln), Governor John J. Crittenden, General Leslie Combs, John Postlethwait, General Green Clay (father of Cassius M. Clay), Judge George M. Bibb, William T. Barry, Felix Grundy, John Pope, John Rowan, builder of "My Old Kentucky Home," Jesse Bledsoe, Edward West, Harry Innes, Dr. Frederick Riddle, and John Jordan.

When Gen. Marquis de Lafayette, a member of the Order, visited Lexington in May, 1825, he was royally entertained with a supper and dance in the Grand Masonic Hall, and a Masonic breakfast the next morning.

Through the Civil War, Lexington Lodge No. 1, was strongly pro-Confederate in sympathy and only one or two meetings were held during the entire war period; its lodge hall having been taken over by the federal soldiers as a prison and hospital.

There have been two Grand Masonic Halls in Lexington, occupied by Lexington Lodge No. 1; the first built in 1825, burned in 1836; the second erected in 1841 was razed in 1861. The present Masonic Temple at 141-46 North Broadway was erected and dedicated in December, 1915.

Lexington Lodge No. 1 has probably produced more Grand Masters than any lodge in the state, the list would include William Murray, James Morrison, John Jordan, Jr., George M. Bibb, Joseph Hamilton Daviess, Daniel Bradford, Thomas Bodley, Samuel M. Woodson, Henry Clay, John McKinney, Jr., John M. McCalla, Derrick Warner, William Holloway, Garrett D. Buckner, J. Scoble Smith and G. Allison Holland.

Some outstanding Masons Lexington Lodge No. 1 has furnished in the last quarter of a century have been Marvin S. Whitton, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky; Chester D. Adams and G. Allison Holland, Grand High Priests of the Grand Chapter of Kentucky; C. Frank Cramer and Ray S. Stewart, Grand Masters of the Grand Council of Kentucky; James W. Martindale and E. Creighton Wilcoxon, Grand Commanders of the Grand Commandery of Kentucky.

Lexington Lodge No. 1, has a membership of around 1,700 members. John E. Hawkins is the present Master.

Gideons To Speak In Floyd Churches

The Gideons, an organization of Christian businessmen, will speak in various churches of the community next Sunday morning.

ASKS HIGHER SCHOOL LEVY

KEA Leader Claims School Boards Need Power To Up Rates

Louisville, Ky.—The executive secretary of the Kentucky Education Association has called for an all-out effort to give local boards of education the authority to improve the quality of education through the right to levy higher school taxes. Writing editorially in the current issue of the association's official publication, Dr. J. M. Dodson says this is essential if local school boards are to "have the opportunity to provide the school program that is wanted and needed."

Dodson cites the KEA's 1964 Legislative Program as being designed to provide "more quality in our educational programs." He says that one point in that program is particularly important: "Permit school boards to increase local tax rates beyond present maximums, with provision that reduced assessment ratios will have no adverse effect on local school systems."

He goes on to quote specific points in the legislative programs of the Kentucky School Boards Association and the Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers which call for essentially the same action. These two groups specifically ask that the maximum school tax rate be increased from $1.50 to $2.00.

He concludes from this that the three groups most concerned and informed on school needs—teachers, (See Story No. 1, Page 6)

parents and administrators—are in agreement on the importance of this action. "If anyone should know what needs to be done to improve schools," he reports, "these groups should."

As Dodson points out, the KEA has been in the forefront for many years of the struggle to bring Kentucky schools up to the level of those in adjoining states. These efforts, in cooperation with other groups interested in better schools, resulted in the establishment of the state's Minimum Foundation Program and its adequate financing.

As the Legislature originally created it, the Foundation Program, according to Dodson, had two purposes:
(1) to guarantee a minimum program in every school system, regardless of the local ability to support schools; and
(2) to make it possible to go beyond the minimum in any school system where the people wish to do so.

He reports that increased financing by the state, especially through the sales tax, has brought about a drastic increase in the minimum program, with no increase in the required local contribution. However, increasing costs of instructional materials and reduced assessment ratios have reduced the amount available to the local board of education to put the "quality" into the local program.

Dodson replies to the argument that the people in a school system can hold a referendum and "vote" a tax rate beyond the present maximums with this rebuttal: "The general public is much more ready to accept a program which already is in effect than they are one which is put to them as a possibility when and if a tax increase is approved. Or, to paraphrase an old saying, 'a bird in the hand' is much more real and understandable than 'a bird in the bush.'"

He concludes with a call to teachers and others during the next few months "to bring forth the light of understanding on this problem, and to develop public acceptance of the idea that local school boards must have the opportunity to provide the school program that is wanted and needed."

Absentee-Voter Ruling Is Explained by Court; Commissioner Comments

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 1 — The legislature may limit absentee voting to classes without violating the state and U. S. constitutions, the Court of Appeals said Friday.

Explaining a previous order unbolting the 1962 absentee voting law, the high court said the State Constitution sets forth no limitation of legislative power on absentee voting.

"... We conclude that the legislature may select the recipients of this privilege (consistent with other requirements of the Constitution)," Annette Commissioner Beverly Waddill said.

The 1962 law, designed to correct abuses in voting by absentee ballot, limits absentee voting to three classes of voters.

The previous law permitted anyone to vote by absentee ballot if he were required by business to be absent from his county on election day.

"Admittedly," Waddill said, "they (the 1962 statutes) do not include many otherwise qualified voters who might normally be absent from the county of their residence on the day of an election."

He said, however, the classes selected by the legislature "appear to be the only large identifiable classes that accomplish the object of the legislation."

The 1962 law limits absentee voting to federal employees, full-time students, members of the armed services, and merchant marine, and religious or welfare employees connected with the armed services, along with their wives and dependents.

Section 147 of the State Constitution, which says that any person absent from his home county on election day may be permitted to vote in a manner provided by law, does not necessarily mean it applies to all voters, Waddill said.

The 1962 law was held invalid by Jefferson Circuit Judge Lawrence Grauman last month on grounds that it conferred a special privilege on a special class of voters.
