This Town . . . That World

The mumps have (or has) hit town. "What's so confounded funny about a-body having the mumps?" one of our adult readers wants to know.

NO SALE

That "a-body" expression reminds us of the suggestion a woman was making to her son that he do this and that about the place. "You'd be surprised what a a-body could do if he wanted to," she remarked. To which the uninspired listener rejoined:

"Yes, and it's work like that that makes a-body a body."

STRONG, MAN!

Have you heard the story of the city feller who came this way, listened to a story one of the natives was telling, and returned, wide-eyed, to his motel room to tell his wife a yarn about a mountain Paul Bunyan.

"I tell you, my dear," he related, "this man is so strong he can shake a house."

When the wife expressed some doubt he told her exactly what they told him. "They said this man got angry with his neighbor and rocked his house."

As regularly as the years roll around Paul C. Linkous, of Wheelwright, renews his subscription to this family journal, and just as regularly he favors me with a note worth reading. This week he writes:

Did you hear about the Cajun who said, "My friend Como was told me bout dem yalligator shoe what wear so long time and I was decide I am gone get some of dem shoe. So I brought myself in my pircan boat to the swamp and was look for seven or six hour until I find a yalligator my size. When I was shot dat yalligator and pull him to de boat, what you thot? Dat yalligator don't got shoe number one!"

P.S. Hoping you are NOT the same!

WHO—ME?

And this, sent by some friend whose address I've lost, you know where: "Old fishermen never die—they just smell that way!" (See Story No. 1, Page 6)

APPALACHIAN PLAN UNFOLDED FOR AREA

PAINTSVILLE MEETING SET FOR MONDAY

Eastern Kentucky May Get $1 Billion If Program Okehd

The long-awaited Appalachian Plan of the Johnson administration which will be submitted to Congress February 25 will recommend $41 million for the depressed areas of a tier of ten states. A billion dollars of that sum will be asked for Eastern Kentucky.

How Congress will react to this staggering request for a poverty-stricken region is an unanswerable question. There are those who think the Congress, in the light of experience with foreign aid, will scrutinize the bill with misgivings. Others think the weight of administration will prevail and insure its passage.

A series of meetings will be held next week to explain the plan to community leaders. The meeting for this area will be held at 6 p.m. Monday at Paintsville.

If passed it offers a new approach to the problems of the mountain sections extending from Western Pennsylvania to Northern Alabama and Georgia. They will be treated organically, not symptomatically. Instead of relief and welfare problems of dubious permanent effects the money will be spent on roads, airports, natural resource development and health and education services.

3 ARRESTED FOR BREAKS

Gas Stations Target Of Trio; Break Series Admitted To Officers

Three men arrested in a series of breaks into Floyd business places last week told State Detective Chester D. Potter, Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo and County Attorney Barkley J. Sturgill the complete story of their activities after intensive questioning last Friday night.

The three, who were jailed here by Potter and Martin Policeman T. J. Reed the preceding day, are Willard Earle Collier, Donald Tackett and William Smith. All three are charged with breaking and entering and safe burglary.

The trio apparently centered their attention on service stations. Among such businesses looted were Ison's Pure Oil Station at Martin, Palmer Patton's here, Bobby Hall's at McDowell, and Ernie Thornsbury's at Price. The Ted Newman Store at H Hat also was entered.

Cigarette and pinball machines were rifled, and at Ison's Service Station $51 bills were taken. Detective Potter recovered most of the money taken, it was said.

HURTS FATAL TO DAMRON

Grethel Road Accident Claims Pike Resident; Others Are Injured

James A. Damron, 20, of Robinson Creek, Pike county, died about 1:30 p.m. Monday of last week at the Pikeville Methodist hospital of injuries suffered in an automobile accident at Grethel, this county, about 7 p.m. the preceding day.

He was one of seven Robinson Creek youths who were occupants of a 1955 model automobile which went out of control in a sharp curve and plunged over a steep embankment about six-tenths of a mile north of the junction of Branham's Creek Road and Kentucky Highway 979.

Seriously injured in the accident was his brother, Vernon Damron, 16, who was removed from the Methodist hospital to the University of Kentucky Medical Center at Lexington for surgery.

Another brother, of the two, Charles Damron, 17, who also was in the car was listed with no injuries. (See Story No. 6, Page 6)

TWO GUILTY PLEAS MADE

Fines, Terms Imposed; Defendants Ask Appeal From Ram Convictions

Two liquor law violation defendants entered pleas of guilty in quarterly court this week but after having been fined $20 each and sentenced to 30-day jail terms appealed their cases to circuit court.

The defendants in these cases were Afton Martin, accused of possessing alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale, and Willie (Bear) Little, who was charged with possessing beer for the same purpose. The selling charge against Martin was filed away, subject to being rebooked, but this action was taken before he moved to appeal the possession conviction.

Possession and selling charges against Mrs. Buddy Hall were dismissed on motion of County Attorney Barkley J. Sturgill after Sam B. Reed, of Wayland, who signed the affidavit accusing her, advised the court that she was not the person from whom he bought the alcoholic beverages in question.

Under the circumstances, County Attorney Sturgill said, the search warrant was invalid. In his dismissal motion Sturgill wrote:

"The Commonwealth is well aware that alcoholic beverages are kept on these premises, and it is disappointing to the prosecution that the prosecuting witness failed to identify the proper person so that a deserved conviction could be made in this instance."

Sturgill commented that this is the first instance of his having been obliged to move for a dismissal in this type of violation. He noted, however, that any conviction under a void affidavit would be readily set aside. "It is my duty," he said, "to protect those erroneously charged as well as to prosecute those who are guilty."

OUT OF THE PAST. Circuit Clerk Frank DeRossett is shown holding the hangman's rope with which Gus Finley was hanged here in 1882. Since the day of the hanging the rope had lain hidden from public view, in a box inside the vault of the Circuit Clerk's office. Mr. DeRossett found it soon after taking office last month and hung it from a nail on the wall. Finley's prediction, made on the scaffold, that he would be the last to be hanged in this county was fulfilled, legal execution now being by electrocution. Only one other man in the history of the county has been executed for a crime.

ROCK ROLLS FROM HILLSIDE FATALLY INJURING BOY, 9

Henry Clayton Woods, nine-year-old Emma boy, died Saturday, a few minutes after arrival at the emergency room of the Prestonsburg General hospital. Death was due to a skull injury received in the road near his home.

The boy had left home at approximately 3 p.m. to go to a neighbor's home to watch television. He passed the scene where some workmen were getting logs down a mountain, and one of the logs, it is said, dislodged a rock which rolled down the hillside and struck the victim.

He was a son of Frankie and Rosie Endicott Woods, who survive. Surviving brothers and sisters are Frankie Lee Woods and Mrs. Irene Hunter, both of Emma. Mrs. Lula Mae Burchett, Mrs. Evelyn Mays, James Edward Woods and William Afton Woods, all of Columbus, Ohio. He also leaves his grandmother, Mrs. Christy Childers, of Emma.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday at 1 p.m. from the Free Will Baptist Church on Cow Creek, the Revs. Henry Crider and William Ambruge officiating. Burial was made in the Woods cemetery on Cow Creek under the direction of Carter & Callihan Funeral Home.

TRAINING CLASSES SLATED TO ASSIST AREA JOBLESS

Twenty-six more job training classes will open in Kentucky this month under the recent $8.7 million grant to Kentucky for training and educating the jobless youth and adults of a 44-county area of Eastern Kentucky.

The new classes, offering 19 different types of instruction, will be open to about 500 new trainees, the State Departments of Education and Economic Security said. Most classes will begin February 24.

The Prestonsburg Employment Service office is taking applications and interviewing female applicants for training as clerk-stenographer, under the Manpower Development and Training Act. This course will be given by the Mayo State Vocational School at the Prestonsburg high school building, and will begin Monday, February 24.

To qualify for this course the applicant must be unemployed, under 22 years of age and from a low-income family.

Currently, 322 trainees are enrolled in retraining classes under this project and the total is expected to reach about 3,300 in about 50 kinds of jobs.

Samuel C. Evans, training coordinator for the Department of Economic Security, said that applications for February and later months are being accepted at all 12 area offices of the State Employment Service which serve the 44 counties.

Evans said applications for any course may be received at any of these 12 Employment Service offices until a week prior to the start of the course. One major exception is enrollment in a course for dental assistants, which will be offered over a 36-week period at the Jefferson County Vocational School. Applications for this course, which opened today, will be received until February 17.

Adults enrolled in these retraining projects will receive $32 weekly for training allowance. Special courses for youths aged 17 to 21 are also available with weekly training allowances of $16. Additional travel or living allowances are also available for trainees who reside beyond traveling distance from their class locations, Evans said.

The classes range in duration from 26 to 52 weeks and offer instruction in subjects which range from auto body repair to clerk-stenography. Some training courses also include basic education coursework for trainees who are lacking in formal education.

Employment service offices taking applications are located at Prestonsburg, Hazard, Somerset, Corbin, Harlan, Pikeville, Danville, Glasgow, Winchester, Maysville, Morehead, Ashland and Middlesboro.

The State Education Department offers the instruction under the supervision of seven of the state's 14 area vocational schools: Ashland, Somerset, Mayo (Paintsville), Hazard, Harlan, Lexington Lafayette (at the old Clark county high school) and Jefferson County.

AUTO SALE IS SOUGHT

Stumbo and Sturgill Seeking Confiscation Of Branham Auto

The recently announced policy of the Floyd circuit court to confiscate and sell property used in bootlegging operations, after conviction of the person accused, was set into action this week.

Commonwealth's Attorney Harold Stumbo and County Attorney Barkley Sturgill, acting jointly, filed on behalf of the Commonwealth a circuit court complaint to sell a 1953 model Chevrolet automobile owned by Greenville Branham, of Prestonsburg, who was convicted in circuit court here recently.

Branham was indicted on a liquor possession charge, January 23, 1963. He was given trial January 22, this year, fined $20 and given a 30-day jail term. Evidence showed, the petition points out, that 10 cases of beer were found in the trunk of defendant's auto.

The confiscation and sale action is taken under provisions of KRS 242.310. Proceeds of the sale are to be forfeited to the Commonwealth.

Commonwealth's Attorney Stumbo said Branham's was the first liquor law conviction in which property was involved since January 1 when new court officials took office.

NEW OPINION LESS STRICT

Floyd-Co. Situation Studied by Matthews; Alternative Offered

In a sweeping opinion relating to the place of religion, and especially prayer, in the public schools of the state, Attorney General Robert Matthews last Friday discussed a specific Floyd county situation.

The Attorney General said that missionaries who have been making periodic visits to schools of the county and conducting religious services during regular class periods would, under the Supreme Court ruling, "be precluded from continuing such practices."

He added, however, that the Floyd County Board of Education may legally make available school-building space before or after regular classes, and that students could attend such services on a voluntary basis.

Matthews' opinion, given in response to a request from State Superintendent Harry L. Sparks, differed with the ruling handed down by his predecessor, John B. Breckinridge. Matthews held that pupils, but not teachers, may engage in "voluntary" prayer at school; Breckinridge, by attempting an evaluation of the effect of the Supreme Court decision, said Bible reading and prayer were illegal, even if voluntary.

Matthews said it was not his intention to stir controversy, but to carry out his responsibility to advise school officials on problems raised by the 1963 Supreme Court decisions.

"In our opinion, nothing objectionable would be found in a student, during a period of meditation, voluntarily or spontaneously saying a prayer, silent or vocal," Matthews wrote.

"Probably the same freedom would not extend to the teacher because he is cloaked with the (See Story No. 9, Page 4)

MOSES HALL FOUND DEAD

Former Floyd Man Bullet Wound Victim At Lexington Home

Moses Hall, 44, a native of McDowell, this county, was found dead Monday in the basement of his Lexington home. Death from a rifle bullet was apparently self-inflicted. The body was discovered by his wife.

Mr. Hall was a former Floyd county teacher, having served as principal of the Drift grade school. At the time of death he was salesman for a casket company. Several years ago he conducted a merchandise business at Salyersville. He was a veteran of World War II and was discharged with the rank of captain.

He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Milford Hall, Sr., of McDowell, and the husband of Lucy Howard Hall, who survives. Surviving is a son, Michael, at home. Surviving brothers and sisters are Wade Hall, Lexington, John C. Hall, Bereahall and Mrs. Verneice Stamper, all of Martin, Mrs. Flotina Elam, Louisville, and Mrs. Pauline Allen, of McDowell.

Funeral rites were conducted today (Thursday) at 2 p.m. from the Martin Methodist Church, the Revs. Lefty Sanders and James Stratton officiating. Burial was made in the Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

7 COUNTIES DESIGNATED FOR TRIALS

One-Dollar-Hour Rate Of Pay Is Prescribed; 276 Fathers Apply

County Judge Henry Stumbo and County Attorney Barkley J. Sturgill said Tuesday that they expect to confer this week with J. Sneed Yager, supervisor of public works projects under the recently announced federal public works demonstration project.

Seven Eastern Kentucky counties—Floyd, Pike, Perry, Breathitt, Letcher, Leslie and Knox—have been designated as the area where the program will be given a trial.

The program is part of an overall effort designed to combat economic distress in the region and will aid unemployed fathers of dependent children. The applicants must not be eligible for employment insurance benefits and must register for work with the State Employment Service with the understanding that they are available for work or job training at any and all times.

The first registration of unemployed fathers began at the State Employment Service office here, January 13, those registering applying for direct financial aid as being unemployed persons with children in a public school. From this group those who will be offered work at a wage rate of $1 an hour will come.

It was said at the State Employment Service here Tuesday, however, that as of Monday afternoon only 276 Floyd fathers had applied for this aid. Earle V. Powell, economic security commissioner, last week said that the Division of Public Assistance had at that time accepted 1,100 applications from the seven counties but that in some counties the number of applications had not been as numerous as expected.

DISEASES OF REGION SUBJECT OF STUDIES

Floyd is one of 18 Eastern Kentucky counties in which 11,000 children who will be six years old by January 1, 1965, will be examined in a federally financed health study scheduled to begin March 1.

Purpose of the study is to determine the extent and type of health conditions found in a "well" population. As a result, the U. S. Public Health Service expects to reach some estimates regarding the problems of malnutrition, congenital and rheumatic heart disease, parasitic infestation, tuberculosis and dental defects.

The U. S. Public Health Service will send doctors, nurses and laboratory technicians into the several counties to work with county health departments under sponsorship, or with the approval, of boards of education, county medical societies and county boards of health.

Besides Floyd, counties where the study will be made are Breathitt, Bell, Clay, Harlan, Jackson, Knott, Knox, Laurel, Lee, Leslie, Letcher, Martin, Owsley, Perry, Pike, Whitley and Wolfe.

HUGHES DIES IN ACCIDENT

Inland Mine Supervisor Victim Near Buchanan; Rites Held Wednesday

William F. Hughes, 50, of Wheelwright, was apparently killed instantly in an auto accident Saturday when the car he was driving left the highway near Buchanan, Lawrence county, and plunged into an embankment. He was alone at the time of the tragedy.

Mr. Hughes, who was returning home from a visit with his son at Ashland, apparently had fallen asleep while driving.

He was superintendent of underground operations of the Inland Steel Company at Wheelwright. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity.

Surviving are his parents, William Ernest and Sarah Fritz Hughes, Broadhead, Kentucky, and his wife, Lorene Elliott Hughes; one son, Larry Hughes, of Ashland; three brothers and one sister, Freeland Hughes, London, Kentucky, Dr. John T. Hughes, Russell, Kentucky, Robert Hughes, Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Selma Kelly, Noblesville, Indiana.

Funeral rites were conducted Wednesday at 11 a.m. from the Wheelwright Methodist Church, the Rev. Donald Guth officiating. Burial was made in the Rose Hill cemetery under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

CARL PERKINS DAY SET AT PAINTSVILLE

Dr. Harry M. Sparks, state superintendent of public instruction, will speak at the "Carl Perkins Day" banquet February 14 at Mayo Vocational School, Paintsville.

Dr. Sparks will discuss the benefits to Kentucky of the new federal vocational-technical job-training program.

He already has urged guidance counselors throughout the state to acquaint youth with technical opportunities available—including those for printing in the Mayo School and in the Somerset Vocational School. These youth also are being informed of job opportunities in the printing industry, he added, in response to a resolution passed at the recent Kentucky Press Association meeting.

The dinner session at Paints-ville will honor Congressman Perkins for his work in legislation that will broaden the vocational education program. He recently was awarded the annual citation and medal of the National Association of Vocational Administrators in Washington.

Perkins' efforts have been prominent in increased federal appropriations to vocational education—an increase of $1.5 billion during the last four years. Kentucky has received $4.5 million for administration and instruction during this period.

Also on the Paintsville program will be Dr. M. D. Mobley, executive secretary of the American Vocational Association, and Dr. Walter Arnold, assistant commissioner for Vocational Education in the U. S. Office of Education. They also will discuss the new legislation.

Whiskey and Beer-Laden Auto Seized by Trooper Elmo Allen

One of the biggest hauls of intoxicants to be taken from an automobile in this county was seized by Trooper Elmo Allen Wednesday afternoon at Lancer.

Allen, who spotted the car, a 1962 Chevrolet with Madison county license, south of Prestonsburg on U. S. 23, trailed the driver until he committed a traffic violation when he was ordered to pull off. Instead of doing so the driver fled and turned off into the Lancer Addition with Allen giving chase. Apprehended, the driver of the Chevrolet refused to submit to a search without a warrant.

Trooper Allen radioed Pikeville State Police barracks which in turn called the Floyd county sheriff's office. Deputy Sheriff

Sam Hale went to Lancer and guarded the car and prisoner until Allen could get a search warrant from the office of the county judge.

The prisoner gave his name as John D. Lewis, of Boldman. He was originally from Morgan county, he said. Trial Commissioner Glenn Burchett issued a warrant charging Lewis with transporting whiskey in a dry territory and asked $500 bond. Failing to execute the bond, Lewis was sent to jail. Trial was set Monday. His car was impounded.

Seized from the luggage compartment of the car were 166 half-pints of whiskey, 24 half-pints of gin, 12 fifths of whiskey and 488 cans of beer.

Strip-Mine Operations Must Face Responsibility

The Floyd County Times is sympathetic toward any legitimate industry which will afford men employment, and for that reason it has been loath to advocate a crackdown on strip-mining as an industry.

It becomes apparent, however, that in many instances the hillside land below such operations is being ruined by the spilling over of debris and mine waters and that streams and lands farther on downstream are affected.

At long last the Appalachian area is recognized as a major national problem. In the master plan for the area, which is now almost ready to be presented to the President and the Congress, serious thought has been given to the important matter of conservation, of reforestation and work which would make the region not only productive but one of great beauty.

Will state and federal governments work together in this endeavor? A mountainside gnawed out by machinery and strewn with rock and slate and raw earth is as unsightly as the blackened wake of the forest fire against which we all have long inveighed. We wonder if Kentucky will act to protect landowners and the area as a whole against such physical violation.

A large part of the rough terrain of this area does not lend itself to reclamation measures after the coal has been stripped. Strip-mining should be forbidden in such places, but on less precipitous slopes, where reclamation—real reclamation, not the proverbial "lick and a promise"—can be done, this method of mining should be permitted.

The neighboring state of Ohio has done a noteworthy job, we are told, in enforcing its strip-mining laws. Perhaps Kentucky needs new and stiffer legislation governing the industry. Certainly it will need more effective enforcement of whatever law is on, or gets on, the statute books.

We do not suggest wholesale condemnation of the stripping of coal. But we do maintain that those who do this type of mining should be required to meet, fully, the responsibility they have to answer to landowners, the public, the state itself and future generations.

LAWMAKERS APPROVE CONSTITUTION STUDY

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 11 (Sp.)—The 1964 General Assembly passed one milestone and approached another last week.

It completed passage of a bill creating a Constitutional Revision Assembly and awaited introduction Monday of a $1 billion-plus budget to operate state government for the next two years.

Governor Edward T. Breathitt was scheduled to present his first budget message to the General Assembly at a 2 p.m. joint session Monday. Both houses adjourned Friday until 1 p.m. Monday.

The Constitutional Revision Assembly, created to draft a model state constitution for consideration by the people, will consist of 50 members named by a committee consisting of the governor, lieutenant governor, speaker of the House of Representatives and chief justice of the Court of Appeals.

Breathitt announced after signing the bill into law at a press conference Friday that the 50 members consisting of all former governors, five delegates from the state-at-large and one delegate from each of the 38 Senatorial districts would hold their first meeting in the Old Capitol Building here at 1 p.m., February 17.

One of the bills introduced in the House late last week was drafted by the State Commission on Human Rights and calls for a ban on discrimination in places of public accommodations in Kentucky. It was sponsored by Louisville Representatives Norbert L. Blume, Charles "Mickey" O'Brien, Arthur L. Johnson, Jr., and J. E. Smith.

Use of prison labor and food at the Executive Mansion and the Old Governor's Mansion would be abolished under a House bill which was passed by a vote of 92 to 0. Maintenance and operating costs and travel expenses incurred by the governor would be paid by the Department of Finance.

The Senate passed, 23 to 6, a bill proposing an amendment to the Constitution to allow sheriffs to succeed themselves in office. The measure was sponsored by Senator J. D. Buckman, Jr. of Shepherdsville.

The Senate passed, 35 to 1, a bill to require seat belts on new automobiles sold, traded, or operated in Kentucky after July 1. The bill was named the Mann-McCann Act for Senators William C. Mann, Burkesville, who sponsored it, and C. W. A. McCann, Louisville.

Another Senate bill passed by the same margin was designed to strengthen the regulation of dental practice in Kentucky.

The House passed 97 to 0 and sent to the Senate a compromise state purchasing bill which had the support of Governor Breathitt. Its purpose is to give the purchasing director more control over state buying, to schedule purchasing for more favorable prices and to induce more competitive bidding.

Public hearings were to be held this week on three strip-mining bills introduced in the House. One introduced by Representative Oz Johnson, Louisville, would ban strip-mining in Eastern Kentucky.

Another introduced by Representative Fred Wallace, Jr., Central City, would create a bureau of conservation and reclamation within the Department of Mines and Minerals. The other was introduced earlier by Representative John Swinford, Cynthiana.

Governor Breathitt said at a press conference Tuesday that he would keep hands off all proposals to change the state's Sunday-closing law. Six bills on this subject had been introduced at the time, ranging from appeal of the old blue law to modifications that include local option features.

Breathitt did say he thought the Legislature "should consider clarification" of the old law. A new member took his seat in the State Senate when Jack Raybourn, Springfield, was sworn in to fill the vacancy caused by the traffic death of Broadus Hickerson, who represented Green, Marion, Nelson, Taylor and Washington counties. Raybourn won a February 1 special election.

THE SCOUTING REPORT:

Any basketball coach puts great value on the scouting report. It can well be the difference between victory and defeat. Like most major colleges, Kentucky has every opponent scouted at least once. Sometimes the scouting is done by a member of the UK staff, sometimes by a friend or a former Wildcat player.

Kentucky Coach Adolph Rupp is a strong believer in the scouting report, and was among the first coaches to use it. "A good scouting report is invaluable," says Rupp. "It enables you to prepare your team for what the other guy is going to do. In a really good report the information will be condensed into a few formations the other team likes to run, and give you specific information on the individuals. Knowing what each individual player likes to do and does not like to do, dictates the way you play them defensively. The Baron continued. He named Baldy Gilb of Lexington and his own assistant, Harry Lancaster, as his top scouts.

I asked Harry what he looked for when he scouted the opposing teams. "Well," Lancaster replied, "the first thing I want to determine is, can we get the opening tip. If I'm sure we can, and I mean sure, we'll want to set up in position to turn it into a score. If I think they can take the tip, then we must play it defensively to keep them from scoring." Then, Harry went on, "I watch what teams like to do under certain circumstances. Most teams will rely on six or seven patterns all season, and I try to watch which options they will run off them and under what circumstances. Most teams, "TI circumstances. Most teams, "TI Harry says, "are right-handed clubs. That is, they like to run most of their stuff to the right side. In fact, most players move much better going to their right. I determine which players can move to their left, which ones like to, and which ones can't."

I'm sure different scouts go about compiling their reports in different ways. But coaches universally agree, scouting the other fellow is a necessity in modern day basketball.

Ten Years Ago

(February 11, 1954)

The survey party of the Commerce Department conducting a study of industrial facilities and economic opportunities in Kentucky labor surplus areas is due in Prestonsburg for a conference today (Thursday). Senator John Sherman Cooper notified Mayor Curtis Clark. . . . Details of the handling of surplus foodstuffs to be distributed to the needy in this county through federal and state channels had not been worked out this week, it was said at the office of County Judge Henry Stumbo. . . . A Huntington, West Virginia, man, George Debert Davis, 66, was instantly killed and his wife fatally injured Sunday afternoon when their auto left U. S. 23, a short distance above Allen, and plunged approximately 100 feet to the river's edge. . . . Sheriff Gorman Collins was complaining this week of the citizens who want bootleg establishments raided but refuse to swear out search warrants or even give their names. . . . Coal production of the mines represented by the Big Sandy-Elkhorn Coal Operators Association decreased 14.2 percent in January under the same period last year. . . . As part of the program to establish this county as a strawberry producing area, orders for 20,000 strawberry plants have been given to County Agent O. E. Boggs, he said this week. . . . Killing of the third deer of a herd of 20 released about two months ago in the Dewey Lake game refuge resulted last week in an intensive investigation involving residents of Martin county. . . . BUCHANAN ESTATE— FABLE OR FACT?

A two-page manuscript from Mrs. Gypsa Hutton Lewis, 315 West St., Catherine, Louisville, is a copy of a news-story which appeared in The Big Sandy News, Louisa, Kentucky, September 17, 1931.

We quote the story as sent this column:

"Hoping to share in the $80 million estate of Oliver Buchanan on Manhattan Island, descendants here and in other points in Big Sandy became busy searching family Bibles of oldest living forbears as to their lineage. All of this excitement followed a visit by Oliver Stilts, who is trying to find all the living descendants.

"All that is necessary to bring about a division of the estate, according to Buchanan's will, is to find and identify all his living descendants.

"Buchanan was one of two brothers who came to America from England, settled on Manhattan Island where later he became owner of a large estate. As years passed the land enhanced in value and later in life he leased it to the American Railroad (sic) Express Company. Now, important New York City railway terminals occupy the site.

"Buchanan leased the land for 99 years, stipulating that after his death the revenue therefrom should be put in a certain New York trust company on interest and at the expiration of the lease it should be divided equally among all living descendants, even to the last drop of blood. The lease expires in January, 1932.

"Since July, Stilts has been devoting his time to the task of finding all the descendants. He believes there are about 2,500 now living. Stilts said that the revenue from the lease now in trust in New York, amounted to more than $7 million and several eastern railroads had offered to buy the property jointly at a figure that would increase the estate to $80 million.

"A number of people in this county are descendants through John B. Stith, who settled near the mouth of Tabers Creek in West Virginia, seven miles north of Louisa and reared a large family. Mr. Stith discovered among these, W. M. Clay, Denver City, Virgil Clay and family, of Louisa, Kentucky, W. J. Clay, Boltsfork, Mrs. Louisa Compton, Catlettsburg, and the Stith family of Hubbardstown, West Virginia."

Mrs. Lewis, who sent the copy of the Louisa newspaper story as a bit of historical trivia that would probably interest our readers, identifies herself. She is a native of Abbot Creek, this county. Her mother will be 85 in February and her aunt, Mrs. Gypsa Rebecca Kimball, will be 83 in September. Both live in Ohio. Mrs. Lewis' uncle, John Columbus Compton, who lives near Martin, will be 95, August 2. James Melvin Compton died several years ago at the age of 76 years. Their parents were James Compton and Rebecca Jane Rose Compton.

STEPHEN G. KINNER
The following biography was copied from History of Kentucky, by Kniffin, Perrin and Battle, published in the 1890's.

"Stephen G. Kinner was born in Lawrence county, Kentucky, July 20, 1843, and is a son of Hansford and Mahala Curmuth. Kinner, both natives also of Lawrence county, Kentucky. David, the father of Hansford Kinner, was a native of Virginia, and who settled in Lawrence county at a very early date and followed agriculture as a vocation. Reuben Curmuth, the maternal grandfather of Kinner, was also a native of Virginia. Hansford Kinner is now a resident of Boyd county but was educated at Notre Dame, Indiana, and at Centre College, Kentucky, and the Wesleyan College, Ohio. In 1870 he began reading law under John W. Hampton, was admitted to practice in 1872 and in 1873 was elected county attorney; 1880 he was elected Commonwealth's Attorney for the Southern Judicial District on Democratic ticket and in 1899 years, stipulating that after his death the revenue therefrom should be put in a certain New York trust company on interest and at the expiration of the lease it should be divided equally among all living descendants, even to the last drop of blood. The lease expires in January, 1932.

"James M. Lackey was born in Floyd county, Kentucky, July 25, 1812, and is a son of Alexander and Mary Morgan Lackey, natives of Pennsylvania county, Virginia, who came to Floyd county in 1804. Alexander Lackey was born in 1772, was for eleven years a member of the Kentucky Legislature under the old Constitution, afterward a magistrate and subsequently a sheriff. He died in December, 1863. Our subject's maternal grandfather, David Morgan, a Revolutionary soldier from Virginia, settled in Floyd county in 1799, and was a member of the State Legislature when he was killed in 1815. James M. Lackey settled in Prestonsburg in the spring of 1839 and engaged in stock raising and selling goods in partnership with John P. Martin. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1849; was formerly a captain in the State Militia and is now selling goods. Politically, he is a Democrat and a prohibitionist, by action of the states."

JAMES M. LACKEY
This biography of James M. Lackey, of Floyd county, was also excerpted from the above mentioned history of Kentucky.

CONSERVATION IN LANGUAGE

As a teacher of English for a half century, it has often interested me to compare the attitudes of people in general toward speech. Without question, our use of language is one of our most conservative customs. In the days of little formal education this could have been expected; since a high school is now within reach of everybody, it is almost comic to hear quaint, old-fashioned, even barbarous uses of English still in the speech of otherwise fairly well-educated people. Every day of their lives, certainly since they started to school or got the first radio, the present generation has heard passably good English, often hearing, too, discussions by their teachers and others of the importance of speaking well. But I have had many a freshman, right out of famous high schools and from families with plenty of money to send their youngsters to college, use language, perfectly unconsciously, that would have created laughter at Fidelity at the turn of the century. And we, in those days, had never seen a high school or a diploma of any sort and might have been regarded as back-country yokels.

Imagine having a well-dressed boy come by the professor's desk after class to announce that he "knew" his county had some interesting history but had never stopped to think much about it until I had asked the students to imagine themselves field representatives of a sort of Chamber of Commerce to advertise what their counties had to offer. If that boy had been shabby, obviously from poor home, I would have felt considerable pity for him; as it was, I did not know whether to laugh or cry over his unconsciousness of grammar. Fortunately, he learned a little grammar as he went on to graduate from college and to get his master's degree in a highly specialized subject; he is today a successful teacher. I hope that he manages in some way to show his students how easy it is to talk like people of education and not like ignoramuses.

Among grown people who are really trying to improve their speech there is often a left-over suspicion of folks who use correct grammar. In their youth they probably had to listen to some spoiled brat of their communities who was regarded as a model of speech and conduct; hence they refused to say the right word because that word suggested the fellow whom they so wanted to roll in the mud. What both amuses and disgusts me is that hosts of well-to-do people, even with college educations, with fine houses, fine cars, and local prominence, cling to some back-country rudeness of speech that somehow is hardly in keeping with their other accomplishments. I often told my students that it seemed very queer to me that they often took their speech from groups of people whom they would not tolerate socially, though they went elsewhere for

The heart of Matthew's reasoning is this assertion of this: "School authorities cannot exhibit a hostility towards religion, because the instillation of such a hostile attitude toward religion in the young minds of schoolchildren would be just as violative of the 'neutral' position required by the Constitution."

Matthews said a state law that authorizes the use of school buildings after regular class hours by "any lawful public assembly of educational, religious, agricultural, political, civic, or social parties" is unaffected by Supreme Court decisions.

"In our opinion, the utterance of prayers or the reading of the Bible can continue in P.T.A. meetings and voluntary Bible classes held without the regular school hours or school curriculum," the opinion said.

"Religious groups or civic groups, and voluntary school associations using such practices as Bible devotionals and prayer recitations can continue to follow these practices.

"Students certainly may attend these types of meetings and, in our opinion, even organize on a voluntary basis devotional sessions in which prayer or Bible reading is utilized so long as such sessions do not conflict in any manner with regularly scheduled classes conducted on the school premises within the regularly scheduled hours.

"If school authorities were to prevent such occurrences, then, in effect, public authorities would be disclosing a hostility toward religious expressions and foregoing the neutrality required by the federal Constitution."

Matthews wrote Dr. Sparks that even within the school program he believes it proper for a period of "meditation" to be established or continued "if you and the public school authorities thought beneficial a program to strengthen the moral and spiritual values in this, oft-described, secular society of ours."

Mrs. Ella Hamilton, 62, of Martin, died Tuesday at Our Lady of the Way hospital of a heart attack. She had been ill two weeks.

Surviving daughters are Mrs. Sarah Storie, Catterburg, and Mrs. Herman Conley, Ashland. One step-son, Garland Hamilton, survives. Sisters surviving are Mrs. Mint Stumbo and Mrs. Mary Jane Anderson, both of McDowell.

Funeral rites will be conducted Friday at 1 p.m. from the Hall chapel at Martin, the Rev. S. Lee Sloat officiating. Burial was made in the family cemetery at McDowell under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Speaker Says Bible Upheld by Research

Returning delegates to the convention of Jehovah's Witnesses in Bristol, Tennessee, said the convention was very successful and more than the expected delegates were in attendance. Burnis Jones, presiding minister at Beaver, said that about 600 persons were present to hear the Watchtower representative, Paul R. Ruggles, emphasize how the Bible triumphs in a scientific world. Some of the triumphs mentioned of the Bible were the recent reevaluations of scientists and archaeologists.

The outstanding event of the convention was the baptism of 17 new ministers.

suggestions about clothes and cars and entertainment. Also I tried, probably not very successfully, to show them that just anybody, with a bit of effort, can learn to speak like a person of worth and influence, whether he ever gets rich or famous or influential. When a girl is really pretty and also keeps working at her complexion to keep it good, I cannot help wondering how easily her natural beauty can be marred by jaw breaking grammar. Once, some years ago, I was the speaker at a regional Future Homemakers annual awards day. Each winner in the numerous divisions of the program told just how she had done what brought recognition. Many of the shy little girls spoke naturally and effectively, just what you would expect from youngsters who had had such good training. One girl, who won awards in four or five categories, told how she reworked her room. She "taken" certain things and went to work; in her five-minute speech, which was sensible and well expressed, she "taken" ten times. I shivered for her every time she "taken," not because I, as a lifelong teacher of English, felt any superiority, but because I wished that the tenn-ager's speech could be as attractive as the girl herself.

Businessmen, Others Support Fund Drive;

The businessmen and women of Prestonsburg will lend their strength to the fight against the heart diseases during the week beginning Monday, February 19, through Saturday, February 21. These are the days set aside as "Heart-Days for Business" here in support of the month-long drive of the Heart Association.

The Jaycees have volunteered to canvass the downtown and outlying business districts for gifts for the 1964 Heart Fund as part of the annual campaign to support the research, education and community service programs which combat diseases of the heart and circulation.

"In our nation, state and community, these diseases take more lives than all other diseases and causes of death combined," said James R. Spurlock, local chairman of Heart-Days for Business. "The heart and blood vessel diseases constitute the greatest health problem of our times. They include heart attack, stroke, high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries, inborn heart defects, rheumatic fever and many others." The annual loss in production in the nation resulting from these diseases has been estimated at more than $4 billion.

Floyd county children will be brought to the health department here for the tests. Anticipated results are:

- 1. Casefinding and referral of previously undetected disease at an early age. 2. Referral of the sick and medical problem cases to various medical centers for evaluation, treatment and rehabilitation. 3. Collection of data to be used in planning future large-scale public health programs.

The measure (SB 60) was introduced by Senators Bert Kiser, Olive Hill; J. D. Buckman, Shepherdsville; George Brand, Mayfield; Donald L. Johnson, Alexandria; William Engle, Hazard; Fairis Johnson, Martin; John Swope, Boyle county; Foster Spence, Pikeville; Scott Miller, Louisville, and Tom Garrett, Paducah.

Garrett, Ky., Feb. 10 (Spl.)—Floyd County Voiture No. 1359 of the La Societe Des 40 Hommes Et 8 Chevaux will hold its regular monthly meeting Sunday, February 16, at 2 p.m. at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park.

The other occupants, for whom no apparent injuries were reported by officers, were listed as James A. Jones, 20, and Benny Roberts, 18.

State Police said the vehicle, which had been heading north along the Mud Creek road, after going over the embankment ran through a creek and picket fence before striking the side of a hill.

James A. Damron was a native of Pike county, a son of Okley and Lillie Roberts Damron. He had been employed by the Davey Tree Expert Company at Great Bend, Kansas.

Survivors, other than his parents, include five brothers, Bethard Damron, Pikeville, and Charles Edward, Vernon, Robert and Danny Keith Damron, all of Robinson Creek, and three sisters, Peggy Elaine Damron, of Robinson Creek; Mrs. Geraldine Blevins, of Wales, and Mrs. Arrie Mae Bailey, of Bozine, Kansas.

Funeral services were conducted at 10:30 a.m. Thursday of last week at Jones Chapel at Robinson Creek under direction of the Baker Funeral Home.

First objective of the plan is to break the isolation of the area with modern roads and air facilities and following that to tackle the problems of the "ribbon towns" and give them the basic amenities of urban life.

The first target would be the start of construction of 3,750 miles of interstate highways and the beginnings of the development of 2,150 miles network of roads to supplement the primary system.

Few specific developmental items were named by the Appalachian Regional Commission to implement the overall design but spelled out were 61 new airports, improved facilities at 120 others and the possible relocation of 52 already in existence.

The Commission notes, however, that there is little use to build roads and airports in a barren land. The area must be nurtured to fruitful production.

To revitalize the agricultural industry the Commission plans the improvement of 9.5 million acres of pasture land. The federal government will finance 80 percent of the cost and on other projects would grant assistance.

The Commission offers no plans for the coal industry except to suggest increased research for coal uses.

Resource developments envisioned by the Commission are water control and timber production and use expansion. Two national forests would be created, the one for this area having its central axis in Letcher county.

All of the program would be directed by a permanent Appalachian Regional Commission with both federal and state governments participating.

Buried Treasure

There's something exciting about a treasure map. It holds the prospect of untold riches. Many a man has risked his all in following such a map. He was led by a hope that success would bring him untold wealth.

Too many times fortunes were lost and not gained. Bright hopes ended in dark disappointment.

But Christians have found limitless riches in worship at church every week. Here is a field of exploration that has a sure guide.

For those who seek find! Yes, they find God. God is the answer. To know Him and to have the spirit of Christ in our hearts is the treasure that is beyond price.

LINDBERGH DECORATED BY GERMAN AIR MARSHAL

Charles Lindbergh, now living quietly in Darien, Connecticut, was studying the German Air Force for the United States in 1938 when he was unexpectedly given a Nazi medal for which he has long been criticized. This is revealed by Walter Ross in a February Reader's Digest article, "What Became of Charles Lindbergh?"

Lindbergh's friend, Col. Truman Smith, USAF (Ret.), Ross discloses, has written the story of the medal in an unpublished manuscript deposited in the Yale University Library. Smith, U. S. military attache in Berlin during the Hitler regime, invited Lindbergh to come to Germany to do a high-level intelligence job for America on the German Air Force.

It was Smith's idea to use Lindbergh's prestige as a key to Field Marshal Hermann Goering's vanity. The ploy worked. Lindbergh was shown airplanes, factories and airfields that no foreigner had seen; he reported each night to Smith what he had been shown.

As part of the assignment, Lindbergh was requested to attend a dinner given by U. S. Ambassador Hugh Wilson for certain Nazi officials, including Goering. The purpose of the dinner was to try to ease the financial strain on Jews being forced to emigrate from Germany.

The German air ministry had called the American embassy the day before the dinner to say that Goering was planning to decorate Lindbergh, but the secretary who took the message failed to pass it on. As Smith tells it, Goering arrived at the dinner late, carrying a little red box. He made a speech in German, which Lindbergh did not understand, and capped it by opening the box and hanging the medal on a ribbon around Lindbergh's neck.

Considering the occasion and its purpose, Smith says, Lindbergh could not have refused the medal without damaging delicate State Department negotiations. The article is condensed from Esquire.

BETTER CARS PRODUCED BY MANUFACTURERS, SAID

They aren't making cars the way they used to—they're making them better. That's the conclusion of James Nathan Miller, based on a six-week investigation of the way automobiles are being produced today. Miller visited proving grounds, research laboratories and assembly plants and interviewed company officials, workers, independent engineers and others. His verdict is presented in a February Reader's Digest article, "Are Cars as Good as They Used to Be?"

One major complaint is that "cars are tinier than they used to be, their metal flimsier." The facts: Thickness of the body metal in cars hasn't changed since the 1930's. Larger metal sheets are now being stamped out and these sometimes can be pushed in by pressure against them, but that has nothing to do with the car's structural integrity.

Another complaint: "Mass-production methods, spewing cars out by the millions, can't attain the fine precision levels of non-automated car-makers." The fact is that more precision is attained

SPORTS AFIELD

By TED KESTING

We were visiting a friend who runs a boat livery on a Midwest lake when we saw a young fellow doing the worst job of casting we had ever seen. He was in a row boat about 100 yards off-shore and was spending at least nine tenths of his time picking out awful backlashes.

"His first time out?" asked Jason Lucas, Angling Editor of Sports Afield Magazine.

"Second," said Tom, the liveryman. "He was out once before with a couple of fellows who knew a little about how to do it, and he seems to have caught the fishing bug."

We had forgotten him, and were chatting, when we heard a wild yell from out on the water. The young city man had the oars—and was frantically rowing in. He couldn't row properly, splashed enormously and progressed in a crazy zigzag.

"Dorton a landing net! Gimme a big landing net, quick! I want fish broke my line, and I want to go back out and get him!"

We looked at each other knowingly, and by almost superhuman self-control kept from laughing. "Here you are!" said Tom, and thrust his largest net into the man's hand.

He tore madly back to the shore, got wet to above his knees shoving the boat out, tumbled into it and started out in the same inept zigzag.

What's funny, you may ask, about an absolute dud at fishing making a complete fool of himself?

This: He was soon returning to shore—doing slightly better rowing since he wasn't so excited. He walked up to Tom.

"Got a scale that will weigh this fish?"

Tom had. He put the walleye on it. The scale showed exactly 13 1/2 pounds. It was the biggest walleye I've ever known of coming from that lake, though not particularly outstanding for that species.

The city man put the fish and his rod in his car and drove off. It was some time before Tom could even say that he'd be damned. We could only stare at each other and shake our heads.

It seemed, from the novice's brief remarks, that the big plug had hung in such fashion that it held the walleye's mouth wide open, so that it probably was strangling—if that's what you call what happens to a fish that can't breathe. At any rate, it had stayed at the surface, so busy trying to shake loose the plug that it had let itself be netted.

Fast Area Coal Service Initiated by Railroad; Rate Reduction Is Made

Chesapeake and Ohio Railway has inaugurated a new, fast "unit train" service from coal mines in West Virginia and Kentucky to Chicago. The trains are identified by a big yellow disk painted on each coal car.

This new concept in coal trains calls for quick loading of coal hopper cars at the mines, fast movement in solid trainloads and immediate unloading at destination. Because of the fast turnaround, providing for more efficient utilization of equipment, plus other reasons, C. & O. was able to reduce its coal rate by 32 cents a ton on trainloads of 7,200 tons or more.

To make this lower rate feasible, C. & O., working with coal and steel people, came up with some different ways of handling the coal:

- 1. Bigger cars are being used. C. & O. started building last fall in its own shops at Raceland "Super-88" hopper cars, each capable of carrying more than 80 tons of coal. Over 700 of the new cars were turned out in 1963 and 3,300 more are scheduled to be built during 1964.
2. The unit trains are moving faster from main assembly points such as Peach Creek, West Virginia, and Paintsville, Kentucky, to the Chicago area. Coal is being moved so quickly that it doesn't freeze en route, making unloading easier.
3. The cars are being handled faster. The rates require they be loaded in 48 hours after being placed at a mine. At the steel mills, the cars must be unloaded in 24 hours for return to the mines. If time limits are not met, penalties are assessed.
4. Cars are not weighed individually, a time-consuming process. Instead, C. & O. weighs unit trains on a spot basis to establish average weights for billing purposes. When asked to weigh unit trains, C. & O. charges seven cents per ton.

1964 will be a good year for clothing shoppers, according to family economists in the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Supplies should be ample with little change in price. Look for disposable bed sheets and pillowcases in hospitals, improved wash-and-wear cotton products, wool sweaters and blankets that can be washed by machine, permanently-pleated wool skirts and permanently creased wool slacks and trousers.

Vows were exchanged before an archway entwined with white gladioli, mums and ligustrum palms. Baskets of white snapdragons and mums and seven-branched candelabra holding lighted tapers completed the altar setting for the double-ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Ira McMillen, Jr., pastor of Unity Baptist Church, Ashland, Kentucky.

A program of traditional wedding music was presented by Mrs. Russell Wheeler, organist, and Miss Carolyn Patton, pianist. Soloists were Mrs. James Workman, Louisa, Kentucky, who sang "At Dawning" and "Whither Thou Goest," and Phil Newsom, Portsmouth, Ohio, who sang "Always" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of imported silk taffeta featuring a high circle neckline, sculptured bodice detailed with re-embroidered Alencon lace and long sleeves, tapering to callia points over her wrists. Her softly gathered skirt was completed with looped streamers from the back waistline and ending in a chapel train. Her finger-tip veil of imported silk illusion secured her crown of Swiss-cut crystals. She carried a white Bible covered with a white orchid and phalaenopsis and satin streamers.

Miss Jayne Snedegar, of Morehead, Kentucky, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Misses Virginia Ann Hladys, Richmond, Virginia, Carol Donovan, Coral Gables, Florida, Brenda Patton, Allen, Kentucky, and Mrs. Dennis O'Conner, Louisville, Kentucky, was bridesmatron. The attendants were attired in identical long gowns of antique gold silk brocade, fashioned with rounded necklines, long sleeves, and full-wrap-around overskirts. They wore matching crown headpieces with flared noseveils of silk illusion, and carried mosegays of sweetheart roses with petals of antique gold satin.

Master Stephen Moore, a cousin of the bride, carried the rings on a white lace-edged pillow with satin streamers.

Little Miss Andrea Wright, sister of the bride, served as flower girl. She wore a long gown of pale gold silk dacron sheer over taffeta with a rose headband.

Stephen McGee, Lexington, Kentucky, nephew of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Homer Wright, III, brother of the bride, C. F. See, III, Louisa, Kentucky, Jack Prichard, Paintsville, Kentucky, and Norman Poynter, Vanceburg, Kentucky. The taper lighters were Howard See, Jr., and Vinson L. Moore, Jr.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the social hall of the church. The bridal table was covered with an imported white hand-crocheted linen cloth with a centerpiece of green carnations and pink snapdragons with woodwardia. The four-tiered wedding cake was graced with three white wedding bells and a miniature bride and groom.

Assisting at the reception were Miss Joy Mason, Paintsville, Kentucky, Mrs. Stephen McGee, Lexington, Kentucky, and Mrs. Dennis Stephens, Lexington.

Misses Lynette See and Cathy Marcum, Frankfort, Kentucky, presided at the guest register.

The bride wore as a going-away costume, a black and white tweed suit with fur trim, black accessories, and a white orchid corsage.

The bride, a graduate of Prestonsburg high school, received an associate of arts degree in liberal arts from Averett College, Danville, Virginia.

Mr. See is a graduate of Vero Beach high school, Vero Beach, Florida, and is a senior at Morehead State College, where he and his bride will be in residence on the college campus.

The complaint, filed by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, alleges that the defendant, operating several coal mines located near Price, is violating the minimum wage and record-keeping provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act. The violations are alleged to have occurred during the period since May 7, 1961, and the court is being asked to enjoin and restrain the withholding of any payment of minimum wages the court may find to be due the defendant's employees.

Charles E. Combs, doing business under the trade name of Gwen Don Coal Company in Avawam, Perry county, has been named as defendant in a complaint filed in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Kentucky, in Jackson.

The complaint alleges that the defendant, who is operating a coal mine at Avawam, has violated the minimum wage, overtime compensation, recordkeeping and shipping provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act. The violations are alleged to have occurred during the period since July 19, 1961, and the court is being asked to enjoin and restrain further violations of the Wage-Hour Law, and to enjoin and restrain the withholding of any minimum wages and overtime compensation the court may find to be due the defendant's employees.

Secretary of Labor Wirtz has obtained a judgment for $388.50 in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Kentucky at Pikeville, requiring Coy Taylor and Clyde Taylor, doing business as Taylor Brothers Coal Company, Knott county, to pay that sum to the Secretary of Labor for distribution to one of their employees found to have been paid wages at rates less than the rates required by the Fair Labor Standards Act.

STUDY SHOWS DRUG PERIL

Overdoses of Bromides Have Similar Reactions To Certain Mental Ills

Chapel Hill, N. C.—A three-year study by two North Carolina psychiatrists reportedly shows that overdoses of medicines containing bromides can cause behavior so similar to mental illness that only blood tests can pinpoint the difference.

The bromide medicines can be purchased at drugstores without a physician's prescription, although they are potentially hazardous, the psychiatrists said.

Results of the study were included in a report made by Dr. John A. Ewing and Dr. W. J. Grant to the Southern Medical Association at its annual meeting in New Orleans.

"Since the advent of barbiturates (and) other potent hypnotics and antiepileptic drugs, there remains no place for bromides in our pharmacopoeia," their report stated. "Clearly, they have no place in the treatment of patients suffering from neuroses or the psychoses."

Bromides are used to calm excessive emotional disturbances.

Drs. Grant and Ewing said their study of more than 1,200 mental patients in North Carolina hospital showed that as many as one of every 10 had taken some bromides. One of every 200 had taken excessive amounts, the doctors said.

The effect of the bromides on the patients varied from drowsiness to sleeplessness, from quiet depression to wild behavior bordering on insanity.

The psychiatrists said many of the persons suffering only from bromide poisoning had been given shock treatments and others were given care normally reserved for the mentally ill.

Gearheart Would Change Poll Dates

Frankfort, Feb. 3 (Spl.)—Representative Fred Gearheart, Harold Democrat, has introduced a bill in the General Assembly that would switch the state's general election date to the first Saturday in November instead of the Tuesday after the first Monday.

Another Gearheart measure would change the primary election date to the last Saturday in May instead of the first Tuesday after the fourth Monday.

MARTIN FAMILY HISTORY

Dear Friends and Relatives,

For more than forty years, I have been collecting genealogical information on the descendants of William Martin who was born in Virginia in 1760. Thousands of names are recorded in a book which has been printed and is now ready for distribution. I have written hundreds of letters, visited Courthouses in many states, copied deeds and wills and marriage records, and have copied information from many books listing many kinds of information about the Martin family. I have made many personal calls on hundreds of families throughout this part of the country.

Many of the Martins listed in this book were born in Kentucky and Virginia. This book also lists hundreds of Martins who were born in Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Wyoming, Wisconsin, Oregon, Ohio, Idaho and Kansas. Here are some of the family names in this area who are related to the Martins:

Adams, Allen, Amburgey, Barnett, Begley, Burke, Caudill, Chaffins, Conley, Cooke, Davidson, Fletcher, Frazier, Gearheart, Hagans, Hall, Harris, Hayes, Hopkins, Johnson, Jones, King, Leslie, May, Mayo, Moore, Morris, Rose, Salisbury, Short, Sloan, Spradlin, Tudor, Turner, Walker, Wallace, Webb and Wicker.

You cannot afford to miss the opportunity of buying this book which lists Martin descendants for the last two hundred years (1760-1960). Please order now on the attached order blank. Thank you.

SPORTS CHATTER

ASHLAND GROUNDED

The suspension of Ashland high school's second-rated Tom Cats cost the Prestonsburg Black acts a return game with the 16th region power. They were originally scheduled to meet Prestonsburg in the second game of a double-header next Tuesday night, while Denzil Halbert's Martin Purple Flash were carded against Breathitt County.

The Breathitt County-Martin game will be reeled off at 7 p.m., anyway, and in the second game Prestonsburg will meet either Virgie or Dorton of the 57th district (Pike county). Dorton leads the district with a 16-6 mark.

Friday night, Jack Wells' club hopes to improve its 8-9 record against the Inez Indians in a single game in the local field-house.

Saturday night, Wheelwright goes against the Hazard Bulldogs at Wheelwright, and this will be one of the biggest games of the season for Don Wallen's 15th region favorites. Hazard is the choice to dethrone Breathitt County in the 14th region. Hazard looked as good as any team in the state last Saturday night in beating Ashland, 71-47.

Tuesday's state-wide ratings saw Wheelwright pass Garrett and move into 14th place. Garrett, by virtue of its 59-52 loss to Fleming-Neon, fell to 17th place and Paintsville remained in 24th position.

The drawings for the 58th district (Floyd county) tournament will be held at Garrett high school Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Burnice Gearheart, Garrett principal, will serve as tour-namment manager, and the tournament will be played in Prestonsburg, beginning Wednesday, March 4.

The Prestonsburg high school track team will be in Louisville Saturday for the Mason-Dixon games.

Meade Edges P'burg Here Saturday Night; Tigers Defeat Martin

Paintsville turned back Martin 32-62 and Meade Memorial edged Prestonsburg 81-78 in a double-header here Saturday night.

Paintsville just about decided the issue with Martin's Purple Flash in the first period when they roared out to a 14-point lead 24-10. The Tigers held this edge through much of the first three periods and then sprinted away to a 20-point lead with an eight point spread in the fourth period.

Bobby Porter paced the Paintsville scorers with 25 points.

The second game was tight all the way. Fred Setser of Prestonsburg led all scoring in this game with 26 points and Lonnie Penix had 18 but this was not enough.

Meade led by three at half time, 33-35, and then had to fight for their lives in the second half as the two teams played on even terms with Meade winning by three. David Price of Meade Memorial, took scoring honors for the losers with 21.

The Indians gained most of their edge in the second period when they out-scored Maytown 30-21. Bob Tallent with 24 and Burgess Lowe with 22 topped Maytown scoring and Charles Mills helped the Inez cause with 21.

McDowell High Clips Virgie, 61-59

McDowell, Ky.—McDowell's Dave Devils built up a first half lead and then outlasted a late rally to nip Virgie here Wednesday night, 61-59.

A 23-point scoring spree in the second period gave McDowell a seven-point half-time lead, 35-23. As things turned out this was just enough to offset the late Virgie rally and leave the Dave Devils with a two-point edge.

A GREAT HERITAGE THAT LINCOLN LEFT TO ALL AMERICANS...

THE GETTYSBURG ADDRESS

"Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation or any nation so conceived and so dedicated can long endure.

We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field, as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live.

It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate—we cannot consecrate—we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract.

The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here.

It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced.

It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

New Strawberry Variety Released by University

The University of Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station has released for introduction the strawberry variety Citation, formerly tested as Kentucky 12-51-10. The new variety originated as a seedling from the cross Fairland X Tennessee Shipper made in 1951. The selection was made in 1953 at Lexington.

This variety makes a good matted row of vigorous plants. It is moderately susceptible to leaf spot. The fruit ripens in mid-season, about one or two days after Pocahontas. The fruit will average medium large in size and maintain its size well throughout the season. The berries are medium red but very bright, and have a bright red interior. In shape they are conic and more regular than many varieties. The seeds are flush with the surface. Citation has been productive. Over a six-year period it has out-yielded the commercial varieties of Kentucky. Shipping tests indicate that it is very good in this respect. Taste panel results show that it is among the very best for freezing. It has ranked first or second for several years in these tests.

It is suggested that Citation be tried in the same general areas where Pocahontas is grown successfully. Foundation stock may be secured from the University of Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

This Is National Electrical Week

Who received the most U. S. patents? You probably guessed Thomas A. Edison—and you're right, says H. H. Kincaid, Pikeville division manager of Kentucky Power Company. Kincaid said that Edison, known as the father of the electrical industry, was granted 1,097 patents during his lifetime. A third of his inventions dealt with electric lighting and the generation and distribution electricity. "Therefore, the week of Edison's birthday, February 11, has come to be observed as National Electrical Week—a week devoted to focusing attention on the contributions of electricity and the electrical industry to America's progress," Mr. Kincaid said. Theme of the week is "Electricity Powers Progress," both on the job and in the home.
