SPEAKING OF AND FOR FLOYD COUNTY

THURSDAY, JULY 9, 1964

This Town . . . That World

LOST AND FOUND

Anything missing around this office isn't lost—it's just mislaid. And eventually it shows up. Just last week while he was cleaning out a file here in the office, Quentin Terry found what are now antiques. Two sheets of two and three-cent stamps.

FIREWATER AND HEALING WATERS

Harold B. Rice, formerly of Prestonsburg, now agronomist with the soil-testing division of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, found our recent story of the capture of what we considered a "big" moonshine still sorta amusing. Sent along a newspaper clipping showing really big operations, shining examples of the moonshine-making business as practiced in the Brunswick section of that state. One of these had 220 barrels marked "Olives," but which actually contained 10,000 gallons of "working" mash. Another which officers captured at the same time was fired by a coke burner and was capable of producing 600 gallons of "squeezin'" a day.

Is this guy from North Carolina or Texas? To top it off, he sent along another newspaper clipping, headed, "Where Healing Water Flows," and telling about the water in that same Brunswick section having marvelous curative qualities.

This water, from Shalotte Inlet in Brunswick county, says the clipping, is good for just about anything that might ail you. Its close proximity to those big stills makes it important that the water do something for a hangover, but the newspaper fails to mention that ailment.

ONE KILLED, 5 INJURED

Auto Collision Kills Judith Carol Martin; Sister Hurt Critically

Judith Carol Martin, 19-year-old mother of one, was killed at 8:15 Sunday evening and five others were injured, two seriously, when the auto driven by her husband, Wayne Martin, Jr., went out of control on U.S. 23, near Hager Hill, and crashed into a car driven by William Ernest Osborne, 26, of Prestonsburg.

Her nine-month-old son, Rickey Dwayne, was unhurt. Listed as seriously hurt were Miss Myrtle Hall, 17, of Drift, a sister of the dead woman, and Miss Linda Slone, of Paintsville, a passenger in Osborne's car.

Miss Hall's neck was broken and she was taken to a Huntington, West Virginia hospital. Miss Slone, who is at a Paintsville hospital, suffered a broken jaw and nose and severe lacerations about her head and face.

Osborne is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Osborne, of Prestonsburg. He is at the Paintsville hospital and has possible internal injuries.

The husband of the victim and his sister, Miss Brenda Faye Martin, 16, of Derna, escaped with minor hurts.

SERIES OF ARRESTS MADE BY TROOPERS

MARTIN CAFE LATEST HIT BY OFFICERS

Two Get Jail Terms After Hearings Held In Quarterly Court

State Trooper Elmo Allen and ABC Agent Claude Flanery confiscated 1248 cans of beer and 70 half-pints of whiskey, gin and vodka in a raid Wednesday on the Sea Cafe at Martin. John Rice, who was arrested as operator of the place, executed bond for trial August 8 in Magistrate Zeb Ousley's court.

Wednesday's was the second raid on the Sea Cafe in which contraband was taken, and Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo was quoted as saying he will move to confiscate and sell the property.

State Police troopers cut deeply into Floyd county's holiday supply of liquor with a series of arrests, the first of which came well before the Fourth, the last coming on the holiday itself.

The July 4 arrest was made by Trooper Larry Hatton who confiscated at Tram eight cases of beer from the automobile of Billy Wayne Thornsburg, of Melvin. Thornsburg entered a plea of guilty here before County Judge Henry Stumbo and was given a 30-day jail term in addition to a $20 fine and costs, and was placed under $1,000 peace bond. It was said later that he plans an appeal from the sentence.

The same jail term and fine was imposed on Delmar E. Pennington, who was arrested July 2, near Lancer, by Trooper O. B. Combs. Seventy-two half-pints of whiskey and eight cases of beer were taken from Pennington's car.

Fifty cases of beer and five cases of whiskey were taken from Pennington's car in Magoffin county, June 19, by State Troopers Hatton and Thomas. He was fined $109 and costs in that county.

Mobile X-Ray Unit To Be at Wayland

The mobile X-ray unit will be at Wayland, near the company store, Thursday, July 16, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 to 3 p.m.

Dr. R. L. Hall, health officer, Floyd county Health Department, urges all citizens in the Wayland, Lackey and Garrett areas to take advantage of this opportunity to have chest X-rays. He especially urged all food handlers, teachers and contacts of known cases of tuberculosis to have X-rays made.

"If you have had an X-ray made in the past and received a letter asking you to have a large X-ray made, then you should bring this letter to the unit and give it to the technician, and he will make a large chest picture," Dr. Hall said.

NEW LUXURY MOTEL IS PLANNED HERE

Plans were announced early this week for the beginning of construction later in the year by a group of Prestonsburg men of a 40-room motel which may involve the expenditure of $300,000.

Completion of the project is planned in time for the opening of the 1965 tourist season.

The luxury-type motel will be built by George Lee Shannon and Clifford B. Latta, of Prestonsburg, and Irvin Akers, Dana contractor, on a tract of land fronting 1500 feet on U. S. 23 and overlooking the valley. The site, acquired earlier by Shannon and Latta, extends from the DuRan Moore property line here to that of H. L. Mayo and, in all, includes approximately 15 acres.

The motel will consist of two two-story wings, with 20 rooms in each wing, and a central unit which will include the office, a small restaurant and a large conference room opening onto two adjoining rooms.

Little excavation will be necessary for the construction job, Mr. Shannon, the architect, said. The motel will be built on a hillside lot, and so parking will be available beneath the front of the structure, and at the rear parking will be on the second-floor level. Sliding glass doors will open onto a private balcony at the front of each room. The rooms will be reached by an enclosed hallway running along the rear of the building.

The structure, it was said, will not be greatly unlike the Holiday Inn type of motel and

BLACKBURN IS DROWNED

McCombs War Veteran Claimed Friday; Body Found by Fishermen

Ralph Waldo Blackburn, 42, McCombs veteran of two wars, drowned Friday afternoon in the headwaters of Dewey Lake, approximately three miles above the German bridge.

Three witnesses of the tragedy said Blackburn simply waded into the water and failed to emerge. His body was found at 5 p.m., about 30 minutes after he disappeared.

A veteran of World War I and the Korean Conflict, Blackburn was last seen by Bobby, Randall and Clifford Coleman, of Elkhorn City, who were on the side of the lake opposite the highway where Blackburn had parked his car. The three said they heard him talking as he entered the water.

He was alone when he entered the lake. A relative, Arnold Blackburn, was asleep in the car which they had driven there. The victim's shotgun lay on the shore, near the water, Coroner James (See Story No. 6, Page 8)

At McDowell Hospital; Oldest P'burg Doctor Victim at Age of 55

Dr. John G. Archer, former president of the Kentucky Academy of General Practitioners and Prestonsburg's oldest practicing physician, died at 8:15 p.m. July 4 at the McDowell Appalachian Regional hospital at the age of 55.

News of Dr. Archer's unexpected passing came as a shock to members of the medical profession and to friends and acquaintances over a wide area. He was taken to the hospital last Friday morning and subsequently underwent two operations to combat the effects of a perforated ulcer. Exact cause of death was not announced, pending an autopsy report.

A son of the late George P. Archer, pioneer Prestonsburg banker, and Mrs. Emma Johns Archer, he was born and reared in Prestonsburg. After graduating from the College of Medicine, University of Louisville, he returned here to begin a practice of about 30 years. He and his nephew, Dr. George P. Archer, established the Prestonsburg General hospital at its present site and he was a partner in its operation. More recently he was associated with the Daniel Boone Clinic at the McDowell hospital while continuing practice here.

Dr. Archer was a past president of the Floyd County Medical Society and was a member of the Kentucky State Medical Association, the Southern Medical Association and the American Medical Association. He was elected president of the Kentucky Academy of General Practitioners in 1960, and was a former 14th district state medical counselor. Besides his professional activities, Dr. Archer served during World War II on the Floyd County Selective Service Board, at one time served as a member of the Prestonsburg City Council, and was a member (See Story No. 1, Page 8)

Intoxicants Are Stolen From Judge's Office; Entry Made by Window

County Judge Henry Stumbo announced Monday that he is offering a $50 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who broke into his office during the week-end and took an estimated two and a half cases of whiskey, gin and vodka and 10 cases of beer which had been stored there after confiscation by officers.

Judge Stumbo said those involved in the break apparently entered by a window of his private office which faces Court street. The window is approximately 20 feet from the small building used by the Prestonsburg police department as headquarters.

Chief of Police Bill Potter said the first knowledge he had of the break was Tuesday noon when The Times asked him for information about the incident. County Judge Stumbo said he called State Detective Chester D. Potter, Monday morning, immediately after he discovered that his office had been entered, but Potter was in court at Salyersville at the time and could not investigate the case that day.

BUSINESSES SOLD HERE

Farm and Home Store, Wise Cafe Ownership Changes Announced

Two Prestonsburg businesses have changed ownership within the last two weeks, it is noted. They are the Farm & Home store and the Carl Wise Restaurant.

The Wise restaurant, operated here by Carl Wise for several years, has been leased by two Huntington, West Virginia, businessmen, Terry Ferguson and Bill Newton. Mr. Ferguson assumed the management of the business June 18.

Both of the lessees have had extensive experience in the restaurant business and will offer fine foods and many specialties. They began the offering of curb service Friday.

The business will continue to be operated under the name of its former owner, Ferguson said. He plans a grand opening of the restaurant under the new management July 23 through July 26.

The Farm and Home store, founded and operated here for 17 years by Ogden Stewart, was sold recently to Kenneth Meade, Paintsville businessman. The management was assumed by Meade June 29.

The store is an affiliate of Southern States Cooperative and is governed by a board of directors elected by the farmers. Joe H. Arnett serves presently as chairman and Sam Leslie as secretary. Two members are elected each year.

Mr. Stewart will leave for California August 1 where he has accepted employment.

Mr. Meade will actively manage the business here. The old employees have been retained and the store will be operated substantially as in the past.

VISIT AT EMMA

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Daniels and daughter, Martha, of Detroit, Michigan, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wheeler Harris, at Emma.

Three Mayo School Students Released To Floyd Officers; Two Break-Ins Are Alleged

Two of three Mayo Vocational School students at Paintsville who were arrested there on breaking and entering charges have been released to Floyd authorities and are at liberty under bond, pending grand jury action.

The three arrested at Paintsville are accused of breaking into Bunk Howard's Gift and Pottery Shop on U. S. 23 at Lowmansville. They are Thomas J. Collins and Ronald David Allen, both of Printer, and Daniel Jarrell McCown, of Wheelwright.

Returned here, Allen and McCown were booked by Sheriff Henry C. Hale on grand larceny and breaking and entering counts. They are accused of breaking into the bath-house at the Jenny Wiley State Park swimming area.

A car found on Second street, Paintsville, by city police contained pottery which was identified as having been taken from Howard's shop. McCown was at the scene when this discovery was made. Allen appeared at city hall and voluntarily surrendered. Collins was arrested on Frank street where another car owned by one of the trio was found.

The three students are also charged with breaking into a gift shop operated by Ernest Cleveland, south of Louisa, it was reported. The two automobiles were filled with pottery, some of which had been broken in transport.

Gordon Ray Clouse was jailed here last week and charged with grand larceny and breaking and entering after Hamilton's Furniture Store at Minnie and the neighboring Pack's Grocery Store had been entered. Deputy Sheriff Sam Hale said watches, shoes and other items stolen from the stores have been recovered.

Two Floyd county companies were hit by thieves recently. The supply house of the Princess Elkhorn Coal Company at David was looted of 600 new coal bits, and 500 feet of copper wire was taken from a Left Beaver Creek mine operated by Preston Collins. Nobody has been arrested in either break, but the Sheriff's office said the identity of the person who stole the copper wiring is known.

PROCLAIM SATURDAY BERT T. COMBS DAY

Sam Adkins Charged After Whiskey Found

Prestonsburg city police raided the premises of Sam Adkins Tuesday on North Lake Drive and seized two pints of whiskey. He has been charged with possession of whiskey for sale in dry territory in Police Judge Watt Hale's court. Trial has been set for July 15.

Police men engaging in the raid were Police Chief Bill Potter, Policemen Bill Booth, Ralph Thornsburg and Woodrow Salyers.

Methodist Church Views Purchase of Hospital At Pikeville From ARH

The Methodist Church may lease, with option to buy, the Appalachian Regional hospital at Pikeville and operate it as well as the Methodist hospital which has been there for years.

Dr. Karl S. Klika, president of Appalachian Regional Hospitals, Inc., the group which has acquired 10 hospitals from the United Mine Workers' Welfare & Retirement Fund, said the option to purchase may be exercised by the lessors at the end of a five-year period.

Klika said the Methodists, who already operate a 140-bed hospital in Pikeville, probably would take over the new one in September.

It was one of five purchased with a $4.1-million loan from the Area Redevelopment Administration in Washington.

WARD NAMES NEW BRIDGE BUILT HERE

Theatre Ceremonies Scheduled In Evening; Entertainment Planned

Bert T. Combs is coming home Saturday to accept an honor he would not take while Governor of Kentucky.

The new four-lane bridge across the Big Sandy here will be named in his honor, and bronze plaques will be unveiled during the ceremony to be held at 4 p.m. on the bridge.

(Saturday has been declared Bert Combs Day in Prestonsburg and Floyd county, County Judge Henry Stumbo announced this designation of the day for the county Monday afternoon.)

"Since Governor Combs was responsible for building the Mountain Parkway and extensions, it is appropriate that we honor him by naming for him this bridge located in his hometown," Highway Commissioner Henry Ward said this week.

A three-mile section of Ky. 114, a segment of the northern extension to the Mountain Parkway, and the bridge were dedicated during ribbon-cutting ceremonies last October 31. Cost of the new highway and the bridge amounted to $3,770,000.

Since Combs first had the dream of a modern highway that would open up Eastern Kentucky, construction has moved rapidly.

STREET JOB START MADE

Asphalt Mix Plant Slated for Building At West Prestonsburg

First work on Prestonsburg's $751,000 street improvement project was done Tuesday when the Adams Construction Company, contractor, began street drainage in the Porter Addition.

The contractor expects to complete the job by November 15. Workmen are being employed. It was said, from Prestonsburg first, then in Floyd county outside Prestonsburg.

The contractor will set up an asphalt mix plant at West Prestonsburg for the job of actual street-surfacing. Drainage work will be done first, starting at either end of town and working toward the center. Meanwhile, some streets which will not require drainage may be surfaced.

"We will try our best to see that the city gets the best possible job for its money," John Hill, of the Prestonsburg Engineering Company, said last week. "A few people think they should have drainage, sidewalks, wider streets and so on, but to do the job to the satisfaction of everybody would require more than a million dollars, and we don't have the million."

DYER WINS CONTRACT ON ANNEX BUILDING

Contract for construction of the Floyd County Health Department annex here has been awarded to R. C. Dyer, Ailen contractor, although his low bid so exceeded the estimated cost of the project that for a time it was doubtful if the work would be done. His bid was $82,441.61.

Because no other Kentucky county had advanced its matching share of funds for such an improvement, available federal money was not claimed except by Floyd county, and so Paul A. Hackney, administrator of Hill-Burton funds, held that this county should benefit from this unused money. The low bid on the annex, including architect's fee, was approximately $25,000 above the estimate. The county provided one-fourth of this out of health tax funds, and Hill-Burton funds will pay the remainder, the state paying only its one-fourth share of the $81,000 originally allocated for the work.

The annex will be 16 feet by 30 feet, along the Goble street side of the present building. The work will include a full and completed basement, central air-conditioning and heating.

Shown at the marker indicating the beginning of Prestonsburg's big street improvement program are city and county officials and professional men. Combs; at right—County Judge Henry Stumbo, City Treasurer James Richard Spurlock, County Attorney Barkley J. Sturgill and John Hill, of the Prestonsburg Engineering Company.

Unable to be present when photo was made were Mayor George P. Archer, H. D. Fitzpatrick, Jr., City Manager Curtis Clark and Councilmen Edward B. Leslie, H. G. Salyers, Jr., Byron Nunnery, T. J. Fannin, Tom O. McGuire and Winston Ford, Jr.

Jaycee drivers are (from left) Paul Stepp, Donald Howard, Ted Hicks and Vance Mitter, all of Prestonsburg. Stepp and Hicks drove from Prestonsburg to Frankfort, mostly on the Mountain Parkway, I-64 and U.S. 60, in two hours and 54 minutes, traveling 159 miles. It took Mitter and Howard 51 minutes longer to make the trip on older two-lane roads. The test was sponsored by the Kentucky Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Departments of Public Safety and Highways.

Our Own Personal "Welcome"

It is good to know that the splendid new, four-lane bridge across the river here will be officially named "The Bert Combs Bridge."

It is an honor delayed because Bert Combs himself delayed it. While Governor of Kentucky he exercised his authority in the firmest sort of way to see to it that no bridge or highway or edifice be named for him.

But, now that he has returned to private life, honors that were due him all along are the ex-governor's. Commissioner of Highways Henry Ward looked forward, months ago, to the day when he, not Combs, would make the decision in the matter.

It is gratifying to know that the bridge will bear the name of the man who is responsible for its construction. It is highly appropriate that the man whom both Bert Combs and Edward T. Breathitt were astute enough to name commissioner of highways will be present to speak Saturday when the name-plates are bolted to the bridge.

In the past we have discouraged discouragement by routing our way to or from work so as to cross that bridge or to drive from it into town. It makes the view so much brighter! We are reminded on such occasions of the manifold improvements and benefits and opportunities that have come this way because a man named Bert Combs was governor of Kentucky. And the trip serves to convince us that, surely, with all this, Prestonsburg and Floyd county cannot fail to grow and take their places among the progressive communities of Kentucky.

The Floyd County Times is always pleased to welcome Bert Combs and Henry Ward, his strong, right arm in the herculean business of building highways and bridges.

Fines Are Not the Answer To Bootlegging Problem

Perhaps we have said so before, but, if we have, it will not be amiss, we think, to repeat a belief which we hold so strongly. It is this:

The Floyd circuit court and the Floyd quarterly court and those officials who are responsible for what is done in those courts are exactly right when they add a jail term for those convicted of, or pleading guilty to, charges of selling, possessing or transporting intoxicants.

Having said that, we add: Those courts which permit persons guilty of any of these offenses to get away with a mere fine are contributing nothing to law-enforcement and, in fact, are working at cross purposes to the quarterly and circuit courts. If a fine is to be the penalty for such wilful flaunting of the law, the county could more effectively and with greater profit settle for a royalty per pint or fifth or in whatever volume would be satisfactory to all concerned.

As we understand the matter, the duty of the courts is to deter crime, not merely to add to the revenues of a town, city, county or state. And we think every official knows that.

TIDBITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

FOLKS GOTTA BE BORN

Some years ago Miss Marie Campbell, one of the greatest living folklorists, wrote a book with this title, FOLKS GOTTA BE BORN. It was concerned with her experiences with the colored registered midwives in southern Georgia, a research project that she had obtained through a Guggenheim grant. I can think of no book that I have read, in my avid reading of folksy books, that gave me more of the feeling of the pioneer physician or the dedicated, though often illiterate, midwife. These colored midwives had an organization, a very religious one, in which they were taught procedures by the county health nurses; they were encouraged to ask questions, to take part in demonstrations, to give testimonies of their own experiences, good and bad. And the rather elderly women entered into their labors with a strange zeal that reminds one of the faith of the early Christians. Miss Campbell was accepted as a close friend by the nurses and the midwives and was allowed to participate in all their activities. There is something very elemental and inspiring in her deliberately simple and homely account of these dedicated women.

In the continued bitter weather of the 1963-64 winter I have often remembered the old family doctor, especially typified by my own father. On just such days and nights as we have had, with sudden turning of rain to sleet or snow, if father was not already out on a call, my brother and I would say that this was exactly the sort of night when some newcomer would make his appearance. And, as I look back now, we rarely lost our guess, for someone would appear in the blinding snow, holler "Hello" at the gate, and state his urgent need for the doctor. And my brother and I would saddle Old Clipper, Father's old yellow horse, mother would get out father's heavy, long overcoat and tufted gloves (the work of one of his former patients), father would grab his saddlebags and whatever necessary things he owned for just such occasion and into the night he would ride, with his trusty lantern dimly showing the wild winter landscapes around him and his horse. There were no telephones then, not until I was old enough to help build the first lines into our neighborhood and to our house; mother would sometimes walk the floor as the storm raged, saying nothing, but thereby silencing any loud or joyful talk on our parts. It seemed almost sacrilegious to rejoice in my warm feathered with father out in that weather, but "Folks got to be born." And, some time up in the day following, father and his big yellow horse would come back, he pretty fagged out, with the news that there was a new son or daughter in the cabin or more pretentious house of one of his patients. And, as father lay down on the cot to try to make up for lost sleep, we children learned, very early in life, to be very quiet; mother saw to it that our father got a few hours of rest before tackling the weather again, and often in longer and more serious cases.

Long before the days of the Dionne quintuplets Fidelity had its own sensation, and my father was the attending physician. The Dr. Dafoe Anderson Perry, a tenant on the farm of Mr. Monroe Meador, became famous overnight as the father of triplets, all of them plump and normal. The next day, a spring day when fish were biting, I was asked to help dig some worms and told that I could ride behind father to Beechy Fork to fish. As we passed a tobacco barn on the way, we saw an elderly Negro sitting inside stripping tobacco; father told him the news, and that old man's eyes brightened up until I still remember them, sixty-five years later. From everywhere the people came to see the three babies, named, respectively, for my mother, my older sister, and another lady of the "white folks."

New Use for Fiber Glass

APPLYING FIBER GLASS to the spillway of the lake used to supply water for the new eastbound I-64 Rest Area building in Shelby County, Kenneth Arnold, director of the State Highway Roadside Development Division helps launch a new Highway Department experiment in erosion control. Fiber glass in the bucket is pulled from one continuous roll by a compressed air unit. Asphalt will be sprayed on top of the fiber glass to hold it to the ground. A soil sterilant will also be used to keep weeds and grass from pushing the fiber glass-asphalt, erosion control mat out of place.

$25,000 GIFT TO SPEED VOLUNTARY STERILIZATION PROGRAM IN APPALACHIA

Has the "Population Bomb" in the United States given birth to an unwanted child, the "Poverty Bomb"?

Some authorities, convinced that this is a fact, declare that federal aid to depressed areas without birth control measures is futile. Dr. A. S. Holmes, health officer in Kentucky Appalachia, says, "The problem of too many children in needy families lies at the root of the Appalachian poverty problem."

An historic attack on this dilemma was announced Tuesday by Homer N. Calver, chairman of the Public Health Committee of the Human Betterment Association for Voluntary Sterilization, who revealed the donation of $25,000 by Jesse Hartman, New York philanthropist, to set up voluntary sterilization clinics in Kentucky Appalachia with the cooperation of local public health authorities. Said Calver, "I feel strongly that if the human race is going to protect itself against the invading horde of the yet unborn, it must look to voluntary sterilization as an important measure of defense."

The Hartman Plan is designed to answer the need of many Appalachian families for the most reliable birth control method. HBAVS will channel funds through public health agencies to get the project rolling, with the expectation that the public health units will later share the cost of maintaining the program. This is the first known partnership of this type between American private philanthropy and government, and is a pilot project showing the way for government to assume full responsibility for similar future programs nationally.

SUMMER JOYS

BY ROBERT J. HASTINGS

About 1875, a penniless tramp by the name of Charles Lounsbury died in Chicago. In his empty pockets was found a very strange will. This will left no earthly property, for he had none of his own. But among other things, he "willed" the following to children:

"I devise to boys, jointly, all the idle fields and commons, where ball may be played, and all pleasant waters where one may swim . . . all streams and ponds where one may fish . . . to have and to hold same for the period of their boyhood. And all the meadows, with the clover blossoms and butterflies thereof, the woods with their appurtenances, the birds and squirrels and echoes and strange noises, and all the distant places which may be visited, together with the adventures there to be found."

In these mid-summer days of 1964 when our nation is preoccupied with political conventions in Atlantic City and San Francisco, racial tensions in Mississippi, and setbacks in Vietnam, boys throughout the countryside are still enjoying the treasures "willed" to them by Charles Lounsbury. And so may it ever be.

The Bible teaches that "children are an heritage of the Lord" (Psalms 127:3). And Jesus said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me . . . for of such is the kingdom of God" (Mark 10:14).

Mr. Hartman will accompany HBAVS representatives to a meeting in Berea, July 8 with county and state public health personnel to inaugurate the Hartman Plan officially.

J. W. R. Norton, M.D., Past President of the American Public Health Association and member of the HBAVS Public Health Committee, has been invited to address the meeting on the Hartman Plan in relation to the U. S. war on poverty.

HBAVS reports that a sizeable waiting list of both male and female applicants for the sterilization operation exists in several counties in Kentucky Appalachia. An immediate goal will be to take care of as many of these applicants as possible. Screening procedures will be set by local medical authorities in cooperation with HBAVS Public Health Committee. "For many of these families," says Mr. Calver, "the additional burden of another unwanted child or children would be disastrous."

Lindbergh Urges Preservation Of Wildlife

Unless present trends are reversed many species of wild animals soon will vanish, warns Charles Lindbergh. In a July Reader's Digest article, "Is Civilization Progress?" the famous aviator recalls his flight to Paris, other air adventures in peace and war, and urges more national parks and game preserves.

"On every continent, and in almost every country," says Lindbergh, "the crisis for wildlife is acute. If present trends continue, the extermination will be appalling and it can never be redressed. The American eagle, the whooping crane, the Arabian onyx, the mountain gorilla, the blue whale, the polar bear and many other species are all in imminent danger."

"Man can stop the extermination of animals if he has the desire to do so. To what extent he has this desire will, I think, be the measure of his greatness—whether he places more value on his own material accomplishments or on God's miracle of life."

"There is no time to lose. Some species now number only dozens, where thousands existed not very long ago; and with all the progress of our science, we cannot replace a species once extinct."

In praising the bravery of African tribesmen facing lions, Lindbergh recalls his own war service.

"How sensory, how different from the combats I had known!" he writes. "As a fighter pilot, I was under ack-ack fire many times. I shot down an enemy airplane attacking me head-on. But would I have the courage and ability to kill a charging lion, armed with nothing more than leather shield and iron-pointed spear?"

Lindbergh finds that daily ocean flights "dull the sense of magic" that they once held. "I cannot watch tray-carrying stewardesses walking up and down an aisle," he writes, "and still realize that 35,000 feet below me is the same cold-water ocean I crossed in 1927."

EATING MORE BEEF
The U. S. Department of Agriculture expects the average American to eat three to four pounds more beef this year than he did in 1963.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky

By JOE JORDAN

(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week President Lincoln put Kentucky under martial law and suspended the writ of habeas corpus. This a person arrested by the military could not appeal to the courts. Often his family could not find out the nature of the charge against him, or where he was confined. And he might be one of four prisoners selected to die before a firing squad in retaliation for the killing of one Union citizen by unknown persons.

Col. Frank Wolford, former commander of the First Kentucky (Union) Cavalry, who in March had been dismissed dishonorably from the service for making a speech in which he criticized the President and in June had been arrested and sent under guard to Washington, returned to Kentucky unaccompanied. In his case, Kentucky congressmen had made an appeal to the President, who directed that Wolford be released from custody on condition he give his word to report for trial at Louisville. Reporting Wolford's arrival, the Louisville Journal said: "He is to remain here until he has his trial before a court of examination, or some other kind of military court, for language said to have been used by him at Lebanon. . . . We do not understand that he is to be tried under any law."

Gov. Thomas E. Bramlette said in a letter to Lt. Gov. Richard T. Jacob. "The pretense upon which he was arrested I had not been able to learn until you informed me. . . . that it was upon the charge of discouraging enlistments." The governor was astonished, for Wolford had just succeeded in enlisting an entire regiment of state troops at Bramlette's request.

The Lexington Observer and Reporter carried this story about two former residents of Lexington: "It is stated that the resignation of Francis P. Blair at Silver Spring, Maryland, near Washington, was saved from destruction by the agency of John C. Breckinridge, who was no doubt influenced by the friendly relations previously existing between him and the owner." Breckinridge was a major general in the Confederate Army. Blair was a strong Union man. One of his sons, Francis P. Blair, Jr., was a major general in the Union Army and another, Montgomery Blair, was postmaster general in President Lincoln's cabinet.

The Observer and Reporter said the first speeches in Lexington by supporters of Mr. Lincoln had been made to a "very meagre number" of voters, one speech "by ex-Governor Wright of Indiana (an old Democrat who, after spending his life in fighting Abolitionism, has now been converted into a most excellent radical of the Lincoln school); the other by Charles Eginon, of Winchester, the Lincoln elector for this district. Although it was county court day and the orators delivered themselves in the courthouse yard, yet the people did not seem inclined to be enlightened from such sources."

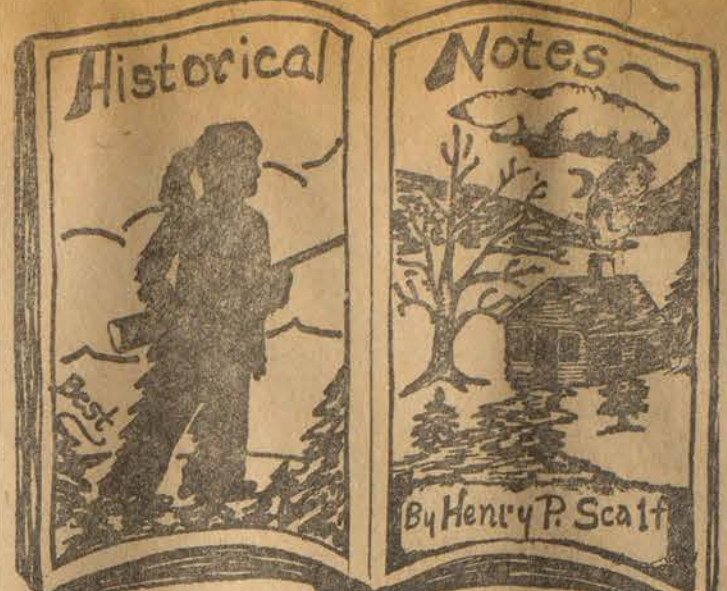

NOTICE

Please take notice that a petition has been filed with the Floyd County Court to establish a water district and appoint water commissioners for the purpose of furnishing a water supply to the citizens of the town of Auxier, Kentucky, and including a territory commencing at the new Auxier bridge and taking all of the territory including the town of Auxier. Within 30 days after the publication of this notice any resident of the proposed district may file objections and the Court shall set the case for hearing within 10 days. If the Court may find that the establishment of such district is reasonably necessary for the public health, convenience, fire protection and comfort of the residents, it shall make an order establishing such district and designate by number and name, pursuant to KRS 74.010.

This July 6, 1964.
HENRY STUMBO
Judge,
Floyd County Court

Richmond, Ky. — Fifty-eight Eastern Kentucky State College junior and senior Reserve Officers Training Corps cadets will be among 4,000 cadets from 71 colleges and universities at the nation's largest R.O.T.C. summer camp at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation this summer.

"Hot-line" telephones are being used to battle big-city park crime. Reader's Digest reports. New York and Philadelphia are among cities that have installed "citizens' phones" in parks. The phones, connected to police or park-guard watchboards, provide a quick free way to summon help in case of emergency.

AMBURGEY FAMILY

A letter from Mrs. Dorothy Amburgey Griffith, 9514 Minerva avenue, Overland, Missouri, is an inquiry on the Amburgey family. She is compiling a history of the family which she expects to publish.

We print her plea for help. "On behalf of all interested Amburgeys I wish to write and publish a book on the history and genealogy of the family. I want to bring this book up to date and need names of both the present and past. I will send each member a form sheet to fill out if they will send me their name and address.

"All related families by marriage, such as Combs, Francis, Smith and Stamper may be able to supply some information. I will be glad to hear from any of them. In return I may be able to help them with the knowledge I have of their name. I have received much fine help from various cousins but there are many vacant spaces to fill.

"The Amburgey name goes back into American history 250 years. It is historic and legendary. It has produced many fine and intelligent citizens living throughout the United States. It has much to be proud of. The help of all Amburgeys is needed to preserve their history for future generations."

Persons having information on the Amburgey or related lines are asked to write Mrs. Griffith. The Amburgey name is not very prolific on Eastern Kentucky records. Just thumbing through a few reference books and records on the region discloses only three marriages before the Civil War. These marriages were in Letcher county.

These are: William Amburgey, married Hannah Bentley, January 3, 1846. Rev. James Collins, of the Methodist Church, was the officiating minister. Elizabeth Amburgey married William Bentley, February 19, 1846. The name of the minister is not given. Margaret Amburgey married William Canfield, October 17, 1844. John Canfield, either an official or minister, the record doesn't say, officiated.

EASTERN KENTUCKY BIOGRAPHIES

From time to time this column has reprinted biographies of prominent Eastern Kentucky residents as they were published in 1907 in History of Kentucky, by Kaffen, Perrin and Battle. Many persons, not having seen the book, have requested more biographies. This week the biographies of Dr. James M. Waldeck, Francis T. D. Wallace, Robert H. Weddington and William H. Weddington are reprinted.

DR. JAMES M. WALDECK
"James M. Waldeck, a practicing physician of West Liberty, Morgan county, Kentucky, was born in Morgan county, March 19, 1841. His father, Alexander S., was a native of Lewis county, Virginia, was born in 1813, and settled in West Liberty, Kentucky, about 1836; he was a tanner by trade, which he followed in connection with farming all his life. About 1837 he married Miss Rhoda Maxey, a daughter of Colville and Leah Cassidy Maxey, of Bath county, Kentucky. To their union were born the following children: James M., Leah, Sarah J., Annetta D., Luella, Margaret E., and Alexander D. James M. Waldeck was reared in West Liberty, receiving his education at that place and Mt. Sterling. He began the study of medicine when quite young, and had just commenced active practice when the late war broke out.

In 1862 he enlisted in the Confederate army, Company B, Twenty-fifth Wisconsin Regiment, and served until the close of the war, most of the time, however, acting as surgeon. After the war he resumed the practice of medicine at West Liberty, which he has since continued very successfully and is now regarded as one of the leading practitioners of his profession in Eastern Kentucky. March 18, 1868, he married Miss Perry A. Howerton, a daughter of Perry and Sarah A.

William H. Weddington removed to Catlettsburg, where he kept a hotel until his death in 1850, aged forty-five years. After the death of his father William H. Weddington (who was the third in a family of five children) was taken to Pike county and reared by an uncle, James Weddington. In September, 1862, volunteered for the Thirty-Ninth Kentucky Infantry, Union service, was mustered out at Louisville as Second Lieutenant of Company D, same regiment, served three years and twenty-one days, and then returned to Pike county, and engaged in farming and lumbering. In 1882 he opened a general store five miles west of Pikeville. February 6, 1866, he married Miss Elizabeth Reynolds, a daughter of John H. Reynolds, deceased. They are the parents of four children, viz: Ballard, Mintie, Ennora and John M. Mr. Weddington owns 200 acres of land, is a Republican, and a member of the Masonic fraternity."

SHOPPING FOR BEEF
For a good idea of what you're getting when you buy beef, consider both the cut and the grade. The more tender cuts come from places on the animal that aren't exercised much. For example, meat from the rib and loin sections is more tender than that from the leg, neck and shoulder. Look for the USDA grade to find out the quality of the cut. The best is Prime, then Choice, Good and Standard.

STAMP PLAN EXTENSION

Not Planned by State; Program Cost Exceeds First Estimate, Said

The statement made in Frankfort last week to the effect that Kentucky cannot extend its program to aid unemployed parents during the new fiscal year which began July 1 does not mean that the program will be discontinued in counties where it now exists, it was said here this week.

A Courier-Journal headline, stating, "State Cannot Continue Giving Financial Help to Jobless Parents," caused some concern here temporarily until the statement of Economic Security Commissioner Earle Powell was analyzed.

It was held here that the Frankfort statement means that the program cannot be extended to counties which are not a part of the present pilot program. The work is expected to continue in Floyd, Knott, Leslie, Letcher, Pike, Breathitt, Perry, Harlan and Bell counties, where it was initiated as a pilot program.

The project, which began in January, was financed through a $400,000 federal grant. Powell said the cost at the nine-county level has been far more than first estimates.

He cited two factors:

1. Federal insistence on liberal eligibility, which raised the number of participants.
2. A lack of background information from which Kentucky officials could more accurately have projected eventual costs.

No state money went into the pilot program. The state's new two-year budget includes $1.1 million for the first year and $1.5 million for the second.

"We are not without hope," Powell said, speaking of prospects for other counties. He termed the President's anti-poverty bill, now before Congress, as the best possible vehicle for expanding the program within Appalachia.

Records show that grants have been made to 2,500 families, with an average benefit of $120 per family in June.

Coupled with the unemployed-parent program is one of public works which has employed more than 2,000 fathers. The grants become the salaries at $1 an hour.

EMERGENCY BROADCAST CHANGES ARE ANNOUNCED

An Emergency Broadcast System (EBS) will replace CONELRAD on August 5, placing into effect a basic change in the nation's system to provide official information and directions to the public in event of a civil defense emergency.

This change will mean that in a civil defense emergency, present CONELRAD radio stations will no longer switch to 640 or 1240 kilocycles, but will continue to broadcast on normal frequencies at normal power.

The change from CONEL-

RAD (Control of Electromagnetic Radiation) is made possible by a Defense Department determination that enemy navigational and targeting devices and techniques no longer require or would use radio transmission to guide bombers or missiles to targets.

To assure that vital emergency broadcasting is not interrupted by fallout sufficient to force evacuation of the stations, the Office of Civil Defense is building fallout protection into key operating areas of emergency broadcasting stations.

"Fiddlin'" Dewey Shepherd Plans Participation In Folk Festival

Recorded for audition purposes and possible commercial use later were the Shepherds' renditions of "The Snow-White Shirt" which will be featured at the concert, "The Oldtime Fiddler," "The Moonshiner Blues," "Have a Little Fun," "Daniel in the Lion's Den," "Jack Munro," "Lonesome John," "Froggie Went a-Courtin'," "Don't Let Your Deal Go Down" and "Down South Blues."

A special request was made by Rinzler that Fiddlin' Dewey bring along a gourd fiddle. This he'll do—and, he says, another fiddle that's a hundred years old.

A third car, driven by Claude Ashley, of Dema, who was returning from the Dema section to Strongsville, Ohio, and was following the Martin auto, figured slightly in the collision but none of its occupants was injured.

State Trooper B. J. Music, of Paintsville, who investigated the tragedy, said Martin and others in his car were driving toward Paintsville, en route to their homes in Kendallville, Indiana, after a holiday visit with relatives in Floyd and Knott counties. Osborne was driving toward Prestonsburg. As the Martin car approached the Hager Hill underpass his right tire or tires dropped from the roadway onto the shoulder of the road and he cut back sharply to regain the pavement. Music said he apparently cut too sharply, losing control of his car and ramming into the approaching auto driven by Osborne. Both cars were total wrecks.

J. Carter was told. He conducted an inquest here at the Floyd Funeral Home, where the body was first taken.

Blackburn was the first lake victim of the year. The body was recovered from about eight feet of water by Paul Moore, of Farmersville, Illinois, and Charles Moore, of Van Lear. The Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad was called to the tragedy scene but arrived too late to take part in the search for the body.

Blackburn, formerly an Ohio factory worker, was a son of Mrs. Myrtle Scott Blackburn, of McCombs, and the late James Harvey Blackburn. He was never married. Besides his mother, he leaves one brother, Hassell Blackburn, Hatcher, West Virginia, a half-brother, George Blackburn, of Pikeville, and five sisters, Mrs. Gay Stator, Forest Hills, Kentucky, Mrs. Helena West, Baltimore, Maryland, Mrs. Oma Radtiff, Mrs. Faye Leslie and Mrs. Eulah Stepp, all of Route 1, Pikeville.

The body was removed from the funeral home here to the J. W. Call & Son Funeral Home, Pikeville. Funeral rites were conducted Monday from the Blackburn residence by the Revs. John W. Conley and W. H. Amburgey. Burial was made in the Blankenship cemetery at McCombs.

member of the Methodist hospital board, said plans are being studied that would permit the Methodists to operate both institutions.

"If the deal goes through," he said, "we will eventually build onto the former miners' hospital and eventually dispose of our older hospital. It would have to be quite a large building campaign," he added.

Neither man wished to disclose terms of the proposed lease.

Klicka said the Appalachian group hopes that the Methodist trustees will affiliate with his organization, now including all 10 former U.M.W. hospitals, so that they can benefit from bulk buying done for the other nine hospitals.

ROAD WORK ENVISIONED

Ward Earmarks Funds For Relocation Jobs If Legislation Passes

Four Eastern Kentucky highways would be the first to be relocated if the Appalachian development bill is passed by Congress, it was said at Frankfort, Monday. The state has tentatively earmarked $7 million for this work, Highway Commissioner Henry Ward said.

The bill proposes a network of development roads in the Appalachian region. The highways would be built or relocated on the basis of need, not traffic flow.

The earmarked state funds are to be used as matching money with federal allocations under the proposed law.

It isn't known yet what the matching formula would be for highways in Kentucky. The bill proposes from 50 percent to 80 percent on the federal government's part.

Highway officials are hopeful the federal participation will be as high as 70 percent.

Thus, if the bill passes Congress during this fiscal year, Kentucky could count on about $16 million in matching funds.

Another intangible is the eligibility of certain highways in the 44-county Eastern Kentucky area the bill would cover.

"We don't know which roads it would affect," said James Phillips, Highway Information officer. "We do know some roads that would have priority in Kentucky, but we don't know what priority they would have at the federal level."

The department will have to continue the regular federal-aid program in the area to supplement the development program.

Design standards for the highway have not been established, and they could have a direct bearing on how many miles would be constructed in Kentucky.

Ward feels that the majority of highways in Eastern Kentucky could be high-type, two-lane roads. The cost of building a superhighway through the mountains is almost prohibitive.

The additional $7 million does not appear in the department's budget as a specific item.

WE POINT ELSEWHERE

One of our errors—this one in 36-point type—has been with considerable glee pointed out to us. To divert the course of conversation elsewhere we recount a couple of yarns told of the lives and hard times of young reporters.

One is that oldie told of the tyro who was sent by his city editor to "cover" the baseball game and who sauntered in at press-time without having tapped a typewriter key.

"Where's your story of the game?" bellowed the editor.

"Wasn't any—nothing to write about, so no story," chirruped the reporter.

"What happened, no game?"

"The grandstand collapsed and killed 10 people!" replied the novice.

Then there is the one of the young reporter who was asked to cut his obituaries and desist from overwriting. So the next day he turned in this masterpiece:

"Scott J. Morgan looked up the shaft of the Main Street hotel this morning to see if the elevator was on its way. It was. Age 23."

PARLEY TO DECIDE ON RIGHTS SESSION

The long-sought, hard-fought civil rights bill won final passage in Congress last week, was signed Thursday by President Johnson—and now it's Kentucky's turn to get into the action.

Governor Edward T. Breathitt has set July 29 for a prelegislative conference to determine whether he will call a special session to consider a civil-rights bill.

The meeting probably will be held in the State Health Department auditorium, but the hour has not been fixed.

After a speech by the Governor, the lawmakers will be polled on their feelings about a special session.

During the Legislature's regular 1964 session, Breathitt supported a bill to grant Negroes equal access to places of public accommodation. The measure failed to emerge from the Rules committee in either House or Senate.

Breathitt then said he would call the legislators to an informal meeting after the federal civil-rights bill is passed.

With passage of the federal measure, the Governor may emphasize two points:

1. The opportunity for Kentucky to use "home rule" in resolving racial matters, rather than risk federal intervention.

2. The fact that the federal bill is not the final answer—that the state needs to finish the job by eliminating prejudice in businesses not engaged in interstate commerce.

Regarding "home rule," one clause in the federal measure says in effect:

If an alleged discriminatory practice takes place in a state or local area that has a law barring such acts and providing relief, no federal suit can be filed until the state has had 30 days' notice. The clause also allows a federal court to delay proceedings further—until the end of state or local proceedings on the dispute.

There were two other developments yesterday on Kentucky's civil-rights front:

The Legislative Research Commission said it is mailing the 100 House and 38 Senate members a 10-page analysis of the federal civil-rights bill, based on information obtained from Washington.

A group called Kentuckians for Public Accommodations Legislation informed its members: "Now is the time to revisit legislators."

Chairman Joseph Graves, Lexington, said that if lawmakers indicate sufficient support for the public-accommodations bills, the Governor will summon a special session.

"One clear lesson that we all learned during the regular session is that personal visits are by far the most effective means of communicating with legislators," Graves said.

"There is no better way to reach the mind and conscience of the lawmaker. We must learn their views in order to be able to resolve their fears and remove their doubts."

Breathitt has indicated that he won't call a special session if the legislators appear reluctant to pass a bill.

And he has said he will not issue the call without an agreed date of adjournment.

Branham-Thompson Vows Said

In a candlelight ceremony at 7 p.m., June 19, at the Greiner Avenue Church of Christ, Jerri Branham became the bride of Mrs. Joe Adrian Thompson.

The groom is a former resident of Martin and Ashland, Kentucky, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Thompson, Ashland, Kentucky. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Bee Branham, formerly of Martin, and the late Mr. Branham.

O. M. Miller, minister of the First Christian Church, Russell, Kentucky, performed the ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, John Auxier, of Paintsville, Kentucky.

The groom's mother wore a pink cymbidium orchid and matching accessories. The bride's mother wore a blue dress with a matching corsage and accessories.

The bride wore a dress of white crystal poi de soi with a bell skirt. The bodice was fashioned from imported French chantilly lace; a scalloped neckline with a scattering of pearls. She carried pale pink cymbidium orchids with lilies of the valley for her bouquet.

The bride's only attendant was a matron of honor, Mrs. Johna Thompson, sister-in-law of the groom. She wore a blue silk or-

Kentucky Anthropology Museum At University Is Interesting Exhibit

If 7,000-year-old baby rattles and 2,700-year-old sandals are among your primary interests, then a visit to the University of Kentucky anthropology museum is a must for you.

Housed in a two-story building at the center of the Lexington campus are artifact collections of cultures dating from the year 5,000 B.C.

The first floor of the museum features display cases which depict Kentucky Indian life from the time of the first hunters through the period of early soil tillers to the late prehistoric, village-dwelling farmers.

Virtually all phases of human life are represented in the museum—everything from a tortoise-shell baby rattle to a round burial pit, complete with skeleton. And those accustomed to think of Kentuckians as shoeless hillbillies might notice the rope-like sandals used by primitives of this state as early as 800 B.C.

The youngest culture represented on the first floor is the Fort Ancient Culture (1,000-1650 A.D.) in which is found the first evidence of musical instruments—metal jew's harps.

On the second floor are illustrations of more recent chapters in the story of primitive man. Greeting the visitor on this level of the museum are glassy stares from two religious masks worn by Eskimo shamans, or religious leaders.

Also in this collection are Eskimo ivory carvings from fossilized mastodon tusks and a pictorial history of the Navajo Indian of northern Arizona.

Primary purpose of the UK museum, as stated by Director Douglas W. Schwartz, is to fill in blank spaces in Kentucky's history.

Kentucky Conservation Caravan Exhibit Sets Plans for Summer Fairs

Kentucky's Conservation Caravan, a rolling exhibit designed to spread the conservation story all across the state, is on the road for its third summer season of county fairs and shows.

The Caravan utilizes two animated dioramas, complete with real rain and simulated lightning and thunder, to show how rainstorms can affect a countryside not protected by good conservation practices, and how these practices can help protect cities from flooding and prevent loss of precious topsoil.

State Commissioner of Natural Resources J. O. Matlick said the Caravan's schedule is almost complete from now till next fall. "Some dates are still open," he said, "and we will be filling these as we have requests."

He reported the schedule, to date, includes only the Johnson county fair at Paintsville, September 18-19.

Starting September 22, Matlick added, the Conservation Caravan will begin its winter-time travels to Kentucky schools, tentatively scheduled to tour Northeastern Kentucky first.

GAINS FREEDOM

Ghana was the first African country to gain its freedom from a colonial power, but, says the Reader's Digest, Ghanaians have watched their President, Kwame Nkrumah, take away their liberties one by one, until today Ghana is a totalitarian, communist-type state with one party, of which Nkrumah is chairman for life.

NATIONAL HONORS have been awarded to Robert J. Tallent, star of the Maytown high school basketball team who is scheduled to advance this year to the University of Kentucky Wildcats. Tallent was named to the Prep All-America basketball team and is here shown receiving from Garner Price, of the Royal Crown Bottling Company, an official plaque as a permanent memento of his honors. At right is Bradley Bentley, president of the Paintsville Royal Crown plant.

The 18-year-old Tallent, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Tallent, of Langley, was one of 100 youths from all parts of the United States to be named to the Prep All-America. Later, COACH AND ATHLETE magazine named him to the top 10 players on the Prep All-America. This honor was accorded not only on the basis of his athletic ability but also on scholastic and citizenship merit.

Tallent, who averaged 41 points a game during his senior year at Maytown, was named to the Kentucky squad to play in the Indiana-Kentucky all-star series begun recently but was prevented from taking part by a knee injury. He is expected to be in shape to play with the East squad in the East-West game at Lexington, next month.

Good Soil Produces Quality Vegetables

Lexington, Ky. — Top quality vegetables are the result of good seed, good soil and good cultural practices. Most gardeners buy good seed and plant them in good soil, but, unless they practice good cultural methods, the produce may be only medium-to-poor in quality. One cultural practice which can have much effect on quality is mulching, especially if the soil has a tendency to be droughty.

The word quack, as it is used today, is an abbreviation for the earlier form, quacksalver. Using the cry of the duck to denote ignorant chatter and boasting, the word "salver"—to salve or heal—was added. Thus, quacksalver came to mean one who makes noisy pretensions to a medical skill for profit and prestige.

BLACK BASS SPAWN HEAVILY IN DEWEY

Dewey Lake had a huge spawn of black bass this year, says Bernie Carter, director of the Division of Fisheries.

The statement was made after assessment had been made of population taken last month at Dewey and other state impoundments.

The study area at Dewey lake covered a 2.7-acre expanse of water, and Carter said as many as 10,000 young bass were sighted in that area. Game species found included white bass, largemouth and spotted bass and both black and white crappie. Both black and white bass found in the area provided only 37 of the total of 270 pounds of fish discovered in the area.

Dominating the sample taken at the lake was the gizzard shad with a weight total of 106 pounds. Bluegill was next with 60 pounds, then carp with 47 pounds. More than 30 pounds of crappie were recovered from the area. (No report was made on catfish and suckers.)

The area studied on Dewey Lake resulted in the recovery of, roughly speaking, 14 pounds of bass, both white and black, per acre. Black bass alone from a 1.3-acre area on Beaver Creek of Cumberland Lake weighed 18.4 pounds per acre.

Tests during last month, in addition to those at Dewey and Cumberland, were made at Elmer Davis Lake, Barren

POT ROAST RECIPE

Here's a pot roast recipe that is a favorite of Mrs. Orville L. Freeman, wife of the U. S. Secretary of Agriculture. Brown two pounds of round steak in heavy frying pan or roaster. Sprinkle over top 1/2 envelope dried onion soup; spread over this one can undiluted cream of mushroom soup. Cover pan and bake at 325 degrees for about two hours or until tender. Serves four. Use only a tiny bit of salt, if any, because onion soup is salty, Mrs. Freeman warns.

JOB IMAGE CHANGED FOR TRUANT OFFICER

The "truant officer" of yesterday is the "director of pupil personnel" today. That's the change in title for those responsible for keeping Kentucky's school-age children in school. Now there are 239 pupil personnel workers to keep nearly 764,000 children in school.

"The title change is not the only one in this area of responsibility," according to Dr. Harry M. Sparks, state superintendent of public instruction. "The whole image has changed from the gun-toting fellow who could swear out warrants himself to keep a child in school and penalize the parents who didn't," Sparks said. "Today, it's a 'helping hand' vs. the 'you-get-to-school-or-else' image of years ago.

"The result is that parents and the general public more and more are looking upon our pupil personnel workers as helpers instead of law-enforcement people. And these workers hold positions considered in the upper strata of school officialdom—with salaries to match. State law requires a central office for the personnel worker in, or adjacent to, the district superintendent's office."

Dr. Frank D. Bean, director of the Division of Statistical Services in the Kentucky Department of Education, reported 197 full-time and 42 part-time directors now in the state's 204 school districts.

"They work," he said, "as the connecting link between the school, child, teacher, principal, home, and organizations. They are the coordinators of the whole attendance program."

State law requires at least one such director in each district. The larger districts have more than one, such as Jefferson county with nine and the city of Louisville with eight. Principals, other administrators, or teachers may double in the position in smaller districts, Dr. Bean said. Kentucky's legislators enacted the first compulsory attendance law in 1904, but until 1934 there were no uniform provisions to enforce it. Until 1934, truant officers in some districts had authority to compel children to attend school by using force, punishment, or any other means common to law. They could even make arrests.

In 1934, the Kentucky General Assembly changed all this by passing legislation completely revising the school law. The Division of Census and Attendance was established as an integral part of the State Department of Education.

Beginning in 1934, the truant officer became the "attendance officer," then in 1954 the "director of pupil personnel." That year, the state legislature provided for the distribution of school funds on a per capita basis.

"Boys and girls from 7 to 14 years old are in the compulsory age," Dr. Bean explained. "But we consider those from 6 to 18 in the school age."

The latest school census disclosed 774,884 Kentucky youngsters of school age as of September 1, 1963. That meant about 10,000 school-agers not in classes.

It's the job of the personnel worker to find out why.

Statistics show high school dropouts lead the list of school-agers not enrolled. Major reasons for leaving school are financial, marriage, indifference of students, or parents or both. Physical and mental causes rank near the bottom, Dr. Bean said. And the most trouble comes from broken homes.

The personnel officers get the list of absentees from school principals. The workers are concerned, by State law, with those absent for three consecutive days without excuses.

Then they visit the home to determine the reason. If the cause is financial—lack of money for clothing, or shoes, or lunch, or all three—the personnel worker tries to work out a solution with some local organization.

"Many churches, civic clubs, and even parent-teacher associations have shoe and/or clothing funds, or second-hand clothing," Dr. Bean said. "Some of these groups provide lunch money, too.

"There's no community now in Kentucky where a child should stay out of school for these reasons," he believes.

"In extreme cases, we go to the welfare agencies for help." Some absenteeism results from students who have part-time jobs. If the youngster's financial help is needed urgently at home, some leeway is allowed. But no excuses are valid for a regular job during school hours.

In all cases, the personnel officers counsel with the parents and children. The value of education is stressed and all possible means of keeping the youngsters in school are explored.

With the personnel workers on 12-month contracts, more time is available now for their summer-time visiting with dropouts.

The procedure with chronic absentees is this: if the home visit and determination of the trouble shows no valid legal reason for the youngster's absence, a final notice is issued.

"Then, if no response is made within 24 hours," Dr. Bean said, "we must, by State law, issue a warrant for arrest of the father, as a last resort."

"The first day of absenteeism costs the father a $10 fine and each day constitutes a separate offense, under our statutes. Parents can be jailed, if they don't pay."

Pupil personnel officers, unlike most of the old-time "truant officers," are professional educators. Of the 239 directors, full-time and part-time, 90, or 34.7 per cent, now have master's degrees, as compared to only 45, or 20.46 per cent of the 220 total in 1956-57.

And 132 others, or 55.2 per cent, now have A.B. or B.S. degrees. Only 17, or 7.1 per cent, now have no degree, as compared to the 51, or 23.1 per cent, in 1956-57.

G.O.P. SAYS STATE LOSES

On Deposits with Banks By Failure To Charge Normal Interest Rate

Frankfort, Ky. — The state is losing about $1.5 million a year by not charging "a normal rate of interest" on inactive deposits in banks, the Republican Fiscal Affairs Committee charged recently.

"I don't believe I have any statement to make about this," State Treasurer Emerson "Doc" Beauchamp, a Democrat, said after reading the G.O.P. statement.

Beauchamp by law has the sole power to set the interest rate that banks pay on deposits of state money. The present rate is 1 percent on time deposits.

The Fiscal Affairs Committee said the normal rate in Kentucky should be 3½ percent.

In Ohio, banks pay the state "something over 4 percent," the G.O.P. release said. Don Ball, committee chairman, said the statement was based on a telephone conversation with the Ohio state treasurer.

The Courier-Journal reported that during fiscal 1963 the state of Kentucky drew an average of .55 percent on an average of $46,114,583 of inactive deposits.

On May 31, the state had $51,478,750 in inactive accounts, $28,465,625 in time deposits at 1 percent, and $23,003,125 in demand deposits at no interest.

The inactive accounts total has increased $3,389,000 since Beauchamp took office in January. The amount was shifted from the general depository where it draws no interest. Of the increase, $1,548,125 was added to time (interest-bearing) accounts and $1,811,875 to demand (non-interest-bearing) accounts.

INSPECTED AND GRADED BEEF

What's the difference between inspected and graded beef? Inspection, which is required by law for all meat moving across state lines, is for wholesomeness; some 80 percent of all commercially slaughtered beef is inspected. Grading is for quality, and this service is voluntary; about 50 percent of beef is graded.

Children can't be expected to remember long telephone numbers, but they can be taught one rule: if an accident happens, dial zero and tell the operator what is wrong. Teach the child to dial zero only in emergencies, however, safety specialists recommend. A small child also should memorize his name, his father's name and address.

TASK FORCE IS CREATED IN INTEREST OF POOR

Frankfort, Ky., July 2 (Sp.)—Governor Edward T. Breathitt has created a special Task Force on Criminal Justice to investigate the entire relationship of the poor man and the courts in Kentucky.

Named chairman of the 16-member group is M. R. "Mike" Mills, Madisonville, commonwealth attorney for Hopkins, Caldwell and Crittenden counties. Mills, 38, was chairman of former Governor Bert Combs' Task Force on Corrections which made a study of Kentucky's penal system and recommended legislative and administrative action for the program.

Breathitt asked the task force to recommend to him legislative and administrative action on bail-bond procedures, state-furnished counsel for the needy, and capital punishment.

The Governor said he decided to begin the program to eliminate distinctions between poor and rich criminal defendants "because it is right."

"We must see to it that the legal scales in Kentucky weigh justice and not the weight of a man's billfold," he said.

Breathitt said the bail-bond system should be "looked into because low income persons, often unable to make bail when accused of crime, are forced to spend the interval between arrest and trial in jail."

"They lose their jobs and their families' lives are disrupted. They cannot locate witnesses and attorneys in their behalf and because of this their chances for acquittal are lowered," he said. "They are often treated like already-convicted criminals, despite our treasured principle that people are presumed innocent until proven guilty."

An accused person's pre-trial release, Breathitt said, should be determined by the defendant's background and the nature of the crime, not by bail money.

Kentucky judges have power to release without bail defendants who give their word they will appear for trial. Breathitt said he was hopeful a plan could be formulated that would give a judge accurate information on a defendant's background so judges could at times grant a defendant's release without bail.

A study of capital punishment, declared the Governor, would probably reveal that the underprivileged and those too poor to employ counsel, most often receive the death sentence.

He gave the task force until November 1, 1965, to complete its final study. Interim reports and recommendations to the Governor may be submitted as required.

Others appointed to the task force in addition to Mills, are:

William E. Scent, Louisville, U. S. attorney for Western Kentucky; Judge John S. Palmore, Frankfort, Court of Appeals; Attorney General Robert F. Matthews, Shelbyville; W. L. Matthews, Lexington, dean of the University of Kentucky College of Law; Marlin M. Volz, Louisville, dean of the University of Louisville Law School; Edwin A. Schroering, Jr., Louisville, Jefferson county commonwealth attorney; Judge James E. Gillenwater, Glasgow, Barren county court; Judge Warren C. Eaton, Paducah, McCracken circuit court; Charles Newman, Louisville, professor of the U. of L. Kent School of Social Work; John Jay O'Hara, Covington, Kenton county commonwealth attorney; John Y. Brown, Sr., Lexington attorney; William S. Heidenberg, Louisville attorney; David R. Reed, Paducah attorney; Ollie J. Bowen, Lawrenceburg, county attorney for Anderson county; and Henry Stratton, Pikeville attorney.
