

PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY

SPEAKING OF AND FOR FLOYD COUNTY

THURSDAY, MARCH 5, 1964

This Town . . . That World

Whatever betide, it looks like and feels like spring. And sounds like it, too. The peepers are whipping up a merry tune in the brooklet, back of our house, and the birds sound off on a more cheerful note this week. First of our frog choir to utter a sound was one with a voice several notes down the scale from the piping peepers, and this specimen dared give expression to his feelings about the matter last Friday afternoon when he saw the sun shining and didn't waste his time looking around at all that snow.

All of which is to say, "The lark's on the wing"—or just fixin' to be.

Can't say that our dog has mumps, but we're hoping it's nothing worse.

GRAVITY GOT HIM

What could be more ironic than this accident which befell Col. John Glenn? This man who blasted off into space and came back grinning slipped in his bathtub, the other day, and cracked his head so solidly he's laid up, flat of his back in bed while the mayor of Cleveland yells that he would do well to forget all about his political ambitions.

SNOWBOUND

I was snowbound at the old home-place, out in the country, most of last Friday, and all was restful till I learned the roads were finally clear. It's good to look across fields deep in snow, an untracked expanse of white. It's good to indulge in whimsy, too, and think of days when heavy snowfall left farmhouses as isolated, almost, as an uncharted atoll. Half the day was gone before we had a visitor, but the feeling of isolation wasn't there. (See Story No. 1, Page 6)

STRICKLAND DIES AT 103

Area's Oldest Resident Is Victim At Hospital Here Last Saturday

Levi Strickland, Eastern Kentucky's oldest resident, died Saturday at 9 p.m. at the Prestonsburg General Hospital at the age of 103 years. He had been hospitalized six days. Death was attributed to pneumonia.

Mr. Strickland was born November 15, 1860, at Clendennin, West Virginia, a son of Stephen and Barbara Auxier Strickland. He came to Kentucky when he was 25 years old and engaged in farming and logging. He resided on Johns Creek for many years before moving to Prestonsburg.

The aged man offered no formula for living to his great age. He was in good health until a few months ago. In his 100th year he was able to read without the aid of glasses. Until three years ago he raised a garden in which he did all the planting and cultivation.

He was thrice married. He was first married to Nancy Sealf, and following her death, to Susan Spradlin. Both preceded him in death. His third wife, Elizabeth Baker Roop, survives. Also surviving are a son, Pat Strickland, of East Point, and four daughters, Mrs. Anna Burchett, of Auxier, Mrs. Lou Marshall and Mrs. Martha Nickles, both of Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Edna Carter, also of East Point.

Funeral rites were conducted Monday at 2 p.m. from the Arnold Chapel here, the Rev. Eugene Kelly officiating. Burial was made in the Strickland family cemetery on Little Point Creek under the direction of the Carter & Callihan Funeral Home.

NEW WORK PROGRAM STARTS NEXT WEEK

SIX-MONTH PILOT PLAN DEVELOPED

Beaver Creek Stream Clearance Is Studied By Corps of Engineers

Some of Floyd county's unemployed will be put to work on public projects next week, and county and federal officials are working hard to get under way yet another undertaking which would employ others.

The work to be started next week, possibly Monday, is a part of a six-month demonstration program recently approved for Floyd and six other Eastern Kentucky counties. It proposes to give work to unemployed fathers and step-fathers who are living with families which include schoolchildren under the age of 18.

The second project, one which is more distant, is stream clearance on Right Beaver Creek where the U. S. Corps of Engineers would employ local labor. One hundred eighty-four of the more than 300 Floyd fathers who have applied for work under the pilot program have been approved for employment.

Five projects have been approved for work. These are cleaning and repairing of streets in Prestonsburg, Allen and Martin, work on county roads and clearing and improving of cemeteries.

Thirty fathers are slated to start work here next Monday, doing street work. Fifteen will be employed at Martin and 10 at Allen on the same type of work. For their work these men will be paid $1 an hour.

Towns and counties sponsoring projects are required to supply workers with tools such as shovels, mallets, sledges and the like. Prestonsburg Mayor George P. Archer said the city's budget does not include such equipment, and donations of such tools, or of cash to buy the tools, were being sought this week.

The fiscal court will supply equipment for those who work on county roads and other projects outside incorporated communities. Municipalities will furnish supervision for their works projects. The county will for the present use the services of its county road foreman and mag-

PLANTS ARE SOUGHT TO COVER BARE LAND

Plants that will give quick protection to bare land left after strip mining in forested areas of Eastern Kentucky are being sought by the U. S. Forest Service's Central States Forest Experiment Station, Robert F. May, leader of research on strip-mined area restoration at the station's Berea field office, announced this week.

Sowing of 22 different plants was completed Wednesday in Knott county, east of Hazard, and in McCreary county, west of Williamsburg, May said. These studies are being made by Willis G. Vogel, range and wildlife habitat specialist, and William T. Plass, reforestation specialist, both from the Berea field office.

Forest Service strip-mined area research at Berea is carried out in cooperation with private landowners, the Department of Conservation of the State of Kentucky, the surface mining industry of the Appalachians, and the Kentucky Reclamation Association, May said.

Heart Clinic Slated For Medically Indigent At Health Department

A two-day consultative and diagnostic heart clinic for medically indigent patients will be held in the Floyd County Health Department, here, Tuesday and Wednesday, March 17-18.

This clinic is being organized so that adult patients only will be admitted to the clinic on March 17, and children only will be seen on March 18.

Physicians from the Departments of Medicine and Pediatrics at the University of Kentucky Medical School will conduct the clinics.

Those referred by a physician to the clinic will be given free electrocardiograph examinations on March 10 to facilitate work of the clinic the following week.

LUNCH PLAN AIDS MANY

In East Kentucky Area; Floyd's Participation Greatest in Kentucky

A total of 9,611 students in 317 Eastern Kentucky schools—mostly one-room and isolated units—now enjoy lunches made possible by the Special Assistance Program.

Floyd county leads all Kentucky school systems with 55 schools taking part and 2,052 students being served.

Best feature of the Special Assistance Lunch Program, which offers a balanced noon diet to all Kentucky school youngsters, is that those children not able to pay do not have to pay. The special program for needy students—providing more reimbursement to schools and more protein food items—has been emphasized since 1962, when an amendment was passed by Congress to the School Lunch Act of 1946.

In this special plan, those able to pay spend 10 to 15 cents—the average is 10 cents—toward their lunch. Remainder of the cost is reimbursed to the school.

At most of the schools in the old Regular Lunch Program, the students are charged 25 cents.

"About 40 per cent of the Eastern Kentucky students are unable to pay for their lunch. The average of free lunches in all other sections of the state runs about 10 per cent," according to C. E. Bevins and Thomas A. Lewis, co-administrators of the school lunch program in Kentucky.

"For many of these youngsters, it's the only good meal they get all day," they added. Bevins is director of the Division of School Lunches in the State Department of Education. His division approves applications and reimburses the schools for a portion of their expenditures.

Lewis is director of the Division of Commodity Distribution in the State Department of Agriculture. His division arranges for and allocates the food. Supplies, foods and foods allocated are under the National School Lunch Program.

The special program was started under the administrations of the late President John F. Kennedy and former Governor Bert T. Combs and is being continued with the wholehearted endorsements of President Lyndon B. Johnson and Governor Edward T. Breathitt.

"It's a program whereby the federal and state governments provide needed assistance to local districts," Bevins explained. "This local interest is so important, because warehouses full of food nor all the money needed in a bank would not do the job without this local effort."

The over-all lunch program statewide last year for more than 1,600 schools totaled $5.5 million worth of food at wholesale value, and may reach $6 million this year, according to Bevins and Lewis.

They expect the special program by the end of this school year to reach 400 small, isolated schools in 30 Eastern Kentucky counties which have not had the program before and a total of more than 12,000 students.

Teachers usually are responsible for management of the lunch program. In most small, isolated schools in Eastern Kentucky, an electric hot plate serves to heat the lunch, in some a pot-bellied stove.

Paper plates are recommended—"they cost less than a cent a meal and eliminate dish washing," Bevins said.

In some schools, a minimum of pots and pans are available, and the pupils bring their own plates and wash them.

Food allocated to the schools provides enough protein for 20 days a month and includes such items as canned chicken, canned pork, chopped meat, peanut butter, and cheese, Lewis said. Canned goods also are delivered to Eastern Kentucky from the surplus-foods warehouse in Richmond.

May said the species being evaluated are intended to provide protection in the period between harvesting of surface coal and establishment of trees or more permanent vegetation cover. Vegetation that provides cover helps reduce soil erosion on strip-mined areas and maintain water quality in streams. Plants are needed that will germinate in a few weeks and provide cover quickly after sowing, May said.

Further plantings of the 34 species will be made in 1965 and 1966 and trials will be extended to other strip-mining areas in Eastern Kentucky. Effectiveness of plants as cover will be judged on amount of bare soil protected and the health and vigor of plants. (See Story No. 7, Page 6)

Mrs. Reba Harkins, 79, Prestonsburg, Succumbs At Lexington Hospital

Mrs. Reba Baker Harkins, 79, widow of Joseph D. Harkins, Sr., prominent Prestonsburg attorney, died at 2:10 a.m. Monday at Good Samaritan hospital, Lexington.

Mrs. Harkins, who had long been in ill health, had been confined to her bed the past year. She was taken to the Lexington hospital last Thursday.

A native of Mt. Vernon, Ky., she was a daughter of George and Hallie Butler Baker. She was married to Mr. Harkins Jan. 1, 1908, and since that time had resided in Prestonsburg. Mrs. Harkins was a member of the Christian Church and had many relatives and friends over a wide section of Kentucky.

Her husband and two sons, Joseph D. Harkins, Jr., and Walter Scott Harkins, III, preceded her in death, in 1954. Her only immediate survivors are four grandchildren, Joseph D. Harkins, III, William Holiday Harkins, Barbara H. Wiechers and Victoria Baker Harkins, all of Lexington, and two great-grandchildren. (See Story No. 5, Page 6)

JFK LIBRARY FUNDS ASKED

Memorial Fund Drive Initiated This Week; Donors To Sign Book

Contributors to the John F. Kennedy Appalachian Memorial Fund to finance construction of a library at West Liberty in memory of the late President will be asked to sign the Memorial Book which will be sent to the President's widow and later kept in the library's permanent archives.

So said Mrs. W. W. Burchett, Floyd county chairman of the memorial fund drive, this week. Mrs. Burchett asked that all contributors sign the book at the county library here.

Serving on the Floyd committee with Mrs. Burchett are Richmond Stone and David W. Allen. Mrs. Burchett said contributions are tax-deductible. Donations in any amount, however great or small, will be welcomed. (A coupon for the convenience of those who wish to contribute by mail appears elsewhere in this edition of The Times.)

DEVELOPMENT GROUP TO GIVE LBJ PLANS

If the Congress approves the budget planned for the area, the Appalachian Regional Commission will launch an eight-state redevelopment program during fiscal 1965 of approximately $250 million.

So said John Sweeney, the Commission's executive secretary, in Washington Monday when he outlined the tentative budget.

He added that the Commission expects to present its program to President Johnson within the next two weeks.

Sweeney said the use of about $20 million in the proposed budget is still under discussion.

Otherwise, it will include: $90 million to accelerate construction of interstate and development highways in Appalachia; $36 million to speed up water-resource development, including the construction of flood-control dams; $71 million for human-resource programs, including the construction of regional health centers and clinics, certain educational and housing programs, vocational rehabilitation and job retraining; $21 million for pasture improvement and the conversion of croplands to pastures; $10 million for sewage and water facilities; $7 million for timber-resource development; $3 million for mineral research; $1.7 million to provide technical assistance to local development units; $1 million for the commission's staff and operating expenses, and $900,000 for general research.

Included in the timber resource budget will be funds to consolidate small, fragmented timberlands into larger holdings under a special corporation, to accelerate the construction of access roads within existing national forests in the region, to expand the Monongahela National Forest in West Virginia, and to launch the new "Pioneer National Forest" in Eastern Kentucky, Sweeney said.

BREAKS RISE IS REPORTED

Floyd Is Easy Touch, Pike Offender Says; Harold School Hit

Breaks into schools and places of business in this county continued over the week-end, and this week Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo had a pointed comment to make on that phase of local crime.

Stumbo recalled that Willard Earl Collier, one of three "outsiders" who had come into the county to commit breaks, was questioned by him and County Attorney Barkley J. Sturgill at length, the questioning finally resulting in a confession.

"Why did you pick on Floyd county instead of others?" Collier was asked.

"Because," he replied, "we had heard that this county is a soft touch."

Commented Stumbo this week: "I am not going to be any easy touch for this breaking and entering business. Instead, I'm going to bear down."

When the Harold consolidated school opened Monday morning it was discovered that the lunchroom had been burglarized and several hundred pounds of food-stuffs and some equipment had been taken. Wilburn Hamilton, Ray and Robert Meade, who were jailed by Deputy Sheriffs James Hall and Harold Johnson, were questioned Tuesday by State Detective Chester D. Potter. They are booked for investigation and no formal charge had been lodged against them as of Tuesday afternoon.

Several days ago, the Garth vocational school was entered and desks ransacked in an apparent search for money.

W. B. Williams reported to Potter that between $50 and $60 in cash and an undetermined sum from a cigarette machine were taken in a break on his place of business on Brandy Keg, near Lancer, Sunday night.

Detective Potter is continuing an investigation of the looting, several weeks ago, of the home of Mrs. Belle Hatcher at Harold. Jewelry, watches, a camera and many family heirlooms are missing. Mrs. Hatcher said she hesitated to attempt to place a monetary value on the missing items. The burglary was made while she was away from home.

Others jailed within the week: Alexander Kidd, accused of obtaining money under false pretense and forgery, arrested by (See Story No. 4, Page 6)

SPECIAL GRAND JURY ENDS LIQUOR PROBE

Red Cross Solicitation Scheduled Here Mar. 8, Drive Head Announces

Red Cross Sunday, March 8, will be marked here by solicitation of contributions in the residential sections of Prestonsburg by Mrs. Fred G. Francis, local drive chairman, and volunteer Kiwanians.

The county's Red Cross goal for 1964 is $6,300. Burl Spurlock, president of the First National Bank, is county drive chairman.

One of the notable contributions made to date, said Miss Ella Noel White, executive secretary of Floyd Red Cross Chapter, was $5 brought to the Red Cross office Tuesday morning by an Ivel widow. The woman said she received $465 worth of Red Cross assistance as a flood victim and that she wanted to help in the drive for funds. She is the first known flood victim to contribute during the current drive, Miss White said.

SEAL FUND DRIVE OPENS

Annual Easter Appeal For Crippled Children Headed by B. F. Reed

The Easter Seal Appeal for funds for the Kentucky Crippled Children's Commission began Sunday in Floyd county.

An organization meeting looking toward the fund campaign was held Feb. 21 at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, and the help of people in the field of education was enlisted.

"The principals and teachers of the various schools of the county have been very helpful and cooperative," said B. F. Reed, of Drift, chairman of the Floyd County Crippled Children's Committee. "And this is as it should be," he added, "because they, better than any others, understand the need for help to crippled children."

Mr. Reed announced that the high school and the grade school doing the best work during the drive will each be given a one-year subscription to National Geographic magazine.

Funds raised by the annual Easter Seal drives enable the Kentucky Society for Crippled Children to provide care and treatment of disabilities such as polio, cerebral palsy, accidents, birth defects, hearing problems and speech defects caused by hearing loss.

Branhams Buy Interest In Blue Sky Motel Here

Edgille (Shag) Branham and his wife, Mrs. Shirley Branham, have purchased a half-interest in the Blue Sky Motel here from Bennie Branham, it was announced a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Branham have assumed management of the 20-unit motel and restaurant, Bennie Branham, it was said, will devote his attention to other properties which he owns.

PILOT HEALTH PLANS VIEWED FOR REGION

The State Department of Health's community health service program will launch an intensive pilot program of disease detection in Floyd and 17 other Eastern Kentucky counties by mid-March.

Dr. Russell Teague, state health commissioner, said the effort will be financed in part by a $372,000 grant from the U. S. Public Health Service.

The area's 432,000 residents will be screened for cases of tuberculosis, diabetes, lung and heart disorders, anemia, nutritional deficiencies, vision difficulties, and other ailments, Teague said. The Public Health Service is supplying five physicians, four public health nurses and a health educator from its staff.

The visiting health team will concentrate on one county at a time, aided by local physicians, both public and private, and public health nurses. The entire

TEN LIQUOR INDICTMENTS ARE DRAWN

Continued Probe Now Would Be Futile, Says Final Report of Jury

The special grand jury empaneled by Circuit Judge Holte Conley to probe into the Floyd county bootlegging situation resumed work Wednesday after a recess last week, then announced Wednesday afternoon its adjournment.

Ten indictments alleging liquor law violations were reported, and 11 others charged defendants with other offenses.

The jury worked Wednesday and Thursday of last week before recessing. In a final report to Judge Conley, Frank Branham, foreman, said the jury voted to adjourn "due to the fact that they feel that any further investigation would be futile and an unnecessary cost to the taxpayers, since a regular grand jury convenes in April . . . and any witnesses which any group would like to have subpoenaed can be summoned during the April term . . ."

The report added: "We have carefully examined numerous witnesses in regard to violations of local option laws, and have found that most of the witnesses talk of only what they have heard and not of what they have seen, if anything."

Although results of the grand jury's work were far from disappointing, one official described the situation the jury faced in this way:

"The people who would make indictments don't have first-hand information, because they don't frequent bootlegging establishments, and those who do know something won't tell."

Discussing the grand jury's job, Judge Conley Wednesday morning repeated his hope that bootlegging spots can be "picketed." "I believe," he said, "that if the Commissioner of Public Safety will give us a dozen men to park outside and keep watch on these places, that will help as much as anything we could do."

The 10 liquor violation indictments follow:

Bill Adkins, Raleigh Barnett, George and Dorothy Hamilton, Buck Manns, each charged with selling alcoholic beverages in dry territory; the Sportsmen's Club, the East Kentucky Development Association, Inc., of Melvin, and the American Veterans Club, Inc., of Martin, each named on counts of possessing alcoholic beverages (See Story No. 3, Page 6)

ADDED UNITS ARE VIEWED

Shannon Is Employed To Make Application For Low-Rent Housing

The Prestonsburg Municipal Housing Commission expects to file application with the Housing and Home Finance Administration for an additional 70 to 80 low-rent public housing units here.

Announcement of these plans was made last week after George Lee Shannon, Prestonsburg architect, had been employed to make application and to prepare plans for the additional housing units.

The Municipal Housing Commission is now receiving applications from would-be tenants of new housing units as well as for those now in service at the Green Acres housing development here.

Site of the new development has not been selected, it was said.

Construction of approximately $10,000 worth of new sewer lines not covered by the present sewerage improvement contract was authorized this week, and the work will be done at the expense of the Municipal Water & Gas System and the Sewer Commission. First of the projects is a line along Collins Lane to connect with Graham street. Two other jobs to be done later are on Ford street and at the rear of the Municipal building.

The tax equalization work recently announced by Mayor Archer is under way, with evaluation work being done first in the northern section of Prestonsburg and in West Prestonsburg.

USDA grades assure you of reliable quality in food products that have been judged by nationally-uniform standards. TERMITE CONTROL
Termite control centers around poisoning the soil in which the termites live. In most cases, this is not an easy job and requires the assistance of a trained, well-equipped pest control operator. Be sure to get an estimate from at least two established firms, since unqualified, "fly-by-night" exterminators operate in some areas.

Let the Assessor Be Appointed

The Times hopes the General Assembly will enact legislation which will make the office of tax commissioner appointive rather than elective.

As a rule, we favor giving the people the opportunity to make their own choice in the matter of officials, but in this choice by the people lies a weakness in the case of tax assessors.

Their election by popular vote makes them an open target for almost every conceivable political pressure. And those who succeed in being re-elected achieve success by judicious yielding, here and there, to such pressures—all with the result that equality of service between one taxpayer and another and justice to the counties and the state are far from achieved.

The tax commissioner should be free to do the plain job of assessing property values for purposes of taxation. The proposed legislation will not remove every human margin of error and will not make everything perfect, but it should go a long way toward more realistic assessments, with the assessor simply doing the job at hand rather than working with one eye on the tax books and the other on the ballot box.

PUBLICITY OFTEN TRAPS MOST WANTED CRIMINALS

Since FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover set up the list of "ten most wanted fugitives" in 1950, 170 of the 184 men it has listed have been captured, an average of better than one a month.

Karl Detzer describes the success of the list in a March Reader's Digest article, "At Large and 'Most Wanted': Ten Dangerous Men." The public, ordinary citizens, tipped off the police in 86 of the "most wanted" cases. In 26 cases, the spotters had come upon the photographs in newspapers; three on television. Two had heard radio descriptions, and eight had found descriptions in magazines.

In 27 cases, someone had seen the fugitives' pictures in a postoffice or other public place or had received them in the mail. When the FBI believes a fugitive is in an area, it floods nearby hotels, banks, hospitals, barber shops and other likely places with "lookouts"—circulairs bearing his picture and description.

NATURE TRAILS

By RUFUS M. REED

Dr. Olaus Murie, the "Wilderness Champion," who died last October, was asked not long before he died, about getting more forest preserves and the increase of our wild life. To which he replied: "We need to protect and increase our recreational parks and outdoors areas. Some places should be kept absolutely primitive for the spiritual and esthetic satisfaction of mankind. What will become of man if there are no longer natural forest areas where he can walk in the tracks of the deer or follow the trail of the squirrel? I do not want to change life to any extent, but I do want to protect and increase what life we have and make it meaningful to many people. Our national parks should all be outstanding examples of wilderness areas."

In the name of modern progress, the bulldozers of America have shoved down and destroyed much rare scenic beauty; that's why we need more restricted areas, away from "the maddening crowd's ignoble strife."

RED SQUIRRELS FEED DEER

The small and very active red squirrels, numerous in northern woods, never hibernate but go leaping through the trees all winter long, cutting off twigs, buds, pine cones and juniper berries, which they let fall to the forest floor, to serve as food for the deer during the lean winter months. The deer follow them through the barren woods picking up and eating what the red squirrels drop. These small squirrels keep up a noisy chatter all winter, which helps the deer to follow them through the forest. In summer, they are dull red with a black stripe along the sides. In winter they turn a light gray on the sides and have a red border down the back. They are also called "spruce pine squirrels," as they mostly live in coniferous woods. They build a nest of leaves and twigs in tree holes and bear from three to six young in the spring.

CATS CAN BE TAUGHT TO SWIM

Most people believe cats are afraid of the water; perhaps they do dread getting into the water and becoming wet, because a cat is fastidious and tries to keep its hair dry and silky. But some cats can be taught to swim! A little girl named Debra taught her cat to swim in the pool, by tossing balls into the water, and also diving in herself and inviting the cat to dive in with her. The cat learned to swim dog fashion.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky
By JOE JORDAN
(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week, Brig. Gen. Stephen Gano Burbridge of the Union Army, the new military governor of Kentucky, issued an order that all slaves who had been impressed as laborers by federal authorities should be returned to their owners. Burbridge had relieved Brig. Gen. Jacob Ammen February 15; aside from moving his headquarters from Camp Nelson to Louisville, this was the first order of any importance.

Thus Gen. Burbridge, a native Kentuckian, early in his administration as military governor was making a conciliatory move. The impressment of slaves had aroused the resentment of Kentucky slaveholders. At first the Negroes had been taken to do work for the Union Army, such as digging intrenchments, but later the practice had been extended to supplying labor for companies performing work considered essential to the war effort, such as cutting firewood for the wood-burning locomotives of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, an important carrier of supplies for the Union Army. And in August of 1863 Brig. Gen. J. T. Boyle, then military governor, had ordered the impressment of 6,000 slaves to work on the extension of a railroad line from Lebanon to Danyille.

Gen. Burbridge immediately before the war started had been engaged in business in Georgetown, D. C., but he still owned a farm in Kentucky. He returned to the state and in August of 1861 had been commissioned colonel and put in command of the Twenty-sixth Kentucky (Union) Infantry regiment. He distinguished himself at Shiloh and was promoted brigadier general June 9, 1862.

It is worth noting that early in his administration as military governor Gen. Burbridge did something that met with general approval, for during his time of exercising command in that post—which would lack five days of being a full year—he would become the most hated man in the Commonwealth, would come to an open break with the former Union Army colonel who was the elected governor, Thomas E. Bramlette; would order the arrest of Lt. Gov. Richard T. Jacob, also a former colonel in the Union Army; by his orders would cause the execution of innocent citizens in retaliation for crimes committed by unknown persons, and would send other citizens into exile. The people of Kentucky were now entering the most turbulent and distressing period of the war years.

Maj. Gen. Thomas L. Crittenden was again in good standing in the Union Army, a court of inquiry which had been sitting at Louisville having returned an honorable acquittal of all charges against him, made after a corps he was commanding had been routed and driven from the field during the Battle of Chickamauga.

Three Kentuckians, Maj. A. G. Hamilton, Capt. Isaac Johnson and Lt. Ed. Knoble, got home safely after escaping from Libby Prison in Richmond, Virginia. They and 104 other officers dug a tunnel 57 feet long. About half the others had been recaptured.

What had been called and publicized as a "Border States Freedom Convention" met in Louisville 100 years ago this week and resolved "that slavery was the cause and now constitutes the strength of the rebellion, that we can see no signs of permanent peace until the principles of freedom announced in the Declaration of Independence and the Federal Constitution are carried out and practiced." About 100 delegates attending it were from four states—Missouri, Arkansas, Tennessee and Kentucky.

The Lexington Observer and Reporter, which referred to the delegates as "freedom strikers," said the ones from Missouri outnumbered those from the three other states combined, and seemed to be in charge of everything. A St. Louis man, William P. Thomasson, was elected president of the convention. He had long been known as an abolitionist and so had the others, the newspaper said in support of its contention that the gathering and the action taken did not indicate any change of sentiment among the mass of the citizens of the four states represented. Of these Kentucky residents who had been elected to convention offices, it said one was a veteran Louisville abolitionist, one was from Covington and held a federal job as a collector of internal revenue, and the third was a member of the legislature from Campbell county. "All these gentlemen reside on the banks of the Ohio River," the editorial pointed out, asserting that they were not representative of the people living in the interior of the state.

Col. D. Howard Smith, commander of the Sixth Kentucky (Confederate) Cavalry, who had been captured during Brig. Gen. John Hunt Morgan's Indiana-Ohio Raid the previous July and had since been held a prisoner of war in Ohio, passed through Cincinnati on his way to Richmond, Virginia. He had been exchanged for a Union Army officer of equal rank held prisoner by the Confederates. Col. Smith would be passed through the lines in Virginia and would proceed to the capital of the Confederacy to report for duty.

Gen. Morgan, who had escaped from the Ohio state penitentiary at Columbus in November and made his way back to Confederate territory, was at that time in Richmond, Virginia, and would not depart the Confederate capital until March 24. During the week under review, however, Kentucky newspapers were printing a rumor that Morgan already had his old command reorganized, that it had been increased in strength to 10,000 "picked troops," and that he was believed to be on the point of launching a new raid.

The 45th Kentucky (Union) Infantry regiment, stationed at Mt. Sterling, was ordered to march to Owen county, where guerrillas had become increasingly active, and to remain there to protect loyal citizens.

U. S. Senator Garrett Davis of Kentucky announced in Washington that he would attempt to amend a pending bill so as to order all Negroes discharged from the Army.

Recruiting of a new army of reforestation workers is expected to begin soon, with possibly 300 to be enlisted from Floyd county. Turner, of Garrett, is reported to have been slightly wounded. Duran Hamilton, 24, of Teaberry, was shot and killed last week at Rising Sun, Maryland. Frank Howell, 30, of Dony, was seriously wounded, late Monday, by a revolver shot. The Inland Steel Company at Wheelwright has announced it will match, dollar for dollar, contributions made by its employees to the Red Cross. Pvt. Frederick R. Cottrell, of Prestonsburg, has been awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action on the Italian front, where, though wounded himself, he went to the aid of three members of his platoon who had been wounded. Boone Rifle Replica Made At West Liberty Frankfort, Ky., March 2 (Sp.)—A replica of "BOONE'S BEST FIREN"—the long rifle belonging to early pioneer marksman Daniel Boone—has been completed and is ready to be placed aboard one of the U. S. Navy's newest nuclear-powered submarines, the U.S.S. Daniel Boone, when it is commissioned this spring.

In the making since last October, the replica, was made by West Liberty gunsmith Rex Maxey who handcrafted all the parts except the barrel and the lock. He also took measurements of the rifle's barrel and furnished them to Ironton, Ohio, gunsmith William Large, who fashioned an exact barrel. Maxey purchased a rough lock for the gun and finished it. The 31-year-old Maxey, a jeweler by trade, has been making Kentucky rifles in his spare time for more than a dozen years. He is employed in a Morehead jewelry shop.

He called the replica of Boone's rifle "one of the hardest" he has ever attempted, primarily because of the carvings. Boone's rifle is the first Maxey has ever seen with that type of art work on the stock. Most guns he makes have scrollwork or flower carvings on them. Historical Society Director George Chinn, pleased with Maxey's efforts to make everything "as near the same as I could get it," called the replica "The finest duplication I've seen."

Maxey is a marksman as well as a maker of rifles. He was one of the 10 Kentucky team members in last year's Kentucky vs. Pennsylvania long-rifle shoot, coming in second in the match held in the Quaker state and third in the over-all scores from the Pennsylvania match and the one held in Kentucky.

MRS. JENNY WILEY

A letter from A. T. Harman, Route 1, Box 215B, Bland, Virginia, offers information on Jenny Wiley. He lives near where Thomas and Jenny Wiley resided when she was captured, October 1, 1789.

Mr. Harman, who is 82 years old and well-informed on the history of his area, writes:

"Mrs. Wiley (sic) lived three miles from where I now live. She lived on a farm now owned by my nephew, R. H. Tickle. His grandfather showed me several times where Mrs. Wiley lived and I actually stood on a corner rock back where the house was built. I believe that rock is still there."

Mr. Harman, steeped in the lore of his people, offers a date that has been eluding this writer a long time. Mathias Harman, founder of Harman's Station, at the mouth of Johns Creek, was born in 1735, died April 2, 1832, at the age of 96 years.

The aged Bland county historian notes that he has taught the Bible class in his Sunday School for 31 years, has been a choir leader for 40 years and hasn't missed a Sunday School class in more than 10 years.

JOHN W. KENDALL

Today I have perused a thin, old volume, titled "Memorial Addresses on the Life and Character of John W. Kendall."

Kendall was Congressman from this area in the Fifty-Second Congress and died at Washington, D. C., three months after taking office. His wife was Mary A. Davidson, of Prestonsburg. He was a resident of West Liberty.

Kendall was born in Morgan county, now Elliott county, June 26, 1834, and attended the country schools and Owingsville Academy. He studied law under W. H. Burns, of West Liberty, and shortly after being admitted to the bar was elected County Attorney of Morgan county for two terms.

He served in the Confederate army as lieutenant and adjutant of the Tenth Kentucky Confederate Cavalry and fought at the Battle of Ivy Mountain and in extended campaigns in Virginia and other states. He served under John Hunt Morgan, escaped the defeat at Cynthiana only by superb horsemanship. He returned to West Liberty following the war's end and resumed the practice of law. He was elected to the Kentucky House of Representatives for two terms and later to the office of Commonwealth's Attorney for the Thirteenth Judicial district. In the fall election of 1891 he was successful in his bid for Congress.

Congressman Kendall moved to Washington, took his seat December 7, 1891, and, although in ill health, attended a meeting of his fellow legislators, Saturday, March 5, 1892. He died suddenly the next day at home, attended by his wife.

A delegation of seven Congressmen and five Senators was appointed to attend the funeral at West Liberty. Senator Pasco, of Florida, was one of those who made the trip to the Kentucky mountains with the body.

He spoke feelingly of the trip and the respect the public accorded John W. Kendall.

"West Liberty, where the family home of the Kendalls is situated, is a little town upon the Licking River, the county seat of Morgan county. It is a day's ride from Morehead, the nearest accessible point on the railroad at the time of our visit, and without telegraphic communication. Our road ran through a hilly and mountainous section, abounding in wild and picturesque scenery, a beautiful country when decked with verdure and adorned with sunshine. But our journey was made at an unfavorable time. The cold was intense and the snow was falling continuously.

"The country was sparsely settled, but the messenger who had the day before carried from the railroad the telegram bearing to West Liberty the sad news of their father's death, had announced the coming of the funeral procession, and short as was the notice many had gathered at the little hamlets and villages along our route to show their love for their Representative and their sorrow at his death. We stopped at a little house by the wayside to rest our horses and warm ourselves and were treated with the hospitality which Kentuckians always extend even to unexpected guests. And while the good wife was exerting herself for our comfort, our host and the assembled neighbors were telling us about the many qualities of our departed associate and the confidence the people had in him.

"The shades of night had just gathered over the little town when we reached our destination. The sad news was only a day in advance of us and it was manifest that a deep sorrow had fallen not alone upon the family but upon the whole people. But three months before their townsman had left them full of bright hopes and aspirations. They had rejoiced at his promotion and felt a just pride in his advancement. But it was all over. The last of earth had come. In accordance with a wish expressed in his lifetime, all that remained of him was to be laid to rest with the generations who had gone before."

Senator Pasco said that they gathered at the home early the next morning where the family pastor of the Methodist Church held a brief service.

He continued in his memorial address:

"Arrangements had been made before our arrival for a more public service later in the day and word had gone out through all the country round to the members of the church with which he had united and the Masonic Lodge to which he had belonged to come in at an appointed hour but we had to get back to the railroad by night and could not remain. The people were already assembling as we left and along our road we met many groups of mounted men riding toward the town to participate in doing honor to the memory of their friend and brother and companion."

The eulogies in the House of Representatives were delivered February 4, 1893, and the Senate eulogies, March 3. Both houses adjourned one day each in respect to the Eastern Kentucky Congressman.

Mrs. May Is Injured In Automobile Mishap

Mrs. R. V. May, of Prestonsburg, is in a Flemingsburg hospital suffering from severe head injuries incurred in an automobile wreck near Flemingsburg around Wednesday noon. Her mother, Mrs. W. B. Garriott, whom she was driving to Flemingsburg, escaped known injury. Their car wrecked when it hit a low place in the highway and turned turtle in backwater from a nearby stream. Seat belts are credited with saving their lives. Mrs. May sustained a severe cut on her face and a head injury, full extent of which had not been determined at the Flemingsburg hospital, early Wednesday afternoon.

lated schools, which have nothing in the way of food-preparation equipment.

Reimbursements to schools under the regular program are based on a three to nine-cent formula, Bevins said. This formula includes the percentage of participation of students in proportion to enrollment; percentage of free lunches; percentage of cost paid by the pupils; and "district ability" (the economic classification of the school district).

Schools' participation is obtained thusly: Bevins and Lewis contact the superintendents of county school systems with the information that "we have food, money and advice to help you get started. Do you want it? When can we talk to you about it?"

Bevins then sends out a demonstration team with hot plate and food to a county meeting for teachers arranged by the superintendent.

The demonstration is conducted using the first menu on a list of 20 menus furnished by the Department of Education. This No. 1 menu includes hot pork in natural juices, hot green beans, cold peach halves, bread, butter and milk.

"If the superintendent wants to apply, O.K. If he doesn't, O.K., too. The decision is up to him," Bevins said.

"We haven't refused any one yet. The participating counties—and this can depend on the teachers' votes, as they do the food work—enter the program by the superintendents' decisions. Those counties not in the program are out by their own choice."

The special program started in January, 1962, with only 35 schools in nine Appalachian counties—Floyd, Breathitt, Harlan, Johnson, Knox, Leslie, Letcher, Perry and Pulaski. The participating schools in these counties increased to a peak of 159 by the end of the 1961-62 school year.

Knox is second to Floyd county with 31 schools and 909 pupils.

In the program's first year, the main support from the federal government was in the form of commodities. In the 1962-63 school year, more financial support was added to the program with local personnel buying some food. Then, this 1963-64 school year, still more money was provided for local buying in addition to the protein items furnished.

Indictments alleging other offenses are:

Ellis Crum, non-support; Barney, John Henry and Carmel Osborne, obtaining money under false pretense; Goldie Hall and Magdalene Adkins, assault and battery; Claude Napier and Irvine Goble, knowingly receiving stolen property (two counts); Kermit Johnson, carnal knowledge of a female under the age of 18; Alex Lee Adkins, deserting a pregnant wife; Walter Dean Vick, non-support; William Eugene Smith, Donald Lewis Tackett and Willard Earl Collier, six separate counts of breaking and entering; Billie Crum and Virgil Bray, forgery; Woodrow Calhoun, negligently setting woods on fire and assault and battery.

Raleigh Barnett, one of those named on a liquor charge, recently filed application for license to operate the Beaver Creek Men's Association Club, near Martin. County Attorney Sturgill and Commonwealth's Attorney Stumbo this week filed a protest against licensing of the club. It was pointed out here that, if no exceptions or objections are lodged against the issuance of such a license, by either citizens or officials, granting of a license by the county court is mandatory.

George Hamilton, another of those indicted, is listed as process agent for the Left Beaver Development Association, Inc. Articles of incorporation, recorded here, state the purposes of the corporation "shall be to perform study and research in promoting existing small mines in the area and seeking by research other means to promote new, expanding industry in the area and to do all other things, including holding of meetings, conduct of social activities in connection therewith, to solicit members and charge membership dues."

strates for supervision on the jobs it plans. In some cases use of county road machinery may be possible, County Attorney Barkley Sturgill said.

The stream-improvement program, planned to extend from Wayland to Bosco and from Maytown to a point below Warco, is one which has several ifs. Biggest question to be settled is the matter of rights-of-way from owners of land through which the stream flows.

The Corps of Engineers, it was said, will be ready to begin work when right-of-way has been procured by the county. Engineering work also is to be done at county expense, but this is not regarded as a major obstacle.

County Judge Henry Stumbo and County Attorney Sturgill have pointed out that the county does not have the money for the purchase of right-of-way, and so landowners along Beaver Creek will be asked to give free entry and passage through their lands in return for the improvement to be made in the stream.

"When I verify to the Corps of Engineers that rights-of-way are all clear and that the engineering work has been done, they will be ready to start immediately, but not before," County Attorney Sturgill said. He added that prompt action is necessary, because the Corps of Engineers will not be tied down to these projects while local cooperation is delayed.

To sound the sentiment of the people, Stumbo and Sturgill accompanied Corps of Engineers representatives Tuesday night to Garrett where a mass meeting of citizens was scheduled. The entire project was explained to the gathering by Peter H. Baer and Harlan Merrill, Corps of Engineers representatives.

Although the Corps of Engineers, as a rule, lets such jobs to contract, it will join the current move to provide more jobs in the area by recruiting local labor.

for the purpose of sale and of selling alcoholic beverages in dry territory; Teddy Salisbury, Jr., possession for the purpose of sale; Claude Edmonds and John David Lewis, each accused of transportation of alcoholic beverages in dry territory.

Indictments alleging other offenses are:

Ellis Crum, non-support; Barney, John Henry and Carmel Osborne, obtaining money under false pretense; Goldie Hall and Magdalene Adkins, assault and battery; Claude Napier and Irvine Goble, knowingly receiving stolen property (two counts); Kermit Johnson, carnal knowledge of a female under the age of 18; Alex Lee Adkins, deserting a pregnant wife; Walter Dean Vick, non-support; William Eugene Smith, Donald Lewis Tackett and Willard Earl Collier, six separate counts of breaking and entering; Billie Crum and Virgil Bray, forgery; Woodrow Calhoun, negligently setting woods on fire and assault and battery.

Raleigh Barnett, one of those named on a liquor charge, recently filed application for license to operate the Beaver Creek Men's Association Club, near Martin. County Attorney Sturgill and Commonwealth's Attorney Stumbo this week filed a protest against licensing of the club. It was pointed out here that, if no exceptions or objections are lodged against the issuance of such a license, by either citizens or officials, granting of a license by the county court is mandatory.

George Hamilton, another of those indicted, is listed as process agent for the Left Beaver Development Association, Inc. Articles of incorporation, recorded here, state the purposes of the corporation "shall be to perform study and research in promoting existing small mines in the area and seeking by research other means to promote new, expanding industry in the area and to do all other things, including holding of meetings, conduct of social activities in connection therewith, to solicit members and charge membership dues."

Incorporators are listed as Charles Ray Hall, George Hamilton and L. A. Bates.

The party-line telephone jingled frequently, the television was working, a few autos passed. And more of the old days was missing—there wasn't any need to dig a bucket of coal out of the snow or to go to the well for a bucket of water. But who am I to complain?—I who dreaded both those now-hallowed chores so dreadfully.

PUBLIC NOTICE

A smalltown druggist whose emporium was closed by the sheriff posted this notice on the door:

"Our doors are locked. The following services, formerly available here, may be had as follows:

"Ice water at the fountain in the park; general information from the policeman at the corner; change for a dollar at the bank; matches at the hotel; magazines for browsing purposes at the doctor's office; bus information at the terminal, and loafing at any other location of your own choosing."

And this, titled, "Take Time," and written by God knows whom:

Take time TO THINK... it is the source of power.
Take time TO PLAY... it is the secret of perpetual youth.
Take time TO READ... it is the fountain of wisdom.
Take time TO PRAY... it is the greatest power on earth.
Take time TO LOVE and BE LOVED... it is a God-given privilege.
Take time TO BE FRIENDLY... it is the road to happiness.
Take time TO LAUGH... it is the music of the soul.
Take time TO GIVE... it is too short a day to be selfish.
Take time TO WORK... it is the price of success.
Take time TO SAVE... it is the foundation of your future.

DISCOVERY OF INSULIN RECALLED BY DR. BEST

Insulin, which has saved the lives of millions formerly doomed to die of diabetes, was discovered at a cost of only $100, according to Dr. Charles H. Best, one of the Canadian scientists involved.

In an article, "How We Discovered Insulin," appearing in the March issues of Reader's Digest and Today's Health, Dr. Best recalls the late Dr. Frederick Banting asked the University of Toronto "for the use of a laboratory for eight weeks, for ten dogs, and for the help of someone who knew chemistry and physiology."

"The money value of his modest request," says Dr. Best, "was at most $100."...

Despite disappointments, the two men (Banting was then 29 and Best 22) worked with dogs through the summer of 1921 to find that diabetes could be controlled by a hormone secreted by the islet cells of the pancreas gland.

"I did my chemical work in our cubbyhole lab," recalls Dr. Best. Dog surgery was performed two flights up in the skylighted attic. Before summer was over, that attic became as steamy as any Turkish bath. To get some relief we wore little or nothing under our white lab coats. Since money was short, we ate in the lab. Eggs and sausage fried over a Bunsen burner became diet staples.

By fall, they were keeping diabetic dogs alive and tested safety of the extract for humans by injecting each other. "Next day," recalls Dr. Best, "we had slightly sore arms, that was all."

The first patient was 14-year-old Leonard Thompson in Toronto General Hospital across the street from the laboratory. Though down to 65

Social Security Answers Questions

We are answering the questions we have received from individuals in this area:

From Mouthcard, Kentucky, a gentleman writes:

Q. Is a disabled veteran, who is drawing social security, entitled to draw disability from VA, non-service disability, or otherwise?

A. From the above question we do not have sufficient information to give a precise answer. Since the veteran from Mouthcard is already receiving social security benefits, either old age insurance benefits or disability benefits, we suggest he contact Mr. Cain, the VA Representative, at the Pike county courthouse on the third Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday of any month. (Mr. Cain also visits Floyd and other counties of the area.)

Q. I am 63 and will retire in May. I have been supporting my mother for the last five years. Will any additional benefits be payable to her?

A. Not now. There is no provision for benefits to the dependent parent of a living wage earner. In the event of your death, however, a parent's benefit may be payable to her if her dependency can be established.

From Davenport, Virginia:

Q. I will retire in 1964 when I am 65. When should I file my application and what records will I need?

A. Get in touch with your Social Security office about three months before you retire. Someone there will tell you what papers you will need and the best time to file your application.

An inquiry from West Prestonsburg:

Q. I am over 65 but never applied for social security benefits because I have been working full time and earning $40 a week since 1959. My friends tell me that I may be entitled to some benefits even though I earn over $1,200.

A. Yes, this is possible. How much will be withheld from your benefits depends on how much more than $1,200 you earn. One dollar of benefits is withheld for each two dollars you earn over $1,200 up to $1,700; and another dollar is withheld for every dollar you earn over $1,700.

From Paintsville:

Q. Will the Social Security Administration send me Social Security checks automatically when my company retires me at age 65?

A. No. You must apply for your Social Security benefits in order to get them. You should get in touch with your nearest Social Security office about three months before you retire.

From Oil Springs:

Q. I will be 65 and plan to retire but I have no birth certificate to prove my age. How can I prove my date of birth?

A. If you have no birth certificate you may prove your age by some other means when you apply for Social Security. The Social Security Administration will advise you of other possible records that are acceptable. If you inquire about three months before you retire, it will give you plenty of time to obtain some other acceptable evidence of your date of birth.

A Royalton woman inquires:

Q. If I retire at age 65, should I apply for benefits then or a few months before or after?

A. You may apply as early as three months before your actual retirement date, and it's a good idea to do so. You'll then have time to gather and submit any records or family documents, if necessary, and be able to receive your first check without delay.

From Patterson, Virginia:

Q. I worked and paid Social Security taxes for a short time in the 1940's. I inquired at my local Social Security office three years ago when I was 63 and was told that I hadn't worked long enough to qualify for benefits. One of my friends advised me to look into it again. Why should I check so soon again after being told I was not eligible?

A. Changes in the credit requirements may mean that you are now eligible for Social Security benefits though you were not three years ago. Make another visit to your local office without delay.

If you have questions concerning your Social Security account, you may wish to contact your representative in the Employment office in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, on any Tuesday.

WAYLAND

"HOME LIFE" MEETING THEME

"Make a menu for a week and go to the market with a list is the best way to cut your food bill," advised Mrs. Eugene Mullins, Garrett home economics teacher, discussing "Consumer Problems" last Monday evening at a meeting of the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club, Wayland.

Mrs. Mullins touched briefly on family cooperation, teaching responsibility in the family, finance, making a budget, earning a living, and the health and education of the family, all under the general heading of "Home Life." She also spoke on home decorating and urged her listeners to freely use the current home magazines as the best guide to decorating ideas for the home.

Prior to the main program, Mrs. Richard Vinson spoke briefly on "The Mission of the Home." She emphasized that "in the give and take of the family circle, character is developed. It is there that love, godliness, faith, and virtue are learned."

At a business meeting following the program, announcements were made by the president, Mrs. S. M. Martin, on the collections for the Polio and Heart Fund drives and also the invitation for the club to sponsor an entrant in the "Miss Floyd County" beauty contest.

Fourteen members and two guests, Mrs. John Hall and Mrs. Scott Collins, were served a dessert course by the hostesses, Mrs. J. E. Miller, Mrs. Charles Hughes, and Mrs. Mervil Dixon.

Lexington, Ky.—Spring soil-sampling time is here, says George D. Corder, UK Ag Extension Service soils specialist. Kentucky farmers usually have about 55,000 soil samples tested in state and county laboratories, he noted. Test results, if used properly, help farmers get larger returns on money invested in fertilizers and lime. The tests help farmers determine the nutrients that are in short supply for the crop they want to grow.

For INSTALLMENT LOANS cultivate your Full Service Banker

Most families will borrow more than $50,000 in a lifetime! There's a startling figure. This includes borrowing to buy homes, cars, TV sets and appliances, and college educations. It's obvious then, that where you borrow your money and how much you pay for it is most important. So it would make sense to get to know a banker who can save you money on loans. Wouldn't it be a good idea to have an acquaintance with one of our Loan Officers? Then when the time for that major expenditure arrives, you know where to go and whom to see for your next installment loan, at low-cost rates. One of the many services of our Full Service Bank.

What happens when husbands take over

We don't suggest that husbands take over in the kitchen. Few can even begin to approach the ladies when it comes to preparing tasty, nutritious food.

But if men cooked many meals, you can bet there would be more and more electric ranges. That's because electric ranges make cooking a lot easier and surer. You get the same, even heat time after time so there's no more guessing about the right temperature.

It's the clean, pleasant way to cook. No objectionable odors to ruin the food. Electric ranges are safe because they're flameless!

Enjoy cooking again... and cook better... with low-cost rural electric power.

CIVIL RIGHTS MEASURE OFFERED TO LEGISLATURE

Frankfort, Ky., March 2 (Spl.)—Bills to ban discrimination in public accommodations, place tighter controls over strip-mining, and strengthen the Sunday closing law were expected to gain major attention in the General Assembly this week.

Carrying out a campaign pledge, Governor Edward T. Breathitt announced his support of a civil rights measure introduced by Senator Shelby C. Kinkead, Lexington. What has been billed as a "freedom march" on Frankfort is planned for Thursday by groups supporting civil rights legislation.

Senate Bill 194 would replace one introduced in the House earlier by Representative Norbert Blume, Louisville, with endorsement of the State Human Rights Commission. Under House Bill 197 discrimination in all public accommodations would be forbidden.

In a speech to some 200 religious leaders, who visited Frankfort last Thursday, Breathitt said that the Kinkead measure is patterned on the federal civil rights bill now before the U. S. Senate.

Principal differences between the new Senate bill and the Human Rights Commission house bill are in the area of "places of public accommodation." The Commission's bill was worded to cover everything except private clubs. The Senate bill endorsed by the Governor specifies the places covered.

It defines places of public accommodation as:

"Any inn, hotel, motel or other establishment which provides lodging to transient guests... any restaurant, cafeteria, lunchroom, lunch counter, soda fountain or other facility engaged principally in selling food for consumption on the premises..."

"Any motion-picture house, theater, concert hall, sports arena, stadium or other place of exhibition or entertainment..."

Besides excluding private clubs from its non-discrimination provisions, the Senate bill also excepts such places as barbershops and beauty parlors unless they are an integral part of an establishment that is covered by the proposed legislation.

Frank L. Stanley, Jr., general chairman of the Allied Organization for Civil Rights, which planned the Thursday march on Frankfort, said that despite introduction of the Governor's bill, the march would be held. Another group plans a Frankfort civil rights rally Wednesday.

While committee hearings were in progress last week on bills designed to strengthen strip-mining control, the Governor announced he would support House Bill 145, introduced by Representative John Swinford, Cynthiana. A public hearing was scheduled for Wednesday on new strip-mining regulations.

Some 500 persons from Louisville and other cities gathered in the Senate Chamber last week for a hearing on proposed Sunday closing legislation. Most of those present favored enactment of Senate Bill 69, which would stiffen penalties, list items that could not be sold, and simplify the present law.

Final passage was given last week to the Administration's $1.4 billion budget bill, which was not introduced until late in the session.

Another bill that now has been enacted by both houses abolishes the use of prison food and prison labor at the executive mansions of the governor and the lieutenant governor. The Department of Finance also is to assume responsibility for the governor's traveling expenses out of the state.

Final approval was given by the House to a bill which raises to $25,000 the amount of force-account work that may be done on a project by the Highway Department. This applies to road work that may be done without advertising for competitive bids.

Introduced in the Senate as the first phase of a program planned by the State Department of Public Safety was a bill providing for compulsory annual inspection of motor vehicles. The bill deletes certain provisions opposed in a similar bill at last November's special session.

A proposed resolution calling for a Senate investigation of Kentucky Village was defeated by a vote of 23 to 14. A Fayette county grand jury had criticized administration of the state institution, but the Kentucky Children's Advisory Commission in a separate investigation disagreed with the grand jury findings. The House defeated a similar resolution by voice vote.

The House tabled by a vote of 46 to 9 Senate Bill 23 which would have created a committee of the House and Senate to maintain a continuing study of public finance at the state level between legislative sessions. The Senate had passed the bill 36 to 0.

Rules committees in both the House and the Senate were to take over from other committees this week all the bills that had been introduced and not acted on during the present General Assembly. The two rules committees are in charge of all bills for the last 15 days.

Potatoes and rice are two budget-stretcher plentiful in March. Both are low in price and can be used in a wide variety of ways. Although somewhat higher than the other potatoes, the "Red Skin" new potatoes now arriving on local markets from Florida are of excellent quality.

MORE SPENT FOR FOOD

In 1963, $76 billion was spent for food in the United States—a gain of nearly three percent from 1962. Population gains and higher prices accounted for most of the increase but some came from shifts to high-valued foods. Per capita food consumption index rose a half percent. Meat consumption went up seven pounds; most of the increase was beef but pork gained, too. In addition, people in the United States used 31 pounds of chicken per capita, a pound more than in 1962.

Those peonies in your flower garden that have been around for years probably will respond well to feeding in March, according to UK Extension horticulturists. Use about three tablespoons of a complete fertilizer for each plant. Cut the sod from around the stem in a circle about 15 inches in diameter and apply the fertilizer to this area. Work the fertilizer into the soil lightly—about one inch deep.

Lexington, Ky.—Check small grain fields, such as oats, barley and wheat, to see if these plantings survived the winter. To prepare four servings of braised shortribs, cut 2 to 3 pounds of shortribs into serving pieces. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and flour. Brown well on both sides in a little hot fat. Add one cup water and cover closely. Cook in oven at 350 degrees until tender or about two hours, suggests USDA home economists.

Planning the use of money should be a family activity, according to Frances Stallard, UK Extension specialist in home management. The children as well as the adults should have some idea of the amount of money coming in and what expenses must be met.

County's Officials Start Pay Drive

Frankfort, Ky. — Kentucky's county officials, who say their salaries lag compared with other states, have opened their drive for extra pay through the backdoor.

Under a House measure, they would obtain expenses of up to $300 monthly from a local officials' expense account revolving fund—to be set up after July 1.

The fund would be financed by a 15-fold increase in the tax on pinball machines—from the present $10 to $150.

Setser Cousins Key Black Cat Win

Fred and Jim Setser combined for 51 points here Monday night to offset a 43-point performance by Bob Tallent, the state's No. 1 scorer, and give Prestonsburg a 93-79 victory over Maytown.

Tallent scored only 11 points in the first half as Maytown fell behind, 49-22, at intermission and the Wild Cats could never recover.

Fred Setser, the 58th district's second top scorer, tallied 30 points, and cousin Jim added 21 as five Black Cats hit in double figures.

Maytown (79)—Bob Tallent 43, Hicks 2, Lowe 15, Spencer 9, Goble 4, Webb 4, Stewart 2.

JUST LIKE OLD TIMES!
 This season was like old times. Kentucky's Wildcats ruled the Southeastern Conference basketball race, and now Coach Adolph Rupp is honing his charges to that keen edge for a run at a fifth NCAA championship.

For the first time in six years Kentucky has earned the NCAA bid and, for what it's worth, the last time they won the SEC title (and the OFFICIAL invitation to the big show) was in 1953. The Wildcats won it all that year, for a record fourth NCAA championship.

Since 1953, Kentucky has gone to the NCAA three of the last five times, but only because Mississippi State elected to pass up the tournament because of the racial issue, and Kentucky went as second choice. In 1950 Kentucky was the clear cut conference champion, and by the end of March, the National Champion. 1954 Ends the Wildcats back on top in the SEC for the first time since 1953, and their chances look brighter for NCAA competition than at any time since then.

Kentucky won the conference the hard way this season. Needing only a victory over a second-rate Alabama team to sew-up the title, the Cats played their poorest game of the season, and the Crimson Tide out-hustled the Big Blue to steal an upset. Then, to win the SEC crown, Kentucky had to go into Knoxville to face a good Tennessee team that was right in the thick of the pennant chase. The Orange and White squad hadn't lost on its home court all season, but Kentucky, with the chips on the line, outlasted the Vols in a ball holding contest, 42-33, and Kentucky had won the conference crown for the 21st time.

This Kentucky team has been an exciting team. It is made up

National Magazine Praises State Parks; Seven Points Mentioned

Frankfort, Ky., March 2 (Sp.) —The March issue of Better Homes & Gardens has an article with words of high praise for Kentucky. It's a story called, "The Delightful Dixieland Trail," by George Bush and it refers to Kentucky's state parks as "among the finest in the nation."

The Dixieland Trail is about 3,500 miles long and winds through five states, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia and the Carolinas. It connects points of scenic and historic interest and is promoted by oil companies and other industries with a stake in the American motorist's travels. Seven of Kentucky's interesting points are mentioned in the article.

UTOPIA CLUBS

Lexington, Ky. — The Utopia Clubs of Kentucky gave a special recognition to two outstanding members and to a county club with an outstanding program during the past year at the organization's annual meeting held recently at Berea College. Utopia Clubs are made up primarily of young farm families, according to J. Pheane Ross, UK Extension recreation specialist who is Extension advisor to the organization.

The K.H.S.A.A. has sold more than $90,000 of advance tickets for the state high school basketball tournament. This represents the largest pre-game sales in the history of the event . . . The Lexington Chamber of Commerce assured the K.H.S.A.A. last year that the rate for one person per room would not be over $7.00; however, this appears to be "down the drain" since the tournament returned to Lexington . . . Bob Tallent finished the season with a 49.3 per game average, and Prestonsburg's junior forward Freddie Setser was the county's next most prolific scorer with a 29.8 per game mean . . . COMMISSIONER SCHEDULES STRIP-MINING HEARINGS

New provisions to restore strip-mined land after it has been mined out are expected to be put into effect shortly by the Strip Mining and Reclamation Commission of the State Department of Conservation.

The Commission was to hold public hearings yesterday, March 4, on the proposed new regulation which incorporates the provisions. The hearing was to be held at the office of State Conservation Commissioner J. O. Matlock.

The regulation incorporates much of the language of House Bill 145 introduced by Representative John Swinford, of Cynthiana. The regulation was proposed, Breathitt said, in order to "initiate and to carry forward immediately the provisions that are the heart of House Bill 145."

New provisions included in the proposed regulation are:

1. A requirement to cover the face of coal and auger holes with compacted material to a distance of at least two feet above the face of the holes at an angle not to exceed 45 degrees or by a permanent water impoundment. (HB 145 calls for five feet of non-compacted material.)

2. A requirement to grade the overburden of tillable lands to a rolling topography and to grade ridges and peaks to a minimum width of 50 feet and regulating the degree of slope that may be left. (The same provision in HB 145 also said "the soil profile shall be restored" and that large boulders should be covered.)

3. A clause providing that "unusual circumstances" may warrant modifying any of the regulation's provisions. (Not included in HB 145.)

Breathitt also recommended three changes be made in HB 145 and said he would support it completely with these amendments:

1. Lower the proposed basic acreage fee to be paid by mine operators from $30 to $25 (it is presently $15). Half of this money was to be used to reclaim

"orphan lands"—stripped several years ago and never reclaimed. Breathitt explained that a new federal program, providing work projects to fathers of dependent children, can be utilized for work in reclamation and restoration, making that part of the fee unnecessary.

2. Amend a section calling for a reclamation plan to be developed in consultation with the local Soil Conservation district to include a provision for the Conservation Department to consult with the district.

3. Lower the minimum bond filed by mine operators to $100. HB 145 calls for bonds ranging from $200 to $500 as opposed to the present law which calls for $100 to a maximum $250. Breathitt's recommendation would retain the upper limit.

The three-day hearing on the strip mine bills produced pages of testimony from proponents and opponents of the bills.

In addition to the bill introduced by Representative Swinford, other bills were introduced by Representative Oz Johnson, Louisville, (HB 174); and Representative Fred Wallace, Jr., Central City, (HB 172).

Supporting the intent of the proposed legislation were witnesses from conservation and sportsmen's groups, garden clubs, the League of Women Voters, as well as private citizens.

Opposing the legislation were spokesmen for strip mining operators and businessmen and private citizens from areas of the state that would be affected.

Chemicals Recommended For Crabgrass Control

Lexington, Ky.—The University of Kentucky Ag Experiment Station horticulture department says one of four materials should be used in late March or early April for crabgrass control in lawns.

The pre-emergence treatment is recommended for best control, Herron says. The materials to use are Bandane, Decthal, Zyturon and calcium arsenate. These are the active ingredients in several commercial mixtures. They are available in dry form and can be applied either with a fertilizer spreader or a cyclone-type seeder. They usually are packaged in quantities to cover from 2,500 to 3,000 square feet of lawn.

The supply and variety of fish is better this year than in recent years, with fresh fish at its peak of supply. Eggs, for high-protein Lenten dishes—and for Easter egg-hunts, are among the top plentiful. Egg prices have been dropping for several weeks and are expected to level off at an average somewhat lower than last year's prices.

Australians eat 221 pounds; Uruguayans, 213 pounds; and Argentinians, 202 pounds. Americans come next with an annual per capita consumption of 164 pounds a year, the U. S.
